9781. 'Pure,' when said of the good sig. by 'the oil,' = genuine. Ex.

9809¹⁰. The purifications commanded for the priests. Enum. and Ex.

9852. 'Pure gold' (Ex.xxviii.14) = good from the Divine.

9959³. All the expiation effected by the washings, sacrifices, etc., represented the purification of the heart from evils and falsities, thus regeneration; and (this) purification is effected through the truths of faith. Sig. 9990.

9990². Before man can be regenerated, he must be purified from evils and falsities . . . The purifications of the external man were represented by the sacrifices from oxen, bullocks, and he-goats; the purifications of the internal man, by those from rams, kids, and she-goats; and the purification of the internal itself, which is inmost, by those from lambs (and kids). 9991. 10042⁸.

9992. 'Unleavened bread' = the purification of the Celestial in the inmost man.

9993. 'Unleavened cakes . . .' = the purification of the middle Celestial.

10002. Purification through the truths of faith. Sig.

10021. The application of the natural man for purification . . . Sig. 10022.

10022². For when man has been purified from evils and falsities, which is effected through their removal, then inflow good and truth from the Lord, and . . . they are conjoined. (Not otherwise.)

10024. Preparation for the purification of good and truth from the Lord in the external man. Sig. and Ex.

10026. All purification is effected through the Divine truth proceeding from the Divine good. Ex.

10028². When man is being purified, he first of all learns such truths as can be apprehended by the sensuous man. Sig. and Ex.

10042⁵. All things of worship relate to purification from evils and falsities, etc. Ex.

10042¹³. The purification of the whole man, external, internal, and inmost. Rep.

10049. The purification of the lowest things. Sig. and Ex.

—². Therefore the purification of the internal man . . . is effected in Heaven by the Lord.

10050. The purification of the exterior things of the natural man. Sig. and Ex.

10057⁶. With the man who is being regenerated, purification from evils and falsities continually goes on; for in proportion as man is purified from evils and falsities, in the same proportion are implanted the truths of faith, and these are conjoined with the good of charity, and in the same proportion the man afterwards acts from the good of charity. (10127⁴.) The purification from evils and falsities with man, is not deliverance from them; but is their removal. Refs.

10109. The appropriation of good with those who have been purified from evils and falsities. Sig.

10123. Purification from evils in Heaven and in the Church. Sig. and Ex.

10127⁴. 'To propitiate' = purification from evils and the derivative falsities; or, what is the same, their removal.

10129⁴. The meat-offerings = purification from evils; and all purification from evils is effected in a state of the good of innocence. Sig.

10143³. For purification from evils and falsities is to desist from them, and to shun and be averse to them.

10208. Purification from evils through the truths of faith which are from the good of love. Sig. and Ex.

—⁴. For nothing of man has been purified, unless the extremes have been purified. Sig. and Ex. —⁵.

10209. All purification from evils lasts perpetually, not only in the world, but also (there). Sig.

10210². Hence man can never be purified from evils unless he is in the good of innocence. Ex.

10211^e. Purification from evils is nothing but detention from them, that is, their removal.

10218. Purification or deliverance from evil through the faith that all truths and goods . . . are from the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

10229. The purifying truths from good of the Church. Sig. and Ex.

—^e. How truths are the sole means of man's purification. Ex.

10234^e. The new thing here expounded is concerning purification from evils and falsities.

10235. 'The laver of brass'=the good of the natural man in which there is purification. Ex. 10237.

10237. Both the internal and the external of man are purified; the internal in Heaven, and the external while he lives (here), thus in the Natural. The reason purification then goes on in the Natural, is that the truths of faith in the Natural come to manifest perception.

— . That purification is effected through truths, is evident from the fact that those who are being purified must not only know what is evil and false, but also acknowledge, and then be averse to and shun it. Then, first, is man purified from them.

10239. A representative of the purification . . . of man by the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

—². Regeneration differs from purification in this: that regeneration is the precedent, and purification is the consequent. Ex.

10243. Purification through the truths of faith. Sig.

—². For unless the Natural is purified in the world, it cannot be purified afterwards to eternity.

10275. All things which are of purification . . . Sig.

10296. 'Pure frankincense' (Ex.xxx.34). Ex. —³.

10301. 'Pure' (ver.35)=without evil.

H. 34. For interior things are in themselves purer.

L. 51⁴. 'A dove'=purification . . . through Divine truth.

S. 40². To purify the interiors, which are of the will and thought . . . through the Word . . . that so the exteriors may be purified, which are of works and speech. Sig.

W. 89. The sun pure fire. 90^e. 157. 351. 353. P.3². T.41, E.944². 1218². (See Fire at J.(Post.)313.)

90². No communication by continuity, that is, as of purer and grosser . . .

419. That the will is purified in the understanding. Gen.art.

420^e. For all the purification of man is through the truths which are of wisdom . . .

422. That the love purified by wisdom in the understanding becomes spiritual and celestial. Gen.art.

423². (Thus) with him who is spiritual, it is the purer blood . . . which has been purified; and it is purified in proportion as the man is in the marriage of love and wisdom. . . And, as the purer blood inflows into the blood of the body, it follows that this is purified through it.

P. 6. The purer anything is, the fuller it is.

21. That evil and falsity are made to serve for purification, etc. Gen.art.

25. (This) purification is effected in two ways: by temptations, and by fermentations. Ex.

111. That the Internal cannot be purified from the concupiscences of evil, so long as the evils in the external man have not been removed. Gen.art.

119. That the Lord then purifies man from concupiscences in the internal man, and from the evils themselves in the external. Gen.art.

—². So long as the ultimates are kept closed by the man himself, there cannot be any purification. Ex. 120².

121. Many believe that merely believing . . . purifies man from evils; some that doing good purifies; some, knowing, saying, and teaching the things of the Church; some, reading the Word and pious books; some, frequenting places of worship, hearing preachings, and especially approaching the Holy Supper; some, renouncing the world and devoting one's self to piety; some, confessing one's self guilty of all sins; and so on. But these do not purify man at all, unless he explores himself, sees his sins, acknowledges them, condemns himself on account of them, and does repentance by desisting from them . . .

150. That the internal man must first be purified, and thus the external, is known. Ill. and Ex.

151². Purification from evils. Sig. To purify the internal man . . . to purify the external man . . . and that when the internal man has been purified, the external must be purified . . . and that all purification from evils is from the Lord. Sig. E.666².

220³. At death, man retains the purer things of nature . . .

279³. Some men after death believe that they are pure from sins . . . They are first clothed in white garments, which=a state purified from evils . . .

—⁶. Substances purely organic.

296¹⁰. On the methods by which man is withdrawn from evil. . . The delights of concupiscences . . . are emitted into the interior thoughts . . . and thence into the exterior thoughts . . . The means of purification, etc., are there. Des.

—¹². With an evil man there is no other purification . . . than of the more grievous evils . . . But with a good man there is (also) the purification of the less grievous ones; and this is effected through the delights of the affections of good and truth . . . These are the means by which the Lord purifies all who are saved. He also purifies the same by external means, which belong to fame and honour . . .

—¹⁴. Comparison with the purification of the blood in the body.

—^e. (Thus) the Divine Providence . . . is constant in its end to purify man.

R. 379. That they had purified their (religious things) from the falsities of evil by truths. Sig. and Ex.

468. A Sun which is pure love; and a sun which is pure fire. T.75². 76². —⁴. 77³.

814. That they will be instructed in truths genuine and pure . . . Sig.

M. 31². The prior, being in itself purer . . .

[M.] 64. That love truly conjugal is . . . purer than any other love. Ex.

71². With men, or Angels, no love can ever become pure; but, as the intention of the will is primarily regarded by the Lord, in proportion as man is in this . . . he is initiated into its purity . . . 146.

139. Thus the purity of conjugal love is what is called chastity.

145. That with those who become spiritual, conjugal love is more and more purified. Ex.

—². This spiritual purification compared to the purification of natural spirits. Ex.

I. 9³. Thus the natural sun is mere fire; and also is fire in its own purity itself. 10.

T. 142. That the Divine virtue and operation meant by 'the Holy Spirit' are . . . renewal, vivification, sanctification, and justification; and, according to these, purification from evils. Gen.art. 149.

—². Purification from evils is the remission of sins.

144. For baptism=regeneration and purification; in like manner 'a dove.'

331⁴. That man must purify himself from evils, and not wait for the Lord to do it immediately. Shown. . . The Lord would say, The means of purification are from Me . . . Use them, and you will be purified. 436².

438. But no one can purify himself from evils by his Own power . . . but still it cannot be done without the man's power, as if his Own. Ex.

659^e. (Thus) the thought is the Purificatory . . . of (the hereditary) evils.

670. That baptism means spiritual washing, which is purification from evils and falsities, and thus regeneration. Gen.art.

D. 1033. That agitations and thus purifications (there) are innumerable. Ex.

1956. What a purified body is.

5750. See LAST JUDGMENT, here.

5838. (The methods used in the purifications of the Reformed.) 5839².

—². When a Society began to be infected . . . it was purified in various ways.

E. 167. 'The kidneys'=the truths of faith, and their purification from falsities. Ex.

340¹⁰. 'Pure in heart' (Ps.xxiv.5)=those who are in good from love.

386³⁰. 'Hyssop'=an external means of purification.

475⁷. That both the internal and the external man are to be purified; and the external through the internal. (Refs. to passages.)

—⁸. The internal man is purified through the truths which are of faith; and the external through a life according to them. Sig.

580³. Man cannot be purified from evils and falsities, unless the unclean things which are in him emerge into the thought . . .

—⁴. 'A coal from the altar'=the Divine love, from which is all purification.

595². This may be illustrated by the idea of a surface, in the middle of which are things purer . . .

600²¹. 'The brazen sea' represented the common Purificatory . . .

677³. When Societies are being purified . . .

939². That the interior of man must be purified, before the good he does is good. Sig. The interior of man is purified solely by desisting from evils according to the commandments . . .

990³. (Thus) the love of marriage even in its ultimate act is purity itself . . . and the love of adultery in its acts is impurity itself.

1084^e. Wonderful to say, the purer things (in nature) are in the grosser . . .

D. Wis. x. 3. That the life of the understanding purifies the life of the will. Ex.

C. 191. As is the mind of the head in (the fibres, etc.) such are the delights: pure, or impure . . .

Purgatory. Purgatorium.

R. Pref. vi. (The Roman Catholic doctrine of Purgatory. Quoted.)

770. Had fortified itself especially by Purgatory . . .

784². Purgatory is a figment purely Babylonish and diabolical for the sake of gains . . . —^e.

T. 475^e. Purgatory is a fable invented by the Roman Catholics.

D. 4553^e. They instilled a fear of Purgatory.

5006^e. He assented to the belief in Purgatory.

E. 1100²³. Would be tormented in Purgatory if . . .

1122. They terrify by the horrors of Purgatory . . .

Purge. See under DEFECATE.

Purple. See CRIMSON.

Purpose. See under PROPOSE.

Purse. Crumena.

S. 26³. I saw great purses containing much silver; and, as they were open, there was a perception as if anyone could take of the silver; but there were two Angels sitting beside the purses, who were guards. (This) represented the sense of the letter (in which) are Knowledges of truth in great abundance; (and of which) everyone can take; yet care is taken lest anyone should falsify the spiritual sense. R.255. T.277. De Verbo 1.

E. 131³. 'Purse,' and 'scrip' (Luke xxii.35)=spiritual Knowledges; thus truths.

840⁶. 'Purses'=the like as the coins and money in them; namely, the Knowledges of truth and good from the Word.

Pursue. See under PERSECUTE.

Pursue. Insectari. H.586^e.

Pustule. Pustula.

A. 7524. 'Pustules' (Ex.ix.9) = the blasphemies thence.

8246. Faces pustulated . . .

H. 553². Their faces enormous with pustules . . . M.432².

M. 253. Malignant pustules on the body (a cause of legitimate separation). 470.

263. A devil seen. His face was full of pustules like those of a burning fever.

E. 962⁸. Correspondence of 'pustules.'

Put. Ponere.

A. 6919. 'Ye shall put upon' (Ex.iii.22)=application to.

7137. 'To put upon them' (Ex.v.14)=to inject.

8774. 'To put the words before them' (Ex.xix.7)=proposition.

9076. 'If expiation is put upon him' (Ex.xxi.30). 9078, Ex.

H. 361. They do not set their heart in these things.

R. 470. 'He set his right foot on the sea.' Ex.

E. 405⁹. Occurs. —²¹. —⁴⁷. 406⁵. —. 412⁹. 577¹¹. 730⁵. —⁷. —¹¹. —¹⁷. —²¹. —²⁴. —²⁵. —²⁶. —²⁷.

Put. Puth.

A. 1160. 'Put,' etc. (Gen.x.6)=so many nations, by which are signified the Knowledges, knowledges, and worships which are of faith separated from charity. 1163.

1163. 'Put,' or 'Lybia,'=Knowledges from the literal sense of the Word, by which they confirm false principles. 1166.

1164. 'Put' (Jer.xlvi.8)=Knowledges from the literal sense which are according to the appearances of the senses. (=Knowledges. 1195^e.)

1231. 'Lnd and Put' (Ezek.xxvii.10)=Knowledges which serve to defend truths, with the aid of reason. 'Put'=exterior Knowledges of the Word. (=those in Knowledges. 3448⁸.)

Put away. Amovere.

See REMOVE.

A. 8174. That the falsities once put away will be put away to eternity. Sig.

9316. When the Lord . . . has put away the evils and falsities which infest the Church. Sig. and Ex.

9320. That evils (and falsities of worship) are to be completely put away. Sig. and Ex. 9321.

T. 435. That the first of charity is to put away evils . . . Gen.art. 437.

Put forth. Exserere.

A. 984. The goods of charity put themselves forth in affections . . .

8293^e. The delight of doing evil . . . put itself forth . . .

H. 360². Unless the affection puts itself forth into acts . . .

D. 2082. Internal envy . . . is much more pernicious than the envy which puts itself forth . . .

Put off. Deponere. E.1013³.

Putting off. A. Depositio. D.4480.

Put off. Exuere.

Putting off. A. Exuitio.

A. 1106. There put off principles of falsity. 1107.

1748². 'Put off thy shoe' (Jos.v.15). 'The shoe'=the natural ultimate, which is to be put off.

1854². Death nothing but the putting off of the things of grossest nature . . .

2008. The Lord putting off the human. 2010. 2063. 2112. 2138. 2139. 2159. 2198. 2199. 2203. 2204. 2209. 2213. 2288. 2511. 2592. 2624. D.5992. E.205⁶.

2159. The Lord completely put off the Maternal.

—². When He had put off this human, He put on the Divine Human.

2196². Human rational truth cannot put off appearances.

2625². If he were to put off the idea of space and time . . .

—^e. He puts off the old man, and puts on the new.

2649². The plenary putting off of the human . . .

2916³. The idea of a sepulchre is as it were put off . . .

3016. 'Old age'=to put off what is human, and to put on what is heavenly.

3405. As He put off this human, He put off the appearances also; and put on the infinite and eternal Divine Itself.

3913⁴. Ends for self and the world must be put off, and ends for the neighbour, etc., must be put on. To put off the former, and put on the latter, is impossible . . . except through media.

3957². When the body has been put off . . .

—³. No one can put off the life he has acquired from infancy, unless . . .

—⁶. External things are put off with the body.

4063³. Concupiscences must be put off, and affections of Heaven must be put on. Ex.

4741. 'They stripped Joseph of his coat' (Gen.xxxvii.23)=to dispel and annihilate appearances . . .

5331^e. The Celestial of the Spiritual . . . was the human . . . which could be put off . . .

8452³. When the external is being put off . . .

9300⁶. After the putting off of the body . . .

C. J. 66. When made God, He had put off all the human from Mary.

L. 35. The Lord successively put off the human; and put on the Human from the Divine in Himself. Ex. Can. Redeemer ix.

W. 234. Thus could He put off nature . . . and put on the Divine.

238. When He had put off the natural degree . . .

M. 36². After death, man puts off all that does not agree with his love; and successively puts on the face, tone, speech, gestures, and manners, of his life's love.

T. 94. When the Lord had glorified His Human, He put off everything of His mother, and put on everything of the Father.

[T.] 102. By acts of redemption He put off the human from the mother, and put on the Human from the Father . . . Ill. 103^e.

568⁵. When your external man is put off . . .

E. 444¹⁴. 'They stripped him' (Luke x.30). 'To put off' (or 'strip'), in the Word, =to bereave of truths.

Put on, Clothe. Induere.

Putting on, A. Induitio.

Clothing. Indumentum.

See under PUT OFF.

A. 996². They put on Delights still more interior.

1426. That He would put on celestial and thus Divine things.

1428. Lot put on another representation.

1740². Thus are goods and truths put on.

2008. The Lord putting on the Divine. 2010. 2063. 2112. 2216. 2218. 2624.

2009⁸. 'He shall be clothed in white raiment.'

2137. That the Divine . . . should put on something natural. (2162.) And that the Human should put on the Celestial. Sig. The Celestial and derivative Spiritual which He put on. Sig.

2139. That He would put off human rational truth, and would put on truth Divine. Sig.

2189³. Truth is the clothing of good; therefore truths are called 'clothes,' and 'garments.'

— When the Angels appear clothed, it is the resplendence induing the appearance of a garment.

2265^e. In its place He put on the Human Divine. 2288^e.

2300. The Actual of the parents puts on nature.

2523². It pleased Him to put on the human like another man.

2576¹⁸. 'Raiment' (Is.lxiii.3)=the Lord's Human.

2760². 'Clothed—circumindutus—in a vesture . . .'

— 'Clothed in clean white linen.'

2795^e. Why He put on the human state itself . . .

2796. The puttings on of various states by the Lord. Ex.

3108². Truth then clothes the man . . .

3300. That good has been clothed with truth. Sig.

—². 'He shall wash his clothing in wine' (Gen. xlix.11). 'Clothing,' here, =the Divine Natural.

3301⁴. Before He put on Divine good and truth as to the natural man also.

3539. 'She put them on Jacob' (Gen.xxvii.15)=to communicate and imbue . . .

3735. 'Garment to put on' (Gen.xxviii.20)=to be appropriated and conjoined . . .

3938³. When the Lord had put on the Divine Esse.

3994⁶. The putting on of the Divine as to the Human. Sig.

4007². To be purified from sins, by . . . the putting on of the Lord's justice. Sig.

—³. 'Clothed in white.' Ex.

4545. 'To change the garments'=to put on holy truths. Ill.

4904². Putting off the old man, and putting on the new.

5620¹². 'Clothing of camel's hair'=the Word, such as is its literal sense as to truth; which sense is a clothing for the internal sense.

5689². Clothed . . . for use in a lower sphere . . .

—³. That which gives the clothing is the mother; for the clothing is the body of that soul.

5857. Spirits put on all things of the man's memory, etc. 5859. 5860. D.267.

6371². The Lord put on that same which was with the (Celestial) Angels . . .

7601³. (Such) appear clothed in white.

8030. They appear clothed in azure . . .

8245. The clothing (of the inhabitants of Jupiter).

8760². The infinite (must) put on something finite . . .

9372⁴. (Not) 'a man clothed in soft clothings' (Matt. xi.8). Ex.

—⁸. 'Clothing,' or 'garment,' said of the Word, = the truth Divine there in the ultimate form.

—⁹. There, all appear clothed according to the truths from good.

9468⁵. 'To clothe one's self' (Jer.iv.30)=to teach truths of doctrine.

9792. The clothing (of a woman of the First Earth). The same served the man also for clothing.

9827. All clothings derive their signification from the part of the body which they cover. 9916^e.

9952. 'Thou shalt put them on Aaron' (Ex.xxviii.41) =to induce the state which is represented by the garments . . .

H. 101. Why He clothed His Divine with the Human . . .

108. All things in the world come forth from the Divine, and are clothed with such things in nature . . .

112. Uses are clothed with such things . . .

177. On the garments with which the Angels appear clothed. Chapter.

331. The infants are not clothed with an earthly body . . .

352. Whatever is confirmed puts on the appearance of truth.

485^e. He then puts on a spiritual body. . . (For) the bodies with which the Angels are clothed are spiritual.

W. 233. The Lord put on—superinduerit—this third degree by the assumption of the Human. 234.

331². Uses created for the clothing of the body . . .

333². Clothing as applied to the truths of wisdom.

334. The Angels are clothed gratis . . .

P. 180⁷. The muscles make a clothing.

298. Every man (then) puts off the material body, and puts on a spiritual one.

R. 212. 'White vestments that thou mayest be clothed' (Rev.iii.8)=to acquire genuine truths of wisdom.

725. 'The woman was clothed—circuminduta—with crimson and scarlet' (Rev. xvii. 4). Ex.

M. 2. The Angel was clothed in . . .

20². The bridegroom was clothed in . . . 21, Ex.

31². The material man is as the clothing to (the spiritual or substantial man).

M. 48a^e. The putting off of the External, and the putting on of the Internal, after death. Ex.

206. The clothing of the offspring is from the mother. Ex.

I. 11. That the Spiritual clothes itself with the Natural, as man does with a garment. Ex.

12. That spiritual things thus clothed in man cause that . . .

—⁵. His soul is then clothed with a substantial body, as in the world it had been clothed with a material body.

T. 109². The Lord (then) put on the Divine Natural.

404. Man puts on a totally different state if . . .

569. When the material body has been taken away, and the . . . clothing of the spirit has been thus removed . . .

583. Man is born spiritual as to the soul, and is clothed with the Natural which makes his material body; and therefore when this is laid aside, his soul, clothed with a spiritual body, comes into (that) World.

D. 1054. By the putting on of a specious appearance . . .

2574. The Spirits put on the man himself. Ex.

2939. Certain Spirits do not at once put on the man's memory; some put on all of it. Ex.

E. 65. All clothings = things which proceed. Ex.

243. 'To put on' (or 'be clothed') (Rev. iii. 18) = to acquire intelligence. 246.

272³. After this last temptation, He put on the Divine good of the Divine love . . .

457. 'Clothed in white robes' = in truths.

659¹⁹. When man puts off his material body, he puts on a spiritual one, with which he rises.

750¹⁶. 'Nor for your body, what ye shall put on . . . Is not the body more than clothing?' (Matt. v. 25) . . . 'To clothe the body,' and 'the clothing,' = the truth which invests the good of love . . . 'The clothing' = that truth; and 'the body,' the good of the will.

1042. 'To be clothed—circumindui' = to be in externals; for the clothes are external things which cover; hence 'to be clothed' = the appearance in externals.

1218. A clothing—superindumentum—from the sun of the world, is given to the things which are in the natural world.

Put to Flight. See FLIGHT.

Putridity. Putredo.

Putrefy. Putrescere.

Putrefaction. Putrefactio.

See STINK—putere.

A. 1773^e. Such heat is that which putrefies . . .

6503^e. Embalmed, that the body might be preserved from putridity. 6505.

S482. 'It became putrid—computruit' (Ex. xvi. 20) = what is infernal thence. 'To putrefy' = infernal filth. 'To putrefy' is here predicated of evil; and 'worms,' of falsity; for, when good becomes evil, it is circumstanced as is flesh, or bread, when it putrefies; and the falsity from that evil is like the worm which is produced from the putridity. 8500.

H. 362^e. (These riches, and uses,) putrefy like a body without a soul; and like damp soil without the light of heaven.

D. 2660. When filthy delights . . . putrefy, and become fetid like ordure, so that (the Spirits) begin to abominate these things, then they are like soil into which a faculty of good can be inseminated.

2841. That natural and corporeal things, separated from spiritual and celestial ones, putrefy.

4469. They are permitted to descend into worldly and corporeal things, and thus to putrefy again.

5459. There then appeared there as it were liquefied flesh, dissolved by putrefaction.

E. 275⁷. 'The fish putrefies' (Is. l. 2) = that scientifics . . . shall be devoid of all spiritual life, which takes place when they are applied to confirm falsities against the truths of the Church. 513³.

1005². As from such a commingling (of seeds), putridity, from a spiritual origin also, must come forth, it follows that adultery is an abomination.

Pyramid. Pyramis.

Pyramidal. Pyramidalis.

A. 947. A globe on a pyramidal base.

M. 6². Small pyramids with sweetmeats on the tables.

7. A portico constructed of columns and pyramids.

—². Beside each pyramid a chair of state.

14². In the middle of the table a lofty pyramid of gold, with a hundred salvers in three rows . . . Through the middle of the pyramid there gushed a fountain of nectareous wine . . . At the sides of this lofty pyramid were various heavenly forms of gold, on which were dishes and plates loaded with food of every kind.

D. 4361. Like a pyramidal sack.

Pyre. Pyra. T. 510.

Pyris. Pyris.

T. 798². A place called Pyris in the spiritual language.

Pyrrha. Pyrrha. T. 58².

Pythagoras. Pythagoras.

Pythagorean. Pythagoreus.

M. 151a. Pythagoras there.

153a. The Pythagoreans there.

Python. Python.

Pythonic. Pythonicus.

A. 3698^e. Others, called pythons, etc., who studied natural magic, whereby nothing of what is Divine could be foretold; but only what is contrary to the Divine . . .

B. 79^e. Lest (their sermons) should appear to be pythonic.

T. 324. Those who speak false things from deceit, and pronounce them in a tone emulous of spiritual affection . . . were called . . . also pythons and serpents of the tree of knowledge.

Ad. 3/5868. So was the woman of the python permitted to foretell to Saul . . .

D. 3004. The magic exercised by the ancients, especially the pythionics. Ex.

3683. David tried to act the python, by evoking others to ascend in the manner of the pythons, he standing on my head, which he did from his persuasion and pythonic idea; (which) is a persuasion conjoined with the idea of evoking those whom they like. Whether David had this Pythonic in his life, cannot be determined . . .

3717^e. All which (representations) are their . . . magical, and pythonic phantasies.

E. 141¹⁴. 'I will cut off the soul that looketh to pythons' (Lev.xx.6).

1182^e. When the Spirit, from a like affection, favours the thoughts or principles of the man, then the one leads the other, as the blind the blind . . . The pythionics of yore were such, and likewise the magi in Egypt and Babel, who, from their discourse with Spirits, and their operation felt manifestly in themselves, were called 'wise.'

Coro. 43². Of some (of these representative forms, the ancients made) pythons.

45^e. The most heartfelt delight (of the infernals from the Ancient Church) is to give out vaticinations and presages, and to act the pythons. They are the chief source of the enthusiasms in the Christian world.

57². Celebrate profane festivals, like the pythons on their sabbaths.

Pyx. Pyxis. T. 568².

Quadrangular. See SQUARE.

Quadruped. Quadrupes, Quadrupedus.

A. 4227³. Such are distinguished by this, that they act in a quadruped manner . . . D. 1819.

P. 275^e. If man were born into the love of the neighbour . . . he would indeed at first creep like a quadruped, but with the implanted endeavour to raise himself up . . .

D. 1031. When a Spirit is being inaugurated (into a gyre), he is driven into a quadruplicate step, so that the sound is like a quadruped . . . 1127.

1203. There are Spirits who speak in a quadruped manner. Des.

Quail. Coturnix.

T. 810². Likened to the quails from the sea cast upon the camp of Israel, of which many thousands died. Coro. 22².

E. 750¹⁵. By the flesh of the quails—coturnicum seu selav—given them, is signified natural nourishment.

1200³. (The quail a bird of an intermediate character, which appears in the World of Spirits.)

Quail. Selav.

A. 8395. Consolation after temptation is signified by the manna and the quail.

8426². This delight of natural love is signified by 'the quail' which they received in the evening (Ex.xvi.).

8431. 'The quail'=the good of the external or natural man, which is called delight.

8452. 'The quail came up' (ver. 13)=natural delight through which is good. The reason 'quail'=natural delight, is that it was a bird of the sea; and by a bird of the sea is signified what is natural; and by its flesh, which was desired, delight. Further ex.

—². By a bird of the sea and its flesh, is signified natural delight; and, in the opposite sense, the delight of concupiscence. 'Quail'=this, in Num.xi. Ex.

—³. But the natural delight which is signified by 'quail' in (Ex.xvi.), which was given to the people in the evening, is not the delight of concupiscence; but is the delight of the external man which corresponds to the good of the internal. This delight has spiritual good within it; whereas the delight of concupiscence has in it infernal evil. Ex. 8487³, Ex. —⁴.

Quaker. Quaquerus.

Quakerish, Quaker. Quaquerianus.

Quakerism. Quaquerismus, Quaquerianismus.

C. J. 83. On the Quakers in the Spiritual World. Gen.art.

— . When Quakerism commenced, these enthusiastic Spirits, who believed themselves to be the Holy Spirit, were drawn out of the forests, and obsessed many, and infused the persuasion that they were being acted upon by the Holy Spirit; and, as they perceived the influx by the sense, that religiosity so took possession of them, that they believed themselves to be illustrated and holy above all others; and therefore they could not be withdrawn from their religiosity. Those who have confirmed themselves in it, come into a like enthusiasm after death, and . . . are relegated to their like in the forests, where from afar they appear like wild swine. But those who have not confirmed themselves, are remanded to a place like a desert . . . where caves are their temples. D. 3784. 3785.

84. After the former enthusiastic Spirits had been removed from them, the tremor which they caused in their bodies ceased, and they now feel a motion on the left. From the first time [of Quakerism] they have gone from bad to worse; and at last into nefarious things, by command of their holy spirit, which they divulge to none. I have spoken with the founder of their religiosity, and with Penn, who said that they have no part in such things. (D. 3771. 3814.) Those who perpetrate them are let down into a dark place, and sit in corners, appearing like the dregs of oil. D. 3811.

85. As they have rejected the two sacraments, and yet read the Word, and preach the Lord, and speak from the obsession of enthusiastic Spirits, and thus commingle the holy things of the World with truths profaned, no Society is formed of them in the Spiritual World; but, after they have wandered alone hither and thither, they disappear, and are collected into the before mentioned desert.

P. 259. (The existence of heresies, as Quakerism, an argument against the Divine Providence.) E.1176².

321³. See MORAVIAN, here.

D. 423. That the Quakers (there) adore a cloud, upon their knees. Ex.

— The Quakers do not suffer themselves to be instructed . . . but inhere in their own principles . . . 3751, Ex.

— The Quaker Souls increase this crew (of enthusiastic Spirits); but are distinguished from them by a white line around the head of two; for two usually appear . . .

1326^e. If persecutions [could save men] those might claim Heaven who suffer for their opinions . . . as the Quaker people. 3187.

2902. Spirits can operate nothing with those who are persuaded, as in the Quaker people.

2940^e. Enthusiasts and Quaker people say that they are led by the Holy Spirit . . . 3011^e.

3013. Thus he was known to be a Quaker, or Quakerish Spirit, which is the same.

3015. A representative vision about the Quakers.

3016^e. That the Quakers do not know that anything is ever miraculously insinuated by the Lord; and, although they do not perceive it, still probity of life and uprightness are given them.

3732. On the Quakers. Gen.art.

— They appeared in my sleep clothed in garments with much resplendent gold . . .

3733. When I awoke they said they were Quakers; of whom I had thought as being of honourable life, and upright; for I had heard of nothing else. As they suppose themselves to be led by the Holy Spirit, I spoke with them about holiness. They said that holiness is to trade . . .

3735. The Spirits could not explore their interior quality; for they do not want anything to be divulged, having this from the life of the body. (3751².) . . . They said that it is sufficient not to speak evil of anyone, nor do evil to anyone . . . They speak but little; and thus divulge nothing of what they are thinking . . . They have no fixed doctrinals of faith, except what the Spirits inspire into them. 3736. 3737.

3751. On the Quakers. Gen.art.

— A Spirit is continually inflowing into the thoughts of the Quakers, and confirms them that the Holy Spirit is speaking with them. Thus they reject all doctrinals; and, when they hear them from others, they say, What's this? What's this? . . . and that they do not understand. J.(Post.)58.

3752. (Their mysteries shown by representations.)

3762. On the Quakers. Gen.art.

— Quaker Spirits said that they were Spirits from eternity . . . They believed that they live, think, speak, from themselves; and also that they can do all things from themselves . . . They act in secret, so that scarcely any Spirit is aware that it is from them . . . At last they were declared by me, and others, with open voice, to be filthy Spirits, much more profane than the stercoraceous, cadaverous, and excrementitious ones . . . to which they could reply nothing.

3764. These act into the lower Quaker Spirits; for these, when first from life, gather to them . . . and are inspired by them—as in life—to say nothing to anyone, (which gives rise to so putrid a sphere) that others cannot be with them . . . 3784^e.

3765. The quality of the worship they have induced on the Quakers was made manifest, which they hide from all, and which is so wicked, nefarious, and abominable, that if Christians knew of it, they would be expelled from society. (3766, Fully des. 3768, Ex. 3769. 3794. 3805. J.(Post.)58.)

3767. The influx of their Spirits formerly . . . convulsed their whole body; but now they only feel a commotion at the left side of the belly; and in the left arm, just above the palms—formerly in the palms also—they also keep the left side of the face cheerful. J.(Post.)58.

3768^e. This (abominable worship) is their Sacrament of the Supper.

3770. (Thus) they cannot be removed from their profane worship.

3772. These things have been written in the presence of their holy Spirits, who endeavoured to inspire nefarious things against the Lord (which were such as to show) that they proceed from the filthiest devil of all; and it was said that the Hell of their holy Spirits is deeper than that of others, where they become the most filthy excrements. 3774.

3773. As to their life, the Quakers are like the Jews; they love riches without any end, except that they may acquire and possess them.

3775. According to their doctrinals, they acknowledge three Persons. They also acknowledge the Word; but do not care for it; for they say that they also are actuated by the Holy Spirit. . . In their meeting they preach the Lord; (for) their Spirits can only speak according to the doctrinals in the memories (of those present); but still they care nothing for the Lord; but only for the Holy Spirit. . . and therefore in the other life the Quakers know nothing about the Lord, and are rebels against Him, vaunting themselves as the Holy Spirit, about whom they had constantly thought . . . 3775.

3778. I spoke to them about marriage. Ex. . . Some of them, being their lower Spirits, came to me, and said that they had sinned grievously, and felt grief. These had been among their better ones; who had observed the nature of this thing; but, being among them, they could not say anything.

3779. I have perceived their venereal cupidities in the street, when I saw Quaker women.

3780. They are not deceitful as others are; but their is a kind of secret deceit. When in anger, they openly cast forth calumnies; otherwise they act as it were with craft, but as it were incognito; which also they derive from their life in the body . . .

[D.] 3781. From the Quakers it is evident how dangerous it is, in this Earth, for Spirits to speak with man; or for men to attend to the operations of Spirits in themselves, if they are not in faith in the Lord. If they are in faith, then it does no harm, for the Lord delivers them; but if they are not in faith, like the Quaker people and Enthusiasts, they are not only persuaded that it is the Holy Spirit, but are also excited and irritated to wicked things . . .

3784. On the Quakers. Gen.art.

— Although so unwilling to speak of their own doctrinal things, they desire to hear those of others; but in such a way as not to be impressed with them, and so that the other should not observe [that they are paying attention].

—^c. Therefore the Quaker Spirits live separate from others.

3785. The first departure of their holy Spirit, which consists of Quakers, is that they seem to themselves and others to be wandering in dense forests, as wild swine—not boars, but swine—which is from their life, because they are avaricious, and live in such dirtinesses.

3790. On an abode of the Quakers. (A representative dream of a kitchen.)

3793. On the Quakers. Gen.art.

— For some days Quaker Spirits have been with me, who vaunt themselves as the Holy Spirit . . . They care nothing for the Lord, against whom . . . they have contumeliously inveighed, but with craft, from their nature, that they say nothing openly; and therefore their deceit was evinced to consist in this, that they dare not divulge their thoughts . . . They are continually afraid that some one may hear; and therefore they asked that they might be alone, and then they would tell many things. Therefore they are deceitful in what is secret, their nature withholding them, because they want to hide what belongs to them. This kind of deceit differs from all others.

3794. That which is indifferent they have made to be of conscience, so as to excuse their abominable adulteries. (Their arguments in excuse of them.) 3796.

3797. On Quaker Spirits. Gen.art.

— They acted by phantasies, as they are wont to do in life.

3798. The nefarious sphere of their adultery. Des.

3805. Such are those especially who are born of that adulterous connection; and such are they who especially inspire it. 3811. (Their ultimate formation into something useful. 3811^e. J.(Post.)58.)

3815. Certain Quakers spoke about those who first became Quakers in such abundance: that their Spirits could not then have consisted of Quakers; thus that they were different from Quakers. But it was replied that almost all in the World of Spirits are such that they want to obsess man . . . and those who then possessed them were from the World of Spirits in general; and they were then more actuated by enthusiastic motions . . . but afterwards Quaker Spirits succeeded, when they had become such; for these agree most nearly with their nature; nor do they admit others into the society; for their nature is separate from that of others. (J.(Post.)58.

4792^e. With Quakers there are Quaker Spirits. J.(Post.)48.

6076. On the Quakers.—They preach the New Testament, because it was born from the Holy Spirit . . . and they eat in the Holy Spirit . . . J.(Post.)58^e.

D. Min. 4664. Many Spirits vaunt themselves as the Holy Spirit, because they are with Quakers.

E. 1182⁴. None but Quaker Spirits operate into Quakers.

J. (Post.) 58. On the Quakers. Gen.art.

58. The Quakers most obstinately resist the promulgation of anything of their secrets. The Spirits who are with the Quaker people, whom they suppose to be the Holy Spirit, are those who had been of the same sect in the world. To these they gather first thing after death; and they inspire into them to promulgate nothing.

De Verbo 13². Quaker Spirits (who are with the Quakers) confirm all things of Quakerism.

Quality. Qualitas, Qualis.*

Quality. Qualificare.

Qualification. Qualificatio.

See under NAME.

A. 301^e. From a single idea, they know of what quality he is—qualis est. 803². 10298⁵.

1048. His quality is perceived at his first coming. 1383^e. 1388. (See 1520.)

1258. The Angels regard all from their Quality itself, or from their quality. The Quality or quality of man, from which he is regarded in Heaven, is charity and faith. (So) when anyone regards any man, family, or nation, he thinks for the most part of what quality they are: everyone from that which then reigns with himself: the idea of their Quality at once occurs, and from that he regards them in himself. Still more so the Lord; and, from Him, the Angels . . .

1394. It is because there is such perception, that one can know in an instant the quality of another as to love and faith.

1434. In Heaven they do not know Lot; but the Quality represented by him.

2010². In representations the quality of the man has no effect. Ex.

2189². The charity with man is according to the Quality and quantity of the truth. 2190.

2261. Goods have their Quality according to the truths and the man's life.

2284³. According to the Quality and the quantity of the remains . . .

2576². The quality of the Angels known from their dress.

* Qualitas is indicated by a capital Q.

2715⁵. The good itself is qualified according to the truth.

2937^e. Still, the Quality of good is not born and produced by truth; but by the influx of the good into truth of that quality.

2979³. According to the quality and quantity of the truth which is insinuated into good; and (then) according to the quality and quantity of the good.

3237. Quality not predicated of the Divine; but esse.

3605⁴. The Lord appears to everyone according to his quality. Refs. 6832². II.120(e). E.539⁴.

3935. By quality is signified whatever is within; here, in the good of faith, and in works; and there are things innumerable; for the quality is various with everyone . . .

3957⁶. The man is then such as he had been inwardly . . . 4663².

3983. 'Thou knowest how-qualiter-I have served thee' (Gen.xxx.29)=that it knew its mind-animus-and power.

3986². For all good has its quality from truths. 4197³. 4301. 4748². 4837². 6427. 8768².

3992. That He perceives all good as to its quality-quale est. Sig.

4047. Their quality was known to me from their speech.

—². For all Spirits and Angels may be known as to their quality from the Lord's Prayer. Ex.

4060. Charity receives its quality from the truths which are of faith.

4121. There are degrees (of brotherhood) according to the Quality of the goods and truths.

4250^e. Truths are disposed according to . . . the Quality of the good; for the good receives its quality from the truths.

4321². All in the Grand Man keep a constant situation according to the quality and state of the truth and good in which they are. Ex.

4358². Such as is the good, such are the truths . . . 4742².

4626. When any Spirit is approaching . . . his presence is perceived . . . from a certain spiritual sphere, from which is known the quality of his life, the quality of his affection, and the quality of his faith . . .

4674. That from (the Divine truth) it appeared what their quality was. Sig. and Ex.

—². In this Light (of Heaven) all appear as to their quality. Ex. —³, Examp.

4859. Truth does not appear as to its quality, until it is conjoined with its good. Sig.

4984². Action itself thus qualifies truths. Ex.

5128². But, in the other life, there is distinctly perceived both what there is in the speech and what in the action; thus the quality of the life.

—⁴. By the life is not meant such as it appears in the discourse and works; but such as it is in the discourse and the works . . . Such as is the intention or end in (them), such is the life.

5144². In every degree (the inflowing good) is qualified according to the reception.

5248. From the garments of a Spirit or Angel may be Known their quality as to the truths of faith.

5293². Hence, according to the quality of the use, is the quality of his life.

5342². Because as yet he does not know truths, the goods of innocence and charity have not been qualified; for truths give Quality to good.

5356². Temptations give the quality of the apperception of good and truth through the opposites which are then infused. From the apperception of opposites are procured relatives, from which is all quality . . . 7319².

6096. The state and quality of the spiritual life. Sig. (For) all numbers=Things; thus the state and quality of the Thing treated of.

6472. The Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord is received by man according to his quality.

6495^e. (There) such as a man had been inwardly, such he is; not such as he had appeared . . .

6571^e. Their quality is perceived from their sphere.

6623. The quality known from one word. 10454^e. (See below, at D.3064.)

6704. The quality of a man's life is to be well scrutinized, and charity exercised according thereto. 6705.

6707^e. The Lord is present according to the quality of the good.

6710. Everyone is the neighbour according to his quality.

6872³. An angel or man is such as is his love; (and this) in the whole body.

6916². For good to be good, there must be truths which must qualify it . . . therefore, such as the truth is, such becomes the good . . .

7044. The quality shown by the Representative Church through truth. Sig. and Ex.

7236. That they were to be distinguished into classes according to the qualities of good. Sig.

—³. When truth is conjoined, it qualifies the good.

7284. The state and quality of the Law from the Divine. Sig.

7371. From the delight may be known the quality of the love.

7759. This good obtains its quality from truth.

7839. Spiritual good receives its quality from the truths of faith.

7840². The men of the Internal Church are those who have qualified their good through interior truths, such as are those of the internal sense; but the men of the External Church are those who have qualified their good through exterior truths, such as are those of the literal sense.

7887^e. (These falsities) are accepted as truths according to the quality of the innocence: hence the good receives its quality.

8002⁵. The end is what gives quality to the actions.

[A.] S318^e. The end qualifies all the other things. 9210. W.261².

S533. Goods (there) are as to quality and as to quantity; (and) are defined with everyone according to the quality and quantity of his faith and charity (here). The quality and quantity of the good of everyone (there) is open before the Angels, when the Lord grants . . . The quality and quantity of the good possessed by everyone and by a Church, are represented by the weights and measures in the Word. Examp.

8726. To inflow, and thus to qualify. Sig.

S772. The quality of spiritual good is from the truths which are of faith. The good which has not its quality from the truths of faith . . . is merely natural good . . .

S916². The Divine appears to everyone according to the quality of him who sees it . . .

9050⁶. Love has its quality from faith.

9154². Good has its quality from truths; and it has its form also from them; for where there is form, there there is quality; and where there is not form, there there is not quality. Ex.

9297^e. Hence Spirits, by presence, are at once known as to their quality . . .

9606. Hence Spirits and Angels, at a distance, are Known as to their quality.

9643. For where there is quality, there there is form.

10217⁶. Hence 'to number' = to qualify; and, in spiritual things, the qualification of a Thing is effected through ordination and disposition by the Lord. Ill.

H. 48. An Angel who excels in wisdom sees the quality of another instantly from his face. Ex.

131. Therefore the quality of all is Known in the light of Heaven . . .

236². Hence it is that the Angels know the quality of another from his speech alone; from his tone, the quality of his affection; and from the words, the quality of his mind. From a single series of the speech, the wiser Angels know the quality of the dominant affection.

345. Hence, according to the quality of this plane, and in such a manner—qualiter—as he Rational corresponds with the things there, such is the man after death.

517(a). All good has . . . its quality from the uses; hence, such as is the use, such is the good. Refs.

552. After passing through the first and second states, a Spirit, when regarded with the eyes, is at once Known, as to his quality; not only from the face, but also from the body, and likewise from the speech and gestures. 553.

U. 50. The Quality of every Spirit manifests itself through influx, which is the communication of his affection. Des.

J. 12¹. A form which does not consist of various things is not a form, because it has not quality . . . The quality of every form is from the ordination of the various things therein among themselves; and from their mutual regard; and from their consensus to a one . . .

W. 220. How the Angels know the quality of a man as to understanding and will . . . thus as to the internal life which is of his mind, and as to the external life therefrom in the body, from the mere action of the hands. Ex.

253^e. Through the truths which are of faith, charity enters into the works, and qualifies them.

310. The very Quality of being able to produce, earths get from their origin . . .

P. 4². Whatever comes forth, derives from its form that which is called quality.

309. This is not the proprium which is meant; for it is only quality.

R. 110³. They do not inquire into whom and of what quality the neighbour is; because they have no truths; and by truths alone is one Known from another.

140. That the Church may know that the Lord sees the quality of the truth and the quality of the good possessed by everyone. Sig. and Ex.

363. Whose quality no one Knows but the Lord alone. Sig. and Ex. 364.

772². Therefore there everyone knows the quality of another, as soon as he comes into his Own chamber.

961¹. All quality is allotted its quality from the fact that there is an Ipsum from which it is, and to which it has relation in order to be such. Ex.

M. 76. As every man, beast, bird, and fish corresponds to some Quality . . .

—⁶. Representatives of the qualities, etc., of conjugal love.

87. Good without something added thereto, is of no predication, of no relation, affection, or state; in a word, of no Quality. It is the like with truth . . .

184. The state of man's life is his Quality . . . as to understanding and will.

T. 53. God is Form, because all the Quality of substances has arisen and does arise from Him: Quality exists from no other source than form.

377². The Truths of faith not only illuminate charity, but also qualify it.

412. The Lord . . . sees an entire society as one man; and its form from their qualities.

418. Who loves the person except from the Quality of his will and understanding . . .

753. All the quality of good is formed through truths.

D. 1583. That the qualities of Spirits can be at once Known by those who are interior.

2334. Spirits appear at a certain quarter according to their Quality . . .

3064. That the quality of a Spirit (or man) may be Known from a single word. 3210. (And even from a single sigh. 3308.

4039. In like manner the evil qualities of the evil are there so much increased that . . .

4190. These generals prescribe also the Quality . . . So that there are generals of quantities and at the same time of qualities. The general of Quality is the regnant one.

4363². Everyone fares (there) according to his Quality.

5681^e. I know that this Quality is accepted by some.

6069. The Spiritual thinks of the quality; and the Natural of the quantity. Thus the Spiritual is not bounded . . .

E. 209⁴. For good puts a quality on itself through truths; for good without truths has no quality, and, where there is no quality, there there is no force or power.

453. 'To number' = to know the quality of good and truth. Ill.

— . Every quality is of infinite extension . . .

472. Of what quality they are, and of what quality they have been. Sig.

— . When the Angels see others, they never inquire who or whence they are; but what their quality is; (for) all have habitations there according to the quality of their affections.

1093^e. His quality is Known from the mere extension of his thoughts into the Societies.

D. Wis. vii. 5³. These things fall into the interior rational sight only by the abstraction or removal of quantities from qualities.

Can. Holy Spirit i. 3. The property and Quality of the one (Person) are separate from those of another . . .

Trinity 2. The idea of the wise among the clergy, is that [not] three communicable, but incommunicable, properties and Qualities are meant by the three Persons.

Quantity. Quantitas, Quantus.

See under QUALITY.

A. 3934. Omnipotence is predicated from the Quantity of magnitude; and Omniscience from the Quantity of multitude.

8458². Truth is there presented in a discrete Quantity . . .

8468. A quantity sufficient for everyone. Sig. and Ex. S533.

8540. The quantity of the good. Sig. and Ex.

10297. By the quantity both of measure and of weight is signified the correspondence.

Life 18. In proportion as—quantum—a man shuns evils as sins, in the same proportion—tantum—he does goods . . . from the Lord. 32. 42. 67. 74. So. S7. B. S4. T. 330.

Quarrel. Rixari.

Quarrel. Rixa.

Quarreler. Rixator.

See DEBATE, and DISPUTE.

A. 3425. 'To quarrel' (Gen. xxvi. 20) = to deny it to be such, by saying that they do not see it. 3427. 3428. 3432.

9041. 'When men shall quarrel' (Ex. xxi. 22) = grievous contention among truths.

H. 586². Inside the houses in the milder Hells there are continual quarrels . . . R. 421^e.

T. 335². Why are you quarreling about goats wool?

D. 4218. Solifidians are under the nates, in quarrels and railings among themselves. (See R. 421^e.)

5103. On a Hell where they quarrel about things religious.

5105. Luther had been a quarreler . . .

5107. Those who are continually quarreling about doctrinal things, induce a pain on the great toe of the left foot.

E. 537⁵. Therefore (those who separate and exclude good from truth) quarrel about the truths of faith. Sig.

J. (Post.) 202. There are Hells where they do nothing else than quarrel about truths. Des.

Quarter. Plaga.

See EAST, NORTH, SOUTH, and WEST.

A. 1458. There are no quarters in the other life; but states which are signified by the quarters. The states of intellectual things are circumstanced as are the states . . . of the quarters . . . (which) are those of the sun towards the west, north, east, and south. Ex.

2128. The region in front.

3638. The Societies there maintain the same relative situation to each individual . . . although he changes the quarters in respect to his face and body. 4321².

3639. All situations there are circumstanced relatively to the human body, according to the quarters as determined from it. Ex. D. 1701.

3708². By 'the west,' 'east,' 'north,' and 'south' . . . are not meant the quarters of the world . . . but states of good and truth, and their extension. Ex. and Ill.

4882³. Every Spirit and Angel sees the good to the right and the evil to the left, to whatever quarter he turns himself . . . If one of two looked towards the east, and the other towards the west, they would so appear to both . . . from which it may be plainly concluded that all life is from the Lord, or that the Lord is in the life of everyone . . .

9642¹⁰. As by these 'winds,' or these quarters, are signified all things of good and truth; thus all things of Heaven and the Church . . .

9648. There are four states to which correspond the four quarters in this world. Enum.

10189³. For in the other life there are no quarters, as in the world, determined to stated regions; but according to the states and the reigning loves.

10235⁷. The reason the lover looked to all the quarters of the world. Ex.

10420³. The quarter there is determined by each person's love: this turns him . . .

H. 17^e. The quarters there are not determined as in this world; but according to the aspect of their faces . . . 123².

141. On the four quarters in Heaven. Chapter. E. 422².

— . In Heaven, as in this world, there are four quarters: east, south, west, and north; in both cases determined by their respective suns . . . but still there is much difference between them . . . In the world, all the quarters are determined from the south; but in Heaven that is called the east where the Lord appears as a Sun; opposite is the west; on the right is the south, and on the left the north; and this whichever way their faces and bodies are turned. Thus in Heaven all the quarters are determined by the east. 143, Ex. W. 119. 120°.

[H.] 144². The Angels have an aspect to the other three quarters also; but their aspect to these is from their interior sight, which is of the thought.

146. The quarters in the Heavens of the Celestial Kingdom differ from the quarters in the Heavens of the Spiritual Kingdom by 30 degrees . . . But still the quarters of Heaven do not thereby become confused; because the spiritual Angels cannot ascend to the celestial.

148. All in the Heavens dwell according to the quarters. Enum. (So in each Society. 149.) (So in Hell. 151°.)

150. Hence come the significations of the quarters.

151. Hence the quarters in the Hells are opposite to the quarters of Heaven. Enum.

152. When an evil Spirit comes among good ones, the quarters are usually so confused, that the good scarcely know where their east is.

153. Evil Spirits sometimes appear turned to the quarters of Heaven, and then have the intelligence and perception of truth, but no affection of good; and therefore as soon as they turn back to their own quarters, they are in no intelligence and perception of truth . . . (The same with man.)

496°. Evil Spirits are Known by this: that they frequently turn to certain quarters; and, when left to themselves, go in the ways which tend thither.

587. The situation of the Hells in general is known from the quarters in which they are; for the Hells, like the Heavens, are distinct as to the quarters; and the quarters in the Spiritual World are determined according to the loves; for all the quarters in Heaven commence from the Lord as a Sun . . . and, as the Hells are opposite to the Heavens, their quarters commence from the opposite; thus from the west. Hence the Hells in the western quarter are the worst of all . . .

J. 48. (The arrangement of the nations according to the quarters at the Last Judgment.) Des.

—². This ordination of the nations according to the quarters, was according to the general faculty of each one for receiving Divine truths; and therefore, in the Spiritual World, everyone is Known from the quarter and the place there where he dwells . . .

49. In the Word, the four quarters are called 'the four winds.' Ill.

58⁸. The reason they dwell according to the quarters, is that all in the Spiritual World are carried into the quarter, and into that place of a quarter, which corresponds to their affections and loves.

W. 120. There are quarters in the Spiritual World as in the natural; but the quarters of the Spiritual World are spiritual; whereas the quarters of the natural world are natural; and therefore they differ so greatly as to have nothing in common. In each world there are four quarters . . . In the natural world these four quarters are constant, being determined from the sun in the meridian (or south) . . . These quarters are determined from the meridian of each place . . . Whereas in the Spiritual World the quarters are determined from the Sun which constantly appears in its own place, which is the east . . . Still, these quarters are not from the Sun there; but from the inhabitants of that World.

121. As these quarters, from their origin the Lord as a Sun, are spiritual, the dwelling-places of Angels and Spirits—which are all according to these quarters—are also spiritual; for they dwell according to their reception of love and wisdom from the Lord. Enum.

124. That the quarters in the Spiritual World are not from the Lord as a Sun; but that they are from the Angels according to their reception. Gen.art.

—^e. (Thus) the quarters in the Spiritual World are nothing else than various receptions of love and wisdom, and thence of heat and light, from the Lord as a Sun. 125.

126. That the various reception of love and wisdom makes the quarter in the Spiritual World, may be evident from the fact that an Angel changes his quarter according to the increase or decrease of love with him; from which it is evident that the quarter is not from the Lord as a Sun; but from the Angel, according to his reception. So with man as to his spirit: he, as to his spirit, is in a certain quarter of the Spiritual World, no matter in what quarter of the natural world he may be . . .

134. As the quarters are thus inscribed on an Angel, and also on the universal Heaven, therefore an Angel knows his own home wherever he goes . . . The reason a man does not know his home from the quarter in himself, is that he thinks from space; thus from the quarters of the natural world, which have nothing in common with the quarters of the Spiritual World . . .

144. As the love of dominating from self love is exactly opposite to love to the Lord, the Spirits in it turn their backs to the Lord, and thus look to the west of that World . . . Thus the east is behind them, the north at their right, and the south at their left. The east is behind them, because they hate the Lord; the north is at their right, because they love fallacies and the derivative falsities; and the south is at their left, because they spurn the light of wisdom. They can turn themselves round and round; but all the things they see around them appear like their love.

R. 861². In the Spiritual World are four quarters: east, west, south, and north; and the east and west make its length; and the south and north its breadth . . .

D. 1699. On the quarters.—(All things there) maintain their own quarters without ever changing them . . . These quarters have respect to the human body . . . Although dissimilar things may come forth in the same quarter, their quality may be Known from other signs.

1702. Some Spirits change their places; but still [remain] in the same quarter, making excursions into it; from which it may be Known who they are.

2334. The other wonderful thing is that, according to their quality, Spirits appear in a certain stated quarter: above the head, in front, behind, at one side, or in a line horizontal with the face, or with any organ of it towards any quarter; or, lower down, round the neck, the belly, the sides, the loins, the feet; or still lower, and that deep down; and this never fails. . . however the man turns himself. . . according to their quality; hence according to their situation in the Grand Body, according to the ordination of the Lord; (for) wherever I have turned myself, they have still so appeared relatively to my body. (Apparent exceptions. 2336.)

2831. On the regions whither phantasies take them. (Angels falling down.)

3339^e. There is a sphere of animals in knowing the quarters of the world. . .

3413. As the sphere of this phantasy has been dissipated, the quarters are altered, so that those who had appeared below are now above; but it is to be observed that the quarters are thus changed solely before those who are not in faith; for the quarters of the Grand Man are permanent to eternity before those who are in faith; for it is impossible for phantasies to effect anything in relation to the Grand Man.

3682^e. (David) cast himself into every quarter. Enum.

5233². (The quarters in respect to the evil. See LAST JUDGMENT, here.)

5237. The order appears according to the quarters in that Hell. Ex.

5527. Those in Hell turn themselves constantly to their own love; and this however they turn round the face and body, and wherever they go. The quarters are always constant with them. Their east is the life's love. . . When they are such, they have been fully devastated, and are in Hell.

5528, 5529. In Heaven they turn the face constantly to the Lord; and their east is there: on the right is the south, on the left the north, and at their backs is the west; and this however they turn themselves. The quarters there are in a contrary direction to the quarters in the world; for the sun of this world is to them a black thing behind their backs. . . The Angels see to the sides and back also when they turn their faces to the Lord; thus they see to the south, north, and west simultaneously when they are seeing to the east; but inwardly in themselves. It is as if their sight were all around. . . for the light from the Lord with an Angel sends its rays on every side; but still obscurely to the other quarters. But those not fully devastated. . . do not turn constantly to their reigning love; but, whichever way they turn themselves, they change the love, and also the understanding; so that there are turnings, and this with variety in whatever place they are. This lasts (from a week to fifty years). Ex.

5610. The thoughts of the Angels are variously directed towards the quarters; now to this, now to that; and, according to the direction, more clearly, or obscurely; but the Angels are not turned to themselves, but to men. . .

VOL. V.

5673. The quarters in the other life.—At the south are those in external light; in worldly things; and those in riches. At the north are those not in light; not so much in worldly things, and in riches; thus who are relatively in darkness and in poverty. At the east are those in love Divine; thus in internal light. At the west are those in the love of self and in interior thick darkness.

5839^e. See LAST JUDGMENT, here.

6056^e. Spirits know as of themselves, that if they enter a certain chamber, this or that (occupation) is possible. . . The especial cause of this is to be found in the quarters, and in their mind to dwell in certain quarters rather than in others. (Fully quoted under CHAMBER—conclave.)

E. 298¹⁵. The quarters with those in evil are opposite to the quarters with those in good. . .

304³⁵. 'The end is come upon the four quarters of the land' (Ezek. vii. 2) = the last time and state of the Church. . . 'The four quarters' = all its truths and goods; and, in the opposite, all its falsities and evils; thus all things of the Church.

417². 'The Angels standing in the four corners' = the Divine from the Lord proceeding into the universal Spiritual World; for that universal World is made of four quarters: the eastern, western, southern, and northern. (Those who dwell in these quarters described seriatim.) Thus by these four quarters are also meant all things of Heaven and of the Church. These quarters are meant by 'the four winds'; and here by 'the four corners.' Ex. and Ill. —³. 418², Ex. 422², Ex. —³, Ex. 600³.

422⁴. There are also quarters there which differ from these quarters by about 30 degrees, which are under the auspices of the Lord as a Moon. (Those who dwell in these quarters described seriatim.)

—⁵. The quarters mentioned in the Word. Ill.

—⁷. For all things in the Spiritual World are ordained according to the quarters; not only in general, but also in particular. . . In all the assemblies, temples, and houses, everyone has his place in the quarter which corresponds to his state of life. In a word, each and all things there are ordained according to the quarters of Heaven.

De Conj. 70. The distinctions (of the Angels of the Third Heaven) are according to the quarters. . .

Quarter. Vicus.

See also BROAD PLACES.

A. 2336⁴. That he should 'go into the streets and quarters' (Luke xiv. 21) = that he should seek wherever there is any genuine truth, or truth which shines from good. . .

10422². In the cities (there) streets and quarters appear.

H. 479(p). That 'a quarter,' etc. = the truths which lead to good. Refs.

E. 141⁶. 'To run through the streets and seek in the quarters of Jerusalem' (Is. v. 1) = to see and explore in the doctrinal things of that Church. . .

[E.] 223²². 'The streets and quarters'=the truths of doctrine.

652³. 'The streets of Jerusalem and its quarters'=the truths of doctrine according to the states of affection and perception of those who are of the Church. —⁵.

—'. 'The quarters,' in special, =the corners of the city, thus the quarters-plagae-where they dwell; and as everyone lives in the cities (there) according to the clear or obscure affection of good and perception of truth, 'the quarters'=truths and goods according to the affection and perception of each one.

—⁶. Desolation is described by, 'the ways have ceased . . . the quarters have ceased in Israel' (Judg.v.6). 'Ways,' and 'paths,' have a like signification to 'streets,' and 'quarters,' namely, the truths of doctrine which lead.

—¹⁸. 'In all the streets mourning, and in all the quarters they say Alas! alas!' (Amos v.16)=grief on account of truth and good being devastated everywhere.

—¹⁹. 'No cry in our quarters' (Ps.cxliv.14)=no lamentation anywhere over the lack of them.

—²⁷. 'Streets and quarters' (Jer.ix.21)=the truths of doctrine and the truths of life which lead to intelligence and wisdom.

—³⁰. 'As the hypocrites do in the synagogues and in the streets' (Matt.vi.2).

Queen. Melecheth.

A. 9993⁶. 'To make cakes to the queen of the heavens' (Jer.vii.18; xlv.19)=to worship the devil from the good of celestial love . . . for 'the queen of the heavens'=those who are in the Hell of the Genii.

E. 324²³. 'The queen-melecheth seu regina-of the heavens' (Jer.xlv.17)=falsities in the whole complex.

555¹⁷. 'The queen of the heavens' (Jer.vii.18)=all evils in the complex; for 'the queen of the heavens' has a like signification to that of 'the army of the heavens.' (Compare A.4581⁸.)

Queen. Regina.

A. 945. It is otherwise with those who have been born . . . as queens, etc. . . These, although they have lived in luxury, splendour, and elegance, provided they have lived in faith . . . and charity . . . are among the happy.

3048⁵. The coming of the queen of Sheba to Solomon. Ex. 10199⁷.

R. 620². 'The queen' (Ps.xlv.9)=the Church as the Lord's wife.

764. 'I sit a queen' (Rev.xviii.7)=that they will dominate perpetually. (=Heaven and the Church under their dominion. E.1120.)

M. 21. The bride was clad in a state mantle, like a queen, and wore a crown on her head; because (on that day only) she represented the Church.

B. 59². They teach that their faith is like a queen . . .

T. 137⁵. This (true) faith is with us like a queen . . .

D. 4458. The Siren effused the idea of herself as of a queen sitting on a throne . . . 4459.

E. 242²¹. 'The queen standing at his right hand in best gold of Ophir' (Ps.xlv.9)=the Lord's Celestial Kingdom which is in the good of love. (=Heaven and the Church, and those there who are in truths from good . . . 298⁷. 684¹⁸. 863¹⁴. 1120².)

1120. When the Lord is called 'a King,' then by 'a queen' is meant Heaven and the Church.

Question. Quaestio.

See under INQUIRE, and INTERROGATE.

A. 7172. It is the custom of the Spirits of Mercury not to reply to questions directly.

T. 317^e. Perverting the laws of judicial investigations.

Quick. Citus.

Quickly. Cito.

A. 5284. In the internal sense, it is not quickly, but what is certain.

6921. Therefore the Spirits of Mercury are prompter and quicker in seeing, thinking, and speaking.

8847^e. He threw off his garment so quickly, that scarcely anything could be done more quickly.

H. 195. He arrives more quickly when he longs . . .

R. 4. 'Must shortly be done' (Rev.i.1)=not quickly, but certainly. Ex.

85. 'I will come unto thee quickly' (Rev.ii.5): 'quickly'=what is certain.

187. 'Behold, I come quickly' (Rev.iii.11)=the Lord's Advent, and a New Church then from these.

518. 'The third woe cometh quickly' (Rev.xi.14) . . . 'To come quickly'=after this. Ex.

943. 'To show unto His servants the things which must shortly be done' (Rev.xxii.6)=that the Lord has revealed to those in truths from Him the things which will certainly be.

944. 'Behold, I come quickly' (ver. 7)=that the Lord will certainly come. 949.

947². 'The time is at hand.' By 'quickly,' and 'at hand,' is meant quickly, and nearly, in relation to state.

D. 3659. For the idea of interior persuasion is attended with this: that it is done quickly . . . and therefore David subjugated many quickly.

E. 7. 'Quickly'=what is certain and full. Refs. and Ex. 106. 144. 216.

680. 'To come quickly'=certainly at hand and coming to pass.

Quickly. Expedito. A.1637. 1708.

Quicksilver. Argentum vivum. T.11³. Coro.51.

Quiescent. See under REST.

Quinsy. Angina. T.482².

Quintessence. Quinta essentia. M.105².

Quiver. Pharetra.

A. 2709³. 'His quiver' (Ps.cxxvii.5)=the doctrine of good and truth.

3309². The weapons for hunting, which were quiver, bow, and arrows, = the doctrinal things of truth.

3499. 'Take thy . . . quiver, and thy bow' (Gen. xxvii. 3) = the doctrinal things of good which (Esau) had.

E. 357⁹. 'In His quiver hath He hidden me' (Is. xlix. 2) = the Word.

—¹⁰. As these truths have such power, it is said, 'Blessed is the man who hath filled his quiver with them' (Ps. xxvii. 5). 'A quiver,' here, has a similar signification to 'a bow,' namely, doctrine from the Word. 695¹⁸. 724¹⁰.

Quiver. Tinnuere. E. 622⁹.

Raamah. Raamah.

A. 1132. Those who worshipped the Knowledges of celestial things, are 'the sons of Raamah.'

1168. 'The sons of Cush, Raamah,' etc. (Gen. x. 7) . . . 'Raamah,' etc., are so many nations, who had no internal worship; but had the Knowledges of faith, in the possession of which they placed religion. In the internal sense, by the same are signified the Knowledges themselves. 'The sons of Raamah' have a similar signification. In the internal sense, they = the Knowledges of celestial things. 1170. 1171. 1172^e.

10199⁶. 'Sheba and Raamah' (Ezek. xxvii. 22) = those in the Knowledges of celestial and spiritual things. Refs. 10254⁵. E. 243¹³. 717¹⁰.

Rabbah. Rabba, Rabbath.

E. 163⁸. 'Rabbah of Ammon' (Deut. iii. 11) = falsifications of truth. Ref. 435⁷. 504³².

435⁷. Rabbah, etc. were given to Gad; therefore these lands = such things in special as are signified by Gad in general . . . 'The daughters of Rabbah' (Jer. xlix. 3) = the affections of truth in the natural man. (Compare 637¹⁰.)

Rabbi. Rabbi.

Rabbin. Rabbinus.

A. 940². (A Jewish Rabbin from the filthy Jerusalem.) D. 1195. 1196.

D. 1607. The fables of the Rabbins.

D. Min. 4736². The shepherds could receive the Lord when born; but not the Rabbins.

E. 684⁶. By 'Rabbi,' and 'Teacher' (Matt. xxiii. 8) is signified one who teaches truth; thus, abstractedly, the doctrine of truth; and, in the supreme sense, the Divine Truth, which is 'Christ.' That He alone is the Divine truth, is meant by, 'Be not ye called Rabbi; one is your Teacher, Christ.' 746¹³.

Rabid. Rabidus. D. 5043^e. Ad. 3/5698.

Raca. Raka.

E. 746¹⁸. 'To say Raca' (Matt. v. 22) = from depraved thought to treat the neighbour with contumely; thus to account the good of charity vile; for to say Raca means to account as empty, thus as vile; and 'brother' = the good of charity.

Race. See STOCK—prosapia.

Races. Ludi cursorii.

M. 17². At the outskirts of the city there are races, etc. for the boys and youths.

Rachel. Rachel.

A. 409. See LEAH, here. 422. 3902.

3758. How the good of truth was conjoined with related good . . . afterwards by the affection of internal truth, which is 'Rachel.' Tr.

3782. 'Behold, Rachel his daughter' (Gen. xxix. 6) = the affection of interior truth.

3793. 'Rachel came with the flock' (ver. 9) = the affection of interior truth which is of the Church and of doctrine.

— . That Rachel represents the affection of interior truth. Ex.

—². These are the things represented by Jacob, and by his two wives, Rachel and Leah. Fully ex.

— . Rachel, therefore, now puts on the representation of truth; but, as all the conjunction of truth with good is effected through affection, it is the affection of truth to be coupled with good, which Rachel represents. Moreover, in the Natural . . . there is an interior and an exterior; and Rachel represents the affection of interior truth; and Leah, the affection of exterior truth. Laban, who was their father, represents collateral good . . . Hence the daughters from this good, represent affections in the Natural . . . And, as these affections are to be coupled with natural good, they represent affections of truth . . . The case with the regeneration of man as to his natural, is altogether the same as it was with Jacob and the two daughters of Laban, Rachel and Leah.

3795. 'For she was a shepherdess . . .' (id.) = that the affection of interior truth teaches what is in the Word. . . . The reason it is from the Word, is that Rachel came to the well with her flock. Moreover, it is the affection of interior truth which teaches.

3796. 'When Jacob saw Rachel the daughter of Laban his mother's brother' (ver. 10) = the acknowledgment of the affection of that truth, from what origin it was. Ex.

3800. 'Jacob kissed Rachel' (ver. 11) = love towards interior truths.

3803. 'Jacob told Rachel that he was her father's brother' (ver. 12) = the affinity of the (two goods); and Rachel, to whom this was made known, = the affection of interior truth.

3804. 'She ran, and told her father' (id.) = acknowledgment through interior truths . . . That it was through interior truths, is represented by Rachel, who is the affection of interior truth. Ex.

3819. 'The name of the younger was Rachel' (ver. 16) = the affection of internal truth, with its quality.

— . Rachel is called 'the younger,' because internal truth is learned afterwards. (Continued under LEAH.)

3820. When general ideas have been illustrated by singulars, they become firm and steadfast; for they have thence things essential and formal, which are signified by 'the beautiful form and aspect' of Rachel;

by whom are represented the affections of interior truth. Examps. 3821.

[A.] 3823. 'Jacob loved Rachel' (ver. 18)=the love of good towards interior truth; (for) 'Rachel'=the affection of interior truth; here, interior truth to be conjoined with the good of the Natural.

3824. 'He said, I will serve thee seven years for Rachel thy younger daughter' (id.)=study, and a holy state then, that he might be conjoined with interior truth. Ex. 3826.

3825. 'Laban said, It is better that I should give her to thee . . .' (ver. 19)=a medium of conjunction through interior truth with that good. 'Rachel'=interior truth. Ex.

3827. 'They were . . . as a few days, in his love for her' (ver. 20)=a state of love. Ex.

3829. 'Give me my woman' (ver. 21)= . . . conjunction now with the affection of interior truth; (which is represented) by Rachel, who is here 'my woman.'

3840. 'Have I not served with thee for Rachel' (ver. 25)=that the study had been for the affection of interior truth.

3843. '(It is not so done) to give the younger before the first-born' (ver. 26)=(that the state is not such) that the affection of interior truth should precede the affection of external truth. Ex.

3848. 'He gave him Rachel his daughter for a woman' (ver. 28)=the conjunction then of good with the affection of interior truth. Ex. 3850.

3851. 'He loved Rachel more than Leah' (ver. 30)=the love of interior truth more than for external.

3857. 'Rachel was barren' (ver. 31)=that interior truths were not received. Ex.

3905. 'Rachel saw that she did not bear . . .' (Gen. xxx. 1)=that interior truth was not yet acknowledged. 'Rachel'=the affection of interior truth, or interior truth [itself].

3906. 'Rachel was zealous against her sister' (id.)=indignation that interior truth was not acknowledged as external truth was.

3907. 'She said to Jacob, Give me sons' (id.)=that she wanted to have interior truths from the truth of natural good.

3909. 'Jacob's anger was kindled against Rachel' (ver. 2) . . . =that the interior truth represented by Rachel could not as yet be acknowledged in faith and act by the good of the natural.

3913². The mediums on the side of the internal man, are signified by the handmaids of Rachel.

3915. 'She shall bear upon my knees' (ver. 3)=the acknowledgment of the interior truth represented by Rachel. Ex.

3921. 'Rachel said, God hath judged me, and hath also heard my voice' (ver. 6)=justice and mercy; the Holy of faith; and the good of life. Ex.

3927. 'Rachel said, With the wrestlings of God have I wrestled with my sister, and I have prevailed' (ver. 8)=Own power; temptation in which one overcomes; and resistance by the natural man. Ex.

—e. 'Rachel'=the affection of the internal man.

3944. 'Rachel said to Leah' (ver. 14)=the perception of the affection of interior truth, and the longing of it. 3945. 3952³. Ex. —⁵.

3966. 'God remembered Rachel, and God hearkened to her' (ver. 22)=foresight and Providence.

3967. 'And opened her womb' (id.)=the faculty to receive and acknowledge . . . the goods of truth, and the truths of good.

3969. 'She said, God hath gathered up my reproach; and she called his name Joseph, saying, Jehovah add to me another son' (ver. 23)=the Lord as to the Divine Spiritual; the Spiritual Kingdom, or good of faith; and salvation with fructification and multiplication. . . For (these words)=that Rachel was no longer barren, nor 'dead; for by Rachel is represented the affection of interior truth; or the interior man as to truth; and the interior man is as it were dead as to truth and good, if the exterior man does not correspond to it [in respect to goods and truths. Ex.

3971. 'When Rachel had borne Joseph' (ver. 25)=the acknowledgment of the Spiritual (through) the affection of interior truth. Ex.

4073. 'Jacob . . . called Rachel and Leah to the field unto his flock' (Gen. xxxi. 4)=the adjunction of the affections of truth by the good of the Natural. . . 'Rachel'=the affection of interior truth . . . 'The flock'=the goods and truths themselves which have now been acquired, and to which the affections of truth meant by Rachel and Leah were applied . . .

4096. 'Rachel and Leah answered . . .' (ver. 14)=the Reciprocal of the affections of truth . . . 'Rachel'=the affection of interior truth. . . The subject just treated of, is how the good of the Natural adjoined to itself the affections of truth which are signified by Rachel and Leah; and the subject now, is the reciprocal application to good of these affections of truth.

4097-4101. (The separation of the affections of truth represented by Rachel and Leah from the good signified by Laban.) Tr.

4148. 'Lest thou shouldst take thy daughters from me by force' (ver. 31)=that this good would be injured in respect to the affections of truth . . . for by 'daughters,' here, Rachel and Leah, are signified affections of truth. 4177. 4185. 4200.

4149. Rachel stealing the 'gods.' Ex.

4151. 'Rachel'=the affection of interior truth. 4343.

4153^e. As the truths represented by the 'gods' were internal, they were found in the tent of Rachel, that is, in the Holy of the affection of interior truth. 4154. 4155.

4343. 'He divided the sons—natos—over to Rachel' (Gen. xxxiii. 1)=the disposition of interior truth under their own affection.

4345. 'He placed . . . Rachel and Joseph hindermost' (Gen. xxxiii. 2) = . . . the affection of interior truth (which) is still more interior; (and thus more particular). Ex. 4362.

4586. Rachel brought forth, and suffered hard things . . . (Gen. xxxv. 16) = the temptations of interior truth.

4593. 'Rachel died, and was buried in the way to Ephrath' (ver. 19) = the end of the former affection of interior truth . . . and the resuscitation of a new state [of it]. 6243.

4607. 'The sons of Rachel: Joseph, and Benjamin' (ver. 24) = interior goods and truths; (for) 'Rachel' = the affection of interior truth; thus the sons of Rachel = interior goods and truths. Enum. 5469. 5826.

6024⁵. 'The sons of Rachel the wife of Jacob' (Gen. xlv. 19) = the things which are from celestial affection. —.

—⁶. 'Whom Laban gave to his daughter Rachel' (ver. 25) = from the affection of internal good.

D. 3384. How Rachel represented the new Church. Ex.

E. 434⁸. 'Rachel' represents the Church as to good; but . . . the Internal Church. (See LEAH, here.)

439. 'Rachel wrestling with her sister, and prevailing' = that the spiritual man fought with the natural. Ex.

695¹⁵. 'Rachel weeping for her sons, refuseth to be comforted for her sons, because there was not any' (Jer. xxxi. 15). . . 'Rachel' represented the Internal Spiritual Church (and the above words =) that no spiritual truth remained. (The succeeding words ex.)

Rackets. Rachets.

M. 17⁴. The game of rackets there.

Radiate. Radiare.

Radiation. Radiatio.

See RAY.

A. 145S. Truths are so many radiations of light in Heaven.

2133². A Glorification of the Lord is perceived as a radiation flowing down and affecting the interiors . . .

4859². When the skin of his face shone (Ex. xxxiv. 29). 6752⁹.

Rag. Detritus.

E. 537¹⁷. 'The old clouts and old rags' with which they drew up Jeremiah (Jer. xxxviii. 11) = the vindication and restitution of the truth of doctrine through such goods and truths of the sense of the letter as have not been perceived and understood, and have therefore been neglected and rejected.

Rag. Pannus.

Piece of cloth. Panniculus.

Handkerchief. Panniculetum.

A. 817. A bier seen, covered with black tatters.

956. Their arms appear like rags.

964. (In this punishment) they are wrapped up as it were in an old worn out cloth. 1267^e. 1270³. 10711^e. D. 1371, Des. 1372. 1387. 3222. 329S. 3300. 3365, Des. 4361.

4875. 'Thy pannicle' (Gen. xxxviii. 18) = a token of consent by truth. . . All garments = truths . . . and a pannicle, outermost or lowest truth. It was made of threads twisted together, by which are signified the determinations of such truth. Such truth is signified by 'a pannicle' also in Num. xix. 15.

R. 166⁴. As 'a garment' = truth, the Lord compares the truths of the former Church, which were external and representative of spiritual things, to 'a piece-panniculus—of an old garment;' and the truths of the new Church, which were internal and spiritual, to 'a piece-panniculus—of a new garment' (Luke v. 36). E. 195¹⁵.

T. 165². In play they tie a handkerchief over the eyes . . . 378³.

E. 576³. The Divine truth proceeding from the Divine love, which is signified by 'a cloth-pannum—of hyacinthine' (Num. iv. 6) embraces and protects all the holy things of Heaven and the Church.

D. Wis. xi. 6a. Truth is like a garment, which, without a man [in it] is only a piece of cloth-pannus—accommodated to the body . . .

Raiment. See under CLOTHE, GARMENT, PUT ON, and VESTURE.

Rain. Pluvia.

Rain, To. Pluere.

Pluvial. Pluvialis.

See under HAIL, and SHOWER.

A. 90. 'Jehovah God had not made it rain . . .' (Gen. ii. 5) . . . 'Rain,' which is presently called 'vapour' = the tranquillity of peace, when combat ceases.

729. 'To rain' (Gen. vii. 4) = temptation. Ex.

2444. 'Jehovah made it rain upon Sodom and Gomorrah sulphur and fire' (Gen. xix. 24). 'To rain' = to be damned. 2445, Ex.

2445. 'Rain,' in the genuine sense, = blessing, and thence Salvation; but, in the opposite, curse, and thence damnation. Ill.

7553. 'I will make it rain a very grievous hail' (Ex. ix. 18) = falsities destroying all things of the Church. 'A rain of hail' = falsities from evil destroying.

— . When 'rain' = a blessing, it = the influx and reception of the truth of faith and the good of charity; for this is a blessing; but, when it = a curse, it = the falsity which is contrary to the truth of faith, and the evil which is contrary to the good of charity; for these are a curse. 7576. 7611.

7747. The influx (of the Spirits of Mars) was felt as a thin striped rain; which was a sign that they were not in the affection of truth and good . . . D. 3885.

S416. 'I will make it rain bread from heaven' (Ex. xvi. 4) = that celestial good should inflow. 'To rain' = a blessing; because the rain descends from heaven, and causes the fertility of the land, as Divine good and truth from Heaven is with man, and causes a blessing. (Thus) 'to rain,' in the proximate sense, = to inflow; for all good inflows from the Divine.

SS13². 'Lightning for the rain' (Ps. cxxxv. 7) = the resplendence of the truth which descends from Heaven.

10570⁵. 'No rain hath been made in the land' (Jer.

xiv.4). Here, the defect of truth is treated of. . . 'Rain'=the influx from Heaven.

P. 173. 'He sendeth rain upon the just and the unjust' (Matt.v.45). . . 'Rain'=the Divine truth of the Divine wisdom; (which) is given to the just and the unjust; for (otherwise) they would have no thought. 292^e.

R. 496. 'So that it rain not in the days of their prophecy' (Rev.xi.6)=that such cannot receive any truth (or influx) from Heaven. 'Rain'=the truth of the Church from Heaven. E.644.

— That 'rain'=Divine truth from Heaven. Ill.

—^e. 'An inundating rain'=the devastation of truth; and temptation. Ill.

M. 155a. In the east there appeared a Golden Shower. It was the morning dew. . . Such a shower is seen falling from the Sun over that palace, because with those husbands and wives there resides wisdom concerning conjugal love and its delights. 208. D.4175. De Conj.1.

208. As I approached, the Shower from being golden became crimson; then scarlet; and, when I was near, opaline, like dew.

D. 5882. Those elevated into the New Heaven appeared like the air which rises from the earth after rain. . .

D. Min. 4800. In the other life there appears a raining down—depluitio—of fire and sulphur. . . and then the land where they are yawns asunder, and becomes like a lake.

E. 146⁵. The rain with the dew, in which was the manna, =the influx of Divine truth. . .

273⁴. 'He maketh the lightnings for the rain' (Jer. x.13). . . 'Waters in the heavens'=spiritual truths; 'rain'=the same when they descend and become natural. 419¹³.

340¹². 'I will send down the rain in its time; there shall be rains of blessing' (Ezek.xxxiv.26). . . A spiritual blessing is meant; for by 'the rain' is signified everything Divine which inflows with man out of Heaven from the Lord. 644¹⁴.

375²⁹. 'He hath given you the seasonable rain in justice' (Joel ii.23)=the Divine truth inflowing into good, whence are their conjunction, fructification, and multiplication. 644¹⁵.

376⁹. 'I will give rain to your land in its time; the former rain, and the latter rain' (Deut.xi.14). . . The blessings of Heaven. . . are signified by 'the former and the latter rain'; for by 'rain,' in special, is signified the Divine truth inflowing out of Heaven, from which all things of the Church and of Heaven with man are born, grow, and are produced.

388²⁶. 'Thou makest the rain of benevolences to drop down' (Ps.lxviii.9)=the Divine truth from the Divine good. 650⁷.

401⁶. As the Divine truth is pure, and proceeds from His Divine love, it is added, 'a morning without clouds, by clear shining after rain' (2 San.xxiii.4). . . 'After rain'—after communication and reception. 422¹². 644²².

—²⁷. 'He sendeth rain upon the just and the unjust'=that the Lord inflows from Heaven with the Divine truth equally with those who are outside the Jewish Church, as with those who are within it. Further ex. (=the Divine truth inflowing; for the Divine proceeding inflows equally with the evil and the good; but the reception thereof depends upon man. 644²³.)

405³⁰. 'He prepareth rain for the earth' (Ps.cxlvii.8) =the influx of truth into those within the Church who receive it. (=instruction thence for the Church. 594¹².) 650¹³.

433³⁴. 'I will command the clouds that they rain no rain upon My vineyard' (Is.v.6)=that there is no longer any reception of truth and good with them through the Word from Heaven. (=no understanding of Divine truth from the Word. 594¹¹.) 644⁹.

504¹¹. 'Inundation and rain' (Is.iv.6)=the bursting in of falsities.

578². Such a 'rain' (of fire and sulphur) appears in the Spiritual World, when the evil who are in falsities from the love of self, are being cast down into Hell.

633⁴. The 'rain of forty days'=the destruction of that Church through the falsities of evil.

644. 'Rain'=truth fertilizing, which is the truth from which is good, and which flows down from Heaven.

—⁴. The reason 'to rain no rain'=no influx of Divine truth out of Heaven, is that the water from which is the rain, =the truth of the Word, and the derivative truth of doctrine and of faith; and, as the pluvial water descends from the clouds in heaven, therefore 'to rain rain'=the influx of Divine truth from the Lord in Heaven; and, as rain fertilizes the earth, therefore by 'rain' is signified the Divine truth fertilizing and fructifying the Church; whence also by 'rain' is signified spiritual blessing.

—⁵. That by 'rain,' in the Word, is not meant rain, but the Divine inflowing, from which intelligence and wisdom, and also the good of love and truth of faith, with man, grow and fructify; and that by 'to rain' is signified influx. Ill.

— 'My doctrine shall flow down as the rain' (Deut.xxxvii.2). Doctrine is here compared to 'the rain,' because by 'rain' is signified the Divine truth proceeding, from which is everything of doctrine.

—⁶. The reception of the influx of Divine truth, is signified by 'it drinketh waters at the rain of heaven' (Deut.xi.11). That the Divine truth inflows with the man of the Church both when he is in his spiritual and in his natural state, is signified by 'the rain being given in its time, the early and the latter rain'; for. . . the influx and reception of Divine truth in a spiritual state is meant by 'the early, or morning rain'; and in the natural state, by 'the latter, or evening rain.'

—⁷. When 'they walked in the statutes. . . "they" received rains in their time' (Lev.xxvi.3,4). . . 'Rains' =the Divine inflowing.

—⁸. But the rain was withheld. . . under Ahab (1 Kings xvii.), which represented that no Divine truth inflowing out of Heaven could be received on account of the falsities of evil.

—¹⁰. In these passages, 'rain'=the reception of the influx of Divine truth, from which is spiritual intelligence.

—¹¹. 'No rain' (Jer.xiv.4)=no influx of Divine truth.

—¹². 'The rain' (Is.xxx.23)=the Divine influx.

—¹³. 'The rain' (Is.lv.10)=the spiritual truth which is appropriated to man; and 'the snow'=natural truth . . .

—¹⁴. 'The rain in its time' (Ezek.xxxiv.26)=the influx of Divine truth according to the affection of receiving.

—¹⁵. 'The rain' (Zech.x.1)=the influx of Divine truth from the Lord, from which man has spiritual intelligence. 'The rain of the shower'=Divine truth inflowing in abundance.

—¹⁸. In these passages, 'rain'=the influx of Divine truth with man, from which he has spiritual life.

—²¹. As from the Lord proceeds all Divine truth from which are life and salvation for Angels and men, it is said, 'He shall come to us as the rain, as the latter rain watereth the earth' (Hos.vi.3).

—²⁴. (Thus) by 'rain,' in the Word, is signified the influx of Divine truth from the Lord, whence he has spiritual life; and this because by the waters, from which is the rain, is signified the truth of doctrine, and the truth of faith. But, as by 'waters,' in the opposite, are signified the falsities of doctrine and of faith, therefore by 'the rain of a shower,' or by 'a shower,' equally as by 'inundations' . . . are signified not only falsities destroying truths, but also the temptations in which man either yields or conquers. (The latter signification ill.)

1026². Aqueous rain (as distinguished from frozen rain)=the Divine truth from Heaven.

1159³. 'The rain of thy seed' (Is.xxx.23)=the multiplication of truth.

5 M. 18. There was (then) seen a rain out of the cloud, which the Angels called the morning rain, and which as it fell dissolved the manna into its former dew . . . and then glad voices were heard from the inhabitants beneath that soil, Come quickly; drops are falling; we are being sprinkled with blessed water from Heaven. (This) represented the influx of Divine truth from the Word (at the Lord's Advent) with the men of the world, who go forth and receive it in spirit and in heart. —¹⁹.

Coro. 20². The doctrine of the New Heaven . . . is like a seasonable rain which revivifies the newly-ploughed fields . . .

Rainbow. Iris.

Iridal. Irideus.

See under Bow.

A. 868². By the wonderful tempering (of these particular truths) with man, a species of rainbow can be represented; and therefore 'the rainbow' became the sign of the covenant.

1042. 'The rainbow' is the sign of a covenant (when yet) a rainbow is merely a something which arises from the modification of the rays of light from the sun in the drops of rain water.

— The spiritual Angels . . . appear with as it were the bow of a rainbow round the head. But the rainbows which appear are in accordance with their state; and thus their quality is known from them. The cause of this appearance of a rainbow, is that their natural things which correspond to their spiritual ones present it. It is a modification of the spiritual light from the Lord in their natural things. These Angels are those who are regenerated 'with water and the spirit' . . . 1625².

—². With the regenerate spiritual man, there is an intellectual proprium into which the Lord insinuates innocence, charity, and mercy; and according to the reception of these gifts by the man is the appearance of his rainbow, when presented to view . . .

1620. Iridal atmospheres, there.

1623. As regards iridal things, there is as it were an iridal Heaven, where the whole atmosphere appears to consist of minute rainbows. Those there belong to the province of the interior eye . . . Around is the encompassing form of an immense rainbow, most beautiful, composed of similar smaller ones, which are the most beautiful images of the greater one. Every colour is made up of innumerable rays. Ex. The varieties and changes of the rainbows are innumerable—indefinitae. (Two of these rainbow forms des. 1624. 1625.) 4528³. D. 3213. 3229.

2162⁷. 'The rainbow round the Angel's head' (Rev. x.1)=the Word as it is in the internal sense. E. 595.

3021⁶. 'The brightness,' and 'the rainbow' (Ezek.i.28) =wisdom and intelligence from love.

4627². The thoughts of the Angels were seen represented by iridal things in a dark plane. D. 4029.

5313⁶. 'The rainbow round the throne' (Rev.iv.3)=truths pellucid from good; for the reason that the colours there are from the light of Heaven.

8427^e. Wisdom and intelligence from the Divine are meant by 'glory' in Ezekiel, which was represented there by 'a rainbow' such as is in a cloud.

H. 185. The flowers by their colours presented as it were rainbows.

481³. The exteriors of those in celestial love appear . . . like rainbows.

W. 220². Charity and faith, without works, are like rainbows about the sun, which vanish . . .

R. 232. 'A rainbow round about the throne, in aspect like an emerald' (Rev.iv.3)=the appearance of (the Divine love and wisdom) round the Lord. E. 269.

— In the Spiritual World there appear rainbows of many kinds, variously coloured as on earth, and also of one colour. . . The Divine sphere . . . appears in the Natural Kingdom green.

466. 'A rainbow over his head' (Rev.x.1)=the Divine Spiritual; and as this is above the Natural, the rainbow was over his head. . . The Lord's Divine Spiritual is also signified by 'the rainbow' in Ezek.i. 'The rainbow'=Divine spiritual truth. 'The rainbow' (in Gen. ix.)=Divine spiritual truth in the Natural with the man who is being regenerated. Ex.

566⁶. When the Word (in that place) is opened . . . there appears from the precious stones a rainbow above and around the Word, (which rainbow is on a red, blue, or white ground, accordingly as an Angel from the Third, Second, or First Heaven looks at the open Word).

M. 76^b. (A rainbow appeared on the wall which represented the conjugal love of the wife and husband. Des. and Ex.)

269³. When the love of the neighbour makes the head . . . the man appears from Heaven . . . with a beautiful rainbow round his head.

294. A garden in which the roses formed an iridal bow. Des.

364^e. The externals (of the evil) are . . . painted like rainbow stones.

I. 13^b. Lenses, and drops of rain, which exhibit rainbows according to the incidence, the refraction, and thus the reception of light.

D. 682. As with the rainbow, in which nothing but what is most general appears; namely the planes of the successive colours, when yet each colour consists of indefinite rays . . .

1087. On the decorations of the rainbow; or iridal things. Des.

1311. In infants, hereditary evils appear . . . like colours black, green, and blue . . . so that appearances as of a rainbow come forth . . .

2346. On the signification of the rainbow after the Flood. Ex.

2347. Since the Flood (man loses nothing of his own life, but it is so tempered and bent . . . into delight and good, that all of it appears as if bent to good) and they are therefore compared to 'the rainbow,' in the colours of which the black belongs to man, but the light with the bright white to the Lord . . . 2490.

3213. On an iridal Heaven . . . to which corresponds the vitreous humour of the eye. Des.

3370. Hence the rainbow was made a sign that the human race should not perish, because they can revive, and their few remains are so tempered with their proximate evils . . .

3474². His propiate things are then disposed into a form which is compared to a rainbow, in which the colours derive their origin from black and white, which are the propiate things of man . . .

3636. On the rainbow.—There appeared to me very beautiful rainbows. Des.

3921. How the case is with the rainbow, and with its innumerable varieties. Ex.

4175. Conjugal love seen represented by cerulean rainbows, etc.

E. 37. (The changes in the iris of the eye. Ex.)

269^e. The reason 'a rainbow'=the Divine truth in the Heavens in its order and thence in its beauty, is that there are infinite varieties of truth from good there; and, when these are represented by colours, they present the appearance of a most beautiful rainbow. Hence it is that 'the rainbow' was made the sign of the covenant after the Flood.

595. 'A rainbow'=Divine truth such as is in the spiritual sense of the Word.

—³. The reason 'a rainbow'=interior Divine truth, such as is the Word in the spiritual sense, is that the light of Heaven . . . according to its incidence upon objects, and its modification therein, presents variegations of colours, and also rainbows . . . Hence the variegations of that light, which are presented as rainbows, are variegations of the intelligence and wisdom with the Angels. It is from this that the rainbows there=the form and beauty of Divine spiritual truth. But the rainbows of this world . . . are only modifications and derivative variegations of the light (of the natural sun) which flow down from the cloud. And, as there are coloured appearances in the Spiritual World similar to those in the natural, and as they correspond, therefore the rainbows of this world=the same things as do the rainbows of Heaven, namely, Divine spiritual truths in their form and beauty.

701²⁶. 'The rainbow' (Gen.vi.)=regeneration, which is effected through Divine truth, and through a life according to it; and hence it is that this 'bow' was taken for a sign of the covenant.

C. 190^e. Every form delights by its varieties . . . Hence it is that the rainbow is more charming than the light itself.

5 M. 2. The irises of their eyes were green . . .

Rake. Rastrum. E.1154².

Ram. Aries.

A. 294. 'A ram'=the things of charity.

1361². 'The rams,' etc. in the sacrifices, =lower celestial and spiritual things.

1782. 'A ram,' etc. (Gen.xv.9)=the celestial things of the Church. 1823.

1824. 'A ram'=the representatives of spiritual celestial things. Ex.

2276⁵. Spiritual good was represented by the sacrifice of a ram.

2805^e. 'The ram seen behind them, held in a thicket by the horns,' which was 'offered for a burnt-offering' (Gen.xxii.13)=those of the human race who are of the Lord's Spiritual Church. 2807². 2830, Ex.

2830². That 'a ram,' here, =the Lord's Divine Spiritual, and consequently the Spiritual with man; or, what is the same, the spiritual of the human race.

III. —⁴.

—⁶. 'The ram' (in Dan.viii.)=the Spiritual Church. 2832¹⁴.

—⁷. In Ps.cxiv. it treats of spiritual good after regeneration; and its Celestial Spiritual is described by 'the mountains leaping like rams' (ver. 4).

—⁸. 'Rams sons of Bashan' (Deut.xxxii.14)=celestial spiritual things.

—⁹. 'Incense of rams' (Ps.lxvi.15)=the spiritual things which are of faith.

—^e. 'Rams of Nebaioth' (Is.lx.7)=Divine spiritual things. (=spiritual truth. 3268².) (=the goods of innocence and of charity in the internal man. 10042⁹.)

2833. 'Abraham took the ram' (Gen.xxii.13)=the deliverance of the spiritual by the Lord's Divine Human.

4170. 'The rams of thy flock have I not eaten' (Gen. xxxi. 38) = that of the truth of good He had taken nothing. As 'sheep' = goods; 'rams' = the truths of good.

4263. 'Twenty rams' (Gen. xxxii. 14) = Divine truths.

9471. 'Skins of red rams' (Ex. xxv. 5) = external truths which are from good. . . 'Rams' = spiritual things which are of truth; and 'red' = good. 9631.

9670⁶. 'The ram for a burnt-offering' (Lev. xvi.) = the purification of good from evils, in the internal man.

9991. 'Two entire rams' (Ex. xxix. 1) = the purification of the spiritual or internal man; (for) 'a ram' = the Internal of man; thus his Spiritual. 9990².

10019². The 'filling of the hand' was effected through the second ram, which is therefore called 'the ram of fillings' (Lev. viii. 22). Des.

10042. 'Thou shalt take one ram' (Ex. xxix. 15) = the good of innocence in the internal man; (for) 'a ram' = the good of innocence and of charity in the internal man. —⁹, Ex. and Ill.

—¹⁰. 'Rams' (Ezek. xxvi. 21) = the goods of charity.

—¹¹. 'Rams,' here (Ezek. xxxiv. 17) = the like as 'sheep'; for rams are their males.

—¹². The sacrifices from the ram (Lev. v.) = the purification of the internal man, and the implantation of the good of innocence there.

10045. 'Thou shalt slay the ram' (Ex. xxix. 16) = preparation for the purification of the internal man.

10048. 'Thou shalt cut the ram into pieces' (ver. 17) = the interior things to be distinctly ordained. 'A ram' = the good of innocence and of charity in the internal man . . .

10052. 'Thou shalt burn on the altar with the whole ram' (ver. 18) = the internal of the Lord's Divine Human united to the Divine good of His Divine love . . . 'A ram' = the Internal with man; thus, in the supreme, the internal of the Lord's Divine Human.

10057. 'Thou shalt take the second ram' (ver. 19) = the following state, which is of the Divine truth, proceeding from the Lord's Divine good in the Heavens. 10060⁸.

10076. 'It is the ram of fillings' (ver. 22) = the Divine power . . . in the Heavens through Divine truth from Divine good. . . 'The ram,' being the male of the sheep, = the good of charity and of innocence in the internal man; and, in the supreme sense, the same in the Internal of the Lord's Human. 10088.

10132¹². 'A lamb' = the inmost good of innocence; 'a ram,' the interior or middle good of innocence . . . 10137¹⁰. E. 314⁶. —⁸.

F. 61. 'A ram,' and 'sheep,' = those in charity.

E. 282⁵. 'The rams of Nebaioth which shall minister' = truths which derive their life from spiritual affection. (= all spiritual goods external and internal. 391⁹.)

316¹⁶. 'The ram,' in Dan. viii. = the good of charity and the derivative faith. (= those in truths of doctrine because in the good of life. 734²⁵.) S17¹⁴.

336⁸. 'Rams' (Micah vi. 7) = spiritual goods.

391⁹. 'Rams' = internal goods.

405¹⁴. 'Rams' = the goods of charity.

632⁵. 'To trample on the ram' (Dan. viii.) = to completely destroy charity.

730⁶. The ram, from the correspondence, = the natural man as to the good of charity.

S17¹². The spiritual goods and truths in which are the Angels of the Middle Heaven, are signified by the rams (in the sacrifices).

Ramah. Ramah.

A. 4592¹⁰. 'Gibeath, Ramah, and Bethaven' (Hos. v. 8) = the things which belong to spiritual truth [which is] from the Celestial, which is 'Benjamin;' for Ramah was of Benjamin (Josh. xviii. 25).

Ramath-mizpeh. Ramath Mizpae. E. 435⁶.

Rameses. Rameses, Raamses.

A. 6104. 'In the land of Rameses' (Gen. xlvii. 11) = the inmost of the mind and its quality. As 'the land of Goshen' = the inmost of the natural mind, 'Rameses,' which was the best tract of land in Goshen, = the inmost of the Spiritual in the natural mind.

6661, 6662. 'They built store-cities' (Ex. i. 11) = doctrines from falsified truths. . . 'Pithom and Rameses' = the quality of the doctrines from falsified truths.

7972. 'They journeyed from Rameses to Succoth' (Ex. xii. 37) = the first state of departure and its quality.

Ramify. Ramificare.

Ramification. Ramificatio.

W. 405². Bronchial pipes which ramify . . . Around the bronchia and their ramifications . . .

—⁴. The ramifications of the bronchia correspond to the perceptions and thoughts from these affections.

408². As do the arteries and veins by their ramifications.

Rampart. Vallum.

E. 734¹⁶. Assault on truth, and the destruction of the Church by them, is signified by, 'Found ye a rampart against Jerusalem' (Jer. vi. 6).

Rapacious. Rapax.

A. 6441. 'Inwardly they are ravening wolves.'

—². The lion also is a rapacious animal . . . and yet (has also a good signification). . . So with other rapacious beasts . . .

D. 1207. But inwardly they are rapacious. Des.

E. 328¹¹. 'The ravenous of wild beasts shall not be found in her' (Is. xxxv. 9) = that with them shall be no evil destroying good. 388¹⁰.

Rancid. Rancidus. T. 524³. D. Wis. x. 6².

Range. See under WANDER.

Rank. See under CONDITION, and DIGNITY.

Raphael. Raphael. See under MICHAEL.

Rapine. See SPOIL.

Rare. Rarus.

Rarely. Raro.

A. 409^e. Rarely, if ever. (Continued under CHURCH.)

1843. That charity and faith are rare. Sig.

6109. Rarely with man, in the world. 7055³.

10751^e. This rarely happens now.

J. 37. Faith is now so rare within the Church . . .

M. 58. Love truly conjugal is now so rare . . .

200^e. Rarely if ever does a chaste wife not love her husband.

D. 4629⁶. Most rarely, if ever, can those in sensuous lumen be in good and truth . . .

E. 131⁷. 'I will make a man rare beyond pure gold' (Is. xiii. 12). 'A man who is rare' = those who are in truths. 280³. 304⁵. (= intelligence scarcely any longer. 400⁴.)

280⁴. That the affection of spiritual truth and the derivative wisdom will cease, is signified by, 'Man shall be left rare' (Is. xxiv. 6). 304⁴.

315⁶. 'Let their men become rare, slain of death' (Jer. xviii. 21) = that the affection of truth and the derivative wisdom is null.

Rarefy. Rarefacere. D. 2186^e.

Rascal. Nebulo. M. 216².

Rascal. Vauriens.

D. 5791a. See LAST JUDGMENT, here.

5791b. They are good-for-nothings, caring for nothing except to do evils.

5791d. Rascals, defined.

Rash. Temerarius.

Rashly. Temerarie.

See under FEAR.

D. 3135. On those who are rashly desperate.

3136. One of those who had been among those most rash. Des. 3153. 3177.

4641^e. Those furthest to the left in front are rash, caring for neither God nor men.

Rat. See under MOUSE.

Ratio. Ratio. See under REASON.

Rational. Rationalis.

Rationality. Rationalitas.

Rationally. Rationaliter.

See CELESTIAL RATIONAL, DIVINE RATIONAL, RATIONAL GOOD, RATIONAL TRUTH, and REASON; and under ASSYRIA, CEDAR, EAGLE, FACULTY, ISAAC, and ISHMAEL.

A. 40. Birds, in general, = rational things.

75. The Rational of the celestial man. Sig.

91^e. Rational and scientific things from a celestial spiritual origin. Sig.

118. The perspicuity of reason comes from the Lord, through the internal man, into the rational mind, which is of the external man. Sig.

119. That 'Asshur' = the rational mind, or the Rational of man. Ill.

— The Rational is called 'a cedar in Lebanon.'

128^e. He confirms himself by rational, scientific, sensuous, and natural things.

191. The Rational is represented by 'the man-virum,' in Gen. iii.

202. Still less (can the more interiorly celestial Angels) bear to hear anything rational . . . concerning faith; for they have a perception of (it).

203. But the spiritual Angels confirm the things of faith by intellectual, rational, and scientific things. But they never conclude from these things about faith: they who do so are in evil.

229. That the Rational of man suffered itself to be deceived by proprium . . . Sig.

238. That the Rational, such as it was, consented; and thus cursed itself, and became infernal; so that reason no longer remained; but ratiocination. Tr. 267.

261. 'The man-vir' = the Rational, to which the Church would be obedient, and which would dominate. 265.

265. For the Rational is the emulator and quasi likeness of intelligence.

268². The Rational pertains to the external man; and in itself is a certain middle thing between the Internal and the External; for the Internal operates through the Rational into the corporeal External; but, when the Rational consents, it separates the External from the Internal, so that it is no longer known that there is an Internal; nor, therefore, what intelligence and wisdom are.

270². (In dead men) all the Rational consents.

655². The middle (row of windows in the Temple) = rational things . . .

— Windows of the middle story are also meant in Jer. ix. 21, and = rational things which are being extinguished.

657. 'The lowest, second, and third [stories]' = scientific, rational, and intellectual things . . . The middle degree of intellectual things is the Rational . . . The Lord inflows through the Intellectual with man into his Rational; and through his Rational into the Scientific of the memory. Hence is the life of the senses . . . Without the influx of life . . . into the voluntary things, through these into the intellectual, through these into the rational, and through these into the scientific, life with man is impossible . . . But the things which inflow are received in the rational part according to its form; and it causes that man can reason, reflect, and understand what is true and good.

948. (These evil Spirits) are then bereaved of their rationality, and then they are as it were in sleep . . . yet they seem to themselves to be awake. On their rationality being restored to them, they return to themselves.

978². In every man there is . . . a Rational, which corresponds to the Heaven of angelic Spirits . . .

— Rational things form the interior or middle man

—³. But the rational man is intermediate between (the external and the internal man); and through the Rational there is communication between them. 1015.

991. Scientifics are of three kinds: intellectual, rational, and sensuous.

1029. The interior things with man are rational things . . . 1443.

1186. By reason, and rational things, are properly meant things which are true; and by ratiocination, and reasoning, those which are false.

1443. There are with man intellectual, rational, and scientific things. . . His interior (or intermediate) things are the rational. . . The rational things of the celestial man are compared to 'a forest of cedars' and of similar trees, such as were in Lebanon. Ill.

1472². Knowledges are the means whereby man may become rational, thence spiritual, and at last celestial. 1487^e. 1489.

1475. Order is, that the Celestial, through the Spiritual, should let itself into the Rational, and thus into the Scientific . . .

1495². The Spiritual will thus inflow into the Rational, and adapt it to itself; and the Rational into the Scientific, and adapt it to itself. But in childhood it appears that he progresses from scientific to rational things; from these to spiritual . . . Ex. All instruction is merely an opening of the way; and, as the way (or the vessels) are opened, there inflow, in order, from celestial spiritual things, rational ones; into these, celestial spiritual ones; and, into these, celestial ones. (For) the Scientific and Rational is, in itself, dead, and its seeming to live it has from the interior life which inflows. 2504².

1588. 'Like the garden of Jehovah'=the rational things of (the external man); for 'the garden of Jehovah'=intelligence, consequently, the Rational, which is intermediate between the internal and the external man. The Rational is the intelligence of the external man. It is called 'the garden of Jehovah,' when the Rational is celestial; that is, is from a celestial origin, as it was with the Most Ancient Church. Ill. But it is said 'the garden of God,' when the Rational is spiritual; that is, is from a spiritual origin, as with the Ancient Church. Ill. (Continued under GARDEN.)

1589². Three things constitute the external man: the Rational, the Scientific, and the external Sensuous. The Rational is interior . . . The Rational is that through which the internal man is conjoined with the external. Such as is the Rational, such is the conjunction . . . But the Rational, in itself, is null, unless affection inflows into it, and makes it active . . . Hence the Rational is such as is the affection. When the affection of good inflows, it becomes in the Rational the affection of truth. The contrary when the affection of evil inflows . . .

1594². The Intellectual and the Rational can perceive the quality of the Scientific; but not contrariwise.

1600^e. All scientifics are for the end that the man may become rational, and thus wise.

1702². See INTERIOR MAN, here.

— In a Word, the interior or middle man is the rational man himself, who is spiritual or celestial when he looks upward, but animal when he looks downward.

—³. Reason, or the Rational.

1704. A state of perception from the rational man. Sig.

1705. The state of the rational man as to the External. Sig. 1752.

1707³. See INFLUX, here.

1726. A state of peace as to rational things. Sig. and Ex.

1741. In Gen.xiv. Abraham represents the Lord's Rational; and he is then called 'Abram the Hebrew' . . . The Lord's Spiritual which is adjoined to the internal man is 'Abram the Hebrew.'

1889. Under (the names 'Abram,' 'Sarai,' 'Hagar,' and 'Ishmael,' in Gen.xvi.) the Lord's Rational is treated of, how it was conceived and born, and what its quality was before it was united to the Lord's Internal, which was Jehovah. . . The Rational is the middle between the Internal and the External. . . The rational man with the Lord was conceived and born from the influx of the internal man into the external. . . In every man there is . . . a rational man which is intermediate . . . and which is perfectly distinct from both the internal and the external man.

1890. In (Gen.xvi.) it treats of the first Rational with the Lord (Ishmael), which was conceived by the influx of the internal man (Abram) into the affection of knowledges of the external (Hagar) . . . This first Rational was expelled . . . after the Lord's Divine Rational (Isaac) was born. 1891.

1893. That as yet there was no rational man. Sig. and Ex.

— With the Lord (the internal, rational, and natural man) were represented by Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

— The rational man is not born with man, but only the faculty that he can become rational, as may be evident from the fact that newly-born infants are endowed with no reason, but become rational in process of time by means of sensuous things, external and internal, as they are imbued with knowledges and Knowledges. A Rational does indeed appear with children; but it is not a Rational, but only the initiation of it, which is known from the fact that reason is with adults and old people.

—². The Lord was born as another man . . . and, as the Rational is formed through the scientifics and Knowledges which enter through the sensuous things of the external man, His first Rational was born as with another man; but as He by His Own power was to make Divine all the things that were human in Himself, so also [was He to do with] the Rational.

1895². The Rational is born from the internal man as a father, and from the exterior or natural man, as a mother: without the conjunction of both, nothing rational ever comes forth. The Rational is not born, as is supposed, from knowledges and Knowledges, but from the affection of knowledges and Knowledges; as may be evident from the fact, that no one can ever become rational unless some delight or affection of knowledges and Knowledges breathes upon [him]. The affection is the maternal life itself; and the Celestial and Spiritual itself, in the affection, is the paternal life; hence, in proportion to the affection, and according to its quality, the man becomes rational. Scientifics and Knowledges, in themselves, are nothing but dead Things . . . and are vivified by the life of the affection. This is the conception of the rational man with everyone. 1900. 1901.

[A.] 1900². The vessels of the interior memory are formed through rational things.

1901. Intellectual truth . . . is altogether childless when as yet there is not any Rational, into which and through which it may inflow; for, without the Rational as a medium, it cannot inflow with any truth into the exterior man; as may be evident from infants . . .

—². The Rational, because it cannot come forth except by the influx also of the intellectual truth represented by Sarai, is as its son. When the Rational is formed from truths which are adjoined to goods; and, still more, when it is formed from the goods from which are truths, it is a genuine son . . .

1902. That the Rational with man can be born in no other way. Sig. and Ex.

— . If man were imbued with no hereditary evil, the Rational would be born immediately from the marriage of the celestial things of the internal man with its spiritual things; and, through the Rational, would be born the Scientific, so that man would have with him all the Rational and all the Scientific the moment he came into the world; for this would be according to the order of influx . . .

—². Hereditary evil . . . is the cause that man's Rational must be formed through scientifics and Knowledges insinuated through the senses . . . thus in inverted order. Man is thus made rational miraculously by the Lord. This is meant by 'going in unto the handmaid . . .'

—³. The Lord's Rational was conceived and born in the same way as with another man, with the difference, that the Divine . . . was inmost in everything of His . . .

1907. The conjunction of the internal man with the life and affection of the exterior man, is the source of the Rational.

1910. 'Hagar conceived' = the first life of the Rational.

— . The Rational receives its life from the life of the internal man inflowing into the life of the affection of Knowledges and of knowledges of the exterior man. This (latter) life gives to the Rational as it were a body . . .

1911. That this Rational, at its conception, lightly esteemed the truth adjoined to good. Sig. The Rational first conceived cannot acknowledge intellectual or spiritual truth for truth, because there adhere to it many fallacies from the knowledges drawn from the world . . . and many appearances from the Knowledges taken from the literal sense of the Word. Examps. 1916.

—⁷. But with the Lord there were no fallacies; but, when His Rational was first conceived, there were appearances of truth . . . Hence His Rational at its first conception lightly esteemed intellectual truth; but successively, as His Rational was made Divine, the clouds of the appearances were dispersed, and intellectual truths lay open to Him in their own light. (Rep. by the expulsion of Ishmael.)

1914. That the Lord perceived this first Rational to be such . . . and therefore rebuked it. Sig. and Ex. For the Lord thought from intellectual truth . . . (which) is above the Rational . . .

—³. Even the Angels of the Third Heaven do not think from intellectual truth, but from the interior of the Rational.

—⁴. The fathers of the Most Ancient Church, who had perception, thought from the interior Rational. But the fathers of the Ancient Church . . . thought from the exterior, or natural, Rational. But all devoid of conscience never think from the Rational; for they have not a Rational, although they appear to have it; but they think from the sensuous and corporeal Natural . . . A rational man is he who thinks from the good and truth of faith; never he who thinks against it. They who think what is evil and false are insane in thought, and therefore the Rational can never be predicated of them.

1917^e. In the Lord's Rational there was nothing false; but appearances of truth . . .

1919². The things which inflow (through the Heavens) present themselves in the interior rational man; and are there as in a cloud . . .

1920. That this Rational [just] conceived was under the Power of truth adjoined to good. Sig. and Ex. . . The Lord had Power over the Rational which was with Him; and by Own power subjugated it.

1921. The Lord subjugated and expelled the evil which insinuated itself from the Hereditary into this first Rational. The Rational was conceived from the Internal man, (but being) born from the exterior . . . had hereditary . . . evil with it . . .

1923. The indignation of this first conceived Rational. Sig. and Ex.

— . When the Rational rises against the Intellectual, intestine combat comes forth, and indignation on the part of the one which is being subjugated . . .

1935. In man also there is interior thought which inflows from the Lord through his internal man into the interior Rational, with those who have conscience . . .

—^e. But those who have no conscience cannot have interior thought . . . because their Rational acts as one and the same with the Corporeal Sensuous . . .

1936. How the Lord thought that the appearances which occupied the first Rational with Him were not to be trusted; but Divine truths themselves, however incredible they might appear before that Rational. Sig.

— . Such is the case with all Divine truths: if the Rational be consulted about them, they never can be believed; for they are above all apprehension. Examps.

—^c. From these examples it is evident that the Rational is not to be trusted; for the Rational is in fallacies and appearances; and it therefore rejects truths which are stripped of them . . .

1940. The fruitfulness of the rational man, when it submits itself under the Power of the interior man adjoined to good. Sig. and Ex.

— . With the Lord, all the truth in His Rational was made good; thus Divine . . . It is otherwise in man, whose Rational is formed from . . . the affection of truth.

—². What goes on in the internal man, cannot be apprehended by the man, because it is above all his Rational, from which he thinks. To this inmost or internal man, is the Rational subject, which appears as proper to the man. Into this there inflow through the internal man the celestial things of love and of faith; and, through this Rational, into the scientifics which are of the external man. But the things which inflow are received according to the state of each.

—³. Unless the Rational submits itself to the Lord's goods and truths, this Rational either suffocates, or rejects, or perverts the things which inflows . . . Sig. (by the seed falling on the wayside, etc.) But when the Rational submits itself, and believes in the Lord . . . the Rational is then like the 'good ground . . .'

1944. The life of the rational man. Sig. and Ex. . . The Rational is said to receive life, to be in the womb, and to be born, when the man begins to think that it is the evil and falsity with him which . . . is opposed to truth and good . . . Unless he can apperceive . . . this, he has no Rational, however he may suppose that he has. For the Rational is the medium which unites the internal man with the external; and thus has an apperception from the Lord of what is going on in the external; and thus reduces the external to obedience, and elevates it . . . and causes man to be man, so that he looks up to Heaven . . . These are the offices of the Rational; and therefore unless a man is such as to be able to think this, he cannot be said to have a Rational . . . To ratiocinate against good and truth . . . is not to have a Rational . . . There is only this difference: that those who suppose they have a Rational, and have it not, speak from a certain decorum, and act from a pretended honourableness . . . Nay, those who have no Rational are wont to speak from sensuous and scientific things much more skilfully than those who have it. (From experience.)

1947². During regeneration . . . the man humbles and afflicts his Rational, in order that it may submit itself; and he thence receives a heavenly proprium . . .

—⁶. The subjugation of the evils and falsities which rise up from the external man into the rational man. Sig.

1949. 'The wild-ass' = the Rational of man . . . as to rational truth. The Rational consists of good and truth.

—². The man whose Rational is such that he is only in truth . . . is morose, contentious, etc. 1950.

1950. The Rational as it would be if it were not united to the Internal . . . or as if it were devoid of rational good. Tr.

—². All the genuine Rational consists of good and truth . . . The Rational without life from celestial good, is as here described. . . Rational good never fights . . .

1953. For the Rational can never think about itself, in regard to its quality. It must be something higher which does so. —².

1954^e. The (spiritual) sight does not see from itself, but from a still more interior one, or that of the Rational.

1956. Influx into the life of the exterior man without the Rational as a medium. Sig. and Ex.

1960. The rational man born of this conception and conjunction. Sig. and Ex.

1964. When the life of the affection of knowledges brought forth the Rational. Sig.

— . The Rational can never be . . . formed without scientifics and Knowledges. But these must have use as their end . . . From them alone, without the life of use, the Rational becomes as is here described (by the 'wild-ass').

1988. The time before the Lord fully conjoined the Internal Man with the Rational. Sig.

2004². Life continually inflows through the internal man into the Rational; and, through this, into the external . . .

2016². No influx of the Divine into the Rational of man's mind, except through the Human . . .

2034⁸. There was (then) no operation of the Divine through rational things into internal sensuous things.

2045. Whatever favours anyone's love is supposed to be good: hence the Rational consents, and suggests falsities which confirm . . .

—². That the life of (evil love) is filthy, may be evident to everyone if he is willing to think from the rational faculty with which he has been endowed.

2066. As all the Rational begins from truth, the Rational is here signified by 'a son.' The Lord's second Rational is here signified by Isaac who was to be born of Sarah. The first Rational, represented by Ishmael, was the Rational which was afterwards expelled from the house; but this second Rational is that which remained in the house, because it was Divine.

2072². In man's Rational is truth, which is the chief thing; in it also is the affection of good; but this is in the affection of truth, as its soul . . . The reason truth is the chief thing in the Rational of man, is that the Rational is formed by means of the Knowledges of truth . . .

2074. That the Rational of the Lord's Human essence should then be united to the Divine essence. Sig. 2095. 2135².

2078. That others, who are rational from truth, should not perish. Sig. and Ex. 2087.

— . Two kinds of men in the Church . . . the spiritual become rational from truth; but the celestial from good . . .

[A.] 2083. The Lord's rational man, being conceived from the influx of the Internal Man into the affection of knowledges of the External, was from the Divine thus conjoined with the Human. Hence the first Rational . . . was human, but it was made Divine, and so is represented by Isaac . . .

2093². The first Rational can be conceived only through the influx of the internal man into the affection of knowledges of the external; and can be born only from the affection of knowledges. . . But the second or Divine Rational is not thus conceived and born; but through the conjunction of the truth of the Internal Man with the good of the same, and the influx . . . of the good into the truth; thus through the truth; for the chief thing of the Rational is truth. Sig.

—⁴. With man also the first Rational is conceived and born through the influx of the internal man into the life of the affection of knowledges . . . But his second Rational, from the influx of the good and truth from the Lord through his internal man. This second Rational he receives from the Lord, when he is being regenerated; for he is then sensible in his Rational of what the good and truth of faith are.

2106^e. For the human begins in the inmosts of the Rational . . . 2194.

2115. That the gentiles also are saved when they are rational; that is, live together in charity . . . Sig.

2138. That His Rational would put off the human, and become Divine. Tr.

2144². An influx from the Lord into the Rational of the Most Ancients, from which, when they had thought about any holy thing, they at once perceived whether it was so.

2145. A lower rational perception. Sig.

2162². Rational things are represented by the breast. —³.

2171. There are natural, rational, and internal perception. Ex.

2180. In the genuine Rational is affection of truth, and also affection of good; but its primary is affection of truth.

2181. With every man there is an internal, a Rational which is middle, and a Natural, which are distinct from each other, but are to be made to conform so as to be a one. 2183.

2183. The instruction of His Rational in what is celestial and thence spiritual. Sig.

—². These three are so distinct that the Rational, which is called the rational man, can dissent from the Natural; nay, can even see and perceive the evil in it, if the Rational is genuine. Until these two have been conjoined, the man cannot be a whole man, nor in the tranquillity of peace . . . for the Angels with the man rule his Rational, and the evil Spirits his Natural . . . If the Rational conquers, the Natural is subjugated, and the man is gifted with conscience . . . If the Rational conquers, the Natural becomes as if it also were Rational; but if the Natural conquers, the Rational becomes as if it also were natural. If the Rational conquers, the Angels approach nearer into the man, and insinuate charity into him . . . If the Rational conquers, the man comes into the tranquillity of peace . . . Hence may be known the state of a man as to his Rational . . . Thus nothing can make man blessed and happy except that his Natural be conformed to his Rational, and both be conjoined. This is done solely through charity.

2189. The state of the Rational with the Lord . . . as to the Divine, and as to the human in which He then was. Tr.

—². The primary thing of the Rational with man is truth; consequently, it is the affection of truth, to the end that man may be reformed . . . Ex.

—³. But, when good constitutes the Rational, truth disappears, and becomes as if it were good . . .

2194. 'Sarah shall have a son' = the Divine Rational which was to be. . . Both 'son,' and 'Sarah,' and also 'Isaac' = that which is of the Lord's Rational.

—^e. As the human begins in the inmost of the Rational, the Lord . . . first made the Rational itself Divine . . . 2625⁴. 2636. 2666.

2196. Near the good in which the Rational then was. Sig. and Ex.

—⁴. Things which the Rational thinks from appearances, stated seriatim.

—¹³. (All these spiritual truths) besides thousands of thousands of such, the Rational of man, from its own lumen, born from sensuous things, . . . can never believe . . . Indeed, the Rational is blind in natural things themselves. Examp.

2204^e. The Lord utterly expelled everything worldly from the Rational; and thus made it Divine.

2207^e. That the Lord perceived that in His Rational there was still what is human. Sig.

2208. It wondered that the Rational should become Divine. Sig.

2209³. The Rational which is wise from sensuous things cannot believe (these Divine truths). Enum.

—^e. Such is the Rational regarded in itself.

2213. That He would put off the human Rational, and put on the Divine Rational. Sig.

2216². The state of the human Rational with the Lord, is described by Sarah's laughing.

2219². To man above beasts, the Rational has been given, to the end that everyone wish well and do well to another . . .

2280². From the twentieth year, man begins to become rational . . .

2341⁴. The dwelling together and first conjunction of the Divine of the Lord with His Human Rational. Sig.

2382. 'The men at the door of the house' = evil rational things, and the derivative false doctrinals, by which violence is inflicted on the good of charity.

2471². To the interior memory pertain . . . also all rational things, from the ideas of which thought itself comes forth.

2476^e. But interior things, namely, things rational, spiritual, and celestial, are adapted and correspond to man's spirit.

2480. The interior memory is of the Rational.

— After death, whatever men have imbedded by means of languages and knowledges, they bring forth (from the memory) into use, because it has formed their Rational. The Rational thence procured, is that from which they [then] think and speak . . .

2492. With those who have studied from the memory only, and thus have not cultivated their Rational, (the memory appears like a callosity . . .)

2496^e. The doctrine of charity and faith is . . . not from a rational origin. Tr. (See DOCTRINE, here, and at 2510. 2511. 2516. 2519. 2520. 2531. 2533.)

2503. See KADESH, here.

2508. From (the heavenly marriage between Divine good and Divine truth) are conceived with man the Intellectual, the Rational, and the Scientific.

2510. 'Abimelech' = the doctrine of faith looking to rational things. . . Doctrine is said to look to rational things, when nothing is acknowledged as the truth of doctrine than what can be apprehended by the reason, so that the mental view of all things which are of doctrine is from the Rational. But that the doctrine of faith is not from a rational but from a celestial origin, is taught in what follows.

2516. That the doctrine of faith would be null, if the Rational were consulted . . . Sig. and Ex. 2523. 2530. 2531. 2568.

—². That there is no doctrine of faith from the Rational, is because the Rational is in appearances of good and truth . . . Besides, the Rational has fallacies under it, which are from external sensuous things confirmed by means of scientifics, which induce a shade on those appearances of truth. The Rational for the most part is merely human, as may be evident from its birth . . .

—³. In the literal sense, the doctrine of faith appears as if it had many things from the Rational, and even from the Natural; but this is because the Word is for man, and is thus accommodated to him.

2519². The Divine can enter into the Rational, but not the reverse.

2520². That the human race might be provided for, which does not receive anything of which it cannot have some idea from its Rational. Sig. and Ex.

— If truths from a Divine origin were set forth naked, they would never be received. Take these examples . . . If the Rational were consulted, it would say . . .

—⁵. As the human Rational is such, the mode of speaking in the Word is according to man's apprehension . . .

2523². It therefore pleased the Lord . . . to cultivate the Rational like another man, and thus dispel its shade, and bring it into the light.

2524. That the Rational itself asserted that celestial good should be adjoined to it. Sig.

— But the good and truth of the Rational are not conjoined with each other as by a marriage; but by consanguinity like that of brother and sister; because the Rational as to truth is conceived from the influx of Divine good into the affection of knowledges and of Knowledges; but the good of the Rational, through the influx of Divine good into this truth, which there becomes the good of charity itself, which is the brother of faith. But with the good and truth of the Rational, the procuring is in such a way that its good is from the Divine good, but its truth is not from the Divine truth; for the truth of the Rational is procured through knowledges and Knowledges, which are insinuated through external and internal sensuous things; thus by an external way. Hence it is that there adhere to its truths many fallacies from sensuous things, which cause the truths not to be truths; but still when the Divine good inflows into them, and conceives them, they appear as truths, and are acknowledged as truths, although they are nothing but appearances of truth. The good itself is then modified in these truths according to the shades there, and becomes in quality like the truth.

2531². The doctrine of faith . . . is Divine truth from Divine good, and thus is wholly Divine (and is therefore, in itself) incomprehensible . . . but still . . . it can inflow through the Divine Human into the Rational of man; and, when it inflows into his Rational, it is there received according to the truths which are there; thus diversely. Ex.

2533. That he should render up the spiritual truth of doctrine without taint from the Rational. Sig. and Ex. 2537. 2538.

—². Although the doctrine of faith is Divine, and thus above even angelic apprehension, it has nevertheless been dictated in the Word according to the apprehension of man, in a rational manner. Ex.

2538. (The destructive effect of the human Rational on the spiritual truth of doctrine, when it mixes itself with it. See DOCTRINE, here.) 2540².

—^e. But it is one thing to believe from what is rational, scientific, and sensuous, or to consult these things about believing; and another to confirm and corroborate that which is believed by rational, scientific, and sensuous things. (Continued under DOCTRINE, at 2568.)

2541. In a man who is in the Lord's Kingdom, there are celestial, spiritual, rational, scientific, and sensuous things, in subordination to one another. Ex. and Sig.

—². (It treats here of) how the Lord reduced to obedience rational and scientific things; and indeed so that he did not reduce the rational and scientific things themselves, but the affections which rose up against the celestial and spiritual things of doctrine; for, when these have been subjugated, the rational and scientific things are reduced to obedience, and at the same time into order.

2542. There are many confirming things which accede to whatever the Rational acknowledges; for its acknowledgment comes from no other source than from things which confirm. Hence it is that when rational things are being reduced to obedience, exhortation is made to the things which confirm; for these are ever pressing in, and as it were rising up. Sig. 2543.

2551². How, through the knowledges and Knowledges which He revealed to Himself, the Lord perfected His Rational, successively dispersed its shades, and introduced it into Divine light. Tr.

[A.] 2552². The perception of the celestial man, like the conscience [of the spiritual man] is from the Lord, and it does not appear to the man himself whence it is; but his thought is from the Rational, and it appears to him as if from himself. Thus when he is thinking about any Thing from the Rational, the conclusion of the thought, or the answer, comes either from perception, or from conscience; consequently an answer is given him by the Lord according to his state of life, his affection, and the truth of doctrine implanted in agreement therewith.

2556. All things with a man truly rational, that is, regenerate, . . . are conjoined with one another as if by relationship . . . Ex.

2557. That the Rational is conceived from celestial good as a father, but not from spiritual truth as a mother. Sig. and Ex.

—². Man is born into nothing rational; but only into the faculty of receiving it . . . and, as he learns and imbues all things so, he becomes rational. This is done by the way of the body. But there is constantly something (namely, Divine celestial good) inflowing from the interior, which receives the things which thus enter, and disposes them into order. Hence is the life of these things; hence is their order, and the relationships among them; from which it is evident that the Rational of man is from Divine celestial good as a father.

—³. If spiritual truth (also) were to inflow from the interior, man would be born into all the Rational, and at the same time into all the Scientific; (but in this case the spiritual truth would be adulterated by the hereditary evil of the man). (Thus) the Rational of man is not from spiritual truth as a mother. . . It pleased the Lord that His Rational also should be formed in a similar manner . . .

2558. That spiritual truth is conjoined with the Celestial by the means of rationality. Sig.

2559^e. As the first scientifics and rational things with the Lord were human, imbued with what was hereditary from the mother . . .

2568. See BELIEVE, here. —².

2569². When the Human in Him was united to the Divine . . . the Lord had omniscience . . . also of rational and natural things . . .

2572³. The Angels . . . are in all wisdom and intelligence . . . of rational and natural things also.

2576¹⁷. The 'vestment which He should wash in wine,' and the 'covering which He should wash in the blood of grapes'=the Lord's Rational and Natural, which He should make Divine.

2577². It appears that man becomes rational through sensuous and scientific things; but this is a fallacy. Good from the Lord constantly inflows and occurs through the rational faculty of man, and adopts the scientifics to itself; and, in proportion as it can do this, and dispose them rightly, in the same proportion he becomes rational.

2588. See DOCTRINE, here. —². —¹⁰.

—². See NEGATIVE, here.

— . For man has light (solely) through rational and scientific things.

—³. See CONFIRM, here. —¹⁵.

—⁵. They can confirm this rationally, thus . . .

—⁸. From these examples (which are stated at great length) it is evident what it is to enter from truths into rational and scientific things; and what to enter from scientific and rational things into truths; (and that) when the former is done, the man is illustrated; but when the latter, he is blinded. Hence it is clear of how great concern it is that truths should be known and believed; for man is illustrated by truths . . . and by truths there is opened to the Rational an immense and almost unbounded field; but by falsities almost none in comparison . . .

—⁹. To cultivate the Rational by means of knowledges, is not forbidden . . .

—¹⁰. Those who want to enter into doctrinals through scientific and rational things. Ill.

—¹³. Those who enter into rational and scientific things from doctrine. Ill.

—¹⁵. The Rational of the Most Ancient Church. Des.

2621². The Rational and Sensitive, when imbued with heavenly love, is the existere of the man who is being regenerated.

2625. When the Rational was such as to receive. Sig. and Ex.

—⁴. When the days were fulfilled for the human to be put off, and when the Rational was such as to receive, the Divine Rational came forth; (for) the human begins in the inmost of the Rational . . . and He expelled all the maternal human, and thus made His Human Divine as to the Rational.

—⁵. (So with man. When, by means of the successive implantation of celestial and spiritual things) his Rational has become such that it can receive, he is then, for the first time, being regenerated . . .

2632. The purification of the Rational. Sig. and Ex.

—². The Lord's first Rational was born as with others; namely, through scientifics and Knowledges; (therefore) it could not but have in itself many things from worldly things; for thence are the ideas of the Rational procured . . . It was these worldly things, and the Hereditary in it from the mother, which the Lord successively expelled from His Rational, and this until it was such that it could receive the Divine. Then was born the Divine Rational; but not by the external . . . but by the internal way, from the Divine Itself. As this was done . . . successively, it was continually purified. 2646.

2647. 'Isaac weaned'=the separation of the merely human Rational.

2651-2654. The Lord's insight from the Divine Spiritual into the merely human Rational; that it was not in agreement with the Divine Rational. Sig.

2654². As the Lord's first Rational was born . . . through knowledges and Knowledges, it could not but be in appearances of truth . . . and (therefore) truths without appearances, as Divine ones are, could not agree with it; both because this Rational does not apprehend them, and because they are adverse to it. Examps.

2657. That the things of the merely human Rational should be exterminated. Sig. and Ex.

—^e. With every man who is being regenerated, there are two Rationals; one before regeneration, the other after it. The first . . . is procured through the experience of the senses, through reflections upon the things which are in civil life and in moral life, through knowledges, and through the reasonings from them and by means of them; and also through the Knowledges of spiritual things from the doctrine of faith or from the Word . . .

—³. But the Rational after regeneration is formed by the Lord through the affections of spiritual truth and good, which affections are implanted by the Lord in a wonderful manner in the truths of the former Rational; and those things in it which are in agreement . . . are thus vivified; but the rest are separated from it as of no use; until at last spiritual goods and truths are collected together as it were into fascicles, the incongruous things which cannot be vivified being rejected to the circumference . . .

—⁴. The first Rational, in the beginning, is like unripe fruit, which successively matures until it forms seeds within itself; and when it is of such an age as to begin to separate itself from the tree, its state is full. But the second Rational . . . is like the same fruit in good ground, in which those things which are round about the seeds decay, and the seeds push forth from their inmosts, and send out a root, and then a shoot above the ground, which grows into a new tree, and unfolds itself, and this at last into new fruits, and then into gardens and paradises.

—⁵. From the first Rational . . . the man believes that he thinks truth and does good from himself . . . This first Rational cannot apprehend otherwise . . . But, when he is being regenerated . . . from the other Rational, with which he is gifted by the Lord, he begins to think that the good and truth are . . . from the Lord . . . The proprium of the former Rational is then gradually separated; and the man is gifted . . . with a heavenly proprium, which becomes that of his new Rational.

—⁶. The first Rational, in the beginning, knows no other love than that of self and of the world . . . But the second Rational . . . begins to feel some delight in good and truth itself . . .

—⁷. But . . . although a man is being regenerated, still each and all things of the first Rational remain with him, and are only separated from the second Rational, and this in a wonderful manner, by the Lord. But the Lord completely exterminated His first Rational . . . for what is merely human cannot be together with the Divine . . .

2660. The Lord's state of grief from love when He thought of separating that Rational. Sig.

2661. For He loved that first Rational. Sig. and Ex.

2701. The opening of the understanding is effected through influx into the Rational of man; or, rather, into the Spiritual of his Rational . . .

2702¹⁵. Doctrinals which are of the Rational. Sig.

2718. From this illumination there comes forth in the Rational (of the man of the Spiritual Church) the affection of truth . . .

2719. The doctrine of faith is next treated of, which is to be of service to the Spiritual Church: that there are adjoined to it human rational things from scientifics. 2720². —⁸. 2722⁷. 2723. 2767.

2720³. The rational things in which the Lord had before been instructed. Sig.

—⁶. Divine goods implanted in the rational things of doctrine. Sig.

—^e. That still (human rational things) had no part in doctrine. Sig.

2767. The Lord's temptation as to the (second) Rational is treated of (in Gen.xxii.). For, through temptations, He made His Human—thus the Rational, in which the human begins—Divine, by chastising and expelling all in the Rational which was merely human.

2781⁸. 'To ride on a foal the son of a she-ass' = that the Rational had been subordinated.

—⁹. The natural man ought to serve the Rational; this the Spiritual; this the Celestial; and this the Lord. Rep.

2782. Abraham's 'two boys' = the former Rational which He had adjoined. 2786. 2792.

2795². When He was to undergo the inmost temptations, He adjoined to Himself . . . the Rational and Natural of the prior human; and afterwards separated Himself from these; but still retained them in such a way that He could be tempted by means of them. Sig.

2813. All the genuine Rational consists of good and truth.

2822. Consolation in the Divine good of the Rational after temptation. Sig. and Ex.

2831¹⁰. The interior memory, where rational things are.

2850. 'Stars,' or Knowledges, relate to the Rational; 'sand,' or scientifics, to the Natural.

—^e. To this correspondence the Lord reduces the rational and natural things of man when He regenerates him.

2851³. For there are two ways which lead into the rational mind; an internal one, through which enter good and truth from the Lord; and an external one, through which evil and falsity come up from Hell. The rational mind itself is in the middle . . . This mind, from the goods and truths there, is called 'a city.' (Hence) 'gates' are attributed to it, which are said to be besieged by 'enemies,' (who) can come no further than the external gate; (for) if these infernals could get into the city—that is, into the rational mind—it would be all over with the man. But when they (prevail), the rational mind is closed, so that good and truth no longer inflows, except some little through chinks. Hence such . . . are no longer truly rational . . . —⁶.

2856. Conjunction again with the former Rational. Sig.

2857. After temptations, the Rational is always elevated. Sig.

[A.] 2858. Progression into doctrine, which is Divine, and to which human rational things are adjoined. Sig.

3013. Divine truth conjoined with the Divine good of His Rational; and this by the common way from the natural man; namely, from the scientifics, Knowledges, and doctrinals there. Then, by Divine influx, truths were called forth thence, initiated into the good in the Rational, and made Divine. Thus was the Rational made Divine . . . as to truth also. Tr. (in Gen. xxiv.).

3020. All things in man are as one household . . . The rational mind is that which disposes all things, as the head of the family, and ordines them by influx into the natural mind . . .

—³. The rational mind is more interior (than the natural). The Knowledges—cognitiva—there are not patent to the man; but, while he lives in the body, are imperceptible; for each and all are things of the interior memory. There also belongs to it all the Cogitative which is perceptive of what is fair and just, and of what is true and good; likewise all spiritual affections, which are the properly human ones . . . From these things, this mind inflows into the natural mind, and excites the things there, and views them with a kind of sight, and so judges and concludes. These two minds are so distinct that with very many the natural mind dominates over the rational mind; and serves [it] only with those in the good of charity.

3029. Whatever is being done in the natural man, and what the quality of the natural man is, is perceived in the Rational.

3030². The genuine Rational is from good, and comes forth—existit—from truth. Good inflows by an internal way, and truth by an external; and thus good conjoins itself with truth in the Rational, and they make it to be the Rational. Unless good is there conjoined with truth, there is no Rational, although it appears from the fact that the man can ratiocinate. This is the common way by which the Rational is formed with man. (So with the Lord. Ex.)

—⁴. The good itself of the Rational, which is formed by the internal way, is the very ground; but the truth is the seed which is to be sown in it. The genuine Rational is never born in any other way.

3043². Freedom is predicated of the natural man, but not so much of the rational; for good in heavenly freedom from the Lord inflows through the rational into the natural man . . .

3048². It treats of the process of the conjunction of truth with good in the Lord's Divine Rational . . . 3072, Sig. 3077, Sig. (by the marriage of Rebekah to Isaac.) 3123.

3057. How truths are elevated from the Natural into the Rational, and become rational. 3074. 3084². 3153.

—². The things in the Rational do not appear before the man while he lives here. Those in the Natural come to perception; but rarely those in the Rational, except by a certain appearance—speciem—of light illuminating the things in the Natural, or as an inflowing power—facultas—by which the things of thought are disposed into order; and as a Perceptive of the Thing which the mind is viewing.

3085². There is a continual Divine . . . influx of celestial and spiritual things through the rational man into . . . the natural things of the external man, by which truths are continually called forth and elevated from the natural man, and implanted in the good which is in the Rational.

3095^e. All the genuine good in the natural man is from the marriage of good and truth in the Rational.

3098. Good inflows through the Rational into the Natural . . . and illustrates the things there; whereas truth inflows into the Natural by the external way. . . But the conjunction of good and truth is . . . in the Rational. 3153².

3102². Every truth which is elevated out of . . . the scientifics, Knowledges, and doctrinals of the natural man, into the rational man, must first be acknowledged as to whether it is in agreement with the good in the Rational: if it is, it is received; if not, it is rejected. . . In order to this acknowledgment, there must be illustration in the natural man . . . and this illustration is from good, but through truth. Sig. 3128³, Ex. 3145.

3108². As soon as truth is being initiated into good . . . it vanishes from the external memory, and passes into the internal; or, what is the same, it vanishes from the natural man, and passes into the rational or internal man . . . 3161².

—^e. It is the same with the falsity which is being conjoined with evil . . . The difference is, that the former opens the Rational, and thus makes the man rational; whereas the latter closes the Rational, and makes the man irrational; although he seems to himself . . . to be rational above others.

3128². Truths are conjoined with good in the mid-way; that is, in the Rational; and at the same time they make the man rational . . .

3160. The affection of truth called forth from the natural man into the rational, and conjoined with the good there, is circumstanced as is a married woman.

—². For the good of the rational man, when it inflows into the natural, inflows into . . . the good there; and, through the good, into the truth . . . The affection of good in the natural man is what first acknowledges, thus which first consents; for there is an immediate conjunction between rational good and natural good; but not between rational good and natural truth.

3161. It is here described how He made His Rational Divine as to truth also. Ex.

3175². For unless man is rational, he is not man; therefore, according to the quality and quantity of the Rational, such is the man. Man can never be rational, unless he has good.

—³. But truth cannot be . . . elevated into the Rational without difficulty. Ex. and Sig.

3188. The elevation of the affection of truth (Rebekah) to the Rational. Sig. 3190, Ex. 3192. 3197.

3196. A state of the Rational in good, relatively to the things beneath. Sig. 3197.

— For meditating is a state of the Rational when it applies the mind intently.

3207³. Man's rational things are appearances of truth.

3209². The Rational is in a degree above the Natural; and the rational good in the Lord was Divine; but the truth elevated out of the Natural was not Divine, until it was conjoined with the Divine good of the Rational. In order, therefore, that the good of the Rational might inflow into the Natural, there must be a medium. Sig.

3212. This new state is the state of the glorification of the Rational . . . now, as to truth. Sig.

3219. Hence 'birds' = rational things.

3245². There are two things which properly constitute the Human: the Rational, and the Natural. Rep.

— . The Natural could not be made Divine, until the Rational had been made Divine . . .

3263. 'Ishmael' = the rational, and those of the Spiritual Church.

—². Many gentiles know, from rational lumen, that there is one God . . .

3264². The Spiritual does not exist except in the Rational; and therefore the spiritual man and the rational man are almost the same. The spiritual differ from each other only according to the quality of the reason and the derivative life.

3283². The Lord's Natural could not be made Divine until truth had been adjoined to His Rational . . . for the influx into the Natural had to be from the Divine good of the Rational through the Divine truth there . . . For the Rational is that which ordines all things in the Natural; and, according to the ordination there, has them conveniently in view; for the Rational is like a higher sight, which, when it looks into the scientifics of the natural man, looks as into a field beneath itself. The light of this vision is that of truth; but the origin of the light is the good in the Rational.

3286². So long as the Natural is not regenerate, the Rational is barren as to truth. Sig. and Ex.

—³. The work of regeneration is directed mainly to this: that to the rational man may correspond the Natural; not only in general, but also in particular. (Continued under NATURAL.)

3288^e. Only those who are regenerate know (that the Rational is distinct from the Natural); to (others) the Rational is the same as the Natural.

3314. See INFLUX, here.

3318². The life which inflows from the Lord . . . applies itself to the vessels which are in man's Rational, and Natural. On account of hereditary evil, these vessels are in a contrary position . . . These vessels in the rational man, and in the natural, are the things called truths. Ex.

—⁴. Hence it is, that, first in the rational man, and then in the Natural, the good begins to be conjoined with the truths there. Ex.

3321. Man's Rational receives truths before his Natural; and this to the end that the Lord's life . . . may inflow through the Rational into the Natural, and dispose it . . . For the Rational is purer, and the Natural grosser; or, what is the same, the Rational is interior, and the Natural exterior . . . Hence it is that the Rational can be accommodated to truths, and receive them, before the Natural; as may be evident from the fact, that the rational man fights much with the Natural; or, what is the same, the internal man with the external.

3365². That from the Lord is the doctrine of faith which looks to rational things. Sig. . . Doctrinals, in so far as they can be received and acknowledged by Angels and men, are said to look to rational things; for it is the rational which receives and acknowledges them. But the Rational is such that it can never apprehend Divine things; for it is finite, and the finite cannot apprehend the things which are of the infinite; and therefore truths Divine are presented before the Rational by means of appearances . . .

3368. That he should not descend to scientifics; but should go to rational things, which, being illustrated by the Divine, are appearances of truth. Sig. and Ex.

—². Whether you say rational things illustrated by the Divine, or appearances of truth; or truths spiritual and celestial, such as are in Heaven, or in the Church; it is the same. The same are called doctrinals . . . The angelic and human Rational is called the Rational, from the appearances of truth illustrated by the Divine; without these it is not the Rational. Thus rational things are these appearances.

—³. All appearances of truth in which is the Divine, are of the Rational, insomuch that rational truths, and appearances of truth, are the same; whereas scientifics are of the Natural . . . Rational truths . . . can never be and come forth, except from an influx of the Divine into the Rational; and through rational things into the scientifics which are of the Natural. The things which then take place in the Rational appear in the Natural, as an image of many things together in a mirror; and are thus presented before the man, or Angel . . .

—⁴. Divine truth cannot inflow immediately into scientifics . . . but [only] through rational things. Sig.

3376. That Divine truth, when it inflows by means of rational things, presents appearances of truth, and thus fructifies and multiplies itself as to good and truth, through which the Lord conjoins himself with Angels and men. Sig. 3384.

3385². As the spiritual have not perception . . . there is given them what appears like truth; and this according to their Rational; that is, according to their apprehension. This is now treated of.

3386. By rational truth is meant that which appears as truth . . . before the Rational. Sig.

3387. That if Divine truths themselves were opened, they would not be received by those in the doctrinals of faith, because they exceed all their rational apprehension. Sig. and Ex.

3391. The doctrine of faith looking to rational things in Knowledges. Sig. and Ex.

— . Rational things, or, what is the same, appearances of truth, that is, spiritual truths, are not Knowledges, but are in Knowledges; for they are of the rational or internal man . . . For Knowledges, being of the natural man, are vessels which receive rational things.

[A.] 3394². The spiritual . . . do not know that Divine truth becomes rational truth with a man when he has been regenerated. They indeed say that all good and truth are from the Lord ; yet when these come forth in their Rational, they suppose them to be their own . . . for they cannot be separated from their proprium, which wills this. Sig. and Ex. (But) the celestial perceive Divine good and truth in the Rational ; that is, in rational things . . .

—³. As (spiritual men when regenerated) are in no other perception than that if truth were rational it could not be Divine ; and thus that if it were Divine it would have nothing in common with the Rational . . . they want the things of faith to be believed simply, without any mental view by the Rational ; not knowing that nothing of faith . . . is comprehended by any man without a rational idea, and also a natural one. . . To those in the affirmative . . . such a position is hurtful ; for thus they may take away any one's freedom of thinking, and bind the conscience to what is in the highest degree heretical, in thus dominating over a man's internals and externals. Sig.

3404. Interior truths from the Lord appearing to the Rational. Sig. and Ex.

3417. That He betook Himself to lower rational things ; or from interior appearances to exterior. Sig. and Ex.

3469². Those in life according to doctrinals, have been regenerated as to the interiors, which are their rational things ; but not yet as to the exteriors . . .

3493². When the Rational has been regenerated, and not the Natural, the former appears to itself to be dim-sighted ; for there is no correspondence. For the Rational has its sight from the light of Heaven, and the Natural from the light of the world ; and unless there is correspondence, the Rational can see nothing which is in the Natural. . . But when there is correspondence, the things in the Natural appear to the Rational in light. Sig. and Ex. 3620.

3494². See NATURAL, here. 3498. —². 3513. 3554. 3563. 3570. —². —³. 3573. —³. 3660². 4009.

3498². When man is in the world . . . his Rational is distinct from his Natural, insomuch that he can be withdrawn from external sensuous things . . . and in some degree from interior sensuous things . . . and be in his Rational, thus in spiritual thought . . .

3509². The rational mind is distinguished into two faculties, called the will and the understanding. . . Before a man has been regenerated, the will does not act as a one with the understanding ; but the former wills good, and the latter truth, insomuch that the conatus of the will is perceived very distinct from the conatus of the understanding . . . Sig. and Ex.

3533^e. The Natural sees from the effect ; but the Rational from the cause.

3538. When the Rational acts from good through truth, the rational mind is called one 'house.'

3570². The Rational is in the internal man, and what is transacted there is not known to the Natural . . .

—³. Ends of good are with man in his Rational ; and these are what is called the Rational as to good, or the good of the Rational . . .

—⁴. The new soul which man receives when being regenerated, is the end of good, which begins in the Rational, at first is in an ovum there, and afterwards is there perfected as in a womb. The tender body with which this soul is encompassed is the Natural and the good there . . .

—⁵. The Rational as to good conjoins with itself good first, and afterwards truth, by means of the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

—^e. Hence it is evident how the Rational disposes the Natural so that it may serve it . . .

3573. The conjunction of the Natural with the Rational is here treated of. . . This conjunction is effected by influx immediate and mediate of the Rational into the good and truth of the Natural ; that is, from the good of the Rational immediately into the good of the Natural, and through this into the truth of the Natural ; and mediately through the truth of the Rational into the truth of the Natural, and thence into the good of the Natural. 3576.

—². Rational light.

—³. The rational mind, that is, the interior Voluntary and Intellectual, ought to represent itself in the natural mind. (Continued under NATURAL.)

3579. When the Rational inflows into the Natural, it presents its own good there in a general form. Through this good it produces truths there, almost as the life in man builds up fibres, and disposes them into forms according to uses . . .

3665⁴. These Knowledges are derived in many ways from the Divine through the Rational into the Natural. Enum.

3671. Hence it is that the Rational is regenerated first of all ; for the seeds are there . . . and, as the Natural is like ground, good and truth can be fructified and multiplied in the Rational . . .

—². To understand good and truth, and to will them, is of the Rational. The perceptions of good and truth thence are like seeds . . . and when the man is affected with the scientifics which confirm good and truth, and, still more, when he apperceives delight in doing them, the seeds are there as in their ground, and grow. Hence good is fructified and truth is multiplied, and they continually ascend from this ground into the Rational, and perfect it. (Otherwise) good cannot be fructified, nor truth multiplied, in the Rational.

3677. All the goods and truths in the natural or external man, are conceived and born from the rational or internal man ; namely, from rational good as a father, and from rational truth as a mother. Refs.

3679². The thought of natural good is the thought of the rational or internal man in the natural, from its good ; for it is the rational man which thinks, and not the natural . . . Therefore, unless the internal man thought in the external, it would not be possible to think at all. Sig. and Ex.

—⁴. So long as man lives in the body, he thinks from the Rational in the Natural, but with a difference accordingly as the Natural corresponds to the Rational . . . When the Natural corresponds, the man is rational, and thinks spiritually ; but when the Natural does not correspond, the man is not rational, and cannot think spiritually. Ex.

—⁵. (For the same reason) there are Spirits who are rational . . . and those who are not rational. Ex.

3691. See DEGREE, here.

3747³. The second degree is what is called the internal and rational man. (Continued under DEGREE.)

3765. The Natural apprehends the Word as to the literal sense; the Rational as to the internal sense.

3786². Unless doctrinals are first collected into a one, there will be a defect, and the things which are defective must be supplied by man's Rational; and how blind and illusive this is in spiritual and Divine things, when its conclusions are from itself, has been shown.

3824^e. Then good is coupled with (the doctrinals), whereby they are conjoined with the Rational . . .

3849⁴. The most external affections are those of the body . . . those next interior are of the lower mind-animi- . . . but the internal are of the rational mind . . .

4038². There are three things in general with man: the Corporeal, the Natural, and the Rational. . . In so far as one of these reigns . . . the man is said to be corporeal, natural, or rational. These three parts of man communicate in a wonderful manner: the Corporeal with the Natural; and the Natural with the Rational. When first born, man is merely corporeal . . . and afterwards becomes natural, and at last rational.

—³. Man's Natural, by means of (these natural goods and truths) communicates with his Rational. The things which elevate themselves thence towards the Rational, reposit themselves in the Rational, as in a receptacle, which is the interior memory. What is blessed and happy there . . . is of rational good; and the interior views of Things, and the perceptions . . . are called rational truths.

— . These three [parts] are what constitute man . . . The Corporeal communicates with the Natural by means of external sensuous things; and the Natural with the Rational by means of interior sensuous things; and therefore the things in the Natural which are derived from external sensuous things . . . are called exterior and external truths of good; and those derived from internal sensuous things, which are proper to the spirit, and communicate with the Rational, are called interior goods and truths.

4108². As to the conjunction of the Rational and Natural with man, the Rational is of the internal man, and the Natural of the external, and their conjunction makes the human, and such a human as is the conjunction; and there is conjunction when they act as a one; and they act as a one when the Natural ministers . . . to the Rational.

4156³. It is not he who can ratiocinate from scientifics . . . who enjoys the Rational. Fatuous lumen produces this skill. But he enjoys the Rational who can see clearly that good is good, and truth truth; consequently that evil is evil, and falsity falsity . . .

—⁴. (Thus) scientifics are . . . means for perfecting the Rational, and also for destroying it; and those who by means of scientifics have destroyed their Rational, are (there) much more stupid than those who have been versed in no knowledges.

4167³. With the regenerate, these three planes act as one; for the one inflows into the other, and disposes it. The first plane, which is the conscience of spiritual good and truth, is in man's Rational; and the second . . . is in his Natural.

4286. The celestial man which is of the Rational is 'Joseph.'

—³. The internal Angels who are called 'Joseph' partake of the Rational.

4345³. The rational mind, and the things of it, are still more interior; and, relatively, are singulars. These are evident to the life when man puts off the body . . .

4353³. What man does from the understanding, he at last does from the will; and, finally, by habit, puts it on, and then it is insinuated into the rational or internal man . . .

4402². The spiritual man is not the interior rational man; but the interior natural. The interior rational man is what is called the celestial man.

4570². With man are two things most distinct from each other: the Rational, and the Natural. The Rational constitutes the internal man, and the Natural, the external; but the Natural, like the Rational; has its external and internal . . . So with the Rational: it also has an external and internal, and also a middle . . . Joseph represents the external of the Rational.

—³. Moreover, both the Rational and the Natural are called celestial and spiritual; celestial, when they receive good; and spiritual when they receive truth . . .

4585². The Rational constitutes the internal man.

—⁴. As there are no more adequate terms to express exterior things than the Natural; interior things than the Rational . . . it is necessary to employ these words.

— . The spiritual man is from the Natural; and the celestial man is from the Rational.

—⁵. It treats now of further progression towards . . . the Rational; for the Rational constitutes the internal man.

— . The intermediate between the internal of the Natural and the external of the Rational, is meant by the Spiritual of the Celestial . . . This intermediate derives something (also) from the external of the Rational, which is 'Joseph.' —^e.

4601^e. Conjunction of goods and truths with the Rational, or Intellectual. Tr.

4603. It treats of the conjunction of the Divine Natural with the Rational. 4610. 4612.

4612². As to the conjunction of the Natural and the Rational, it is to be known that the Rational receives truths and goods sooner and more easily than the Natural; because the Rational is more pure and perfect, being interior or higher; and, regarded in itself, is in the light of Heaven, to which it is adapted . . .

—^e. By the Rational is meant the internal man.

4618². The Rational has no life unless the Natural corresponds. Refs. . . It is like sight, which perishes unless it has objects to see . . . So with the Rational: unless there is a reception of its light in the Natural, its sight perishes; for the scientifics in the Natural are the objects of sight of the Rational; and if these objects are contrary to the light . . . the sight of the Rational perishes; for it cannot inflow into things contrary to itself. Hence it is that with those in evils and falsities, the Rational is closed, so that no communication with Heaven is open through it, except only as it were through chinks, that they may be in the faculty of thinking, reasoning, and speaking. This is why the Natural must be prepared for reception, that it may be conjoined with the Rational . . . and then the Rational lives in the Natural; for it sees its objects there.

[A. 4618]³. The Rational has indeed a life in itself distinct from that of the Natural; but still the Rational is in the Natural, as . . . the soul in its body.

4667². For the Rational is higher or more interior, or is prior; whereas the Natural is lower or more exterior, or is posterior. Thus the latter is subordinate to the former. Nay, when they agree, the Natural is nothing else than the General of the Rational; for whatever it has is then of the Rational. Ex.

4675. 'Israel loved Joseph' = the conjunction of the Divine Spiritual of the Rational with the Divine Spiritual of the Natural; (for) 'Joseph' = the Divine Spiritual of the Rational, or, the Celestial of the Spiritual from the Rational.

—^e. The Spiritual is predicated of both the Rational and the Natural; for . . . when the Divine truth shines in the Rational . . . it is called the Divine Spiritual of the Rational . . .

4715². Those who are celestial men, and thence truly rational, perceive interior things. These are said to be taught from the Lord's Divine Rational. Sig.

4741³. To (confirm a dogma once received . . . and by reasonings make it appear like the truth) is not of the rational man; for the rational man can see, as from what is higher, whether that which is being confirmed is true or false . . . Nothing is less rational than to be able to confirm falsities; for it is . . . rational first to see whether a thing is true, and then to confirm it . . .

4973. Man has a natural mind, and a rational mind: the natural mind is in his external man; the rational mind in the internal.

4980. The Celestial Natural is good in the Natural which corresponds to the good of the Rational; that is, to the Celestial of the Spiritual from the Rational.

—². The Celestial, like the Spiritual, is predicated of both the Rational and the Natural; that is, of the internal man, which is the rational man, and of the external, which is the natural man. Ex. . . When the Divine truth . . . is received by the Rational, it is called the Spiritual in the Rational . . . and the Divine good . . . in like manner, when received by the Rational, is called the Celestial in the Rational.

4988³. This . . . is confirmed by reason with the truly rational.

5008⁶. All Divine truths can be confirmed . . . by means of rational or intellectual things with those who are illustrated.

5084^e. When, therefore, the Sensuous dominates with a man, the Rational . . . is in thick darkness, and believes all that to be rational which is concluded from what is sensuous.

5094. Into the external memory enter objects . . . through sensuous things on the one side, and objects through rational things on the other . . . The latter place themselves more within, and the former more without; and thus the Natural becomes twofold: interior, and exterior.

—². He who thinks and concludes from the interior Natural, is rational in so far as he imbibes through the Rational . . . and is called a rational natural man. . . After death (also) man is rational in so far as he had imbibed from the Rational. (Continued under NATURAL.)

—³. (Examp^s. of spiritual truths which the natural rational man can comprehend.)

5117⁴. 'A vine' = the Rational; for the Rational is from the conjunction of truth and good.

5118. It is the interior Natural which communicates with the Rational, and into which the Rational inflows . . . There is a continual influx from the Lord through the Rational into the interior Natural . . .

5119. By reciprocal influx . . . is meant that the Rational calls forth the things in the interior Natural, and, through this, those in the exterior; (that is to say) the things which are thence concluded, or as it were extracted.

5126³. From adolescence to early manhood, communication is opened between the Natural and the Rational, by his then learning the truths and goods of civil and moral life, and especially (those) of spiritual life through the hearing and reading of the Word. Then, in proportion as he imbues goods through truths . . . the Rational is opened . . . But in proportion as in subsequent age he weakens these . . . the Rational is closed up, and also the interior Natural . . . But with those who suffer themselves to be regenerated . . . the Rational is successively opened, and the interior Natural is subordinated thereto . . . This is done especially from early manhood, and progressively to . . . eternity.

5128. That sensuous things must be subject to rational things . . . is here treated of. . . The man with whom sensuous things are subject, is called rational; but he with whom they are not subject, sensuous. Whether a man be rational or sensuous, is with difficulty discerned by others; but is discerned by himself if he explores his interiors . . .

—². Indications whether a man is sensuous or rational. Enum.

—⁴. The principal indication is the life . . . which is such as is the end . . . If a man is rational, he speaks from . . . faith, and acts from charity. But if a man is not rational, he can indeed act pretendedly as if rational, and speak in like manner; but still there is nothing of life therein from the Rational; for the life of evil closes up all communication with the Rational.

—⁵. There are two things which not only (do this), but also deprive a man of the faculty of ever becoming rational: these are deceit, and profanation. Ex.

—⁶. Into this form are natural and sensuous things disposed, when the Rational has the dominion. Des. But, when the Rational is subject to sensuous things, the contrary comes to pass. Des.

5131³. In order that the end, which is love or faith, may produce the cause, which is will and thought, it must employ administering means in the rational mind. Ex.

5141. There is apperception from the Sensuous, from the interior Natural, and from the Rational. When a man is in interior thought from affection, and withdraws his mind from sensuous things and from the body, he is in rational apperception; for the things below are quiescent, and the man is almost in his spirit . . .

5145². Man's interiors are distinguished into degrees, and in every degree are terminated . . . The interior Rational constitutes the first degree, in which is the Third Heaven. The exterior Rational constitutes the second degree, in which is the Second Heaven . . .

5150. The Celestial itself, and the Spiritual itself, which inflow into Heaven from the Divine of the Lord, dwell principally in the interior Rational; for there the forms are more perfect . . . Still, they inflow also into the exterior Rational, and also into the Natural; and this both mediately and immediately; mediately, through the interior Rational. That which inflows immediately, disposes; and that which inflows mediately, is disposed.

—². The Celestial is from the Divine good, and the Spiritual is from the Divine truth . . . and when these are in the Rational, they are called the Celestial and Spiritual in the Rational; and when in the Natural, the Celestial and Spiritual in the Natural. By the Rational and the Natural is meant the man himself, in so far as he has been formed to receive the Celestial and Spiritual; by the Rational is meant his Internal, and by the Natural, his External.

5248. (Natural represented in garments; Rational in face. See GARMENT, here.)

5301. Man has two minds: the rational mind, and the natural mind. The rational mind is of the internal man . . . 7130.

5387^e. Their being without a face = that they have nothing of rational life. Ex.

5497². When he becomes a youth—juvenis, as he then matures—adolescit, if he cultivates his Rational, he thus, from the things in the interior Natural, forms reasons, which are truths still more sublime, and are as it were extracted from those in the interior Natural . . .

5688. When man is being reborn, his Rational, which is the internal human, is regenerated first . . .

5805². 'Joseph' = internal good from the Rational.

6047⁴. The Lord's Kingdom as to the conjunction of the Spiritual, the Rational, and the Scientific . . . is described by the names 'Israel,' 'Asshur,' and 'Egypt' in Is. xix. 19-25. . . For in order that a man may be a man of the Church, it is necessary for him to be spiritual, and also rational, to which the Scientific is subservient.

6055². The internal man is that which in the proper sense is called the intellectual or rational man, because it is in the light of Heaven, in which are reason and intellect.

6240. That (interior truths and goods) shall be in the Rational, which is in the Internal. Sig. For the Celestial Internal, represented by Joseph, is in the Rational.

— . What the Rational is.—The Intellectual of the internal man is called the Rational; but the Intellectual of the external man, the Natural. Thus the Rational is internal, and the Natural external; and they are most distinct . . . But a truly rational man is no other than he who is called a celestial man, and who has a perception of good, and, from good, a perception of truth: whereas he who has not this perception, but only the Knowledge that a thing is true because he has been so instructed, and thence has conscience, is not a truly rational man, but an interior natural man: those of the Spiritual Church are such; and they differ from each other as the light of the moon from that of the sun.

—². Many suppose that he is a rational man who can ratiocinate ingeniously about many things, and so join his reasonings together, that what he concludes may appear as true; but this falls even into the worst . . . This is depraved phantasy, and not the Rational. The Rational is to see and perceive inwardly that good is good, and thence that truth is truth; for their sight and perception of these things is from Heaven . . . Hence the celestial are rational; but (the spiritual) interiorly natural. The Internal Celestial, represented by Joseph, is in the Rational; whereas spiritual good, represented by Israel, is in the interior Natural; for the spiritual are represented by Israel, and the celestial by Joseph.

6311. Infernals who have become such (merely) because they have not cultivated their Rational. Des.

6376. The External of the Church . . . is in the Natural; but its Internal is in the Rational. Those in the former are in truth; and those in the latter are in good.

6434^e. That the Spiritual Church will have good from the natural man, but not from the rational. Sig. For the good of the man of the Spiritual Church is in the Natural, and goes no further; but the good of the Celestial Church is in the Rational.

6435². The good of mutual love is more interior than the good of charity, because it is from the Rational, whereas the latter is from the Natural.

6472. From Himself (immediately) the Lord inflows both into the rational things of man, which are his interior things, and into his natural things, which are his exterior ones.

6612. The more interiorly man thinks, the more extension he has; for those who think exteriorly . . . communicate solely with grosser Spirits; whereas those who think interiorly, that is, from the Rational, have communication with the Angels.

6971. That if they do not obey what is announced from the Word, instead of being a spiritual and rational man, they will become non-spiritual and non-rational. Sig. and Ex. . . For a man who is sensuous and corporeal is not rational, thus is not spiritual; for he thinks falsities and wills evils. He who does this is not rational . . . for the acknowledgment and faith of truth, and the life of good, is the veriest Spiritual in the Rational ; because these are from the Divine.

[A.] 7130. The things of the natural mind are called scientifics ; and those of the rational mind, intellectual reasons . . . The things of the natural mind are for the most part in the light of the world . . . but those of the rational mind are in the light of Heaven.

7290². The internal things of worship . . . must be implanted in freedom . . . for nothing enters into the internal man except through intellectual ideas, which are reasons ; for the ground which receives, is, there, the illustrated Rational.

7295². When (after death) they cannot receive the influx from Heaven, the Angels and good Spirits recede from them by degrees ; and, as they recede, they become less and less rational ; for to be rational is through Heaven from the Lord. Sig.

7298². As soon as any truth is presented, by manifest experience, before good Spirits, there is soon presented something opposite, which excites a doubt. In this way they can consider whether it is so, and collect reasons, and thus bring that truth into their mind rationally ; which gives the spiritual sight extension as regards that truth, even to its opposites . . .

8764. For the Rational of man is his Heaven ; and the Natural is, relatively, his earth ; for the Rational constitutes the internal man ; and the Natural, the external.

9283^e. The rational things which are from Heaven he applies to favour his concupiscences.

10225⁹. Those under twenty years . . . do not as yet discern and conclude from themselves ; consequently they cannot as yet shake off anything of what is false and evil by means of the Rational ; and they who cannot do this, are not let into combats . . .

H. 112^e. The Divine influx (then) does indeed persist . . . in the things of the world which are with man ; but [it does not persist] in his Rational.

130(k). That the light of Heaven illuminates the understanding, and therefore man is rational. Refs.

296^e. Animals cannot pervert the order of their life, because they have not the Rational.

309. Without such a Word on this Earth, the man of this Earth would have been separated from Heaven ; and, if separated from Heaven, he would no longer be rational ; for the human Rational comes forth from the influx of the light of Heaven.

355. All things in the natural memory . . . are there quiescent ; and only the rational things thence derived serve for thought and speech . . . Therefore in so far as the spirit of man has become rational in the world through Knowledges and knowledges, in so far is he rational after separation from the body.

430. Two ways lead to the rational mind : an internal one through which enter good and truth from the Lord ; and an external one through which enter evil and falsity from Hell. The rational mind itself is in the middle . . . Hence, in proportion to the light admitted from Heaven, the man is rational ; and in proportion that it is not admitted, he is not rational, however it may appear to himself.

—². The rational mind, while being formed, corresponds to the World of Spirits ; the things above it are Heaven, and the things below, Hell : the things above it are opened, and the things below it are closed . . . with those being prepared for Heaven ; but the things below it are opened, and the things above it closed . . . with those being prepared for Hell. Hence the latter can only look below themselves . . . and the former above themselves . . .

455. These things . . . can be understood by a rational man ; for he can see from the connection of causes, and from truths in their order ; but a man not rational cannot understand them . . . (for) he has closed the way of Heaven to his Rational, which however can still be opened, provided his will does not resist. That a man can understand truths, and be rational, provided he wants to be, has been shown me by much experience. Des.

—³. (For this reason) it has been conceded to me to confirm spiritual truths . . . by means of rational things ; in order that the falsities which have closed up the Rational with many, may be dispersed by rational things . . . For to confirm spiritual truths by means of rational things has been conceded to all in truths. Who ever would understand the Word from the sense of its letter, unless he saw the truths there from an illustrated Rational ?

464³. Hence in so far as a man has become rational (here) through languages and knowledges, in the same proportion he is rational after death . . . —⁵.

—⁵. Those who had been against the truths of the Church, and had thought from scientifics . . . had not cultivated their Rational, but only the faculty of ratiocinating, which faculty is in the world believed to be rationality ; but which is a faculty separated from rationality, being the faculty of confirming whatever one pleases.

—⁶. The Rational of man is like a garden and flower-bed, and also a fallow field. The memory is the soil ; true scientifics and Knowledges are the seeds ; the light and heat of Heaven cause production, and without them there is no growth. Ex.

468. How the Rational can be cultivated. — The genuine Rational consists of truths, and not of falsities. That which is from falsities is not the Rational. There are three kinds of truth : civil, moral, and spiritual. Des. . . There are three degrees of life with man. The Rational is opened to the first degree by means of civil truths ; to the second degree by means of moral truths ; and to the third degree by means of spiritual truths. But it is to be known that the Rational is not formed and opened from these by man's knowing them, but by his living according to them ; and by (this) is meant to love them from spiritual affection . . . In proportion as man loves these truths from corporeal affection, in the same proportion he does not become rational ; for he does not love them, but himself. Ex. (Thus) man becomes rational to the third degree through the spiritual love of good and truth : . . . to the second degree by the love of what is sincere and right ; and to the first degree by the love of what is just and fair . . .

469. Spirits and Angels have a memory . . . and their Rational is also cultivated by means of it, to eternity . . .

489⁴. Those who have loved knowledges, and thereby have cultivated their Rational, and have thus procured intelligence, and at the same time have acknowledged the Divine, have their pleasure in knowledges, and rational delight, turned into spiritual delight, which is that of the Knowledges of good and truth. They dwell in gardens. Des. . . As (the objects in the gardens) correspond to Divine things . . . they are always being infilled with new Knowledges, whereby their spiritual Rational is perfected.

506². (Such after death) are bereaved of rationality ; because their Rational in the world had not resided in their interiors, but in their exteriors : and yet they then appear to themselves to be wiser than others.

508³. In the second state (after death) they are devoid of rationality.

N. 25³. That the Rational of man of itself cannot perceive Divine truth. Refs. W.H.7.

33. Hence the man in evil and falsity cannot be called rational, wise, and intelligent.

C. J. 49. (Effect on the Dutch of keeping their Rational under obedience.)

S. 41^e. The light of Heaven . . . inflows into natural light . . . and illuminates the Intellectual of man, which is called the Rational, and causes him to see and acknowledge Divine truths (when he is reading the Word).

115. Therefore it is not allowable to deal with these from the Word ; but from rational lumen ; because they do not believe in the Word, but in themselves. From rational lumen make inquiry, and you will find that . . .

Life 15². It is from this gift of the understanding (of being elevated into the light of Heaven) that even an evil man can think rationally ; but the reason he is still not rational, is that the understanding does not lead the will, but the will the understanding . . . and so long as the will is not together with the understanding in Heaven, the man is not spiritual, and therefore is not rational ; for, when he is left to his will, he casts out the rational things of his understanding . . . and in their place assumes such things as agree with the love of his will ; and these he calls rational things.

W. 23². The faculty of thinking rationally, regarded in itself, is not of man, but of God with him. Upon this depends human reason in general . . .

67. By means of knowledges, man is elevated into the second degree of the natural world ; and as, from knowledges, he perfects his understanding, he is elevated into the third degree of it, and then becomes rational. The three degrees of ascent in the Spiritual World are above these natural degrees . . .

116. With every Angel there are freedom and rationality. (Continued under FREE.)

237. The natural degree increases by continuity . . . until the man reaches the highest of the understanding, which is called the Rational. But still the second degree, called the spiritual degree, is not opened thereby . . .

240. Two faculties . . . with man by which he is distinguished from beasts ; one, that he can understand what truth and good are, which is called rationality, and is the faculty of his understanding . . . For man, from his rationality, can think whatever he pleases, either with God, or against God ; with the neighbour, or against him. (Continued under FACULTY.)

247. By the influx of spiritual light into all three degrees of the mind, man is distinguished from beasts . . . The faculty of receiving spiritual light is what is meant by rationality, which every man has from the Lord, and which is not taken away from him ; for if it were, he could not be reformed. It is from this faculty, called rationality, that man can not only think, but also speak from thought . . .

254³. With such, not only is the spiritual degree closed, but also the higher region of the natural degree, which is called the rational one . . .

258. Every man is born into the faculty of understanding truths to the inmost degree . . . for the human understanding, rising up by continuity around the two higher degrees, receives the light of the wisdom of those degrees. Hence it is that man can become rational according to the elevation. If he is elevated to the third degree, he becomes rational from the third degree ; if to the second degree, he becomes rational from the second degree ; and if he is not elevated, he is rational in the first degree. It is said that he becomes rational from these degrees, because the natural degree is the general receptacle of their light.

—². The reason a man does not become rational to the greatest possible height, is that the love . . . cannot be elevated in like manner as the wisdom ; (for) it is elevated solely by shunning evils as sins, and, then, by the goods of charity, which are uses ; and therefore if the love . . . is not elevated . . . the wisdom falls down again to its love. Hence it is that (the man) is still not rational except in the ultimate degree.

—^e. (Thus) man's Rational is in appearance as of three degrees : a Rational from the Celestial ; a Rational from the Spiritual ; and a Rational from the Natural. Also, rationality, which is the faculty that can be elevated, whether it is elevated or not, is still with the man.

259. (How it is with those born without rationality.)

264. That the origin of evil is from the abuse of the faculties proper to man, called rationality and freedom. Gen.art.

266. That an evil man enjoys these two faculties equally with a good one. Ex. . . But with regard to the faculty of understanding, which is called rationality, this does not exist with man until his natural mind comes of age : in the meantime it is like seed in unripe fruit . . .

267. That an evil man abuses these faculties to confirm evils and falsities ; and a good one uses them to confirm goods and truths. Ex. From the intellectual faculty, which is called rationality . . . man derives the power of confirming whatever he pleases ; for the natural man can elevate his understanding into higher light to whatever extent he desires . . .

[W.] 330. (Hence) all created things regard the three things of man : his body, his Rational, and his Spiritual, for the sake of conjunction with the Lord ; (which cannot be) unless he is spiritual ; and he cannot be spiritual unless he is rational ; and he cannot be rational unless his body is in a sound state. These three are like a house : the body is the foundation ; the Rational is the house built on it ; the Spiritual is the things in the house ; and conjunction with the Lord is the dwelling in it . . .

332. The uses for perfecting the Rational are all things which teach (these things) and are called knowledges and studies . . . These perfect the Rational in proportion as they are uses in a higher degree . . .

334. The Angels (also) have a body, a Rational, and a Spiritual . . .

336². Uses from the Lord are all things which perfect man's Rational . . . But evil uses are all things which destroy the Rational.

404². Evident to everyone who will survey it from rational view . . . Every man has the faculty of understanding truth, which is called rationality.

413. Man is able to perceive the arcana of wisdom when he hears them. This is the faculty, called rationality, which every man has from creation. By this faculty, which is the faculty of understanding things interiorly, and of concluding about what is just and fair, and good and true, man is distinguished from beasts.

416. The man who is in natural and at the same time in spiritual love, is a rational man. But he who is in natural love alone can think rationally just like a spiritual man, yet is not a rational man. Ex.

425. That there still remains the faculty of understanding, which is called rationality . . . Gen.art.

— . To know and understand these means (by which man can come to good) is from rationality . . .

—². Those who believe that spiritual things transcend the understanding . . . cannot but deny the faculty called rationality . . .

—³. But it is to be well known that both freedom and rationality are not man's, but are the Lord's with man ; and that they cannot be appropriated to man as his.

P. 32². Man comes into the natural degree when born, and may augment this degree with himself by continuity even until he becomes rational ; he comes into the second degree if he lives according to . . . Divine truths . . .

73. That man has reason and freedom, or rationality and liberty ; and that these two faculties are from the Lord with man. Gen.art.

—⁵. Rational freedom. (See FREE, here.)

74. See FREE, here. 75. —³. 85. 86. 96. —². —⁴. —⁵. 97. 98. —². —⁵. —⁶. 99. 104^e.

123^e. 130. 138. 139. 140. 141. 142. 144. 145. 147^e. 148. 176. 179. 183². 204^e. 210. 219³. 227⁵. 228². 281³. 285. 321³. 328⁶.

76. Everyone from rationality not veiled over can see that . . . 77.

83³. In their Own thought these are insane ; yet in the world they can speak and act rationally ; for they are men, and therefore have rationality and freedom . . .

147. As soon as man acknowledges his evils to be sins against God . . . and therefore wills to desist from them, the Lord opens the spiritual mind . . . and enters into the Rational ; and, from it, disposes into order those things in the Natural which are contrary to order. This is what appears to man as combat . . .

154³. The Rational of those who are in the appearance, and at the same time in the Truth, is a spiritual Rational ; whereas the Rational of those who are in the appearance, and not at the same time in the Truth, is a natural Rational. (Shown by a comparison.)

167. Those in Hell have the faculty of understanding, which is called rationality ; and rationality itself is from spiritual light, and not a whit from natural light ; and the spiritual light which they have from rationality, is turned into infernal light . . .

168². A rational man, from interior illustration from the Lord, at once perceives whether many things are true or not, as soon as he hears them. Examps.

—⁵. In the Spiritual World (such) are called rational animals—pecudes, because they have rationality in potency.

170. He is admitted into a Society . . . where his interior rationality is opened ; from which he sees the quality of his faith, etc.

233¹¹. Self-love . . . adulterates goods and falsifies truths by the abuse of the rationality which every man has from the Lord . . .

R. 90³. Through his rationality he comes into the conceit of Own intelligence. Sig.

148. (That they shall overcome in themselves evils) through truths from the sense of the letter, and at the same time through rational things from natural lumen. Sig. and Ex.

198. ('The Laodiceans') believe when they are in their sensuous Natural, but not when in their rational Natural.

444. See EUPHRATES, here.

544. That (the doctrine of the New Church) will convince through truths from the sense of the letter, and at the same time through rational things from natural lumen. Sig. and Ex. 828, Sig.

564. That (these ratiocinations) fall to nothing before the spiritual truths rationally understood, which the 'Michaels' of the New Church adduce. Sig. and Ex.

765². Every man, so long as he lives in the world, has rationality, that is, the faculty of understanding truth : this faculty remains with every man after death. But those who, from the love of self and the conceit of Own intelligence, have imbued the falsities of religion here, after death do not want to understand truth ; and not to want is the same as not to be able.

911^e. The Word is such in the sense of the letter, that the more a man is illustrated by the influx of the light of Heaven, the more he sees truths from their connection and form; and the more he thus sees them, the more interiorly is his Rational opened; for the Rational is the receptacle itself of the light of Heaven.

936³. In the Rational there is the perception of truth in some form, which the man himself does not see in thought. (Continued under RATIONAL TRUTH.)

M. 42². The Angels cried to me, Take care lest the coruscation from our Heaven . . . penetrate interiorly: it would indeed illustrate the higher ideas of your understanding . . . but these are ineffable in the world: therefore receive the things you will hear rationaly, and so set them forth to the understanding.

90³. The manners (of the male) all partake of the predominance of the understanding; whence it is, that the acts of his life . . . are rational; and if they are not so, he wants them to appear so. Masculine rationality is also conspicuous in all his virtue.

102. Man is born corporeal; and, as the mind is opened proximately above the body, so he becomes rational; and as this Rational is purified, and as it were decanted of the fallacies which inflow from the senses of the body, and of the concupiscences which inflow from the allurements of the flesh, so is the Rational opened; and this is effected solely by means of wisdom; and, when the interiors of the rational mind have been opened, the man becomes a form of wisdom; and this is the receptacle of love truly conjugal. The wisdom which makes this form, and receives this love, is wisdom rational and at the same time moral. Rational wisdom regards the truths and goods which appear interiorly in man, not as his own, but as flowing in from the Lord; and moral wisdom shuns evils and falsities . . . especially lasciviousnesses, which contaminate its conjugal love.

145. Man becomes spiritual in the proportion in which his Rational, which is the middle between Heaven and the world, begins to derive a soul from the influx from Heaven . . .

163. That the conjunction of the wife with the rational wisdom of the husband is effected from within; but with his moral wisdom from without. Ex.

— The things of rational wisdom enum.

168. Neither is the rational wisdom of the man possible with the wife. Ex.

178^e. These Spirits were natural rational, and not spiritual rational.

233⁵. All above the Rational (with this confirmer) was closed, and only that below the Rational was open: above the Rational is heavenly light; and below the Rational is natural light; and this light . . . can confirm whatever it pleases.

269. From this folly they are remitted by turns into the Rational, which with them is in externals; in which state they see . . . their insanity; but still they are very desirous to get out of their rational state into their insane one . . .

—⁶. I asked the Angels, Whence have devils such rationality (as this one had manifested)? They said, It is from the glory of the love of self. Ex. . . Hence even atheists . . . enjoy a more lofty rationality than many others; but only when in the thought of their understanding, and not when in the affection of the will.

293⁴. The truths of the Church, whence is spiritual rationality.

408. To think and conclude from ends and causes, is to do so from the clearly seen goods and truths in the higher region of the mind to the effects in the lower: human rationality itself is such from creation.

436. In the Spiritual World (the conjugal and the scortatory spheres) meet in the World of Spirits; but in the natural world they meet in the rational plane with man, which, also, is the middle between Heaven and Hell; for from above there inflows into it the marriage of good and truth, and from below that of evil and falsity . . . Hence the human Rational can turn to either side, and receive the influx; if to good, he receives that from above, and then the Rational is formed more and more for the reception of Heaven; but if to evil, he receives the influx from below, and then his Rational is formed more and more for the reception of Hell.

498. That still (these adulterers) enjoy human rationality like others. Ex.

— Therefore such are not rational except in a state removed from the love of the will.

499. That they use this rationality when in externals; but abuse it when in internals. Ex.

I. 12. That spiritual things thus clothed in man enable him to live rational and moral; thus spiritually natural. Gen.art.

15⁸. The hallucination that beasts enjoy rationality.

T. 71². God created man's rational mind according to the order of the whole Spiritual World . . .

200^e. That at the time of the Lord's Advent, the Scientific, the Rational, and the Spiritual should be made a one, and that the Scientific should serve the Rational, and both the Spiritual. Sig.

357². Has man not a rational mind from which he can lead himself to act for this or that end?

384. That such have no faith . . . however rationaly they may speak, teach, and write. Ex.

402¹³. Through sensuous things, man communicates with the world; and through the rational things above them with Heaven.

564². Every man rightly educated is rational and moral; but there are two ways to rationality; one from the world; the other from Heaven. He who has become rational and moral from the world (only), is not rational and moral except in mouth and gesture; and, within is a wild beast . . . But he who is rational and moral from Heaven also, is truly rational and moral. Ex. . . Therefore, there is a spiritual rational and moral man, and also a merely natural rational and moral one; but, in the world, the one is not distinguishable from the other . . . (These contrasted. 565.) E.208³.

582. Say, from rational thought . . .

758^e. The natural Rational can confirm whatever it likes . . . But the spiritual Rational—in which are they who look to the Lord, and from Him are in the love of truth—is wholly different.

[T.] 774. The Lord's perpetual presence (with every man) effects that man becomes rational, and that he can become spiritual. This is effected by the light which proceeds from the Lord as a Sun . . . which man receives in the understanding; and which light is Truth, through which he has rationality.

808^e. Still, the rationality (of the English) is quickened by these studies (of their youth); and sparkles with light, from which they form beautiful images . . .

810. These (English) preachers are deprived of the priesthood, because they do not frame their sermons from the Word, but from their own rational lumen, and thus from their Own spirit. Ex.

Ad. 643². From the soul there flows man's second faculty, which is called the rational mind, to which belong to understand and to will; hence the will and the understanding are attributed to this mind. This faculty . . . is not the same as the soul proper; but is a faculty of which none appears in an infant; but which grows and is perfected, that is, is born, in the course of time . . . To this succeeds another faculty, to be called the lower mind, which man has in common with brutes . . . 923. 927^e. (See also under MIND—mens, at Ad. 88, et seq.)

965. The rational mind itself also has its nutriments, and is continually fed with foods; first that it may come forth, and then that it may subsist. These foods are the Knowledges of Things, which the mind itself longs for . . .

D. 372. That the Rational and Intellectual of man can be diminished, and also taken away . . . according to the good-pleasure of God Messiah.

— For the Rational and Intellectual is the gift of God Messiah alone; and, when it is taken away, the Souls are devils, and act solely from natural instinct, and are as it were in sleep; and, when it is restored to them, they know not but that they have been in sleep. When the Intellectual has been taken away, they act according to their radical evil . . .

1053. That rational things, etc. ought to be obsequious to more interior things.

1265. An evil Spirit who was deprived of his rationality. 1269. 1276.

4143^e. (Thus) rational Spirits cannot be together with scientific Spirits . . .

4279^e. (Evil Spirits can speak good things) when they are bereaved of rationality, which often [happens].

4851. (Itching of the anus caused by Spirits who) in the world had believed themselves rational—yet were not—and had been proud on that account.

5587. The celestial . . . never think . . . about such things as are of reason, or rational things . . . Such things as are rational, which they hear, they never utter and are not able to utter, because they have no memory for them other than that they know and perceive them when others are speaking about them; and they then say, or think, Yea, yea; or, Nay, nay.

5589a. In like manner therefore do those speak in the other life who are rational, or who speak from reason; and those who speak only from the memory of the Thing without thought of their own.

5597. When the celestial hear . . . rational things, they see them outside of themselves; thus from others; but not within themselves, as the spiritual do.

5672. Man cannot be illustrated by a living voice from Heaven; thus it does not enter into his Rational, but only into his memory.

5785. That scientific effect nothing, if the Rational has not been cultivated thereby. Ex.

— Leeuwenhoek led a miserable life there, because he had only made experiments . . . but had not cultivated the Rational by means of them . . . He is stupid. The Angels said that provided a man cultivates the Rational in some way, he can be among such (there) as have some delight of social intercourse; because it is the Rational which speaks there, and not the Natural as to the Scientific, for that memory is closed. If he is in good, and in the affection of truth, his Rational is then perfected.

5832². (Thus) the Rational is destroyed with those who have been adulterers from principle and from life.

6053. Deceit . . . enters the interiors of man, even into the Rational, which is the inmost Natural, and there closes up tightly the spiritual mind.

D. Min. 4545. The first plane (as to conscience) is the inmost of the Rational: it belongs to perception, thus to love to the Lord . . . The second plane is the middle of the Rational, and belongs to the conscience of good and truth . . .

4563. That evil Spirits have rationality. Ex.

4578. From all these (useful sciences) as means, everyone can become rational. But there are some which . . . destroy the Rational. (Both kinds enum.)

4644^e. From perception in civil and moral things, men are called rational; from the perception of good, celestial; and of truth, spiritual; and they are eminently rational.

E. 208³. The affection of spiritual truth joined to these Knowledges makes the Rational of man, and illustrates it according to the quality of the truth conjoined with good, and according to the quality of the conjunction.

313¹⁰. When the inmost is spiritual, which is truth from good, the Rational, which is thence, is spiritual too . . . Sig.

388²⁹. That all the Rational of man is born through scientifics. Sig.

569⁶. The Euphrates = the Rational, because through the Rational, man is introduced into the Church. By the Rational is meant the thought of the natural man from Knowledges and knowledges; for a man who is imbued with knowledges can see Things in a series; from primes and mediates, the ultimate, which is called the conclusion; consequently, he can analytically dispose, discuss, separate, conjoin, and at last conclude Things, even to the ulterior end; and at last to the ultimate, which is the use which he loves. This, then, is the Rational, which is given to every man according to uses, which are the ends which he loves. As everyone's Rational is according to the uses of his love, therefore it is the interior thought of the natural man from the influx of the light of Heaven; and as, through rational thought, man is introduced into spiritual thought, and is a Church, therefore by this river is signified the Rational which introduces.

—7. It is one thing to be rational, and another to be spiritual. Every spiritual man is also rational; but a rational man is not always spiritual. The reason is that the Rational, that is, the thought thereof, is in the natural man; whereas the Spiritual is above the Rational, and, through the Rational, passes into the Natural, into the Knowledges and scientifics of its memory.

—8. But it is to be known, that the Rational does not introduce anyone into the Spiritual, but it is so said because it so appears. The Spiritual, however, inflows into the Natural by the medium of the Rational, and thus introduces; for the Spiritual is the inflowing Divine, being the light of Heaven. . . . As it is contrary to Divine order for man to enter into the Spiritual through his Rational, therefore in the Spiritual World there are Angel guards to prevent this being done. Sig.

—10. That 'the Euphrates'=the Rational through which there is a way from the spiritual man into the natural. Ill.

— . The first boundary (of the Church) is the Scientific which is of the natural man; the second boundary is the Rational which is of the thought. To these two, the Spiritual . . . extends itself. Both the Scientific and the Rational are in the natural man; one limit—finis—of which is the Scientific and Cognitive; and the other is the Intuitive and Cogitative; and into these limits the spiritual man inflows when it inflows into the natural man. —12.

—15. By ratiocination, is meant thought and argumentation from fallacies and falsities; and by the Rational is meant thought and argumentation from knowledges and truths. For all the Rational is cultivated by means of knowledges, and is formed by means of truths; and therefore he is called a rational man who is led by truths . . .

585¹³. In a word, the Rational is the middle between the Spiritual and the Natural; and the Spiritual which regenerates, inflows through the Rational into the Natural . . . 654⁶².

638¹¹. 'Lebanon'=rationality, from which are intelligence and wisdom.

650²⁷. Elevation even to the interior Rational which is from the Spiritual. Sig.

654¹². The Church . . . is terminated in the natural man, namely, in its Rational and Scientific; for the Rational is in the interior natural man; for it is its understanding . . . and the Rational is born through scientifics; for in these it sees its conclusions as in a mirror, and confirms itself thereby, but yet from the Spiritual; for without this, man has no Rational, nor scientific truth; but instead of a Rational he has ratiocination; and instead of scientific truth, scientific falsity. These two, therefore, constitute the boundaries of the Spiritual Church, which is signified by the Land of Canaan.

—15. For without the instruction of the natural man by means of scientifics . . . man cannot become rational; and, if he is not rational, he cannot become spiritual; for the Rational conjoins itself on the one side with the Spiritual, that is, with Heaven; and on the other side with the Natural, that is, with the world.

—16. Through truths scientifically and naturally understood, everyone procures for himself a Rational, into which the Spiritual can inflow and operate; for man draws in the light of Heaven through the Rational, which is his understanding; and, through the Rational illustrated by the Spiritual, he looks into Knowledges and scientifics, and chooses from them those which agree with the genuine truths and goods of Heaven and the Church; and rejects those which disagree. Thus does man found the Church with himself. Sig.

—33. As every man of the Church has a Spiritual, a Rational, and a Natural, Solomon built three houses . . . the house of the forest of Lebanon for the Rational; for a cedar, and thence Lebanon=the Rational. .

—63. Man first enriches his memory with knowledges; afterwards, by means of these, he cultivates his understanding; and, finally, his will. The memory is of the natural man; the understanding is of the rational; and the will is of the spiritual. This is the way of the reformation and regeneration of man. Rep.

701. In proportion as man receives this light (from the Lord), in the same proportion he becomes rational . . .

708². Those who receive the light of intelligence from the Lord as a Sun, are those with whom the Intellectual and its Rational have been opened; and who thence from the spiritual affection of truth have thought rationally about matters of belief. But those who receive light from the Lord as a Moon, are those with whom the Intellectual and Rational has not been interiorly opened; but only the Natural, and thence have thought from the memory about matters of belief . . .

714². Every man is born sensuous . . . and by life in the world becomes natural more and more interiorly; that is, rational, according to the moral and civil life, and the lumen thence acquired.

730³¹. Every man is born natural, and lives natural, until he becomes rational; and, when he has become rational, he can be led by the Lord, and become spiritual . . .

739⁴. In the First Heaven are those with whom the interior natural man, which is also called the rational man, has been opened; for he, if he is truly rational, receives influx from the Lord through Heaven . . .

—11. That natural affection seduced the Rational. Sig. (by Eve's act).

798⁴. The Rational is the middle between the spiritual mind and the natural mind.

846². The Rational is the middle between the Spiritual and the Natural, and receives spiritual light, which it transmits into the Natural and illustrates it . . .

[E.] 941². Man is illustrated in the Rational; for this is proximately subject to the Spiritual Internal; and receives light from Heaven, and transmits it into the Natural purified from evils, and infills it with Knowledges of truth and good, also adapting thereto the knowledges which are from the world . . . Hence man has the Rational, and also understanding. Man has (no) Rational and understanding, before his Natural has been purified from evils; for understanding is to see the truths of the Church from the light of Heaven . . .

995. All the intelligence of the natural man is from his Rational; for the Rational is the middle between the Spiritual and the Natural; and (therefore) first receives the influx of the Spiritual World, and transfers it into the natural world. Hence it is that before the spiritual mind . . . can be opened . . . the Rational must be cultivated, which is done by means of scientifics, which are natural and moral truths; and by means of Knowledges of truth and good from the Word. By means of these, the rational mind is opened from below; but, as soon as the spiritual mind has been opened, and there is influx thence, the rational mind is opened above; and thus the Rational, as an intermediate, furnishes the passage; and then, through it, the natural mind, in which are scientifics and Knowledges, is subordinated to the spiritual mind.

996. Here is described the state of man as to the Rational. It is the Rational from which man can see and understand truths; and, in proportion as he can see them, in the same proportion the falsities of evil do not oppose. . . The falsities of evil enter . . . in man's second and third age, when he no longer thinks from the memory alone, but from his own understanding; for the Rational, in which the understanding is, is opened successively as man becomes adolescent . . . (and then) the rational sight is perverted through ratiocinations . . . Sig.

1056². Man has a spiritual mind, a rational mind, a natural mind, and a sensuous mind. . . By his spiritual mind he is in Heaven . . . by his natural mind he is in the world . . . and the Heaven with him communicates with the world in him by means of the rational mind . . . The sensuous mind is first opened; then the natural mind; and, as he studies to become intelligent, the rational mind . . . The rational mind serves for conjunction, as the neck does for the head . . .

1104³. (They suppose) that the Lord's rational soul was from the mother alone; when yet every man is rational from the soul which is from the father. Ath. 46. 59. 101.

1147. The Natural is a trine: the Rational, the Natural, and the Sensuous; the Rational being the highest there . . . The genuine Rational is from influx from the Spiritual World; the Sensuous from influx from the natural world; and the middle Natural is either rational or sensuous. (From this) men are either rational, sensuous, or intermediate . . . those who think, judge and conclude well from reason, are rational, and they think with elevation above material things . . . (In respect to the Word) the rational imbibe from the sense of the letter such things as are of doctrine . . .

In the Spiritual World . . . the highest ones are the rational.

1210³. That there are three degrees of spiritual things in nature, may be evident from man's natural mind, and from its rationality and sensuousity: rational men are in the first degree of it . . .

1220². As the naturalism which has inundated the Church can be shaken off only by means of rational things, whereby a man can see that a thing is so . . .

J.(Post.) 131. (These gentiles) at first appear as if destitute of rationality . . .

230. Such (as have lived evilly) appear (after death) as if completely bereaved of rationality, and yet they believe themselves to be the wisest of all. They are allowed to return by turns into their Rational which they had in the world; (but) they want to be insane, and are therefore sent into the Hells. (Their lot there des.)

De Verbo 3⁴. (The ineffable things said by the Angels of the highest and middle Heavens) can be described in the words of natural language, even to rational apprehension; (for) there are no Divine arcana which cannot be perceived and expressed naturally, although generally and imperfectly; and those who, from the affliction of truth, perceive such things naturally with their rational understanding, when they become Spirits, can perceive and speak the same spiritually; and, when they become Angels, in a celestial manner; but no others.

—⁶. The light of the world alone cannot present any natural or rational lumen; but the light of the world from the light of Heaven presents it. Ex.

D. Wis. vii. 4². If the will and understanding do not act together, there is not any rational operation.

5 M. I. See NATURAL, here.

— . The merely natural can think, confirm, understand, and teach truths when in company. They have this because rationality is humanity itself: through it, man is man, and is distinguished from beasts. But the rationality with satans is solely in externals; and is null in internals, because in internals there reigns the cupidity of adulterating the goods, and falsifying the truths, of the Church; and this cupidity inflows into their rationality, and darkens its light, so that they see nothing but Falsities in place of Truths.

—¹². Unless these fatuities were dissipated . . . there would be closed to them the Rational which is above the memory . . . and then they would become animals, with the sole difference that they could think from the external senses; and, from this thought alone, speak.

Rational good. Bonum rationale.

Rational, Good of the. Bonum rationalis.

Rational as to good. Rationale quoad bonum.

A. 1949². Rational truth separated from rational good. Des.

1950². Rational good never fights, however attacked, because it is mild, gentle, patient, and yielding . . . yet it conquers everybody. It never even thinks about fighting, nor glories in victory . . .

2171. The Lord's rational good conjoined with His truth. Sig. and Ex.

2181. The conjunction of natural good with rational good. Sig. and Ex.

— . Rational good must be made conformable with natural good so as to make a one ; (otherwise) Divine perception is impossible.

2204. That rational good . . . also would put off the human. Sig. and Ex.

— . Human rational good has in it much from worldly delights . . .

2524. See RATIONAL, here. 3030. 3209². 3573. 3579. 3677. 4038³.

2566. Enriched with rational goods and natural goods. Sig.

2576⁴. 'The veil' = the proximate and inmost appearances of rational good and truth, in which are the Angels of the Third Heaven.

3141. The Divine good in the Rational (Isaac) was born (from the Divine truth itself conjoined with the Divine good); and was not good separated from truth, but was Divine good with Divine truth; and both together are called good in the Rational to which was to be conjoined truth from the natural man (Rebekah).

3194. 3195.

3200. In these two verses is described the state of rational good, when it is in expectation of truth, with which it is to be conjoined. These states exist continually . . .

3210. That rational good brought with it the truth into the sanctuary of truth. Sig. and Ex.

3211. Between rational good, and the truth called forth from the Natural . . . there is not a marriage, but a covenant. Sig. and Ex.

3299. The Natural as to good is conceived from the good of the Rational as a father; and as to truth, is conceived from the truth of the Rational as a mother.

3314. That the Divine good of the Rational loved the good which pertained to the Natural, and that the Divine truth of the Divine Rational loved the truth which pertained to the Natural. Sig. and Ex. (Continued under INFLUX.) Hence there is a closer conjunction of the good of the Rational with the good of the Natural, than with its truth; and of the truth of the Rational with the truth of the Natural, than with its good. Sig.

3387². Therefore, where there are no truths . . . there is no rational or human good, consequently, no spiritual life.

3408. Increase as to rational good, and as to natural good. Sig. and Ex.

3527. With those not hypocrites, rational good appears in the face from a certain fire of life; and rational truth from the light of this fire.

3539³. For in this state rational truth is not so well conjoined with rational good . . .

3563². The good of the Natural comes forth solely from . . . the good of the Rational . . . and therefore the truth of the Natural also is thence. (Continued under INFLUX.)

3570. That the good of the Rational conjoins with itself good first, and truth afterwards, and this through the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

—³. Ends of good . . . are what is called the Rational as to good, or the good of the Rational. (Thus) such as is the Rational as to good, such is the Natural which invests it.

3573³. When the state is such, the Rational as to good conjoins itself immediately with the good of the Natural; and, through this, with its truths; and also mediately, through truth conjoined with itself in the Rational, with the truth of the Natural; and, through this, with the good there. Thus the conjunction becomes indissoluble.

3575². For (the truth of good) could not be produced by immediate influx from the good of the Rational, unless at the same time by mediate, that is, through the truth of the Rational . . .

3576. That the good of the Rational conjoined itself inmost with the good of the Natural; and, through the good there, with the truth. Sig. and Ex.

3616. (After the conjunction) the good of the Rational inflows immediately into the good of the Natural; and, through the good, into the truth of it; and also mediately, through the truth of the Rational into the truth of the Natural; and, through this, into the good there. Sig.

3660². See NATURAL GOOD, here.

3665⁴. Some of these Knowledges inflow immediately through the good of the Rational . . .

3677. All the goods and truths in the natural man are conceived and born . . . of the good of the Rational as a father, and of the truth of the Rational as a mother.

4505. Good rational and natural destroyed. Sig.

5117⁴. 'No grapes in the vine' = no interior or rational good.

—⁵. 'Grapes in the desert' = rational good not yet made spiritual.

E. 1146. Rational truths and goods profaned. Sig. and Ex.

Rational truth. Verum rationale.

Rational, Truth of the. Verum rationalis.

A. 628^e. A kind of rational truth . . . remained with those called 'Noah,' and therefore they could be regenerated. 635.

671. With (an unregenerate man) there can be rational and scientific truths; but they are not alive.

1495. When man is being instructed, the progression is from scientifics to rational truths; then to intellectual truths, and finally to celestial truths. If the progression is made from scientifics and rational truths to celestial truths, without the media of intellectual truths, the Celestial is violated: because there can be no connection of rational truths, which are from scientifics, with celestial truths, except through intellectual truths. Ex.

1496². Scientific truth is one thing; rational truth another; and intellectual truth another. They succeed one another. Scientific truth is of knowledge; rational truth is scientific truth confirmed by reason; intellectual truth is conjoined with the internal perception that it is so.

[A.] 1895. Rational truth is born from knowledges and Knowledges vivified through the affection which corresponds to them.

1904³. See INTELLECTUAL TRUTH, here.

1949. 'A wild-ass man'=rational truth; (for) the wild-ass=not the Rational in its complex, but only rational truth. The Rational consists of good and truth . . . rational truth is that which is signified by the wild-ass; and this is what is represented by Ishmael, and is what is here described.

—². No one can believe that rational truth, separated from rational good, is such . . . Whether you say rational truth, or the man whose Rational is such, it is the same. . . He is a morose man, will bear nothing, is against all, looks upon everyone as in falsity, is ready to rebuke, to chastise, and to punish; he has no pity; he does not apply himself to others, and study to bend their minds; for he regards everything from truth, and nothing from good. (Continued under ISHMAEL. 1950. 1951. 1959. 1964.)

2078. That others, who are rational from truth, should not perish. Sig. and Ex.

— . See RATIONAL, here. 2524. 3368³. 3573.

2139. That the human rational truth with the Lord did not perceive this; thus did not believe it. Tr.

2171. See RATIONAL GOOD, here. 2576⁴. 3314. 3539³. 3573³. 3616. 3677.

2189. That rational truth did not then appear, because it was in rational good. Sig. and Ex.

2195. That rational truth was then near to what is holy. Sig. and Ex.

2196². The reason merely human rational truth, then with the Lord, was separated from Him when He had conjoined Himself with the Divine, was because human rational truth does not apprehend Divine things, because these are above the sphere of its understanding; for this truth communicates with the scientifics in the natural man, and, in proportion as, from these, it views the things which are above itself, it does not acknowledge them; for this truth is in appearances, which it cannot put off. Examps.

2203. That the affection of this human rational truth was not to change its state. Sig. and Ex.

—². As rational truth is such, it is excused, and is permitted to be in appearances, and to have delectation in them.

2208. The rational truth represented by Sarah could not comprehend this. 2217^e.

2215. That human rational truth wanted to excuse itself. Sig. and Ex.

2362. 'A man-vir'=rational truth.

2503. With every man of the Church there are rational truths, and scientific truths: rational truths are interior; scientific truths are exterior. These (two kinds of truths) are distinct from each other exactly as are the two memories; from which it follows that there are also two affections of truth . . . Sig.

2508. 'She is my sister'=rational truth; for 'a sister'=intellectual rational truth. Ex.

2554. Although Divine good is united (by marriage) solely to Divine truth, still it inflows into lower truths, and conjoins itself with them . . . for it inflows into rational truths, which are only appearances of truth, and conjoins itself with these; (otherwise) no man could be saved. That the Divine good might be able to be conjoined with these . . . was the cause of the Lord's coming into the world . . .

2562. That it should be said that rational truth was adjoined to celestial good. Sig. 2563.

2567. Enriched with rational truths and natural truths. Sig. and Ex.

2575. An infinite abundance of rational truth adjoined to good. Sig. and Ex.

— . 'Silver'=rational truth.

— . Celestial good adjoined to rational truth, as a brother to a sister.

2576. That rational truths are like a covering to spiritual truths. Sig. and Ex.

—⁷. 'Hooks of silver'=rational truths which derive their origin immediately from scientifics.

2781². Rational truth is signified by 'a mule.' —⁷.

—⁵. 'A son of a she-ass'=rational truth.

—⁷. 'A she-mule'=the affection of rational truth.

2814. The truth Divine in the Human which underwent temptation . . . is not the Divine truth itself . . . but is rational truth, such as the Angels have, consisting in appearances of truth, and is what is called 'the Son of Man,' but before the glorification.

3074. There is here described in a summary, the process by which, through scientifics, truth appears, and is elevated by them out of the natural man into the rational, and becomes rational truth, in the Lord, Divine; namely, that it is effected through the influx of the Divine love into the Human, from which there is an affection of truth in which is innocence. From such influx the scientifics . . . were illustrated, and the truths became manifest, which were to be elevated into the Rational, and there conjoined with the good of the Divine love. Des. more particularly in what follows.

3271. The gentiles have not the truth of faith, but rational and natural truth.

3286. When the Divine Natural is not yet, the truth of the Rational is 'barren.' Ex.

—³. Afterwards, through rational truths, the Natural is reduced to obedience.

3299². The Natural as to truth is conceived from the truth of the Rational as a mother.

3369. Instruction in rational truths. Sig. and Ex.

3386. Isaac's 'sister'=rational truth. By rational truth is meant that which appears as true according to the apprehension, or before the Rational.

3394. That if it was Divine truth, it was not rational truth. Sig. (Continued under RATIONAL.)

3398. As by 'sister' is signified rational truth, and by 'wife,' Divine truth, this was called rational truth

(‘sister’) lest Divine truth (his wife, Rebekah) should be adulterated, and thus profaned. Ex.

3563². See INFLUX, here.

3665⁴. Some (of these Knowledges) inflow mediately through the truth of the Rational into the truth of the Natural . . .

3848². The conjunction of good with the affection of internal truth (Jacob with Rachel) first takes place, when the good of the Natural is being conjoined with rational truth, and, through this, with rational good. Rep.

4038³. Rational truths defined. See RATIONAL, here.

4341². ‘The men-vir’ (who came with Esau)=the rational truths which have been conjoined with good when it inflows into the Natural.

6376. Truth from the Rational for the Internal Church. Sig. and Ex.

6727. ‘The sister’ (of Moses)=rational truth; thus the truth of the Church; for this truth is rational truth. 6739.

R. 936. ‘The leaves of the tree for the healing of the nations’=the derivative rational truths, through which those in evils and falsities are brought to think sanely, and live becomingly.

— (These) cannot be healed through the Word, because they do not read it; but if they have strong judgment, they can be healed by means of rational truths.

—³. Rational truths are the things which proximately receive spiritual truths; for man’s Rational is the first receptacle of spiritual truths; for in man’s Rational is the perception of truth in some form, which the man himself does not see in thought, as he does the things which are beneath the Rational in the lower thought.

—^e. Rational truths are also signified by ‘leaves’ in (the following places). Ill. But according to the species of the trees. The leaves of the olive and vine=rational truths from celestial and spiritual light; those of the fig, rational truths from natural light; and those of the fir, poplar, oak, pine, rational truths from sensuous light.

E. 790⁹. The things in the natural mind from the spiritual are called rational truths, moral truths, natural truths; and, in general, scientific truths.

1146². ‘Ivory’=rational truth . . . which is the most excellent truth of the natural man. Ex. and Ill.

Ravage. Depopulari.

Laying waste, A. Depopulatio.

A. 6405. ‘A troop shall ravage him’ (Gen. xlix. 19)=that works without judgment will drive away from the truth. Ex.

6406. ‘He shall ravage the heel’ (id.)=inordination thence in the Natural. Ex.

10227⁴. ‘To ravage the treasures and the wealth of the peoples’ (Is. x. 13)=to destroy the truths of intelligence and wisdom.

F. 67^e. That thus all things of the worship of the Lord and of His Church are ravaged. Sig.

M. 454. These lusts ravage conjugal love . . .

T. 117. Plunder the goods of the inhabitants.

588. He would plunder and slaughter all who do not favour him.

E. 403. Which the natural man has laid waste by his ratiocinations.

—³. A laying waste by the falsities of evil. Sig.

Rave. See under DELIRIUM.

Raven. Corvus.

A. 865. ‘He sent forth a raven, and it went forth in going and returning’ (Gen. viii. 7)=that Falsities still made disturbance. Ex.

866. That ‘a raven’=Falsities . . . gross and dense, because of their black colour. Ill.

5044⁷. ‘The raven,’ etc. (Is. xxxiv. 11)=kinds of falsity which come forth when the Divine truths in the Word are made of no account.

9439. It would be easier to make a raven white.

P. 318⁴. How it may be confirmed that a raven is white. M. 233⁴. T. 334⁵. E. 824².

D. 4336. Like ravens to a carcass. 4337^e.

E. 650¹³. ‘The sons of a raven’ (Ps. cxlvii. 9)=natural men who are in darksome lumen from fallacies; as has been the case with many of the gentiles; and therefore it is said that ‘He gives to the sons of a raven which cry [to Him].’

1100²². ‘Ravens,’ when mentioned in the Word, =one of the many kinds of falsities.

Ravish. Stuprare.

Debauching, Dishonour. Stuprum.

A. 2754. Adulterers who move young and beautiful wives to dishonour.

8902⁵. ‘Their wives shall be ravished’ (Is. xiii. 16)=that the goods of truth will be perverted by the evils of falsity.

9348⁴. ‘To ravish the widows’ (Ezek. xix. 7)=to pervert the goods which desire truth. That ‘to ravish’=to pervert. Refs. E. 601¹³.

H. 462a⁴. Those who have seduced virgins to dishonour, called to Judgment. Des.

P. 144². The understanding, which is then the harlot of the will, has become so stupid from debauchery with the will . . .

M. 444a. Lust with . . . a virgin is (not fornication, but) a debauching.

453. Debauching or defloration (worse than fornication).

459⁵. Debauchings, which are violations of virgins, (are guarded against by this lesser evil).

504². This wickedness (defloration), which is a debauching (with such) remains inrooted.

D. 2711. Puellas parvas stuprandi. (See INFANT, here.)

E. 730¹⁸. The adulteration and falsification of the Word, is described by 'to be debauched' (Jer.iii.2).

863¹⁶. The debauching of a virgin=the falsification of Divine truth . . .

1006². The excrementitious Hells are for those to whom debauchings of virgins have been deliciousnesses.

Raw. Crudus.

A. 7856. 'Raw' (Ex.xii.9)=devoid of the good of love. Ex.

Ray. Radius.

Radiant. Radiosus.

See RADIATE.

A. 854. Truths of faith are like rays of light ; love being the flame.

1042². From the modification of the inflowing rays of light, colours come forth . . . In spiritual things . . . the blackness is the proprium, which absorbs and extinguishes the rays of light ; but the whiteness is the truth and good which man supposes he does from himself, which reflects and rejects the rays of light. The rays of light which fall upon these, and as it were modify them, are from the Lord . . . for the rays of spiritual light are from no other source.

1525. Rays of golden flame for those in affections of good ; and rays of silver light for those in affections of truth.

1623. Every colour consists of innumerable rays ; so that myriads constitute one General which is perceptible —e.

1861^e. His hatred and its filth are the recipients of the rays of good and truth from the Lord, which rays of good and truth they turn into fire, smoke, and thick darkness.

1869^e. The rays of the internal sight are ideas.

3167². The goods in the natural man receive the heat of the light of Heaven ; and the truth its rays, that is, faith.

3223². The things which in the light of the world make one ray, in the light of Heaven make myriads . . .

4156³. Light inflows from Heaven . . . and causes the reasons which he sees with the understanding to be so many rays of that light.

4658¹. The radiant circle around the head, represented the Divine from Him . . . 9407¹⁴.

6388². They concentrate the influx of happiness from Heaven upon themselves, and do not transmit it to others ; and are like objects which do not remit, but absorb, the rays of light.

6601². This is as it is with the objects of sight, from which there diffuses itself a sphere of rays to a great distance, which falls into man's sight . . . 6603².

7177². The heat is varied according to the direct or oblique incidence of the sun's rays.

7270². The first two successives of Divine truth are as it were radiant belts from the flaming . . . H.120.

9407. Transmits the rays of heavenly light.

H. 137². A thousand enemies cannot endure one ray of the light of Heaven. W.254^e.

332^e. Directly in the line, or ray, in which the Angels look to the Lord.

W. 366³. Compared to the multitude of rays which go forth from the stars, and carry their heat and light into the earth. —.

Ad. 998. Every ray of intellectual light is an image of that love from which and to which it is continued (as every ray of natural light is an image of the sun). Hence, from the perpetual rays of such a kind, there is effected a light which both illuminates and kindles the human mind.

1019^e. In human minds there are rays both of light and of love : nothing is excited by the rays of light, but by the rays of love.

D. 1940. Represented by the sudden closing of lines, or radii.

2914. The Spirits were found . . . sometimes as if by rays . . .

3404. Rays like bright stings seemed to go forth from his eyes . . . 3541.

3496. Represented by an infant surrounded by rays.

3951. Round the head a kind of radiant circle. Ath. 153.

4362^e. They absorb the rays of the Lord's mercy . . .

E. 1093³. Man's love is like fire, and his thoughts are like the rays of light thence . . .

Ath. 190. The radiant circles are devolutions of the infinite . . .

D. Wis. iii. 4². There can be no extension except by means of rays of light from wisdom, by means of heat from love ; thus by means of fibres vivified, which are the rays formed.

Razor. Novacula.

L. 15⁵. 'A barber's razor' (Ezek.v.1.)

E. 569¹⁷. The deprivation of spiritual wisdom and intelligence, is signified by 'the hair' . . . being 'shaved with a hired razor' (Is.vii.20).

577⁹. 'To cause a razor to pass over the head' (Ezek.v.1)=to deprive of all the intelligence of truth. Ex.

Reach. Attingere, Pertingere.

A. 6098. 'They have not reached the days of the years' (Gen.xlvii.9)=not elevated to the state. 'To reach'=to be elevated. Ex.

7921. 'Ye shall cause to reach to the lintel and the two posts' (Ex.xii.22).

8155. 'To pursue,' or touch, =influx, through which is communication ; here, of falsities from evil.

H. 269. To which human knowledges never reach-pertingunt.

E. 1111. 'Her sins have reached-pertigerunt—even to Heaven' (Rev.xviii.5)=that their evils have closed up Heaven. . . For, when evils reach to Heaven, they close it.

React. Reagere.

Reaction. Reactio.

Reactive. Reactivus.

Reagent. Reagens.

Regence. Reagentia.

See under ACT and ACTIVE.

A. 2410. The evil in man continually reacts against the good which is from the Lord.

3628². Unless there were correspondent internal forces, which should react against the external ones, and thus keep the intermediate forms in connection and equilibrium, they would not subsist for a moment. Ex.

4380. When good has applied itself to truths . . . truth appears to react; yet it is not the truth, but the good conjoined with it, which reacts through the truth.

5651³. When the Natural has been reduced to correspondence, it no longer reacts; but acts as it is commanded.

6262². For every agent has its reagent, or reciprocal, in order for there to be any effect; and the agent is the cause; and the reagent is the thing caused; therefore the regence is also of the agent . . . This is the case with reaction in each thing of universal nature.

8691. When there is conjunction, there is reciprocity; for good acts and truth reacts. Reaction is the reciprocity which is in the reply. Sig.

10729². Action and reaction. See Act, here. W.68.

Life 107. Man is indeed no agent in these things; but still is a reagent as of himself.

W. 58². (The things below man in the three kingdoms of nature) are recipients (of life); and, as they are recipients, they are also reagents; for it is by their being reagents that they are containants.

68. Man from his hereditary evil reacts against God. (Continued under ACT.)

260. That the natural mind, being the covering and containant of the higher degrees, is reactive . . . Gen.art.

—². The natural mind reacts against the higher minds. The reason it reacts, is that it covers, includes, and contains them; and this is not possible without reaction; for, unless it reacted, the interior things would relax themselves, protrude outwards, and fall to pieces. It would be as if the tunics round the body were not in reaction . . . and as if the membrane investing the motor fibres . . . did not react against the forces of these fibres in action . . .

—². Another reason why the natural mind reacts against the spiritual mind, is that the (former) consists . . . also of substances of the natural world, (which) from their nature react against those of the Spiritual World; for they are dead, and are acted upon from without by the substances of the Spiritual World; and things dead, being acted on from without, resist from their very nature; and thus . . . react. (Thus) the natural man reacts against the spiritual man, and there is a combat.

261. (Thus) when the spiritual mind is closed, the natural mind reacts against all things of Heaven, and does not admit them . . .

262. From the reaction in him from birth, the natural man, when he loves himself and the world above all things, acts against the things of the spiritual man. Des.

263. But, when the spiritual mind is open, the natural mind . . . is subordinated; for the spiritual mind acts from above, and removes the things in the natural which react, and adapts to itself those which act in a manner like itself; and thus the overbearing reaction is successively taken away.

—². In (everything) there are action and reaction, from which is the equilibrium of all things, which is taken away when action exceeds reaction; and contrariwise. (So) when the natural mind acts from the delights of its love, and from the pleasant things of its thought . . . its reaction removes the things of the spiritual mind . . . and causes action from such things as agree with its reaction. Thus is produced an action and reaction of the natural mind which is opposite to the action and reaction of the spiritual mind . . .

—³. But, if the spiritual mind is opened, the action and reaction of the natural mind is inverted; for the spiritual mind acts from within, and, at the same time, through the things in the natural mind which have been disposed into obedience to it, from without; and it twists back the spiral in which is the action and reaction of the natural mind . . . Such is the change . . . called reformation and regeneration.

274. When the natural mind ascends, the lower degrees . . . are closed; and when it descends, the higher degrees . . . are closed. The reason is, that they are in reaction.

M. 293⁵. The state of a husband's wisdom . . . is reacting, or reaction, according to the perception; and this reaction is perceived by the wives with deliciousnesses in the bosom. (See ACT, here.)

I. 14¹. Conjunction without what is reciprocal is not possible, as there is no conjunction of an active with a passive without what is reactive. God alone acts; and man suffers himself to be acted upon; and reacts in all appearance as of himself, although he does so interiorly from God.

T. 61. From this perpetual . . . resistance, repugnance, and reaction, of evil and falsity against His good and truth, thus against Himself, God perceives both the quantity and the quality of (the things which take place contrary to order).

D. 1744. When (a man is being ruled by the Spirits of the skin) there is a certain reaction, and consequently repugnance, against that which is of use . . .

3037². (Evil Spirits are the cause of the evil which happens to themselves. For) to every action there responds a reaction: it is so in the least membranes, fibres, and the least particles of the animal spirit; and if there were not such a reaction, nothing at all could subsist . . . and therefore there is a perpetual equilibrium.

3038^c. There is a different reaction in the Heavens . . .

[D.] 6032^e. The Lord is the agent, and man the reagent : if the reagent receives without reaction as of himself, the influx of good passes through . . . This is said against those who separate faith from charity.

E. 573⁸. Where there is equilibrium, there are two forces continually acting against each other : the one acts, and the other reacts ; and continual action and reaction is continual combat . . .

616. In order to appropriation, there must be an active and a reactive . . . The reactive also is from the Lord . . .

—². He who believes that Divine Truths and Goods inflow without such a reactive, or reciprocal, is much mistaken . . . In a word, action and reaction make all conjunction ; (but) when an active inflows into a mere passive, it is dissipated ; for the passive yields and flees. But when an active inflows into such a passive as is also a reactive, then it is applied, and both remain conjoined. Thus is it with the influx of the Divine good and Divine truth into the will of man. (Whereas) when it inflows into the understanding alone, it passes through and is dissipated.

802⁵. Every agent which wishes to conjoin itself with another, must have something as it were its own with which to conjoin itself ; otherwise there is no reagent ; and, where there is not action and at the same time reaction, there is no conjunction. The things with man with which God, who is the sole Agent, conjoins Himself, are the Understanding and the will . . .

D. Wis. x. 4². Thus (these ligaments) are reactions, both general and singular.

Read. Legere.

Reader. Lector.

Reading, A. Lectio.

A. 1405. In the internal sense . . . do the Angels perceive the Word when it is being read by man. 1866. 1963^e. 2135. 2249⁴. 2333². 2357². 2763². 2798^e. 3131². 3316³, Examps. 4844⁸. 4921. 5247³. 5648². 6167^e. 8020^e. 10137². 10687. H.306². N.259. L.37². W.324^e.

1767. When the Word is being read by a man who loves it . . .

1769². When I was reading Deut. i.

1771. When I was reading some of the Psalms . . .

1776. The Angels understand the internal sense better when little boys and girls are reading the Word. Ex.

—^e. The Word is a dead letter ; but is vivified in the reading . . .

1871². When (the literal sense) is being read by man, especially by a little boy or girl, it becomes, by degrees, more beautiful as it ascends ; and at last there is presented before the Lord as the image of a man . . .

2176^e. When man reads the Word, the Angels have thence heavenly ideas . . .

2249⁴. When the Word is being read (the ideas of the Angels are purified). Ex.

2275². When the Word is being read by man, the celestial Angels perceive from the mere affection what the letter involves.

2311^e. The Lord's life inflows into the literal sense, according to the affection of him who reads it.

2395^e. When these things are being read by man, the sense of the letter is cast away to the back . . .

2551². These things are presented before the Angels . . . with thousands and thousands of representatives, in the light of life, when the Word is being read.

2588⁶. A certain Divine light inflows with some . . . when the Word is being read.

3004². By 'Jesus,' when named by a man reading the Word, they perceive the Divine good . . .

3304^e. In everyone who is in holiness when reading the Word, there is a union of his external . . . with his internal man . . .

3427⁵. They have no other delight in the reading of the Word than to gain thereby . . .

3480^e. Everything of the Word which is read by (those in the life of faith), is open to the Angels, even though those [who are reading] do not attend to its sense . . . for the internal in them . . . serves as a plane.

3690². When little children are reading (the histories of the Word), the Angels with them are in a pleasant celestial state . . .

—⁴. When (one being regenerated) is reading the Word in this (more interior) state, he finds . . . that each of these precepts contains in it things more heavenly. Examp.

3735². (Thus) a man who reads the Word holily, is by such correspondences conjoined closely with Heaven . . . although he thinks only of the things in the sense of the letter.

3839. Such affections . . . shine brightly before the Angels, when the Word is being read by those in simple good, and at the same time in innocence.

4027². Through the Angels from the Lord, delight and blessedness inflow with the man who is in the affection of charity, when he is reading these things ; and still more when he believes there is holiness in them ; and still more when he apprehends anything of what is contained in the internal sense.

4180³. Such are the arcana which come to the Angels, when these words are being read by man.

4264². When numbers have been read in the Word, the Angels have understood the Things . . .

4279². When the Word is being read by a man who is in what is holy, that is, in good and truth . . . in the First Heaven it appears as celestial and spiritual natural . . . in the Second, spiritual ; in the Third, celestial ; and in the Lord, Divine.

4368². Many take much pains in the reading of the Word ; but few have the end to be instructed in the truth . . .

4373². Thus do the Angels understand these historicals when they are being read by man. 4480. 4670².

4814². When man is reading the Word, and from it is thinking about the things of time, the Angels with him perceive . . . the things of state.

5249². These are the things which the celestial

Angels think, when these historicals are being read by man.

5275^e. The Angels thence perceive Divine things, and so are affected with holy things, which are communicated to the man who reads the Word from affection . . .

5329. Such are the things which the Angels perceive, when man reads that 'Pharaoh removed his ring . . .'

5398³. (These things) are contained in the internal sense, especially for the reason, that the Angels may be in their happiness of wisdom, and also in the delight of serving as media, from the Word, when it is being read by man.

6222³. The Intellectual of the Church is that when man is reading the Word, and carefully compares one [passage] with another, he perceives thence what is to be believed and done . . .

6333^e. When the Word is being read . . . and is understood obscurely by man such as he (now) is, it is clearly perceived by the Angels.

6516³. When the Word is being read, the Lord inflows and teaches.

— . There are also writings (there), which I could read, but not understand.

6617. A good Spirit, when taken up into the First Heaven, said he saw infinite things in what I was then reading in the Word, when yet I had only a simple thought . . .

7012. Those who are in externals, and at the same time in internals, when reading the Word, are illustrated . . .

8314². From the first reading of the Word, especially in its Original, (one) may thus know where it treats of the things of truth, or those of good.

8545. Spirits of Jupiter with me when I was reading John xvii. . .

8615^e. When the Word is being read on earth, the Angels in Heaven are moved to the holiness in the internal sense.

8694². By revelation, is meant illustration when the Word is being read, and perception then.

8780². This revelation is effected by the illustration of the internal sight, when a man who is in the affection of truth from good, is reading the Word . . .

8906. This comes to the Angels in Heaven, when 'to steal' is read in the Word by man.

8971. When those in truths and a life according to them are reading the Word, they are continually held in the idea of what is holy . . . but (others) when they are reading it . . . see nothing more sublime in it than in any other writing.

— . The spiritual sense is for the Angels in Heaven, when the Word is being read by man.

8972². When a Christian man is reading (these statutes and judgments), the Divine things in them . . . are apperceived in the Heavens, and inflow the Angels with what is holy, and at the same time the man who is reading them, through influx from the Angels; and still more so if he is then thinking about the Divine things which are in them.

9039. Truth from proprium is theirs who . . . read the Word not from the affection of truth for the sake of the good of life; for these are not illustrated.

9050³. Hence he has light, or the apperception of truth, in such things as are of faith, when he is reading the Word.

9127². These things are understood in Heaven by 'flesh and blood,' when man is reading the Word.

9152^e. Therefore, when a man of the Church who is in the good of faith is reading the Word, the Angels adjoin themselves to him, and are delighted with him, because with the wisdom which then inflows to them.

9188^e. Men are taught by the Lord, when they are reading the Word, not for the sake of self and the world, but for the sake of good and truth itself; for they are then illustrated; but when for the sake of self and the world, they are blinded.

9280³. The spiritual sense is presented in Heaven, when man is reading the Word holily.

9357. Such things are presented to the Angels in Heaven, from whatever Earth, when the Word of our Earth is being read and preached.

9382^e. Hence it is that when a man who has heavenly love, is reading the Word, he is thereby conjoined with Heaven, and through Heaven with the Lord, and hence has illustration and information. But when a man who has worldly love is reading the Word, there is with him no conjunction of Heaven, and consequently no illustration and information.

9397. 'He read in the ears of the people' (Ex.xxiv.7) = for hearkening, and obedience. 'To read' = for hearkening; for when we read, it is that we may be heard, perceived, and obeyed; that is, hearkened to. —³, Ill.

9407³. The sense of the letter . . . when read by man, is not heard nor apperceived in Heaven; but only the internal sense.

9409^e. Hence such have no illumination when reading the Word.

9410^e. When I am reading 'blood of the Lamb,' and think of the Lord's blood, the Angels with me know no otherwise than that I am reading the Divine Truth proceeding from the Lord, and that I am thinking about it.

9613². When these things concerning the 'Habitation' are being read, everything has an internal sense, which, being manifested by the Lord before the Angels, presents the state of the conjunction together of all things of the whole Heaven through the love which is from the Lord.

9670³. This (process of glorification) is now manifested to the Angels when this (observance of Aaron) is read of in the Word.

9809⁵. This is the sense perceived in Heaven when this Psalm is being read by man.

10215. For illustration is influx, perception, and instruction from the Lord when the Word is being read.

[A.] 10400³. For Heaven—which is in the internal sense—inflows with him whose internal man is open, when he is reading the Word; illustrates him, gives perception to him, and thus teaches him.

10452³. (Thus) Heaven is in its wisdom from the Word when it is being read by man; and man is then at the same time in conjunction with Heaven.

10551³. If (those who have honours and gain as the and) believe themselves to be in illustration when they are reading the Word, they are completely mistaken. Ex.

—⁵. The Angels, equally with men, perceive the Word when it is being read; but the Angels spiritually, and men naturally. The man whose internal is open, also perceives the Word spiritually; but is not aware of it while he lives in the world. Ex.

10604³. The Angels perceive spiritually what man perceives naturally; and this in a moment, without any reflection on the difference. This is effected especially when man is reading the Word, or when he is thinking from it. Examp.

10638². With those who believe these (precepts), and love it to be so, all evil and falsity is removed while they are reading the Word; because the Lord then illustrates them, and leads them; and they are then not thinking from themselves. . . .

H. 461². A Spirit man . . . who is delighted with studies, reads and writes as before.

S. 3^e. As (the Word) conjoins man with the Lord, and opens Heaven, therefore the Word infils the man who reads it, from the Lord and not from himself, with the good of love and the truths of wisdom . . . Thus man has life through the Word.

19^e. As both (the Divine good and the Divine truth) are in the Word, therefore the Word vivifies those who are reading it holily.

41. When (those in Divine truths and in the faith that the Word is Divine holiness within, and still more those who are in the faith that the Word is such from its spiritual and celestial sense) are reading the Word in illustration from the Lord, they see Divine truths in natural light. Ex.

52. (Thus) those who read the Word without doctrine . . . are in obscurity concerning all Truth . . .

57. Those who love truths because they are truths, and who make them uses of life . . . are those who are in illustration when they are reading the Word . . .

60. The contrary happens to those who read the Word from the doctrine of a false religion . . .

61². Then, when they read the Word, their minds cleave to themselves and the world . . .

64. When I have read the Word in the sense of the letter, communication has taken place with the Heavens; now with this Society, now with that; and the things I understood according to their natural sense, the spiritual Angels understood according to the spiritual sense; and the celestial Angels according to the celestial; and this in an instant.

65^e. How the two internal senses are evolved from the natural sense, when man is reading the Word. Ex.

78. The Lord is present with man through the reading of the Word; but is conjoined with him through the understanding of truth from it.

F. 3². (Thus) spiritual things can be comprehended equally as well as natural ones, but only when they are heard or read; and with difficulty by the man himself when he is thinking from himself.

5. There is a spiritual idea . . . which inflows with those in the affection of truth, and which interiorly dictates, that this, which is being heard or read, is true, or not. In this idea are they who read the Word in illustration from the Lord. Ex.

P. 256². Where the Word is read holily, and the Lord is worshipped from the Word, there is the Lord with Heaven. Ex.

260³. The presence of the Lord and Heaven is wherever the Word is read holily.

R. 8. 'Blessed is he who readeth' (Rev.i.3)=their communion with the Angels of Heaven . . . 'To read' . . . the things written therein'=to want to know (the doctrine of the New Jerusalem). (=to perceive. E.13.)

85^e. The man who is in this illustration, acknowledges truths as soon as he reads or hears them; but not he whose spiritual mind has not been opened, who is the man who is not in the goods of charity, however much he may be in the truths of doctrine.

411². The Word communicates with Heaven, and therefore when it is being read by man, the truths in it ascend into Heaven, and the falsities with which the truths have been adjoined or conjoined tend to Hell, the result being a tearing asunder by which the life of the Word is extinguished. But this takes place only with those who confirm falsities by the Word . . .

796². The acknowledgment and worship of the Lord and the reading of the Word effect the presence of the Lord; and these two, together with a life according to His precepts, effect conjunction with Him.

897. With (those in the doctrine of the New Jerusalem, and in a life according to it) the Word as it were shines when being read. Ex.

M. 128. The Word is a perfect marriage of good and truth . . . It follows, that when man is reading it, and is taking truths from it, the Lord adjoins good; for the man does not see the goods which affect him, because he reads it from the understanding . . . (but that to the truths drawn in by the understanding) good is adjoined by the Lord, the understanding feels from the delight which inflows when it is being illustrated. But this takes place interiorly solely with those who read it with the end to become wise, which end exists with those who want to learn genuine truths there, and, through these, to form the Church with themselves. But those who read it solely for the sake of the glory of erudition; and also those who do so from the opinion that the mere reading, or hearing, of it, will inspire faith, and conduce to salvation; do not receive any good from the Lord. Ex.

T. 142². The reader is referred to . . .

209⁴. The reading (of the Word by those in falsities of doctrine effects no communication with Heaven, but) is dispersed on the way, and perishes, like (a sky-rocket). The contrary happens with those who are in truths of doctrine from the Lord through the Word: their reading of the Word penetrates even into Heaven, and effects conjunction with the Angels there.

238. The Word in the letter is like a cabinet (full) of precious stones . . . and when a man who holds the Word holy, reads it for the sake of the uses of life, then the thoughts of his mind are like one who holds such a cabinet in his hand, and sends it to Heaven, and it is opened in the ascent, and the precious things therein come to the Angels, who are deeply delighted to see and examine them. This their delight is communicated to the man, and effects consociation, and also a communication of perceptions.

258². (These comparisons show how it) is with the reading of the Word by a man who is in falsities, and to his falsities applies some things of the sense of the letter; in that it is then rejected on the way to Heaven, lest any such thing should inflow and infest the Angels; for, when falsity touches truth, it is like the point of a needle touching . . . the eye.

D. 335. The great efficacy in Heaven of the Psalms, when read. Ex.

385. Those who read merely for the sake of reading, and keeping in the memory the things read, for the sake of their own glory and reputation, seem to themselves to pass their time in subterranean places, and to have books there, and also candles which are every now and then extinguished. They also seem to themselves to be reading. But . . . they are infested with mice, and the like, which withdraw them from such a desire.

895. When writings are being read, and when the one reading pays no attention to, and has no perception of, the things which have been written, the sense and perception of the Things are elevated to the Angels more distinctly than when the natural human mind is together (there). Ex. (Thus) when little children are reading the Holy Bible, the Angels understand the sense of the Word more clearly than when adults are reading it.

2397. If a man merely runs a volume over with his eyes, and does not read, except slightly, what he has written, (the Angels) at once know what it contains . . . If he should read only a single line, though written many years before, they know innumerable things . . .

3204. That they have read my writing from afar.

4243. (The Societies of friendship took away all my delight when I was reading the Word.) Ex.

4246. They had perceived fully the sense of what I had read, when I had perceived almost nothing; so that their perception as to the interior sense . . . had increased as mine had decreased . . . The case is similar with little children when they are reading the Word; or with other pious people when they are reading it. (4247.) But it was given to say that it would be better if the man were also in light together (with them) for thus they would be a one, and the order would be full.

4248. When the angelic Spirits wanted . . . to know what it was I was reading, they would snatch away my thought . . . so that my ideas might be obscured. Hence they were in light . . . (4249). But the case is different with those angelic Spirits who love the neighbour more than themselves . . .

4422. (On my receiving letters to say that only four copies of what is being written through me had been sold in two months, the Angels said that) it is not fitting that any but those in faith should read it first.

4671. The Angel said that . . . the Third Heaven knows from the Hebrew letters, when the Word is being read by man in the Hebrew text, all the Divine Celestial which is inspired . . . (Compare De Verbo 4, below.)

5187. All the wisdom of the Angels is given by the medium of the Word, and is communicated to them through the Word when this is being read by men, and when there is thought from it. (But wisdom is also given them mediately. Ex.)

5616. Natural truths are in the place of a foundation; hence thought is filled with such ideas; and then, when a man is reading the Word, he is in them.

5618. There were some virgins who read in the Word daily . . . When two of them did not read it for ten days, the book of the Word did not appear; and they perceived that (this) was because they had not read it. They then took a book of the Word from a rock, and, when they read it . . . they did not understand it . . . They afterwards received the Word, and read in it daily . . .

D. Min. 4738. The nature of the interior memory, may be evident from the fact that some seem to read in books, and to see and read everything therein, just as in the life of the body; nor is the smallest thing wanting; as, for instance, the Word, which those read there who have delighted in it (here): they read every single thing, as to all the words, so that nothing at all has perished, although they had read it cursorily-leviter in the life of the body.

E. 13. 'To read' the Word = to understand from illustration, thus to perceive.

E. 759². By (the men of the New Church) and by no others, is the spiritual light received which constantly inflows through Heaven from the Lord with those who read the Word. Hence is their illustration.

803². (In order that) a man may be in illustration, so as to learn the truths which must be of his faith; and that he may be in affection, so as to do the goods which must be of his love . . . 1. Let him read the Word every day, one chapter, or two, and learn from a teacher and from preachings the dogmas of his religion . . .

837¹². Let me tell thee, my reader . . .

923². For everyone who is in the spiritual affection of truth, is illustrated by the Lord while he is reading the Word . . .

984^e. Store this up, reader, and inquire after death whether it is true.

1024². Therefore the Word is in every Heaven, and almost with every Angel . . . and is read by them daily.

[E.] 1067³. The Divine truth in the Heavens is the light which proceeds from the Lord as a Sun . . . and the same is what illustrates the minds of men . . . and gives them to understand truth, and perceive good, when a man is reading the Word from the Lord, and not from himself; for he is then in consort with the Angels, and is interiorly in a perception like the spiritual perception of the Angels; and that spiritual perception . . . inflows into his natural perception . . . and illustrates it. Hence for the man who reads the Word from the affection of truth, there is illustration through Heaven from the Lord.

1074². Hence it is that the holy Divine from the Lord inflows through the Heavens with a man in the world, who acknowledges the Divine of the Lord, and the holiness of the Word, while he is reading it.

1083². As one sense is within the other . . . it follows that a natural man draws in his sense, a spiritual Angel his, and a celestial Angel his . . . while a man, whom the Lord leads, is reading the Word.

1084². As it is from creation that end, cause, and effect together make a one, so also it is from creation that the Heavens should make a one with the Church on earth, but through the Word, when it is being read by man from the love of truth and good . . .

1103^e. But hear, my reader. 1104⁴.

1173². That the Lord does not teach man truths immediately . . . but that He teaches mediately through . . . readings, etc. Ex.

1183. The Lord leads those who love truths, and will them from Him. These are illustrated when they are reading the Word; for the Lord is there, and speaks to everyone according to his apprehension.

1216³. A merely sensuous man (can) see Divine things, and can also comprehend them, but only while he is hearing or reading them; but he cannot think them from himself. The reason is, that while he is hearing or reading, his understanding is separated from his own proper affection, and (thus) is in the light of Heaven . . .

De Verbo 4. In many places, the Word has been written in this way, from which, while it is being read in the Hebrew text, by a Jew or a Christian, it is known in the Third Heaven what the letters themselves signify.

11². Such is our Word in the sense of the letter . . . When, therefore, this is being read holily by man, its interiors are unbound and uncovered, and each Heaven draws in its own from it . . .

12. Every man who is in the spiritual affection of truth, that is, who loves truth itself because it is truth, is illustrated by the Lord while he is reading the Word; but not the man who reads it from the natural affection of truth alone, which is called the desire to know; the latter sees nothing else than what is in agreement with his love or with his principles . . . That man has illustration who shuns evils because they are sins . . . With this man (only) is the spiritual mind opened, and in the same proportion the light of Heaven enters. Ex.

14². While an Angel is reading (the Word of the Spiritual Kingdom), he knows no otherwise than that it is like the Word which he read in the world. Ex.

—6. When, therefore, these first chapters of our Word are being read by upright men, and especially by little boys and girls, and they are affected with joy from the state of the creation of all things, and from Paradise, those senses are evolved, and the spiritual Angels understand those things according to their Word, and the celestial Angels according to theirs, besides that they know that a man, or a little child, is reading it; for these senses are evolved in their order, because they correspond . . .

16. Although the Jewish nation denies the Lord to be the Messiah, and although it is of an evil heart, still, the reading of the Word by them has communication with some of the Heavens; for the correspondences communicate, of whatever quality be the person who reads it, provided he acknowledges it as Divine . . .

D. Wis. xi. 2a. The difference is, that those who are in the love of truth are actually in the light of Heaven, and are therefore in illustration and the perception of truth when they are reading the Word. The rest are not in illustration or the perception of truth, but are only in the confirmation of their principles . . . There is this difference also: that those who are in the love of truth when they are reading the Word, and thinking from it, keep the sight of their understanding constantly in the principle itself, and thus inquire whether it is true, before it is confirmed . . .

C. 189^e. (Besides these diversions of charity) there are also readings in books, in which are historical and dogmatic things which delight; and also the news in newspapers—novellis.

Read before. Praelegere. H. 322².

Read through. Perlegere. D. Wis. iii. 1.

Ready. See under PREPARE.

Real. Germanus.

M. 96^e. Conjugal love may be called native and germane to man.

474. The weighty causes (of concubinage) which are not real-reales . . . They make of these, real-germanas—and genuine causes.

T. 381³. Painted with appropriate colours, like a human face.

Real. Realis.

Reality. Reale.

Really. Realiter.

A. 1116^e. (The things in the other life) are indeed representative . . . yet are so real that those there hold them to be real, and the things in this world relatively not real. 1620^e. 1628.

1376. The idea of place and distance with Spirits is not a real something . . .

1392. The delights there are communicated by a real transmission.

1510^e. (One who believed) that all things are phantasies, and that there nothing is real. (His lot.) D. 4305.

1630. (These Souls) were introduced into the homes of the Angels: and, when they returned, they said that . . . the things were real; and that in the life of the body they had never believed this . . .

1769⁴. They really perceived it to be so.

1970. By genuine visions, are meant visions of those things which really come forth there.

3485. The representations (there) are appearances, but living ones, because from the light of life. (This) is from the Lord alone, and therefore all things which come forth from this light are real . . . and therefore those (there) say that the things they see there are real, and that the things which man sees are relatively not real; because the former are alive, and thus affect their life immediately . . .

3726³. There are purer substances, and those real, from which Knowledges and thoughts come forth. (Therefore they are not abstract things).

—⁴. (So) the spirit within man is a substance much more real than the material substance of his body.

4623. The sensitive life of Spirits is twofold: real and not real; (for) all that is real which appears to those in Heaven; and all that is not real which appears to those in Hell. For whatever comes from the Divine . . . is real, because it comes from the Esse itself of Things, and from Life in itself; but whatever comes from the proprium of a Spirit is not real . . . Those who are in the affection of good and truth are in the Lord's life, thus in real life . . . But those who are in evil and falsity through affection are in the life of proprium, thus in life not real; for in evil and falsity the Lord is not present. Real is distinguished from non-real in this: that the real actually is as it appears, whereas the non-real is actually not such as it appears.

—². Those in Hell have sensations, and know no otherwise than that it is really and actually as they feel it; yet when they are inspected by the Angels, they appear to be phantasms, and disappear; and they themselves appear . . . as monsters. . . They say that they believe them to be real, because they see and touch them, adding, that sense cannot deceive. But it was given to reply, that still they are not real, and this for the reason that they are in opposites to the Divine . . . however much they may appear as real to them; and that they themselves, in so far as they are in cupidities of evil and persuasions of falsity, are, as to the thoughts, nothing but phantasies; and to see anything from phantasies, is to see the things which are real as not real, and the things which are not real as real . . .

—^e. Evil Spirits can present illusions before (Souls), and if they cannot deceive them, they try thereby to persuade them that nothing is real, and that all things are ideal . . .

4882². These appearances, when with the Angels, are called real, because they appear as they really are.

5272². The Divine truth which proceeds from the Divine good, is the veriest reality . . . in the universe. Ex.

6000³. They esteem the things of the body and the world as alone real.

6880^e. For whatever proceeds from the Lord is the veriest reality in the universe: such is . . . the Divine truth . . . by which all things were made.

7217². For in faith and charity they place nothing real.

9419^e. Physical influx is apparent, and by no means real.

9467². For heavenly light is real; and, in itself, is the Divine truth. H. 130.

H. 137(u). That the Divine truth is the one only reality. Refs.

175. The appearances in the Heavens are called real appearances, because they really come forth. There are also appearances not real, which are those which appear, but do not correspond to the interior things.

178. The garments with which the Angels are clothed, like all the other things there, correspond; and, because they correspond, they come forth really.

181. The garments of the Angels do not appear as garments, but really are garments. Ex.

264. When yet the things in Heaven come forth as really as those in the world.

M. 183³. Whereas in use (love and wisdom) are collected together, and there become a one, which is called a reality.

471. The real and non-real causes of concubinage. Ex. 472. 474. 475.

T. 29. These appearances are real, because they are constant, according to their states.

D. 1744. (When a man is ruled by the Spirits of the cuticle) there is insinuated into him a distaste to do anything real . . .

2449. To receive such things from the Lord, and to dispose them according to use in tranquillity and innocence, is the greatest reality, because it conduces to their happiness.

4214. Everything can be represented before Spirits . . . such as gardens, groves, palaces; and these appear as if they exist; but they are representations, apparent ones, namely, not real ones. Ex.

4292. The Angels call the habitations on the Earth dead, not real; but their own, true, because alive and real; for they enjoy them with all sense. 4293^e, Ex.

4339. Such illusions are innumerable . . . (but) are phantasies, although they suppose them to be. (The truth is) that all things which are from the Lord are real, and the things from Spirits are not real, although they appear to be so . . .

4353^e. (Hypocrites) are very prone to believe that nothing is real . . .

4360^e. It is provided . . . that the phantasies should appear to them exactly as if they really exist . . . and real things are to them like a shadow or nullity; whereas the appearances and Truths of the Angels are entirely real . . .

4599. (Thus) the ideas of man's thoughts, which are from affections, are real, because they can be transcribed in this way. . . Unless ideas were real things, such a thing could never come forth.

[D.] 4609. He who does not comprehend that the interiors of man are real substances, and more real than his exteriors, cannot conceive any perception about ideas.

4725. The Lord can appear even to those not in love . . . but it is an imaginative appearance, not a real one.

5026. The Dutch know, better than others, what is a phantasy, and what a reality appearing . . .

5183. There are mountains where are those in the opposite loves . . . but these are not real mountains, although they appear like others . . .

5646. The appearances (of walkings, and journeys) are so real that the Spirits are quite unaware that (they are nothing but changes of the state of the interiors); nor do they want to know (this). The Angels know; but do not think about it.

5685. I can asseverate that the things in Heaven are more real than those in the world.

5686. Still less (do people) apprehend that (spiritual things) are more real than corporeal ones; thus neither that the former are the real and human things themselves, and corporeal ones are relatively ministrant . . . which, being lower and posterior, are less real than those which are interior or higher.

5774. On the real appearances there; from comparisons.

5806. All things which appear in the Hells are not real, but appear as if real; because they themselves are in phantasy . . . 5905, Ex.

E. 553². All the appearances which come forth in the Heavens are real, because they are correspondences . . . and they are real because they are from creation. But it is different with the appearances in some of the Hells . . . From their persuasions there come forth phantastic visions, in which there is nothing real within; and therefore they vanish away when a single ray of light of Heaven inflows.

704. In the Spiritual World appear all things which appear (here); such as clouds, rain, snow, and hail, which indeed are appearances, but real ones, originating from correspondences. Ex.

1218^e. I can asseverate that the things in the Spiritual World are more real than those in the natural; for the dead [covering] which accedes to the Spiritual in nature, does not make reality, but diminishes it . . .

Reap. Metera, Demetera.

Reaper. Messor.

See HARVEST.

A. 3941³. 'To reap thorns' (Jer. xii. 13).

5117⁷. The conjunction of spiritual good with its truth is signified by 'the ploughman reaching the reaper=metentem' (Amos ix. 13). See PLOUGH, at E. 376⁶.

9272⁵. 'To sow and not to reap' (Micah vi. 15)=to be instructed in the truths of faith, but without increase.

9295⁴. 'The Angels' who are 'the reapers' (Matt. xiii. 39)=truths from the Lord (which separate. E. 9111⁶).

R. 643. 'A sickle'=the Divine truth of the Word . . . and hence 'to reap' (Rev. xiv. 15), which is done with a sickle, =to put an end to the state of the Church, and to execute the Judgment. 645, Ill.

646. 'The earth was reaped' (ver. 16)=the end of the Church because there is no longer any Divine truth in it. (=that the Church was devastated. E. 912.)

E. 706¹⁷. 'To sow and to reap' (Is. xxxvii. 30)=the implantation of good, and its reception.

911. 'Thrust in thy sickle, and reap, because the hour of thy reaping is come' (Rev. xiv. 15)=that it is the time for collecting the good, and for separating them from the evil, because it is the end of the Church.

—¹⁶. 'He who reapeth receiveth reward, and gathereth fruit unto life eternal; for in this is the word true, that it is one who soweth and another who reapeth; I sent you to reap that on which ye have not laboured . . .' (John iv. 36-38). . . To teach those who will be of the New Church . . . is signified by 'to reap.' That it is not themselves who teach, thus who collect and congregate, but the Lord, . . . is meant by 'there is one who soweth and another who reapeth . . . others have laboured, and ye have entered into their labour' (for those whom the disciples converted to the Church had been prepared to receive by the Lord through the Angels, that is, through Divine truths from the Word).

Reason. Ratio.

See RATIONAL, and REASON, To.

A. 78. The third (river of Eden)=reason.

118. 'The river Hiddekel'=reason, or the clear perspicacity of reason. . . 'The river goeth eastward towards Asshur'=that the perspicacity of reason comes from the Lord through the internal man into the rational mind, which is of the external man.

121. From Him is wisdom; through wisdom intelligence; through intelligence reason; thus through reason are vivified the scientifics which are of the memory. Sig.

196². He says, Have not animals something analogous to reason?

238. So that reason no longer remained; but ratiocination. Tr.

259. The lowest things of reason; that is, scientifics. Sig.

266. As the wife does not act from reason so much as the man . . .

549. The happiness increases in the ratio of the numbers.

568². The male sex is so formed that understanding or reason reigns . . .

1186. By reason, and rational things, are properly meant things which are true; and by ratiocination, and reasoning, things which are false. Ill.

1231. The Knowledges of truth are from the Lord through . . . faith, by the medium of reason and knowledge.

1642². In such a ratio is the speech of Spirits . . .

1893. New-born infants are not endowed with reason.

2094². There are many now who believe nothing, unless they know from reason that it is so. . . Therefore these things [are explained].

—e. The celestial regard these things from good; but the spiritual from truth; and are also confirmed, and thus perfected, by such things as are in the internal sense; but this by thousands of interior reasons which cannot inflow perceptibly into man's idea.

2488^e. An account—ratio—will have to be rendered of the thoughts, etc.

2510. When nothing is acknowledged . . . except what can be apprehended by reason.

2572^d. No ratio between the infinite and the finite. 4383^e. P.54.

2584^e. When the doctrine of faith is regarded from Divine truths . . . all the rational and scientific things confirm it; but when from . . . reason and knowledge, nothing of good or of truth is conceived. For to regard from the Word, is to do so from the Lord; but to regard from reason and knowledge, is to do so from man; (and) from these are all insanity and folly.

2636². Man cannot be regenerated till adult age, because he then first is strong in reason and judgment, and thus can receive good and truth from the Lord. Before he comes into this state, he is being prepared. Ex.

2842⁹. Celestial men do not even confirm by reasons . . . but only say that it is so, or is not so.

3884. The first (general operation of Heaven) is into the brain at the left temple, and is a general operation as to the organs of reason; for the left part of the brain corresponds to rational or intellectual things . . .

3901⁶. An eagle, here, = reason, which is of intelligence.

3957. They might have known from themselves much about these things if they had wanted to use their reason.

4156³. Light inflows from Heaven . . . and causes the reasons which he sees in his understanding to be so many rays of that light.

4364. A person is led to his opinion . . . by both reasons and affections . . .

4760³. (Such can see) that animals act from instinct, and man from reason . . .

5198². Beasts follow their affections from instinct, without reason . . . To these affections without reason no other bodily forms are suitable . . .

5386^e. (These Spirits) cannot attend to reasons, because they persist tenaciously in their own opinion. 5554^e.

5492². May be evident to him who concludes from reason.

5497². When he becomes a youth, if he cultivates his Rational, he thus, from the things in the interior Natural, forms reasons, which are truths still more sublime, and as it were extracted from those in the interior Natural. The ideas of thought from these are called . . . intellectual and immaterial ideas . . .

5993. Man cannot live from general influx, like animals devoid of reason.

— . For man is born without any use of reason, and can be initiated into it only through influx from the Heavens.

6089². First of all there is insinuated with man general truth: this is then enriched with particular truths, and lastly there comes forth from the Internal a mental view of these, or reason and understanding.

6567². (As soon as good dominates) the affection itself and the derivative reason dominate, and subjugate in the Natural the delights of the love of self and of the world, and also the fallacies which had infilled the scientifics there . . .

6807^e. So that the proportion (in the Grand Man) may be maintained.

7130². The things of the natural mind are called scientifics; and those of the rational mind, intellectual reasons . . . The latter are in the light of Heaven.

7290². Nothing enters into the internal man except through intellectual ideas, which are reasons; for the ground which receives there is the illustrated Rational.

7293³. 'Leviathan,' in a good sense, = reason from truths. Reason from truths is opposite to reasonings from falsities.

7298². Thus (are good Spirits caused) to consider whether the case is so, and to collect reasons, and thus to bring that truth into their minds rationally . . .

8413³. After regeneration, he enjoys this delight . . . in an opposite manner—in inversa ratione.

8474. A just proportion to everyone, in particular, and in general. Sig. and Ex.

8939. There is no ratio between the temporary and the eternal . . .

9140. For when man is in these (bodily pleasures) he but little consults his reason, and thus is but little conscious. . . When a beast is called a 'beast of burden,' it = the merely corporeal affections which in themselves have little of reason; for the more a man acts from the body, the less he acts from reason; for the body is in the world, and thus remote from Heaven, where genuine reason is.

9166². Hence the celestial Angels . . . being in the highest light, do not even confirm truths by reasons . . .

—³. External men confirm Divine truths by oaths; but internal men by reasons . . .

9913. The relation (or mode) of the influx from what is higher. Sig. and Ex.

10227³. See REASON, To-ratiocinari, here.

10614². In a like manner . . .

10645⁴. A man may perceive (this) from reason alone . . .

10777. For it is from order that everyone should act from reason . . .

H. 39². Hence it is that man . . . can speak from reason.

273. Still, there can never be any proportion between the wisdom of the Angels and that of the Lord . . . for no proportion is possible between the infinite and the finite. D.5566.

[H.] 303. Those who think from interior reason can see that . . .

318. Everyone who thinks from any illustrated reason can see that . . .

368. In that a man acts from reason, and a woman from affection.

Life 69^e. Acting in freedom according to reason.

101. It is from Divine order that man should act from freedom according to reason; because to act from freedom according to reason is to act from himself. But these two faculties, freedom and reason, are not proper to man; but are the Lord's with him; and . . . without them he cannot be reformed . . .

102. (In order that He may be loved reciprocally) the Lord has given to man freedom and reason . . .

105. Therefore man must render an account of his works.

W. 23. All things of human reason . . . concentrate in this: that there is one God, the Creator of the universe; and therefore a man who has reason, thinks, from the general of his understanding, no otherwise . . . Say to anyone who has sound reason, that there are two Creators of the universe, and you will be sensible of his repugnance . . . The very faculty of thinking rationally, regarded in itself, is not of man, but is of God with him; from this faculty depends human reason in general, and this general causes him to see this as if of himself.

—^e. But if a man by this faculty has perverted the lower parts of his understanding . . . by the twisting of them, he turns this faculty in another direction; and hence his reason becomes unsound.

57. Reception is according to the application of the laws of order . . . from the freedom of thinking and willing according to reason, which they have from the Lord as their own.

191^e. For the rule of the one is the same as that of the other.

266. This is testified by reason and experience. Ex.

P. 34². (Thus) wisdom can be elevated in a triplicate ratio; and in each degree it may be perfected to its height in a simple ratio.

54^e. Thus there is a ratio between the finite and the infinite; not from the finite, but from the infinite in the finite.

71. That it is a law of the Divine Providence that man should act from freedom according to reason. Chapter.

73. See RATIONAL, here.

74. That whatever man does from freedom, whether it be of reason, or not of reason, provided it is according to his reason, appears to him as his. Gen.art.

87^e. When evil has been confirmed, it appears as of reason.

89. See FREE, here. 97. 98. 183².

100. Everyone can see from reason alone that . . .

136. There are many things which when heard are at once perceived to be so . . . but if they are not at the same time confirmed by reasons, they may be weakened by arguments from fallacies, and at last be denied.

150². For that which the Lord teaches, He gives to man to perceive by reason; and this in two ways: one, that he sees in himself that it is so as soon as he hears it; the other, that he understands it by means of reasons. To see in himself, is to see in the internal man; and to understand by means of reasons, is in the external man.

178. Foreknowledge of events is not given to man, in order that he may be able to act from freedom according to reason; for . . . whatever a man loves he wants to effect, and he leads himself to it by reason; moreover, there is nothing which a man considers with reason, which is not from the love that it may come into effect through the thought; and therefore if he knew the effect . . . his reason would become quiescent; and, with his reason, his love; for the love ceases with reason in the effect; and from that it then begins anew. It is the delight itself of reason, that from the love it sees the effect in the thought; not in the effect, but before it . . . Hence man has what is called hope, which increases and decreases in the reason, as he sees or anticipates the event . . .

192. One who . . . believes that human prudence does all things, cannot be convinced except by reasons of a deeper investigation. Enum.

286. (Thus) man can abuse these faculties, and from freedom according to reason confirm anything he likes; for he can make to be of reason anything he wants, whether it be in itself of reason, or not. Examp.

R. 463⁶. I said, Do you want me to speak to you . . . from reason, or from Holy Scripture. They said, Speak first from reason . . .

M. 27². (This) may be confirmed before reason; thus . . .

29. Who cannot see from reason, if he wants to see, that . . .

45. (This) must be so delivered by me that reason also may assent thereto.

130. Wisdom, regarded in its fullness, is at the same time of Knowledges, of reason, and of life. Knowledges precede; reason is formed through them; and wisdom through both, when a man lives rationally according to the Truths which are Knowledges. (Continued under WISDOM.)

182⁵. They then say, We hold reason under obedience to faith.

490. That adulteries of the third degree are adulteries of reason . . .

T. 4³. What has been torn may be made whole, when the reason of man is convinced, from the Word and the derivative lumen, that . . .

10. All sound reason, although not religious, sees that . . .

12. That human reason, from many things in the world, is able to perceive, if it wants, that there is a God, and that He is one. Ex.

32. That illustrated reason, from very many things in the world, can see the infinity of God. Ex.

40. Human reason can see this from . . . 41.
165. (This) reason, left to itself, can by no means see. . . There is nothing else than for man to approach the Lord God the Saviour, and read the Word under His auspices . . . and he will be illustrated, and will see Truths, which reason also will acknowledge.
169. In this mystical notion . . . reason has no part ; (and) when reason is lulled, the speech of the mouth is a something inanimate. When the mouth utters that from which reason dissents, the speech is fatuous. At this day, human reason is bound, in relation to the Divine Trinity . . .
- 186². (Such) have no interior reason of judgment . . . but only ingenuity, from which they can . . . confirm whatever presents itself as if from reason ; but the objects of reason which they principally love are falsities . . .
- 335². The angelic Spirit said to them . . . Bring together the reasons which I shall offer, and make a conclusion from them yourselves . . .
- 344². The states of faith of the New Church are . . .
3. Faith of memory ; faith of reason ; faith of light.
345. Blind faith is that of mystical Things, which are believed, although it is not known . . . whether they are above reason, or contrary to it.
- 351^e. Unless there were such an ordination of substances in the mind, man would not have anything analytic of reason, which everyone has according to the ordination ; thus according to the abundance of Truths which cohere as in a bundle ; and the ordination is according to the use of reason from freedom.
352. This manifests itself before everyone who collects reasons.
371. (This) Scripture teaches, and reason also sees.
- 374². In the understanding (the will) puts itself in light, that it may see not only the reasons, but also the occasions . . .
- 417². (Thus) man is man in proportion as he speaks from sound reason, and regards his abode in Heaven ; and he is not man, in proportion as he speaks from perverted reason, and regards only his stay in the world . . .
418. For the good of the will forms itself in the understanding, and there presents itself to view in the light of reason.
435. From reason itself, man can see that . . .
471. Who does not see, if he can think from reason elevated above the sensuous things of the body, that . . .
473. The reason man does not know this from any light of reason, is that fallacies . . . cast a shade on this light.
- 503⁵. They replied, In our universal theology there is not anything spiritual which reason apprehends . . .
511. (This) anyone can conclude from reason.
521. Everyone will acknowledge this to be so, provided he adjoins reason to experience.
529. Who cannot understand, from the reason given him, that . . .

574. (This) is evident from all reason.
- 588². Unless the understanding could be perfected separately . . . man . . . would not be able to act from reason ; but from instinct.
605. Into faith they suffer no reason to be admitted . . .
- 646². Ask anyone who is endowed with religion, and at the same time with reason . . .
651. Reason itself assents to this : that . . .
- 718^e. In what way the Lord is present . . .
722. (This) reason itself—in which there is anything spiritual—dictates.
- 770^e. When they mention faith and omnipotence, reason is exiled ; and then sound reason either disappears . . . or becomes like a spectre, and is called insanity.
-
- D. 222². The interior operations of the natural mind, when perverted, are called ratiocinations ; but, when according to order, they are simply called reason . . .
1516. (The Spirits of Saturn) relate to that in man which is called the internal sense, or reason.
1527. The reason is that which as it were ascends into the intellectual mind . . . for the more interior mind understands through the internal sense, or reason.
2727. Thus we ought to believe the Truths spoken by the Lord . . . although we do not penetrate them by reason . . .
3328. The Spirits of our Earth relate to the external sense, and at this day are almost separated from all reason ; and those of Saturn relate to reason. Thus was manifested their quality against reason.
3329. When the Spirits of our Earth perceive the sphere of reason, and of the Spirits who relate to reason, they cannot endure them : there is a natural enmity . . . a like enmity have all men here against reason ; but they do not perceive it, except in temptations ; because the reason as it were yields from afar, and there succeeds what is irrational with its phantasies.
3330. The nature of the conflict of reason with the external senses separated . . .
4909. For it is according to the order in the world that everyone uses his reason, and that things follow according to reason ; but, as they do not believe that God inspires reason . . . they reject the Divine regimen . . .
5825. The English have a sufficiently exquisite perception when anything is said from reason . . .
5921. In the Spiritual World it is forbidden to speak from what is persuasive ; but [they must speak] from reason, and thus from truths themselves.
- D. Min. 4578². (Such philosophical things) take away all reason.
- E. 557. For sensuous men who are in falsities of evil . . . do not fight from reason against truths . . . (but) solely from a persuasion of falsity.
- 824². Take away the use of reason, and say that some man of authority has seen it, and (you may persuade some that a crow is white).

[E.] S37⁴. By which he procures for himself the lumen of reason.

923³. He who believes that any truth of the Church can be seen from the lumen of reason alone, is much mistaken . . .

1084². The reason is that . . .

De Verbo 3². There is no ratio between the Natural, the Spiritual, and the Celestial. D. Wis. xii. 4.

D. Wis. ii². (Confirmations) from reason given. —³. vii. 2¹. 3². De Dom. 20. 55.

Inv. 51. It is allowable to confirm the Truths of the Church by reason . . .

Reason, Ratiocinate, To. Ratiocinari.
Reasoning, A. Ratiocinium.
Ratiocination. Ratiocinatio.
Reasoner. Ratiocinator.

See under ASSYRIA, and RATIONAL.

A. 129. All man's knowledge and ratiocination favours his principles . . .

195. Reasonings from sensuous things about the mysteries of faith. Sig.

—². Those who by reasonings seduce men. Sig.

—³. 'Egypt' = ratiocination about Divine things, from sensuous and scientific things. Sig. The reasonings are called 'the voice of the serpent.' 2547³.

—^e. The Spiritual and celestial things which the reasoners would not see. Sig. The reasonings are called 'the poison of asps,' and 'the viper's tongue.'

215. Whenever any have begun to reason (or ratiocinate) about . . . the things of faith, it has been given to perceive that they doubted, nay, denied; for to reason about faith is to doubt and deny . . .

238. So that reason no longer remained; but ratiocination. Tr.

241². When what is worldly and earthly becomes the principal, then, from these, they reason about heavenly things, and blind themselves.

272^e. That (such an animal man) can reason, as he seems to himself, astutely, he has from the spiritual substance through which the Lord's life can inflow; but which, with him, is perverted.

301. When men do not want to live and be wise except from themselves, then whatever they hear, which belongs to faith, they reason about, as to whether it is so, or not; and, as they do this from themselves, from their sensuous and scientific things, they cannot do otherwise than deny . . .

448^e. Men now want to explore by mad reasoning what spirit is . . .

653. There are two kinds of evil Spirits: those who act on man's reasonings, and those who act on his cupidities. Those who excite man's reasonings bring forth all his falsities, and endeavour to persuade him that they are true; nay, they even turn truths into falsities. With these, man, when in temptations, must fight . . .

975. That this (Ancient) Church, from its wanting to investigate the truths of faith . . . through reasonings, first lapsed into errors. Tr.

977². With the unregenerate man . . . there is no understanding, but reasoning, and the consequent lapse to all falsity.

1071. Noah's drinking of the wine = that he wanted to investigate the things of faith . . . by reasonings . . .

— . For spiritual and celestial things infinitely transcend human apprehension; hence [comes] ratiocination.

1072. 'He was drunken' = that he thereby fell into errors . . . Man's thought is merely earthly, corporeal, and material . . . and therefore to think and reason from these about Divine things, is to bring one's self into errors and perversions; and it is impossible to procure faith in this way . . . The consequent error and insanity are called 'drunkenness.' In fact, Spirits who reason about the truths of faith . . . become like drunken men.

—². Spirits who are in the faith of charity (are known by the fact) that they do not reason about the truths of faith; but say that the thing is so. They also confirm it by sensuous things, scientifics, and the analytic things of reason; but as soon as anything obscure intervenes . . . they reject it . . . saying that there are very few things they can apprehend; and therefore to think a thing not to be true because they do not apprehend it, is madness. These are they who are in charity. But those not in the faith of charity want only to reason whether the thing is so . . . saying that unless they can know how the case is, they cannot believe it to be so. From this alone they are at once known as being in no faith . . .

—⁵. Such are called 'wise in their own eyes . . .' because those who reason against the truths of faith deem themselves wiser than others.

1134. Concerning those who through reasonings from scientifics invent for themselves new worships. Tr. 1195. 1198.

1185. That those in such external worship began to reason about the internals of worship. Sig.

1186. By reason, and rational things, are properly meant things which are true; and by ratiocination, and reasoning, things which are false. III.

—³. Ratiocination from scientifics about spiritual and celestial things, is called 'whoredom.'

1212. The second origin of falsity is Knowledges and scientifics, through reasonings. Sig.

1384². As the celestial Angels perceive truth from good, they do not admit . . . ratiocination about truth; but say, It is so, or, is not so.

1385. The Spirits who pertain to the province of the scaly skin want to reason about all things . . . and the more they reason, the less they perceive; they place wisdom in ratiocination; (whereas) it belongs to angelic wisdom to perceive whether a thing is good and true without ratiocination.

1488². 'Horses' = ratiocination.

1594². The sole difference (between such men and beasts) is that the man can reason.

1626^e. One who has extinguished spiritual ideas . . . by ratiocinations.

1676². To unfold the arcana themselves . . . would give occasion for reasonings about Divine mysteries . . .

1820³. (Genii) do not combat by reasoning against goods and truths . . . For reasonings against goods and truths can never be wanting.

1888³. The state of those who through reasonings from scientifics try to enter into the mysteries of faith ; and also that these reasonings are dispersed by the Lord through the celestial things of love and the spiritual things of faith. Sig.

1911⁶. Intellectual truth is not . . . acknowledged, except as fallacies . . . are dispersed, and these are never dispersed so long as the man reasons about truths themselves from sensuous and scientific things : it is then first manifest when he believes from a simple heart that it is true because it is so said by the Lord.

1944². To reason against good and truth . . . is not to have a Rational. (Continued under RATIONAL.)

1983⁴. (Sirens) make no show of reasonings ; but there is a sort of simultaneous [rush] of reasonings inspired with evil affections.

2015^e. That they should choose genuine truth which is from good . . . and that they should not defile it with reasonings and scientifics. Sig.

2016. Man never suffers himself to be withdrawn from fallacy, so long as he gives credit to nothing but the senses, and so long as he reasons thence whether it is so.

2124. At this day, men not only reason from the senses ; but also by a philosophy unknown to the ancients [do so] concerning Divine arcana ; whereby intellectual light is completely darkened . . .

2129². Another sound, which inflowed towards the left temple, . . . was said to be the conflict of their ratiocinations about certain Truths in which they did not want to have faith.

2162^e. Scientifics from sensuous things, from which they reason about the arcana of faith. Sig. . . The more such reason, the less they believe.

2383. 'Blind watchmen' = those who, from ratiocination, are in falsity.

2385. Such do those become . . . who, from ratiocination, hatch doctrinal things, and believe nothing unless they first apprehend it : the life of evil then continually inflows into their Rational, and pours in a certain fallacious lumen from the fire of the affections of evil, and causes them to see falsities as truths . . .

2588². Even if such were to be convinced by the sensuous things of the body . . . they would always form new reasonings against truths.

—⁹. Such are easily known from other Spirits by the fact that concerning all things which are of faith, they reason whether it be so ; and if they are shown thousands of times that it is so, they still propose negative doubts . . . and would do so to eternity.

—¹². This ratiocination (against Divine things) is called 'whoredom with the sons of Egypt,' and 'with the sons of Asshur.' Ill.

2599. Spirits reason together much more fully and acutely than men, especially about goods and truths . . .

2708. Hence the celestial never reason about faith and its truths . . . but the spiritual speak and reason about the truths of faith, because they are in the conscience of good from truth ; and also because . . . the good of love is implanted in their intellectual part, where is the secondary life of man.

2733³. He wanted to reason whether it is so ; but was told that in the other life the Truth does not admit of reasonings ; for they favour the delights . . . and that he first ought to cogitate about the things which have been said, because they are truths. D.4405.

2761. 'The serpent' (which bites the horse's heels) = one who reasons from sensuous and scientific things about Divine arcana. . . (Hence the meaning is) that he who from sensuous and scientific things reasons about the truths of faith, sticks in the lowest things of nature, and thus believes nothing ; which is 'to fall backward.' 3923².

2799¹⁴. The scientifics which lay waste, when men reason from them in Divine things. Sig.

2831⁷. Those who by reasonings from scientifics want to enter into the mysteries of faith : that they are completely blinded. Sig. and Refs.

2935². (The spiritual) cherish doubts, and admit reasonings against these things ; and, so long as they are in such a state, the light of truth from the Lord cannot inflow.

3024¹. The affection of reasoning about the truths of faith, from scientifics, as to whether it be so. Sig.

3030². There is (then) no Rational, although it appears, from the fact that the man can reason . . .

3048⁴. Their vain reasonings are thus described.

3175³. The reason (truth cannot be elevated out of the Natural into the Rational) is that he places truth in doubt, and reasons about it as to whether it is so. But as soon as . . . man, from good, begins to be averse to reasonings against truth . . . then truth is in a state to be elevated, and to put on a state of good. Examps.

3182^e. He then no longer suffers his natural man to reason against (the truth).

3224². Spirits who are solely in the things which are of the light of the world . . . do not reason about falsities as to whether it is so, but affirm in a moment ; but they have continual ratiocination about goods and truths, which is terminated in a negative. Ex.

3241³. Those of the Spiritual Church . . . continually reason as to whether it is so, and everyone remains in that doctrine . . . which is of his Church. Hence there are so many differences.

3301⁷. That reasonings (have destroyed natural truth interior and exterior). Sig.

3321². There are also (in the natural mind) reasonings from falsities impressed from infancy.

3391². The destruction of the Truths of faith by means of ratiocinations. Tr.

—³. 'To look forth through a window' = through the reasonings of those who deny truths . . . for these reasonings are intellectual things in the opposite sense.

[A.] 3394³. By this (idea) they protect themselves against those who reason from the negative about everything, as to whether it is so . . .

3652⁶. After man has arrived at the regenerate state . . . if he betook himself to the former state, he would reason from truth about the good in which he is, and would thus pervert his state; for all ratiocination ceases, and ought to cease, when man is in a state to will truth and good; for he then thinks and acts from the will . . . Sig.

3748³. This Spirit wanted to reason about the Grand Man . . . (But) he was asked how he could want to reason when he did not know the [first] principles; in which case ratiocination is like scattered dust . . .

3812⁷. 'To number the bones'=to want to dissipate these (Divine truths) by reasonings and falsities.

3833². He is (now) deemed wise who can reason cleverly as to whether a thing exists; and he still wiser who can reason that it does not exist. Examps.

—³. He who reasons about the Divine Providence . . . cannot know the innumerable arcana of Providence . . . And he who reasons as to whether anyone can be in good, seeing that the will is radically depraved, can never know the arcana of regeneration . . . Hence it may be known in what obscurity such are; and that they do not see, much less touch, the first threshold of wisdom.

3843². What comes forth from the interior memory, appears as if it were innate; as may be evident . . . from the faculty of reasoning.

3900¹⁰. That confirmations of falsity through reasonings will be multiplied in the vastated Church. Sig.

3901. 'Eagles,' when predicated of the evil, = false rational things, or reasonings. Ill.

3923⁴. For those who reason concerning truth from what is negative, destroy all things of faith. Sig.

3928². (Although) he can reason about the truths and goods of faith.

3995². Reason about charity as about some foreign thing.

4031². Reason about Providence, Salvation, etc.

4046³. They who reason from external sensuous things . . . about the things of Heaven . . . go outwards, even to the scalp, which they represent; but still are within the Grand Man . . . if they have led a life of good.

4050³. Their reasonings are the fluids (of the infundibulum of the brain) which they represent.

4075². Societies which believe themselves very wise, and yet reason about good and truth, and about everything as to whether it is so, are for the most part of the spiritual . . .

4156³. He does not enjoy the Rational, who can reason from scientifics. (Continued under RATIONAL.)

4169⁴. 'He-goats'=those who . . . reason about salvation from the principle that faith saves.

4171⁵. That the evil tear by reasonings from external things . . . Sig.

4214². Many believe that they are illustrated because they can reason about good and truth . . . The reason they can reason about these things, is that they are in some faculty of knowing them, but in no affection of doing them.

—³. Those who have been in fatuous light (here) . . . reason there about good and truth, and evil and falsity, and this much more perfectly and excellently than in the life of the body; for their thoughts are not . . . impeded by cares . . . nor so terminated in (bodily and worldly things) . . . But it appears at once, not to them, but before good Spirits and Angels, that their reasonings are of fatuous lumen; and that the light of Heaven which inflows with them, is instantly turned into such lumen . . . —⁵.

4243^e. In this good are those who have conscience, that is, who no longer reason whether it be the truth, but do it because it is the truth.

4330². These Spirits of our Earth began to infest them . . . by speaking and reasoning continually from the fallacies of the senses, from the illusions thence, and from mere hypotheses . . .

4366^e. Spirits and Angels reason as men do, and much more perfectly.

4417. The Spirit reasoners said—for there are Spirits who are to be called reasoners, because they reason about everything as to whether it be so, and for the most part are in obscurity concerning every Truth . . .

4448. The men of the Most Ancient Church . . . never reasoned about any truth of faith . . .

4612³. With the evil, the light of Heaven inflows through chinks, enabling them to reason, etc.) 4618². 7442².

4653. The Spirits who constitute the ear, are in simple obedience, and do not reason as to whether it be so . . .

4741³. By various reasonings they can present it like the truth . . .

4802⁴. When such are reasoning from the life, they speak against truths.

4876⁵. 'A rod'=power from ratiocination and knowledge, such as is that of those who reason from scientifics against the truths of faith.

5044⁵. 'Asshur'=reason and ratiocination.

5120³. Spiritual drunkenness is the insanity induced through reasonings about the things to be believed, when nothing is believed which is not apprehended.

5149³. 'Birds'=reasonings, etc.

5556. The Societies which constitute the scaly skin, are those which reason about all Things, whether it be so, or whether it be not so, and go no further . . . When I have spoken with them, I have perceived that they apprehend nothing . . . and those who reason more, in the same proportion apprehend less. Yet they seem to themselves to be wise above others; for they place wisdom in the faculty of reasoning; and do not at all know that the chief of wisdom is to perceive without ratiocination, that it is so, or is not so.

5700². Those who have become such, are skilful in reasoning sharply and shrewdly from scientifics, because they reason from sensuous things; and to reason from sensuous things is to reason from such things as are external . . .

5828². The interior mind is (then) closed, and only so much of what is spiritual is admitted through it, as may enable the natural man to reason and speak; but only from earthly, corporeal, and worldly things, and that against good and truth . . .

6240². The worst can reason skilfully . . .

6295^e. For the celestial man does not reason from truth, nor about truth, because he has a perception from good . . .

6324. Spirits who reason much, perceive what is true and good but little, and therefore cannot be admitted into the interior angelic Societies . . . These Spirits have reasoned together about the influx of all the thoughts and affections, saying . . .

6398. 'Dan shall be a serpent upon the way' = their ratiocination about truth because good does not as yet lead. Ex.

—'. 'A serpent' = ratiocination from the Sensuous.

6399. 'An arrow snake upon the path' = ratiocination from truth about good.

—'. As by 'a serpent' is signified ratiocination, by 'an arrow snake' is signified ratiocination which projects itself, namely, from truth to good.

6401^e. Their ratiocinations about truth and good are called 'serpents,' in Jer. viii. 17.

6469^e. That we are not to attend to thousands of objections and ratiocinations from fallacies.

6500. For the man of the Spiritual Church . . . reasons about truths as to whether they are truths.

6534⁴. 'The red horse and he that sat upon him' = reasonings from the cupidities of evil, through which violence is inflicted on truths from the Word.

6723. The Church which darkens itself through reasonings from scientifics. Sig.

6729^e. The affection of reasoning about the truths of faith, as to whether it is so, from scientifics, when a negative reigns. Sig.

6949. 'A serpent' = a man who reasons from sensuous things.

—². All those think from a separated Sensuous who . . . are in evil of life, and thence in no faith . . . Such excel in the gift of reasoning, and also of persuading . . . for the reason that they speak from the fallacies of the senses, and the appearances in the world . . .

6952³. 'Tails' = reasonings from falsities. Ill.

7127². For everything, even the greatest falsity, can be confirmed by reasonings.

—³. For they see that the reasonings are fallacious, when the essential, which is charity, is thus excluded . . .

7265^e. The third degree (of vastation), which is that they reasoned from falsities against the truths and goods of the Church, is described by 'the frogs out of the river.' 7295^e.

7293⁴. 'Whales' = reasonings from fallacies which pervert truths.

—⁵. 'Dragons' = reasonings from the loves of self and of the world, thus from the cupidities of evil, which pervert not only truths, but goods also; and which reasonings go forth from those who at heart deny the truths and goods of faith; but with the mouth confess them for the sake of the lust of commanding and getting rich.

—^e. The reasonings (of the dragonists) by which they would endeavour to destroy the Church. Sig.

7318². The reasonings by which there is falsification, are (as follows).

—^e. There is not a single truth which cannot be falsified, and the falsification confirmed by reasonings from fallacies.

7351. Reasonings not from falsified truths, but from mere falsities. Sig. and Ex. 7352, Examps.

7356. Reasonings entering into the delights of cupidities. Sig. and Ex.

7357. That reasonings from falsities shall be in everything. Sig. and Ex.

7389. Ratiocinations from the natural mind. Sig. and Ex.

7391^e. Weariness of reasoning from mere falsities. Sig. and Ex. 7392.

7392². For by ratiocinations from mere falsities they cannot do harm. Ex. 7699.

7397. The infesters ceasing from ratiocinations. Sig. and Ex. 7407.

7408. These reasoning falsities disposed fascicularly in the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

7437^e. He who is in evil . . . is so far in falsity as he excels in the gift of reasoning and perverting.

7560^e. With the evil, goods and truths effect no more than that they can reason . . . 7601².

7643⁸. 'The locusts' = reasonings from fallacies . . .

—⁹. 'Apollyon' = ratiocination from falsities which appears as truth . . .

7877². Those in the Third Heaven . . . are in the perception of truth . . . and never reason about it . . . (But) the spiritual, in the Second Heaven, are led through the truth of faith to the good of charity, and therefore these reason as to whether it is true or not; because they do not perceive whether it is so.

8156. 'The horsemen' of Pharaoh = false reasonings from a perverted Intellectual.

8188. That they should see the effect of the dissipation of falsity, and of the reasonings . . . Sig. and Ex.

8313³. 'Voice roaring like the sea' = ratiocination from false doctrine.

—⁴. Such believe themselves the most intelligent of all; but they know nothing except how to reason from an assumed principle . . .

8869⁵. In (these verses) it treats of the art of hatching by reasonings from Own intelligence . . .

—⁶. 'To cast silver chains' = the production of reasonings so that falsities of doctrine may appear to be truths.

[A.] 889¹³. The fall of the Church (Adam) from good to truth . . . and this by ratiocination from the intellectual proprium. Sig.

8904⁵. 'To be drunken' = to be led into errors through false reasonings.

8906³. 'The aspect of the horses' = the Intellectual reasoning from falsity as if from truth.

— . 'Horsemen who run' = reasoners.

8932⁴. Falsities and evils . . . which are made to resemble truth and good by . . . reasonings from Own intelligence. Sig.

—⁶. 'The whole a work of the artificers' = that everything is through reasonings from proprium.

9011. Those who (unintentionally) reason against the truth and good of faith. Sig. and Ex.

9341³. 'The Euphrates' = pleasure originating from the loves of self and of the world, and the falsity which confirms it by reasonings from the fallacies of the senses.

9348. Reasonings from the fallacies of the senses then especially prevail . . .

—². 'A pit' = falsity induced by reasonings from the fallacies of the senses to favour the delights of the loves of self and of the world.

9391¹⁶. Because they reason sharply, they are called 'the congregation of the strong.'

9642⁷. 'The king of the north' = ratiocination about truths from scientifics.

9730⁶. Then the internal man is subordinate to the external, which takes place when the former supplies reasonings which favour evil cupidities.

9755. 'The sea' = where there is a collection of scientifics, from which there is ratiocination about truths . . .

—⁷. 'Its waves' = ratiocinations from scientifics, and consequent denials.

—^e. That there will not be ratiocination about the truths of faith from scientifics; but that truths will be impressed on hearts, is signified by, 'there was no more sea.'

9942³. The fall of the Celestial Church was effected through reasonings from scientifics about Divine truths, which is signified by the serpent which persuaded.

9942¹¹. In the Celestial Kingdom . . . they know all truth from the good of love to the Lord, insomuch that they never reason about it, as they do in the Spiritual Kingdom . . . 10786. H. 25(k), Refs. 270².

10124³. For to reason about truths, as to whether it is so, is not from good; because then truth is not perceived, but is only believed on authority and the consequent confirmation by one's self. Ex.

10201³. By intelligence and wisdom is not meant the faculty of thinking and reasoning about every Thing; for this exists equally with the evil and the good.

10227³.

—³. But strange loves lead man from truths into falsities, the faculty of thinking and reasoning still remaining . . .

10227³. Those who ascribe all things to themselves only, know how to reason about truths and goods . . .

10236⁷. As the loves of the sensuous man are such, it is evident that he is more skilful than others in reasoning . . .

H. 270³. The Angels of the First Heaven have not Divine Truths thus inscribed on their interiors . . . and therefore they reason about them; and those who reason see scarcely anything beyond the object of the Thing about which they are reasoning, nor do they go beyond the subject, except merely to confirm it . . .

—⁴. Whereas those who reason about truths . . . do not see truths from the light of truth; but draw these either from others, or from the sense of the letter, which they do not interiorly understand . . .

271². But the things which the Angels of the Third Heaven see with their eyes, enter into their memories, and about these they reason and speak; from which it is evident that the way of the hearing is to them the way of wisdom.

320. Spirits reason together much more fully and acutely than men, especially about goods and truths . . .

353³. But still sensuous men can reason, some more skilfully and acutely than others; but from the fallacies of the senses confirmed by their scientifics; and because they can thus reason, they believe themselves wiser than others. The fire which kindles with affection their reasonings, is the fire of the love of self and of the world. Sig.

464⁵. See RATIONAL, here.

—^e. Therefore (these learned) are there bereaved of the faculty of reasoning, lest by their reasonings they should disseminate falsities among the simple good.

J. 25⁶. (Such) equally possess the faculty of thinking and willing . . . such things as are from the Divine . . . Hence (those in Hell) possess the faculty of reasoning and speaking against Divine truths . . .

S. 13². That the locusts appeared like horses prepared for war = their reasonings as from the understanding of truth.

—³. 'The voice of their wings as the voice of chariots running to war' = ratiocinations as from truths of doctrine from the Word, for which they would fight.

F. 53⁶. 'Whose fruit was a flying fire-serpent' = reasonings from the falsities of evil against the truths and goods of the Church.

P. 219³. In the Third Heaven they never reason about Divine Things, as to whether it is so, or is not so; but they see in themselves from the Lord . . . and therefore to reason about Divine Things as to whether they are so, or not, is [done] because the reasoner does not see them from the Lord; but wants to see them from himself; and that which man sees from himself is evil. But still the Lord wills that man should not only think and speak about Divine Things, but should also reason about them, to the end that he may see that it is so, or is not so; and this thought, speech, or ratiocination, provided it has for its end that the Truth may be seen, may be said to be from the Lord with the man; but it is from the man, until he sees the Truth, and acknowledges it. Meanwhile, this is from the Lord alone:

that he can think, speak, and reason; for this he can do from the two faculties which are called freedom and rationality, which man has from the Lord alone.

233^e. These adulterations and falsifications (of the Word) are effected through reasonings from the natural man . . .

R. 224¹². Such are very numerous at this day . . . They reason and reason . . . nor do they see anything as to whether it is so.

334. (All Knowledges of good and truth dispersed) through reasonings of the natural man separate from the spiritual. Sig. E.403.

396. Ratiocinations about faith alone, heard. Sig. and Ex.

431. Because they can reason, they appear to themselves to combat from the understanding of truth from the Word. Sig.

437. Their reasonings as if from truths of doctrine from the Word fully understood. Sig.

447. Reasonings about faith alone . . . Sig. 449.

530. 'Lightnings, voices, and thunders'=ratiocinations (excited below). E.702.

563. Ratiocinations from falsities in abundance to destroy the Church. Sig. and Ex.

—'. 'Out of the mouth of the serpent'=ratiocinations. . . The ratiocinations of those meant by 'the dragon' are all from fallacies and appearances; which, if confirmed, appear outwardly as truths, but within conceal falsities in abundance . . . They do not suffer those to recede from them, who have once been caught by their reasonings . . .

564. That the ratiocinations from falsities in abundance put forth by the dragonists, fall to nothing before the spiritual truths rationally understood, which the 'Michaels' of the New Church adduce. Sig. and Ex.

574. 'His mouth as the mouth of a lion'=reasonings from falsities as from truths.

699. Influx from the Lord into their interior reasonings by which they confirm justification by faith alone. Sig. and Ex.

700. That the falsities of these reasonings were removed with those who are in truths from goods from the Lord who are to be introduced into the New Church. Sig. and Ex.

710. 'Voices, lightnings, and thunders'=ratiocinations, falsifications of truth, and argumentations, from the falsities of evil in the Church with those in faith alone, who refuse to reflect upon the evils in themselves . . . Ex.

M. 232. (The cry, Oh how learned! was said of those who) are merely sensuous, and who are called by the Angels reasoners, for the reason that they never conclude anything; but take up whatever they hear, and dispute as to whether it is so. Des. T.333.

415. I saw lightning flashing, and heard thunder rolling (which was because there were some near who) were reasoning sharply about God and nature . . .

T. 40^e. The mere light of the world . . . is a fatuous lumen, in which . . . ratiocination from falsities appears like wisdom; and ratiocination from truths, like insanity.

72. I heard an unusual murmur (which arose from) a company of Spirits reasoning about imputation and predestination . . .

335. Such (meteors) appear there in the atmospheres from the reasonings of those who are standing below. Des.

402⁴. Sensuous men reason sharply and skilfully, because their thought is so near their speech as to be almost in it . . . and because they place all intelligence in speech from the memory alone.

D. 222. This (third natural atmosphere), in the natural mind, seems to produce reasonings, in which however what is spiritual must be present, that they may live . . . The purest ethereal sphere is that . . . which is presented about the ratiocinations of the same mind; hence this mind is called the natural mind; and its interior operations, when perverted, are called ratiocinations; but, when according to order, simply reason . . .

511. There are other [tenacious] Spirits who perform an important use, who seize upon whatever is being thought, and, without reasoning, believe . . .

1693^e. These constitute the province of the external skin of the head; for the more they reason from the senses of the body about spiritual and celestial things, the more exteriorly do they go.

2463. (The folly of) reasoning from external things as to whether internal things are so, when one has never seen them.

2651². As this is the Truth, there should be no reasoning about the Truth of the Thing from causes . . .

2675. Therefore (such) have no Intellectual, although they can reason.

2725. On Spirits who wanted . . . to believe from reasonings.

2890². When they did not understand . . . they wanted to draw me into some reasonings, to whom it was said that this is the Truth, and a general law; and if reasonings were to be formed against it, nothing would be understood about this law and Truth; but there would only be heaps of reasonings, causing thick darkness of mind.

3105. That man knows many Truths, but does not acknowledge them the moment he reasons. 3107.

3476. The corporeal cannot reason, except from corporeal and material things . . .

3513. (The Dutch) do not reason about interior things, because they say that no one can know them.

3514. They are not instructed like others, because they call [such things] reasonings.

3581. I spoke with (the Antediluvians) about objections and reasonings against the Truths of faith . . .

—². If I should contemplate the viscera and brain of a sparrow, and should reason thence as to whether the sparrow be alive . . . it would be denied . . .

[D.] 3582. If I should reason from the stalk, fibres . . . sap, and root, of a flower . . . I should fall into the shade, and deny the existence of the flower.

3590. I heard Spirits reasoning: that they could not reason otherwise than from sensuous and corporeal things about spiritual and celestial ones, because they were corporeal. But I perceived the reply that they ought to think from Heaven; that is, from the Knowledges of faith . . .

3703. There were some Spirits from the Societies which constitute the skin, who were always wanting to reason; but it was perceived that ratiocination is the greatest folly; and that those who reason perceive nothing of what truth and good is; and also that the more anyone reasons the less he perceives, placing everything in ratiocination, so that he may seem wise to others; (whereas) intelligence and wisdom consist in perceiving at once, without ratiocination, whether a thing is true and good; for those who are intelligent and wise . . . perceive (it) at once, without any ratiocination; and it is known also among men that when anyone reasons for whole hours, or through an entire volume, those are intelligent and wise who know in a moment what is true and good, nor do they attend a whit to their ratiocinations, but laugh at them . . . Nothing is more common than this; and therefore, being indignant with those reasoners, it was given to repel their reasonings as often as [they advanced them]. These are they who constitute the scaly skin; and are for the most part those who had become such in [earthly] life from the confusion of what is true and good through philosophical and scientific things, and who have less common sense—if they have any at all—than the most unlearned.

3611. The quality of those who reason.—Those who reason are those who doubt and deny. It was apperceived that they are light, suffering themselves to be led hither and thither. . . They are prone to scortation . . . and were likened to oyster shells, being crustaceous and empty. (3612) Such strike a pain into the left side of the head . . . They incrust the brain. . . When I would not admit such objections, I felt a pain in the nerves of the left side of the neck (which was caused by) the reasoners no longer wanting to be with me, and beginning to go away.

3706. Those who reason are of two kinds; one, who know not what truth and good are, and thus reason about all truth and good, and the more they reason, the less they know; the other, who reason against truth and good, endeavouring thus to destroy them. Those who defend Truths by speaking, are not reasoners, but confirmers: such are in the perception of truth and good, and confirm them by reasons.

3817. When I was walking about a stable and smelled the ordure of the horses, upright Spirits complained that they could not endure that odour, because there at once came to them the sphere of ratiocinations from natural things . . . 3894.

3891. (Dippel) wanted to reason about the Grand Man . . . He was asked how he could want to reason when he did not know the rules; for in that case ratiocination is like scattered dust.

3977. When the Knowledges of faith have been confirmed, the Lord gifts the man with conscience . . . he then rejects all reasonings. This sphere is angelic, and evil Spirits cannot be in it. But so long as he is in a state of the confirmation of them, and reasons with them, in order to convince them of Truths, then the Spirits can be present.

4088. After these things had been written, the Societies around me reasoned about it. Their ratiocination inflowed most generally, so that nothing was perceived but an obscure and confused something, which affected the brain with a dull pain. So that if all the ratiocinations of Spirits were to inflow, man would be (in a like state) and would perceive nothing . . . The quality of their ratiocination was evinced by a white cloud in the azure, which raised, depressed, and bent itself about, and which was solely the ratiocination of a number of Societies.

4095. Although thousands of reasonings . . . should present what is different.

4102. The Spirits around me . . . kept up all night . . . a perpetual . . . ratiocination . . . They had so many reasons, and so many reasonings about that Thing, that it was incredible . . .

4114a. Whatever Spirits think or speak, they can confirm by so many reasons or reasonings, that no one could believe it.

4364. Those who were deceived by the hypocrite . . . were all reasoners. Reasoners do not know what good and truth are, but suffer themselves to be seduced by such . . . deriving thence delight. Reasoners are the hands and arms of evil Spirits . . .

4480. The reasonings of some that sins are wiped away in the other life. Ex.

4760. The dragon' = those who reason from knowledges about Divine truths . . . They reason more than others . . .

5848. On those who reason about truths as to whether it is so: that they do not come to the first threshold of wisdom. Gen.art.

5849. There was communicated to a celestial Angel their delight from ratiocination, and he said that their delight was so absurd that it could not be described.

5915. Luther loved . . . to reason, and to confirm by reasonings. (Continued under LUTHER.)

D. Min. 4723. On certain reasoners high above the head.

E. 283¹⁵. Falsities, and ratiocinations therefrom. Sig.

357²². That he who can reason skilfully from doctrine and the memory of the natural man, cannot consult for his salvation. Sig.

— That he who trusts in himself because he can reason from falsities, shall be deprived of all truth. Sig.

375³⁸. To pervert the goods of the Church by reasonings from scientifics. Sig.

386³. Hence arises ratiocination from mere falsities. Sig.

388¹¹. The intellectual or reasoning man . . .

403. Which the natural man has laid waste by his ratiocinations. Sig. and Ex.

405²⁹. The conceit of those who through ratiocinations from falsities want to destroy the goods and truths of the Church. Tr.

411¹⁹. The desolation of all truth of doctrine through false reasonings. Tr.

455¹⁷. Ratiocinations from external sensuous things. Sig.

498. The ratiocinations (which existed in the former Heaven just before the Last Judgment). Sig. and Ex.

552. That man, having become sensuous, reasons as if from the understanding of truth. Sig. and Ex.

558. Ratiocinations as if from truths of doctrine . . . Sig. and Ex.

—². The ratiocinations of the sensuous man from falsities . . . appear, in the external form, exactly like the ratiocinations of the spiritual man ; but are entirely unlike in the internal. Ex.

569. Ratiocinations from fallacies . . . which had not been received before. Sig. and Ex.

—². Genuine reasonings about spiritual things come forth from the influx of Heaven into the spiritual man and through the rational into the knowledges and Knowledges which are in the natural man ; by means of which reasonings the spiritual man confirms himself. This way of reasoning about spiritual things is according to order. But ratiocinations about spiritual things which take place from the natural man . . . are quite contrary to order ; for the natural man . . . cannot inflow into the spiritual, and, from himself, see anything there. Ex.

—¹⁵. 'The Euphrates,' in the opposite sense, = ratiocination (as distinguished from the Rational). By ratiocination is here meant thought and argumentation from fallacies and from falsities ; whereas by the Rational is meant thought and argumentation from knowledges and from truths. Ill.

—¹⁶. These see the scientifics of the natural man, and the reasonings thence, as below them.

—²³. It is to be known that ratiocinations are in the same degree as the thoughts, because they descend from these ; thus that there are ratiocinations from the spiritual man, which, however, are rather to be called conclusions from reasons and from truths ; that there are ratiocinations from the natural man ; and also from the sensuous man. The ratiocinations from the spiritual man are rational . . . and are from the light of Heaven ; but the ratiocinations from the natural man about spiritual things are not rational, however they may be in moral and civil things, which appear before the eyes ; for they are from natural lumen alone ; and the ratiocinations from the sensuous man about spiritual things are irrational, being from fallacies . . . These ratiocinations are what are here treated of in the Apocalypse.

573. Falsities of evil, from which and for which are reasonings . . . Sig. and Ex.

575. Falsifications of the Word through ratiocinations from fallacies. Sig. and Ex.

576. Ratiocinations combating from the cupidities of the love of self and of the love of the world, and from the derivative falsities. Sig. and Ex.

—⁶. For those who reason from Own intelligence, appear to themselves and others, who are such, as if intelligent and wise . . . Sig.

578. Thoughts and the derivative reasonings springing from the love of evil and falsity, and from the concupiscence of destroying truths and goods . . . Sig. and Ex.

580. That sensuous thoughts and the derivative ratiocinations are very powerful with them. Sig. and Ex.

581. That they reason astutely from sensuous scientifics, which are fallacies. Sig. and Ex. 582.

617¹⁶. If (the men of the Most Ancient Church) had committed spiritual things to the natural memory . . . they would have begun to reason from the natural man about spiritual things . . .

650³. The love of self is like a fire which kindles the natural lumen into a sort of resplendence : hence it is that such can think and reason cleverly against the Divine, and against all things of Heaven and the Church.

654¹². (Then) instead of the Rational, there is ratiocination.

—⁴⁴. 'Gilead' = ratiocination from the sense of the letter . . .

739⁶. The men of the Celestial Church . . . do not reason about truths as to whether it is so or is not so ; for he who sees truths in himself does not reason ; for to reason involves dubiety as to whether it is so.

774. 'The beast rising out of the sea' = reasonings from the natural man confirming the separation of faith from life. —³, Ex. —⁸.

780. The reasonings discordant and yet apparently coherent. Sig. and Ex.

782. 'His mouth as the mouth of a lion' = ratiocinations from falsities destroying the truths of the Church.

783. That by reasonings from fallacies they make strong their doctrinals . . . Sig.

790. The acknowledgment of the reasonings by which the discordance with the Word was apparently removed. Sig. and Ex.

810. 'Captivity' = to seclude from truths, here, by reasonings from the natural man.

819. 'The prior beast' = the connection of reasonings from the natural man with the sense of the letter. Sig. and Ex. 821. 826. 831.

—². For nothing false can ever be confirmed through the sense of the letter, except through reasonings from the natural man. Ex.

—³. Examps. of these reasonings from the natural man.

—⁴. Why they are called reasonings from the natural man. Ex.

—^e. For without reasonings from the natural man, the Word cannot be falsified. 885.

5 M. All Satans can reason skilfully : but from the fallacies of the senses . . .

Rebekah. Rebecca.

A. 2865. 'Bethuel begat Rebekah' (Gen.xxii.23)= from good their affection of truth.

3012. Rebekah, here, = truth to be initiated to good.

3040. Rebekah, in this chapter, = the Divine truth which is to be conjoined with the Divine good of the Rational (Isaac).

3077. 'Rebekah came out' (Gen.xxiv.15)=the affection of truth from doctrinals; for Rebekah represents truth Divine to be conjoined with the Divine good of the Rational; but here, before she was betrothed, she puts on the representation of the affection of truth from doctrinals; for thence is truth . . . Rebekah represents that in the Rational which is conjoined as a wife with her husband; and this is Divine truth.

3102^e. This illustration in the natural man is from good, yet is through truth; (and) is that which is signified by Rebekah drawing for the camels, and giving them to drink.

3106. 'Rebekah'=the affection of truth. 3112. 3133. 3164. 3165. 3179.

3141. 'Rebekah'=truth from the natural man (which was to be conjoined with the good in the Rational). 3153.

3182. 'They sent away Rebekah their sister' (ver.59)=separation from the affection of truth Divine.

3188. 'Rebekah arose' (ver.61)=the elevation and consequent separation of the affection of truth. Ex.

3202. 'Rebekah lifted up her eyes and saw Isaac' (ver.64)=the reciprocal intention of the affection of truth.

3282. 'In his receiving Rebekah' (Gen.xxv.20)=the conjunction of Divine truth.

3286. 'His woman was barren' (Gen.xxv.21)=as yet no Divine Natural; (for) 'woman' (Rebekah) = the Divine truth conjoined with the good of the Rational.

3288. 'Rebekah his woman conceived' (id.)=(the origin of the Divine Natural) from Divine truth as a mother; for 'Rebekah'=the Divine truth of the Rational.

3314. 'Rebekah loved Jacob' (ver.28)=that the Divine truth of the Divine Rational loved the doctrine of truth.

3385. 'Rebekah'=the Divine truth of the Lord's Divine Rational.

3387. 'He feared to say My woman; for perhaps the men of the place will kill me on account of Rebekah' (Gen.xxvi.7)=that Divine truths themselves could not be opened, because in that case Divine good would not be received. . . 'Rebekah'=the Lord's Divine Rational as to Divine truth.

3392. 'Isaac was laughing with Rebekah his woman' (ver.8)=that Divine good was present in Divine truth . . . 'Rebekah'=the Divine truth of the Lord's Rational.

3471. 'Isaac and Rebekah' (ver.35)=the Lord's Divine Rational as to Divine good and Divine truth.

3507. 'Rebekah heard when Isaac spake to Esau' (Gen.xxvii.5)=the affection of truth, and the life from

it. 'Rebekah'=the Lord's Divine Rational as to the Divine truth conjoined with the Divine good there; thus the very affection of truth.

3509. 'Rebekah said to Jacob her son' (ver.6)=the Lord's perception from Divine truth concerning natural truth.

—². 'Isaac'=the rational mind as to the good of the will; and 'Rebekah,' as to the truth of the understanding. 3576.

3517. 'Rebekah,' who is here speaking, (ver.8)=the Divine truth of the Divine Rational.

3525. 'Jacob said to Rebekah his mother' (ver.11)=the Lord's perception from Divine truth concerning natural truth. 3531.

3536. Rebekah, who is here 'mother' (ver.14)=the Divine Rational as to truth.

3538. Rebekah, who here is 'her' (ver.15)=the Divine truth of the Divine Rational. 3539. 3545.

3608. 'The words of Esau her elder son were told to Rebekah' (ver.42)=the Lord's perception from Divine truth concerning the mind of natural good then.

3609. '(Rebekah) called to Jacob her younger son' (id.)=the state of the apperception of the affection of truth from influx through Divine truth.

3619. 'Rebekah said to Isaac' (ver.46)=the Lord's perception from Divine truth.

3796. Collateral good . . . was conjoined in brotherhood with the rational truth represented by Rebekah the mother of Jacob.

3973^e. 'Rebekah'=truth Divine conjoined with the good Divine of the Rational.

4563. See DEBORAH (Rebekah's nurse), here.

—^e. From mediate influx through the truth of the Rational, or Rebekah.

4614^e. 'Rebekah' represents the Lord's Divine Rational as to truth; and Rebekah is not mentioned here.

4641^e. 'Rebekah' represents this truth (of the Rational).

Rebel. Rebellis.

Rebel, To. Rebellare.

Rebellion. Rebellio.

A. 451. If he would exercise command otherwise, he was a rebel . . . H.407. D.3872.

897². 'For they are a house of rebellion' (Ezek.xii.2)=those who can understand, etc., and will not.

1668. 'In the third year they rebelled' (Gen.xiv.4)=the beginning of temptations in (His) childhood.

— . What 'to rebel' signifies, may be evident when it is predicated of the evils, or of the evil Spirits, with man, when they have been subjugated, or are serving, and begin to rise up and infest. Evils, or evil Spirits, rebel, in proportion as a man who wants to be in goods and truths, confirms with himself any evils and falsities; or in proportion as cupidities and Falsities insinuate themselves into his goods and truths . . .

3863⁷. Because of evils, which are 'the house of rebellion' (Ezek.xii.2).

5647². Therefore, when man is being reformed, and begins to become spiritual . . . the Natural rebels . . .

5664a⁴. If man had a perception (of this influx) he would rebel . . .

9156³. 'Those who rebel against Thee' (Ps.v.10). 'To rebel' is said when there are defection and transgression.

H. 311. When Satan became a rebel . . . 544.

574³. Rebellious commotions in Hell are continual, because everyone wants to be greatest.

M. 500⁷. There breathed on the rebels the delight of marriage.

T. 117. (Comparison with) an army of robbers or rebels . . .

120². He who mixes himself up with rebels, at last scruples not to do violence to anyone.

D. 408. There was as it were a rebellion (in the Heaven of Spirits).

2658. Although the letter be dead and a rebel like Absalom . . .

5024. They wanted to excite them to rebellion.

5093. Those Spirits who were rebellious or seditious . . .

5202². Thus it carried down all who had rebelled . . .

5211. They stirred up a rebellion . . .

5260. As they began to rebel against the Lord.

5731a. Those who had kept them strongly in rebellion . . .

5828. Again and again they became rebellious.

J. (Post.) 140. As when a rebellion is made by a few.

E. 412³³. To be against this (Divine truth) is signified by 'to rebel to the eyes of His glory' (Is.iii.8). 433³³.

683³. Yet the Lord rules them, not like subjects of His Kingdom, but like rebels, by keeping them in bonds to prevent their doing evil to each other.

Rebirth. Renascentia.

Reborn, To be. Renasci.

A. 4925³. Good is not acknowledged to be prior until the man has been reborn.

4931³. Thus he comes again into the womb, and is reborn.

5113. The rebirth of this Sensuous. Des.

5115. The influx through which is the rebirth. Sig. and Ex.

—². The man who is being reborn. Des.

5122. The states of the rebirth of this Sensuous. Sig.

5130³. The rebirth of the Sensuous subject to the intellectual part. Tr.

5131^e. In order that man may be reborn . . .

5202². This was the first of the rebirth of the Natural.

—³. As the Natural cannot be reborn as to intellectual things alone . . .

—⁴. For the man who is in good is being reborn every moment . . . to eternity, not only as to the interiors, but also as to the exteriors, and this by stupendous processes . . .

5212². The rebirth of both Naturals, interior and exterior. Tr.

5348. 'To be born' = to be reborn.

E. 638¹¹. The spiritual coming forth and rebirth of the Spiritual Church. Sig.

Rebound. Resilire.

T. 642. Rebounds like an elastic ball . . .

D. 5535a. They rebound to the west, as when a spring . . . rebounds.

Rebuke. See under CHARGE, and SCOLD.

Recall. Revocare.

Recalling. A. Revocatio.

A. 868^e. (These states) are recalled in the other life.

5044². The truth which has been implanted through affection is recalled through affection: and, when this truth is recalled, the affection is presented . . .

5251^e. The things said before should be recalled.

5489. So when the scientific is recalled, the good conjoined with it comes forth.

7398. Not by a sensible recalling from the memory.

M. 2^e. That they might recall this subject from their (former) ideas.

3783. Spirits are not permitted to recall anything (from the memory of past things).

4164. On the recalling of a man's states.

4378. That persons are recalled together with the idea . . .

4395. There are Spirits who . . . recall filthy things to see whether another Spirit still thinks such things . . . —^e.

4469. The voluntary things . . . of the exterior memory . . . they are not allowed to recall into use. Those who are permitted to recall them are the unhappy . . .

J. (Post.) 231. All man's states can be recalled after death . . .

Recede. Recedere.

Recession. Recessio.

A. 63^e. At the end of the 'sixth day' the evil Spirits recede.

1396^e. Being ashamed, he receded.

1411^e. That He should recede from the things of the external man. Sig.

3170. Then the things of the cupidity of evil and of the persuasion of falsity recede.

3603⁴. After regeneration, these things recede.

4073². When the Societies . . . which are in middle good recede . . .

4077. Societies do not easily recede . . . and when he with whom they are recedes, they are indignant.

4110². The separation of Spirits of a middle sort is effected by many means, until they recede in freedom. Ex.

[A.] 5964. Recession from the scientifics of the Church. Sig. and Ex.

—². In this state they recede from celestial and spiritual things . . . This occultation, or recession, is not effected by the Lord's hiding Himself, or receding; but by themselves doing so.

5979. Therefore the Angels recede as the infernal Spirits approach nearer (to the man); yet the Angels . . . never recede completely . . .

6400^e. They (then) easily recede from faith about the resurrection.

— . The recession thence. Sig. 6401.

7271. That they would recede from infestation. Sig.

7295². Then the Angels and good Spirits recede by degrees from them; and, as they recede, they become less and less rational.

7573. The recession and separation of the communication with those in good and truth. Sig. and Ex.

7614. Recession still further. Sig.

8953. The Spirits of (Saturn) recede from the natural sense in man, and accede to the spiritual.

9899. 'The breast-plate shall not depart from upon the ephod' (Ex.xxviii.28)=all things of Heaven inseparable from the externals of the Spiritual Kingdom.

10422. 'They have departed suddenly from the way which I have commanded them' (Ex.xxxii.8)=that they have removed themselves from Divine truth.

H. 74². They can (then) with difficulty recede from these things.

399². So often did my delight recede.

506. They thus recede from a holy external, and come into a holy internal.

522. The Divine mercy . . . never recedes from anyone.

543². As these fears recede . . .

W. 257⁵. These substances recede when man dies.

P. 226. That if man afterwards recedes . . . he profanes holy things. Ex. 227³. 231⁷. R.202².

233⁴. Man would (then) recede from good.

R. 336. That all the good of love and truth of faith had receded. Sig. and Ex.

417⁴. Lest I should disturb them, I withdrew.

698. That still they do not recede from falsities . . . and evils. Sig. 710.

T. 380. Faith which . . . departs from the true faith.

490. If God is not received, He does not withdraw . . .

E. 538⁵. 'The rod of Egypt shall depart' (Zech.x.11). Ex.

627⁹. 'The streams shall depart' (Is.xix.6)=that all things of spiritual intelligence will go away. . . 'To depart,' etc., = to perish.

1049⁴. By recession (this) is profaned.

1079. This recession is described here.

Receive. Accipere.

A. 23. 'Day' is taken from time itself. 34.

30². They receive life through faith.

1084. 'They took a garment' (Gen.ix.23).

2511. 'He took Sarah' (Gen.xx.2).

3470. 'He took . . . Judith' (Gen.xxvi.34) = the adjunction of natural truth.

3570⁴. The new soul which man receives.

3662. 'Not to take a woman' (Gen.xxviii.1)=not to be conjoined. 3681.

3687^e. 'To take to wife'=to be associated and conjoined. 3703¹⁶. 4437. 4820. 9002. 10651.

4262. 'To take of what came into his hand' (Gen.xxxiii.13)=what was of the Divine Providence.

7207. 'I will take you . . . for a people' (Ex.vi.7)=that they shall be added to those in Heaven . . . thus to receive among those who are in Heaven.

7322. 'To take the rod and stretch out the hand'=to exercise power.

7835. 'To take, with a neighbour, one of the flock' (Ex.xii.4)=conjunction.

9265. 'Not to receive' (a gift)=to be averse to.

10405. 'To receive out of the hand'=to receive such things as are his.

P. 161. 'Remember how thou hast received and heard' (Rev.iii.3). Ex.

189. 'That no one take thy crown' (ver.11)=lest wisdom perish.

Receive. Recipere.

Reception. Receptio.

Receptibility. Receptibilitas.

A. 1366. With difficulty, if ever, can they be brought to receive truths.

1940². What flows in, is received according to the state. 1980^e. 2284².

2706. Diversely according to the reception of life.

2741. Conjugal love is diversely received; and, as it is received, such does it become . . .

2875². Affection is the receiving [agent] itself. To receive anything against the affection, is to receive it against the life; therefore, the truth of doctrine cannot be received except by the affection of it; and, such as is the affection, such is the reception . . .

2888. Life is received by everyone according to his nature.

2901. The reception of faith. Tr. 2913.

2902. A new Church which was kindly received.

2915^e. With those not in goods . . . there is no plane, nor soil, thus no recipient.

2920. 'Hear us'=reception.

2927. The Lord's joy on account of a kind reception. Sig. and Ex.

2933. Those with whom the truth and good of faith can be received. Sig. 2940. 2951. 2963.

- 2950^o. Reception is first, being of the understanding.
2957. A state of reception. Sig. 2958.
2966. The 'price of redemption' is predicated of the reception by man, with whom it is great according to the reception.
- 2967². Why one receives differently from another.
- 2982². Without the good of life there is no reception; and, where there is no reception, there is no trust.
3001. To this life the recipients correspond . . . The recipients, according to what they are, so they live . . .
3005. For all Salvation is . . . by the reception of the Divine good.
- 3157^e. Truth . . . is not received by good, unless there is consent . . . Consent is acknowledgment itself; through this is reception effected . . . and when truth . . . has been received by the will . . . the man is regenerate.
- 3183². For the giver and the recipient are as agent and patient.
- 3310². For the good in man is what receives the Word.
- 3325⁷. The Divine love is received variously . . .
- 3385^e. Truth . . . is given according to their apprehension; for thus it is received . . . otherwise, there would be no reception, because no acknowledgment.
3388. 'Good in aspect' = what is easily received.
3390. A state of reception. Sig.
— . The reception of truth by the spiritual is here treated of.
3392. Spiritual truth received because it is called Divine . . .
- 3488². 'To kill,' when predicated of good and truth, = not to be received.
—⁶. It is charity which receives faith.
3541. 'Hand' = power, thus the faculty of receiving.
3570. For good receives no other.
—⁴. Celestial good and spiritual truth . . . impart the power to receive each of them . . .
3646. The influx is the same . . . but it is received differently.
3742. Angels, Spirits, and men, are only recipients of life.
- 3743². Still, the evil, and the infernals also, are forms recipient of life . . .
3803. For man receives only so much from others, as he either has of his own, or acquires by looking into the matter in himself.
3919. 'To conceive' = reception. 3955.
- 3938². The esse of man is nothing else than a recipient of the eternal which proceeds from the Lord; for men, Spirits, and Angels are nothing but recipients, or forms recipient, of life from the Lord. The reception of life is that of which existere is predicated.
- 3957⁷. If there is not in men . . . something recipient of good and truth, as a ground, or plane, the inflowing good and truth cannot be received.

3967. The faculty of receiving and acknowledging. Sig.
- 4027³. The reception of truth. Tr.
- 4180². This light . . . affects all according to the reception. Those in evil do not receive the Divine good . . . But the Divine truth can be received even by the evil, but only by their external man . . . So, when the heat of the sun is received . . . But when the light alone is received, nothing vegetates . . .
—⁵. (Those who) receive Divine truth in good (are signified by) 'as many as received' (John i. 12).
—⁶. For the Divine good cannot be received even by an Angel . . . but the Divine truth can be received . . . in which Divine good can dwell, with a difference according to the reception.
4198. The Lord is present with everyone, but according to the reception. Ex.
- 4206². Not because there are various things in the Lord, but because His Divine is variously received by men. Ex.
4220. Those who in the life of the body had received Divine things . . .
4250. To dispose . . . to receive the good represented by Esau. Sig. 4252a^o.
—^e. According to the reception of good by truths.
- 4531². The light is according to the reception.
- 4612². The Rational receives truths and goods before and more easily than the Natural.
- 4618³. Unless there were reception of it in the Second Heaven, the wisdom (in the Third Heaven) would be dissipated: and so unless there were a reception of the light and intelligence of the Second Heaven in the First; and, finally, of that of the First Heaven in the Natural of man, the intelligence of these Heavens would be dissipated, unless it was provided . . . that there should be reception elsewhere; and therefore the Heavens have been formed so that the one may serve the other for reception; and, at last, that man, as to his Natural and Sensuous, may serve for ultimate reception . . .
- 4638³. 'They went forth to meet the Bridegroom' = their reception.
- 4674³. Believing that Heaven is only reception.
4742. The light of Heaven is varied with everyone according to the reception.
- 4747². If they have confirmed themselves against Divine truths in both doctrine and life, they . . . can never be brought to receive them . . .
—². The gentiles . . . easily receive Divine truths . . .
- 4776². No one can ever receive the truths of faith—that is, imbue and appropriate them to himself—unless he is in the life of charity.
—³. Those in love towards the neighbour can receive all the truths of faith . . . But those in the love of self can never receive them . . . except for the sake of their own honour and gain . . .
—⁴. Such as the loves are, such are the lives, because such are the receptions of life: love towards the neighbour receives the life of Heaven; and the love of self receives the life of Hell.

[A.4776]³. Hence those only who have lived in charity are received into Heaven; and, from charity, they are in the potency to receive and imbue all truths. But with those in separated faith . . . their loves receive such things as are in agreement with them . . .

4802. There are evil Spirits who . . . receive the truths of faith . . . and even receive them with desire; but not . . . to live according to them; but to glory over others . . . For man's Intellectual is such that it can receive truths; but still the truths are not appropriated to them unless they live according to them.

4904. 'Conception' = the reception of the truth of faith . . . and reception is effected when the truth of the understanding passes into the good of the will . . .

4918^e. 'In pangs to bring forth' = received with difficulty.

4956. When in humiliation, he is in a state of the reception of good and truth.

5057². If reception into Heaven were of mercy alone, all would be received into Heaven.

5068. As the good have received Divine truth, they are judged from good . . . and as the evil have not received Divine truth, they are judged from truth . . . To receive Divine truth is not only to have faith, but also to act faith . . .

5084⁵. As man has reciprocity, he has reception, which is impossible with beasts.

5097². The Lord is always rising (as a Sun) with everyone who receives the truth which is of faith and the good which is of love, but is setting with everyone who does not receive them. Ex.

5114⁴. As the inmost of man is such that he can receive the Divine, and not only receive it, but also appropriate it to himself by acknowledgment and affection, thus by reciprocity . . . he can never die; for he is in what is eternal and infinite, not only by influx thence, but also by reception.

5118. The influx of the interior Natural into the exterior, and the beginning of reception. Sig. and Ex.

—². But the things which inflow, are changed according to the reception . . .

5130. The reception of faith. Sig. and Ex.

5131³. Without administering means . . . the end . . . cannot be received. Therefore, man's interior and exterior things . . . must be reduced to correspondence, in order that he may receive the Divine influx.

5144². In every degree (the influent good) is qualified according to the reception. —⁵.

5147. The inmost is in the most perfect state, and therefore it can receive good from the Lord immediately . . .

—². As to the influx of celestial good . . . and its reception, it is to be known that the Voluntary receives good, and the Intellectual receives truth; and that the Intellectual cannot receive truth so as to appropriate it, unless the Voluntary receives good at the same time; and contrariwise; for the one inflows into the other, and disposes it to receive.

5194. Good the influent; truth the recipient.

5470. The Lord continually inflows with good . . . and man either receives it or does not receive it. If he receives, it is well with him; but if he does not receive, it is evil with him. If, when he does not receive, he feels anything of anxiety . . . there is hope that he can be reformed . . .

5475. 'Ye would not hearken' = no reception.

5620¹³. There must be delight in order that man may receive . . .

5623. Truth in powers denotes in the faculties of receiving . . . but the faculties or powers of receiving truth are entirely according to good . . . In the other life, those in good have the faculty of not only perceiving truth, but also of receiving it, according to the quality and quantity of the good in which they are. But those in evil have no faculty of receiving truth. Ex. . . Moreover, every man of sound mind is in the faculty of receiving truths; but those who turn themselves to evil extinguish this faculty, whereas those who turn themselves to good elevate it.

5847. Life is one . . . but it is variously received . . . 6467.

5957^e. For, when man is in humiliation, he can receive good from the Lord. Ex.

6000³. In the first time of the Church, truth is received, because they are in good. . . In the last time, nothing of truth is received, because they are not in good; for, when man is not in . . . charity towards the neighbour, if the greatest truths are told him, he does not receive them. Ex.

6027². In proportion to the good in the external man, in the same proportion the good which inflows from the Lord is received there.

6148. That the Internal from the Natural procured the faculties of receiving good. Sig. and Ex.

— . For faculty is receptibility. Ex.

— . Unless the good of love inflowed from the Lord, no man would possess the faculty of receiving either truth or good. (This) influx causes all things within man to be disposed for reception.

—². The faculties of receiving truth and good with man are immediately from the Lord . . . for man is always kept in the faculty of receiving good and truth: from this faculty he has understanding and will; and the reason he does not receive, is that he then turns himself to evil . . . —¹¹, Sig.

— . That man contributes nothing to the faculty of receiving good and truth, is known . . .

6222². The things of the literal sense are general vessels which receive truths . . .

— . (When confirmed by the letter) if they were to hear the truth itself from Heaven, they would not receive it.

6317^e. As they have not closed the interiors, they are in the faculty of receiving goods and truths.

6368². Unless (after death) a man has been in spiritual good through faith, there is not anything which receives the good which inflows from the Lord . . .

6374. That from His Divine Human would proceed the truths which could be received. Sig. and Ex.

6417^e. Thus the Divine Spiritual and the Divine Celestial are so called relatively to the receptions.

6472. (The Divine truth and the Divine good) are variously received by man, namely, according to his quality. The Lord does not compel man to receive that which inflows from Himself . . .

6512. That it may be well received. Sig.

6566. Reception from love. Sig.

6628^e. Everyone receives truth in proportion as he is in good.

6717. For nothing receives truth but good.

6945². They would not receive unless they saw . . . signs. Ex.

7000. The reception of Divine truth. Sig.

7270. The reception of the Divine influx. Sig. and Ex.

—². The truth which proceeds from the Lord immediately . . . cannot be received by any living finite substance . . .

7273². For (the evil) have not received the Divine good . . . But the good . . . have received it.

7275. That those in falsities will not receive. Sig.

7290². For the ground which receives is the illustrated Rational.

7295². Even evil men have Angels with them, in order that they may be able . . . to receive influx from Heaven . . . But when, from their life here, they are such that they cannot receive the influx of truth and good from Heaven, the Angels and good Spirits recede from them.

7301. That those in evils from falsities did not receive. Sig.

7306^e. Only truths receive the light which illustrates.

7342². In proportion as man receives the affection of love towards the neighbour, in the same proportion he receives the truths of faith. Hence it is that the infernals . . . cannot receive them.

8271. When man is in this essential (humiliation), he is then in a state of receiving from the Lord the truth of faith and the good of charity . . . But if man exalts himself before the Lord, he then closes the interiors of his mind for the reception of good and truth from the Lord.

8418. 'To collect' = to receive.

8432^e. For the good which inflows from the Lord is not given in proportion to their desire ; but in proportion as they can receive it.

8439. A state of reception and application to (the good signified by the manna, and the delight signified by the quails). Sig. and Ex.

— . 'To approach' = influx, and therefore also reception ; for reception is the reciprocal of influx ; for they correspond to each other . . . and reception is not anything, unless there is also application, namely, to use . . .

8467. Reception and appropriation according to the faculty of each person. Sig.

8472. Reception according to the power of each Society. Sig. and Ex.

—^e. Everyone there is in the power of receiving, according to the quality and quantity of the good acquired in the world.

8497². For men and Angels are only recipients, or forms accommodated to receive life, thus good and truth, from the Lord.

8506. The reception of truth before it is conjoined with good. Sig. and Ex.

8562. 'To drink' = to be instructed in the truths of faith, and to receive them.

8700². For it is the reception of the Lord's mercy . . . by which everyone is saved. Those who receive it in the world, in the other life are in it ; for they are then in the faculty of receiving it.

8708. In proportion as man receives from the truths of faith, in the same proportion he enters into the light of intelligence, and is elevated into Heaven. But the reception of the truths of faith is not effected by mere acknowledgment, but by acknowledgment conjoined with life . . .

8748. Ex. xix. treats of the preparation to receive the truth Divine from the Lord out of Heaven.

8766. The reception of truth. Sig.

8776. The reception (of what was from the Divine). Sig.

8783. Truth Divine is not received by anyone, unless it is accommodated to the apprehension . . .

8815^e. Truth Divine through the Heavens . . . perfects the good, because these receive the Divine good which is in the truth ; but it destroys the evil, because they do not receive the Divine good in it.

8816. A holy tremor with those who would receive. Sig. and Ex.

—². But reception is according to the good with everyone . . .

8817. The power of truth from the Divine to prepare them to receive the Divine. Sig.

8881. 'And keep My commandments' = who receive the truths of faith. Ex.

8882². For evils and falsities must be removed before the truth and good which are from the Lord can be received.

8920. The reception of truth in an accommodated form. Sig. and Ex.

9256⁴. By which they are in a state to receive the truths of faith and the goods of charity from the Lord.

9258. No reception of truth. Sig. and Ex.

9293. The reception of good from mercy. Sig. and Ex.

9311. Instruction concerning the precepts of faith, and reception. Sig. and Ex.

—². 'To hear' = to receive in the memory and be instructed ; to receive in the understanding and believe ; and to receive in obedience and do. Ill.

9336³. No others are regenerated than those who receive the Lord's mercy in faith and life here; according to, 'As many as received Him, to them gave He power to become the sons of God . . .' (John i. 12).

[A.] 9340¹⁰. To receive and take into possession the interior truths of faith; and to receive and take into possession the interior goods of faith. Sig.

9384. Reception in the understanding by those who are truly of the Church. Sig. and Ex.

9385. Reception then in the heart. Sig.

9393. The Divine truth received by man. Rep. and Ex.

9398. The reception of the truth proceeding from the Divine Human. Sig. and Ex.

9399. Adaptation to receive by man. Sig. and Ex.

9446. The Lord continually inflows with the good of love and the truths of faith, but these are dissimilarly received . . .

9506. The reception [by the Lord] of all things of worship from the good of love. Sig. and Ex. 9513. 9518. 9682.

9683. The disposition and ordination of interior goods in exterior ones varies . . . according to the reception; and the reception, according to the spiritual and moral life of each one in the world.

10021. The application of the natural man for the reception of good and truth from the Divine. Sig. and Ex.

10023. A representative of the reception of good and truth in the natural man. Sig. and Ex.

10097. Reception in the Heavens and in the Church. Sig. and Ex.

10177. The grateful hearing and reception by the Lord of all things of worship from love and charity. Sig. and Ex.

10219⁴. (Such) cannot receive anything of the good of love and truth of faith. Sig.

10330³. Influx and illustration take place according to the faculty of reception with man; and the faculty of reception is according to the love of truth and good . . .

10490. Occlusion as to the influx of good and truth, lest there be any reception. Sig. and Ex.

10495. The reception of Divine truth from the Word and thereby conjunction with the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

10577. That Divine truth and good will be revealed to those who receive. Sig. and Ex.

10615. The worship of the Lord from the truths and goods of faith and love, and thus preparation for reception. Sig. and Ex.

10625. Reception then from influx into what is external. Sig. and Ex.

10650. The enticement, reception, and appropriation of falsity from evil. Sig. and Ex.

10669. The implantation of truth in good, and its reception. Sig. and Ex.

H. 118². For the Lord appears to everyone according to the quality of the reception of Him . . .

120. Therefore the Heavens are distant according to the reception . . .

128^e. In the degree in which the Angels are receptions of Divine truth, they have light.

133^e. The Angels who receive the Divine good more, are in the Celestial Kingdom; and those who receive the Divine truth more, are in the Spiritual one. The most perfect Angels are those who receive both in a like degree.

321. (Such) easily receive truths (there).

324^e. When (mercy and innocence) are present, all things of faith are received as it were spontaneously.

349². For love . . . receives everything which is in agreement with itself; hence, as much as the love is, so much he receives.

420². The Lord from mercy leads everyone who receives Him; and he receives Him who lives according to the laws of Divine order . . . (Thus) he is received into Heaven who receives Heaven into himself in the world . . .

549^e. (Thus) the presence of the Lord is perpetual with everyone; but it is diversely received.

569. For all influx from the Spiritual World is varied according to the reception . . .

N. 9. Everyone receives truth in proportion to the good in which he is.

Life 102. The Lord . . . cannot love and dwell with man unless He is received . . . To enter to anyone, and remain, with whom there is no reception, is impossible. As the reception and the reciprocal in man are from the Lord, He says, 'Abide in Me, and I in you,' etc.

W. 4. That Angels and men are recipients of life. Gen.art.

55. That all things . . . are recipients of the Divine love and Divine wisdom . . . Gen.art.

56. Every created thing is such . . . as to be a recipient of God; not by continuity, but by contiguity . . .

58^e. As they are recipients, they are also re-agents . . .

66. The more perfect animals are recipients of the life of the three degrees of the natural world. (Continued under LIFE.)

—^e. (Thus) the uses of all things are the recipients themselves of life.

78. Man is a recipient; and a recipient, or receptacle, is various. A wise man is a recipient of the Divine love and wisdom more adequately . . . than a simple one . . . yet the Divine is the same in each.

108. That the distance between the Sun and the Angels . . . is an appearance according to the reception of the Divine love and wisdom by them. Gen.art.

110². It is on account of the differences of the reception of the Lord by the Angels that the Heavens appear distinct from each other . . .

111. Love and wisdom, that is, the Lord . . . cannot progress by spaces; but are with everyone according to the reception.

113. That . . . as the Angels are recipients, the Lord alone is Heaven. Gen.art.

121. The habitations of Angels and Spirits are spiritual, because they dwell according to the receptions of love and wisdom from the Lord.

124. That the quarters (there) . . . are from the Angels according to the reception. Gen.art.

125². Love and wisdom proceed as a one; but are not received as a one.

128. The Lord is the same with (all); but the recipients . . . are unlike, from an unlike reception and life.

288. The universal Heaven is in this effigy . . . because the Angels . . . are recipients of love and wisdom from the Lord; and recipients are images.

P. 327. (Good) can be turned into evil by the recipient subject . . .

R. 102. 'Be faithful unto death' = the reception and acknowledgment of Truths . . .

473. That these things will not be received until after 'the dragon' has been cast out of the World of Spirits; because there would be danger if they were received before. Sig. and Ex.

479. How this doctrine would be received in the Church before (this). Sig. and Ex.

532. Concerning the difficult reception of the doctrine of the New Church. Tr. 535.

M. 72. No others are received by the Lord.

160. Women are born loves, and men . . . receptions. 161^e (Shown by experiment). 216a. 379.

219. That wives . . . have a state of preparation for reception. Ex.

—^e. (This) greatly injures their state of reception, which is prepared according to the state of the husband's ability.

261. Love and wisdom . . . are inspired according to the reception; and the reception is according to the love of being wise.

293⁵. In all conjunction by love there must be action, reception, and reaction . . . The state of wisdom of husbands is reception, and also reaction . . .

341². The Lord's mere presence is without reception; but His presence and conjunction together is with reception.

390. In this is the state of procreation with men; and the state of reception with women.

T. 105. The Divine order is that man dispose himself for the reception of God . . .

110⁵. To prepare one's self for the reception of God . . . is to live according to Divine order.

354³. If a man approaches the Lord, and worships Him alone, he comes into the power of Knowing all Truths; and therefore every true worshipper of the Lord, as soon as he hears any Truth of faith which he had not heard before, at once sees, acknowledges, and receives it. The reason is, that the Lord is in him, and he in the Lord; consequently, the light of Truth is in him, and he in the light of Truth.

358. Who does not know that . . . the grace of reception is universal?

366. That the things which inflow from the Lord are received by man according to his form. Ex.

D. 2955. How [my] writings seem to be received by men. Ex.

— . There are five kinds of reception (of them). Enum.

4422. How many will receive that which is being written through me. Ex.

4490. (This interior profane Spirit) could receive truths . . .

4731². When Spirits are talking together, if the discourse is not received . . . (the speaker's) face begins to disappear . . .

E. 130². The Angels say that they are only recipients of the Divine proceeding; and that they are Angels in the degree in which they receive it.

198. To see truths is of perception; and to live according to them is of reception.

239⁴. They do not know that there must be the reception (of good) by man; and that reception is not possible if one does not attend to one's thoughts and intentions and the derivative deeds, and then desist from evils . . . In a word, unless man receives in understanding and will . . . there is no reception on his part, consequently, no conjunction with the Lord . . .

—⁵. 'To open the door' = reception on the part of man.

— . 'Those sown in good ground, are those who hear the word, and receive it, and bear fruit' (Mark iv.20).

248³. For the Lord wills that there be reception with man; and reception exists no otherwise than by man's doing as from himself . . .

250. 'To open the door' = reception in the heart, or life. Ex.

—². This perpetual will of the Lord . . . is not apperceived by man, for the reason that there may be reception by man; and, through reception, appropriation . . .

288. With these, the Glorification of the Lord is reception . . .

290. The reception of Divine truth and Divine good by Angels and men. Tr.

—². This reception . . . is possible only with those who are in truth from good. Ex.

637. Mourning on account of the non-reception of Divine good and Divine truth. Sig. and Ex.

665. The . . . reception of the Divine truth . . . with some, to commence the New Church. Sig. and Ex.

706. Divine testification concerning . . . the reception of its doctrine. Sig. and Ex.

971². What comes from the Lord to man must be received by man; and it cannot be received except in this . . . as of himself.

1139². As light and heat are everything in the recipient, although they do not belong to it . . .

1146⁴. That man is only a recipient . . . (Shown by comparisons.) D.Love ii. Ex.

D. Wis. iv. This appearance is for the sake of reception . . .

Conv. 9. There is nothing in man except the faculty of receiving.

Recent. Recens.

A. 447. A certain fresh Spirit . . . 2479.

1273. Souls recently from the world . . . 1622². 1630.

548. Spoken to Spirits who had come recently from the world . . .

2625. Spirits recently from the body . . .

4151⁶. Shown to Spirits who have recently come into the other life.

4527. As they were then recent . . .

4623^e. Illusions presented before those who come fresh from the world.

4674³. Evil Spirits, who are recently from the world . . .

5182. Gyres into which fresh Spirits have to be inaugurated.

6468. Spirits recently from the world . . .

6639². That the man of the Church, coming recently from the world, may be purified.

9192³. Some fresh Spirits wondered . . .

H. 312⁵. Most of those recently dead . . . are affected with a new joy . . .

391. Novitiate Spirits, who are those who come fresh from the world, are protected from infestations . . .

457². I have seen some recently from the world, and I knew them . . . But afterwards I did not know them.

494. As the spirit of man recently after his life (here) is such, he is known by his friends . . .

W. 312. While the earths were still recent . . .

T. 160². Those recently from the natural world first go (to the middle of the Spiritual World). Ex.

—³. As they were all fresh from the natural world, they (supposed) that they were still there.

D. 5168. Fresh Spirits are in various states . . .

5688. Those recently in the other life are at first kept in externals. Ex.

Receptacle. Receptaculum.

A. 1888. The sense of the letter is a receptacle . . .

2719². That the Divine good may have in (these appearances) a kind of receptacle.

3079. Vessels=whatever serves as receptacles; as scientifics relatively to truths . . .

4038². This receptacle is the memory.

—³. This receptacle is the interior memory.

4603². The Natural serves the Rational as a receptacle.

4618^e. For ultimates are receptacles of their priors.

5077. The Corporeal itself is nothing but a receptacle of sensations.

5489. Wherever there is a receptacle in the Natural. Sig.

— . As a sack is a receptacle of corn, so is a scientific a receptacle of good. Ex.

5531. Man's Natural is distinguished into receptacles. In each receptacle there is a certain General . . . Every such General, together with its particulars and singulars, has its own receptacle . . . With a regenerate man these receptacles are as many as are the general truths with him; and each receptacle corresponds to a certain Society in Heaven.

6135. That the receptacles of good and truth are completely desolated. Sig. and Ex.

—². For 'the body,' or the whole man . . . is a receptacle of life from the Lord; thus a receptacle of good.

6136. These receptacles (of good and truth) are said to 'die,' when there is nothing of spiritual life within.

6138. A total submission . . . of these receptacles. Sig. . . By the receptacles are meant the very forms of man . . .

6299². For the External . . . is the receptacle into which the Internal inflows . . .

6576^c. For the understanding is the receptacle of truth; and the will is the receptacle of good.

7920. These (scientifics) are the receptacles of the influx of good and truth . . . and the Natural is the general receptacle.

8351². For the external man is the receptacle of the truth and good from the internal. If the receptacle is not accommodated, it does not receive anything which inflows from within. 8452.

9408. Heaven is nothing but a receptacle of truth Divine . . . 9415.

9527. 'The table'=the receptacle of celestial things. . . . In the opposite, a receptacle of such things as are in Hell. Ill.

9529. The conjunction of this receptacle with the good of love. Sig.

— . For a receptacle must be accommodated to the Things which are to be received.

9536. The ultimate receptacle of the heavenly marriage. Sig.

H. 18. For love is the receptacle of all things of Heaven . . .

73. An Angel is a receptacle, and thence is a Heaven in the least form.

330^e. For innocence is the receptacle of the truth of faith and the good of love.

341. That innocence is the receptacle of all things of Heaven . . .

371. The sole receptacle of good is truth.

567. Natural heat serves spiritual heat as a receptacle . . .

W. 175. The spiritual atmospheres are receptacles of . . . love and wisdom . . . But the natural atmospheres . . . are receptacles of the fire and light of their sun. 183.

191. The organic substances which are the receptacles . . . of the thoughts and affections in the brains.

— . For the atmospheres are the receptacles of heat and light ; and heat and light are the receptacles of love and wisdom. 223.

234. Nature which is dead ; and yet is a receptacle of the Divine . . .

258. For the natural degree is the general receptacle of the light of (these degrees).

269. The seed which is from the father is the first receptacle of life ; but such a receptacle as it was with the father . . .

358. That two receptacles and habitations of the Lord have been created with man, which are called the will and the understanding . . . 395.

P. 57^e. For man and Angel are . . . only a receptacle, in itself dead . . .

324¹¹. In every human embryo the Lord forms two receptacles . . . a receptacle of the Divine love for the future will of the man ; and a receptacle of the Divine wisdom for his future understanding. 328⁵. —⁶.

M. 132⁵. The image of God is the receptacle of God ; (thus) it is the receptacle of the love and wisdom from God in him . . .

—⁷. Man is a receptacle of God ; and, as God is love itself and wisdom itself, man is a receptacle of these ; and a receptacle becomes an image of God as he receives.

315¹¹. The soul is not life ; but is the proximate receptacle of life from God.

331². (The intelligence of the husband is the receptacle of the wife's love . . .)

380⁶. What is life but love and wisdom ? and what is nature but their receptacle . . .

I. 7. Hence there are in man two receptacles of life ; one, which is the receptacle of good, is called the will ; and the other, which is the receptacle of truth, is called the understanding ; (therefore) the will is the receptacle of love ; and the understanding is the receptacle of wisdom.

T. 33. That the infinite is in finites as in receptacles. Ex.

—². It is through these degrees that all posteriors are receptacles of their priors ; and these again of their priors ; and thus, in order, are the receptacles of the primitives, of which the Sun consists ; and thus that finites are the receptacles of the infinite. Ex.

65. Man was created a receptacle of (the Divine love and the Divine wisdom) ; and therefore he was created into order.

66^e. The end of creation was . . . man, in whom God could dwell as in His receptacle.

73². (The salvation of man) cannot be effected unless he prepares himself to be a receptacle . . .

—³. God could not redeem men unless . . . the Human formed itself into a receptacle . . .

74³. In proportion as man (believes in God, and loves the neighbour) from natural power, in the same proportion he makes himself a receptacle of the Divine omnipotence.

110⁵. These (laws of order) the Lord fulfilled, and thus made Himself a receptacle of the Divinity . . .

359. Still, man by (natural faith and charity) prepares himself to be a receptacle of the Lord . . .

360. (Natural) heat and light have nothing of life in them, but they serve (spiritual heat and light) as receptacles ; as instrumental causes are wont to do their principal ones . . .

470. That man is not life ; but is a receptacle of the life from God. Gen.art.

E. 105. Memory has been given to man in order to be a receptacle . . .

349². The receptacle of the good of love is the will ; and the receptacle of the truth of faith is the understanding.

466. Hence there are two receptacles of life . . . called the understanding and the will ; the understanding being the receptacle of the Divine truth, and the will the receptacle of the Divine good ; or, what is the same, the understanding is the receptacle of wisdom from the Lord ; and the will is the receptacle of love from Him. 790¹².

802⁵. Man's thought is the receptacle of truth ; and his will is the receptacle of good. S31⁴. S37⁴.

931. Every natural thing is a general receptacle of spiritual things . . .

D. Love xviii. The will is the receptacle of man's love ; and the understanding is the receptacle of his wisdom ; and that which is a receptacle of the love, is also a receptacle of all the affections . . . A receptacle of love is mentioned, because love is not possible with man except in a recipient form, which is substantial.

xix. Regarded in itself, the will is not love, but is a receptacle of it ; and such a receptacle as not only receives love, but also imbues its states, and puts on forms according to them . . .

D. Wis. ii. That the Lord created, and afterwards forms with man, a receptacle of love, which is his will ; and adjoins thereto a receptacle of wisdom, which is his understanding. Ex.

iii. On the formation of man in the womb by influx into these two receptacles. Ex.

2. That He conjoins Himself in these two receptacles . . . Ex.

4³. Therefore the initiations of the life of beasts are not receptacles of the Lord's love and wisdom ; but are receptacles of natural affection and knowledge.

5. That one receptacle is for the will of the future man, and the other is for his understanding ; and yet there is nothing whatever of will and understanding present at the formation. Ex.

v. That after birth the will becomes the receptacle of love, and the understanding the receptacle of wisdom. Ex.

—². The reason the will and understanding are called receptacles, is that the will is not an abstract spiritual something ; but is a subject substantiated and formed for the reception of love from the Lord . . .

Reception room. Anticuria. M.II.

Reciprocal. Reciprocus.

Reciprocally. Reciprocē.

Reciprocation. Reciprocatio.

A. 1761. Inflow by vibrations and reciprocations as it were linear. D. 1183a.

2004. The reciprocal union of the Divine and the Human essence. 2011. 2665^e.

—². The unition was made reciprocally. Ex.

—³. This reciprocal union. Ill.

2165⁴. Man's reciprocal [love] to the Lord. Rep. 2177⁸.

2177⁵. Man's Reciprocal, and appropriation. Rep.

2240⁷. A species of reciprocation in the Prophets. Ex.

2720³. What is reciprocal. Sig. 3070. 3090.

2740. For conjugal love is mutual and reciprocal . . .

2803². The union of the Divine and the Human in the Lord is mutual and in turn, or reciprocal . . .

2919. A reciprocal state with those of the new Church. Sig.

2954. What is reciprocal with those of the Church. Sig. The Reciprocal is the belief that redemption is of the Lord alone.

3090. The Reciprocal of truth when to be conjoined with good, appears from marriages . . . in that there is consent on both sides ; and this derives its origin from the marriage of good and truth . . .

3094. What is reciprocal as to the illustration of all the scientifics in the natural man. Sig. and Ex.

3159. Reciprocal freedom. Sig. and Ex.

3202. The reciprocal intention of the affection of truth. Sig. and Ex.

3735³. The Lord's 'body' = His Divine love, and the Reciprocal with man, such as is the love with the celestial Angels ; and His 'blood' = His Divine love, and the Reciprocal with man, such as is the love with the spiritual Angels.

4096. What is reciprocal of the affections of truth. Sig. and Ex.

4217. When 'bread' is mentioned, the Angels perceive the Lord . . . consequently His love towards the universal human race, and at the same time the reciprocal love of man to the Lord ; for these cohere in one idea of thought and affection.

4368. In order that the Reciprocal of affection might be insinuated. Sig. and Ex.

4870. The Reciprocal of conjunction with a condition. Sig.

4912. For in order that the Church may be in a nation there must be a Reciprocal.

5084⁵. Thus, as there is a Reciprocal in man, there is reception ; which is impossible with beasts.

5114⁴. As man can not only receive the Divine, but also appropriate it to himself by acknowledgment and affection— thus by what is reciprocal—therefore man can never die.

5119. Reciprocal influx into the goods from a spiritual origin there. Sig. and Ex.

5120⁵. The Holy Supper was instituted in order to represent the Lord's love towards the universal human race ; and the reciprocal [love] of man towards Him.

5365². The reciprocal conjunction of good and truth—namely, of truth with good, and of good with truth—is the heavenly marriage.

5389. The mode of operating of these (Spirits) is by quick reciprocations . . .

5802. Reciprocal perception. Sig.

5880². As yet there is no reciprocal communication (between the Internal and the External). When this takes place, there is conjunction.

5928. Reception, and thence what is reciprocal. Sig. and Ex.

— . The reciprocal conjunction of truths with good. Ex.

5931. Reciprocal communication from reception. Sig.

6032³. In its first origin, spiritual heat is . . . the Divine love towards the universal human race ; and the consequent reciprocal [love] of man to Him . . .

6047. The Reciprocal of initiation and conjunction of the scientifics of the Church with the truths and goods in the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

— . For all conjunction must be reciprocal . . .

6262². Every agent has its reagent or Reciprocal . . .

8340. 'Miriam answered them' = what is reciprocal. . . Their responsive singing represented what is reciprocal . . .

8439. For reception is the Reciprocal of influx . . .

8691. The Reciprocal which was in the response. Sig. and Ex.

— . When there are conjunction and unition, then there is a Reciprocal ; for good acts, and truth reacts ; reaction is the Reciprocal which is in the response.

8778^e. (Thus is it) with the Reciprocal of man when the Divine inflows . . .

9200². That with those in the Church good and truth are to be conjoined according to order, thus reciprocally, truth with good, and good with truth. Sig.

9300². The reciprocation of good and truth with man . . .

9401². For reciprocal influx, namely, from man to the Lord, which is called physical influx, is impossible.

9495. The reciprocal marriage of truth with good, and of good with truth. Rep., and Shown by an Examp.

9604. The reciprocal communication of truth with good and of good with truth. Rep. For the communications must be reciprocal, in order that there may be a conjugal conjunction of truth and good. 9607. 9609.

10053^e. Thus the glorification, or unition, was reciprocal. Sig. 10067⁵, Ill. L. 35⁸, Ill. T. 99.

L. 35⁸. It is the like with every unition : it is not full unless it is reciprocal.

Life 102. To love anyone and be conjoined with him, who has no Reciprocal, is impossible . . . As the reception and Reciprocal in man are from the Lord, He says . . . Ill.

103. As this Reciprocal . . . is with man from the Lord . . . man must repent . . . must do His precepts . . . must render an account of his works . . . and must examine himself, confess his sins, desist from them, and lead a new life. 104. 105. 106.

105^e. If there were no Reciprocal with man, there would be no imputation.

W. 35. The Divine love and wisdom are a one because their union is reciprocal; and reciprocal union makes a one.

48. The conjunction of love is from what is reciprocal; and there is no Reciprocal in one's self alone. If there is supposed to be, it is from an imagined Reciprocal in others. Hence the Divine love must needs be and come forth in others . . .

57². By this (reception of the Divine good and truth) is the Reciprocal of love; for love is not possible unless it is reciprocal.

115. The conjunction is of the Lord with the Angel, and of the Angel with the Lord; therefore the conjunction is reciprocal. Ex. P. 28², Ex.

—^e. Thus a Reciprocal is necessary to conjunction. M. 61. 132⁶.

116. What an Angel thinks, wills, speaks, and does . . . appears to be from himself. This causes the Reciprocal, by which is conjunction.

—³. (Thus) an Angel has a Reciprocal for the sake of conjunction with the Lord; but the Reciprocal, regarded in its faculty, is not his, but the Lord's. Hence, if he abuses this Reciprocal—by which he perceives and feels as his own that which is the Lord's, which is done by appropriating it to himself—he falls down from what is angelic. That the conjunction is reciprocal. Ill.

410. That the love . . . causes wisdom to be reciprocally conjoined with it. Gen. art.

—⁵. The reciprocal conjunction, or that of truth with good, is nothing at all. That they are reciprocally conjoined is from the life of good.

P. 28⁴. As perceptions and thoughts appear to the Angels as their own . . . there is an appearance that they conjoin themselves reciprocally with the Lord, when yet the Lord conjoins them with Himself. Ex. . . (Thus) the reciprocal conjunction of the Angels . . . is not from them, but as from them. 44^e.

92. That there is a reciprocal conjunction of man with the Lord. Ill.

—². Anyone can see that there is no conjunction of minds unless it is reciprocal; and that the Reciprocal conjoins. Ex.

—³. (Therefore) the Lord provides that there shall be a Reciprocal with man. The Reciprocal with man is that the good which he wills and does from freedom, and the truth which from this willing he thinks and speaks according to reason, appear as if from him . . .

219⁴. The reciprocal conjunction of man with the Lord is not from man, but from the Lord.

319². The expansions and compressions, or reciproca- tions of the organic forms of the mind.

R. 541². For this is the Reciprocal of love which the Lord gives to everyone . . .

I. 14⁴. For man thinks and wills as from himself, and this as from himself is the Reciprocal of conjunction; for conjunction without a Reciprocal is impossible, as there is no conjunction of an active with a passive without a reactive. God alone acts. Ex. 588².

T. 99. All the conjunction in the universe . . . is from the reciprocal accession of the one to the other, and that the other then wills to be a one with the other . . . Such is the reciprocal conjunction of the soul and the body . . . of the spirit with the sensory and motory organs . . . of the heart and the lungs . . . of the will and the understanding, etc. etc.

110⁶. (Conjunction) becomes reciprocal when man acts from his freedom . . .

371. That the conjunction with the Lord is reciprocal, which is, that the Lord is in man, and man in the Lord. Gen. art.

— That conjunction is reciprocal. Ill.

—². As the conjunction is reciprocal, it necessarily follows, that man must conjoin himself with the Lord, in order that the Lord may conjoin Himself with him . . . In order that there may be this reciprocal conjunction, there has been given to man free choice . . . From this freedom flows forth his Reciprocal—that he can conjoin himself with the Lord, or with the devil. 504⁷.

—³. It is to be lamented that the reciprocal conjunction of the Lord and man . . . is unknown in the Christian Church . . . That this reciprocal conjunction, on which the salvation of the human race depends, may be no longer . . . unknown, it shall be disclosed . . . by examples.

—⁴. There are two reciproca- tions by which conjunction is effected; one alternate, and the other mutual. (Continued under CONJOIN.)

372. That this reciprocal conjunction of the Lord and man is through charity and faith. Ex.

D. 1688. A reciprocal undulation . . .

D. Min. 4641. Those in conjugal love have a Reciprocal, and this in each and all things . . .

E. 248³. Thus there is given with man a Reciprocal, which is his new will.

2887. The union (of Divine truth and Divine good) is reciprocal. Sig.

616. No one perceives (the Word) unless he wants to perceive it as from himself. There must be this Reciprocal by man in order for him to receive the faculty of perceiving the Word. Ex. —².

802⁵. If there were no reception, there would be no Reciprocal, which makes what is of God to be as of man . . .

971². This Reciprocal is necessary to reformation.

1077². In each thing of the Word there is the reciprocal union of good and truth, which testifies that the Word is the Divine which proceeds from the Lord . . . Ill.

1138^e. The perception is then reciprocal . . .

D. Love v². (The lungs) induce on the universal body . . . reciprocal motions . . .

D. Wis. iii. The union of love and wisdom is reciprocal: love unites itself to wisdom, and wisdom reunites itself to love. Hence, love acts, and wisdom reacts: by this Reciprocal comes forth every effect. Such a union is reciprocal; and hence comes the reciprocation of the will and the understanding, etc.

iv. Without this (appearance) there would be no Reciprocal.

x. That there is a reciprocal conjunction of love and wisdom . . . Gen.art. 2.

Inv. 48. Therefore there is a reciprocal union; and thence the body acts from the soul; and not the soul through the body.

Docu. 302. E. On reciprocal conjunction. Gen.art.

Recite. Recitare.

A. 2481. Reciting a whole letter . . .

2483. His adulteries . . . were recited in a series.

S. 64². They recite some sayings from the sense of the letter . . . E.832².

D. 2155. They could recite every word . . . which I had written many years before.

3489. They recited of what quality I had been.

D. Min. 4574. Some listen . . . merely in order that they may recite what they have heard.

Reckon. Reputare.

Reckoning. Reputatio.

A. 1846³. Reckon occurs.

H. 558a. They account (such) as nothing.

R. 451². Reckoning occurs.

Reckon. Supputare. A.901.

Recline. See under PRESS-incumbere.

Recognize. See under KNOW-cognoscere.

Recognize. Recognoscere.

A. 2486. They recognized everything which they had done . . .

M. 165. Wives inwardly recognize what is said by their husbands.

D. 1932. That Souls recognize the things which had been known to them . . .

5601². (The Angels then) recognize (that they have not thought well).

E. 372³. Not to be recognized by genuine truths. Sig.

Recollect. Recolligere.

H. 239². In my (natural) state I could not recollect what I had heard (in the angelic state).

D. 4395. Those who cannot at once recollect themselves . . .

E. 555⁵. 'I will gather thee again' (Is.liv.7). Ex.

Recollect. See REMEMBER-recordari.

Recommend. Recommendare.

D. 6042^e. Luther (then) recommended works. J. (Post.)35.

Recompense. Retributio.

Recompense, To. Retribuere.

Recompenser. Retributor.

See under HIRE, and REWARD.

A. 2371⁴. That the good which is from the Lord has no end of recompense. Sig.

—'. 'Lest a recompense be made thee . . . These have not wherewith to recompense thee; thou shalt be recompensed in the resurrection of the just' (Luke xiv. 12-14) . . . By this is described . . . that the recompense is in the good itself, because the Lord is in it.

3419³. Charity is the affection of being of service to others without any end of recompense.

3880⁹. The votive, which were the other kind of eucharistic sacrifices, in the external sense, = recompense.

3887. In the Spiritual Kingdom are those who have been in the good of charity towards the neighbour: they place the delight of life in this: that they can benefit others without recompense. This is the recompense to them: that they are allowed to do what is good to others . . .

3993². Truth without good is attended with self-merit; for when anyone does what is good, not from the good of truth, he always wants to be recompensed; for he does it for the sake of self. 3994².

4145². He who is being regenerated . . . at first does not know, and if he knows, does not comprehend . . . but that he should be recompensed, because he does what is good from himself. Unless he believed this at first, he would never do what is good . . .

5084⁸. If they are told that the joy in Heaven is to serve others by benefiting them without any reflection upon merit or recompense, the statement excites what is sad.

6389. See REWARD-remunerare, here.

6393³. 'The recompense in the resurrection of the just' = the internal happiness from benefiting [others] without reward-remuneratio. This they receive from the Lord when they are performing uses; and those who love to serve without recompense, the more they love it, the more noble are the uses they are set over, and they are actually more great and powerful than others.

—⁴. Those who do good works for the sake of recompense, also say . . . that they want to be the least in Heaven; but they then think that by saying so they will become great; thus there is the same end within. But those who do what is good without recompense, actually do not think about eminence; but only about being of service.

—⁵. That those who have done what is good for the sake of self and of the love of the world, in the other life receive no recompense for this good. Ref.

6559. 'He will requite the evil which we have recompensed unto him' (Gen.i.15) = penalty according to desert.

— (So that when evil has been done there) the recompensers are instantly at hand.

6564. 'For they have recompensed evil unto thee' (ver. 17) = that they had been averse to the good and truth which inflow.

6588^e. 'Visitation' = retribution, thus damnation.

8226^e. That the evils they do to others return upon themselves, (is signified by) 'the evil shall be recompensed to them.'

H. 358. Therefore it is said that a man . . . 'shall be recompensed according to his works.' 471.

L. 5. By 'the day . . . of recompense,' etc. is signified the Advent of the Lord to Judgment.

R. 762. A just retribution after death. Sig. and Ex. 806.

T. 404. He does good to the neighbour; but for the sake of the recompenses.

E. 413⁷. 'The year of recompenses' (Is. xxxiv. 8) = the Last Judgment; but it is said concerning falsities. 624¹². 850¹⁶.

1115. Much retribution in proportion as they had profaned good. Sig. and Ex. And truth, 1116.

Reconcile. Reconciliare.

Reconciliation. Reconciliatio.

A. 9293². 'To be reconciled to thy brother' (Matt. v. 24) = charity towards the neighbour. (= to shun enmity, hatred, and revenge. Life 73.) (= worship from charity. E. 391²⁰.)

Life 73. The Lord teaches the good of love . . . by reconciliation with the neighbour.

P. 191². (These two statements are thus reconciled-conciliare.) M. 76⁴.

M. 289. (These conjugal simulations) are for the sake of reconciliations. Ex.

294⁶. (For a wife) can be reconciled in a moment.

365^e. With the evil, although the internal is reconciled, these (evil feelings) lie concealed . . .

B. 60. (The notion that God) wants to be reconciled . . .

D. Min. 4717. They are never reconciled except by being adored as gods.

4808. Those who have hated each other, meet there, and attempt many evils against each other . . . Hence the Lord says that those who are enemies ought to be reconciled. Ill.

746¹⁹. 'The brother having ought against thee' = anger, enmity, or hatred; and to be 'reconciled' = the dissipation of these, and the consequent conjunction by love.

805³. Nor can God be reconciled except by the repentance of man himself.

D. Wis. xi. 2^e. To an enemy, man performs the uses of repentance or reconciliation.

Recount. Renuntiare.

See under REVIEW.

A. 9382. 'Moses recounted to the people' (Ex. xxiv. 3) = information by means of Divine Truth.

Recover. Convalescere. E. 706¹⁴.

Recover. Recuperare.

Recovery. Recuperatio.

A. 9213². Can then recover the truths.

D. 4572³. They truly ascribe their recovery of health to God.

4988². They can never recover the Intellectual.

Recreate. Recreare.

Recreation. Recreatio.

A. 1726^e. (Refreshment by an alternate state of peace during temptations.)

2699^e. The state of first illustration, and the recreation therefrom.

2702⁴. Their consolation, refreshment, and instruction after desolation. Tr.

—⁸. Refreshment and instruction in truths. Sig.

5147³. The foods of the Angels are the goods of love and of charity, by which they are not only vivified, but also recreated. These goods in act . . . are especially for their recreation; for . . . desires, when obtained in act, afford recreation and life.

—⁴. 'Meat to refresh the soul' (Lam. i. 11).

6569. Recreation from the internal. Sig. and Ex.

6574². The Lord is present with those in temptation, and resists . . . whence come refreshment, hope, and victory.

7038². The delight of smell is less, because it serves only for recreation, and thus for health.

8562. A defect of truth, and thence of refreshment. Sig. and Ex.

— For as water and drink refresh the natural life, so do truths and the Knowledges of truth refresh the spiritual life . . . 8584.

H. 403. Idleness of one's life is only for the sake of recreation . . .

W. 331. Uses to sustain the body relate to its . . . recreation, etc.

333². Recreation and delectation (as applied to the soul) are the happiness of life, and heavenly joy.

396². From the love of self and the world, man wants . . . to be delighted and recreated by the delights of the world.

M. 5¹. Social gatherings (there) exhilarate minds . . . delight bosoms, and recreate bodies.

T. 304. Heavenly peace . . . may be compared to recreations of the lower mind.

434. Social gatherings in the Primitive Church were . . . recreations of souls after studies and labours.

D. Min. 4805². To glorify the Lord is not use; but is recreation.

E. 80. 'Fear not' = recreation.

—². If the Lord's presence is excessive, it causes anguish; but recreation by accommodation and reception. . . (This) recreation, when presented to view there, appears as a cloud. With such a cloud are all the Societies veiled, denser or thinner according to the reception.

[E.] 1194². Interruptions of works in company with others are recreations, and thus are uses. 1226².

1214². That lower minds are revived, recreated, and excited . . . by the odours and savours of plants, is known.

C. 189. That there are diversions of charity, which are various delights and pleasantnesses of the bodily senses, useful to refresh the lower mind. Gen.art.

Rectify. Rectificare.

Rectification. Rectificatio.

M. 145². Compared to the rectification, etc. of natural spirits.

147. Conjugal love is thus purified and rectified.

202^e. That depraved inclinations may be rectified.

E. 811¹⁹. 'I will rectify all his ways' (Is.xlv.13).

Rectitude. See under RIGHT=rectus.

Rectum. Rectum.

A. 5175². (Such) are thrust down into the intestines, and at last into the rectum, where is the first Hell . . . D.1742.

5393². Such in Hell belong to the colon and rectum. Des.

— (The better sort of the Spirits of the colon and rectum.) Des.

5394. These are the Hells into which leads the way through the rectum intestine.

D. 1062. Thus does the province of the colon extend itself to Hell . . . as does the colon into the rectum intestine, which is the infernal tun.

D. Min. 4680. Sirens . . . act into the lower intestines, especially into the rectum, and cause there a species of colic, and a difficulty in voiding the excrement.

4794. Mentioned.

Recur. Recurrere.

A. 561^e. When states of evil and falsity . . . recur . . .

4301⁴. When a like delight recurs, such objects recur . . .

D. 3483². This phantasy, once imbued . . . easily and spontaneously recurs.

4113. So long as evil is in the thought only, it does not so much recur.

4222. When this recurs frequently, it becomes familiar.

Red. Ruber, Rubicundus, Rubeus, Rufus.

Redness. Rubedo, Rubor.

Red, To be. Rubere.

A. 2576⁴. In these (colours) the red=ruber-represented the goods of love; and the white, its truths.

3300. 'The first came forth red=rufus' (Gen.xxv.25) = the good of life.

3300². 'That 'red-rufum seu rubrum' = the good of life, is derived from the fact that all good is of love, and love itself is celestial and spiritual fire . . . It is also compared to blood . . . and as both of these are red=ruber, good . . . is signified by 'red.' Ill.

—². 'His eyes shall be red=ruber-with wine' (Gen. xlix.11) = (the Divine good).

—³. 'Wherefore art Thou red=ruber-as to Thy garment' (Is.lxiii.2) = the good of truth.

— . 'More ruddy=rubri-than ruby=rubentibus-gems' (Lam.iv.7) = the good (in the Divine Human).

—⁴. As 'red-rubrum-signified good, especially the good of the Natural, . . . it was commanded that the covering of the Tent should be of the skins of red=rubrorum-raus; and also that the water of expiation should be made of the ashes of a red=rubrae-cow burned. . . As the colour red=ruber-signified this, the coverings of the Tent were interwoven . . . with threads of scarlet, crimson, and hyacinthine.

—⁵. In the opposite sense, 'red-rubrum' = the evil of the love of self. Ill.

— . 'Though they be red=rubuerint-like crimson' (Is.i.18).

— . 'The shield of the mighty is made red=ruber' (Nahum ii.3).

— . 'Behold a great red=rufus-dragon' (Rev.xii.3).

— . 'There came forth another horse, red=rufus' (Rev.vi.4).

3320. 'Let me sup of the red, this red=e rubro, rubrum hoc' (Gen.xxv.30) = a longing for doctrinals . . . apparently good . . . For Esau had from this the name Edom, which, in the Original, is red.

3322². 'Red-rubicundus' (Is.lxiii.2) = the good of the Natural.

3527². These interior things as to good are signified by the blood and its redness=rubedinem.

3812⁴. 'Redness-rubedo,' is predicated of good.

4007^e. These things are signified in special by red=rubrum, and by white; but by red, the good of love, and by white, the truth of faith.

5198^e. By 'a red=rufam-cow' is signified unclean truth of the Natural.

6379. 'His eyes red=ruber-with wine' = that His Intellectual is nothing but good; for 'red' = the good of love, and this from fire, and from blood, which are red=rubent. E.433⁴. 556²¹.

6534. The 'red-rufus-horse' = reasonings from the cupidities of evil. (= the understanding of the Word destroyed as to good. S.12². R.305. E.364.)

S458². Good, as to colour, is presented as blue, yellow, and red=rubrum.

9407⁹. 'Redness'=rubor (Lam.iv.7) is predicated of the good of love which is in the truths.

9467. This is signified by 'crimson,' because by the colour red=rubrum-is signified the good of celestial love.

— . There are two fundamental colours, red=ruber-and white . . . The reason the colour red = the good which is of love, is that it descends from fire . . . Hence all other colours, in proportion as they derive from red=rubro = the good which is from love . . . 9833^e. 9865².

9471. 'Skins of red-rubrorum-rams' = external truths which are from good.

9865. The reason (the ruby, topaz, and carbuncle = the celestial love of good) is their red-rubro-and flaming colour; and 'red' = love . . . here, celestial love, because they are in the first row.

—³. The ruby . . . is derived in the Original from a word which means redness-rubedinem.

9868². The stones in the second row derive from a blue which is from red-rubro. Ex.

L. 14². By 'the garment which was red-rubicunda' (Is. lxiii.) is meant (the Divine good of) the Word, on which violence had been inflicted. E. 922⁵.

F. 59. The dragon is called 'red-rufus' from love merely natural.

W. 380. The blood is red-rubeat-from the correspondence of the heart and the blood with love and its affections. For, in the Spiritual World, red-ruber-and white are the fundamentals of all colours. . . The red colour there corresponds to love . . . for the reason that it derives its origin from the fire of the Sun . . . Hence the blood cannot but be red-rubere, and indicate its origin.

R. 167. 'Red-rubrum,' in the Word, is predicated of goods, because it derives its origin from the fire of the sun.

231. There are two fundamental colours (there) . . . The red-ruber-derives its origin from the fire of the Sun. Thus . . . the celestial Angels, being in the good of love, are in that flaming light, and therefore are clothed in red-rubro. Hence, also, these two colours are in the precious stones there . . .

305. By 'red-rufum' (Rev. vi. 4) is signified good destroyed . . . because by 'red-rufum' is meant the infernal red-rubrum-which is from infernal fire, which is the love of evil. Red-rufum, which is the infernal red-rubrum, is shocking and abominable, because there is nothing living in it, but all is dead.

—². That 'red-rubrum' is said of the love of both good and evil. Ill.

—^e. Like things are predicated of the colours which derive from red-rubro; as scarlet and crimson.

537⁴. The reason the dragon is called 'red-rufus,' is that 'red-rufum' = the falsity from the evils of concupiscences, which is infernal falsity.

839. (An army upon red-rufis-and black horses, seen.) —³, Ex. T. 113.

915². There are, in general, two colours which are pellucid in precious stones; red-ruber, and white. All the other colours . . . are composed of these through the medium of black; and by the colour red-rubrum-is signified the good of love . . . for the reason that it derives its origin from the fire of the sun; and the fire of the Sun of the Spiritual World, is, in its essence, the Lord's Divine love; thus the good of love.

M. 34^e. Love is man's . . . vital heat. . . The redness-rubor-of the blood is thence.

384². What makes the beauty of the face, but redness-rubor, and whiteness, and the lovely intermingling of the one with the other? Is not the redness from love

. . . for love is red-rubet-from its fire. . . In Heaven . . . I have seen the redness of whiteness in the wife, and the whiteness of redness in the husband.

D. 1059^e. White [as the animal spirit], or red-rubcus [as the grosser blood].

3468. The fire of Gehenna is redder-rubentius.

3718a. Naked reddish-rubentes-horses, on which sat small naked reddish [riders]. Seen.

5923. He obtained communication with Heaven by extending what was red-rubrum . . .

6064^e. Newton said that there are three planes of colours . . . red-rubrum-from fire . . .

E. 355⁹. By 'the red-rufum-horse' (Zech. vi. 2) is meant the quality of their understanding as to good at first.

364. 'Red-ruber seu rufus' = the quality of a Thing as to good.

—². Therefore there are two fundamental colours there . . . the red-ruber-colour derives its origin from the flaming light, which is from Divine good . . . and therefore in proportion as colours derive from red, they signify good.

—². Moreover, the red-ruber-colour = both the quality of a Thing as to good, and the quality of a Thing as to evil; for this colour . . . comes forth (also) from the flamminess in Hell which is from the fire there, which fire is like a charcoal fire. Hence the red-rubrum-in Heaven is a quite different red from the red in Hell. The red in Heaven is resplendent and living; but the red in Hell is shockingly dull and dead. Moreover, the red of Heaven vivifies; whereas the red of Hell mortifies. The reason is that the fire from which is the red, is, in its origin, love . . .

—². The 'red-rufum' of this horse, in the original Greek, is said from fire, (thus from love and pride). 714¹⁰.

—⁴. That 'red-rufum seu rubrum' = the quality of a Thing as to good. Ill.

—⁶. 'A red-rufum-cow' = the good of man's Natural.

—⁷. As 'red-rubrum' = the quality of a Thing as to good, the names and Things derived from the same word in the Original = the good ex quo; (as) 'Adam,' 'Edom' . . . and 'odam' (ruby). Ex.

—⁸. In the opposite, 'red-rubrum' = the quality of a Thing as to evil. Ill.

714. 'Red-rufus' is said from love in both senses, celestial and diabolical. (In reference to the dragon, it = the love of self.)

J. (Post.) 267. That pure light presents variegations of colours in objects according to the reception of wisdom by the Angels, a red-rubrum-colour in proportion as their wisdom derives from good . . .

Red Sea. Mare Rubrum.

Sea Suph. Mare Suph.

A. 842⁵. Like things are represented by the waters of the Sea Suph, as are signified by the waters of the Flood. Ex.

4601². The profanation of good through faith separated, is represented by the Egyptians being immersed in the Red Sea.

[A.] 6589. The destruction (of the vastated Church) was represented by the submersion of the Egyptians in the Sea Suph.

6907². The removal of such Spirits, and their being thrust down into Hell, is represented by the destruction of Pharaoh and the Egyptians in the Sea Suph. 7039^e. 7844².

7273^e. For 'the Sea Suph' = Hell. 8125. 8200. 8265. 8275. T.635².

7704. 'It cast (the locusts) into the Sea Suph' (Ex. x.19) = into Hell. Ex.

8039. Transmission through the midst of damnation, is signified by the passing through the Sea Suph.

8099. That the 'Sea Suph' = the damnation which they were first to pass through, is evident from the signification of 'the Sea Suph,' which is, the Hell where are those who are in faith separated from charity, and in a life of evil; and, as 'the Sea Suph' = Hell, it also = damnation.

—². The Hell signified by 'the Sea Suph' is in front deep under the Hells of adulterers, and it extends considerably towards the left. It is separated from (these) Hells by waters like those of the sea . . . Those who are being delivered from infestations are . . . led towards the left, through the midst of (this) Hell, and come out at the left, where there is as it were a desert. . . . While they are passing through, they are so protected by the Lord that not the least of evil . . . can reach them; for they are encompassed with a column of Angels, with whom the Lord is present. This was represented by the passing of the sons of Israel through the Sea Suph. Ill.

8131. 'The Sea Suph' = the Hell where are falsities from evils.

—². When man is being tempted, he is especially near this Hell which is signified by 'the Sea Suph;' for there are those who have been in the knowledge of truth, but in a life of evil, and are thence in falsities from evil. . . . Hence may be evident what is meant by the influx of temptation from Hell, signified by 'ye shall encamp . . . near the Sea Suph' (Ex. xiv.2).

8155. 'They overtook them encamping near the Sea' (ver.9) = communication around the region of Hell where are falsities from evils; (for) 'the Sea,' here, the Sea Suph, = the Hell where are the falsities from evil of those who have been in faith separated from charity, and in a life of evil. 8159.

8183. 'The Sea Suph' = the Hell in which are the falsities from evil of those who have been of the Church.

8184^e. 'To divide the Sea' (ver.16) = the dissipation of the falsities of the Hell represented by the Sea Suph.

8201. 'The Sea (Suph)' here, = falsity.

8277. 'Were submerged in the Sea Suph' (Ex. xv.4) = that they enclosed themselves with falsities from evil. Ex.

8345. 'Moses made Israel journey from the Sea Suph' (ver.22) = what is successive according to the order of Divine truth, after they had passed through the region of Hell. Ex.

9340. 'I will set thy border from the Sea Suph . . .' (Ex. xxiii.31) = extension from scientific truths . . . For 'the Sea Suph' = truths sensuous and scientific, which are the last (or ultimate) ones with man; for the Sea Suph was the ultimate border of the land of Egypt. E. 518¹⁷.

R. 424³. Therefore the locusts were cast into the Sea Suph, by which is signified Hell.

T. 71^e. The birds and spectres cast themselves into a sea, which is there called the Sea Suph.

D. 4647. I felt as it were waters around me: this is the Hell represented by the Sea Suph.

5078^e. Hence it is evident what is signified by the east wind which dried up the Red Sea, by which is signified Hell.

E. 400¹⁰. 'The Sea Suph' (Jer. xlix.21) = damnation.

405¹⁴. The dispersion of evils is signified by the passage through the Sea Suph, of which it is said that it 'fled' (Ps. cxiv.3).

503³. For by the immersion of Pharaoh and the Egyptians in the Sea Suph was represented the Last Judgment, and damnation.

514⁷. 'To the shore of the Sea Suph in the land of Edom' (1 Kings ix.26) = the knowledges of the natural man. . . . For the Sea Suph . . . was the ultimate boundary of the Land of Canaan, by (which) are signified the ultimates of the Church, which are knowledges which comprehend the Knowledges of truth and good.

538². By 'the Sea Suph' is signified the Hell where are falsities from evil.

569²². The like is here meant as by the drying up of the Sea Suph . . .

654⁷⁴. The final destruction (of the natural man separated from the spiritual) is described by the submerging of Pharaoh and all his army in the Sea Suph.

701¹². To possess the Land, from the Sea Suph to the river Euphrates (Ex. xxiii.31) = the Church with all its extension, which is from the Lord with those who are conjoined with Him through Divine truth.

Red-lead. See VERMILION.

Redivivus. E.674.

Redeem. Redimere.

Redemption. Redemptio.

Redeemer. Redemptor.

A. 1419². The Lord, being love itself . . . wills to give all things which are His to the human race, which is signified by 'the Son of Man coming to give His soul a redemption for many' (Matt. xx.28).

2025^e. He (thus) emancipated the World of Spirits from infernal Genii and Spirits, and thus delivered the human race from destruction . . . and thus redeemed it. Hence He is called the 'Deliverer' and 'the Redeemer' . . .

2902^e. They were thus redeemed. Tr.

2906². 'The year of My redeemed' (Is.lxiii.4)=the time of a new Church.

2937. The redemption (of the spiritual) through truth. Sig. and Ex. 2945. 2954, Sig. and Ex.

2946. They do not want to be redeemed by the Lord, but by themselves. Sig. Such is the first state of all who are being reformed . . .

2954. The Reciprocal is faith that redemption is by the Lord alone.

— . As to redemption, it is the same as reformation and regeneration, and the consequent deliverance from Hell, and Salvation. The redemption, or reformation and Salvation of the men of the Spiritual Church, is effected through truth; but that of the men of the Celestial Church through good. Ex.

—^e. When (the spiritual) have received this new will, they are called, in special, the redeemed.

2959. The price of redemption through truth. Sig. and Ex.

— . Those who emerge from this vastation, are those who are called, in special, the redeemed . . . —¹, Ill.

2964. 'To weigh silver' = to buy, and in the spiritual sense, to redeem.

2966. What the price of redemption is. Redemption is of the Lord alone, so also is the price of redemption . . . The price of redemption is the Lord's merit and justice through the most grievous temptations . . .

—². The price of redemption, with man, is great in proportion to his reception.

—³. With the Jews, the Lord's redemption was (very little) esteemed. Ill.

3400. The separation of (guilt) through good from the Lord, is redemption. Ill.

6279. 'The Angel redeeming me from all evil' (Gen. xlviii.16)=the Lord's Divine Human from whom is deliverance from Hell . . . 'To redeem' = to liberate. 6280, Ex.

6281. To redeem, in the proper sense, = to restore and appropriate to one's self what had been one's own; and it is predicated of slavery, of death, and of evil. When of slavery, those are meant . . . in the spiritual sense, who are enslaved to Hell; when of death, those are meant who are in damnation; and when of evil, as here, those are meant who are in Hell; for the evil from which the 'Angel' redeems, is Hell. As the Lord delivered man from these things by making the Human in Himself Divine, His Divine Human is what is called 'the Redeemer.' Ill.

6458. 'To buy' = to appropriate; thus also to redeem; for that which is redeemed is appropriated.

—^e. The redemption by the Lord of those in the Church with whom good and truth can be received. Sig. 6461.

7205. 'I will redeem you with an outstretched arm' (Ex.vi.6)=a leading forth from Hell by Divine power. 'To redeem' = to lead out from Hell.

7445. 'I will place redemption between My people and thy people' (Ex.viii.23)=the liberation of those who are of the Spiritual Church from those who are in the Hells near. 'Redemption' = a leading forth from Hell; and it is said in special of those who are being liberated from vastation.

8078. 'Every opening of an ass thou shalt redeem in a small cattle' (Ex.xiii.13)=that faith merely natural shall not be ascribed to the Lord, but the truth of innocence which is therein. . . 'To redeem' = to give another thing in its place.

8079. 'If thou dost not redeem it' (id.)=if the truth of innocence be not therein. . . 'Not to redeem' = not to ascribe to the Lord, but to give another thing in its place.

8080. 'Every first-born in thy sons thou shalt redeem' (id.)=that the truths of faith are not to be ascribed to the Lord, but its goods. . . 'To redeem' = to give another thing in its place. 8089.

—¹. The law of the redemption of the first-born of man, was delivered to prevent them from sacrificing their sons . . .

8099³. 'The redeemed who will pass over' (Is.li.10)=those who have been liberated by the Lord.

8308. 'Thou hast redeemed' (Ex.xv.13)=whom He has liberated from Hell.

8997. 'Let her be redeemed' (Ex.xxi.8)=alienation from these truths. Ex.

9076. Expiations set upon those who did evil unintentionally . . . were then called redemptions of the soul; for by them the life was redeemed . . . Hence redemption signified the amendment of spiritual life by actual repentance.

9077. 'He shall give the redemption of his soul' (Ex.xxi.30)=the grievous things of repentance. 'Redemption' = to give another thing in its place, that there may be liberation.

— . The various significations of redemption. Refs.

9937³. The Lord . . . subjugated the Hells . . . and thus redeemed from damnation those who receive Divine good and truth from Him. Ex.

10042⁵. Redemption, etc., are nothing else than purification from evils and falsities, the implantation of good and truth, and their conjunction; thus regeneration. Refs.

10152^e. Hence may be evident what is the work of Salvation and redemption; and that it is from His Divine Human.

L. 27. That the Lord is called 'the Son of Man,' where it treats of redemption, etc. Ill.

33³. It is from these things that the Lord is called the Saviour and Redeemer. Ex.

—⁴. He also glorified His Human, and thereby became the Saviour, Redeemer, etc., to eternity.

34³. That the Divine . . . called 'the Father,' and the Divine Human . . . here called 'the Redeemer' and 'Saviour' . . . are not two, but one. Ill.

— . Redemption and Salvation is an attribute proper to His Human which is called merit and justice; for His Human underwent temptations . . . thus He has redeemed and saved through His Human.

R. 281. 'Thou hast redeemed us to God in Thy blood' (Rev.v.9)=liberation from Hell, and Salvation through conjunction with Him.

—². That the Lord from eternity, who is Jehovah Himself, by the assumption of the Human, is the Redeemer and Saviour. Ill.

282. That those have been redeemed by the Lord, who in the Church, or in any religion, are in truths as to doctrine, and in goods as to life. Sig. and Ex.

619. 'Bought from the earth'=that these are they who could be regenerated by the Lord, and thus redeemed in the world. Ex.

— . That redemption is liberation from Hell, and salvation through conjunction with the Lord . . .

— . As all can be regenerated and thus redeemed, if they will ; and as few do will . . .

B. 57. (Such) will say, Open, if you can, the mystery of redemption and justification. It is opened thus . . . God Himself as to the Divine truth, descended and assumed the Human, to remove the Hells, and thus damnation, from man ; and this He accomplished through combats with and victories over . . . all the Hells, which were then infesting, and spiritually killing, every man who came into the world . . .

117². This coming damnation, Jehovah God bore, through His Human, which was the Divine truth, and thus redeemed Angels and men. T. 3.

T. 73³. God, by His omnipotence, could not redeem men, unless He had become a Man . . .

81. On the Lord the Redeemer. Chapter.

— . By the Lord the Redeemer is meant Jehovah in the Human.

82. That Jehovah God descended and assumed the Human, in order to redeem and save men. Gen.art.

83. Jehovah Himself says that He is 'the Saviour and the Redeemer.' Ill.

84. There are many reasons why God could not redeem men, that is, draw them out from damnation and Hell, except by means of the assumed Human ; for redemption was the subjugation of the Hells, and the ordination of the Heavens ; and, after these, the instauration of the Church . . . 86.

—². To perform redemption without the Human, was as impossible for God as . . .

95. That the Lord, by acts of redemption, has made Himself justice. Ex.

— . The act of redemption, by which the Lord made Himself justice, was that He executed the Last Judgment . . . and of the worthy founded a New Heaven, and of the unworthy, a Hell ; and successively reduced all things everywhere into order ; and, moreover, instaured a new Church. These acts were the acts of redemption by which the Lord made Himself justice ; for justice is to do all things according to Divine order, and to reduce into order the things which have lapsed from order.

114. Concerning Redemption. Chapter.

— . Redemption belongs to both the 'priestly and kingly office of the Lord.

115. That redemption itself was the subjugation of the Hells, and the ordination of the Heavens ; and, through these, preparation for a new spiritual Church. Gen.art. That these three are redemption, I can say with all certainty, since the Lord is also at this day performing a redemption, which He commenced in 1757, together with the Last Judgment . . . This redemption has lasted from that time until now. Ex.

117. Redemption illustrated by comparisons.

118. That without this redemption, no man could have been saved, nor could the angels have subsisted in a state of integrity. Gen.art.

— . To redeem, means to liberate from damnation, to deliver from eternal death, to rescue from Hell, and take away the captives and prisoners out of the hand of the devil. This was done by the Lord . . .

—². Hence it is evident why redemption was performed in the Spiritual World.

120. That without a redemption by the Lord, iniquity and wickedness would spread through the whole Christian world, in both worlds. Ex.

121. That thus the Lord has redeemed not only men, but the Angels also. Gen.art.

123. That redemption was a work purely Divine. Gen.art.

—². This last work (of reducing all things in Heaven and Hell into order) properly belongs to redemption ; but the former (of dispersing Hell) to the Last Judgment. Those who view these two things distinctly, may see many things which, in the . . . Word, are concealed under figures . . .

124. That this redemption itself could not have been effected, except by God incarnated. Gen.art.

126. That the passion of the cross was the last temptation . . . but was not redemption. Gen.art.

— . Redemption was combat with the Hells, the subjugation of them, and afterwards the ordination of the Heavens.

127. Redemption and the passion . . . must be distinctly perceived, otherwise the human mind falls into quicksands . . . But although redemption and the passion . . . are two distinct things, they make a one for Salvation ; because (thereby) the Lord became the Redeemer to eternity.

132. That the belief that the passion . . . was redemption itself, is a fundamental error of the Church . . . Gen.art.

133. From this idea concerning God and redemption, all theology . . . has become in the lowest degree natural . . . On the idea of God and redemption, which makes a one with Salvation, everything of the Church depends. Ex.

134. Before the sermon, they reasoned together about redemption. . . While they were talking about redemption, a black cloud . . . covered the opening (in the roof of the temple). . . Angels descended and dispersed the cloud. (They state to one of the Angels the old ideas concerning redemption, which are refuted by him. Go to him (and he pointed at me), and he will teach you from the Lord that the passion of the cross was not redemption, but that . . . redemption was the subjugation tion of the Hells and the ordination of the Heavens, and that without the performance of these by the Lord when He was in the world, there would be no salvation for anyone, either on earth, or in the Heavens; and also that . . . those who live according to order are numbered among the redeemed. . . Light then inflowed from the four quarters of the World . . .

182. To effect redemption means to build a new Heaven and a new Church.

378³. The causes of so many divisions . . . in the Church, are principally . . . Third: that the Passion . . . has been taken for redemption itself.

503⁵. Concerning redemption, we have adopted purely natural ideas, which are, that . . .

579. That as all have been redeemed, all can be regenerated. Gen.art.

— . Something is to be premised concerning redemption. The Lord came into the world chiefly . . . to remove Hell from Angel and man, and to glorify His Human. . . Total damnation (then) threatened the whole human race; and the Angels could not have continued . . . in their integrity. . . (Therefore) the Lord removed Hell, subjugated it, and thus opened Heaven; so that He could afterwards be present with men, and save those who should live according to His precepts. . . (And) the Lord glorified His Human because He thereby became the Redeemer, Regenerator, and Saviour, to eternity. For it is not to be believed that by the redemption once effected in the world, all after it have been redeemed; but that He perennially redeems those who believe in Him and do His words.

599. In the . . . temptations of men, the Lord works a particular redemption . . . After His universal redemption, the Lord reduced into order all things in Heaven and Hell; and He does in like manner with man after temptation . . . After redemption, the Lord instaurated a new Church; in like manner He instaurates the things of the Church with man . . . After redemption, the Lord gifted with peace those who believed in Him . . . so likewise He gives to man to feel peace, after temptation . . . From these things it is evident that the Lord is the Redeemer to eternity.

688. That by John's baptism . . . Jehovah could descend . . . and work out redemption. Gen.art.

716. That in the Holy Supper is . . . the whole of His redemption. Gen.art.

717. For where the whole Lord is, there is His whole redemption; for He as to the Human is the Redeemer, consequently is redemption itself . . . therefore all who worthily approach the Holy Supper become His redeemed. And, as by redemption is meant liberation from Hell, conjunction with Him, and Salvation . . . therefore these fruits are ascribed to man . . . in proportion as he receives; and he who receives, is redeemed in the degree in which he receives. (Thus) the effects and fruits of the Lord's redemption return to those who worthily approach.

D. 2826. One who supposed that there never could be an end to infernal penalties, still less redemption from Hell by the Lord.

2827. Man has merited (eternal punishment); but the Lord's intercession, or redemption, intervenes, and liberates the soul from Hell.

E. 328². 'Thou hast redeemed us to God in Thy blood'=that He has conjoined us with the Divine through the acknowledgment of Him, and through the reception of Divine truth from Him; for 'to redeem'=to liberate from Hell, and thereby to appropriate them to Himself, and thus conjoin them with the Divine. —⁴. —⁵.

—⁸. That 'to redeem'=to emancipate and liberate; and, when said of the Lord, to emancipate and liberate from Hell, and thus to make over to and conjoin with Himself. Ill.

—¹⁰. Those reformed and regenerated by Him are meant by 'the redeemed of Jehovah.' The reason they are called 'the redeemed,' is that by regeneration they have been liberated from evils, and made over to and conjoined with the Lord.

—¹¹. There are two words in the Original Language by which 'to redeem' is expressed; one means emancipation from evils, and the other liberation from falsities. Ill.

—¹². The reason 'to redeem'=to emancipate from evils and liberate from falsities, and also to emancipate and liberate from Hell, is that from Hell rise up all the evils and falsities with man: and, as these are removed by the Lord through reformation and regeneration, these also are signified by 'to redeem,' or 'redemption.' Ill.

340². 'Redemption'=liberation from Hell.

374³. 'To redeem'=to reform.

411¹⁰. [He is called] 'My Redeemer' from the regeneration which is effected through Divine truth.

413⁶. 'The year of My redeemed'=Judgment upon the good who have been saved.

433²⁰. He is called 'thy Redeemer' from the fact that He has liberated from Hell; and 'Former' from the fact that He regenerates man.

538³. Those in truths from good from the Lord are meant by 'the redeemed.'

805⁸. Redemption and Salvation without the means of life and faith. Refuted.

— . (Thus) redemption is nothing else than that the Lord redeemed from Hell those who believe in Him, and do what He has commanded, and who could not have been saved without His advent into the world, because without it they could not have believed in Him, done what He commanded, and thus lived from Him. These are meant by 'the redeemed,' in the Word.

806⁴. By these two things man has Salvation, which is called redemption . . .

860. 'The bought,' or 'redeemed,' of the Lord=those who receive instruction from the Word, especially about the Lord. Ex. 865.

Canons. On God the Redeemer Jesus Christ, and on redemption. (Eighteen chapters.)

Trinity x. 7. For Salvation is perpetual redemption.

Coro. xxiv. The first of redemption was the total subjugation of the Hells.

[Coro.] xxv. The second of redemption was the separation of the evil from the good and the casting down of the evil into Hell and the elevation of the good into Heaven.

6. That in each Church the first (or morning) of these four states has been the appearing of the Lord Jehovah, and redemption . . . Gen.art.

21. That this Divine work is collectively called redemption . . .

—². As the doctrine of redemption is the treasury of all spiritual riches or dogmas of the New Church . . . the Mystery of redemption shall be treated of (under the following propositions). I. That liberation from enemies is what is called 'redemption' in the Word. II. Consequently, it is a liberation from evils and falsities . . . III. (Thus) the First of the redemption accomplished by the Lord was the separation of the evil from the good, the elevation of the former into Heaven, and the removal of the latter into Hell . . . This first of redemption is the Last Judgment. IV. The Second of redemption was the co-ordination of all things in the Heavens, and the subordination of all things in Hell, by which the good were still more distinctly separated and liberated from the evil . . . V. The Third of redemption was the revelation of Truths from the New Heaven, and thereby the exsuscitation and instauration of a New Church: on earth, by which the good were still further separated and liberated from the evil . . . VI. That the final cause of redemption was the possibility of the Lord . . . regenerating . . . man. VII. The regeneration of a man, being a separation and liberation from evils and falsities, is a particular redemption by the Lord, which comes forth from His general redemption. . . IX. All have been redeemed, in that all who reject the falsities of the former Church, and receive the truths of the New Church, can be regenerated. But still the regenerate are properly the redeemed. X. The goal of redemption, and the palm of the redeemed, is spiritual peace. XI. A redemption has been accomplished by the Lord at this day also . . .

Redound. Redundare.

Redounding A. Redundantia.

A. 823. That falsities from evil would redound to them. Sig. and Ex.

— (Thus) is it to be understood how the falsities from evil, which are aimed at being inflicted on others, redound or relapse upon themselves.

826. The redounding upon them of falsities from evil at the presence of the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

9616. The eleventh curtain was redundant . . .

9627. 'The redundancy—redundans—which is superfluous in the curtains of the Tent' (Ex.xxvi.12)=that which proceeds. Ex. 9628. 9629.

B. 51. From the faith of the present Church there flows forth freely the worship of the mouth.

T. 60. Some feeling of it redounds (or overflows) to all the rest.

D. Min. 4745. Lest a report should leak out to the public that . . .

Reduce. Reducere.

See BRING BACK.

A. 2694^e. Why those who are being reformed . . . are reduced into a state of vastation.

3913⁴. It is necessary for the things of the external man to be reduced to compliance.

3928. They are reduced to correspondence by temptations.

5165. 'He restored the prince of the butlers' (Gen. xl.21) . . . 'To restore to his butlership'=to reduce into order under the Intellectual.

6580². Scientifics are with him . . . reduced into such an order . . .

8351². In proportion as the external man is reduced to obedience . . . 9708.

9297⁴. All (there) are reduced to a state of their own good, or evil . . .

H. 296. Therefore man must be reduced (or brought back) into order; and he cannot be reduced except mediately through Spirits.

457². All (there) are reduced into a state of speaking as they think . . .

551². Every evil Spirit is reduced into this state before he is cast into Hell.

N. 35⁴. The will and understanding are (there) reduced into a one. Ref.

J. 46³. The Lord came . . . to reduce all things . . . into order. W.221². B.117. T.123².

F. 35. He reduced Hell into order . . .

R. 157^e. The exteriors are after death reduced to be analogous with the interiors.

D. 3169^e. Into which and every state of his life, a Spirit can easily be reduced (or brought back).

3904^e. Into this state (of ignorance) was I reduced, before I was permitted to speak with Spirits . . .

E. 388³. Occurs. 556⁴. 750²².

Redundant. See under REDOUND.

Reed. Arundo.

See under CANE—calamus.

A. 1085². 'A staff of reed' (Ezek.xxix.6)=such power. 4876⁶.

7197^e. Without these, man is like a reed, which nods according to every wind . . .

9372³. The Word is compared to 'a reed shaken with the wind,' when it is explained at pleasure; for 'a reed,' in the internal sense, is the Word in its ultimate, such as is the Word in the letter.

9391¹⁶. Those who think insanely, because from lowest things, are called 'wild beasts of the reed' (Ps.lxxviii.30).

E. 439⁵. 'The wild beasts of the reed' . . . =the Scientific of the natural man perverting the truths . . . of the Church. (=the cupidity of falsity which is from the scientifics of the sensuous man. 654⁵⁴.)

627¹³. The cane, rush, or reed.

654⁵². 'A staff of reed for the house of Israel'=trust upon the scientifics of the natural man which are fallacies with the men of the Church.

Refine. See under DEFECATE.

Refiner. See under FOUND.

Reflect. Reflectere.

Reflection. Reflectio.

Reflected. Reflexus.

A. 321. Spirits do not know that (they have much more excellent gifts) until reflection is given them by the Lord. 1641^e.

933². Among those being regenerated, few, if any, reflect, or have it given them to reflect, upon the state of their regeneration.

977². From remains (the unregenerate man) has the faculty of reflecting.

—³. The regenerate man . . . can know, if he reflects, what the internal and the external man are; but the unregenerate man . . . cannot know even if he reflects . . .

1042². The snowiness . . . is the truth and good which man supposes that he does from himself, which reflects and rejects from itself the rays of light.

1321². As there is present a continual reflection upon themselves . . .

1361. Nothing is reflected upon the person or Thing which represents . . . 1409².

1392^e. The communications of happiness are such continual transmissions, but without reflection . . .

1487^e. He then does all things for the end of use, if not by manifest reflection, still by a tacit one . . .

1581^e. The Angels know (that evil is not really separated from them) when they reflect.

1802. The subordinate Angels do not know (of their subordination) unless reflection is given them by the Lord.

1884². While this state lasts, nothing is reflected upon the way, even if it were one of many miles; nor is anything reflected upon the time, even if it were of many hours or days.

2280². There are goods of intelligence when he is able to reflect what good and truth are. . . From the twentieth year, man begins to become rational, and to have the faculty of reflecting upon what is good and true.

2298^e. For infants have not yet reflection such as adults . . .

2367. By reflection, man can sometimes explore and describe a few things (in his affections and ideas) . . .

2492². With those who have been deceitful, this callosity appears bony and ebony-like, which reflects the rays of light.

2657². The first Rational is procured . . . by reflections upon the things of evil and moral life, etc.

2748. Reflection where they were, had been taken away from these (adulterous Spirits) . . .

2770. Thought and reflection. Sig. . . For all thought and the derivative reflection come from perception.

2862. The Lord's reflection and perception . . . cannot be expressed otherwise than by 'to tell,' and 'to say.' Moreover, in themselves, reflection and perception are an internal telling and saying. 3608.

3147³. That they should not reflect upon the evils of another. Sig.

3158. These are among those things which take place without man's reflecting.

3603². Chiefly because few reflect upon such things; nay, they do not even reflect upon good, that it is distinct from truth.

—³. In his second age . . . he begins to reflect upon these things from his own thought . . . But in his third age, if he can be regenerated, he begins . . . to reflect upon the things he reads in the Word . . . for the sake of the use . . .

3661. 'To command' = to reflect.

— . Reflection is the mental view of a Thing, how it stands, and what is its quality; from this is perception.

3682. Reflection and the derivative perception (in order that there might be conjunction). Sig.

3747. The learned . . . know the distinction of man into internal and external, not from any reflection on the interiors of the thoughts and affections in themselves . . .

—². They do not reflect that . . .

—³. Man can think and will what is good and true, and exercise command over the natural man . . . by reflecting within himself concerning Heaven and the Divine, which brutes cannot do at all.

3796³. For man is such that he reflects upon himself, and this from [mere] custom and habit.

3980. He who reflects, or is able to reflect, upon the affections of good and truth in himself, and also upon the delight and pleasure, will notice the strong inclination for one over another: but without reflection such things do not appear.

4214^e. With (such) the light of Heaven is suffocated, reflected, or perverted.

4242. Reflection and thence perception that it is so. Sig.

4245. This inversion . . . appears to . . . no other regenerate ones (even) than those who reflect. At this day there are few who are being regenerated, and still fewer who reflect . . .

4366². Those few who are being regenerated do not reflect upon such things, and cannot reflect; for they do not know what spiritual good is . . .

4633. The things which by frequent use man has immersed in the delights of life . . . disappear from his sight and reflection (but are manifested there).

4656. A Spirit who (said) that he reflects nothing upon what others say, merely taking it in with his ears . . . D.2667.

4894. Reflection how the case is. Sig.

5096. (Such) never admit truths, but reflect or strike them back.

5171. Their influx and operation . . . cannot be perceived by man . . . unless sensitive reflection is given him by the Lord . . .

[A.] 5224². (Such states) are unknown now, because (even) those being regenerated do not reflect upon such things.

5495. When they reflected upon the scientifics in the exterior Natural. Sig. and Ex. . . For reflection especially feeds scientifics.

5508. Reflection from the good of that truth upon the things hitherto provided. Sig. and Ex.

— . For what is told anyone is thought about from reflection.

— . For all the reflection and derivative thought appertaining to what is lower or exterior, comes from what is higher or interior, although it appears to be from (the former).

5563^e. Some have skulls like ebony, through which the rays of light, which are truths, cannot penetrate, but are completely reflected.

5684. 'He lifted up his eyes'=reflection. . . For to reflect is to direct the intellectual sight, and observe whether it is so.

5754. Reflection why such a thing inflows. Sig.

5798⁶. Everyone who reflects can see that . . . 9407².

5883². When (a Spirit) does not reflect upon the fact that he is in the other life, he supposes that he is in his body in the world. 6054. D.735.

6197. The deceitful . . . were very indignant that I should reflect upon the fact that (the influx) was from them. This reflection inflowed through the Angels.

—². It was then given to reflect upon the fact that . . .

6359^e. When the light of Heaven falls upon the hardness from the falsity of evil, it is reflected.

6697². The planets (must be) bodies of earthly matter, because they reflect the lumen of the sun.

—^e. Saturn's belt gives much reflected light . . .

6836. Reflection upon this revelation. Sig.

— . 'To turn aside'=to divert [himself] from the thought in which he is; and 'to see'=to perceive. Thus both together=to reflect.

6839. Reflection from the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

7341. Thought and reflection from falsities. Sig.

8293². When the reflections upon the loss of life, wealth, etc. are taken away from them, as is done in the other life . . . the delight of doing evil . . . manifests itself.

8491. Reflection from primary truths. Sig.

— . 'To tell'=reflection. Refs.

8514. That they should observe and reflect. Sig.

— . 'To see'=to reflect. Refs.

9611. The form (of a ring) is reflex, or bowed.

10604². Man does not know this, because he does not reflect upon it; and no others can reflect upon it than those who think interiorly; that is, in their spirit abstractedly from the body.

—³. Angels perceive spiritually what man perceives naturally, and this . . . without any reflection upon the difference.

W. 254². After this degree has been closed, it reflects the light of Heaven (causing thick darkness). 262.

332. Learned by reflections on these things.

363². Many things are of wisdom; as perception, reflection, etc.

P. 113. Man perceives the delights (of concupiscences), but reflects little upon them; for the delights . . . take away reflections.

296¹⁰. The means are chiefly the delights of . . . reflection . . . and the ends which are uses are . . . as many as the delights of reflection with an end to appear like an moral, etc. man.

—¹¹. He is constantly in the delight of . . . the reflection, etc. that . . .

321⁷. That only those in these two acknowledgments reflect upon the evils with them . . . Ex.

T. 31. In the perception of reflecting minds.

607. Scarcely anyone reflects upon these things, because they are not in light . . .

D. 253. That Spirits, by reflection, are imbued from use with many things. Ex.

720. When I have gone through the streets, and have not reflected on the Spirits around me . . . which reflection is made solely by an interior view . . . they have told me . . . that they had seen and heard nothing . . . Thus whatever Spirit I reflect on, is as it were excited . . .

721. I cannot better compare these reflections than with the reflections of man in himself, who does not know (anything he is doing or that is happening to him) unless he reflects upon it . . .

733. On reflection.—If men would attend to reflection, they would find more arcana in the doctrine of reflection than in any other. What reflection performs may be evident when one considers that he perceives no sense in any part of the body . . . unless he reflects on that part . . . If he reflects on his breathing, he then knows that he breathes; and thus the Voluntary adjoins itself.

734. In like manner when man does not reflect upon the things which are in his mind . . . Without reflection he knows nothing, except that a thing is . . . But if he reflects on himself from others, or if he suffers others to reflect upon him . . . he can then know that he is such. Otherwise . . . he remains in his phantasies, and from them reflects upon others, and thus supposes Truths to be Falsities . . .

735. Spirits especially remain . . . without any reflection, and therefore (suppose) that they are still men . . . and remain in their phantasies . . . But as soon as reflection is given them by the Lord, they know they are in the other life . . .

736. Consequently Spirits cannot know but that they are better than others, (and such) can scarcely bear that they should be reflected upon; but when they are brought into a state of reflection, they are brought into a better state . . .

737. Besides, the doctrine of faith effects nothing with a man, unless the Lord grants that he should reflect ; and therefore men learn from the Word what is good and true, in order that they may reflect thence upon themselves . . . which reflection is given them at certain times, especially in times of trouble. Therefore to know Truths is of the greatest moment ; for without Knowledges there can be no reflection, and thus no reformation.

738. But those who come (there) in cupidities and phantasies cannot reflect from Truths, until these cold and shady things have been dispelled.

739. On reflection.—The doctrine of reflections is an entire doctrine, and without it no one can know what the interior life is, and not even what the life of the body ; nay, without reflection from the Knowledge of Truths no one is reformed. Ex.

740. But in the planet Jupiter . . . reflections are effected through revelations . . .

1069. When man has no reflection, he seems to himself to act from himself . . . but when reflection is given, then he ought to acknowledge . . .

1230. On those (there) who are continually making reflections.—Certain . . . have imbued the nature that they reflect upon all things which they hear . . . solely from a studious [habit]. Des.

1393². A white colour does not receive the rays of light, but reflects them ; and in like manner those who justify themselves . . . reflect the rays of intellectual light.

1561. Whenever man reflects upon himself, that he is thinking, or doing, what is good, it comes from his proprium . . . Therefore the good which is gifted by the Lord takes place while man does not reflect from himself . . .

1628. (The Spirits were told) that they should . . . act without reflection upon themselves. Ex.

1706. I and the Spirits were in an indeterminate state, which is such that they cannot reflect at all upon themselves. . . I could apperceive nothing of my body, because it was not given to reflect upon it . . .

1707. From this it is evident that whatever Spirits appear to themselves [to be], they have from . . . reflection upon the things which they say ; and that without determination and reflection, a Spirit or man appears to himself to be nothing.

1796. The Angels do not reflect so much upon the fact that they are clothed in garments ; (whereas novitiate Spirits) when they reflect, suppose themselves to be clothed in like garments as in the bodily life . . .

1852. A Spirit affirmed that he knew no otherwise than that he was I, whenever he was not reflecting upon it ; but the reflections with me were [attended with the result] that they knew themselves to be Spirits separate from the man. In a word, without reflection, they know nothing else ; nor is reflection given except with those who speak with them, and give a reply . . . Reflection is indeed given without the speech of man with Spirits ; but this is effected by the Lord.

1903. That Souls do not know they are in the other life, without reflection being given them. Ex.

— . Souls . . . are without the reflection which is excited by the things in the memory. . . Reflection is given that they are in the other life, but by the Lord.

1904. That without reflection they cannot know they are (there) may be evident from the nature of reflection ; as man does not know distances without reflection on the intermediate things ; nor times without reflection on such things . . . for reflection causes him to know that a thing is such and so much.

1905. It would be endless to speak of the nature of the reflection of Spirits and Angels . . . for without reflection there is no life.

1905a. By means of the reflections given, Spirits have seen [into this world] through me. Whenever it has been granted me that they should reflect on objects, they declared they saw them. . . As men do not believe that they are ruled through Spirits, such a reflection cannot be given them ; and therefore the Spirits do not see through the man. . . When the door, or mind, is thus open towards Heaven, there is given a certain continual reflection, whence is a communication of the Spirits with the man, and they thus know that they are not the men with whom they are.

1939. Without the reflection given them that they are Spirits . . . they cannot know that they are Spirits.

2008. The Spirits said that they were as it were in bonds, because these things were reflected upon, which reflection produced a general sphere which they cannot bear, because their vicious things are reflected upon.

2031. He supposed himself to be in the world . . . for so do all Souls, because there is not given them reflection of place, time, and the objects of the senses . . . 2053. 2540.

2047. (I knew it before) but without such reflection.

2077. Such spirits are in a state of non-reflection, because they are then led by their own nature ; and if reflection were given them, unless the Lord permitted, there would be no reformation . . .

2107. The reflection of Spirits and Angels is null, except what the Lord gives them ; although they suppose that they reflect more than men. Reflection is sight from things past . . .

2137. Spirits (suppose the language of those with whom they speak to be their own vernacular) unless reflection is given them.

2142^e. Spirits do not know that they speak in the spiritual speech, because they do not reflect upon it ; as neither can man know what language he is speaking, or what words, unless he reflects.

2199. Spirits . . . know that they have lived ; but where, and how, they know not, for this sole reason, that ideas of reflection are not given them . . .

2221. From the mere faculty of reflecting of Spirits and Angels, it may be evident that they are only organic powers. Reflection, or attention to a Thing, is the sole cause why Spirits and Angels know that they are such . . . It constitutes the essence of thought ; for without reflection there is no life in sense or thought. . . Reflection is not his who reflects, but belongs to that which inflows. (Thus) we are only organic powers, and reflection is given by the Lord.

[A.] 2222. To reflect upon objects, and know what they are, (comes) from an outside source, consequently from the Lord.

2237. For when Spirits are in a state without reflection as to where they are, as if they were left to themselves alone, they are at once excited (by the thoughts of kindred Spirits) and it is at once known where they are, and what is their quality.

2247. What reflection is.—As the Spirits who lead man are devoid of such a reflection as is that of a man in the body—through the senses—they cannot see anything in the world through the eyes of the man, as Spirits do through mine. For whenever it was given me to give them reflection, or attention . . . they at once said that they saw everything to which the reflection given to me, and communicated to them, was being directed. They said almost always that they had seen nothing until the reflection had been given them.

2248. (In regard to) reflection, the case is almost the same with man. . . When I had no reflection (on a bell which sounded every hour) I did not hear it. Ex. As to touch, without reflection there is no feeling in the part; but when attention is paid, there is at once sensation. So in countless things. Hence it may be concluded that the Spirit has as it were put on the man, because he has no reflection; and therefore he cannot see through the eyes of the man, nor can reflection be given him, except by the Lord alone. In like manner he cannot hear. For that Spirits constantly reflect, I have perceived . . . often with pain . . .

2249. There is also a reflection given with man, Spirit, and Angel . . . which they do not observe; as in a state of peace, of innocence, in the corporeals, in a state of ignorance, and the like; also in the smallest particulars to which they pay no attention, with which are impressed the things which are conducive to them in the other life . . . This reflection is interior, and is unknown to man, as is the interior memory . . . and these reflections are given by the Lord alone.

2315. (I told) a Spirit . . . to reflect not only upon me, but also upon those who were around him; for without reflection nothing can be known which is at the side, or around; and when the opportunity of reflecting was given him, he said that he observed so many things that he could not utter them . . .

2330. When they reflect upon these things, they then know . . . that they are Spirits.

2401^e. When reflection was given them, they acknowledged . . .

2456. I think he had never had reflection upon such things.

2542. Such a man has no more any reflection about his body when he is speaking with (the Angels) . . .

2590. That Spirits know from reflection that they are present. Ex.

2593. That nothing can be learned without reflection. Ex.

2594. There is an interior memory, in which everything whatever is stamped in, whether he reflects or does not reflect . . .

2595. Upon the things inscribed on his interiors . . . man could never have any reflection . . .

2596. Such things, as also those which by this most occult reflection are insinuated in man by the Lord, because not through the reflection received by him, still less manifested to him, are from the Lord (alone).

2776. When anyone intends evil actually, the like is reflected from me upon him . . .

2838^e. When they are in any natural faculty, they no longer reflect . . .

2850. That man . . . does not reflect upon anything else than the state in which he is.—Evil Spirits reflected upon nothing else than excrements, dirty things, intestines, because they are in that state . . . and did not see anything that was round about, because they did not reflect upon it . . . (So) man, whatever is his quality . . . no matter what he hears, sees, or speaks and thinks, still he reflects upon nothing but what his delight takes up . . .

2954. As usual, in company, I was devoid of reflection upon Spirits. . . It was then given the Spirits to reflect upon their state, when they caused me to buy, and to change . . .

2975. Reflection being given them, they began to wonder . . .

2993. He then continually reflects on his own praise . . .

3045. As reflection was then given (the Spirits of Jupiter) . . .

3051. For Spirits are devoid of reflection on the speech of words, which they do not know among [themselves], because they do not reflect upon it.

3101^e. But when it is manifest to good Spirits that they are Spirits, reflection is given by the Lord, so that they know it further.

3102. He could scarcely be brought to believe that he was a Spirit: for they never can have reflection except from the Lord.

3103. The reason a Spirit, in general, supposes himself to be the man, is, first, that reflection is not given him when with a man who does not speak with Spirits . . . for speaking with a Spirit is conjoined with this, that they reflect upon the other who speaks . . .

3259. Therefore there is adjoined (to the Spirits of Mercury) more reflection than with others; for avidity, or curiosity . . . produces reflection.

3351. For whoever is in a faculty does not know (its excellence) except from reflection on others.

3476^e. Even to (corporeal Spirits) there is not given a reflection of such things (as time and space), and, without reflection, there is no notion of such things . . .

3525. There are two angelic Spirits with every man . . . The angelic Spirits, without reflection, do not know otherwise than that they are the man, but the interior man . . . But when reflection is given them, they know that they are angelic Spirits.

3529. (The Spirits) had not seen (these things with me) unless reflection had been given them.

3568. When it was given (to name the Lord) there was reflection . . .

3605. I had had no reflection upon (such a place) . . .

3624. On the reflections of thought.—It is known that by reflections we learn the things which belong to the body . . . for without reflection nothing is sensed . . . But there exist reflections of the thoughts . . . There are various objects of the thoughts, which . . . while the man's reflection is kept fixed upon them by Spirits, create much trouble. Examps. . . These are the reflections of thought . . . 3625, Des.

3666². Such a general [idea] is a kind of reflection, connate with brutes also, which prevents one from coming into collision, etc.

3670. Other things he sees only in obscurity, without reflection . . .

3698. That an answer is reflected. Ex.

3787. When reflection is not given him at the same time, it seems to him to be from himself . . . But as soon as anyone begins to claim good and truth for himself . . . reflection is given him . . .

3842. A more manifest reflection has been given me . . . so that I observed how they inflow into the subtle thought . . .

3857. While I think about persons, or places, without manifest reflection . . . the Spirits . . . know no other-wise than that the same are present . . . for they are then without reflection of place, and such things . . . (But) those who are nearer, as Subjects, have reflection like man, as the reflection of place, of persons, and of many things, without which reflection man could not be in society.

3902. These Spirits . . . when I was walking through the streets . . . because they had not reflected, had observed nothing . . . (So) the Spirits with man . . . do not reflect upon such things, therefore see and hear nothing with others.

3991. All the reflections which man has, causing him to see and take care of himself when he is walking, besides other reflections . . . he has from the Lord alone, which inflows, so that he reflects in a general way upon the things and persons in his way . . . from a certain general reflection or animadvertence, which inflows from the Lord's care towards everyone; and without which, he would never have reflection.

4226. On continual reflection, and the Lord's continual presence with the Angels.—Continual reflection is not born to man, but is imbued by habit from infancy . . . as the reflection upon the things in his way when walking, the motions of his body and members, his steps . . . his speech . . . It is the same (in spiritual things) . . .

4301. When reflection is given them, they know they are Spirits.

4398^e. I could conclude nothing from the memory of particulars, so that there was (in that waking sleep) no reflection from particulars.

4627^s. From that light is reflection, etc.

4716. On the reflections (of Spirits).—The states of Spirits, relatively to those of men . . . vary as to reflections. Man reflects from his corporeal memory, but Spirits from the interior memory. When a man sees another, he reflects upon everything he has heard about him . . . Not so Spirits . . . A man reflects upon the various things in which he clothes himself . . . Neither do Spirits do this . . . When new houses are given Spirits . . . they rarely reflect whence they are . . . So when a Spirit comes into another place . . . he does not reflect from it to the former one as a man would. In a word, reflections are circumstanced according to the states in which they are, whether (there or here). As to reflections, so many things occur that they cannot be described. But still (Spirits) have a wakefulness and life, but on account of the differences of the reflections, it differs exceedingly from the wakefulness and life of man.

5177. On reflections in the Heavens; thus on the state of their life.—I wondered that Spirits and Angels reflect but little upon the states of their life, as to wherein it differs from the state of life in the world; as, for instance, upon their houses, garments . . . They know that such things come forth from the Divine, but when they come forth they do not reflect, thus not upon the fact that when they are in an opposite opinion they vanish, and that those in a like opinion are suddenly present. The reason they do not reflect, is that this is according to the state of their life: and, as it follows from what is interior . . . there is no state of reflection . . . In proportion as they do reflect upon this, their innocence, wisdom, and intelligence perish, and for these they have knowledge: and to prevent (this) they are kept in a state of non-reflection upon those things; but still they are kept in perception, without knowledge, what and whence those things are.

5178. There are, however, other Spirits to whom it is given to reflect; but they are separate from the rest.

5678. All things in the Heavens can be described . . . provided they are not placed under the thought, in the middle; for he then reflects upon them, as to whether it is so . . .

D. Min. 4735^e. When such come to a certain Society . . . they take away reflection from them, so that they cannot reflect as to whether it is so; thus also the delight of reflection, thus of what is just and fair with others.

4777. How reflection is given in the other life.—After death, reflection upon inconveniences and penalties is taken away from man; for external bonds are taken away. . . For a different reflection is required there. In this life there is reflection upon honours, gains, reputation, dangers to life, and the like. . . To (a Spirit) who has done evil, there is given a reflection upon many penalties . . . This reflection, which is given to the evil, is external . . . At last this reflection comes into the mind as it were of itself. But to the good reflection is given through the pleasant and delightful things of Heaven, besides that they are in some reflection when they come into the other life, which is increased.

Coro. 28. Without free will, man would have thought without reflection, thus without judgment.

Reform. Reformare.

Reformation. Reformatio.

A. 59. Evil Spirits are left with man, that they may excite his cupidities . . . so that they can be bent by the Lord into good, and the man thus be reformed.

[A.] 89^e. In the spiritual man, reformation begins from 'the earth,' or external man; but in the celestial, from the internal man, or 'heaven.'

641. As this man had to be reformed as to the understanding, before he could be reformed as to the will . . . 645. 652.

654^e. When he thinks and acts from charity, he is reformed or regenerated, not before.

1255. As they could be reformed. Sig. and Ex. . . As to the reformations of the nations . . .

1937⁵. Without proprium acquired through freedom . . . no man can ever be reformed, because he cannot receive a new will . . .

1947. Without this freedom . . . man can never be reformed, and receive any heavenly proprium. 2876.

2189². That man may be reformed, and thus regenerated, which is effected through Knowledges and scientifics . . .

2276². 'A potter' = reformation and regeneration.

2334². Before man comes into this (first state of the Church) he must be reformed, which is effected by certain species of temptation . . .

2343². The entire process of the reformation and regeneration of those who are becoming men of the Church here represented by Lot. Tr.

2671. Those who are becoming spiritual, from the first state of their reformation to the last. Tr. 2678, 2679. 2682².

2689. Those who cannot be reformed, described.

—³. Who can be kept . . . in the affection of good and truth, and thus be reformed and become spiritual, and who cannot. Ex.

2694. The state of desolation of those who are being reformed and becoming spiritual. Tr.

—². For at this day few are reformed. Those who can be reformed, if not here, yet in the other life, are brought into this state . . . called vastation, or desolation. —^e, Ex.

2708⁵. 'Wilderness' is predicated both of those who are afterwards reformed, and of those who cannot be reformed. Ill.

2874. No one can come into heavenly freedom, except through reformation by the Lord.

2877. For man, in order to be reformed, must think truth as of himself, and do good as of himself; (otherwise) there is never any reformation or regeneration.

2930. In the Spiritual Church . . . man is reformed by the Lord as to the intellectual part . . .

2945. They wanted to . . . reform themselves. Sig. 2960.

2946. The first state of all who are being reformed and made spiritual (is) that they do not believe that they are reformed by the Lord, but by themselves; that is, that everything of the will of good and of the thought of truth is from themselves; and they are left in this state by the Lord, because otherwise they cannot be reformed. Ex.

2954. The redemption, or reformation and Salvation of the men of the Spiritual Church, is effected through truth; but that of the men of the Celestial Church through good. Ex.

2960². In their third state, they believe that they are reformed by the Lord. Ex.

2965^e. The man of the Church is reformed, that is, the truth of faith is implanted in him, and this is conjoined with the good of charity.

2967². All being reformed and regenerated, are gifted by the Lord with charity and faith, but everyone according to his faculty . . . —, Ill.

2975². For man is reformed as to both (the will and the understanding). Ex.

3057³. When man is being reformed, the general things in the natural man are disposed by the Lord to correspondence with the things which are in Heaven . . .

3116. Exploration is with every man who is being reformed. Ex.

3147⁸. That he who is reformed has need only to be cleansed as to natural things . . . and then all things are disposed into order by the influx of spiritual things. Sig.

3182². When man is being reformed, he (accounts it a duty) to hate no one.

3539⁶. The faculty that he can understand what is good and true although he does not will it, is given to man that he may be reformed and regenerated . . . But with the evil there is no affection of truth for the sake of life . . . and therefore they cannot be reformed; whereas with the good there is (this affection), and therefore they can be reformed. But the first state of the reformation of these is that truth . . . appears to be in the first place . . .

3570⁴. (Thus) an image of man's reformation is presented in his formation in the womb.

3587^e. When reformation is accomplished by the ministry of truth . . .

4031³. By compulsion man cannot be reformed. Ex.

4073². When man is in good, such good as serves for the reformation of his life inflows through the Societies.

4174. For all being reformed suppose at first that good is from themselves, and thus that by the good they do they merit salvation . . . But those who suffer themselves to be regenerated do not confirm this . . . For, so long as one is in the external man, as all are in the beginning of reformation, he cannot but think so . . .

4802. Unless man could receive truths (before good) he could not be reformed.

5270². Man, when being reformed, first learns truths . . . and stores them up in the memory. He who cannot be reformed believes . . . that this is sufficient . . .

5280². Every man must be reformed . . . In order to be regenerated, he must first be reformed, and this through the truths of faith. He learns them from the Word . . . This is the first state, and is called the state of reformation. Most are introduced into this state . . . but still few are regenerated . . .

5339. With the man who is being reformed, general truths are first insinuated, then particulars, . . . and finally singulars.

5470. If when man does not receive (the inflowing good) he feels anxiety . . . there is hope that he can be reformed; (otherwise) the hope vanishes.

5505. What is successive of reformation. Sig. and Ex.

5508⁴. Therefore, as to their interiors, (the Israelites) could not be reformed.

5563. With those being reformed (such nuclei in the skull) are reduced to softness. Ex.

6485^e. If (Providence acted openly) man could never be reformed.

6669^e. The Lord's making clay of spittle, etc. represented the reformation of man, who is born in ignorance of truth, and that reformation is effected through the good of faith.

6724². When man is being reformed, he is kept as to his internal man in good and truth; and as to the external is let into his evils and falsities . . . but there must then be good and truth in the external in which the influx from the internal can be fixed; thus good can be among the evils and falsities, and yet be safe. Into this state is let every man who is being reformed . . .

6977. For while man lives (here) he is continually kept in the state that he can be reformed, provided that, from freedom, he desists from evils; whereas, after death . . . he who is in evil can no longer be reformed . . .

7295². For even evil men have Angels with them, in order that they can, if they will, . . . be reformed.

8209². When man is being reformed, he is kept in equilibrium . . . When, therefore, man has been so far reformed that he wills good, and is affected with it, then good removes evil . . .

8701^e. In the world, however, man can think, and even understand, otherwise than he wills; but this is in order that he can be reformed . . .

8974³. He who does good solely from obedience . . . can indeed be reformed, but not regenerated. The reformation of such is here treated of.

8981³. Those who from infancy have thought little about eternal life . . . but have lived a good moral life . . . when they come to more adult age, cannot be reformed otherwise than by the adjunction of spiritual good when they are in combat . . .

8987. Those in truths and not in the corresponding good . . . cannot be regenerated, but only reformed. For to be regenerated is said of those who through truths of faith suffer themselves to be brought to the good of spiritual life; whereas to be reformed is said of those who through truths of faith suffer themselves to be brought . . . only to the delight of natural life. Those who suffer themselves to be regenerated, act from affection according to the precepts of faith; whereas those who suffer themselves . . . to be only reformed, act not from affection, but from obedience. Ex.

H. 293. Unless there were adjoined to man Spirits such as he is . . . he could not be withdrawn from his evils, and be reformed.

295². But with those who cannot be reformed and regenerated, good Spirits are also adjoined . . . but their immediate conjunction is with evil Spirits . . .

480². For, after death, man can no longer be reformed by instruction. Ex.

579². These (Genii) are warded off from every man concerning whom there is any hope of reformation.

598. The reason man cannot be reformed unless he has freedom. Ex. J.33.

N. 143. When man is thinking what is good and true, in proportion, then, as he does not love evil and falsity, the Lord implants the former in his love and will, thus in his life, and so reforms him.

166. Man can be held in good in so far as he is being reformed.

L. 27. That the Lord is called 'the Son of Man' where it treats of reformation, etc. Ill.

S. 18^e. Every word there describes . . . the Divine power of reforming the gentiles.

Life 15. Through the capability of the understanding to be elevated into Heaven without the will, it is that man can be reformed and become spiritual; but he is then first reformed and made spiritual when his will also is elevated.

69. The means of reformation which the Lord has provided are these: that man is born in mere ignorance; that one newly born is kept in a state of external innocence, then in a state of external charity, and then in a state of external friendship . . .

F. 31. The first state is called reformation; the second, regeneration. Ex.

W. 263⁴. Such is the change of state called reformation and regeneration. The state of the natural mind before reformation, may be compared to a spiral twisting downwards; but after reformation to one twisting upwards; and therefore before reformation, man looks downwards to Hell; but after reformation, upwards to Heaven.

P. 43^e. Therefore man . . . is reformed and regenerated in freedom.

83. Man's first state, of damnation; his second state, of reformation; and his third state, of regeneration: their quality.

—⁴. Man's state of reformation is when he begins to think about Heaven from the joy there . . . Ex.

130. That no one is reformed through miracles and signs. Gen.art. (Nor through visions and speaking with the dead. 134, Ex.) (Nor through threats and penalties. 136, Ex.) (Nor in states of non-rationality and non-freedom. 138, Ex.) (Nor in a state of fear. 139, Ex.) (Nor in a state of misfortune. 140, Ex.) (Nor in a state of mental disorder. 141, Ex.) (Nor in a state of bodily disease. 142, Ex.) (Nor in a state of ignorance. 143, Ex.) (Nor in a state of blindness of the understanding. 144, Ex.)

143. If they desire truths from the affection of them, they are reformed in the Spiritual World after death.

[P.] 150. That the external man is to be reformed through the internal, and not contrariwise. Gen.art.

151. How the internal man is reformed, and through it the external. The internal man is not reformed by merely knowing, understanding, and being wise . . . but by willing . . .

— . When man (knowing these things) does not will evil because it is from Hell, but wills good because it is from Heaven, he is in the first degree of reformation . . . When he wills to desist from evils, he is in the second degree of reformation, and is then out of Hell, but not yet in Heaven. There must be this internal for man to be reformed; but unless both the external and the internal are reformed, the man is not reformed. The external is reformed through the internal, when the external desists from evils, which the internal does not will because they are infernal, and still more when it shuns them, and fights against them. Ill.

154. These can be reformed; the former cannot.

202². Man (would then) recede from the way of reformation, and perish.

222. That man may be let into the wisdom of spiritual things and also into the love of them, and still not be reformed. Ex.

—^e. Those let into spiritual love are reformed; but those let only into natural love are not reformed.

233³. The Lord is in the interiors of man after reformation; but the devil, before it. In proportion, therefore, as man suffers himself to be reformed, the devil is cast out; but in proportion as he does not suffer himself to be reformed, the devil remains.

—⁷. The understanding, from the truths in the memory . . . must teach . . . the man what to do: this is the principal means of reformation.

249. He who thinks against God is rarely punished (here), because here man is always in a state of reformation; but he is punished in the Spiritual World . . . for then he can no longer be reformed.

259³. Everyone, in every heresy . . . can be reformed . . .

277. That every man is in evil, and that he must be withdrawn from evil that he may be reformed. Ex.

277a. Death is a continuation of life, with the difference that man cannot then be reformed. All reformation is effected in what is full, that is, in primes and ultimates simultaneously, and ultimates . . . are reformed (here), and cannot be afterwards, because . . . they are then quiescent . . . 307².

279⁴. All the laws of the Divine Providence have for their end the reformation, and thus the Salvation, of man; thus the inversion of his state (from) infernal to heavenly; which can only be done progressively . . .

296. (Thus) all these things, in the order in which they are, must be repaired and converted by the Lord, in order that man may be reformed; and this can only be done . . . successively, from man's first age to his last.

298⁵. All reformation is effected through truth. Ex.

322. That every man can be reformed. Chapter.

R. 88. 'To him that overcometh'=him who is fighting against his evils and falsities, and is being reformed.

168. That he who is being reformed becomes spiritual. Sig.

379. Those who have purified themselves by truths from the falsities of evil, and thus have been reformed by the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

405. That those who live this faith cannot be reformed. Sig. and Ex.

— . For all are reformed through faith united to charity.

510². Every man who is reformed, is reformed first as to the internal man, and afterwards as to the external. The internal man is not reformed by solely knowing and understanding truths and goods . . . but by willing and loving them; and the external man by speaking and doing the things which the internal man wills and loves; and, in proportion as this is done, the man is regenerated.

628. For the first of reformation is to live according to the precepts of the decalogue.

832². Man cannot be reformed except through truths from the Word . . .

M. 495. The reason man retains (the faculty of elevating the understanding) is that he may be able to be reformed; for he is reformed through the understanding, which is effected through the Knowledges of good and truth, and through a rational view from them . . .

T. 105². In the first state, which is called that of reformation, man is in full liberty of acting according to the Rational of his understanding; and in the second, which is the state of regeneration . . .

142. That the Divine virtue and operation, meant by 'the holy Spirit,' are in general reformation and regeneration . . . Gen.art.

312. The quality of man's internal unless he is reformed by the Lord. Des.

497². For (the will and understanding) are first to be instructed and reformed; and, through these, the two faculties of the external man, which cause him to speak and act.

571. On Reformation and Regeneration. Chapter.

— . There are two states through which man must pass, while from natural he is becoming spiritual: the first is called reformation; and the second, regeneration. In the first, man looks from his natural state towards a spiritual one, and longs for it; in the second he becomes spiritual natural. The first state is formed through truths which must be of faith, through which he looks to charity; the second is formed through the goods of charity . . . Or, the first state is one of thought from the understanding; and the second, of love from the will . . . A man who has commenced the first state, can after death be introduced into the second; but he who has not entered into the first state (here) cannot be introduced into the second after death. (These two states ill. by comparisons.)

587. That the first act of the new birth is called reformation, which is of the understanding; and th second is called regeneration, which is of the will and thence of the understanding. Gen.art.

—^e. So long as anyone sees . . . that evil is evil, and good good, and thinks that good ought to be chosen, the state is called reformation; but when he wills to shun evil and do good, the state of regeneration begins.

589². But no one can be said to be reformed through the Knowledges of Truths alone . . . But he is a reformed man who is in the affection of truth for the sake of truth; for this affection conjoins itself with the will; and, if it advances, it conjoins the will with the understanding, and then regeneration begins.

591. That the internal man is to be reformed first, and, through this, the external; and that thus man is regenerated. Gen.art.

596. For the internal man is reformed through truths . . .

D. 2733. Consequently, he cannot be reformed.

2839. The greater is the force required to reform.

3201^e. A means to his reformation.

3261. The reformation of other Spirits would be more difficult.

3394^e. He acquired this reformation as it were in sleep . . . and it is the first reformation.

3458. (The reformation of evil Spirits by punishments.) 3528^e. 3811. 3849.

3920. He is reformed so that he can subsist in the least of his evil.

4037. When man is in the bodily life, he can be reformed. Ex.

4038. But in the other life . . . they are not reformed. Ex.

5694. They are vastated as to the gross externals . . . and thus reformed . . .

6033. Man cannot be reformed by taking away these Societies . . .

E. 248³. Thus nothing is wanting for man to be reformed, if he will.

283⁷. The reformation of the Church. Tr.

294. 'To create' = to reform. Ex. and Ill. 295.

—³. The reformation of the gentiles. Tr.

356³. For man is reformed by the dissipation of evils and falsities by truths applied to life.

419¹⁴. Reformation as to the natural man. Tr.

633⁸. The instauration anew, or reformation, of the Church. Sig.

721¹². The instauration of the Church, and the reformation of those who are of the Church. Sig. 730²⁷.

803². viii. Thus, and no otherwise, is man reformed.

837⁴. Reformation is effected in this order . . .

946^e. As man cannot be reformed, unless he thinks, etc. from himself . . .

971². This Reciprocal is necessary for reformation.

1093^e. He is reformed by the admission of his thoughts into the Societies of Heaven.

1150⁴. For externals must be reformed through internals . . .

1155³. Man is not reformed by external means, but by internal means . . . Still, he is further reformed by external means, when he has previously been reformed by internal means. Ex.

1158². Hence everyone can be reformed; and to be reformed is nothing else than to be removed from evil loves.

—³. Such do those become who have once been reformed, and do not remain so.

1170⁶. Thus it is the will which is to be reformed . . . 1171⁵.

D. Wis. iv. The analogy between the formation of man . . . and his reformation. Ex.

C. 210². Those who do good from obedience are those who are reformed. J.(Post.) 345.

Reformed, The. Reformati.

Reformation, The. Reformatio.

Reformer. Reformator.

See PROTESTANT.

J. 47. The Last Judgment was executed . . . lastly upon the Reformed.

48. In the middle appeared those called the Reformed, distinct according to their countries. Enum. C.J.20.

63. Priests from the Reformed were sent to instruct the good Papists.

72. The Last Judgment upon the Reformed, who are called also Protestants and Evangelicals. Des. C.J.14, Gen. art. D.5202. 5347. 5948. 5937.

C. J. 14. The reason the Reformed constituted the Middle, was that by them the Word is read, and the Lord is worshipped, and hence the greatest light is with them . . . R.631².

16. Upon whom from the Reformed the Last Judgment was executed. Gen.art.

S. 24. After the Reformation, as they began to make a distinction between charity and faith, and to worship God under three Persons . . . these heavenly truths were hidden from them; (for otherwise) they would have falsified them . . .

25^e. By 'the kings of the earth' are meant the Reformed, who are in falsities of doctrine.

110. (Thus) the Word which is in the Church of the Reformed, illustrates all nations and peoples by a spiritual communication . . . Therefore, when the Word had been almost rejected by the Papists, of the Divine Providence the Reformation took place, and thence the Word was again received . . . Inv.24.

F. 9. A blind faith continued afterwards with many of the Reformed, for the reason that they had separated faith from charity. Ex.

41. (The Reformed who are in faith alone, and those not in faith alone.) 42, Des. 43, Des.

42. He replied, I am a Reformed Christian. 43. T.391.

P. 262^e. Afterwards, when the Church was Reformed, and faith alone was received . . . the Lord's Human could be regarded no otherwise (than as that of any other man).

R. Pref. The Doctrinals of the Church and Religion of the Reformed. (Quoted at full length.)

294². In the middle of the gathering were the Reformed, and many of the clergy. (They could not say One God, nor Divine Human.)

387, Pref. (Rev.viii.) treats of the Church of the Reformed, the quality of those there who are in faith alone . . .

391. The Church in the Reformed world is at this day divided into three, from its three leaders, Luther, Calvin, and Melancthon; and these three Churches disagree in various things, but all agree in this article: that man is justified by faith without the works of the law; which is a marvellous thing.

419, Pref. On the exploration and manifestation of the state of life of those in the Church of the Reformed who are called learned and wise from the confirmation of faith separated from charity, and of justification and Salvation through this faith. Tr. 421.

442. The exploration and manifestation of the state of life with those in the Church of the Reformed, who are not so wise, yet place the all of religion in faith . . . and thus live at their pleasure. Sig. and Ex.

456. Those in the Church of the Reformed who are not so spiritually dead from visionary reasonings, the love of self, the conceit of Own intelligence, and the concupiscences thence, as the former, and still have made faith alone the head of their religion. Sig. and Ex.

464. Pref. On the exploration and manifestation of those in the Churches of the Reformed; here, who believe in the Lord, that He is the God of Heaven and earth . . . and that His Human is Divine; and that this has not been received there, and can with difficulty be received, so long as the dogma of justification by faith alone is seated in their hearts. Tr.

485, Pref. Further, on the state of the Church with the Reformed, the quality of those who are interiorly in faith alone against the two essentials of the New Church . . . Tr.

509. Contrary to the two essentials received in the Church of the Reformed: a Trinity of Persons, and that faith alone saves without the works of the law; and that from this contrariety, the two essentials of the New Church . . . are a matter of contempt, trouble, and aversion. Sig. and Ex.

531⁷. (The aversion of the Reformed for actual repentance. Ex.)

537. 'A great red dragon'=those in the Church of the Reformed, who make God three, and the Lord two, and who separate faith from charity, and make the former (alone) saving. Ex.

—³. The dragon is called 'great' because all of the Church of the Reformed distinguish God into Three Persons, and make faith solely saving, except some here and there who do not believe in like manner concerning the Trinity and faith.

567. 'The beast out of the sea'=the laity in the Churches of the Reformed who are in the doctrine and faith of the dragon . . . Ex.

588. That all of the Church of the Reformed have acknowledged . . . this heresy . . . except those who have believed in the Lord. Sig and Ex.

594. 'The beast out of the earth'=the clergy of the Churches of the Reformed who are in the doctrine and faith of the dragon. Ex.

611⁴. Three hundred of the clergy of the Reformed world, all learned . . . ascended into an angelic Society . . . they were seen as calves . . . and, when they cast themselves down, as dead horses. Ex.

676, Pref. In (Rev.xvi.) the evils and falsities in the Church of the Reformed are disclosed by influx from Heaven. Tr.

676. Influx from the Lord out of the inmost Heaven into the Church of the Reformed where are those in faith separated from charity as to doctrine and as to life, to take away from them truths and goods, and to open the falsities and evils in which they are; and thus to separate them from those who believe in the Lord, and, from Him, are in charity and its faith. Sig. and Ex.

677. Into those who are in the interiors of the Church of the Reformed, and who study the doctrine of justification by faith alone, who are called the clergy. Sig. and Ex.

680. The influx of truth and good from the Lord with those in the Church of the Reformed who are in its externals, and in that faith, and who are called the laity. Sig. and Ex.

708. The influx from the Lord into all things together with the men of the Church of the Reformed. Sig. and Ex.

751. That the Roman Catholic religiosity as to doctrine reigns . . . also in some part even yet with the Reformed. Sig. and Ex.

759². If the papal dominion had not been broken at the time of the Reformation . . .

836. That all, from various heresies among the Reformed, who had not lived according to the Lord's precepts . . . being judged from the Word, perish. Sig. and Ex.

—². The reason it treats here concerning combat with the Reformed . . . is that the Reformed read the Word, and acknowledge the truths there as Divine.

914². This dogma (that the understanding must see nothing in theological matters) the Church of the Reformed has retained from the Roman Catholic religiosity.

B. 17. That the Churches separated by the Reformation from the Roman Catholic Church disagree in various things; but all agree in the articles concerning the Trinity of Persons, the origin of sin from Adam, the imputation of the merit of Christ, and justification by faith alone. Gen.art.

18. The Evangelicals and the Reformed are together called Protestants. T.154. 356.

19. That the Roman Catholics before the Reformation delivered exactly the same things as the Reformed after it, concerning the above-named four articles . . . with the sole difference that they conjoined the same faith with charity or good works. Gen.art.

21. That the leading Reformers . . . retained all the dogmas (named above) such as they then were and had been with the Roman Catholics; but that they separated charity or good works from that faith, and declared them not to be conjointly saving, in order that they might be torn asunder from the Roman Catholics as to the essentials themselves of the Church. Gen.art.

24. That still the leading Reformers adjoined good works to their faith, and also conjoined them, but in man as a passive subject . . . Gen.art.

68². Therefore it may be said to have been provided . . . that the Reformers cast charity and good works far away from their faith. Ex.

105. That the Roman Catholics . . . can be introduced into the New Jerusalem . . . before the Reformed. Gen.art.

109. The imputation of the merit of Christ enters like a soul into the universal theology in the Reformed Christian world.

T. 515^e. The Reformed have taken contrition in place of repentance, in order to be torn asunder from the Roman Catholics . . . 516.

535. As actual repentance . . . is extremely difficult in the Reformed Christian world . . . a more easy kind of repentance shall be adduced . . .

561. In the Reformed Christian world, by which is meant all those separated from the Roman Catholic Church . . . actual repentance finds very great resistance. (The reasons ex.)

—^e. A Reformed man, so called, is among his like as to his spirit . . .

562. I have asked many of the Reformed in the Spiritual World why they have not performed actual repentance, seeing that it has been enjoined on them both in the Word, and also before the Holy Communion. (Their replies.)

564. As few in the Reformed Christian world perform repentance . . .

754². The like loves would burst forth from many of the leaders of the Churches outside Babylon, unless their Power were limited and thus bridled.

797³. As Melanethon had been one of the Reformers of the Church, he was taken out by the Lord's command . . .

D. 5669a. The rest of the Christians, who are called the Reformed . . . when they think of the Lord, think of Him no otherwise than as a common man.

583S. See LAST JUDGMENT, here. 5856. J.(Post.)134. 178. D.5649.

E. 684⁴⁰. The time of the Reformation, when again there was the reading of the Word, and the acknowledgment of the Lord . . . Sig. But that still interiorly with those who were Reformed there was no truth and good in worship. Sig.

879³. With the Reformed (all the truth of the Church is falsified, and thence all its good. But the converse with the Papists.) 949².

928². The Church with the Reformed has been devastated by faith alone; with the Papists by dominion . . .

988⁴. From (the Babylonish) thick darkness, the Reformed, who receded from that nation, emerged into some light through the reading of the Word, but not into such light that they could see truths, like the Ancients. The cause was that they separated faith from life; and man has light from life.

1016. It treats here especially of the state of the Church with the Reformed . . . 1021.

1069. Hence it is that of the Divine Providence it took place that some Churches separated themselves from the Babylonish one, which acknowledge the Divine power of the Lord . . . to be equal to that of God the Father, and also attach Divine holiness to the Word alone. This was provided by the Lord, lest the Christian Church in the European world should utterly fall. Sig.

1079. The truths of the Church from the Word with the Reformed . . . Sig. and Ex.

1080. The Reformed are here meant, who utterly rejected the dogmas which proceeded from the papal consistory. Sig.

1085. This unanimity appears with the Reformed, who are divided into three Churches . . . but still all three have completely receded from the profane things of Babylon. Sig.

C. 86. If I had been born at . . . Rome, and were a Reformed Christian, is my country to be loved for its spiritual good . . .

Dicta Probantia. Page 13. The third state of the Christian Church which is called that of the Reformation. Tr.

Refraction. Refractio. 1.13⁶.

Refractory. Refractarius.

A. 9836⁵. 'To give a refractory shoulder' (Zech.vii. 11)= to resist.

T. 561. Actual repentance . . . is refractory in the highest degree to those who have not performed it. Gen.art.

E. 544³. Wherefore, they are called 'refractory,' and 'thorny' (Ezek.ii.6).

654⁵⁹. 'Woe to the refractory sons' (Is.xxx.9)= lamentation concerning the damnation of those who turn themselves away.

Refrain. See under CONTAIN.

Refresh. See RECREATE.

Refuge. Refugium.

A. 9011². The cities of refuge. Ex.

9433². 'For a refuge against inundation and rain' (Is.iv.6)= that man be safe from injury. E.504¹⁷.

M. 459. No other refuge and asylum appears than . . .

T. 120³. The one only refuge is in the Lord. Ill.

E. 601⁶. Salvation and protection are signified by 'Jehovah a refuge for His people . . .' (Joel iii. 16).

1122. No longer the refuge they had before the Last Judgment.

Refuge. Xenodochium.

L. 9. Endows churches and refuges . . . P.84⁴. T.425.

T. 459⁸. Charity (declared to be) the building of refuges, etc. D.Wis. xi.5.

Refuse. Quisquiliae.

A. 1644. Their speech . . . was represented by unclean refuse out of a utensil. D.3015.

T. 487³. To be rejected as rubbish . . .

569². Pools filled with refuse and ordure.

D. 2773. Abodes where there is nothing but refuse and dirt.

Refuse. Rennere.

Refusal. Renuentia.

A. 4366. The refusal here involves assent . . . The end of refusal, when one accepts, is sometimes that affection may be insinuated. Ex.

4990. 'He refused' (Gen.xxxix.8)=aversion.

7038^e. 'If thou refuse to let him go' (Ex.iv.23)=obstinacy even to the last. 7350. 7501.

8513. 'How long do ye refuse . . .' (Ex.xvi.28).

9185. 'To refuse' (Ex.xxii.17)=not to admit.

H. 343. The refusal and resistance (of the infants there).

Refuse. See REPUDIATE=repudiare.

Refute. Refellere.

A. 5567. He was against all whom he could refute.

6222⁵. Know how to refute heresies.

6574². Refuting the falsities of infernal Spirits.

7474³. These falsities are refuted by an influx from Heaven.

R. 436. Argumentations which . . . it appeared to them could not be refuted. Sig.

D. 3485. Occurs. 3572.

Refute. Refutare.

D. 3727. Occurs. 5742. 5848. 5995. J.(Post.)40.

Regard. See under LOOK AT=spectare.

Regenerate. Regenerare.

Regeneration. Regeneratio.

Regenerated. Regeneratus.

Regenerator. Regenerator.

See under BAPTISM, CREATE, GLORIFY, REBIRTH, and REFORM.

A. 4. Gen. i. treats of man's new creation, or his regeneration, in general.

6. The six 'days' are so many successive states of man's regeneration. Enum.

13. Most of those being regenerated at this day come only to the first state; some only to the second; some to the third, fourth, fifth, rarely to the sixth; and scarcely anyone to the seventh.

16. 'The beginning' involves the first time when man is being regenerated; for he is then born anew, and receives life. Regeneration itself is hence called the new creation of man. Ill.

17. Man before regeneration is called 'the earth void and empty'; and also 'ground' in which nothing of good and truth has been inseminated . . .

18^e. The vastation of man which precedes regeneration. Sig.

24². Man, before he is being regenerated, does not know that there is an internal man . . . Sig.

—³. The second thing man observes when being regenerated . . .

—^e. As the external man, when being regenerated, is such . . .

—^e. Thus every moment of regeneration proceeds from evening to morning, as from the external man to the internal . . .

29. The man being regenerated is at first such that he supposes the good . . . and truth . . . to be from himself.

—^e. This is the 'third' successive of the regeneration of man; his state of repentance.

39². When the Lord is resuscitating into life, or regenerating, man, He permits him at first to suppose (this).

40. For every regenerated one is 'a temple of the Lord.'

46. Regeneration. Tr. 264².

47. These words contain arcana of regeneration . . .

—^e. Thus regeneration begins from the external man, and proceeds to the internal . . . 64.

50². While man is non-regenerated, he is ruled quite differently than when regenerated. When non-regenerated there are evil Spirits with him, who dominate over him . . . He then has communication with the World of Spirits . . . But when he has been regenerated, the Angels dominate, and inspire into him all goods and truths, and horror and fear of evils and falsities . . .

55. The man to be regenerated, and not the man regenerated. Tr.

—³. As he is in a state of regeneration, there is something of good, but 'the least of all.' Sig.

59. While man is being regenerated and becoming spiritual, he is continually in combat.

62. The times and states of man's regeneration, in general and in particular, are distinguished into six, and are called the days of his creation.

63. Hence a regenerated one is called 'the work of the fingers of God.'

85². So is every regenerated one, when he becomes celestial, ('a Sabbath').

246^e. It treats of the Church, or regenerated man; but, in the first chapter, of the non-Church, or the to be regenerated man.

313. From non-man, he became man, through regeneration . . .

—^e. Nor is (hereditary evil) so dissipated as to do no harm, except with those who are being regenerated by the Lord.

395². As the times of man's regeneration are distinguished into six, before the seventh, or celestial man, so also are the times of vastation . . .

472. 'Create' relates to man when being regenerated; 'make,' when being perfected.

531^e. By 'Noah' is signified a new regeneration, thus a new Church.

599. The state of the Church called 'Noah,' before regeneration. Tr.

601. That the man who remained from the Most Ancient Church could not be regenerated. Tr.

606. That the Flood, ark, etc. = regeneration . . . is known . . .

635². Through their remains, those called 'Noah' could be regenerated.

—^e. Unless (persuasions) are first eradicated, the man can never be regenerated.

665. 'To set up a covenant' = that he would be regenerated. Ex.

670. For the man of this Church was to be regenerated first as to intellectual things.

671². Such things in man are not living until he has been regenerated.

675. In the regeneration of man, the Lord draws these things out, in their order . . .

677. As to the food of the man who is to be regenerated . . . before man can be regenerated, he must be furnished with all things that may serve as means . . . this is why man is not regenerated until he is of adult age. But each man has his peculiar . . . food, which is provided for him . . . before he is regenerated.

711. Unless man is prepared, that is, furnished—instructus—with truths and goods, he can never be regenerated . . .

719. The things are here described which were in the man before he was being regenerated: there were with him the truths and goods with which he was furnished—instructus—and gifted by the Lord before he was regenerated; for without truths and goods no one can ever be regenerated. . . . When man is being regenerated, there are evils which must be dispersed, that is, loosened and tempered by goods . . .

736^e. There are at this day also men of both geniuses (Sig. by Noah, and the antediluvians who perished). The former can be easily regenerated; the latter with difficulty.

737. These truths and goods are remains, which are not brought out so as to be acknowledged until the man is being regenerated. With those being regenerated through temptations, the remains . . . are for the Angels with the man . . .

755². For without remains man cannot be regenerated.

832. The state (of the man of the new Church) after temptation, even to his regeneration, and further. Tr.

835. His third state, when he begins to think and act from charity, which is the first state of the regenerate. Tr.

836. His fourth state, when he acts and thinks from charity, which is the second state of the regenerate. Tr.

848. Temptation is the beginning of regeneration. As all regeneration is that man may receive new life, or, rather, life, and may become a man from a no man, or a living man from a dead one . . . he cannot but fluctuate . . .

—³. Regeneration is circumstanced exactly as when man is born . . . His life is then very obscure . . . By degrees . . . generals become illustrated by particulars . . .

851. 'The ark rested' = regeneration. Ex.

868. So that man, although he has been regenerated, is nothing but evil and falsity. Ex.

—². When man has been thus formed, he is said to be regenerated, all his evils and falsities still remaining . . .

871. The three states of the regeneration of this man after temptations. Sig. by the sending forth of the dove three times.

874. The first state of the regeneration of the man of this Church after temptation, which is common to all who are being regenerated: that they suppose they do good and think truth from themselves . . . Sig.

875. How the regeneration of the spiritual man is effected. —⁵.

880. The beginning of the second state of regeneration. Sig. and Ex.

887. No Falsities are abolished; but, when man is being regenerated, there are truths which are inseminated, to which the falsities are bent by the Lord . . .

892. When man has been regenerated, he then first comes into a state of freedom . . . Sig. and Ex.

894. There is no determinate time in which man has been regenerated so that he can say, I am now perfect; for there are indefinite states of evil and falsity with every man . . . Those who have been regenerated in the life of the body . . . are being continually perfected in the other life.

896. As the ark = the man of the Ancient Church who was to be regenerated . . .

896. To know is the first of regeneration; to acknowledge is the second; to have faith is the third.

—². This is what it is to be regenerated.

898. Regeneration. Sig.

900. The whole state before regeneration. Sig. and Ex.

913². The operation of the internal man into the external after the man has been regenerated. Tr.

929. When man has been regenerated, he is withheld from the evil and falsity with him, and then perceives no otherwise than that he does and thinks good and truth from himself . . .

933. 'Cold and heat' = the state of man who is being regenerated. Ex.

[A.933]². As there are few being regenerated, and but few of these reflect . . . upon the state of their regeneration, we may say that when man is being regenerated, he receives life from the Lord; for he cannot be said to have lived before . . . Through regeneration, man receives real life (and therefore) there is an alternation between no life and real life . . . These alternations take place with everyone to be regenerated, and that so long as he is in a state of regeneration; for man cannot otherwise be regenerated; that is, from dead become alive . . .

—⁴. That such is the case, every regenerated one may know from experience . . .

—^e. The last posterity of the Most Ancient Church could not be regenerated, because . . . they could have no alternations. Ex.

935. 'Summer and winter' = the state of a regenerated man as to his new will (and its) alternations. Ex.

—². That there are alternations with a regenerated one: now no charity, and now some charity, may be evident because in everyone, even regenerated, there is nothing but evil . . .

971. The state of the regenerated man. Tr.

977. The quality of the regenerated man relatively to that of the non-regenerated man. Ex. With the regenerated man there is a conscience of good and truth . . . With the non-regenerated man there is no conscience . . . The regenerated man has joy when he is acting according to conscience, and anxiety when he is impelled to act or think contrary to conscience; but the non-regenerated man . . . for the most part does not know what conscience is . . . but acts according to that which favours his loves . . . The regenerated man has a new will and a new understanding . . . The non-regenerated man has no will, but (only) cupidity . . . and no understanding, but (only) reasoning . . . The regenerated man has celestial and spiritual life; but the non-regenerated man only corporeal and worldly life . . . In the regenerated man the internal man rules . . . but in the non-regenerated man, the external man . . . The regenerated man knows . . . what the internal man is, and what the external; but the non-regenerated man does not know it at all . . . The regenerated is therefore a living man; but the non-regenerated a dead man.

986. The state of man before he is regenerated, is that the cupidities and Falsities of the external man continually predominate; hence a combat. But, when he has been regenerated, the internal man dominates over the external . . .

989. No one can say that he has been regenerated, unless he acknowledges and believes that charity is the primary of his faith, and unless he is affected with love towards the neighbour.

—^e. Some perform works of charity from obedience alone . . . and yet are not regenerated. If these do not place justice in the works, they are regenerated in the other life.

1000. The life of the regenerated man is separated from the man's Voluntary, for . . . the new life which the regenerated spiritual man receives from the Lord is completely separated from the Voluntary or proprium of man, that is, from the life proper to man . . .

1001. The new Voluntary which the regenerated spiritual man receives from the Lord is the same as charity . . .

1025^b. Circumcision was a representative of regeneration through love. Ill.

1026. All things which are regenerated with man. Sig. and Ex. 1040, Ex.

— . For according to the life which a regenerated one receives, each thing with him is alive . . .

1030. 'Those going out of the ark' = the regenerated, or the men of the Church.

1032^b. Therefore the gentiles who have lived a moral life . . . are regenerated in the other life.

1040^b. When man has been regenerated, each and all things with him have been regenerated, that is, have life . . .

1042. The state of the regenerated spiritual man, which is like the rainbow. Sig. and Ex.

— . The spiritual Angels are those said to be regenerated 'with water and the spirit'; but the celestial Angels are said to be regenerated 'with fire.'

1043^b. The quality of this 'cloud' with the regenerated man, may be evident from his state before regeneration. Man is regenerated by means of those things which he supposes to be truths of faith . . . Such is every regenerated one; for many are regenerated by the Lord in every dogma; and, when they have been regenerated, they do not receive any immediate revelation . . .

1044. 'The earth' here means that which is not and cannot be regenerated, which is the voluntary proprium of man.

—². For man when regenerated is the Lord's as to the intellectual part, but his own as to the voluntary . . .

1048. When man is still such that he can be regenerated. Sig. and Ex. 1054.

1050^b. When man is being regenerated, these states (of remains) are the beginnings of regeneration . . .

1052^e. So that they could not be regenerated, that is, have a new will formed in their intellectual part.

1055^e. But when man can be regenerated, or restored again to order, and receive mutual love, there is 'the covenant' . . .

1058. First, the regenerated spiritual man within the Church has been treated of . . . Third, every man who can be regenerated.

1077. For through the truths of faith, the Lord operating in charity, man is regenerated.

1083. Before man has been regenerated, he is in externals; when he is being regenerated, he is led by means of externals to internals . . . and when he has been regenerated, all things of the internal man are terminated in externals.

1198^e. Therefore the 'Philistines' are among those who can with difficulty be regenerated.

1414^b. This infirm . . . from the mother is a corporeal something which is dispersed when he is being regenerated . . .

1453². When man is being regenerated, he is being introduced by Knowledges of spiritual and celestial things; but, when he has been regenerated, he is introduced, and is in the celestial and spiritual things of the Knowledges.

1502³. These things involve arcana concerning the instruction and regeneration of man to become celestial; and also concerning the instruction and regeneration of man to become spiritual.

1554^e. The order in which man is led when being regenerated, is known only to the Lord.

1555³. When the Intellectual has been furnished with . . . Knowledges . . . then first can he be regenerated; and, when he is being regenerated, truths and goods are through Knowledges implanted in his (remains).

1577. With men who have been regenerated (the internal and external man) appear to be united . . .

1661³. Before anyone has been regenerated, he can never know . . . that nothing of good and truth is from himself . . .

1692. Thus (by temptations) man is regenerated . . .

1695^e. Evil Spirits are equally with the regenerated spiritual man, but subjugated.

1707³. By celestial things, or goods, (the influx from the internal man) inflows with regenerated men only.

1717^e. He who has been regenerated through temptations . . .

1725. The internal man inflows . . . by celestial things with every regenerated man . . .

1738. When man is being regenerated, he receives new remains, thus new life . . .

1799. 'Heirs'=all . . . born from Him, that is, regenerated.

1803. Those born from the Lord, that is, who are being regenerated, receive the Lord's life . . .

1868². With the man being regenerated, the falsities and evils . . . are being subjugated, and truths and goods . . . are being implanted in their place. (Represented by the expulsion of the nations from Canaan.)

1904. When man is being regenerated, the affection of truth precedes . . . but when he has been regenerated, the affection of good. Ex.

1947². When man is being regenerated, he compels himself from the freedom with which he is gifted by the Lord . . .

1950^e. Therefore, when man is being regenerated, it is indeed done through the truth of faith, but still at the same time through the life of charity, which the Lord insinuates . . .

2016. Still, man ought to do good, and think truth, as of himself; for otherwise he cannot be reformed and regenerated.

2041². Those being regenerated are those with whom these loves are being removed . . .

2046. Therefore, man is reformed and regenerated through the Knowledges of truth, and not until he has been imbued with them.

2063³. When man is being regenerated, that is, when he is to be conjoined with the Lord, he proceeds to the conjunction . . . through the truths of faith; for no one can be regenerated except through Knowledges of faith . . .

2093^e. Man receives this second Rational . . . when being regenerated . . .

2204. When man is being reformed and regenerated, spiritual good is insinuated by the Lord, and thus what is worldly is tempered . . .

2256³. Through this, He implants a new will with those who are being regenerated.

2261^e. Through these truths of faith man is regenerated; for they are the veriest vessels recipient of good . . .

2276². 'A potter'=reformation and regeneration.

2343². There is presented in these words the entire process of the reformation and regeneration of those who become men of the Church . . .

2367. The perception of good and truth is in obscurity in even a regenerated man.

2556. All things with a truly rational, that is, regenerated man . . . are conjoined with one another (as are relations by blood and marriage) . . . all things are disposed in an order such as is in Heaven . . .

2572². Those who have been regenerated through the truths of faith . . .

2621². Celestial and spiritual love are the very esse of a man who is being regenerated . . .

2625⁵. With those being regenerated, celestial and spiritual things are implanted successively only; and when . . . the Rational has become such that it can receive, for the first time he is being regenerated, for the most part through temptations . . .

2636. A full state when man is being reformed and regenerated. Ex.

—². (No regeneration before adult age.)

— . This preparation is going on for many years before he is being regenerated. . . All things given by the Lord before regeneration, and through which he is regenerated, are called remains.

2654^e. Thus can the regenerated see the quality of their Rational before regeneration.

2657². With every man being regenerated there is one Rational before regeneration, and another after regeneration. Ex.

—⁵. The proprium before regeneration, and the proprium after regeneration. Ex.

— . When man is being regenerated, which is done in his adult age . . .

2682³. For few are being regenerated; and to those not being regenerated it is the same whether they know the truth, or not . . . whereas those being regenerated think much about doctrine and life . . .

—^e. As few believe they have a spirit . . . there are few being regenerated. Those who believe it . . . are those who can be regenerated; the rest cannot.

2697. The man of the Spiritual Church seems to be regenerated through truths of faith, and does not know that it is through the good of truth. . . No one can be regenerated through truth unless there is good with it. Ex.

[A.] 2702^e. Baptism is a symbol of regeneration through the truths and good of faith.

2708^d. The regeneration of those in ignorance of truth. Tr.

2851^d. When man is . . . being regenerated . . . the Genii and evil Spirits are expelled from this 'gate,' (in the natural mind) . . .

2901. 'Machpelah before Mamre'=the quality and quantity of regeneration. 2970.

2916. That they could be regenerated. Sig. and Ex.

— . As 'burying'=resurrection, it=regeneration; for regeneration is man's first resurrection. Ex.

—³. (The vision of dry bones treats of regeneration.)

2922. What is well-pleasing as to regeneration. Sig. and Ex.

2924. That all were prepared to receive regeneration. Sig. and Ex.

2935². Those being regenerated, and being made spiritual, are in the greatest obscurity as to truth. Ex.

2946². After they have been regenerated, the Knowledge is gradually insinuated into them . . . that all good and truth are from the Lord alone . . .

2960^e. Those who have been regenerated come into this state in the other life.

2967². These evils and falsities must be vastated before man can be regenerated.

2975^e. For unless the will and understanding . . . make a one, the man has not been regenerated . . .

2978. That they were regenerated, and thus a new spiritual Church was instaurated. Sig.

2979. Man has been regenerated when he has received truth conjoined with good. Ex.

—². As to the regeneration of the spiritual man . . . Ex.

—³. When (the good of life becomes principal) the man has been regenerated; but he is regenerate according to the quality and quantity of the truth insinuated into good; and, when truth and good act as a one, according to the quality and quantity of the good. Ex.

2980. That thus they were regenerated so far as they could be. Sig. and Ex.

2981. The regenerated no longer act from truth, but from good.

2986³. False principles imbued from infancy . . . must be shaken off before the man can be regenerated.

3017. The regeneration of man is nothing else (than the disposing of the things in him into order).

—^e. A regenerated one is in some light of Heaven.

3023^e. When man has been regenerated, his internals inflow into his externals, and the latter are from the former.

3043³. The reformation and regeneration of man is therefore an image (of His glorification) . . . 3138^e. 3157. 3296.

3089². With a man to be regenerated . . . the first affection of truth is very impure . . .

3090. When man is being regenerated, a semblance of marriage is effected between the will and understanding . . .

3122. When the celestial men were being reformed and regenerated, they were introduced into love to the Lord through charity towards the neighbour.

—². But the spiritual . . . when being reformed and regenerated, are introduced into charity through the things of faith. . . Still, this faith, when the spiritual man has been regenerated, becomes charity; (therefore) one of them who does not act from charity has not been regenerated; whereas he who acts from charity has been regenerated, and he then cares nothing for the things of faith or of truth . . .

3125. Man knows not a whit how he is regenerated.

3138². The Lord not only regenerated, but glorified Himself . . .

3141. All regeneration is according to this Divine order.

3153². For (now) few are being regenerated; and those who are being regenerated do not know (this).

—^e. But with Him there was not regeneration, but glorification . . .

3157^e. When the truth of faith has been received by the will . . . the man is regenerated.

3158. During every moment when man is being reformed and regenerated, he is in a free state . . .

3167². In order that spiritual things may again inflow into the natural man, it must be regenerated . . .

3179. When truth is being initiated and conjoined to good, that is, when the man is being regenerated . . .

— . For the things which come forth when man is being regenerated are completely unknown to him . . .

3186. Goods are not fructified, and truths are not multiplied, until the conjunction of truth and good is effected in the Rational, that is, until he is regenerated . . .

— . The affection of love and of charity, with happiness . . . is given . . . when man is being regenerated.

3187². That when they had entered into the marriage of good and truth, that is, when they were regenerated, goods and truths would be fructified . . . immensely; and that charity and faith would succeed . . . where before was evil and falsity. Sig.

—³. Before man becomes (a kingdom of the Lord), that is, before he is being regenerated, he is interiorly nothing but evil and falsity . . . But when . . . he is being regenerated, the evils and falsities . . . are expelled, and good and truth enter, and inherit that place.

3200^e. For the regenerated are not regenerated at one time, but continually, through the whole life, and also in the other life . . .

3207⁵. Man believes that he is reformed and regenerated through the truth of faith; but this is an appearance: he is reformed and regenerated through the good of faith . . .

3212³. When man is being regenerated, he becomes quite another person, and becomes new; and therefore, when he has been regenerated, he is called born anew, and created anew . . . His mind, when he is regenerate, is open towards Heaven, and therein dwells love to the Lord and charity towards the neighbour, together with faith . . . The change of state cannot be appereived in man's body, but in his spirit . . . (Thus) a regenerated one . . . is altogether another and a new man.

—⁴. The Lord was not regenerated like man, but made Divine.

3286². When man is being regenerated, good is insinuated . . . into his Rational . . . But the Natural is not yet regenerated; (for) the internal man often fights with the external; and, so long as there is combat, the Natural is not regenerated; and, when this is not regenerated, the Rational is barren as to truth.

—³. The work of regeneration is directed mainly to this, that the natural may correspond to the rational man. Ex. . . And in proportion as it corresponds, the man has been regenerated.

3288^e. None are truly rational but those who have been regenerated . . .

3295. Before he has been regenerated, man does good from truth; but after he has been regenerated, he does good from good. Ex.

3304². The natural man, when being regenerated . . .

3310². Those being regenerated first do good from doctrinals . . . When they have been regenerated, they do not do good from doctrinals, but from love and charity . . .

—⁴. Therefore, before man is in adult age, and is in doctrinals through sensuous and scientific truths, he cannot be regenerated.

3316². The first state of a man who is being regenerated, that is, with whom good is being conjoined with truth, is that . . . he heaps up in the memory doctrinals of truth . . .

3318⁵. For the man who is being made new through regeneration, retains an inclination to evil . . . but the Lord cast out all evil.

3325². Before they have been regenerated, they believe truth to be both prior and superior . . . But when truth has been conjoined with good in them, they see and perceive that truth is posterior and inferior . . .

—³. As there are more within the Church who are not being regenerated, than there are being regenerated; and those not being regenerated conclude from the appearance . . .

—¹¹. When the man of the Church can no longer be regenerated . . .

3330². The Lord permits (low motives at first) because otherwise (the spiritual man) cannot be regenerated.

3332². The progress as to truth and good with the spiritual man when he is being regenerated. Tr. . . Thus the spiritual man, when being regenerated, proceeds from the doctrine of truth to the good of life; but, when he is in the good of life, the order is inverted . . .

3336³. When the time comes that the man can be regenerated, the Lord inspires the affection of good . . .

3394². The spiritual do not know that Divine truth becomes rational truth with a man when he has been regenerated . . .

—³. It here treats of the regenerated spiritual man . . .

3469². Those in the good of truth, that is, in a life according to doctrinals, have been regenerated as to the interiors . . . but not yet as to the exteriors . . . for man is regenerated as to the Rational before he is regenerated as to the Natural; for the Natural is in the world . . . This is why, during his regeneration, man perceives a combat between his internal and external man, and why his external is regenerated much later, and with much greater difficulty. Ex. and Sig.

3470². Therefore, in order that he may receive spiritual good, man must be regenerated . . .

—³. Thus also is it with the Natural, when it is being regenerated . . .

3471. In the representative sense it is shown how the Lord regenerates man, or makes him celestial and spiritual.

3490. In the representative sense, the regeneration of man as to his Natural is treated of (in Gen.xxvii.).

3493. The Rational is regenerated before the Natural, because it is nearer to the Divine . . . When, therefore, the Rational has been regenerated, and not the Natural, the former appears to 'darken' itself. Sig. and Ex.

3502². The Natural is not . . . regenerated, except through . . . the Knowledges of good and truth: the celestial man through the Knowledges of good first, but the spiritual man through the Knowledges of truth first.

3505. The good of infancy and the derivative good of life is the first of regeneration.

3509². Before man has been regenerated, the will does not act as a one with the understanding: the former wills good, and the latter, truth . . .

3539². The end of regeneration is that man may be made new as to the internal man . . . but he cannot be regenerated as to the internal man, unless also as to the external. Ex.

—³. The state of the regeneration of man is described in this chapter by Esau and Jacob, here, its quality when he is being regenerated, or before he has been regenerated; for this state is entirely inverted relatively to that in which the man is when he has been regenerated. Ex.

—^e. When the will has been conjoined with the understanding as in a marriage, the man has been regenerated.

3548². The Natural as to truth with a man who is being regenerated, that is, before he has been regenerated, appears such . . .

3556. Truths and goods not genuine . . . serving only for the regenerating of man . . .

3563³. Such is the influx with those who have been regenerated; but there is a different influx before they have been regenerated. (See INFLUX, here.)

— . As man cannot be regenerated otherwise, it is according to order.

—⁴. The quality of natural good, and natural truth, in the state before regeneration . . .

—⁵. But in the state after regeneration, it is otherwise . . .

3570². Hence man knows nothing as to how he is being regenerated, and scarcely that he is being regenerated. But if he desires to know this, let him attend to the ends he proposes to himself. . . . If he studies more for the neighbour and the Lord than for himself, he is in a state of regeneration . . .

[A. 3570]⁴. (Parallel between regeneration and man's first birth.)

3573. For the Natural has not been regenerated until it has been conjoined with the Rational.

—³. When there is conjunction, as with those who have been regenerated. Des.

3593. Before he has been regenerated, truths apparently dominate; but . . . after he has been regenerated, truths give place, and good receives the dominion. Refs.

3603². Even those being regenerated do not know what good is until they have been regenerated . . .

— . When man comes to do good from the affection of good, that is, when he has been regenerated, (he receives) the blessing given to Esau.

—³. In his third age, if man is among those who can be regenerated, he begins to think about use . . . But in his fourth age, when is the age of his regeneration . . . he loves . . . truth for the sake of the good of life . . .

—⁴. But, after man has been regenerated, self-glory, etc. recede, and the good comes forth . . .

—⁵. What he has hereditarily . . . manifests itself more and more, if he . . . does not suffer himself to be regenerated . . . Whereas the Involuntary which is from the Lord . . . manifests itself in adult age with those who are being regenerated . . .

3617. For without the conjunction of truth with good, and the union of truth with good in the Natural, there is no regeneration.

3652⁶. When man is being regenerated, he learns truth for the sake of good . . . But after he has been regenerated, he acts from truth and good, (and then) must not betake himself to the former state. Ex.

3656. How the Lord regenerates man's Natural as to truth and as to good. Tr.

3665². When man is being regenerated, he is first led as an infant, then as a child, etc. Ex.

3669^e. In the good which is from truth are those being regenerated before they have been regenerated; but in the good from which is truth are the same when they are regenerated.

3671. Hence it is that the Rational is regenerated first of all . . . and then the Natural.

3676². Knowledges . . . are accounted as truths by those who are in the beginning of regeneration.

3679⁶. From these (external things) all the regeneration of the Natural begins.

3688³. A man who is such that he can be regenerated—for the Lord foresees this, and also provides—first . . . does good to beggars . . . and he who is in the first state of regeneration does good to such from the heart, and these are the goods of external truth from which he begins . . .

—⁴. At last, when he is being regenerated, he does good only to the good . . . When he is in this charity from the heart, he has then been regenerated.

3690. The life of infancy and childhood of those being regenerated (is remote from Divine doctrinals). Sig. and Ex.

—⁴. But he who is being regenerated is led by degrees from this more remote life . . . into spiritual life . . .

3696. Those who are to be regenerated . . . are first of all in a state of tranquillity. Sig. and Ex.

3701². The order of man's regeneration. Ex.

—⁴. These are the lowest goods and truths from which those being regenerated commence . . .

3726. The order in which the Lord . . . regenerates man's Natural. Tr. 3761.

3761. That the man who is being regenerated in adult age progresses according to the order here described in the internal sense . . . is known to few . . . because at this day few can be regenerated. Ex.

3762². These truths concerning charity towards the neighbour and love to the Lord must be learned before the man can be regenerated . . . and in proportion as they are acknowledged, believed, and imbued in the life, in the same proportion the man is being regenerated.

3793. Therefore, in order that man may be saved, he must be regenerated . . .

—³. The regeneration of man as to his Natural (exemplified in the history of Jacob and the two daughters of Laban).

3804^e. Such (angelic) forms, as to their spirits, are those who have been regenerated.

3816². Reward serves for conjunction . . . with those . . . not yet fully regenerated. . . . But, when man is being regenerated, this (affection for what is blessed and happy for themselves) becomes the affection of good . . .

3825². With every man being regenerated, the good of the Natural . . . is first conjoined with the good represented by Laban . . . and afterwards with the good of the Rational . . .

3835². As the man who is being regenerated is introduced to internal things through external ones . . .

3855². Therefore, when man is being regenerated, he is regenerated as to the Rational before he is regenerated as to the Natural; and the Natural [is regenerated] with greater slowness and difficulty because in it are many things not in order, and exposed to injuries from the body and the world.

3860. 'To conceive and bear' = to be regenerated.

3862³. This order (of the tribes) is according to the state of . . . man's regeneration.

3863. When man is being regenerated, or being made a Church, he first learns and imbues the things which are of faith . . . 3876.

3870. It treats of the progress of man's regeneration from external to internal; that is, from the truth of faith to the good of charity.

3882. 'Reuben' = the truth which is the first of regeneration or rebirth . . . 'Simeon,' the truth which is the second of regeneration or rebirth, (which) is the willing of truth; 'Levi,' the truth which is the third of regeneration or rebirth (which) is the being affected with truth or charity; and 'Judah,' the good which is the fourth of regeneration or rebirth, and which is the celestial of love. When the regenerated one, or he who is born anew, arrives at this, the Lord appears to him. . .

3906. Those being regenerated . . . learn what internal truth is, but at first do not acknowledge it with such faith as to live according to it. . .

3913. The twelve sons of Jacob describe the twelve general or cardinal Things through which man is initiated into spiritual and celestial things while he is being regenerated. Ex.

—⁵. When this affirmative comes, man is in the beginning of regeneration . . . 3923.

3921³. In these verses the regeneration of the spiritual man is treated of; and in the preceding the regeneration of the celestial man.

3923. Affirmation with acknowledgment is the first general with the man being regenerated; but the last with the man who has been regenerated; and therefore Dan is the first with him who is to be regenerated, and Joseph is the last. But Joseph is the first with him who is regenerated, and Dan is the last; because he who is to be regenerated commences from the affirmation that it is so . . . whereas the regenerated is in spiritual good itself.

3927^e. When man is such . . . that he can be regenerated, he will conquer in temptations; but when he is such that he cannot be regenerated, he yields in them.

3928². Before regeneration, man is possessed as to his natural man by Genii and infernal Spirits . . .

3934². Works of charity are with the regenerated man; but works of faith are with him who has not yet been regenerated, but who is being regenerated. . . The regenerated man does good from the affection of it . . . but he who is to be regenerated does good from the affection of truth . . .

—⁸. Then man is in the beginning of regeneration . . . Then he has been regenerated.

3938⁴. Before man is being regenerated . . . these delights (of evil) appear to be the only ones . . .

3971. In the things which precede . . . it has treated of the regeneration of man even until he is made spiritual . . .

3974³. Goods and truths not genuine serve to introduce genuine truths and goods, especially in the beginning of regeneration. 3982, Ex.

3993⁷. The light of the world illustrated by the light of Heaven, as with those who have been regenerated. Ex.

—⁸. There are evils with which goods can be mingled; in like manner falsities. Unless this were the case no man could ever be regenerated.

3994⁶. The Passover . . . in the representative sense, = the regeneration of man; and the paschal lamb, that which is the essential of regeneration, namely, innocence; for no one can be regenerated except through charity in which is innocence.

3995². When man is being regenerated, the truth which is of faith apparently precedes, and the good which is of charity apparently follows; but when man has been regenerated (the converse); for, when man is being regenerated, he does good from the truth he has learned . . . The truth which enters through the external way is adopted by the good which is within . . . and this until the man has been regenerated; (but) then truth is done from good. Ex.

4001. For the proprium of the man who is being regenerated reigns at first.

4002^e. As, in the beginning of regeneration, all (claim what is the Lord's) . . .

4015². The Natural cannot be disposed, that is, regenerated (except from the interior). Ex.

4027². Such do not know what regeneration is, and do not believe it to be possible . . .

4063². When man is being regenerated, he is kept by the Lord in a certain middle good. Ex. 4145², Ex.

—³. When, therefore, from being the old man, a man is becoming a new one, that is, when a man is being regenerated, it is not done in a moment . . . but through many years, nay, through the whole of the man's life even to the last of it . . .

—⁵. When man is being regenerated, his state becomes entirely different . . . nor can anyone arrive at this state, except through the media of regeneration, (spiritual Societies of various kinds) which are provided by the Lord alone . . . 4067⁴, Ex. 4077², Ex. 4099, Ex. 4110², Ex.

4104². Therefore the man who has been regenerated, when he dies, comes into a like (angelic) thought . . .

4122. For the Angels thus see and perceive, with the man who is being regenerated, all his changes of state . . .

4136². With those not being regenerated, no goods are changed, but affections and their delights; whereas with those being regenerated, there are changes of the state of the goods, and this from infancy up to the end of their life . . .

4167². By the interior plane, or the conscience of spiritual good and truth, the Lord rules those who have been regenerated. By the exterior plane, or the conscience of what is just and fair . . . He rules those who have not yet been regenerated, but who can be regenerated, and also are being regenerated, if not in the life of the body, in the other life. And by the outermost plane . . . He rules all the rest.

—³. With the regenerated these three planes act as a one . . .

4243^e. Those who have been regenerated are in this good. Ex.

4247². For, in the beginning of regeneration, man is not yet in Knowledges; but, as good is continually inflowing, it produces the affection of truth . . . But when man is being regenerated, which is done in adult age when he is in Knowledges, then good manifests itself; for he is then not so much in the affection of knowing truth, as in the affection of doing it.

4317. The Israelites had a Hereditary which could not be eradicated by regeneration. Sig. and Ex.

[A.4317]⁴. When man is being regenerated, the hereditary evil inrooted by the nearest parents is extirpated; whereas with those not being regenerated . . . it remains.

—^e. Temptations are the veriest means of regeneration. Ex.

4345⁵. When man is being regenerated . . . general affections with their truths . . . are first insinuated into good; then, the less general things . . . and lastly, the singulars. Sig.

4353. Conjunction is that which makes regeneration with man; for man is regenerated by this: that the truths with him are being conjoined with good. Tr.

—². The conjunction of good with truths, by which is regeneration, progresses more and more interiorly . . . for the end of regeneration is that the internal man may be conjoined with the external . . . without the conjunction of both there is no regeneration . . . This is the reason why, when the Natural is being regenerated, the conjunction of good with truths becomes successively more interior. Ex.

4377. The man who is being regenerated runs through ages, namely, infancy, childhood, adolescence, and adult age . . .

4380. In regeneration, which is effected through the conjunction of good with truths . . . good is what acts, and truth is what suffers itself to be acted upon . . .

4383. Those who are being regenerated . . . are imbued with generals in which are the things which follow, and which successively come forth . . .

4538³. At last, when man apperceives delight in willing good and thence in doing it, it is no longer called the good of truth, but good, for then he has been regenerated . . .

4582^e. Such is the process of the progression . . . with man when the Lord makes him celestial through regeneration. 4585².

4588. This is why, when man is being regenerated, his Natural is first prepared to receive . . .

4612⁴. For, when the Natural has been regenerated, the things which inflow from the Lord through Heaven, and thus through the Rational into the Natural, are received because they agree.

4747. 'Gilead'=the exterior good through which man is first initiated when being regenerated.

4797^e. When man is being regenerated . . . the innocence of infancy . . . becomes internal.

4928. When man is being regenerated, good does not appear, because it hides itself in the interior man . . . but when truth has been conjoined with good, which takes place when the man has been regenerated, then good manifests itself; for the man then acts from good . . .

5036². Temptations take place when man is in the act of regeneration . . .

5113. For it is the intellectual part, which, with the man of the Spiritual Church, is regenerated . . . Ex.

—¹⁵.
—³. But the man of the Celestial Church was regenerated as to the voluntary part. Ex. —¹⁷.

5115². So that from a fruitbearing tree it may be learned how it is with regeneration . . . 5116, Ex.

5116. The state near regeneration. Sig. and Ex.

5117. The progress of rebirth or regeneration even to the conjunction of truth with good. Sig. and Ex.

5120. The regeneration of the sensuous part subject to the Intellectual of the interior man. Tr. (in Gen.xl.).

5122². When man is being regenerated as to both the Rational and the Natural, the periods of the first state are from the truths of faith to the goods of charity . . . These periods last until the man has been regenerated . . .

—³. Such progressions and derivations are perpetual with the man who is being regenerated, from his infancy to the last of his life . . . and afterwards to eternity; and yet he can never be so regenerated that he can be said to be perfect in any way; for there are . . . things indefinite in number which are to be regenerated, both in the Rational and in the Natural, and every one of them has an indefinite number of . . . progressions and derivations towards the interiors and towards the exteriors . . .

5126⁴. But with those who suffer themselves to be regenerated, the contrary happens; for the Rational is successively opened with them . . .

5159. With the man who is being regenerated, a new state begins when the order is changed, which takes place when interiors receive dominion over exteriors . . . This is perceived with those being regenerated, from the fact that something interiorly dissuades lest sensuous delights and corporeal and earthly pleasures should reign . . . When this happens, the prior state is at its end . . .

—². With every man, whether being regenerated, or not, changes of state come forth, and also inversions; but . . . with those not being regenerated, they are from causes in the body . . . whereas with those being regenerated, they are for the sake of spiritual causes . . .

—³. He who does not suffer himself to be regenerated, loves the things of the body for the sake of the body . . . whereas he who is being regenerated also loves the things of the body and the world, but for the sake of a higher end . . .

—⁴. With the regenerate, interiors dominate over exteriors; but with the non-regenerate, exteriors over interiors . . .

5160. 'Pharaoh's birth day'=when the Natural was being regenerated. Ex.

—². By being reborn or regenerated, man becomes man, and is entirely distinguished from the brutes . . .

5161^e. Regeneration, which is the conjunction of the interiors with the exteriors through love . . . Sig.

5202⁴. These are the arcana of regeneration, which are innumerable . . . for the man who is in good is being reborn every moment, from earliest infancy to . . . eternity, not only as to the interiors, but also as to the exteriors, and this by stupendous processes . . .

5206. The truths in the Natural . . . before they are regenerated, are as it were exterminated by falsities. Sig. and Ex.

5275. By the seven years of plenty and the seven years of famine . . . are described states of man's reformation and regeneration . . .

—². For by regeneration man becomes a Church in the singular.

5280². The last state of desolation, with despair, which proximately precedes regeneration. Tr.

—². Every man must be reformed, and be born anew, or regenerated, in order to come into Heaven; for 'except a man be born again he cannot see the Kingdom of God.' Man is born in sin . . . thus is nothing but sin; and, therefore, unless he is regenerated, he (so) remains. But, in order to be regenerated, he must first be reformed . . .

—³. Still, few are being regenerated . . . (for) man cannot be regenerated until these loves have been removed. (The work done by temptations des.) Then, as the man suffers himself to be regenerated, there is insinuated by the Lord, through an internal way, the light of truth from good into the Natural . . .

5326. See NATURAL, here.

5335². As man cannot be regenerated, that is, be admitted into the spiritual combats through which regeneration is effected, until he has received remains to the full . . . Sig.

5339^e. These series (of truths) with the regenerate are according to the ordinations of the Societies in the Heavens; but with the non-regenerate, who also cannot be regenerated, according to the ordinations of the Societies in the Hells.

5342¹. For . . . no one can receive spiritual life unless he is regenerated; and no one can be regenerated except through the good of life conjoined with the truth of doctrine . . .

5344^e. This (the Second) Heaven is [that which is opened when man is being regenerated; and this is the Heaven which is closed when man does not suffer himself to be regenerated.

5354³. The process of regeneration, which contains things ineffable, makes the most part of angelic wisdom, and is such that it can never be fully exhausted to eternity by any Angel.

5365². But when man has been regenerated, good increases, and, as it increases, it is in need of truth . . .

5376². With those being regenerated, that is, whom the Lord foresees will suffer themselves to be regenerated, these truths are greatly multiplied . . . but when they approach more nearly to the act itself of regeneration, they are as it were deprived of these truths; for they are drawn inwards, and the man then appears in desolation; but still these truths are successively remitted into the Natural, and are there conjoined with good, when the man is being regenerated. But with those not being regenerated, that is, whom the Lord foresees will not suffer themselves to be regenerated, truths are indeed wont to be multiplied (for the sake of reputation, etc.); but, as they advance in age (they) are either denied or turned into falsities. Ex. and Ill.

5398. In (these chapters) it treats of the regeneration of the Natural as to the truths and goods of the Church . . .

5461. The influx of the Divine with a regenerated man is into good and thence into truth; or, into the will, and thence into the understanding. 5482.

5477². (When) a man has been regenerated, the things of Heaven . . . by illustration from spiritual light appear in the Natural as in a representative mirror.

5489². But with the regenerate the scientifics of the Church have adjoined to them . . . genuine goods . . .

5527. When man has been regenerated, truths are continually fructified from good . . .

5531. These receptacles with a man who has been regenerated are as many in number as are the general truths with him; and each receptacle corresponds to some Society in Heaven . . .

5559. So appear the cuticles of a regenerated man.

5650^e. In this state is placed the man who is to be regenerated . . . and, in proportion as he turns himself in freedom to this, in the same proportion he is being regenerated.

5651³. Regeneration is nothing else than that the Natural be subjugated, and the Spiritual obtain dominion . . .

5660². Afterwards, the Spirits who are being regenerated, return . . .

5688. The Rational . . . is regenerated first; afterwards the Natural; and therefore the medium, as it is derived from both . . . can be born only according to the degree in which the Natural is being regenerated.

5696. There is mercy from love towards the medium, because through it are regenerated the things which are below; but the Lord's love and mercy . . . are so disposed as not to appear; for, if they were to appear, regeneration would not be possible. Ex.

5804². Thus is the Natural regenerated. Ex.

5826¹. 'Born of God' = those who have been regenerated by the Lord, and are thence in good.

5827². In the first state (of man's regeneration) when he is being introduced through truth into good, truth appears manifestly because it is in the light of the world . . . but not so good, for this is in the light of Heaven . . . yet it inflows and causes the truths to live, otherwise the man could never be regenerated. But when this state is over, good manifests itself . . .

5893². When man is being regenerated, which is done in adult age, because previously he does not think about the truths of faith from himself, he is ruled by the Lord through Angels, by this: that he is kept in truths . . .

5996. What is successive of regeneration. Sig. 6221.

6004¹. It is from Divine order that interiors betake themselves into exteriors . . . thus all priors into ultimates, and are there together . . . (otherwise) man could not be fully regenerated. Ex.

6061. The regeneration of spiritual good from the Natural. Tr.

6109^e. These things rarely take place here . . . but do so in the other life with all being regenerated.

[A.] 6138. The man who is being regenerated is at last so far reduced by repeated desolations and supportings, that he no longer wants to be his own . . .

6156². When man cannot be regenerated, the remains are well reserved in the interiors; but when he is being regenerated they are let into the exteriors in proportion as he is regenerated, for the reason that through regeneration the interiors are conjoined with the exteriors . . .

6176. The state just before regeneration. Sig. and Ex.

6181. Regeneration not in scientifics. Sig. and Ex.

6183. The regeneration of the Natural is effected by the insinuation of spiritual life from the Lord through the internal man into the scientifics there. . . But when man has thus been regenerated, if he is such that he can be further regenerated, he is elevated thence to the interior Natural . . . (otherwise) his spiritual life is in the exterior Natural.

6221. 'To die' = regeneration; and 'to be sick' = what is successive of regeneration. Ex.

6223³. Those who have been regenerated, receive from the Lord an Intellectual which can be illustrated. Ex.

6299². Hence the Natural must necessarily be regenerated; for, unless it is regenerated, the internal has no foundation, nor receptacle . . .

6348^e. The man who is such that he does not suffer himself to be regenerated, which is foreseen by the Lord, is withheld from faith and charity. Ex.

6396. The man who is being regenerated by the Lord . . . is first in truth and not in any good of life from truth; then he is in the good of life from truth, but not yet from good; afterwards, when he has been regenerated, he is in the good of life from good, and then apperceives truth from good and multiplies it with himself. These are the degrees of regeneration.

6402. But those in good, as are the regenerated, look upwards or inwards; for, when man is being regenerated, the order is thus changed.

6548. The beginning of regeneration. Sig. and Ex.

6550. Those who . . . suffer themselves to be regenerated. Sig. and Ex.

6554. All things which conduce to regeneration. Sig. and Ex.

6610. But with those being regenerated, the thoughts and affections are continually being insinuated into new heavenly Societies, and the extension increases; and the previous thoughts and affections are also divided, and the divided ones are associated with ideas which are again communicated with new Societies . . .

6611. Those who suffer themselves to be regenerated, are continually carried upwards, thus always into more interior heavenly Societies. The extension of the sphere into these Societies is given . . . to those who are being regenerated especially by temptations . . . 6645².

6647². Therefore, when the man of the Spiritual Church is being regenerated, truths are excited . . . through the Angels who are with him, and thence he is led into good; but, when this man has been regener- ated, truth and good are excited together, and so he is led.

6686². Hence the Natural does not know . . . when it is being regenerated, nor how. Ill.

6717. But this truth which is received before regeneration, is not the genuine truth of good, but is the truth of doctrine . . . This state is the first with the man who is being regenerated. But, when he has been regenerated, then good manifests itself, especially by this: that he loves to live according to the truth . . .

6751^e. When man is being regenerated, the generals of faith . . . are the first plane; then come the particulars of doctrine; afterwards, things more interior, successively: these planes are what are illustrated by the light of Heaven.

6756². In ancient times . . . the new birth, or regeneration, made the relationships . . .

6765^e. Hence people within the Church can be regenerated from any doctrine; but those above others who are in genuine truths.

6843^e. For the external sensuous things of the Natural are regenerated last.

6854³. That the spiritual cannot be regenerated as to the voluntary part, but only as to the intellectual part. Refs.

6872⁴. Man becomes entirely new when he is being regenerated. Ex.

7231². When the man is being regenerated thus far, he is then a man of the Spiritual Church . . .

7442³. This being so with man, it is necessary that while he is being regenerated, his Natural should be regenerated even to the Sensuous; for, unless this is regenerated, there is no reception of truth and good . . . And therefore, when the exteriors have been regenerated, the whole man has been regenerated. Sig.

—⁴. But the Sensuous itself, which is the ultimate of the Natural, can with difficulty be regenerated, because it has been completely filled with material ideas . . . and therefore the man who is being regenerated, especially at this day, is not regenerated as to the Sensuous, but as to the Natural which is proximately above the Sensuous . . .

7756^e. But with those who have been regenerated, the good of charity (flowing in by the internal way) is manifestly perceived.

7839. This state is first full when truths are regarded from good; and it is not yet full when good is regarded from truths: in the latter state are those being regenerated, in the former those who have been regenerated . . .

7857. When man is being regenerated, the good with him proceeds from the truth of faith, for he then acts according to truth, not from the affection of truth, but from obedience . . . Afterwards, when he has been regenerated, he does what is good from affection . . . These two states are completely distinguished in the Word, for the reason that man cannot be in both states together: he who is in the first state cannot enter into the second before he has been regenerated; and he who is in the second must not betake himself into the former one. Ex. and Sig. 8234. 8399^e. 8505². 8516². 8690².

800². For, before he has been regenerated, man cannot but think of reward . . .

801³. Life before regeneration is according to the precepts of faith; but after regeneration is according to the precepts of charity. Before regeneration, no one knows from affection what charity is, but only from doctrine . . . whereas after regeneration, he knows from affection what charity is . . .

803⁶. They who are in these things, are those who have been regenerated by the Lord, and have received from Him a new will and a new understanding.

804². When man is being regenerated, he is led through faith in the understanding, or doctrine, to faith in the will, or life; that is, through the truth of faith to the good of charity: when man is in the good of charity, he has then been regenerated; and then, from good, he begets truths . . .

819⁴. If the infernals were to inflow into the Voluntary of a man after he had been regenerated, it would be all over with him; for his Voluntary is nothing but evil. Hence it is that the man of the Spiritual Church is regenerated . . . as to the intellectual part . . .

832⁶. Regeneration continually. Sig. and Ex.

—'. 'To plant'=to regenerate; for regeneration is like planting. Ex.

—^e. For regeneration never ceases . . .

8330³. 'Sanctuary'=the regenerated man . . .

840³. No one is regenerated without temptations, one after the other. The reason is, that regeneration takes place for the end that the life of the old man may die, and a new life which is heavenly be insinuated . . .

840⁹. 'Sons of God'=the regenerate: and those who are being regenerated are all vivified from the Lord's proprium, which is His 'flesh' and 'body,' that is, His Divine good.

841³. The man who is being regenerated is not deprived of the delight of the pleasures of the body and lower mind; for after regeneration he enjoys this delight . . . more fully than before, but in an inverted order. Before regeneration, the delight of pleasures was the all of his life; but after regeneration the good of charity becomes the all of life, and the delight of pleasures serves as a means and an ultimate plane . . .

845⁶. Exterior things with the man who is being regenerated receive life from interior ones successively . . . The insinuation of life from the Lord, with those being regenerated, takes place in successive order from Him, thus through the inmost, and so through the interiors to the exteriors. Hence, with the regenerated, there is what is open even to the Lord; whereas with those who have not been regenerated, there is what is closed.

848⁷. Such is celestial good at first with those being regenerated.

853⁹. Before regeneration, all good is procured through truths; but after regeneration, man is led by the Lord through good; the former state is signified by the 'six days,' and the latter one by the 'sabbath;'; thus the former state was represented by the journeyings of the sons of Israel in the wilderness . . . and the latter one by their introduction into Canaan.

855³. This (complete inversion) is effected through regeneration, by the Lord.

863⁵. No one can be regenerated unless he knows such things as are of the new life . . .

864⁰. (Thus) the life of the regenerate is the life of faith.

864⁸. But, in the first state, which is before regeneration, good is not received, but truth . . . Whereas in the second state, which is after regeneration, good is received conjoined with truth.

865⁷. Conjunction in the state before regeneration with temptations. Sig. and Ex.

—². There are two states into which enter those who are being regenerated, and becoming a Spiritual Church; and, when in the prior one, they undergo temptations . . .

868⁵. There are two states with the man who is being regenerated . . . In the first state he acts from truth; in the second, from good . . . In the first state he is led by immediate influx; in the second, by influx both immediate and mediate. Rep. 8686. 8701.

870¹. In general, it is to be known that man has not been regenerated until he acts from the affection of good; for he then wills good, and it is a delight and blessedness to him to do it. When he is in this state, his life is a life of good, and he is in Heaven . . .

873¹. In what precedes, it has treated of the prior state in which are those of the Spiritual Church when being regenerated; namely, when they are led by the Lord by truth. To this state succeeds the second, which is that they are led by the Lord by good. The change of the one state into the other is what is described in Ex. xviii. 8754, Refs.

874². Every man has an internal and an external man . . . Both must be regenerated for the man to be regenerate.

874³. With the man who has not been regenerated, the external man commands . . . whereas with the man who has been regenerated, the internal man commands . . . This inversion cannot possibly come forth except through regeneration by the Lord.

874⁴. When the external man has not been regenerated. Des.

874⁵. But when the external man has been regenerated. Des.

874⁶. The internal man is first regenerated by the Lord, and afterwards the external; and the latter through the former. The internal man is regenerated by thinking the things which are of faith, and willing them; and the external, by a life according to them.

874⁷. The man who has been regenerated is as to his internal man in Heaven, and is an Angel there with the Angels . . . He can then . . . love the Lord, love the neighbour, understand truth, relish good, and perceive blessedness thence.

877². When, therefore, these truths have been conjoined with good, then the man has been regenerated; for he then no longer looks from truths to see what is to be believed and done, but from good . . .

[A.] 8794². Therefore, when man is being regenerated, the enrichment [of him] with good is nothing else than insinuation into angelic Societies . . .

8806². This is why those (of the Spiritual Church) when being regenerated are led through truths to good; and afterwards, when they have been regenerated [are led] by good into the truths of good . . .

8856. When man is being regenerated, charity is implanted through faith, even until it is dominant; and, when charity has become dominant, then he has the new life . . .

8858^e. The quality of the life with the regenerate, and with the non-regenerate. Ex.

8891. The regeneration and vivification of the things in the internal and in the external man. Sig. and Ex.

—³. The reason it was forbidden to eat of the tree of knowledge, was that the regenerated man ought no longer to be led by means of the understanding of truth, but by means of the will of good . . .

8893. For before man has been regenerated . . . he is in disquiet and unrest, because his natural life then fights with his spiritual life . . .

8902³. That man can no longer be regenerated. Sig.

8922^e. For man is regenerated, that is, receives the life of Heaven, through the truth Divine which is of faith. Refs.

8925². Such a fear is insinuated into the love when man is being regenerated. Ex.

8935². Man, before he has been regenerated, is in worship from truth; but, when he has been regenerated, he is in worship from good . . .

8958. Those who are being regenerated undergo temptations. Gen.art.

8974³. He who does what is good solely from obedience, and not from the affection which is of love, cannot be regenerated, like those who are in the good of charity . . . They can indeed be reformed, but not regenerated. Tr. 8987.

8983^e. For regeneration is the conjunction of good and truth. 10022². 10235⁷.

8987. To be regenerated, is said of those who, through truths . . . suffer themselves to be led by the Lord to the good of spiritual life; to be reformed, of those who, through truths . . . can be brought . . . only to the delight of natural life. Those who suffer themselves to be regenerated, act from affection according to the precepts of faith; but those who suffer themselves to be only reformed, act not from affection, but from obedience. Ex.

8995⁴. Does not know that man, when being regenerated, must be completely inverted. Ex.

9042. For the regeneration of man, which is the generation of spiritual life with him, is meant in the internal sense of the Word by the generation of his natural life . . .

9043. He who is being regenerated, first draws from doctrine or the Word the things of faith and charity, and then stores them among the scientifics in the memory of the natural man: thence they are called forth into the internal man, and stored in its memory. . . . This is the beginning of spiritual life with man; but he is not yet regenerated. In order to be regenerated, the external man must be in compliance . . . with his internal man. Refs.

9061. Therefore, man cannot be regenerated, unless the natural man also is regenerated.

9063. That the Sensuous, which is the ultimate in the natural man, must be regenerated, in order that man may be fully regenerated. Refs.

9182⁴. For, when man is being regenerated through the goods and truths of faith, the internal man is first being regenerated, and afterwards the external. Refs.

9184. This (conjunction of truth with affection from the delight of gain or of honour) does not injure those who are afterwards regenerated. For, when man is being regenerated, the order of his life is inverted. Ex.

—². And when the internal man has been opened through regeneration, then good inflows through it from the Lord . . .

9224². The truths of faith are apperceived by man, but not the good which is of charity, until he has been regenerated. Ex.

9227². How the case is with the two states with the man who is being regenerated. Ex.

—³. From these things it may be evident in what way man is elevated out of the world into Heaven when being regenerated.

9230^e. The good which man does in the first state, when being regenerated, is called the good of faith; but the good he does in the second state, namely, when he has been regenerated, is called the good of charity. (The first is done from obedience; the second from the affection of good.)

9246. In (Ex.xxiii.) it treats of the falsities . . . and evils . . . to be shunned, and that then truths . . . and goods . . . are implanted, and through these the man of the Church is regenerated by the Lord.

9258². When the internal of man is being formed anew or regenerated, the scientifics and truths which are of the external man are like the fibres of fruit by which the sap is transferred to the internal; and which also afterwards, when the man has been regenerated, are separated and serve as soil . . .

9272. 'Six years' = the first state of the man who is being regenerated. Ex.

9274. 'The seventh year' = the second state of regeneration, when man is in good.

—². The first state of the man who is being regenerated is to learn truths and see them; and the second state is to will and love them . . . If these things were known, it could be known . . . that the man who is being regenerated is gifted by the Lord with a new understanding and a new will (and that there must be both); consequently, that the first state of the man being regenerated is to be led through truths to good, and the second state is to be led through good; and that when he is in this state, the order has been inverted, and he is then led by the Lord, and consequently is in Heaven, and thus in the tranquillity of peace. Ill.

9278. By the 'work on the six days, and the resting on the Sabbath' are signified the things which come forth with man in his first and second states when being regenerated. Ex.

—². Man is born (so) that he loves the world and self above Heaven and the Lord; and, as this is opposite to Divine order, it must be inverted through regeneration . . . This is why the man who has been regenerated, so that he is in Heaven, is alternately in externals and in internals . . . When man is in externals, he is in labour and combat . . .

9286². The successive degrees of liberation from damnation are circumstanced like the successive degrees of regeneration; for regeneration is liberation from Hell, and introduction into Heaven . . . For the man who is being regenerated is first purified from evils; then truths of faith are implanted in the good of charity with him; and finally this good itself is implanted, and then the man has been regenerated, and is in Heaven with the Lord; and therefore by the three feasts in the year was signified the worship of the Lord and thanksgiving on account of regeneration. 9294².

9297². Therefore, when man has been regenerated, the Lord is present not only in the good with him, but also in the truths which are from good; for truths then have life from good . . .

9300². For, with the man who is being regenerated, and still more with him who has been regenerated, truths are of good, and goods are of truth . . . and with the regenerated man the understanding and will make one mind, and communicate reciprocally . . .

9325³. 'To bear seven' = to be regenerated to the full.

—¹⁰. That man's Natural is the first which receives truths . . . and is regenerated last; and, that when it has been regenerated, the whole man has been regenerated. Sig. and Refs.

9333². Man can be kept in good and truth when he has been regenerated; for then he has attained the life of the good of charity and of the truth of faith.

9334². Man, when being regenerated, which is effected by the implantation of spiritual truth and good, and, then, by the removal of falsity and evil, is not hastily regenerated, but slowly. The reason is that all things which a man has thought, intended, and done, from infancy, have added themselves to his life, and have made it, and have also formed such a connection among themselves, that one cannot be removed unless all are removed together. Ex.

—³. That regeneration, or the implantation of the life of Heaven with man, begins from his infancy, and lasts to the last of his life in the world, and is after it perfected to eternity. Refs. 9452.

—^e. The regeneration of man in the world is only a plane for the perfecting of his life to eternity.

9335². A man who is being regenerated is kept in the affection of truth . . .

9336. For according to the order of Heaven are disposed all things with a man who is being regenerated; for a regenerated man is a Heaven in the least form . . .

9435². There are like degrees of ascension from the world to Heaven with those who are being regenerated . . . Rep.

9447. Those who have been regenerated are continually kept by the Lord in the good of faith and of love, and, then, are withheld from evils and falsities. But those who do not suffer themselves to be regenerated are also withheld from evil, and are kept in good . . . but the infernal loves . . . in which they are oppose and turn the influx of good into evil, and that of truth into falsity.

9452. The Lord from Divine merey regenerates man . . .

9453. Those who do not suffer themselves to be regenerated . . . remove from themselves these mercies of the Lord . . .

9670⁵. By the same process (of expiation) is described the regeneration of man even to celestial good . . .

9715². Hence the Lord alone regenerates man; for to regenerate man is to drive away the Hells from him, consequently the evils and falsities which are from the Hells, and in their place to implant Heaven, that is, the goods of love and the truths of faith.

9726². The Sensuous with man has been completely destroyed, for the reason that it stands nearest the world, and therefore it is the last thing which is regenerated, and at this day scarcely anyone can be regenerated as far as it.

9730². The hinge of determinations is turned inwards when man is being regenerated . . . But if a man does not suffer himself to be regenerated, all his interiors remain determined towards the world, and then his life is in the external man . . .

9846. The Voluntary of the regenerate. Sig.

— . The Intellectual of a regenerated man corresponds to the Spiritual Kingdom . . . and the Voluntary to the Celestial Kingdom . . .

9937⁴. But no one can be withheld from evil and kept in good, except . . . in proportion as he suffers himself to be regenerated . . . for by regeneration Heaven is implanted with man, and thereby Hell is removed . . .

—^s. That it is the truth of faith through which man is regenerated. Rep.

9959². All the expiation which was effected by the washings, burnt-offerings, and sacrifices, represented the purification of the heart from evils and falsities, thus regeneration; and (this) is effected by means of the truths of faith, and therefore there were upon Aaron garments of linen. 9990².

9990². Therefore, when man is to be regenerated, he is to be regenerated as to the external and as to the internal, and in each as to truth and as to good. Rep. 10052².

10021². When man is being regenerated . . . he is first let into a state of external innocence . . . This state is the plane of the new life when man is being regenerated, he being then as an infant; for, when he is being regenerated, he is conceived anew, born, becomes an infant, grows up, which is effected by truth implanted in good. H.279, Ex.

10042⁵. That the sacrifices and burnt-offerings in general = the regeneration of man by the truths of faith and goods of love to the Lord from the Lord. Gen.art.

[A.10042⁵]. For all things of worship relate to purification from evils and falsities, the implantation of truth and good, and to their conjunction, thus to regeneration, for by these three things man is regenerated.

— . All the process of regeneration is also described by the several rituals of each sacrifice and burnt-offering.

—⁵. With the regenerated, the conjunction (of good and truth) is effected in the external man. Sig.

10048². With those who are being regenerated, the interiors and exteriors are ordained by the Lord to all the following states. Ex. . . The regeneration of man begins in the world, and lasts to eternity . . .

10049². Therefore the purification of the internal man, when man is being regenerated, is effected in Heaven by the Lord; and therefore, man, when in the world, does not perceive what is being done in his internal man, when he is being regenerated. Sig. 10240².

10053. The burnt-offerings = the conjunction of truth with good, thus plenary regeneration.

10057³. As this circle is the circle of man's life, when he is being regenerated, he is regenerated according to the same, and, when he has been regenerated, he lives and acts according to the same; and therefore, when man is being regenerated, the truths of faith must be insinuated through the hearing and sight . . . From the external memory they are drawn up into the thought, and those which are loved become of the will, (thus) of the life . . . afterwards man speaks and acts from this life . . . from which it is evident that the circle of the regeneration of man is like the circle of his life in general . . .

10067⁷. When the Lord regenerates man, He insinuates the truth which must be of faith into the man's Intellectual, and the good which must be of love into the Voluntary, and conjoins them therein . . .

10099⁵. With the man who is being regenerated, the interiors are successively opened; and, as they are opened, they are elevated into interior light and life . . . and this opening and elevation are effected by Divine truths, which are vessels recipient of the good of love from the Lord . . .

10134⁶. The man who is being regenerated, and also the man who has been regenerated, undergoes variations of state as to love and as to faith, by elevations towards interior things, and by depressions as to exterior ones.

10206². Regeneration is one thing, and worship another; for regeneration is the first thing . . .

10239. A representative of the purification and regeneration of man by the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

—². Regeneration differs from purification in the fact that regeneration is precedent, and purification consequent. Ex.

10249. All who receive the things which proceed from the Lord, thus who are being regenerated by Him. Sig. and Ex.

10367⁵. Those who love their evils . . . can indeed . . . understand truths . . . but still cannot be regenerated. Ex.

10387. All regeneration is effected by the Lord through the truths of faith, and through a life according to them.

10659⁴. Man is regenerated to the end that he may receive into himself the order of Heaven; and he is regenerated through faith, and through the life of faith which is charity.

10729. 'Six days shall work be done' = the first state of the regeneration of man by the Lord . . . Ex.

10730. 'And in the seventh day there shall be holiness to you, a sabbath of sabbaths to Jehovah' = the other state of the regeneration of man, when he has conjunction with the Lord. Ex.

H. 269³. An Angel from his wisdom described regeneration. Des.

491. Those who are at once taken up into Heaven, are those who have been regenerated . . . in the world . . .

N. 173. On Regeneration. Chapter.

183. What regeneration is, and why it is done. (Refs. to passages.)

184. Who are being regenerated. (Refs. to passages.)

185. That regeneration is by the Lord alone. (Refs. to passages.)

186. (Refs. to passages in general on the subject of regeneration.)

L. 27. That the Lord is called 'the Son of Man' where it treats of regeneration, etc. Ill.

49. That by 'Spirit' is meant the life of the regenerate, which is called spiritual life. Ill.

S. 49. For by truths from the sense of the letter . . . man is reformed and regenerated.

Life 112. In a word, man cannot regenerate himself . . .

F. 31. The first state is called reformation, and the second, regeneration. Ex.

W. 187. Reformation and regeneration are effected by the reception of love and wisdom from the Lord, and, then, by the opening of the interior degrees of the mind in their order.

263⁴. The change of state which is called reformation and regeneration (described by the retorsion of a spiral).

P. 16². By these (two faculties) only can man be regenerated and thus saved . . . S2, Gen.art. S5, Ex. 96⁵, Ex.

17. For so long as man lives in the world, he is kept in a state of reformation or regeneration; but, after death, he comes into one or the other (principle), because then he can no longer be reformed and regenerated . . .

83. The reason no one can come into the Kingdom of God unless he is born again, is that man . . . is born into evils of every kind, with the faculty that by the removal of these evils he can become spiritual; and, unless he becomes spiritual, he cannot come into Heaven. From being natural to become spiritual, is to be born again, or regenerated. But, in order that it may be known how man is regenerated, these three things are to be considered: the quality of his first state, which is a state of damnation; the quality of his second state, which is a state of reformation; and the quality of his third state, which is a state of regeneration. (These three states ex. seriatim.)

—⁶. The third state, which is a state of regeneration . . . begins when the man desists from evils as sins, and it progresses as he shuns them, and it is perfected as he fights against them; and then, in proportion as he conquers from the Lord, he has been regenerated. With him who is being regenerated, the order of life is changed; from being natural he becomes spiritual; for the Natural separated from the Spiritual is contrary to order, and the Spiritual is according to order; and therefore the regenerated man acts from charity, and he makes that to be of his faith which is of his charity. But still he does not become spiritual any more than in proportion as he is in truths; for every man is regenerated through truths, and through a life according to them . . .

85. Unless good and truth are appropriated to man as his own, he is not reformed and regenerated. 86.

86^e. This is why evils do not damn a regenerated man, and why goods do not save a non-regenerated one.

87. That by means of these two faculties, man can be reformed and regenerated, in proportion as he can by them be led to acknowledge, that everything good and true which he thinks and does, is from the Lord, and not from himself. Gen.art. 91, Ex.

92. Conjunction with the Lord, and regeneration, are one thing; for, in proportion as anyone has been conjoined with the Lord, in the same proportion he has been regenerated; and therefore everything which has been said about regeneration, may be said about conjunction; and that which is here being said about conjunction, may be said about regeneration.

126. (The regenerate state des.)

241. The new 'creation,' or regeneration, of the men of the Most Ancient Church is thus described.

332^d. The vegetation and regeneration of trees . . .

R. 19. He who from love and mercy reforms and regenerates men by His Divine truths from the Word. Sig. and Ex. E.30.

254. That all things of Heaven and the Church have been made and formed, and that they are reformed and regenerated, from the Lord's Divine love through His Divine wisdom . . . Sig. and Ex.

510². In proportion as (the external man speaks and does the things which the internal man wills and loves) in the same proportion the man is being regenerated. The reason he is not being regenerated before, is that his Internal is not then in the effect, but only in the cause; and the cause, unless it is in the effect, is dissipated.

619. Those who could be regenerated and thus redeemed by the Lord in the world. Sig. and Ex.

M. 146². But the Spiritual of man is not so (contaminated with evils), because its birth is from the Lord, being regeneration; and regeneration is a successive separation from evils which are connected with the inclinations by birth.

222². There are many spheres which proceed from the Lord, as . . . a sphere of reformation and regeneration . . .

525². That man is inducted into good by regeneration from the Lord. Ex.

—⁴. This renewal of man can only be done from time to time; scarcely otherwise than as a tree successively takes root and grows from a seed, and is perfected. Those who perceive regeneration differently, know nothing of man's state . . .

T. 73². God cannot spiritually regenerate man, except in so far as man naturally regenerates himself according to His laws. Ex.

105². In man's second state, which is a state of regeneration, he is in a like freedom: but he then wills and acts, and thinks and speaks, from the new love and the new intelligence which are from the Lord; for . . . in this state, the will acts the first part, and the understanding the second . . . (This state, and also the first one, of reformation, are represented by various things in the universe: enum. 106.)

142. That the Divine virtue and operation meant by the Holy Spirit, are in general reformation and regeneration; and, according to these, renewal, etc. Gen.art.

302. By (the third) commandment, in the spiritual sense, is signified man's reformation and regeneration by the Lord. Ex.

510. Everyone is regenerated by abstaining from evils of sin . . .

—. Acts of repentance are all those which effect that he does not will, and thence does not do, the evils which are sins against God; for before this the man stands outside regeneration . . .

533^e. When the intentions of the will have been explored and removed, the man is elevated from the natural will . . . into the spiritual will, through which the Lord reforms and regenerates the natural one, and, by means of this, the sensuous and voluntary things of the body; thus the whole man.

571. On Reformation and Regeneration. Chapter.

—. There are two states which man must undergo when from being natural he is becoming spiritual: the first is called reformation, and the second, regeneration. Ex. R.84.

574. That man must be regenerated, is evident from all reason. Ex.

575. The quality of a man non-regenerate. Des. 574. 595. 606.

576. That the new generation (or regeneration) is effected by the Lord alone through charity and faith, as the two means, man co-operating. Gen.art.

577. (Hence) it follows that the Lord is continually in the act of regenerating man . . .

579. That all—as all have been redeemed—can be regenerated, each one according to his own state. Gen.art.

[T.] 580. (Different methods of regeneration with different people.) Enum.

—³. The reason all can be regenerated and thus saved, is that the Lord is present with every man with His Divine good and truth . . .

583. That regeneration is effected in a manner analogous to that in which man is conceived, carried in the womb, born, and educated. Gen.art.

584. There is also a correspondence of regeneration with all things of the vegetable kingdom. Ex.

586. That man can be regenerated only successively. Shown by comparisons. 610, Sig. 611, Ex.

587. That the first act of the new generation is called reformation, which is of the understanding; and that the second act is called regeneration, which is of the will and thence of the understanding. Gen.art.

—^e. But when the man wills to shun evil and do what is good, the state of regeneration begins. 589^e.

591. That the internal man is to be reformed first, and, through this, the external; and that man is thus regenerated. Gen.art.

—^e. Hence regeneration is not knowable in the present Church.

593². (Thus) there is first to be regenerated the internal natural man, and, through this, the external . . . But to regenerate the internal through the external is contrary to order. Ex.

594. The regeneration of man is described by the vision of dry bones in Ezek. xxxvii. Ex.

598². Hence it is evident what is the quality of man after death, if his natural man is not being regenerated.

600. The internal man regenerated, and not at the same time the external. (Des. by comparisons.)

601. That a regenerated man has a new will and a new understanding. Gen.art.

—^e. Religion alone renews and regenerates man. Ex.

602. Therefore regeneration is predicated primarily of the will, and secondarily of the understanding.

603. Through regeneration, man is elevated from the lowest region of the mind, which is natural, into the higher one, which is spiritual; and, through this, into the celestial one. . . Hence it is that a non-regenerated man is called natural, and a regenerated man, spiritual. From this it is evident that the mind of a regenerated man has been elevated into the spiritual region . . .

604². (Thus) the Lord, through Heaven, rules the things of the world with a regenerated man.

605. That a regenerated man, that is, one renovated as to the will and understanding, is in the heat of Heaven . . . and at the same time in the light of Heaven . . . and, that a non-regenerated man is in the heat of Hell . . . and at the same time in the darkness of Hell . . . is at this day known, and yet is unknown. The reason is that the (present) Church has made regeneration an appendage to its faith, into which not any reason is to be admitted . . .

606. (A regenerated man contrasted with a non-regenerated one; by comparisons.)

607. That a regenerated man is in communion with the Angels of Heaven; and that a non-regenerated one is in communion with the Spirits of Hell. Gen.art.

608. According to his regeneration, man is in communion with the Angels of the three Heavens, respectively. Ex.

610^e. In proportion as a man is being regenerated, or, in proportion as regeneration with him is being perfected, in the same proportion he does not attribute to himself anything of good and truth . . .

611. That in proportion as a man is being regenerated, in the same proportion sins are being removed . . . Gen.art.

613. He who is acquainted with the relation in which Heaven and Hell are to each other, and who knows how the one is removed from the other, may know how man is regenerated, and also of what quality a regenerated man is. Ex.

615. That regeneration is not possible without free will in spiritual things. Gen.art.

618. That regeneration is not possible without truths, through which faith is formed, and with which charity conjoins itself. Gen.art.

— . There are three things through which man is regenerated: the Lord, faith, and charity . . .

621⁹. (The Angels giving instruction to English Spirits concerning regeneration.) R.224. B.69.

684. The Lord . . . being the Redeemer, is also the Regenerator.

685². Let a Christian know that he who does not believe in the Lord cannot be regenerated . . .

686. Those who have been regenerated by 'the Holy Spirit,' that is, by the Divine truth of faith, are, in the Heavens, distinguished from those who have been regenerated by 'fire,' that is, by the Divine good of love. (The former) go in white linen garments, and are called spiritual Angels; but (the latter) go in crimson garments, and are called celestial Angels. Ill.

687. (Regeneration represented by various things in Heaven, and in nature.) Enum.

—³. An image of regeneration is presented in the wonderful transformations (of insects).

—^e. In a word, the whole world, from its primes to its ultimates, is full of representations and types of regeneration.

719. With the good, that is, the regenerated, the Lord is present universally and singularly (in the Holy Supper); (with others, only universally).

722. That those approach the Holy Supper worthily who are in faith in the Lord and in charity towards the neighbour; thus who have been regenerated. Gen.art. 723.

726. Many confess the Lord and do what is good to the neighbour; but if they do not do this from love towards the neighbour, and from faith in the Lord, they are not the regenerate. Ex.

729. These (who have died in infancy) being educated under the auspices of the Lord, are regenerated more and more . . .

D. 2762. On the regeneration of the corporeal or material things of a man or Spirit: how they are represented. Ex.

3654. On regeneration. Ex. 4837.

4119^e. When he is being reformed, and has become regenerate, other Spirits succeed.

4383. (Therefore) these are not being regenerated; but only those who . . .

4629^s. Few suffer themselves to be regenerated as far as this Sensuous.

4900^e. Regeneration takes place successively, during a long time: from head to foot.

4927. When whole rocks subside, and become valleys . . . it=those who are suffering themselves to be regenerated.

5095. (A Spirit enumerates hundreds of processes of regeneration in the external man; and it was said that there are a thousand thousand more in the interior man . . .)

5643. How regeneration is effected. Ex.

5740. That [people] do not know what regeneration is. From experience. 5741.

D. Min. 4711. The celestial Angels, or the celestial Heaven, in which are the men of the Most Ancient Church, had a Voluntary in which there was something good, and therefore they could be regenerated as to it also. But the spiritual Angels, or the spiritual Heaven, in which are the men of the Ancient and the present Church, have a Voluntary completely destroyed, and they cannot be regenerated except solely as to the Intellectual, in which a new will is formed by the Lord. 4712. 4713, Rep.

E. 281². The first 'eagle' = the process of the regeneration of the natural man by scientifics and Knowledges from the Word: the second 'eagle' = the process of the regeneration of the spiritual man by truths from good.

650⁶⁰. That man is reformed and regenerated little by little. Sig. Why?

1164². With the regenerate there are not any temptations or combats; but there are affections of truth and good, which withhold evils from them from afar; for they are completely separated from Hell . . .

D. Wis. iv. That there is a similitude between the formation of man in the womb, and his reformation and regeneration. Gen.art.

C. 180. Thus is man successively made new and regenerated. Ex.

210². Those who do good from obedience are being reformed: this precedes: but those who do good from affection are being regenerated.

Conv. 12. Man can never be perfectly regenerated; but solely as to the most general things, and some generals under them.

Regiment. See under COHORT.

Region. Regio.

A. 6858. The region occupied by evils and falsities. Sig. and Ex.

— . Before the coming of the Lord . . . evil Spirits occupied all that region of Heaven . . . That region was then liberated, and was given to those of the Spiritual Church . . . See 6854. 6914². —³. —⁴. 8054. 8072. 8294^e.

8054². At this day also there is a region behind the occiput occupied by the evil which had been of Heaven; and also one in front towards the left . . . These regions are occupied when the evil are augmented in the world . . . for in proportion as good Spirits recede from man, the regions nearest to him are occupied by the evil. When this is done in general, the inhabitants of these regions are changed . . . About the end of the Church . . . the regions occupied by the evil are given to the good . . . Sig.

8279. In the region above the Hells . . .

8539. Until they came to the region of Heaven. Sig. and Ex.

— . The region where Heaven begins.

W. 254³. The higher region of the natural degree . . . The lowest region of the natural degree . . .

288. Heaven is distinguished into regions and provinces according to the members, viscera, and organs . . .

M. 188³. The mind is distinguished into regions, as the world is into regions in respect to the atmospheres . . .

270. In what region of the mind resides love truly conjugal? . . . I know that there are three regions of the mind, one above another; and that natural love dwells in the lowest region, spiritual love in the higher one, and celestial love in the highest; and that in each region there is a marriage of good and truth; and (therefore) in each region there is a marriage of love and wisdom . . .

—³. (A representation of) the highest region of the mind, where dwells conjugal love in the love of good with its wisdom; (of) the middle region, where dwells conjugal love in the love of truth with its intelligence; and (of) the lowest region, where dwells conjugal love in the love of what is just and right with its knowledge.

—⁴. We in Heaven call the highest region of the mind celestial; the middle one spiritual; and the lowest one natural . . .

—⁶. Conjugal cold (also dwells) in the highest region of the mind, but solely in the chamber of the understanding . . .

305. There are three regions in the mind, called celestial, spiritual, and natural. Man is born in this lowest one, and ascends into its higher one, called spiritual, by a life according to the truths of religion; and into the highest one by the marriage of love and wisdom. In the lowest region . . . reside all the concupiscences of evil, and lasciviousnesses; but in the (spiritual) region, there are not any of (these); for man is inducted into this . . . when he is reborn: and in the highest region . . . is conjugal chastity in its own love: man is elevated into this by the love of uses, and (therefore) by love truly conjugal.

—². (Thus) conjugal love . . . must be elevated out of the lowest region into the higher region . . .

that . . . it may be let down (chaste) through the middle and lowest regions into the body; and (then) this lowest region is purified . . .

[M.] 335. For the human mind is distinguished into three regions . . . and these three regions, with those in love truly conjugal, stand open . . . The pleasantnesses of this love in the highest region are perceived as blessednesses; in the middle region . . . as happinesses; and in the lowest region as Delights.

495. Man is distinguished from beasts by this: that his mind is distinguished into three regions . . . and that he can be elevated out of the lowest region into the higher one; and also from this one into the highest one . . .

T. 34. The human mind . . . has been formed into three regions, according to three degrees . . .

40². He (thus) shuts up the higher regions of his mind . . . and (then) the region below them opens itself . . .

42. The mind, according to these degrees (of life) is formed, as it were, into three regions; and life in the highest region is in the highest degree, (and so on). These regions are opened successively . . . The ultimate region . . . from infancy to childhood, by knowledges; the second region . . . from childhood to adolescence, by thoughts from knowledges; and the highest region . . . from adolescence to early manhood and onwards, by perceptions of Truths . . .

75⁴. In each world there are three degrees . . . and thence three regions . . .

147². The human mind is distinguished into three regions: the highest, or inmost, is called celestial; the middle, spiritual; and the lowest, natural. The minds of all men who deny the holiness of the Word and the Divinity of the Lord, think in the lowest region . . .

152. Thus the mind is exalted from region to region . . . In the celestial region, man is wise; in the spiritual one, he is intelligent; and in the lowest one, knowing . . .

186. In what region of the mind do theological things reside? At first I believed in the highest one; for the mind is distinguished into three regions, as a house is into three stories . . . An Angel . . . said, Theological things, with those who love truth because it is truth, rise up into the highest region . . . moral things, theoretically examined and perceived, place themselves in the second region . . . and political things, in the first region . . . (But) with those who love truth only for the glory of their reputation, theological things reside in the ultimate region, where scientifics are . . . Under these, in the same region, are political things, and under these, moral ones; because with these persons the two higher regions are not opened on the right side . . . 482. 494. Can. God ii.9.

395. The mind is distinguished into three regions . . . From the highest region, man regards God; from the second or middle one, the world; and from the third, or lowest, himself . . .

403. These three loves . . . are like the three regions of the body . . .

420. The mind itself is divided into two regions. Ex. 421.

494². In the highest region of the mind also resides man's love . . . (and) his free will . . . 501³.

501³. The higher region of the mind . . . would be closed; and spiritual things . . . would occupy the lower region . . .

504². The smoke, being ignited . . . illuminated the region of the mind which is below the memory . . . But with the other . . . a gentle flame flowed down from Heaven, which illuminated the region of the mind above the memory . . .

602². The understanding, as to the lower region in the mind, is in the light of the world; and in the light of Heaven as to the higher region; and therefore if the will is not elevated out of the lower region into the higher . . . it remains in the world . . .

603. The human mind is distinguished into three regions, called natural, spiritual, and celestial. By regeneration, man is elevated from the lowest region . . . into the higher one . . . and, through this, into the celestial one . . .

— . That in the mind there is a lower and a higher region. Ex.

604. The new will is in the spiritual region; and so is the new understanding . . .

— . (What would be the consequence if there were only one region in the mind.)

— . The spiritual region of the mind is a Heaven in miniature; and the natural region is a world in miniature.

608. Therefore the mind is distinguished into three degrees, or regions, according to the Heavens. Ex.

D. 4773. (Various regions of the Spiritual World passed through.)

Regulator. Regulator. A.4672².

Regulatrix. Regulatrix. A.9409⁴.

Rehoboth. Rechoboth.

A. 1184. See CALAH, here.

1188. The falsities thence are 'Rehoboth.'

3433. 'He called its name Rehoboth' (Gen.xxvi.22)= the quality thence as to truth. . . 'Rehoboth'=truths; for 'Rehoboth,' in the Original Language, means 'breadths.'

Reign. Regnare.

See under LOVE OF DOMINATING.

A. 59². Deadly hatred reigns in the World of Spirits . . .

1316². What is regnant with man (is in his least thoughts). . . What is regnant with him manifests itself there by a sphere.

1749². With evil Spirits reigns the love of self.

— . In order to reign with them, they offer their services to good Spirits.

4691. 'In reigning shalt thou reign over us . . . ' (Gen.xxxvii.8)=were they to be subject as to the things of the Intellectual? Ex.

5130. (This) is what is universally regnant, and that which reigns universally is not apperceived except when the thought is determined there. Examp.

—². That which reigns universally produces this sphere.

— . The sphere which reigns in Heaven . . .

—^e. For what a man loves, reigns; not what he only knows.

5440^e. For truths to be conjoined, good must be universally regnant; for what reigns universally, conjoins.

5647². The external man then reigns.

5949. Unless good is the end, that is, reigns universally in everything.

—³. What man has for an end . . . reigns universally in him . . .

— . What is regnant is there exhaled from his sphere.

—⁴. That the fear, or love, of Him, should reign universally.

6159. The affection of good becomes the universal Regnant with him; and what reigns universally, reigns singularly. Ex.

—^e. The universal Regnant first comes forth when each and all things are such . . .

6203. At last (the evil) becomes what is universally regnant with him. Ex.

6489. The Divine end for good reigns universally.

6571². What he intends, reigns with him. Ex.

7118^e. What inflows from Heaven, and reigns universally, reveals itself in all freedom.

7270^e. This only substance reigns in its formations . . .

7290^e. What is negative reigns . . .

7293. That mere fallacies . . . will reign with them. Sig. and Ex. 7295.

7327. When falsity begins to reign.

7490^e. When the loves of self and the world reign . . .

7493. (These loves) begin to reign when . . .

7648. That falsity will reign in everything in the Natural . . . Sig. and Ex.

—². It is then said to reign with him; and the affection itself is called reigning. That is called universally regnant which infils his whole mind, that is, both his thought and his will. That which the man loves above everything else . . . is such a Regnant . . . What that is which reigns universally, may be known from his delight when it succeeds, and his pain when it fails. That which reigns universally with a man makes the image of his spirit: his face is altogether according to it. Examps. 8067^e.

8331. 'Jehovah shall reign to . . . eternity' (Ex.xv. 18)=that He is the sole Lord of Heaven and earth.

— . Of the Angels it is indeed said that they will reign, but from the Lord; thus the Lord through them.

— . The ancient saying 'God reigns,' and also 'God shall reign to eternity'=that it is well with the Church because good and truth from the Divine are there . . . Ill.

8701². For the universal Regnant in Heaven is good.

8864. The Lord as to the Divine Human reigning universally in everything of good and truth. Sig. and Ex.

—³. This is said first because it must be the universally Regnant in everything which follows. Ex.

—⁴. That the things which precede will reign in those which follow. Examp.

8865. That is universally regnant with man which is in everything of his thought and of his will, consequently which constitutes his very mind or life. Such a Regnant must the Lord be with man; for such a Regnant is He with the Angels, of whom it is therefore said that they are in the Lord. The Lord becomes regnant when it is not only believed that all good and truth are from Him, but it is also loved to be so . . . When the Lord reigns universally with the man of the Church . . . then He is in all the truths and goods of faith with him as the heart is in all the blood-vessels . . .

—². Such Spirits and Angels are with man as is his universal Regnant; because the universally Regnant is the esse of the life of everyone. Ex.

—^e. The universal Regnant is that which is in each and all things. Refs.

8868^e. For everyone has truths according to . . . what universally reigns with him.

8885. What is perpetually in the thought is what universally reigns there. Ex.

—³. That which universally reigns, is that which has been insinuated into the will itself . . .

9286^e. The things which are said to reign universally with man. Ex.

9335². These loves reign with every man before he has been regenerated.

9534². Hence the Lord reigns also in the Hells.

— . Such a sphere reigns in the external form in Hell.

9639^e. For the universal Regnant in Divine truths is Divine good; and that which universally reigns, conjoins.

9687. The good of love . . . reigns in the Inmost Heaven; the good of charity . . . in the Middle one; and the good of faith in the Ultimate one. Sig.

9822^e. Good reigns in the Celestial Kingdom; truth in the Spiritual . . .

9832. Good universally reigning also in the Spiritual Heaven. Sig. and Ex.

— . The universally Regnant is that which is dominant; and thus is that which is in each and all things. Refs.

H. 123². In the other life, all look to the things which reign in their interiors . . .

384^e. (Thus) the reigning delight in Hell is the delight of adultery.

R. 284. 'To reign upon the earth' (Rev.v. 10)=to be in the Lord's Kingdom, and there one with Him. Ex. (=to be in truths and goods, and thence in power to resist evils and falsities. E. 333.)

849. 'To reign with Christ' (Rev.xx.4)=to be in the Lord's Kingdom. 855. 941.

[R.849]^e. The Lord alone reigns; and everyone in Heaven who is in a function, discharges his office in his Society, as in the world; but under the Lord's auspices. Ex.

M. 7³. To reign with Christ, means to be wise and do uses. Ex.

D. 1704. To the things which reign in the mind . . . are bent all things they hear. Ex.

1804. Those who have not openly studied to reign . . . 1808.

3601. They want to reign on earth and in Heaven . . .

4119. There remains the reigning persuasion, thus the reigning cupidity.

4466. How he could reign in secret . . .

E. 333². 'To reign'=to have power and wisdom from the Lord. Ex.

683². These are what the Lord reigns by. Ex.

685. 'To reign,' when said of the Lord, = to dominate by Divine truth.

—². 'Dominion' is said of good; and 'to reign,' of truth. Ill.

Reigning Love. Amor regnans.

See RULING LOVE.

H. 58. Everyone is such as is his reigning love . . .

—(n). That the reigning love with everyone is in each and all things of his life, thus in each and all things of his thought and will. Refs.

143. Before the face is always that love which reigns . . . Ex.

236^e. They thence know his reigning love, in which are all things in their order.

269². They perceive from the sound . . . his reigning love . . .

457. His face becomes like his reigning love . . .

477. It is the reigning love which awaits man after death; nor is it changed to eternity. Everyone has many loves, but they all relate to his reigning love, and make a one with it; or, together, compose it. All things of the will which agree with the reigning love are called loves, because they are loved . . .

—². There is an extension into heavenly Societies if the reigning love consists of loves of Heaven; and into infernal Societies if the reigning love consists of loves of Hell.

479. When an Angel goes away from his own Society . . . he feels a constant longing to return to his like, thus to his reigning love.

—². After death are taken away from him the things which do not make a one with his reigning love . . .

—³. All Spirits can be led . . . if they are kept in their reigning love . . .

—⁴. That the spirit of a man is his reigning love . . .

480. That man . . . remains to eternity such as he is as to his . . . reigning love. Ex.

486. All the delights which man has are of his reigning love . . .

— . For the reigning love of one is not in all respects like that of another . . .

487. To know one's reigning love is impossible to those who are in the love of self . . .

J. 32². As soon as he is brought into his reigning love, he vanishes . . . and is with those in the Society to which he has been attached.

W. 140. That every Spirit . . . turns himself to his reigning love. Gen.art.

273². That the reigning love with its concupiscences . . . is as the devil is in Hell.

274². Then the reigning love is allotted the highest place . . .

276. The things which are from its reigning love are in the middle . . .

P. 17. He then remains . . . such as is his reigning love . . .

113. In the same proportion he enlarges the court of his reigning love . . .

231⁷. The life's love, which is the reigning love, awaits everyone after death, and cannot be taken away.

277³. The seed . . . is the form of the father's reigning love, with its proximate derivations . . .

— . At last (the child) comes to the reigning love of his father . . .

338⁵. The spiritual state is such that no one can be anywhere else than where his reigning love is . . . 319^e.

R. 756². All after death become affections of their reigning love . . .

784². Their externals are put off in succession . . . even until the reigning love . . . is revealed.

M. 42³. The reigning affection itself shines from the Angels' faces; and garments are allotted them accordingly.

46. The reigning love, which is the head of all the rest, remains with everyone to eternity; and, with it, the subordinate loves together. Ex.

I. 17^e. Therefore he who Knows anyone's reigning love . . . Knows the whole man.

T. 404. If the love of the world . . . is the reigning love . . .

767². For all the evil is . . . an image of his reigning love . . .

D. 5529. But those not fully vastated . . . do not turn constantly to their reigning love . . . E.78⁴.

5789a. Everyone there, wherever he may appear, is still in that place where is his reigning love . . .

6058. That every man is in his own reigning love; and is thus as it were in a centre.

E. 206. Therefore, when a Spirit has been reduced to his reigning love—for everyone is reduced to it—ways open to the Society where his love reigns.

413. This delay is in order that the affections . . . may be reduced to the reigning love; so that the Spirit may be his whole love.

449³. For the reigning affection with man is from his father; for it is his soul; but with the Lord it was . . .

989². The reigning love of the parents . . . is transcribed into the offspring, and becomes its nature . . .

1163^e. The reigning love is that which turns (the interiors upwards, or downwards).

J.(Post.) 234^e. He then turns his face to the Society where is his reigning love . . . 247.

Rein. Habena. D.2559. 2715.

Reject. Rejicere.

Rejection. Rejctio.

A. 1509^e. They are rejected (as useless members).

1875^e. The ascents were represented by rejections.

2122^e. The rejection of those within the Church.

2373. That they would reject the good of charity more than the Divine Human . . . Sig. and Ex.

3607. Reject ideas of evil and falsity . . .

3637^e. (Such) being rejected under the feet.

3743^e. Reject, suffocate, or pervert . . . 3938⁵. 4104³. 6564. 7491. 8351².

4333. The rejection of the old Church . . .

4533^e. They are then cast back into Hell.

4551. The rejection of actual falsities. Sig. and Ex.

4585³. They reject these (spiritual things) at the first view.

4801². He then rejected the faith he had in the body.

5083. Rejection. Sig. and Ex. 5456.

5247. Rejection and change as to the things of the exterior Natural. Sig. and Ex.

5356^e. Thus evils . . . are rejected to the sides. 7984².

6558. That they rejected the Internal. Sig. and Ex.

6564². According to the rejection, etc. the interiors are closed.

6971². They first knew these things, and afterwards rejected them. (The consequence.)

7273². Rejected mercy, etc.

7306^e. Falsities reject all light.

7327^e. He (then) rejects truths; and, if he cannot reject, he falsifies them.

7492. The rejection of good and truth. Def.

8847^e. He cast away his garment so quickly . . .

8876. Those who altogether reject the Divine. Tr. 8878.

9039. What has been made of anyone's faith . . . must not be rejected, except by a full view. Ex.

9127⁶. The plenary rejection of truth Divine. Sig.

9439². It is easier to make a raven white than to effect belief in those who have once in heart rejected it.

10623. The rejection and damnation of evils and falsities in a long series. Sig. and Ex.

H. 491. They have need only to reject natural impurities with the body.

—². They are cast away into caverns.

512. They then reject all the good and truth which they had before adopted.

R. 325. Those who had been rejected (by the evil). Tr.

473. If that doctrine . . . were received . . . before the dragon is cast out, it would be rejected . . . Sig. and Ex.

E. 659. Their rejection and damnation. Sig. and Ex.

1083. The rejection of the whole of that religiosity. Sig.

Rejoice. Ovare. A.1259⁵.

See under Joy.

Relapse. Relabi, Relapsus.

A. 1397^e. (The evil Spirit) fell back.

8214. The falsities and evils which they try to inflict, relapse upon them. 8223. 8334.

8223. The overflowing or return of falsity. Sig. and Ex. 8226.

8394. If man relapses . . . he profanes.

9393. It sinks back again into the memory.

9399³. They sink back into the falsities of their evils.

W. 72. He relapses into his life's love. 258².

D. 1247^e. They at once relapsed of themselves.

Relate. See TELL.

Relate to. Referre.

See RELATION.

A. 3166². There is nothing in the universe which does not relate to good, and to truth: everything which is of use and life, relates to good . . .

3636^e. Each and all things relate to the good which is of love, and to the truth which is of intelligence.

4263. All things of Heaven and the Church relate to goods and truths: the things of love and charity to goods, and the things of faith to truths.

5232. Good relates to the will; truth to the understanding.

7752. Good and truth are what all things in the universe relate to. The things which do not relate to them are not in Divine order; and those which do not relate to both together do not produce anything.

8352^e. For everything relates to good and truth; for there is nothing in the world which does not relate to both: what man loves relates to the good with him; and what instructs him about good . . . relates to truth.

8423. For there are two things to which all things in the universe relate; namely, good and truth, or, what is the same, love and faith.

8458^e. For there is nothing in the universe which does not relate as to quality either as to good or as to truth.

8778. 'To relate the words to Jehovah' (Ex.xix.8)= correspondence and thence conjunction.

9050⁶. All things in the universe relate to good and truth. 9186³. 9206^e. 9279², Ex. 9297². 9514. 10645⁴.

H.9². 203². W.31, Ex. P.5. 157⁶, Ex. 168². M.60. I.7. T.38. 336. 660. E.1004². 1026³.

[A.]9327². Everything in the universe relates to the truth which is from good.

9360. In the Grand Man relate to . . .

9496². The staves relate to the arms . . .

9553. All things in the Spiritual World relate to such things as are with man, because Heaven relates to one man.

9604^e. The things on man's right side relate to the good from which is truth; and those on the left relate to the truth which is from good.

9632³. The representatives in nature relate to the human form; and, according to the relation to it, have a signification. 9634. 9643².

9806². All things in the universe . . . relate to both good and to truth in order to be anything. Ex. 9955². 10137.

10122². All things in Heaven relate to good and the derivative truth; and all things in Hell relate to evil and the derivative falsity. The same in man. Ex.

10264². For each and all things with man relate to truths and their perceptions and affections . . .

H. 107^e. Form relates to truth; for truth is the form of good. Hence all things in the universe . . . which are in Divine order, relate to good and truth. N.11, Ex.

113. The things which correspond to Heaven all relate to good and truth; and those which correspond to Hell, to evil and falsity.

486^e. All the delights relate to the reigning love.

N. 17. So all things which are contrary to Divine order relate to evil and falsity. 20, Refs.

34. Spiritual truths cannot be comprehended unless (it) is known, first: That all things in the universe relate to good and truth, and to their conjunction, in order to be anything; thus to love and faith, and their conjunction.

74. It does not matter.

Life 43. So all things with man relate to the will and the understanding.

W. 61. That all things which have been created, in a certain image relate to a man. Gen.art. 319, Ex. 330.

372. That all things of the mind relate to the will and understanding, and all things of the body to the heart and lungs. Ex.

T. 66. All things which proceed from the (spiritual) Sun . . . relate to a man.

391². An Angel related to me . . .

706. To which all things of the Word relate.

714. Each and all things must relate to two universals . . . This relation effects that . . .

Can. God viii. 8. Each and all things . . . must relate to One . . .

Relation. Cognatus.

Relationship. Cognatio.

See under AFFINITY, CONSANGUINITY, and NEAR-propinquus.

A. 3052. 'Nahor' = what is related.

H. 46(a). That all the relationships, etc. in Heaven are from and according to good. Refs.

M. 282². For the sake of favours from one's consort's relations-agnatus.

287^e. A wife whose relations and friends are in offices of dignity.

D. 2771. That relations, friends, and companions, find each other there. Ex.

E. 366³. By 'relations,' etc. are not meant relations, etc., but the goods and truths of the Church, and the evils and falsities . . .

Relation. Relatio.

See under RELATE TO.

W. 61. The relation to man in everything of the animal kingdom. Ex.

—². The relation to man from everything of the vegetable kingdom. Ex.

—³. The relation to man from everything of the mineral kingdom. Ex.

63. That there is a relation to man of all things of the created universe . . .

64. For the general relation of all things is to Him; as the particular relation is to man.

P. 24. There is provided a conjunction of good and truth through relation. For good is not Known . . . except by the relation to a less good . . .

M. 17⁵. Actors (on the stage) for the sake of relations. Ex.

444³. There is no relation . . . of good to evil; but there is a relation . . . of good to a greater or a less good; and of evil to a greater or a less evil.

T. 763. What is sense without relation? and relation, except to opposites?

—². What is beauty without relation to ugliness . . .

E. 836^e. (This) is evident from their opposite relation.

Relative. Relativus.

Relatively. Relative.

A. 2694². From relatives . . . a sphere of perception . . .

5356². From opposites aperceived relatives are procured . . .

5962². From these alternations they have relatives; and, from relatives, a more perfect perception.

9096². Relatively to opposites . . .

R. 961⁴. There would not be anything relative to the Itself.

M. 17⁵. No virtue can be presented . . . except by relatives . . .

425. Opposites are not relatives . . . Relatives are between the greatest and least of the same Thing . . .

T. 62. The perception of opposites is different from that of relatives. Ex.

—². As God perceives . . . all the relatives in Heaven . . . and thereby perceives . . . all the opposite relatives in Hell . . .

Ad. 1027^e. For there to be anything there must be what is relative to contraries. 1151^e.

D.Min. 4750. All things are relatives; and without the perception of contraries there are no relatives . . .

Relative. Respectivus.

Relatively. Respective.

A. 1582. Right and left are merely relative . . .

1900². Regard each other relatively as . . .

2157. The deference of the Lord's state. Sig. and Ex. 2158.

5313². Significations are circumstanced relatively.

10265. Everything in the Word is to be understood relatively to that of which it is said.

T. 31. The infinity of God relatively to spaces . . . and relatively to times . . .

447. The relative state of the spirit of man . . .

Relative sense. Sensus respectivus.

A. 4207. Occurs. 4428. 4585². 4981. 6363. W. 121. R. 305. 344. 390.

Relax. See under LOOSE=laxare.

Release. Manumittere, Manumissio.

M. 267³. When such become Spirits, and are thus set free . . .

370^e. The concubines and wives are there released.

T. 434. The release of the imprisoned thoughts.

815. Peoples not set free are like . . .

Relegate. Relegare.

A. 5881^e. They had relegated internal good to . . .

6762^e. Are relegated into the Hells. 9013².

H. 563². They were banished wherever they came.

W. 69². He relegates its fallacies to the sides.

D. 4892. Some of them were relegated to the Hells.

E. 893². People are not now banished from Christian communities . . . for no one can be banished who lives well.

Religion. Religio.

Religious. Religiosus.

See RELIGIOSITY.

A. 1063. Make faith separated the principal of religion.

1124^e. (Origin of the religion concerning beards.)

1169. They placed religion in possessing Knowledges. Sig. 1171.

1177. That such a religion prevailed in the Church. Sig.

1178. Men are easily captivated by such a religion. Sig. 1179.

1992^e. The Jews also were in this religion: that all evil is from God . . .

2053². The truths of conscience are according to each person's religion.

2284⁴. People are saved from every religion, provided . . . P. 253².

4733. It is not to be extinguished because a life of religion. Sig. and Ex.

— . The acknowledgment and adoration of the Lord's Divine Human is the life of religion. Ex.

5032². Those who do good from nature, but not from religion. Tr. and Ex.

5117¹³. That everyone [who is] with others who are in a different doctrine and religion, may learn and accept their goods of charity, but not imbue them and conjoin them with his own truths. Sig.

6047². For thus the doctrinals of all Churches and religions might be called true . . .

8318^e. The principles of a false religion (one of the origins of evil).

8941⁷. That religion is to be formed from truths from the Lord . . . and not from Own intelligence. Sig.

8998. Marriages on earth between those who are of a diverse religion, are in Heaven accounted as heinous . . . Ex.

9468⁶. 'Babylon' = a religion by which are profaned the holy things of the Word . . .

H. 249². Those who think much about religious things, and inhere in them so far as to see them within themselves, begin to hear Spirits speaking to them; for religious things . . . when a man inheres in them by himself, and does not interrupt them by various things which are of use in the world, penetrate interiorly, and there stay, and occupy the whole spirit of the man, and enter the Spiritual World, and move the Spirits who are there . . .

318². The Lord has provided that all may have religion, and by it acknowledgment of the Divine, and interior life; for to live according to what is religious is to live interiorly. Ex.

319. The first and primary thing of every religion is to acknowledge the Divine: a religion which does not acknowledge the Divine is not a religion; and the precepts of every religion have respect to worship . . .

—². He who does no evil to his neighbour because it is contrary to religion, thus contrary to the Divine, abstains, from a spiritual origin, from doing evil . . .

378. Conjugal love is not possible between two who are of a diverse religion, because the truth of the one does not agree with the good of the other . . .

514². Those of the Mohammedan religion who had led a moral life . . . are instructed in the Christian religion. Behind these . . . are the places of instruction for various gentiles who had lived a good life in conformity with their religion . . .

N. 21⁶. (Refs. to the subject of falsities of religion.)

J. 50. Religion separates the good Mohammedans from the Christian Heaven.

— . Everyone's religion adheres to him there.

54. All who have dominion as the end, and religion as the means, are 'Babylon.'

69. Since religion makes the inmost of man . . .

C. J. 49. The Dutch inhere in the principles of their religion more firmly than others . . .

S. 92. For everyone is born into the religion of his parents; from infancy is initiated into it; and afterwards retains it; nor can he get away from its falsities on account of his businesses in the world. [This does not condemn]. . . For he who remains in his own religion, and believes in God, and, within Christendom, in the Lord, and holds the Word holy, and lives from religion, according to the precepts of the decalogue, does not swear [allegiance] to falsities; and therefore, when he hears truths, and perceives them in his own way, he is able to embrace them, and thus be led away from falsities; but not he who has confirmed the falsities of his own religion; for confirmed falsity cannot be extirpated . . . 93, Des. (See T.254.)

[S.] 117. (The source of all the religions of the world has been the ancient and the Israelitish Words.) Ex.

Life 1. That all religion is of life, and that its life is to do what is good. Gen.art.

54. These laws (of the decalogue) were, in a brief summary, the complex of all things of religion . . .

63. The religion has prevailed that no one can (keep the commandments).

64. It is a General in every religion that man ought to examine himself, perform repentance, and desist from sins . . .

65. With all nations . . . with whom there is religion, there are like precepts . . . and all those who live them, from religion, are saved; but all who do not live them, from religion, are damned. Those who, from religion, live them, are instructed after death . . .

77. From these things it may be (clearly) seen . . . whether a man has any religion, or not.

W. 249. Those who know the Divine precepts from religion.

253³. Know nothing more of their religion than . . .

333. Uses for receiving the Spiritual . . . are all things which belong to religion . . .

374⁴. For all things of religion . . . have been (hidden) by the dogma . . .

425^e. (Thus) he has no religion.

P. 42. All who from religion believe that they are not under the law . . .

70². The understanding, being closed . . . by religion . . .

83⁴. (Supposes) he is saved by merely thinking what religion teaches.

91³. What kind of a religion it is to think . . . and not to do . . .

114³. (Thus) the common religion of all the Churches in the Christian world is (repentance). 127.

—^e. If you have religion you will see that repentance . . . is the way to Heaven.

117. But if they do not shun evils from a principle of religion . . . the concupiscences . . . remain in them . . .

129. That man . . . must not be compelled by external means to think and will . . . the things of religion . . . Chapter.

134a^e. This (harm of speaking with the dead) results only when the Spirits bring in some dogma of religion; which is never done by any good Spirit.

136⁴. Those who suffer themselves to be forced to religion are many of the papists . . . Those who do not suffer themselves to be forced are many of the English; there is consequently an internal in their worship . . . Their interiors as to religion appear like bright clouds; but the interiors of the former, as to religion, appear like dark clouds.

144. The religion which teaches blind faith, darkens the understanding.

149. The religion of the Christian world has closed the understanding . . .

154². If they have no religion, they become worshippers of nature . . . But if they have a religion, they become worshippers of men . . .

157⁸. This . . . every Gentile acknowledges from his religion.

197. If they retain in the memory something from religion.

253. The state of religion in various nations. Ex.

254². Religion has been transplanted into the whole world from the Ancient and Israelitish Words.

— . When a religion has once been implanted, that nation is led by the Lord according to the precepts and dogmas of its religion; and the Lord provides that in every religion there are precepts such as are in the decalogue . . .

—³. Those whom the Gospel has not reached, but only a religion (are) able to have a place in the (Grand Man) by constituting the . . . skins, bones, etc.

—⁴. Provided they shun evils . . . because they are contrary to religion.

255³. From Mohammed, that religion has been called the Mohammedan religion. This religion was raised up of the Divine Providence . . .

256. The reason the Christian religion is in Europe only . . . For a religion not accommodated is not received. Ex.

258³. Although this faith (alone) has become of religion, every one knows that faith does not save . . .

259. (Thinks that the Divine Providence) would have caused one true religion to exist throughout the world). Ex.

265². Whether they know that to shun evils as sins is religion itself . . .

274. In all who have any religion, there is implanted the knowledge that they live as men after death. Shown.

278a². Of those who, from religion, omit the search (for sin in themselves). Ex.

—³. (Such) do not admit any truth which leads away from any falsity of their religion.

322¹. It is of the Divine Providence that every nation has some religion; and the primary thing of all religion is to acknowledge that there is a God; for otherwise it is not called a religion; and every nation which lives its religion, that is, which does not do evil because it is contrary to its God, receives something spiritual in its Natural. Ex.

—⁵. For a Gentile more than a Christian thinks of God from religion in his life.

325². There are most general principles of the Church which enter into all religions, and make this Communion.

—^e. These are the general principles of all religions, by which everyone can be saved.

326⁶. All can Know God who know anything from religion.

—⁸. That the good of life . . . is to shun evils because they are contrary to religion. Ex.

—⁹. That these are the generals of all religions, by which everyone can be saved.—To acknowledge God, and not to do evil because it is contrary to God, are the two things which make religion to be religion : if one is wanting, it cannot be called a religion. Ex.

— . It has been provided . . . that almost everywhere there is some religion, and that these two things are in it . . .

—¹⁰. The Grand Man cannot be composed from the men of one religion ; but from the men of many religions . . .

327². Whence comes the appropriation of evil, even until religion perishes. Ex.

328. That in process of time every religion decreases and is consummated. Ex.

—⁵. That every religion decreases and is consummated through the inversion of the image of God with man. Ex.

—⁷. When, in the Church, this (lust of seducing to evil) has taken possession of the leaders . . . religion becomes perverted . . .

329². The religion that works effect nothing . . .

330⁴. Heaven is such that all who live well, from whatever religion, have a place there.

—⁵. Those born out of the Church . . . have a religion from which they acknowledge that there is a God, and that they must live well . . .

340². That by (instantaneous Salvation from immediate mercy) religion is abolished. Ex.

— . There are two essentials, and at the same time universals, of religion : the acknowledgment of God, and repentance . . .

R. Pref. The Doctrinals of the Roman Catholic Church and Religion. Quoted.

— . The Doctrinals of the Church and Religion of the Reformed. Quoted.

111. That still they have religion, and worship according to it . . . Sig. and Ex.

272. That from these there is Divine truth in the whole world where there is religion. Sig. and Ex.

282. That those have been redeemed . . . who, in any Church, or in any religion, are in truths as to doctrine, and in goods as to life. Sig. and Ex.

— . 'A tribe' = the Church as to religion. (= religion as to the good of life. 349.)

365. All in the Christian world who are in religion from good, and in truths from doctrine. Sig. and Ex.

461^e. That the good of life is not religion where there is faith alone.

484⁷. (A discussion as to whether the good which man does in a state of justification by faith is the good of religion, or not.) T. 390.

659. The last boundary of the Spiritual World, where those were collected who have religion and thence worship, and no good of life. Sig. and Ex.

675². At this day, in the Christian world, there is no longer any Church, or any religion. Ex. T. 389.

—³. Who can deny that religion is to shun what is evil and do what is good ? Is there any religion where it is taught that faith alone saves . . . Ex.

839⁶. (Angels sent to see whether they had any religion, or not. They determined it by their idea of God ; for this idea enters into everything of religion.)

915. That these alone are in the doctrine of love to God, and of love towards the neighbour, which two are the foundations of religion. Sig. and Ex.

923. That all the truth of the Church, and all the good of religion, are from Him. Sig.

—². For the Church is one thing, and religion another. The Church is so called from doctrine, and religion is called religion from a life according to doctrine . . .

M. 47a^e. For a Christian to have a plurality of wives infests and profanes religion.

79⁷. (They told us) to say nothing against religion . . . We asked, What does your religion teach about marriages . . . (They said, The understanding is insane in the mysteries from which is all religion ; and what have deeds to do with religion ?

80². The human Conjugal, and religion, go hand in hand . . .

—³. The state of religion at this day. Sig.

149. The reason the chastity of marriage does not come forth by the renunciation of scortations, unless this is done from religion, is that without religion man does not become spiritual . . .

238. That internal causes of colds (between married partners) are from religion. Ex. 240. 241. 242. 243.

239. (Thus) where there is no religion, there is no conjugal love ; (but) there is cold . . .

—^e. Although there is religion (now), still there are no truths of religion ; and what is religion without truths ?

242^e. I entered a house where the consorts were of a diverse religion. . . The Angels said, We cannot remain with you in that house, because the consorts there are in discordant religion. This they perceived from the internal disunion of their souls.

246. Internal similitudes and dissimilitudes arise from religion ; for religion is implanted in souls ; and through souls from the parents is transmitted into the offspring, as the supreme inclination.

333^e. He (attains these blessednesses of conjugal love) if he approaches the Lord, and from Him lives true religion.

342. The rise of the Mohammedan religion. Ex.

—^d. A new religion accommodated to the genius of the Orientals . . .

348. That polygamy is not sin to those who live in it from religion.

[M.] 351. They who live according to these laws, from religion, are saved.

497. That at last (these adulterers) reject from themselves all things of the Church and of religion. Ex.

521. (Talk of the satyrs about religion.)

531². Religion, being the marriage of the Lord and the Church, is the initiament and inoculation of conjugal love.

B. 45. That the present faith has separated religion (which consists in the acknowledgment of one God, and in the worship of Him from the faith of charity) from the Church . . .

84^e. It is a general rule of religion that . . .

T. 9. There is not a nation, possessed of religion and sound reason, which does not acknowledge . . . that God is one. Ex.

22^e. Carry the things of religion as in a sack on their backs.

80³. (The idea of a satan about religion.)

107^e. Those who know nothing about the Lord . . . if they . . . live according to the precepts of their religion, are saved . . .

160⁷. They found that the backs of their heads were hollow; and then said to them . . . In your hearts you have denied God, and despised religion.

282². (The commandments) were thus made laws of religion also. Ex.

297. For God is in all things of religion . . . and hears.

310. To turn away the souls of men from . . . religion, is to commit spiritual murder.

315. They (who commit adultery in the celestial sense) at heart laugh at everything of religion . . .

320. They who confirm the falsities of religion . . .

333². When the conversation is about religion, they discuss it . . .

391². (The religion of a so-called Reformed Christian.) Des.

—³. (The religion of a true Christian.) Des.

450. Without these three things there is not religion.

455a. (The internal character of those who live a moral life, but at heart reject the things of religion. (Des. by comparisons.)

476. In childhood (there), as he learns the first lessons of religion, he leaves the north for the south.

484. What then would religion be—which is to do what is good—but an idle word? And what is the Church without religion . . .

487³. (The real sentiments of the predestinarians about religion.)

535. That . . . those repent (also), who, from religion, do the works of charity. Gen.art.

536. All who do what is good from religion, both Christians and pagans, are acceptable to the Lord . . .

— . All who do what is good from religion, after death reject the present doctrine of three Divine persons . . . and turn to the Lord . . .

537. Those who do what is good from natural goodness only, and not at the same time from religion, are not accepted after death. Ex.

564. He who has not searched himself . . . has not a religion . . .

582. If the present faith were to continue . . . what would religion be, but a lamentation that one is a sinner . . .

601. Religion alone renews and regenerates man; for religion occupies the highest seat in the mind . . .

646. Everyone is (there) examined . . . as to what he had been in respect to religion . . .

—². (Everyone) who is endowed with religion . . . will say that those who do good will go to Heaven . . .

666. Conscience is . . . a spiritual willingness to do according to what is of religion . . .

709. Every man imbued with religion . . . may know . . . that there is (also) a spiritual nourishment . . .

722. That for anyone to have religion, God must be acknowledged . . .

729. (Other) infants . . . are introduced into the Heaven assigned to their religion . . .

D. 4570. Those who believe that religion is a mere affair of politics (correspond to bed-bugs).

4748. Charles xii. wished to introduce natural religion, adapted to the comprehension of all naturalists.

4785. The secrets of the Moravian religion concerning the Lord.

4949. Interiorly religious, and exteriorly wicked. 4950.

5027. It is not allowable to speak to the Dutch about religion.

5079. All (there) have with them the religion they had (here).

5103. On a Hell where they are continually wrangling about religious things.

5201^e. All they had had of religion, not profaned, remains.

5353. For where there is no life, there is no religion . . .

5354^e. For a religion which does not teach life, or according to which is the life, is not a religion.

5359. All who had lived . . . in a religion without religion . . .

5396. (The difference between acting well from religion, and from merely external bonds.)

5454. (The Russian nation) do not care for religion.

5457. On the profane from various religions.

5591. By the common speech of Spirits all . . . of every religion (can be together).

5593. By this speech from ideas and affections . . . those in a diverse religion (cannot have any social intercourse with one another).

5662a. Those who have consulted together about a union of religions . . .

5669a. They were told to remain in their own religion . . .

5734. People are saved from every religion . . . provided they live the life of faith, which is charity . . . and thus do not imbue inwardly things diabolical . . .

5822. They cannot apprehend the things of religion.

5828. They become pagans of no religion.

5829. All such (dragonists) live in the world as if without religion.

5843². Destroy those who were of the Reformed religion.

5846. This pope associated himself with the worst of his own religion.

5880. On those heathen who have had no knowledge of God, or of religion.

5928. On those who make the Lutheran religion of life.

5971². When they begin to think from their own minds . . . they reject religion . . .

E. 107³. Religion makes a man spiritual. Ex.

121^e. Those who study religious things.

195². A man lives a moral life from a spiritual origin when he lives it from religion. Ex.

— (So) many gentiles think that evil is not to be done, because it is contrary to their religion . . .

250⁵. They call this way practical religion ; the other, Christian religion.

452. All in the good of life according to their religion, in which are not genuine truths. Rep.

474. Those only undergo temptations there who (here) have lived well according to their religion, in which had been falsities . . .

625. With all who are in truths and goods as to life, and at the same time in goods and truths as to doctrine, according to each person's religion. Sig. and Ex.

696. (Heaven for) all who worship the Lord, from every religion. Sig. and Ex.

710²⁶. That the man should relinquish that evil and falsity which he has from religion . . . Sig.

805⁹. That in this faith there is no religion. Ex.

825³. Good works are all things which a man does . . . when he lives according to the laws of his own religion. The laws of our religion are . . . —⁴.

847³. All religion has life for its end . . . A religion which has not . . . cannot be called a religion . . .

902³. (Thus) man cannot become spiritual . . . except through a life according to religion, from the Lord.

—⁵. For religion does not consist in thinking this or that ; but in willing and doing what is thought . . .

948⁴. Religion with man consists in a life according to the Divine precepts . . . With him who does not live according to them, there cannot be religion. Ex.

963². For no one can have religion except from revelation.

1008². For the religion and doctrine of faith separated from good works, is a religion and doctrine of truth separated from good . . .

1067. Their religion is founded upon the keys . . .

1177². Why there are so many [religions].

VOL. V.

1179². That the Lord provides that man can be reformed and saved by the things he thence makes of his religion. Ex.

—⁴. Thus (is everyone saved) in his own religion, whether Christian, Mohammedan, or Gentile.

J. (Post.) 6. The English have an interior sight as to religion ; but it is a receptive sight. Ex.

14. The Dutch are constant in the Things of their religion.

15. They appeared on the east because they love a bare religion without images.

D. Wis. vii. 2³. (On account of the respiration) a nation of one religion cannot enter to nations of another religion . . .

C. 212. There is no . . . religion where there is no good of life. Gen.art.

— The Church, and religion, make a one, like good and truth.

Can. Pref. The whole of religion is founded upon the idea of God, and follows according to it.

Coro. 11. They are collected into Heavens distinctly, according to religion ; thus according to faith and love.

39². Religion is not possible except through some revelation, and through the propagation of this from nation to nation.

40. To accomplish this end (the formation of a Heaven from mankind) what promotive and effective mediate cause is there but religion? And what is religion but walking with God? Moreover, religion is like a seed producing just and true desires, and thence judgments and acts, in spiritual things ; and, through these, in moral ones . . . and civil ones.

— The quality of a man who has religion ; and that of a man who has not religion (shown by comparisons.)

47. God is the all in all of the Church and its religion.

51². Whence their religion was not a religion, but a superstition.

Religiosity. Religiosum.

A. 2115. Received something of conscience according to their religiosity.

2465^e. Origin of the religiosity signified by Moab and Ammon. 2466.

2590. The Gentiles have received something like conscience according to their religiosity. (Compare 1033².)

2600. The Gentiles are (there) instructed . . . according to their religiosity . . . 2601. 2602. 2603.

2747². The religiosity of adulterers is (as follows).

2864. 'Uz. Buz,' etc. = various religiosities and worships thence.

2869. Various religiosities and worships (of the) third class of those who are saved. Sig.

3024³. See DAUGHTER, here. —⁴. —⁶. 6729. —^e.

3242^e. A religiosity from evil ; (and) a religiosity from falsity. Sig.

[A.] 4190. They think that such things are contrary to their religiosity . . .

4211^e. Worship idols, and yet live in charity according to their religiosity.

4440. That (Jacob's) descendants were in their religiosity. Sig.

—^e. For such [a principle] of the Church as was with them is to be called a religiosity, being external worship without internal.

4444². The religiosity . . . in itself had good . . . but as to those who were in it, it had nothing of good. Ex.

— . Those in such a state cannot be in good when in their religiosity.

4454. Consultation . . . with the good and truth of this religiosity. Sig.

4462. Accession to their religiosity. Sig. and Ex. 4464.

—³. That nation placed religiosity in representatives alone.

4465. A sign that they were of their religiosity. Sig.

4475. (A longing) towards the religiosity of that Church. Sig.

4706^e. This (representative of a Church) is also called a religiosity.

4852. The religiosity with the nation from . . . Judah. Sig. 4905.

— . With the Jewish nation there was not a Church, but only the external of the Church separated from its internal: this can only be called a religiosity.

5757. What is submitted from the religiosity. Sig. and Ex.

5954⁸. He who has not acquired truths . . . from his religiosity, as in the case of the Gentiles, and applied them to life, is not in good . . .

6731. The ministries of that religiosity which is from falsity. Sig.

6739. The truth of the Church near the religiosity there. Sig.

6741. Consent from that religiosity. Sig.

6745. That she should insinuate into him good suitable to the religiosity. Sig.

6775^e. Those outside the Church who live in good according to their religiosity. Sig.

8588⁴. Moses and Aaron (here) represent the religiosity of that nation . . .

8941³. There are . . . two religiosities which are from Own intelligence . . . This religiosity is called 'Babel' . . . The other religiosity is . . .

—⁷. A religiosity which is from proprium. Sig.

8944³. The gentiles at this day who know (spiritual things) have it from the religiosity which they have derived from Ancient times . . .

—^e. Those of them who from their religiosity acknowledge a Divine over all things; and from their religiosity perform offices of charity to the neighbour; in the other life, when instructed, receive the truths of faith, and are saved.

9011. Those who have complete faith in their religiosity (are not to blame) . . .

—⁴. 'The forest' = the religiosity.

9112. Conscience is formed with man from the religiosity in which he is . . .

9256⁴. Had lived in a kind of image of faith and charity according to their religiosity . . . and could not close the internal man.

— . Such is the lot of all who have lived in good according to their religiosity.

10177¹⁰. From that Church many religiosities were translated to the surrounding nations, and among them incensings.

10640. That they should not adhere to any religiosity in which was evil. Sig. and Ex.

10642. That the evil of that religiosity and derivative worship was to be rejected. Sig. and Ex.

10647. Thus conjunction with the evil of any religiosity. Sig. and Ex.

H. 318^e. For to live according to the religiosity is to live interiorly . . .

321. Had lived in mutual charity according to their religiosity . . . are accepted . . .

J. 50. Had lived a spiritual moral life according to their religiosity.

59³. For everyone after death retains his religiosity . . .

S. 1^e. Whence its holiness, except from the religiosity?

F. 49. Various religiosities (are signified) by the nations around (Israel); concordant religiosities, by the good nations; and discordant religiosities, by the evil nations.

— . There are two evil religiosities, into which every Church . . . degenerates. Ex. 55.

55^e. For every evil religiosity blinds the eyes.

P. 139⁸. Are in a strong persuasion concerning the religiosity in which they are; especially in that religiosity which involves that they are to be worshipped . . .

245. That he might represent the Lord's Kingdom, that is, the Church with all the religiosities in the world.

—². 'A wife' = the Church; and 'a concubine' a religiosity.

253. The . . . religiosities of many nations (furnish arguments against the Divine Providence). Ex. 254, Ex.

255. When he regards the Mohammedan religiosity . . . Ex.

258⁶. Although the religiosity concerning faith alone has been received . . .

—^e. They could not have been separated from the Catholic religiosity.

326¹². Dagon represented that religiosity.

R. 378. Those who had cleansed their religiosities from the evils of falsity. Sig. and Ex.

718. It is not called the Roman Catholic Church, but the Roman Catholic religiosity; because they do not approach the Lord, nor read the Word, and because they invoke the dead . . .

T. 103². (The Jews) have adhered firmly to their religiosity.

E. 786. No longer a Church, but a religiosity which counterfeits a Church.

1032. Their religiosity. Sig. and Ex.

— . Convert the Church into a religiosity.

1037. As a Church in which there is no longer any good and truth is not a Church, it is called a religiosity.

1038. 1056. 1088.

1091. This religiosity will still last in the world, because the love of commanding is implanted in everyone . . .

1138. Four kinds of men from this religiosity. Sig.

1177⁴. Illustration by these religiosities . . .

J. (Post.) 230. Man's state after death from every religiosity. Ex.

De Verbo 14. Such as a man is as to his religiosity (here), such is he as to his religiosity after death.

Relish. Sapor.

Relish, To. Sapere.

Savoury. Sapidus.

A. 3502. The pleasant things of taste. Sig.

— . Taste, like the other bodily senses, corresponds to celestial and spiritual things.

3570⁵. The soul gives to the body to appetize food, and also to relish it: foods are introduced by the delight of appetite and of relish; thus by external good.

—⁶. To appetite and relish correspond the longing and affection of knowing truth.

4795. Therefore wisdom, or to be wise-sapere, is so called from relish.

5089². He could not discern anything interior . . .

5117. The predominance of good is represented in the flavour in the grapes.

5620¹³. Its appearing delightful in the external form, is signified by, its 'taste being sweet as honey' (Rev.x. 9). . . But the internal sense is signified by the 'bitter taste.' Ex.

8378. They said that to them useful food is savoury.

8522. 'The taste of the manna was like . . .' (Ex.xvi. 31). . . 'Taste' is predicated of the delights which are of good, because it corresponds to the delight of wisdom.

9192⁷. Compared to foods unclean to the sight, but savoury.

9207⁷. Salt makes food savoury . . .

9258³. They are accepted as genuine truths, because they savour of good.

9278³. He is in a life which savours of the world.

M. 280. These simulations . . . savour of justice and judgment. 281.

D. 3998. How a substance tastes . . .

E. 318². For then man has a sense of the good in the truth.

519. Relish and taste=the affection of knowing and being wise.

617^e. Hence, in languages, relish, and to savour, are predicated of the perception of a Thing; hence also comes sapientia.

622. Its taste=perception . . .

Reluctation. Reluctatio.

Reluctate. Reluxare.

A. 829². (Punishments by) colluctations and reluctations, or . . .

R. 354. Reluctation by the natural man. Sig.

T. 61. From this perpetual reluctation, resistance, etc. of evil and falsity against His good and truth . . .

— . When evil and falsity reluctate against them . . .

D. 3682. Occurs. — .

Remaliah. Remaliah.

A. 6952⁷. Mentioned. E.559⁸.

Remain. Manere, Remanere.

A. 1581². Whatever man has once acquired, remains. 2049⁴. His life in the world remains with him . . .

2116. Not the least evil which man has thought or actually done is blotted out, but it all remains.

2256². All the good which man has thought and done . . . remains.

2657⁷. Everything of the first Rational remains . . .

2747. All the affections and derivative thoughts . . . remain after death.

2792. 'Remain here with the ass' (Gen.xxii.5)= separation . . .

3175. 'Let the girl remain with us' (Gen.xxiv.55)= detention . . .

4060⁴. It is always provided that something of the Church remains.

4172. This evil remains to eternity. Whereas the evil not of fault . . . does indeed remain, but only in externals . . .

4295². Evil and falsity are not separated from the Angels; but it all remains with them . . .

5094². Such as man's Natural has been formed in the world, such it remains.

5128⁴. It is this interior life which . . . remains after death.

5175^e. According to (the ends) his life remains.

5387. For the life of everyone remains (there). 5718^e.

5520. 'To cause to remain'=to be separated.

6112^e. Applications to falsities and evils, once impressed on any Scientific, remain.

6122. All the truth and good ever given to man, Spirit, or Angel, remain.

6368^e. As man dies, so he remains.

6977. After death his life follows him, and remains in the state . . .

7032^e. His life awaits everyone; not his civil life which appeared . . . but his spiritual life . . .

7290². What is compulsory does not remain . . . But the things appropriated (in freedom) remain.

[A.] 7398. (Thus) all things which enter with man, remain. Sig. and Ex.

7541^e. The desire to do evil always remains.

9089^e. What is effected by both (the Voluntary and the Intellectual) remains . . .

9188². Truths once made of faith, remain, and cannot be eradicated.

10298⁴. Hence man after death remains as he has been made truth and good.

H. 363. Man remains to eternity such as is his predominant affection. Ex.

395^e. That which is in the spirit of man . . . remains after death.

480. That man after death remains to eternity such as he is as to his reigning will or love. Ex.

482. That faith does not remain [with] man if it is not from heavenly love. Ex.

483. That love in act is that which remains. Ex.

N. 113. That alone remains in the spirit of man which has entered into his love.

222^e. 'To abide in the Lord' = to be in love to Him.

P. 17. He then remains such as has been his life (here); that is, such as has been his reigning love.

78. That whatever man does from freedom according to his thought . . . remains. Gen.art.

79. When it is removed, it is transferred . . . to the circumferences . . . This is meant by its being said that it remains.

179^e. For everyone's life awaits him, and thence his lot.

227. That whatever man thinks, speaks, or acts from the will . . . remains. Ex.

279². All evils or sins remain; and, when remitted, are removed to the sides.

R. 164^e. What man does from himself in freedom, remains to eternity; but what he does from fear does not remain.

M. 34. That one's own love remains with everyone after death. Ex.

46. That the love of the sex remains with every man after death, such as it had been interiorly . . . Ex.

48. That conjugal love in like manner remains . . . Ex.

T. 493. That everything spiritual of the Church which enters in freedom . . . remains. Gen.art.

494. The spiritual things of the Word and Church which man imbibes from love, and which the understanding confirms, remain with man; but not so civil and political things. Ex.

500. For that which is not received by man from free will does not remain. Gen.art.

520. That . . . unless man in part removes evils by repentance, he remains in them; and he who remains in them cannot be saved. Gen.art.

614. All evil which man has appropriated to himself actually, remains.

D. 2457. What has once been acquired, remains . . .

4481. All states, thoughts, speeches, and acts, in like manner remain . . .

E. 478. Falsities still remain, although removed by truths . . .

860. (What they acquire after death) does not remain . . .

Remain. Superesse.

A. 7398. 'To remain' (Ex. viii. 9) = to remain-remanere.

9133. To be left. Sig.

Remains. Reliquiae.

See under TEN.

A. S. The second state is when a distinction is made between the Lord's things, and those proper to man. The (former) are called 'remains,' and, here, are especially the Knowledges of faith, which have been learned from infancy. These are stored up, and are not manifested until he comes into this state, which state at this day rarely comes forth without temptation . . . Thus are the things of the external man separated from those of the internal. In the internal are the remains . . .

19. The Lord's mercy . . . broods over the things which the Lord has stored up with the man, and which are called 'remains.' They are the Knowledges of truth and good, which never come into the light . . . until external things have been vastated.

259². 'The serpent' . . . cannot wound . . . these things which the Lord stores up, which are called 'remains.'

468². Those who remain are called 'the remains,' and 'the residue,' and are said to be 'in the middle of the land.' . . . So, if the Lord did not preserve 'remains' in each one, he must perish . . . For the spiritual and celestial life is in the remains. Ex. . . The last remains are signified by Noah.

—³. The 'remains,' in man, and in the Church. Ill.

530. Churches become vastated. But still remains are always preserved, that is, some with whom the good and truth of faith remain; though they are few; for (otherwise) there would be no conjunction of Heaven with the human race.

—². As to the remains which are with man individually, the fewer they are the less can his rational and scientific things be enlightened; for the light of good and truth inflows . . . through the remains from the Lord. If there were no remains in a man, he would not be a man, but much viler than a brute. The fewer the remains, the less he is a man; and the more they are, the more he is a man. Remains are circumstanced like some heavenly star: the smaller it is, the less light it gives . . . The few things which remained from the Most Ancient Church were with those who constituted the Church called 'Noah.' But the remains-remanenciae-were not of perception, but of integrity, and also of doctrine . . .

556. As man had thus no remains of good and truth, it is foretold that he would be differently formed, in order that he might have remains. Tr.

560. The men of the antediluvian Church (by doing this) had scarcely any remains; and (were therefore) suffocated . . . for man cannot live without remains; (because) it is in remains that the life of man is above that of brutes. From remains, or through remains from the Lord, man can be as man, can know what is good and true, reflect upon each thing, and thus think and reason; for in remains alone there is spiritual and celestial life.

561. As to remains, they are not only the goods and truths which a man has learned from the Lord's Word from childhood up . . . but they are also all the states derived thence; such as states of innocence . . . states of love towards parents, etc. . . states of charity towards the neighbour, and also of pity for the poor . . . in a word, all states of good and truth. These states, with the goods and truths impressed on the memory, are called remains; which are preserved in man by the Lord and stored up, quite without his knowledge, in the internal man; and are separated well from the things proper to man. Ex.

562. The antediluvians . . . at last had almost no remains. Ex.

563. So that remains can no longer be stored up . . .

565^e. For man is never man, but the vilest of brutes, if he has no remains.

571. When man immerses truths in . . . cupidities, he profanes them, and deprives himself of remains, which, although they remain, cannot be produced. Ex.

576². The remains of remains. Sig.

—³. Remains are compared to 'spoil,' because they are insinuated as it were stealthily among so many evils and falsities.

—^e. That remains are of the Lord alone. Sig.

594. After they had thus as it were destroyed remains, they could not but be extinguished.

602. The remains with the man of the Church 'Noah' are described by the measures (of the ark). 649.

628². There was nothing true, or good, except in the remains with those called 'Noah'; for without remains there is no regeneration. 635.

649. That the remains with them were few. Sig.

660. They had persuasions which . . . closed up the way for remains, so that they could not operate . . . When the way for remains is closed, the man is no longer man, because he cannot be protected by the Angels, but is totally possessed by evil Spirits . . . 798².

661. (Such) cannot so close up the way for remains . . .

—². Remains are all things of innocence, of charity, of mercy, and of the Truth of faith, which man has had from the Lord . . . And if man has them not, there can be nothing of innocence, charity, or mercy . . . and he is worse than the wild beasts . . . Such were the antediluvians . . .

711. Unless man is furnished with truths and goods, he cannot be regenerated. Ex. . . These truths and goods are the remains which are reserved by the Lord for such uses.

737. These truths and goods are remains which are not produced so as to be recognized until the man is being regenerated . . . The remains in a man being regenerated through temptations are for the Angels with him, who take out from them the things with which they defend the man against the evil Spirits . . .

857². Hence everyone may see . . . what remains are.

886³. 'Two or three olives' = the celestial remains with man.

977². An unregenerate man's being able to think and understand what is good and true, is from the Lord's life through remains, whence he has the faculty of reflecting.

1025¹¹. Remains, which are holy, because of the Lord. Sig.

1050. No man could live . . . unless he had something living in him, that is, something of innocence, charity, and mercy . . . This man receives from the Lord when an infant and a child . . . The things thus stored up are called in the Word 'remains,' and are of the Lord alone with the man. Ex.

—². Man does not learn these states, but receives them as a gift from the Lord . . . Together with the truths of faith, they are what are called 'remains' . . . In proportion as man . . . extinguishes these states, he becomes dead . . . When a man is being regenerated, these states are the beginning of it, and he is led into them; for the Lord operates through the remains.

—³. These remains in everyone are here called 'the living soul of all flesh.'

1450. These celestial things are insinuated . . . from infancy to childhood, without Knowledges; for they inflow from the Lord, and affect, before the man knows what love is . . . These are remains . . . The Lord also was introduced into celestial things . . .

1548. Infants are in innocence and the goods of love . . . These are what are called the first remains . . .

1738. Remains from victory. Sig. and Ex.

—¹. Remains are all the states of love and charity, consequently all those of innocence and peace, with which man is gifted. These states are given to man from infancy, but less by degrees as he advances to adult age. But, when he is being regenerated, he receives new remains in addition to the former ones; thus new life. For it is from remains, or through remains, that man is man . . .

—². The remains acquired (by the Lord) in the combats of temptations, are what are here meant. Ex.

1906. The remains of good and thence of truth which the Lord acquired. Sig. and Ex.

—¹. Remains are all the states of affection of good and truth with which man is gifted by the Lord from first infancy to the end of life; which states are stored up for him for the use of his life after death; for all states . . . return there . . . and are tempered by the states of good and truth with which he has been gifted by the Lord. The more he has received of remains (here), the more delightful and beautiful do the rest of his states appear, when they return. Ex.

—². As man is introduced into the world . . . these celestial things of his infancy begin to disappear; but still they remain; and the (subsequent) states are tempered by them. Without them a man cannot be man . . . These states of good are what are called 'remains,' which are given by the Lord, and implanted in his nature, when the man is unaware of it.

[A. 1906]³. In after life also man is gifted with new states; not so much of good as of truth . . . which are also stored up in the interior man. Through these remains, which are of truth, and which are born from the influx of spiritual things from the Lord, man has the ability to think, and also understand, what the good and truth of civil and moral life are, and also to receive spiritual truth . . . but he cannot do this except through the remains of good which he received in infancy.

— That there are remains, and that they are stored up in the interior Rational, is unknown to man . . .

— Remains are treated of in the Word passim, and by them are signified those states by which man becomes man, and this from the Lord alone.

—⁴. But the remains which were with the Lord were all the Divine states which He procured to Himself, and by which He united the Human essence to the Divine essence. They cannot be compared to the remains with man; for these are not Divine. 1963. 1988².

2075³. Conjunction by remains. Sig.

2109. 'Thirteen' = holy remains.

2239^e. If there were any remains (in Sodom), that is, anything of good and truth. Sig. 2284, Sig. and Ex.

2280. By 'remains' is signified all the good and truth which the Lord insinuates with man from infancy to the last of his life.

—². Three kinds of goods are signified by 'remains:' the goods of infancy, the goods of ignorance, and the goods of intelligence. Ex.

2284. Remains are all the good, and all the truth, with man, which lie stored up in his memories, and in his life. Ex.

— These things are what are called 'remains,' of which mention is very frequently made in the Word . . .

—³. According to the quantity and quality of the remains—that is, of the good and truth with him—man enjoys blessedness and happiness in the other life; for they are stored up in his interior man, and become evident when man leaves behind corporeal and worldly things.

— The Lord alone knows the quality and quantity of a man's remains . . .

—⁴. Men from every religion are saved, provided they have by a life of charity received remains of good and of apparent truth. Ex.

2468¹⁵. That they cannot come into Heaven, because they have no remains. Sig.

2636². All the things with which man is gifted by the Lord before regeneration, and through which he is regenerated, are called remains.

2851⁶. 'To slay the remains' (Is. xiv. 30) = to take away the goods and truths which had been stored up interiorly by the Lord.

2967². It is the remains, which are goods and truths from the Lord stored up with man, which then receive life. These goods and truths are acquired from infancy up to the time of reformation; with one person more, with another fewer. These are reserved in his internal man, nor can they be produced until his external man has been reduced to correspondence . . .

3116. Exploration is with every man who . . . receives remains.

3183³. There are then no longer any remains . . . Sig.

3322⁴. 'The remains of Edom' (Amos ix. 12) = those who are in good within the Church.

3336³. Therefore, when the time comes that a man can be regenerated, the Lord inspires the affection of good, and through it excites the Things which have been adjoined to this affection by Him, and which are called 'remains' . . .

3654³. 'The remains,' etc. = the truths and goods which survive.

— That remains are the goods and truths stored up by the Lord in the interior man. Refs.

3740. Remains, when predicated of the Lord, are Divine goods, and Divine truths, which He procured for Himself by His Own power.

4168. 'Twenty' = the good of remains.

— Remains, when predicated of the Lord, are nothing else than His proprium . . .

4759. 'Twenty' = the good and truth stored by the Lord in the interior man, which are called remains . . .

—². Those who have no remains of good and truth in their interior man . . .

5113⁸. 'The remains of the people' (Zech. viii. 11) = truths stored up by the Lord in the interior man. Refs.

5128⁵. There are with every man goods and truths stored up by the Lord from infancy, which are called 'remains:' these are infected by deceit, and commingled by profanation.

5135⁴. These goods and truths laid up in the interior Natural are signified in the Word by 'remains;' but if evil steals the goods and truths there, and applies them to confirm evils and falsities, especially if from deceit, it then consumes these remains . . . and then it is all over with the man. —⁵, Sig.

—⁷. That the evil of the love of self consumes the remains of good and truth. Sig.

—⁸. Remains are not consumed by falsities which are not from evil; but by falsities from evil.

5291. To make remains, is to collect truths and goods, and then store them up. Tr.

—². 'Five,' also = remains. —⁴, Ill. —⁵.

5297^e. Their heaping up food in the cities = truths conjoined with good stored up in the interiors of the natural mind, which . . . are called remains, and in which consists the veriest life of the spiritual man, and from which man is spiritually nourished in all . . . spiritual famine.

5335. 'Joseph thirty years old' = a full state of remains. Ex. and Ill.

—². That man cannot be regenerated, that is, admitted into spiritual combats, until he has received remains to the full. Sig.

5342³. These truths adjoined to good are what, in the proper sense, are called remains. In proportion, therefore, as man suffers himself to be regenerated, remains serve a use; for in the same proportion the Lord takes of them, and remits them into the Natural, so as to produce a correspondence of the exteriors with the interiors. This is done in the state which is signified by the 'seven years of famine.'

5344². With this (the Second) Heaven, man communicates through remains. Ex. . . For remains—that is, the truths and goods stored up in the interiors—are nothing else than correspondences with the Societies of that Heaven.

5363. Remains from multiplied truths from good. Sig. and Ex.

5370. Communication from remains. Sig. and Ex.

5561. Into such a state (the bones) are reduced those who have led an evil life, and yet have had some remains of good stored up in themselves. Ex.

5894. The duration of that state, until remains shine forth. Sig. and Ex.

— . Here, remains are acknowledgments and affections of truth, before good manifests itself. With good, these shine forth; and meanwhile sufficient is taken of them as may conduce to the use of life. Such is the Providence of the Lord . . .

5897. 'To put for you remains in the land' (Gen. xlv.7)=the middle and inmost of the Church; (for) 'remains'=goods joined to truths stored up inwardly in man by the Lord; here, the middle and inmost of the Church. Ex.

—². 'Remains,' and 'residues,' are mentioned in the Word passim, by which have been understood the remains and residues of a people or nation; (but) in the spiritual sense, they=goods and truths stored up by the Lord in the interior man. Ill.

—⁸. Remains so closed up through evils of life and persuasions of falsity, that they no longer appear; and, through the denial of truth which had previously been acknowledged, in both cases from affection, they are consumed . . . Ill.

—¹⁰. No remains left. Ill.

—¹¹. As to remains, or the goods and truths stored up in the interiors of man by the Lord, the ease is this. When man is in good and truth from affection . . . good and truth are implanted; and (then) the Angels approach, and conjoin themselves with the man. It is this . . . which causes goods with truths to come forth in man's interiors . . .

5898. All spiritual life from remains. Sig. and Ex.

5899. Deliverance from damnation effected through remains. Sig. and Ill.

6156. That remains are for the General (in the Natural) which is under the auspices of the Internal. Sig. and Ex.

— . Remains . . . are remitted into the natural man when he is in a state of good; but, when he comes into a state of evil, they are at once withdrawn and stored away, to prevent their being mixed with evils . . .

—². When man cannot be regenerated, the remains with him are well reserved in his interiors; but when he is being regenerated, they are remitted . . . into the exteriors in proportion as he is being regenerated . . . and, then, they are first remitted to the generals, and afterwards to the particulars successively.

6157. The things which are not yet remains. Sig. and Ex.

6348³. Such a one has not any remains of good stored up in his interiors, because they have completely perished in evil.

6367⁷. Celestial good and celestial truth, which are 'the remains of Jacob' (Micah v.7). Sig.

6959². As such have scarcely any remains of truth and good, they at last become like skeletons . . .

7556². The good and truth which have not been adjoined to evils and falsities . . . are stored up by the Lord in the interiors, and are afterwards brought forth for use. The reservation of good and truth with man by the Lord is signified by 'remains.' Refs. 7601².

7831. As remains are in the interiors, and through them man is prepared and initiated to receive good and truth from the Lord . . .

7984. 'Thirty'=a full state of remains.

—². With the good, evil and falsity are successively rejected to the sides, and goods and truths are collected to the middle. This collection of good and truth is meant by remains; and, when there is a full state of remains with them, they are elevated into Heaven.

9014². Deceit is like a poison which penetrates to the interiors . . . and destroys the remains . . . on the destruction of which nothing of spiritual life remains.

—⁴. With hypocrites . . . the very remains of good and truth have been consumed and destroyed, and, with these, everything of spiritual life; (and therefore) they cannot perform repentance. Sig.

R. 189². 'The remains of His people' (Is.xxviii.5)=those with whom His Church will be.

D. 856^e. Therein are the remains . . .

3108^e. When man is in such a persuasive state, and is elevated, the Lord operates, and inseminates into their minds, and stores up, those things which are called remains . . .

3475^e. In the same proportion the less remains there are left.

4382. On the state of infants, and remains. Ex.

E. 278⁵. 'The remains of Jacob' (Micah v.7)=the truths and goods of the Church.

401¹⁹. 'I will give their remains to the sword . . . ' (Jer.xv.9)=that all the residue of good and truth will perish . . .

724²⁹. 'All thy remains I will scatter . . . ' (Ezek.v.10) . . . 'Remains'=the truths and goods stored up with man by the Lord from infancy and childhood.

768. 'The remains of her seed' (Rev.xii.17)=those who are in these truths (of the New Church).

866³. 'The remains of Israel' (Zeph.iii.13)=those in spiritual faith, because in the good of charity.

Remains. Reliquis.

R. 456. 'The rest of the men' (Rev.ix.20)=those who are not such . . .

[R.] 517. 'The remnant were affrighted' (Rev.xi.13)= those who had adjoined some goods of charity to faith . . . (Compare E. 677.)

565. 'The remnant of her seed' (Rev.xii.17)=the novitiates . . .

836. 'The remnant were slain' (Rev.xix.21)=all from the various heresies among the Reformed . . . who do not shun evils as sins.

Remains. Superstes. Inv.22.

Remedy. Remedium. A.6502. D.2874.

Remember. See under MEMORY.

Remember. Memorare. R.83. E.105.

Remember. Recordare.

Remembrance. Recordatio.

A. 840. 'God remembered' (Gen.viii.1)= . . . in special, that He had mercy: His remembrance is mercy, which is especially predicated after temptation. . . . As this appears so, 'God remembers'=the end of the temptation, and the beginning of renovation.

1049. 'I will remember My covenant' (Gen.ix.15)= the Lord's mercy towards the regenerate . . . for 'to remember' cannot be predicated of the Lord . . . See 1055.

1491. That the Lord remembered. Sig. and Ex.

1516. It was recalled to my remembrance that . . .

2473². When a man remembers another . . . there is presented one obscure [idea] . . . But when, as a Spirit, he remembers him . . . there are presented all the ideas he ever had about him. Ex.

2474². Man is then led successively into full remembrance . . .

3966. 'God remembered Rachel' (Gen.xxx.22)=fore-sight. Ex.

4904³. By baptism they might remember regeneration; by the Holy Supper they might remember the Lord and His love . . .

5130. He is continually in remembrance of the Lord . . . although he does not know that he then remembers Him; for the remembrance of the Lord by those in faith is a thing which reigns universally . . .

5169. 'He did not remember Joseph' (Gen.xl.23)= not as yet conjunction in every way.

5229. 'I remember my sins this day' (Gen.xli.9)= concerning the state of disjunction . . . (for) 'to remember'=conjunction . . . because in the other life the remembrance of anyone conjoins; for, as soon as any Spirit remembers another, he is presented . . . (This is) when the Lord grants that they should remember them.

5430. 'Joseph remembered the dreams . . . ' (Gen. xlii.19)=that (it) foresaw what would happen . . . (for) 'to remember'=presence; because a Thing of which remembrance takes place, is presented . . .

6004³. When a scientific comes into the thought, the truths collated into it come into remembrance . . .

7200. 'I have remembered My covenant' (Ex.vi.5)= exemption from infestations. Ex.

8038. It treats in (Ex.xiii.) of perpetual remembrance of deliverance by the Lord.

8066. 'A sign'=perpetual remembrance (in relation to the Voluntary).

8067. 'A memorial'=perpetual remembrance (in relation to the Intellectual).

8442. Remembrance of the state of temptation in which they had been. Sig. and Ex.

8763. The remembrance of all that befel the evil . . . Sig.

—, 'Ye have seen'=remembrance.

8885. 'Remember' (Ex.xx.8)=what is perpetual in the thought. Ex.

8986. The delight of the remembrance of spiritual good. Sig. and Ex.

8990². (Such) do what is good as often as they remember it.

9151. Remembrance. Sig. and Ex.

9153. If there is no remembrance. Sig. and Ex.

9154³. When man is in good . . . he comes into the remembrance of all the truths which have entered the good . . . (and) truths which have disappeared come again into remembrance when the man returns into the affection of good or of truth, through life.

9468⁸. 'To tie a scarlet thread'=for the sake of the memory or remembrance of the Thing.

9849. 'Stones of remembrance for the sons of Israel' (Ex.xxviii.12)=from mercy in perpetuity . . .

—, It is said of the Lord that He 'remembers,' and that He 'does not remember,' by which is signified that it is done from mercy, whether it is preservation, or deliverance . . .

—, Everyone may know that to remember—recordari seu meminisse—cannot be predicated of the Lord . . .

—². That 'to remember,' when said of the Lord, = to have mercy, and thus to preserve, or deliver, from mercy. Ill. 9850. 9904.

10231. 'It shall be . . . for remembrance before Jehovah' (Ex.xxx.16)= thus the preservation of the Church . . . by the Lord.

10659. The feast of the Passover . . . was instituted in remembrance of the deliverance of man from Hell.

H. 462a³. All the particulars . . . were brought to their remembrance . . .

W. 363². There are many [departments] of wisdom; as recollection, etc.

P. 326³. Presence (there) is from the remembrance of another . . .

R. 83. Remembrance of their error. Sig.

T. 704. 'This do in remembrance of Me' (Luke xxii.19). Ex. 709^e. 710.

D. 3285. (Seeming recollections of things which have never happened.) 3917.

3573. They snatched it away, so that I could not remember it. 5904.

4163. How Spirits remember others. Ex.

E. 95. 'Write' = for remembrance. 112.

654⁷⁰. 'Remember Egypt no more' (Ezek. xxiii. 27) = no longer any knowledge of truth.

1112. 'To remember,' when said of God, = to separate Himself from them. Ex.

Remember. Reminisci.

Remembrance. Reminiscentia.

A. 1108. By turns they . . . remember the things they had done in the life of the body.

2371⁶. From some goods which they remember (there) they want to merit Heaven.

2469. On the remembrance of the things which man has done in the life of the body. Gen.art.

2493². (The Angels) have a most perfect remembrance of past things . . .

7398. The things which enter (have not) been obliterated when the man no longer remembers them.

7721^e. In order that they may remember the evils they had done (here).

8049. That they remember the state in which they had been . . . Sig.

8066. For the sake of perpetual remembrance. Sig.

8620. 'To write in a book' = for perpetual remembrance. . . For by the Divine remembrance is signified Salvation; and by non-remembrance, damnation. Ill.

9418. 'To write = for remembrance. E.87.

H. 256. If a Spirit spoke to a man from his own memory . . . it would be like the remembrance of a Thing which the man had never heard or seen.

P. 255². They placed like (images) in their temples, that they might call to remembrance the holy things they signified.

M. 415⁵. Frequent speech from memory and recollection . . . induces a species of faith.

T. 80^e. Forgetfulness expelled remembrance.

D. 2021. When holding forth, things were called into his mind which otherwise he could never remember.

—². Spirits would communicate things to me . . . so that I knew no otherwise than that I . . . remembered them.

3259. Yet as soon as a thing occurs, the (Spirits of Mercury) remember it.

D.Min. 4721². From the remembrance that it is so, the Angels (are) kept in a state of good and truth.

D.Wis. v^e. The permanence of these things is memory; and the reproduction of them is remembrance.

Remit. Remittere.

Remission. Remissio.

A. 589. A principle from which he is never willing to recede, or in the least to let go.

875⁴. If the Lord were to relax in the least . . . the man would do evil . . . 929^e.

1712². Therefore man ought not to hang down his hands. 1937². 8176. 10299⁴. P.210. T.356. D.2161. 2732.

2116². The Angels are remitted into their evils. 2307. 4564³. H.342.

3894. They are first remitted into the life which they had in the world.

5207^e. Truths are successively remitted from within.

5398. Believe sins are remitted in a moment.

—². They are told that the Lord remits the sins of everyone who from his heart desires it; but still such persons are not separated from the diabolical crew . . .

5660². They think that (in that case) they would hang down their hands . . .

6388^e. Like objects which do not remit, but absorb the rays of light.

6561². With the Jews it was implanted that they should never forgive . . .

6563. 'Forgive the transgression of thy brethren' (Gen.l.17) = supplication and repentance.

7118. 'For they are remiss' (Ex.v.8) = not sufficiently infested. 7149.

7697. 'Forgive . . . my sin, this time only' (Ex.x.17) = that they should not regard his disobedience. . . For 'to remit' is to regard one, not from evil, but from good.

8179. Those in temptations are wont to hang down their hands.

—³. As he hangs down his hands, he yields . . .

8389. See REPENT, here. 8393.

8452. The Angels are remitted into the state of the natural affections . . . 8487³.

8487⁴. The concupiscences into which (the Angels) are remitted, are . . .

8573². The Lord continually remits . . .

8870^e. They are then remitted into the evils of their will.

8882². 'All sin . . . shall be forgiven unto men; but the blasphemy of the Spirit shall not be forgiven. . . A word against the Son of Man shall be forgiven; but he who shall speak against the Holy Spirit, it shall not be forgiven . . .' (Matt.xii.32) . . . = the profanation of truth . . . (This) cannot be healed, thus not forgiven . . . 8883.

9013⁸. The reason these are not 'forgiven,' is that hypocrisy . . . infects the interiors . . . For the forgiveness (or remission) of sins is the separation of evil from good . . . which cannot be done with one with whom all good is destroyed . . .

9014. Damnation although he . . . supplicates for forgiveness . . . Sig. and Ex.

—². Deceit in spiritual things . . . cannot be forgiven. Ex.

— . When such supplicate for forgiveness . . . they supplicate nothing from the heart . . . Hence they have no forgiveness.

—³. The remission (or forgiveness) of sins (is supposed to be) the wiping of them away . . . and that after the remission they go clean . . . but the ease is quite different with the remission of sins. The Lord remits sins to everyone . . . but they are not on that account remitted, unless the man performs serious repentance, and desists from evils, and then lives a life of faith and charity, and this up to the end of his life. When he does this, he receives new spiritual life from the Lord, and when from this life he regards the evils of his former life, and feels aversion and horror for them, then, first, are the evils remitted; for the man is then kept in truths and goods by the Lord, and is withheld from evils. Hence it is evident what is the remission of sins, and that this cannot exist within an hour, or within a year. This is known by the Church, for it is said to those who approach the Holy Supper that their sins are remitted if they begin a new life . . .

[A.] 9264^e. That this malignity is not remitted, because it is against the Divine justice. Sig. and Ex.

9333². The case with the remission of sins is that man is not purified from them, but is withheld from them by the Lord . . . when he has been regenerated. Ex. 9447, Ex. 9448.

9443. (The doctrine) of the remission of sins. Gen.art. N.159.

9445. That no one can lead away from sins, thus remit them, except the Lord. Sig.

9448. The ability to be kept by the Lord in the good of love and truths of faith, and to be withheld from evils and falsities, is the remission of sins. (Possible only to the regenerate.)

9449. The signs that sins have been remitted are as follow. Enum.

9450. The signs that sins have not been remitted. Enum.

9451. Sins, when remitted . . . remain with the man.

9452. These are the things which are meant by the remission of sins from mercy. Enum.

9454^e. From these things it is evident who they are whose sins have been remitted, and who those whose sins are not remitted.

9506. 'The mercy-seat' = the cleansing from evils or remission of sins. Ex.

9818²⁷. Hence it is said that this sin (against the Holy Spirit, which is profanation) cannot be forgiven.

9937⁴. For deliverance from sins, or the remission of them, is nothing else than removal; for they remain with the man . . .

10504. 'If now Thou remittest their sin' (Ex. xxxii. 32) = that this turning away from the Divine would not oppose.

—^e. What is not attended to, is said to be remitted.

H. 506³. In this second state (after death) they are remitted . . . into the state of their exteriors . . .

L. 18. That the imputation of the Lord's merit is nothing else than the remission of sins after repentance. Gen.art.

—⁴. The remission of sins as preached, and as described by the Lord. Ill. —⁵.

Life 5. Being ready to forgive others . . . as ye would have forgiveness of your offences of God's hand.

(Quotation from the English in this no.) (Translated into Latin in 6. T. 526².)

P. 122. The Holy Supper confirms the remission of sins with those who perform repentance. Ex.

279. That in proportion as evils are removed, they are remitted. Gen.art.

—². I had believed that when evils are remitted, they are rejected . . . But all things remain, and when, after repentance, they are remitted, they are moved away from the middle to the sides . . .

—³. Some good men after death . . . glory because they are no longer sinners . . . and are therefore remitted into their own evils . . .

280. That sins when remitted have been removed, is an error of the age. (Such) believe that sins are remitted them through the (Holy) Supper . . . and through faith alone, etc. . . But the reverse is true: that when sins have been removed they are remitted; for repentance precedes remission, and without repentance there is no remission. Therefore the Lord commanded the disciples to preach repentance for the remission of sins (Luke xxiv. 47); and John preached the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins (Luke iii. 3). The Lord remits their sins to all . . . but still He cannot take them away except according to the laws of His Divine Providence. (It was He who said to Peter) that he should forgive his brother seventy times seven (Matt. xviii. 21, 22).

324⁸. They are remitted to such (as are in like delight).

334^e. This is meant by the 'good measure . . . given into the bosom of those who forgive and give to others' (Luke vii. 37, 38); that is, who are in the good of charity.

R. 224⁶. In proportion as he does this, his sins are remitted.

798⁴. Provided the priest says, I remit.

T. 73². God cannot according to His laws remit sins to any man, except in proportion as the man according to His laws desists from them.

142. That the Divine virtue and operation . . . is, according to these . . . remission of sins. Ex.

—². Purification from evils is the remission of sins.

409². I have heard from Heaven that the Lord remits everyone his sins . . . but that still sins are not wiped away thereby, but only by repentance.

441⁴. They are remitted to those who instruct . . .

459¹². He said, Charity is to forgive everyone his trespasses.

510^e. In proportion as man performs repentance, sins are removed with him; and in proportion as these are removed, in the same proportion they are remitted.

539. There is no need to supplicate before the Lord for the remission of sins . . . First, because sins are not abolished, but removed, and they are removed in proportion as the man desists from them . . . Secondly, because the Lord . . . remits his sins to everyone . . .

568. Every man after death . . . is first remitted into his externals.

611. That in proportion as man is regenerated, his sins are removed, and that this removal is the remission of sins. Gen.art.

614. (Thus) the remission of sins is not their extirpation and wiping away, but their removal and separation . . .

—². (Thus) the remission of sins is not instantaneous, but follows regeneration, according to the progress of it. The removal of sins, which is called their remission, may be compared to . . .

D. 1321. They are remitted into the Heaven of Spirits.

1944. Represented by the remission of their endeavours.

2507. It was remitted them for a while . . . 2801.

2559. When it is remitted them, they at once rush . . .

—². This bond is remitted . . .

—^e. Others complained that they were remitted.

2738. Thus do Spirits abhor the remission of bonds.

2755. All, even Angels, can be remitted into the same state as they had possessed in the life of the body ; so that if the human race were to fail, Spirits could be remitted into a like state . . .

2759. That the Lord should not remit His Divine force. Sig.

2764. When such Spirits are remitted . . .

2775. When they are remitted into a state like that of their life in the body . . .

3117 (or 3116). He no longer desires that it may be remitted to him to fall into his delights.

3469^e. As if they were remitted from the world of this sun . . .

3677. Sins are not remitted unless confessed from the heart, with a certain inward torture . . .

3708. Spirits are not remitted into any other life than that which they have acquired by actuality. Ex.

3709. As to infants, who are remitted into a life not acquired by actuality . . .

3999. Remit sins by the papal bulls.

4381. They would drag him, if he slackened.

4471. They are remitted into their delights . . .

4476. She was remitted into thoughts such as she had had in the body.

4542. They suppose they can sin, because after some time they have instantaneous remission.

4689. All are by degrees remitted into the life they had had in the world . . .

4754^e. He contaminated Divine things by . . . praying devoutly for forgiveness . . .

5629^e. (In England) there is no remission (of penalties).

6060^e. He said that his sins are remitted because he holds their faith ; and that if he does not desist, they are still remitted, but not in the same degree.

E. 257⁴. 'To forgive seven times' = to forgive as often as [the offender] should . . . say that he repented, thus at all times. 391²⁰.

418. The remission of its influx. Sig. and Ex. 419.

629¹⁴. As charity towards the neighbour is meant, it is said, 'Forgive and it shall be forgiven unto you' (Luke vi. 37).

701³. He who hangs down his hands, and awaits influx, receives nothing . . .

778⁴. That to deny the Word is the sin which cannot be forgiven. Ex.

—¹¹. 'This soul shall be utterly cut off, its iniquity is upon it' = that it cannot be forgiven. Ex.

971³. (Thus) those who hang down their hands . . . remain in the state of their evil ; and hang down their hands to eternity.

J.(Post.) 248. Fr. G. prayed to God the Father with most ardent fervour, believing that when he did this, all things were remitted . . .

De Conj. 85. They who confirm themselves that all evils are remitted by the Holy Supper (merely), have adultery with a maternal aunt.

Can. Holy Spirit v. 8. That to him who speaks a word against the Holy Spirit it is not remitted, is because he denies the Divinity of the Lord and the holiness of the Word ; for such a one has no religion. See also 9.

Remnant. See under REMAINS — reliquus, and RESIDUE.

Remorse. See under BITE.

Remote. Dissitus.

See under REMOVE — removere.

A. 6602. Spheres . . . extend themselves into . . . Societies which are remote thence.

6637^e. From those who are Churches in particular—however remote they may be—is constituted the Church in general.

6832⁷. This representative emanated . . . to remote nations.

8918. The angelic Societies appear . . . remote from each other . . .

9440. Earths so remote . . .

H. 62. They sometimes see remote Societies . . . in the human form.

J. 74. The Angels . . . have much hope of a nation remote from the Christian world, and thus remota—from infesters.

W. 92^e. The Spiritual World is . . . by no means remote from man.

D. 694. As remote from man as the moon from the earth.

2852. Far remote from the centre of the idea.

4438. Many muscles remote from each other . . .

—^e. When there is no Church, the Angels are removed, so that an influx . . . is not possible into the Societies remote thence.

4663¹¹. In this Earth . . . they have communication by ships with remote regions.

[D.] 4739. At a very remote place in the north . . .

5014. When they are thinking about those remote in the city, they are presented . . .

5229. They have their eyes . . . at remote mountains.

6046. In cottages, (and) remote from each other.

E. 1219³. Many have been present with me from . . . remote Earths.

D. Wis. vii. 2². No one can enter . . . into a higher remote Society.

Remoteness. See under AFAR.

Remove. See under FAR OFF, and PUT AWAY—amovere.

Remove. Dimovere, Emovere.

Emotion. Emotio.

A. 9433³. 'The earth (which) shall not be removed to eternity' (Ps. civ. 5) = the Church. The 'bases upon which it is founded' are truths in ultimates . . . hence it is said that it 'shall not be removed to eternity.'

10557. 'Joshua . . . removed not himself from the midst of the tent' (Ex. xxxiii. 11) = . . . not to cease meanwhile (from the holy things of the Church).

D. 5180. Without lascivious emotion . . .

Remove. Migrare.

Removal. Migratio.

A. 1462⁶. The migration of Jacob and his sons into Egypt, represented the Lord's first instruction . . .

1463. For sojourning and migration . . . in Heaven is nothing but change of state.

9960⁶. 'Because they have removed away from thee' (Micah i. 16): their 'removal' = deprivation.

M. 530². So long as man lives in the world, he migrates from one Society into another . . .

E. 811⁶. 'To remove from the place . . . ' (Ezek. xii. 3) represented . . . the rejection (of the truths of doctrine): 'the vessels for removal' = the truths of doctrine.

Remove. Removere.

Removal. Remotio.

Remote. Remotus.

See under REPENT.

A. 18^e. The things which impede must be removed.

1393. Communications are effected by removals . . . Sad and troublesome things are removed in an instant . . .

2041. The removal of the love of self and of the world. Sig. and Ex. 2102.

—². In proportion as these are removed . . .

—³. With these there is not the removal of these cupidities, but only their lulling . . .

3573⁴. Man now remote from this state.

3993. 'To remove' (Gen. xxx. 32) = to separate. 4005.

—². How remote these senses appear from each other.

4067². Believes that Hell is far remote from him . . .

4099². In the same proportion the Spirits who are in worldly things are removed from man.

4227. Those who have removed others [out of their way]. Des.

4299. Causes of temptations proximate and remote.

4423. Heaven then removes itself from them . . .

—². Those of the old Church, and thus remote from Heaven . . .

4544. 'To remove' (Gen. xxxv. 2) = to reject.

4551. Falsities are then removed.

—². There is such a removal of Falsities from man's infancy to his last age . . . The regenerate regards those as remote from himself which . . . but the non-regenerate, those which . . .

4552². When falsities are being removed with a regenerate man, they are rejected to the lowest of the Natural . . . Sig.

4586^e. By temptations, evils and falsities when conquered are . . . rejected and removed. 5246³, Ex.

5170. 'To forget' = removal; for, according to the non-conjunction, removal is effected: that which is given to oblivion, is also removed. 5278, Ex.

5278. The removal of truth . . . in both Naturals. Sig. and Ex.

5280³. Man cannot be regenerated until these loves have been removed; and in order that they may be removed, man is let into a state of temptation. Ex.

5352. The removal of evils after temptations. Sig. and Ex.

5353. The removal of hereditary evils. Sig. and Ex.

—². When evils have been removed, a new Voluntary arises . . . In miseries, the loves of self and the world are removed . . . in like manner in temptations . . . by which especially are evils removed; and, after these have been removed, celestial good inflows . . .

5696². Disposition is effected by removal and concealment. Sig. and Ex. . . Not that the Lord ever removes or hides merey; but . . . the Lord then appears to be removed and hidden.

5741. The external man, with its truths and scientifics, somewhat removed. Sig. and Ex.

6290. 'To remove' (Gen. xviii. 17) = to turn away.

6371. 'The sceptre shall not be removed from Judah' (Gen. xlix. 10) = that the Power shall not recede . . .

6663. They are infested by the evils and falsities with them, to the end that these may be removed. 6724². 7122.

6829^e. When light from the Divine appears, falsities and evils are removed; and, when they are removed, there is access for truth and good . . .

6844. That the sensuous things of the external Natural were removed. Sig. and Ex.

6867. For the Holy proceeding . . . removes falsities and evils . . .

6872⁴. The previous forms, in man, are not destroyed, but removed.

6952⁶. Elevation by the Lord actually takes place, and thence removal from evils and falsities.

7021. The removal of the falsities which endeavour to destroy the life of truth and good. Sig. and Ex.

7045. The removal of filthy loves, and thereby the laying bare of what is internal. Sig. and Ex.

7392. 'To remove (the frogs)' (Ex.viii.8)=not to be compelled.

7463. The removal of the appearance of truth Divine with them. Sig. and Ex.

8118³. Heaven removed itself from man.

8204. Separation and removal from truths. Sig.

8209^e. Then good removes evil . . .

8393. Sins are not removed from man except by a life according to the precepts of faith . . . and, in proportion as they are removed, they are remitted.

8622. That this falsity must be completely removed. Sig. and Ex.

—². For it can be removed, but not blotted out.

8880. Therefore, when evil is removed, good is received.

8882². For evils and falsities must be removed, before truth and good can be received ; (and they) are removed through the truths of faith . . .

8918. Removal from internal things. Sig. and Ex.

—³. 'A great gulf'=removal itself from good.

9077. Man cannot be delivered from damnation except by the removal of evil ; and the removal of evil is not effected except by actual repentance.

9164. The removal (of good and truth from the middle). Sig. and Ex.

9258. 'To cease from removing (the burden from the neighbour's ass)' (Ex.xxiii.5)=no removal from falsity by amendment ; thus no reception of truth by which is amendment, or removal.

9259. 'Removing thou shalt remove with him' (id.) =exhortation and effort of amendment.

9324. 'I will remove disease from the midst of thee' (Ex.xxiii.25)=protection from falsifications . . . For when the Lord protects from them, He removes them.

9330². From those in truths from good (there), falsities are removed ; and from those in falsities from evil, truths are removed.

9333. No hasty removal of (falsities from evils). Sig. and Ex.

—². Removal by degrees according to order. Sig. 9336. Sig. and Ex.

—². 'To drive out'=removal ; for the falsities and evils with man are not expelled, but are removed. Ex.

—². Whatever man . . . thinks, wills, speaks, and does, adds itself to his life . . . these things cannot be exterminated, but only removed ; and, when they are being removed, the man appears to be devoid of sins, because they have been removed.

—^e. In this and the following verse it treats of this removal.

9335². That falsities from these loves rush in through the hasty removal of evils and falsities. Sig. and Ex.

—². For falsities are not removed except by truths, and evils except by goods . . .

9337. That removal from evils and falsities is effected according to the increase of good. Sig. and Ex.

9502. 'The staves shall not be removed' (Ex.xxv.15)

=existence and subsistence in perpetuity and without change.

9937. Thence the removal of falsities and evils with those who are in good from the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

—³. The Hells dominate over man in proportion as the Lord does not remove them ; and He removes them in proportion as man desists from evils.

—³. 'To bear sins' = the removal of evils and falsities from those in good . . . for, in proportion as the Hells are removed from man, evils and falsities are removed.

—⁴. The chief work of Salvation is to redeem . . . man from the Hells, and thus to remove evils and falsities.

—⁴. It is said to remove evils and falsities, because deliverance from sins . . . is nothing else than removal ; for they remain with the man. But in proportion as the good of love and truth of faith are implanted, evil and falsity are removed. (So) Heaven does not extinguish Hell, but removes from itself those there ; for it is the good and truth which are from the Lord . . . which remove them. So with man, . . . in proportion as he is made a Heaven, Hell is removed.

—⁴. It is the general opinion that evils . . . are not thus removed, but are completely separated. Ex.

—⁵. 'To bear iniquities,' when said of the Lord, = to continually fight for man against the Hells, thus continually to remove them ; for there is a perpetual removal, not only when the man is in the world, but also in the other life. No man can remove evils in this way : from himself man cannot remove the least of evil, still less the Hells . . .

9938. Worships representative of removal from sins. Sig. and Ex.

—⁵. In proportion as the good of love and faith enters . . . sins are removed ; that is, Hell is removed, both that within him and that without him.

—^e. These are what expiate, that is, remove sins ; and, when they have been removed, they appear as if completely removed or taken away.

10022². When man has been purified from evils and falsities, which is effected by the removal of them . . . 10057^b, Refs.

10122. The continual removal of evils and the derivative falsities . . . by the good of innocence. Sig. and Ex. 10134. 10135.

—². The evils and falsities with man are not cast out, but are only removed.

—². Therefore, in proportion as evil is removed, falsities are removed.

10127⁴. 'To propitiate'=purification from evils and falsities, or, what is the same, the removal of them.

10211. The perpetual removal of evils. Sig. and Ex.

10219³. In proportion as goods affect man, evils are removed ; thus he is purified and delivered from them.

10232. To remove evils by means of truths. Sig. and Ex.

10621. The removal of evil and its falsity so that it does not appear. Sig. and Ex.

10629. That the interiors (of that nation) may be removed. Sig. and Ex.

[A.] 10638. The removal, then, of evils and falsities thence. Sig. and Ex.

—, 'To drive out from the faces' = to remove from the interiors. 10674.

H. 87. Man has removed himself from Heaven by . . .

120^e. So remote there . . .

193. Removals are dissimilitudes.

359^e. The Lord then removes these evils.

360^e. He removes himself from Heaven.

598. Evils cannot be removed unless the man sees them in himself . . . and at last is averse to them: then, first, are they removed.

W. 114. This proprium (with the Angels) is only removed . . .

—^e. Hence in proportion as evil is removed, the Lord is in them.

246. Then the love of evil is removed.

268. Confirmations of evil and falsity are removals of good and truth; for evil removes good, and falsity, truth.

P. 33². Man must as of himself remove evils . . . and, in proportion as he removes them, the Lord draws nearer . . . Sig. —⁴.

79. (What has once been appropriated) can be removed, but not cast out; and, when being removed, it is transferred as from the centre to the circumferences, and there stays.

—². These goods . . . then remove evils towards the circumferences . . .

100. That . . . man must as of himself remove evils as sins in the external man, and . . . the Lord then can remove evils in the internal man, and at the same time in the external. Gen.art. 102. 111. 114. 123.

154. (Such) cannot remove evils as sins . . .

184. None of (these evils) can be removed except (in freedom), so that man may remove them as of himself . . .

233³. (Good cannot be implanted until evil is removed.) Ex. —⁴.

277a. If evil is not removed in the world, it cannot be removed afterwards.

278. That evils cannot be removed, unless they appear. Gen.art. 278a⁶, Ex.

278a⁵. With such, sins do not appear, and therefore cannot be removed. Ex.

279. See REMIT, here. —². 280. T. 539. 611. 614.

—². As evils are not separated, but only removed, that is, relegated to the sides, and as man can be transferred from the middle . . . it is possible for him . . . to return into his evils . . . (From experience.) 283².

283². Although evils have been removed to the sides, if they look upwards they have still not been removed, because they are still striving to return to the middle. They look downwards when the man shuns his evils as sins . . . because he then condemns them to Hell.

284². If (in this fermentation) good conquers, evil with its falsity is removed to the sides . . . But, if evil conquers, good with its truth is removed to the sides . . .

R. 937³. The Lord cannot be conjoined with them unless the delights of these evils are removed; and these cannot be removed by the Lord, unless the man explores himself . . . acknowledges his evils before the Lord, and wills to desist from them . . .

—, In proportion, therefore, as evils with their delights are thus removed, the Lord's love enters . . . and man is led away from Hell into Heaven.

T. 329². (Thus) it is necessary that evils be first removed, before he can will goods . . . Ill. 331, By comparisons.

520. That . . . unless man removes (hereditary) evils as to a part . . . he remains in them. Gen.art.

D. 4014. Effected by removals of lower things.

E. 475. The removal of falsities thereby. Sig. and Ex.

—, For evils with man, Spirit, and Angel are not taken away, but removed . . . 478, Ex.

971³. From the man being prepared from Heaven, evils are removed; from him being prepared for Hell, goods are removed; and all the removals take place as from them.

Removed. Summotus. E.786.

Renal. See under KIDNEY.

Rend. See under BREAK IN PIECES — disrumpere, and CUT ASUNDER.

Rend. Discerpere.

Rending, A. Discerptio.

Render. Discerptor.

A. 955. The penalty of rending. 957. 958. 960. 961. 1983. D.515. 932. 1073. 1304. 3170. 3195. 3465. 3504. 4277.

962. The penalty of rending as to the thoughts. D.3179.

4171. 'That which is torn I brought not to thee' (Gen.xxxi.39) = evil not by his fault . . . Ex.

—, The evil which man receives from others without any fault of his, is signified in the Word by 'what is torn.' Ill.

—². 'That which is torn' (Lev.xxii.8) = the evil which is from the falsity which is injected by the evil, who are the 'wild beasts' in the forest which 'tear.'

—³. If one who is leading a life of good suffers himself to be persuaded (so as not to do it) he is said to be 'torn;' for 'torn' is predicated of good into which falsity is insinuated. Examp.

—⁵. That it is the evil who tear, and this by reasonings from external things . . . Ill.

4777. 'By tearing, Joseph has been torn in pieces' (Gen.xxxvii.33) = dissipated by falsities so as to have no existence whatever. 5828.

5828². 'What is torn to pieces' is mentioned in the Word, and by it in the proper sense is signified that which perishes by falsities from evils; but that which perishes by evils is called 'a carcase.' But when 'torn' only is mentioned, both are signified . . . Ill.

6822. The Church is thus disturbed and torn in pieces.

9171. 'If in tearing it has been torn in pieces' (Ex. xxii. 13) = injury inflicted by falsities from evil without the person's fault.

9230. 'Flesh rent in the field ye shall not eat' (ver. 31) = that the falsified good of faith shall not be conjoined. . . 'What is rent' = what is destroyed through falsities, thus also what is falsified.

9965⁴. 'To eat a carcase and that which is torn' (Lev. xvii. 15) = the appropriation of evil and falsity.

R. 411². When the Word is read, its truths ascend to Heaven, and the falsities with which they are conjoined tend to Hell: hence a rending takes place . . . I have seen these rendings, and heard the noise from them . . .

T. 4³. As the idea of God . . . has been thus torn in pieces . . .

— . To the end that what is torn in pieces may be made whole.

D. 404². It is a species of minute pulling to pieces.

1023. The softening is effected by actual discerptions . . .

2126. Dissociation is effected by a method of discerption.

3455^e. He was rent by the renders. 3465^e.

E. 375⁴. With profaners . . . these must be rent asunder; and, when they are being rent asunder, everything of spiritual life is destroyed.

619³. Occurs. 780⁷. 781¹¹ (the children torn by the bears).

Rend. Discindere.

Rending, A. Discissio.

A. 2576¹⁶. Formerly, they rent their garments. Ill. and Ex.

4763. 'To rend the garments' = mourning on account of truth destroyed, or because there is no faith. Ill. 4778.

9828⁷. 'Instead of a girdle, a rent' (Is. iii. 24) = the dissipation of celestial good. ('A rent' = the dissipation of connection and order. 10199⁴.) 10540⁶.

10261^e. 'The rending of the mountain . . .' (Zech. xiv. 4) = the separation of Heaven and Hell.

T. 457. Like those who rent asunder a covenant.

D. 5937. Like bundles cut asunder with knives and pincers . . .

E. 315⁸. 'To cleave asunder with swords' (Ezek. xxiii. 47) = the destruction of truth through falsity.

388⁹. The separation of truth from good . . . is signified by 'to rend the caul of their heart' (Hos. xiii. 8).

395⁹. Occurs. 405⁴². 637³. —¹⁷. 781¹⁴. J. (Post.) 31.

Rend. Lacerare.

Rending, A. Laceratio.

Rent. Laceratus, Lacerus.

A. 956. The penalty of rending. D. 2746. 4236. 4419. 4420.

2576¹⁶. Truth thus rent. Sig.

9916. 'That it be not rent' (Ex. xxviii. 32) = safe from injury.

10536². The garments of those in (mere) externals are dirty and tattered . . .

H. 182. The infernals, being without truths, appear in garments ragged . . .

D. 2692. A sphere as of particles of rent garments . . .

3057. They appeared as if their garments were torn.

3297. They lacerated some one who was their god . . . 3298.

3366. By phantasies they lacerated, rent-discerpebant, and tore to pieces—dilaniabant, the Lord.

4087^e. (Cause of the appearance of rendings, etc.)

E. 1044⁴. 'Lest they turn and rend you' (Matt. vii. 6) = to cover with ignominy and contumely.

Rending to pieces, A. Dilaceratio.

A. 10287². The penalty of rending to pieces. D. 3384. 5938. 6110².

Renew. Renovare.

Renewal. Renovatio.

See under INNOVATE.

A. 153. 'They shall renew the cities of wasteness.'

840. End of temptation and beginning of renewal. Sig.

3768. How the Lord renews their natural man.

5244^e. When man is renovated by the Lord.

10570^e. 'To renew the faces of the ground' (Ps. civ. 30) = to reform and instaurate the Church. E. 294⁷.

M. 171². There is no part without man, nor within him, which does not renew itself, which is done by dissolutions and reparations . . . T. 496.

T. 601^e. Religion alone renews and regenerates man.

605. Renewed as to the will and understanding . . .

—^e. Concerns regeneration and renewal.

687². The continual renewal of all things in bodies by . . . the blood, whose . . . renewal and as it were regeneration is perpetual.

D. 3224. OCCURS.

Renounce. Abdicare.

Renunciation. Abdicatio.

A. 995². Suppose they ought to renounce pleasures.

1947^e. Merit on account of this renunciation.

3951². Suppose they ought to renounce riches. H. 357.

6143. The renunciation of all things which serve the Church. Sig. and Ex.

H. 360. Those who have renounced the world . . . 528, Ex. 535. E. 1062³.

N. 123. The renunciation of the world together with a life in the world makes spiritual life.

126. What the renunciation of the world is. 128.

R. 153⁷. After frequent dismissals from office,

- M. 147. By a total renunciation of scortations . . .
148.
149. Still his spirit does not renounce them . . .
155. Those who have renounced marriage . . .
T. 685^e. The renunciation of the devil . . .

Rent. Scissura.

A. 10582⁵. 'To enter into the rents of the rocks and the fissures of the ragged rocks' (Is.ii.21)=into obscure things of faith, thus into falsities.

E. 410⁵. 'The rents of the rock' (Obad.3) = the falsities of faith and of doctrine.

411³¹. Occurs.

Repair. *Reparare.Reparation. Reparatio.

See under MEND.

A. 4926⁴. 'To repair the breach' (Is.lviii.12)=to amend the falsities which have crept in through the separation of good from truth.

M. 171². See RENEW, here.

Repay. Rependere.

A. 9087. 'To repay' (Ex.xxi.34)=to amend. E.537⁷.
9097. 'To repay' (ver.36)=to restore.

9102. 'To repay' (Ex.xxii.1)=the penalty. Ex. 9173.

9130. 'To repay' (ver.3)=amendment and restitution. 9168.

9137. 'To repay' (ver.4)=restitution. 9142. 9147. 9152. 9170. 9177.

9161. 'To repay' (ver.9)=amendment.

D. 2038. Occurs. E.279³.

Repeat. *Iterare.Repeated. Iteratus.

A. 5282. 'To repeat twice' (Gen.xli.32)=concerning both Naturals.

M. 317. On repeated marriages. Chapter. 319^e. 320. 321.

Repeat. *Repetere.Repetition. Repetitio.

A. 435^e. (Repetition implies a different signification.) 707. 734. 1015.

683^e. That the one word is repeated (implies the heavenly marriage).

734^e. There is no repetition (in the Word).

1259³. Otherwise it would be an empty repetition. 1860^e. 3614.

2033. The repetition of 'the covenant' denotes a closer union.

2034. The repetition of the word 'thou.' Ex.

2051². (This repetition shows that . . .)

3880⁶. These appear like empty repetitions. 550².

4137^e. These repetitions are nowhere empty . . .

4691. Appears to be a repetition for the sake of emphasis.

5888. Where there appears to be a repetition, one expression relates to the will, and the other to the understanding. 6343³. 7945. S.81. 84. 86.

6378. Appears like a repetition of the same Thing.

6551². Why this frequent repetition.

8933. Iteration or repetition involves by all means . . .

9565. Repeated three times=each single thing; and, in the internal sense, plenary conjunction. 9647.

9661. The repetition involves each and all things, consequently, everywhere. 9923.

P. 193. (Reason of the repetitions in the Writings.)

D. Min. 4791. Many repetitions (of penalties).

Repeatedly. Subinde. A.1110^e.

Repel. Repellere. A.6206^e. H.479⁵. D.Min. 4701.

Repent. *Poenitere.Repentance. Poenitentia, Poenitudo.

A. 9. The third state (of regeneration) is a state of repentance. Des. 29^e.

559. The Lord's mercy is described by 'to repent' (Gen.vi.6). 587. 588, Ex. and Ill.

588³. 'My repentances - poenitudines' (Hos.xi.8)=much mercy.

590. 'To repent' regards wisdom; 'to grieve at heart,' love.

1769³. The Spirits began to be sorry that they had not believed . . .

2750^e. The interiors (when closed by adultery) cannot be opened, except by serious repentance.

3993¹⁰. Believes he is pure . . . when he has once performed repentance, and done the imposed penance-poenitentiali . . .

4031². (Supposes that all can be compelled to perform repentance.)

4217². When he receives the Bread, he thinks . . . of repentance and amendment of life.

4290⁴. Jehovah's saying that He 'repented.' Ex.

4779⁸. To put on sackcloth and roll in ashes, represented . . . repentance; for the primary of (repentance) is to acknowledge that from self is nothing but evil and falsity . . . E.637⁷.

5126⁴. Unless he performs serious repentance.

5470^e. An internal acknowledgment of evil, which, when recalled by the Lord, becomes confession, and finally repentance.

6563. Supplication and repentance. Sig. and Ex.

6565. Repentance and acknowledgment of the Divine things of the Church. Sig. and Ex.

8096. 'Lest the people repent when they see war' (Ex.xiii.17)=that they will decline from truth.

8387. The Doctrine of (Repentance). Gen.art. . . He who wants to be saved must confess his sins and perform repentance.

8389. To perform repentance is . . . to desist from sins, and lead a new life according to the precepts of faith.

8391. He who leads a life of faith performs repentance daily; for he reflects upon (his) evils, acknowledges them, bewares of them, and supplicates the Lord for aid . . .

8392. The repentance which takes place in a free state avails, but not that . . . in a state of compulsion. Ex.

8393. The repentance of the mouth and not of the life is not repentance. Ex.

8394. After man has . . . performed repentance, he must remain constant in good . . . or else he profanes.

9014. Damnation although . . . he promises repentance. Sig. and Ex.

—³. Sins are not remitted unless the man performs serious repentance . . .

—⁴. Hypocrites cannot perform repentance. Ex.

9077. The removal of evil possible only by actual repentance, which is that of the life, and is effected through spiritual temptations, which are the grievous things of repentance.

9088². Hence those who will perform repentance, must see and acknowledge their evils, and thus live a life of truth.

9391⁶. The return of the prodigal to his father . . . = repentance of heart. E.279⁶.

9448. Then to shun evil and falsity, and be averse to them, is repentance . . .

9937⁸. The removal of sins with those who . . . have performed repentance, was represented by the scapegoat . . .

10441. 'Repent Thou upon Thy people' (Ex.xxxii.12) =mercy for them. . . That 'to repent'=to have mercy, is because Jehovah never repents . . . repentance is applicable only to him who does not know the future . . . Ill.

H. 527. Repentance after death is not possible. (From experience.)

N. 159. On repentance. Chapter.

164. The man who explores himself in order to perform repentance, must explore his thoughts and the intentions of his will . . . Those who do not (do this) cannot perform repentance; for they think and will afterwards as before . . .

172². (Repentance followed by profanation.) Sig.

L. 17³. Sins cannot be taken away except by actual repentance, which is, that the man sees his sins, implores the Lord's aid, and desists from them.

18. See REMIT, here.

—³. Those have the faith of God who perform repentance; but the faith of man who do not perform repentance . . .

—⁴. That the Lord and His disciples preached repentance and the remission of sins. Ill.

—⁵. Repentance as described by the Lord. Ill.

Life 64. It is a common thing in all religion, that man must . . . perform repentance . . . P.114, Ex.

103. As this Reciprocal . . . is with man from the VOL. V.

Lord, He says that man must perform repentance; and no one can perform repentance except as of himself. Ill. P.114³.

W. 262^e. Hence confirmed evil and falsity . . . can be extirpated only in this world, by repentance.

P. 114^e. Think about this . . . and you will see that repentance from sins is the way to Heaven; and that faith separated from repentance is not faith . . .

116. Without this appearance, repentance from sins is not possible.

121. These things do not purify man, unless . . . he performs repentance by desisting from his sins.

122. In performing repentance, man must look to the Lord alone . . .

142^e. No repentance in a state of disease. Ex.

280. For repentance precedes remission; and without repentance there is no remission; and therefore the Lord commanded . . . to 'preach repentance for the remission of sins.' Ill.

296⁵. If man commits evil of set purpose, he lets himself deep down, and cannot be drawn out except by actual repentance.

340². The two essentials and universals of religion are the acknowledgment of God, and repentance. Ex. R.9.

—³. This is repentance of life with such.

R. Pref. IV. The Roman Catholic doctrine of repentance. Quoted. (And that of the Reformed. Va.)

9. Instead of repentance of life, there is now repentance of mouth . . .

69. The New Church is being formed of those who approach the Lord alone, and at the same time perform repentance from evil works. 72, Ill.

97³. The good done without repentance is not good.

153¹⁰. Tormented until the overseer sees a sign of penitence.

224⁶. The Angels said . . . Unless man performs repentance, he remains in the sins in which he was born. To perform repentance is not to will evils because they are against God, and, once or twice a year, to scrutinize one's self, to see one's evils, to confess them before the Lord, to implore aid, to desist from them, and to enter upon a new life.

—⁹. Everyone who performs repentance, and believes in the Lord, is being . . . regenerated.

—¹³. The man who looks to the Lord, and performs repentance, is by (the Holy Supper) conjoined with the Lord and introduced into Heaven.

450². Such never think about repentance, and an unrepentant—impoenitens—man is in mere sins.

457. 'Yet repented not of the works of their hands' (Rev.ix.20)=neither did they shun . . . evils as sins. 461, Sig. and Ex. E.585. 589.

— For (solidarians) say, What need of repentance . . . 461.

461². The second Table is the Table of repentance. Ex.

492. By such things (the Israelites) represented repentance.

[R.] 531. They said (of Swedenborg), Lo, he who preached repentance for the remission of sins . . . lies dead in the street. . . How can repentance be performed without faith? . . . After three days and a half my spirit recovered, and I went into the city, and again said, Perform repentance, and believe in Christ, and your sins will be remitted . . . Did not the Lord Himself preach repentance for the remission of sins? . . . But they said . . . Has not the Father justified us who believe . . . What sin then is there in us? . . . Do you comprehend this gospel, you preacher of . . . repentance? A voice from Heaven then said, What is the faith of the unrepentant but a dead one? The end has come upon you secure ones . . .

—³. Have we not performed repentance when we have confessed that we are sinners?

—⁵. A voice from Heaven said . . . Actual repentance is to explore self, to Know and acknowledge your evils, to make yourselves guilty, to confess them before the Lord, to implore aid and power to resist them, and thus to desist from them, and lead a new life, and all these as of yourselves. Do these things once or twice in a year when you approach the holy Communion; and afterwards, when the sins . . . recur, say to yourselves, We do not will these things because they are sins against God. This is actual repentance.

—⁷. The Reformed have a deep-rooted opposition, repugnance, and aversion to actual repentance, which is so great that they cannot compel themselves to explore themselves . . . It is faith alone which induces such a state of unrepentance—impoenitentiae.

—⁸. A voice from Heaven said, Say to the congregation of the Reformed, Believe in Christ, and perform repentance, and you will be saved. . . I further said to them, Is not baptism a sacrament of repentance? . . . Is not the Holy Supper a sacrament of repentance? . . . Is not the Catechism . . . a teacher of repentance? Ex.

634³. These are they who do not . . . perform repentance, and are therefore damned. Sig. I have seen many such . . . who had avoided evils . . . solely from the civil and moral law . . . and they were cast into Hell.

836. For evils increase daily if not removed by actual repentance.

937³. The delights of evil cannot be removed by the Lord unless the man explores himself, so as to know his evils, acknowledges and confesses them before the Lord, wills to desist from them, and thus performs repentance . . .

B. 32. Who now performs any repentance, except orally and in prayer?

79^e. Valuable sayings about the acts of repentance, etc., which are the exteriors of the doctrine of faith alone, for the sake of the laity. T.518.

T. 316. Concupiscence, when in the will, is a deed, and cannot be removed except by the Lord after repentance. Ex.

505⁵. In place of repentance we have taken contrition.

509. ON REPENTANCE. Chapter.

— . For true faith, and genuine charity, are not possible without repentance, and no one can perform repentance without free will.

— . No one can be regenerated until the more grievous evils . . . have been removed, and these are removed by repentance. What is an unregenerate man but an unrepentant one? And what is an unrepentant one but like one who is in a lethargy, and knows nothing of sin, and therefore cherishes it in his bosom . . .

510. That repentance is the first of the Church with man. Gen.art.

— . Acts of repentance are all such as cause man not to will evils, and thence not do them . . .

— . (Thus) for repentance to be repentance, and to be effective in man, it must be of the will and thence of the thought, and not of the thought alone; consequently, for it to be actual, and not only oral.

—². That repentance is the first of the Church. Ill. . . John . . . preached repentance, and therefore his baptism was called the 'baptism of repentance.' Ex. The Lord Himself preached repentance for the remission of sins; whereby He taught that repentance is the first of the Church, and that in proportion as man performs repentance, the sins with him are removed . . . And He commanded the twelve apostles, and also the seventy, to preach repentance.

512. That (modern) contrition is not repentance. Gen.art.

515^e. The Reformed assumed contrition in place of repentance, to sever themselves from the Roman Catholics, who insist upon repentance . . . and after they had confirmed . . . faith alone, they alleged that by repentance something of man, savouring of merit, entered his faith.

516. That the oral confession that one is a sinner, is not repentance. Gen.art.

— . This confession was accepted by the Reformed in place of actual repentance . . . because it is founded on their imputative faith, which . . . without repentance . . . regenerates man.

518. Some of them can . . . pour forth many holy things about repentance . . . while they deem it useless . . . for they mean no other repentance than an oral confession . . .

520. That man is born to evils of every kind, and unless, by repentance, he removes them in part, he remains in them . . . and cannot be saved. Gen.art.

525. That the Knowledge of sin, and the exploration of some sin in one's self, begins repentance. Gen.art.

528. That actual repentance is to explore one's self, to Know and acknowledge one's sins, to supplicate to the Lord, and to begin a new life. Gen.art. 561.

— . That repentance must be performed, and that the salvation of man depends upon it. Ill.

530. How, then, is repentance to be performed? Actually, which is, to explore self, etc. . . This is actual repentance.

—². Actual repentance, if performed . . . for instance, as often as a man prepares for the Holy Supper, if he afterwards abstains from one sin . . . suffices to initiate into actuality . . .

532. That true repentance is to explore not only the acts . . . but also the intentions . . . Gen.art.

—². He (then) performs true and interior repentance. Ex.

535. That those also perform repentance who do not explore themselves, but still desist from evils because they are sins; and that this repentance is performed by those who do works of charity from religion. Gen.art.

— . As actual repentance—which is to explore one's self, etc.—is extremely difficult in the Reformed Christian world . . . a more easy species of repentance is adduced, which is, that when anyone is considering about evil, and intending it, he should say to himself, I am thinking and intending this, but as it is a sin I will not do it. By this the temptation injected by Hell is broken, and its further entrance prevented.

—². Inquiry was made . . . as to who could practise this second kind (of repentance), and they were found to be as few as the doves in a spacious desert . . .

561. That actual repentance is easy with those who have sometimes practised it; but is extremely refractory with those who have not. Gen.art.

—². Actual repentance is extremely refractory to the Reformed. Ex. 562. (And also to Roman Catholics who live in Protestant countries. 562³.)

564. That he who has never performed repentance . . . at last does not know what damnable evil is, and what saving good. Gen.art.

568⁵. Of the quality of your internal man you know nothing, because you have not . . . after self-exploration, performed repentance.

720. Man is constantly kept in a state in which repentance and conversion are possible.

D. 409^{1e}. Thus by serious repentance . . .

5396a. (What the Protestants call repentance.) Des.

—b. 802⁶. De Just. 64⁸.

E. 585. 'To perform repentance'=actually to turn away from evil. —³, Ex. 589.

637¹³. 'To repent in sackcloth and ashes' (Matt.xi. 21)=to grieve and mourn on account of the non-reception of Divine truth, and of the evils and falsities which obstructed.

805³. God cannot be reconciled except by the repentance of the man himself.

—⁵. Sins are not abolished except by the repentance of life of him who has sinned.

867. Cannot be removed except by serious and actual repentance of life.

C. 1. Which is done by repentance. Ex.

4. In the same proportion can perform repentance from sins. Ex.

6. That good before repentance is spurious good . . . Ex.

33. Such as is the . . . removal of evil by repentance, such is the good of charity. Ex.

Can. Holy Spirit iv. 9. (The Divine proceeds) through the Holy Supper according to the repentance before it.

Repent. Resipiscere.

Repentance. Resipiscentia.

A. 1513. One of the 'lukewarm' bore himself as if he had repented.

7364. Try to compel such to repentance . . .

8384. (In Jupiter) they are reduced to repent.

8542^o. If they do not repent, death is denounced.

9242. When they recover from disease.

R. 84. 'Repent, and do the first works' (Rev.ii.5)=invert the state of their life. . . This is done by repentance-poenitentiam. 85.

116. 'Repent' (ver.16)=that they should guard against these works, and do works which are good.

136. 'Gave her time to repent . . . and she repented not' (ver.21)=they do not recede.

162. 'Take heed, and repent' (Rev.iii.3)=attend, and vivify their dead worship.

216. 'Be zealous, and repent' (ver.19)=affection of truth and aversion to falsity.

693. 'They repented not' (Rev.xvi.9)=not to recede from evils, but to remain in them. 698.

698^e. Thus he never repents, that is, performs repentance-poenitentiam.

M. 4Sa³. By these alternations he can . . . repent of his insanities: but if he has not repented in the world, he cannot afterwards . . .

525². Evil cannot be washed off (except) by repentance.

529^e. Man comes into this purpose (of abstaining from evils), if once or twice a year he explores himself, and repents of the evil he discovers.

T. 408^e. Appeased as soon as the adversary repents.

518^e. Therefore has not repented of any evil.

Ad. 3/209. The Spirits could not recover from the things they had accepted (here).

E. 105. 'To repent'=come into mind. 106.

143. 'To repent'=to be dissociated from them. Repentance is nothing else; for no one has repentance, unless he actually separates himself from the things of which he has repented . . .

162. 'To repent of whoredom'=to turn from falsities to truths . . . for repentance is an actual conversion from falsities to truths, and a dissociation and separation from them.

165. 'To repent'=to separate one's self from falsities.

191. 'Repent'=thus spiritual life.

194^e. Repentance in the hour of death, with the evil, effects nothing; but with the good it confirms.

247. 'Be zealous and repent'=have charity.

962². 'Not bound up'=not amended by repentance.

986. 'To repent'=to turn from evils and the derivative falsities.

993. 'To repent'=to lead a different life.

D. Wis. xi. 2. To the evil he performs the uses of repentance or reconciliation . . .

Rephaim. Rephaim.

A. 290^e. 'The Rephaim' (Is.xxvi.14)=those puffed up with the love of self.

[A.] 581². The descendants of the 'Nephilim' were called 'Anakim,' and 'Rephaim,' Ill. and Ex.

1574². 'Rephaim,' etc. = persuasions of falsity. 1654. 1673, Ex. —³. 1675². 1679². 1867.

1868^e. Why the Emim or Rephaim were expelled by the Moabites.

2468⁵. 'The Rephaim,' etc. = those imbued with persuasions of evil and falsity.

6588⁶. 'The Rephaim' = the posterity of the Most Ancient Church . . . 7686².

D. 4933. The worst Hell where are those called by David 'Rephaim.'

E. 163⁸. 'The Rephaim' (Deut. iii. 11) = those who, above others, were in the love of self, and thence extremely natural, and, from a persuasion of their own eminence over others, were in falsities of every kind.

304²⁶. 'The Rephaim whom Hell stirs up' (Is. xiv. 9) = those in the direful persuasion of falsity . . .

Rephidim. Rephidim.

A. 8561. 'Rephidim' (Ex. xvii. 1) = the quality of a state of temptation as to truth. 8594. 8755.

Replenish. See under FILL—implere.

Reply. See ANSWER.

Report. See under REPUTATION.

Report. Nuntiare.

A. 4050³. What they hear they report to others. D. 986.

8762. 'To say,' and 'to announce' (Ex. xix. 3) = Salvation; for the things announced by Jehovah through Moses involve Salvation.

8784. 'Moses reported the words of the people to Jehovah' (ver. 9) = correspondence and conjunction.

Repository. See under STORE UP.

Represent. Repraesentare.

Representation. Repraesentatio.

Representative. Repraesentativus.

Representatively. Repraesentative.

A. 31³. Everything in the Jewish Church was a representative of the Lord. 85².

54. The Most Ancients thought only of the things represented. 66. 241. 1122.

66. These representatives are called 'dark sayings of old' (Ps. lxxviii. 1-3).

167. The World of Spirits is representative; and whatever is represented to the life there, is perceived in the Second Heaven . . .

302^e. (The representatives were to prevent profanation.)

440^e. All representative worship in a summary.

665². In representatives the person is not reflected on; but the Thing which is represented. Thus all the kings . . . even the worst represented the Lord's royalty . . . 1097³.

1001². This representation would have horrified the Angels; for at that time all things . . . were turned . . . with the Angels into corresponding spiritual representations. 1003.

1003². After the Lord's advent, when . . . representatives had ceased, such things were no longer turned in Heaven into corresponding representatives.

1116^e. (The dwellings, etc. in Heaven) are indeed representative, such as seen by the prophets, but still are real.

1122. The (Most Ancients) had delightful dreams . . . Hence their paradisiacal representations . . .

1241. All the representatives which the Ancient Church had from the mouth of the Most Ancient, which all regarded the Lord and His Kingdom, were turned into idolatrous things, and, with some nations, into magical things. . . Significant and representative worship was (therefore) restored by Eber. Ex.

1282. The third Ancient Church (also) from being idolatrous was made representative. Tr. 1361.

1361. What what is representative is. Ex. . . The things represented in the Jewish Church and in the Word are the Lord and His Kingdom . . . Representatives are persons or things on Earth, all the objects of the senses, so that there is scarcely any object which cannot be representative. But it is a general law of representation that nothing is reflected upon the person or thing which represents, but upon that which is represented. (Thus) every king . . . in Egypt and elsewhere could represent the Lord: their royalty itself is the representative . . . In like manner all priests . . . represented the Lord: the priestly office itself is the representative. 1409⁴.

— . Beasts also represented, as those which were sacrificed . . .

—³. Inanimate things also represented, as the altar . . . All the rites in the Jewish Church were also representative.

— . In the Ancient Churches, representatives extended themselves to all the objects of the senses, as mountains, trees, etc.

—⁴. The representatives were such that all things done according to the rites commanded appeared holy before Spirits and Angels. Examps.

—^e. Representatives do not begin until Gen. xii. (after which) each and all things are purely representative . . .

1379. Walkings about, etc. (there) are representative.

1391. Communications (there) are made . . . by ideas together with representations; for their ideas . . . are representative . . . They can represent more by one idea than they can express by a thousand words.

1401. True historicals begin here, all of which are representative . . . 1404, Examps. 1407. 1408. 1409. 1783.

1409². When (these things ceased to be significant to them) they were made representative. Hence the representative Church, which began in Abram . . . (Thus) the rise of representatives is from the significatives of the Ancient Church . . .

—³. How representatives are circumstanced, may be evident from the historicals of the Word, where all the acts of the patriarchs . . . are nothing else than representatives . . .

—⁴. Thus the evil as well as the good could represent the Lord, and the things of His Kingdom.

1410. The history here is representative, and the words themselves are significative.

— . After significatives were turned into representatives, the Lord actually spoke with men.

1411^e. In the representative sense . . .

1416^e. From this perceptive arose the significative, and from this the representative.

1521. The World of Spirits, and the Heavens, are full of representatives, such as were seen by the prophets—amazing . . . 1532.

1540. The historicals are what represent the Lord; the words themselves are significatives of the things which are represented.

1619. In Heaven there are continual representatives of the Lord and His Kingdom . . . insomuch that nothing comes forth before the sight of the Angels which is not representative and significative. Thence are the representatives and significatives in the Word.

1622. (In the paradises there) all things live from the representatives; for there is nothing which does not represent and signify something celestial and spiritual . . .

—^e. The paradises do not delight them, but the representatives.

1632. (As to) representatives, there is nothing in the vegetable Kingdom on Earth which does not in some way represent the Lord's Kingdom. . . When the Lord's celestial and spiritual things inflow into nature, such things are presented actually . . . hence are the representatives.

1641². Sometimes Spirits discourse by representations to the sight adjoined to their speech. Examp. 1643, Ex.

1643. Presented representatively . . .

—². Not one of these representatives in a series could be described to the understanding.

1675. As the representatives at that time actually came forth . . .

1748³. At that time they were in representatives . . . not in naked Truths.

1756². The most ancient mode of writing was representative of Things by persons and words . . .

1764. Spirits once spoke with me by mere visual representatives. Des.

1767. When the Word is being read by man . . . it is presented before the Angels . . . with representatives. Des.

1807. A representation of the Lord's Kingdom in a view of the universe. Sig. and Ex.

— . For there is nothing (in nature) which is not representative.

—². For there is nothing beautiful and delightful in the Heavens or on earth, which is not in some way representative of the Lord's Kingdom.

—³. The reason all things in Heaven and on earth are representative, is that they . . . continually come forth . . . from the influx of the Lord . . . So everything in the body is representative of the soul . . . All effects are in like manner representatives of the uses which are their causes; and the uses are representatives of the ends . . .

—⁴. It is the same with the Word. He who is in Divine things . . . looks at the letter as representative and significative . . .

1808. A representation of goods and truths in a view of the constellations. Sig. and Ex.

—². That all things in the Heavens and on earth are representative of celestial and spiritual things, may be evident from the manifest indication that like things . . . are presented to view in the World of Spirits . . . and there they are nothing but representatives. Examps.

1823. The representatives of the celestial things of the Church. Sig. and Ex.

—². As these animals, in the Most Ancient Churches, signified celestial goods, they afterwards became representatives . . .

1850³. No Church, but only the representative of a Church.

— . Mediate communication was (then) effected by representatives.

— . When the Lord came . . . , representatives, namely, sacrifices and similar rites, ceased.

1876^e. Together with the originaries of the representatives . . .

1887. In Heaven there is nothing of worldly history, but everything is representative of Divine things.

1970. Not only the representatives, but the Spirits themselves, are seen.

1971. The visions (seen) by good Spirits are representative of those things which are in Heaven; for that which comes forth before the Angels, when it falls down into the World of Spirits, is turned into representatives . . . Such things are perpetual with good Spirits, with a beauty . . . scarcely utterable.

1977^e. Hence the Most Ancients had their dreams, with a perception of what they signified, from whom, in great part, came the representatives and significatives of the Ancients . . .

1980. (The things I saw in this dream) were the representatives of the things the angelic Spirits had been talking about . . . for the ideas of the Angels are turned into representatives in the World of Spirits . . . The same discourse might be turned into other representatives, even into dissimilar ones, with indefinite variety. Their being turned into such was in accordance with the state of the Spirits around me; thus with my own state at the time.

1981. I dreamed a dream of the common sort . . . The Angels said that it coincided with what they had spoken about . . . but so that the things seen in the dream were representative and correspondent . . .

—^e. Followed in order representatively . . .

2010². In representations the quality of the man effects nothing . . .

[A.] 2039⁷. Then . . . circumcision is represented in the World of Spirits ; for angelic ideas pass into representatives there. Certain (of the Jewish) representative rites originated from this source, and some did not.

2143. The historicals of the Word are nothing but representatives . . . but what they represent is not evident unless the historicals are not attended to . . .

2162². Representatives in the other life ; and thence representatives with the Most Ancients, and thus in the Word. 2763.

—⁵. The God of Israel, whom all things of the Church represented.

2177. The primary of representative worship consisted in burnt-offerings and sacrifices . . .

—⁵. The representatives themselves were thus perceived in Heaven.

2179². Various representatives are presented in the World of Spirits. Enum.

—³. From these (visions and dreams of the Most Ancients) representatives and significatives first originated ; and they remained long after their time, and at last were venerated for their antiquity so much that they wrote by mere representatives ; and books not so written were held in no esteem . . . For this and other reasons . . . the books of the Word were also so written.

2180. Sacrifices were the chief representatives in worship . . .

—⁴. The Ancient Church was in representatives, but not in sacrifices.

2243⁶. Only its representative ; therefore the Jewish Church was a Church representative . . . They did not know what the rites represented . . . Still, there was some connection thereby with Heaven. Ex.

2249². The internal sense together with the representatives (of the Word) are presented to the Angels . . .

2252². They had the signification of numbers from the representatives which come forth in the World of Spirits . . .

—⁴. From the Ancients they had certain representative numbers . . .

2299. The infants are instructed by representatives. Des.

2324². In the Word, one person represents many states which succeed . . .

2333⁶. All the historicals in the Word are representative, and each of the words is significative.

2342⁴. All things commanded in that Church represented some arcanum. Examp.

2567⁸. Partly by correspondences, partly by representatives, and partly by significatives.

2593⁶. (The representative thought, speech, and writing of the Ancients.)

2702¹⁶. In the Jewish Church, for the sake of representation before the Angels . . .

2722⁵. The Most Ancients . . . saw in all (the objects of nature) something representative and significative of the Lord's Kingdom . . .

— In itself, also, it is so that everything in nature represents.

—⁶. Hence with many of the Gentiles of that time, and also with the Jews . . . the worship was not representative, but was one of representatives and significatives . . .

2729. There is (then) presented with the good Spirits (below) a representative of marriage, and with the evil ones a representative of adultery.

2733. The speech of Spirits is illustrated by representatives . . .

2762. (The signification of a horse) comes from the representatives (there). Des. Such representatives are continual with Spirits.

2763. The representatives and significatives in the Word (came) from the representatives which come forth in the other life. They thence came to the (Most Ancients). . . From them the representatives emanated to their descendants, and at last to those who merely knew that they signified such things ; but as they were from most ancient times, and were in their Divine worship, they were venerated . . .

—². Besides the representatives, there are also correspondences. (Examps.) These are not represented in this way in the World of Spirits . . .

2777. The altar was the principal representative of the Lord, and afterwards the temple. Ill.

2788. The things which . . . would be done by the Lord . . . were in the representatives of the Church as if already done.

2799²¹. (This signification) originates from the representatives in the other life.

2818. This could not be represented . . . because to sacrifice sons was an abomination ; but it was represented as far as it could be, by the endeavour . . .

2896⁶. Hence came representatives and significatives, which, when the communication with the Angels began to cease, were collected by those (called) Enoch.

2897. (Hence the Ancients) knew, but did not perceive, what the representatives and significatives involved ; and, as they involved Divine things, they . . . were employed in their Divine worship, and this in order that they might have communication with Heaven ; for all things in the world, represent and signify such things as are in Heaven.

2899. The Word in the Jewish Church succeeded, which in like manner was written by representatives and significatives . . . and thus there was communication of the Lord's Kingdom in the Heavens with His Kingdom on earth. Unless the several Things in the Word represent, and the several words . . . signify, Divine things . . . the Word is not Divine. 2953⁶.

2900. As to the New Testament . . . since the Lord spoke from the Divine Itself, the several things spoken by Him were representative and significative of Divine things . . .

2909. (The representation of Hebron fully ex.)

2910³. The Jewish Church was only the representative of a Church, in order that through the representatives there might remain communication with Heaven until the Lord should come . . .

2936^e. For the representative expires near the extremity.

2940². When anything good is represented (there) by spiritual ideas, what is best is presented in the middle . . .

2973². At the ultimate borders (of Canaan) the representatives of celestial and spiritual things ceased.

2987. On Representations and Correspondences. Gen.art.

— . The things which come forth from spiritual things in natural ones are representations. They are called . . . representations because they represent. 2990^e.

2988. The looks of the face themselves represent, and are representations. (So) the gestures and actions themselves . . . represent the things of the mind, and are representations.

2989. Hence it is evident that . . . there is a representation of spiritual things in natural ones; or, what is the same . . . the things which appear in the external man are representatives of the internal man.

2991. That natural things represent spiritual ones . . . may be known from the fact that what is natural cannot come forth at all, except from a cause prior to itself . . . The forms of the effects represent the things which are of the causes; and these represent the things which are of the principles. Thus all natural things represent those things which are of the spiritual ones to which they correspond; and spiritual things represent those things which are of the celestial ones from which they are.

2992. In the natural world and its three kingdoms there is not one whit which does not represent something in the Spiritual World. (From experience.) 2993, Ex. 2999. 3942.

2996. For the Lord is the only Man, and Heaven represents Him.

3000. Hence it is that each and all things in the universe represent the Lord's Kingdom, insomuch that the universe with its constellations, etc. is nothing but a kind of theatre representative of the glory of the Lord . . . In the animal kingdom, not only man, but also all the several animals, represent. Examp.

3147³. These things were signified by the washings in the Ancient Church, and the same were represented in the Jewish. Ex.

—⁹. These worshipped this rite as an idolatrous thing; but still they could represent by it, and by the representation could present something of a Church . . .

3213. Continuation concerning Representations, etc. Gen.art.

— . In the World of Spirits there come forth . . . almost continual representatives, which are forms of spiritual and celestial Things, not unlike those in the world. . . They inflow from Heaven, and from the ideas and speech of the Angels there . . . and by them upright Spirits can know what the Angels are saying among themselves; for there is what is angelic inwardly in the representatives, which . . . is perceived . . . Angelic ideas and speech cannot otherwise be presented before Spirits . . . but when they are represented by forms, they become comprehensible . . . In the things which are represented, there is not the least thing which does not express something spiritual and celestial that is in the idea of the angelic Society from which the representative flows down. 3216².

3214. The representatives of spiritual and celestial things sometimes come forth in a long series, continued for an hour, or two . . . There are Societies with which these representatives are effected . . . But these representations are such that it would fill many pages to describe one . . . They are very delightful, for something new and unexpected continually succeeds, and this until that which is being represented is fully perfected . . .

3215. The representatives which come forth before Spirits are of an incredible variety, yet are for the most part like things on Earth.

3216. (Examp. of the representative cities which thus appear in the lower sphere. Ex.)

3217. (Examp. of the representative horses which appear there.) (Other representative animals. 3218.) (The representative birds. 3219.) (The representative paradises, trees, flowers, etc. 3220.) (The representative clouds, flames, and lights. 3221, 3222.)

3225. (Representation distinguished from correspondence.) Representation is whatever comes forth in the things which are of the light of the world—that is, whatever comes forth in the external man—relatively to those things which are of the light of Heaven, that is, which are from the internal man. 3337.

3226. Man possesses (the faculty), and carries it with him into the other life . . . that he perceives what the representatives which appear there signify; and can also express (his meaning) . . . by representative appearances. Des. and Ex.

—². For with man there is a continual influx . . . of spiritual and celestial things, which fall into his natural ones, and are there presented representatively. Ex.

3239. All persons named in the Word represent something.

3251. For all Abraham's life, as described in the Word, was representative. Ex.

3253. The end of the representation by Abraham. Sig. and Ex. 3259.

3254. What is new of representation. Sig. and Ex.

3256. The representatives in the Word are continuous, although they appear to be interrupted by the deaths of those who have represented . . .

3260. The beginning of the representation by Isaac. Sig. and Ex.

3268^e. There still remained a representative of the Church by these nations.

3301. The Natural of man is represented by his hair . . . Ill.

—⁷. It is (here) representatively described that . . .

—^e. What power there was in representatives then. Ill.

3337. Continuation concerning Representations, etc. Gen.art.

[A.] 3341. As the representations (there) can come forth only by discriminations of light and shade . . .

3342. All the speech of Spirits and Angels is effected by representatives. Ex. . . The representations which come forth in speech are not like those before told of, but are quick and instantaneous. Ex. . . For spiritual Things themselves, of whatever kind, can be representatively presented by appearances of images which are incomprehensible to man . . .

3343. The speech of the Angels of the interior Heaven is still more beautifully representative.

3344. The speech of the Angels of the Third Heaven is also representative, but (is indescribable).

—². By representatives adjoined to ideas, speech is as it were alive, least so with man . . . and most of all with the Angels of the Third Heaven.

3345^e. What comes forth in the exterior is representative of the interior.

3349. (Refs. to passages on the subject of representations.)

3368³. Hence these have representatives of truth.

3376^e. These things (in the Word) . . . appear before the Angels . . . with angelic representatives . . .

3393². For the literal sense is representative and significative of the internal sense; and this is representative and significative of the supreme sense; and that which in the Word is representative and significative, is in its essence that which is represented and signified, thus is the Divine of the Lord; for a representative is nothing but an image of him who is represented, and is in an image Himself who is presented. Examp.

3419². The Ancients had representatives and significatives of the celestial and spiritual things of the Lord's Kingdom, thus of the Lord Himself, and those who understood them were called the wise; and also were wise, for they could thus speak with Spirits and Angels. For angelic speech . . . when it falls down to man . . . falls into representatives and significatives such as are in the Word. It is from this that the Word is a holy writing; for what is Divine cannot be presented in any other way before the natural man, so that there may be a full correspondence.

—³. As the Ancients were in representatives . . . of the Lord's Kingdom . . . they had doctrinals of love . . . and charity (as distinguished from those of faith).

3432². That Word was representative of the Lord, and significative of His Kingdom . . . They had a written Word besides. Ex. . . Hence the wisdom of that time was both to speak and write by representatives and significatives; within the Church, about Divine things; and outside the Church, about other things, as is evident from the writings of those Ancients which we have. But in process of time, this wisdom perished . . .

3472. Continuation concerning Representations, etc. especially those in the Word. Gen.art.

— . Each and all things in the sense of the letter are representative of the spiritual and celestial things of the Lord's Kingdom . . . and, in the supreme sense, are representative of the Lord Himself . . . 3474, From experience.

3475. In the Heavens continual representatives come forth, such as are in the Word . . . These representatives are such that Spirits and Angels see them in a (very clear) light . . . These representatives are such that . . . they perceive what they signify . . . and, in these, things still more interior. . . In the First Heaven these (representatives) appear in an external form, with the perception of what they signify in an internal one; in the Second Heaven they appear such as they are in their internal form, with a perception of what they are in a still more interior one; and in the Third Heaven, they appear in this still more interior form, which is the inmost one. The (representatives) which appear in the First Heaven, are the generals of the Things which appear in the Second; and these are the generals of those which appear in the Third. Thus in those which appear in the First Heaven, are inwardly those which appear in the Second; and these are the generals of those which appear in the Third. Thus in those which appear in the First Heaven, are inwardly those which appear in the Second, and in these are inwardly those which appear in the Third. (Hence) it may be evident how perfect and full of wisdom, and at the same time how happy, are those representatives which are in the inmost Heaven; and that they are altogether ineffable, since myriads of myriads present one particular of a general one. Each and all of these representatives involve such things as are of the Lord's Kingdom; and these, such things as are of the Lord Himself. Those in the First Heaven, in their representatives see such things as come forth in the interior sphere of that Kingdom, and, in these things, those which come forth in the still more interior sphere, and thus see representatives of the Lord, but remotely. Those in the Second Heaven, in their representatives see such things as come forth in the inmost sphere of that Kingdom; and, in these things, representatives of the Lord more nearly. But those in the Third Heaven, [in their representatives] see the Lord Himself.

3477. The representatives which are manifest to man from the literal sense . . . are relatively very few. The quality of the representatives in the Heavens (shown by the representation of a broad and a narrow way. Fully des.)

3478. There was also represented . . . the tabernacle with the ark; for those who have been greatly delighted with the Word . . . have such things presented before them. . . They perceived what each thing signified . . . and there was not the least thing there which was not representative. Ex.

—². (Thus) the representatives of the Jewish Church contained in them all the arcana of the Christian Church; and those to whom the representatives . . . of the Old Testament are opened, may know . . . the arcana of the Lord's Church on earth, while they live (here); and the arcana of arcana which are in the Lord's Kingdom in the Heavens, when they come into the other life.

3479². If (the Jews) had known internal things . . . they would have profaned them, and when in a holy external would have been in a profane internal, so that there could have been no communication of representatives with Heaven by that nation.

3480. How that people, interiorly idolatrous, could represent holy things. Ex. (This would be impossible with Christians.) 3660. 4208³. 4232. 4293². —⁴.

3482. When angelic speech . . . falls into human words, it cannot fall into any other speech than such (as is in the Word), where every single thing represents . . .

— . The Ancients . . . had no other speech : it was full of representatives . . . Their books were so written ; for it was the study of their wisdom so to speak and write.

3483. Everything which appears in the universe is representative of the Lord's Kingdom . . . for all things in nature are ultimate images . . .

—^e. As all things continually come forth from the Divine, they must be representatives of those Things through which they have come forth, (and therefore) the visible universe is a theatre representative of the Lord's Kingdom, and that Kingdom is a theatre representative of the Lord Himself. 4318^o. 4489³.

3485. The representatives which come forth in the other life are appearances, but living ones, because they are from the light of life . . .

3670². (In) the representatives which exist at this day, all kings . . . represent the Lord . . . and all priests . . . (but) in proportion as he does evil . . . a king puts off the representative of holy royalty, and a priest the representative of holy priesthood, and represents the opposite . . . 4281³.

3686³. These representatives, after the (Most Ancient) times, remained in the Ancient Church, thus also the representatives of the places there. The Word in the Ancient Church had thence the names of places representative, as also the Word after their time . . . and because this was so, Abraham was commanded to go there . . . in order that through his descendants a representative Church might be instituted, in which nothing is reflected upon the person, or upon the places, but upon the Things which were represented . . .

3699². This is presented representatively in the World of Spirits by ways.

3703². For in nature are represented the celestial and spiritual goods and truths which are of Heaven ; and in Heaven are represented the Divine goods and truths which are of the Lord. .

3915. The worship of the Ancient Church consisted in rituals which were representative . . .

3923⁶. Hence all things in Canaan were representative according to the distances, etc.

4039^o. What the form of the brain in general represents. Ex.

4043^o. The things which take place in the Heavens are represented in the World of Spirits by forms (similar) to those which appear in the world.

4044. Representations are nothing else than images of spiritual things in natural ones . . .

—². These things may give some idea of representations and correspondences.

4053^o. The Natural is nothing else than a representation of the spiritual things from which it comes forth . . . and the Natural represents as it corresponds.

4073. For representations are circumstanced according to the changes of state as to good and truth. Ex.

4104⁴. The things in man's Natural . . . are (then) corresponding representatives.

4162³. The simple made for themselves so many representative images of that Divine . . . Hence so many idolatries.

4217. The end of the representation by Laban. Sig.

4279^o. The internal historical sense is wont to be represented to the life in the First Heaven.

4280². For significatives and representatives were derived to the Gentiles from the Ancient Church (as is evident from their oldest books).

4281³. For in representations the person is not reflected upon, but the thing which is represented ; and therefore not persons only represented Divine, celestial, and spiritual things, but also inanimate Things. Enum.

— . In order that the representative of a Church might come forth with them there were given them such statutes and laws . . . as were altogether representative ; and so long as they were in them they could represent ; but when they turned aside from them . . . they deprived themselves of the faculty of representing ; and therefore they were driven by external means . . . to laws and statutes truly representative . . .

4289². That the genuine representative of the Church should depart from the descendants of Jacob before they came into the representatives of Canaan. Sig. and Ex. 4288, Ex. 4289. 4429², Ex. 6592^o.

4290. That they insisted on being representative. Sig. and Ex. 4293. 4317³.

4292. That they could not represent as Jacob ; but as from a new given quality. Sig. and Ex.

—³. The Internal Church is that which is represented, and the external Church is that which represents . . .

—⁴. (Thus) the speech of man represents his thought ; and his action represents his will . . . His face, by its various looks, represents both . . . In a word, all the things of the body represent those which are of the mind. So is it with the externals of the Church.

4307². Jehovah was only representatively present with that nation. 4311, Sig. and Ex.

4310. The state that they should put on representations. Sig. and Ex.

4311⁶. Only the representative of a Church with them. Refs. 4500^o. 4680⁴. 4706. 4847². 6497. 6592, Sig. 6941. 7048. 8788. 10560², Ex.

4335⁵. This signification is from the representatives seen in the World of Spirits.

4360². For spiritual Things are founded upon natural ones, and are represented in them.

4366². Spiritual life is represented in civil life, (inso-much) that no idea can be had of spiritual life except from those things which are in civil.

4424. The Lord spoke (in this passage) not so much by representatives and significatives, but by comparatives.

[A.] 4429². All the rituals represented . . .

—³. The representatives commanded the (Jews) were not new . . .

4442^o. The First Heaven is in such representatives . . . Hence the Word has been written in such a style . . .

4444⁴. When they became idolaters, they could represent (only) the opposites . . . for they then called from Hell some devil . . . to whom they applied the Divine representatives. 4581⁷.

4449³. As these things had been made idolatrous with the nations, (who had) thereby turned aside to infernal things those which represented Divine ones . . . therefore, in order that the representative worship which was of the Ancient Church might be restored, the same were revoked.

4462. Unless (those signified by the Hittites) would place the truth and good of the Church in (mere) representatives. Sig. and Ex. 4465. 4486. 4489.

4489³. The Most Ancients knew what everything in the world represents.

—³. The representatives, etc. of that Church were then abrogated. 4835⁴.

4526. The light of Heaven inflows into the objects which are from the light of the world, and causes them to appear representatively and correspondently. —².

4528². These paradisiacal things are in the First Heaven . . . and are representatives which descend from a higher Heaven, when the Angels there are speaking together intellectually about the truths of faith. The speech of (these) Angels is effected by spiritual and celestial ideas . . . and continually by series of representations of such beauty as cannot be expressed; and it is these beauties of their discourse which are represented as paradisiacal things in the lower Heaven.

4529². The stupendous things seen by the prophets, and by John . . . were nothing but the representatives which continually come forth in Heaven . . .

4538. Jacob represents various things. . . In the supreme sense, he represents, in general, the Lord's Divine Natural . . . In the beginning (of the process of glorification) he represents that Natural as to truth; in the progress, as to the good of truth; and in the end, as to good.

4545⁶. (Thus) the rituals commanded the Israelites were holy (only) because they represented holy things; and those who represented were not made holy as to their persons; but the holiness represented abstractedly from them affected the Spirits with them, and thence the Angels in Heaven. 4581². 4825.

—⁷. (Thus the necessary communication with Heaven was) effected miraculously through representatives.

4580². This ritual (of setting up statues) derived its representative from . . . (See STATUE, here.)

4581³. If men knew what (these royal emblems) represent . . . they would think of them much more holily; but . . . they do not want to know this; to such a degree are the representatives, etc. which are in such things, and which are everywhere in the Word, destroyed at this day in the minds of men.

4621. 'To bury' = the state of representation resuscitated in another.

4627². Representative holes (through which these Spirits see). Ex.

—^e. Innumerable such representatives appear in the world of Spirits . . .

4658⁵. They presented such a woman (Pallas) representatively.

4692². (The Ancients) knew that all the rituals and externals of their Church represented Him.

—³. (The Jews) did not know that it was His Divine Human which all their rituals represented.

4763. (The representative of rending the garments.) Ex. and Ill.

—⁷. Elisha's taking Elijah's mantle, represented that he continued the representation.

4786. (The representative of wailing for the dead.) Ex.

4807². For to speak by representatives, etc., is to speak simultaneously before men and Angels.

4816^o. For lands put on the representation of the people in them . . .

4835. That (Onan) should continue the representative of the Church. Sig. and Ex. —³. (See 4832.)

—³. For marriage represented . . .

—⁴. The body is the representative image of the soul; (and) when the man rises again, the representative image is put off.

— . In the light of the world, the things of the light of Heaven appear (only) as in a representative image . . .

4844¹⁰. This, like all the rest of the precepts, judgments, and statutes in the Jewish Church, was representative, and they were kept in externals so to do, and by such things to represent the internal things of charity . . . Ill.

—¹⁶. In the Ancient Churches, where each and all things represented, the priests were forbidden to . . .

—¹⁷. Their knowledges were to know what the rituals of their Church represented . . . and the learned among them knew what the things on the Earth and in the world represented . . . Such (representatives) elevated their minds to heavenly things . . .

4847. Lest the representative of a Church should perish (by the adjoining thereto of the internal things of a genuine representative Church). Sig. and Ex.

4868⁴. A holy representative does not at all affect the person.

4874². The (Jewish) representatives were not exactly like those in the Ancient Church; they were for the most part like those instituted in the Church from Eber, in (which) the burnt-offerings and sacrifices, besides other things, were new . . . The internal of the Church was not so conjoined with these representatives, as with the representatives of the Ancient Church. Sig.

4876³. At that time, representatives constituted the externals of the Church. Ex.

4904². By the representatives (the Ancients) were led (to these internal truths); but as such things had been completely destroyed with the (Jews), the Lord taught them, but abolished the representatives themselves, because most of them regarded Him; for the image vanishes when the effigy itself appears. (9372¹⁰.) He therefore instituted a new Church, which should not be led through representatives to internal things, but which should know them without representatives; and in their place He commanded only . . . baptism and the Holy Supper. Ex.

4966. (Examp. of the representatives in the books of the ancients.)

—³. From the Ancients also remain (the representatives used at coronations). Enum.

—^e. The external worship of the Ancient Church consisted in representatives, etc., and the internal in the things represented. These were the scientifics signified by 'Egypt.'

5115. For the whole vegetable and animal kingdoms represent such things as are with man . . .

—³. The dreams which inflow through Heaven . . . never appear except according to representatives.

5116². Because the things (in nature) correspond, they represent . . . Universal nature is a theatre representative of the Lord's Kingdom; thus the Divine is in each thing, insomuch that it is also a representation of the eternal and the infinite . . .

—⁴. Each and all things in nature represent such things as are in the Spiritual World, consequently as are in the Lord's Kingdom, where the Divine of the Lord is proximately represented.

—⁵. (The representative of plants in blossom.) Ex.

5118^e. For (man's) Natural is nothing but as a face representative of the spiritual things in the internal man; and this face becomes representative when the exteriors correspond to the interiors.

5136². (The Most Ancients) saw in every thing in the world a representative of the Lord's Kingdom . . . Thence originated all the representatives, etc. afterwards known in the Ancient Church; for they had been collected by those meant by 'Enoch.' Hence it was that each place, mountain, and river, in Canaan, where the Most Ancients dwelt, had become representative, and also all the surrounding kingdoms. And as the Word could be written in no other way than by representatives, etc. . . the Church was successively preserved in Canaan; but after the Lord's advent was translated elsewhere, because then representatives had been abolished.

5146². If a genuine idea about degrees is formed, it can be apprehended . . . how exterior things can represent interior ones.

5173². In every single thing in nature there is something acting inwardly from the Spiritual World . . . Hence it is that the universal visible world is a theatre representative of the Spiritual World.

—³. This is like the motions of the muscles, whence is action . . . But that which is in the will and thought . . . is not similar in form to the action which is produced; for the action only represents that which the mind wills and thinks.

5198². When there is discourse in Heaven about affections, the beasts which correspond to those affections are represented in the World of Spirits.

5223. See MAGIC, here. —².

5275². The things done at that time, and described in the Word, were representative of the Lord Himself, of the glorification of His Human; and, in the representative sense, were representative of His Kingdom . . . thus of the regeneration of man. The reason the things done then were representative of such things, was chiefly for the sake of the Word . . .

5291⁷. Each circumstance happened of Providence, that Divine things might be represented.

5313¹². Such scenes (of Judgment) are perpetual in Heaven, all being representative. They appear from the discourse of the Angels in the higher Heavens . . . Angelic Spirits, to whom is given perception . . . know what they signify. Enum.

5335^e. For every representative is drawn from the Lord; and hence every representative regards Him.

5373^e. Hence the Spiritual World is terminated in man's Natural, in which the things of the Spiritual World are presented representatively. Unless spiritual things were presented representatively in the Natural, thus by such things as are in the world, they would not be at all apprehended.

5651^e. Hence the new Natural . . . is nothing but a representative of the Spiritual.

5695. For the face is an external representative of the interiors. Ex.

5748. The Celestial of the Spiritual represents truth from the Divine.

5975². 'I die' = what is new of representation; for the representatives in the Word succeed one another so that when one dies, there follows either a like representative by another person, or another [representative]. Examp.

6000⁷. The end of the representatives of the Church. Sig.

6048². Every significative in the Word originates from the representatives in the other life; and these from the correspondences. The reason is that the natural world is from the Spiritual World, as an effect from its cause . . .

6257. At the end of the representation. Sig.

6261^e. (The gesture represents the affection.)

6304. What is representative itself was instituted; with the Jewish nation, a representative of the Celestial Kingdom, and with the Israelitish people a representative of the Spiritual Kingdom; but with that generation nothing but a mere representative could be instituted . . . Yet in order that a representative might come forth, and that through it there might be some communication with Heaven . . . they were kept in externals; and it was then provided . . . that there should be communication through a mere representative external without an internal . . . But still Divine things lay hidden within the representative externals with them . . .

[A.] 6398². Man's interiors are represented in Heaven by animals . . .

6486. The Angels' speech is continually joined to heavenly representatives . . .

6592. For the representatives in the Ancient Church, and also those instituted with the (Israelites), were the ultimates of the Church; whereas the things . . . represented were the internals of the Church.

6596. The scientifics of the Church at that time were Knowledges of the representatives, etc. which had been in the Ancient Church.

6692. For the representatives, etc. of the Ancient Church were in Egypt turned into magic; for through the representatives, etc. of the Church there was at that time communication with Heaven; which communication was . . . open with many; but with (the evil) there was sometimes open communication with evil Spirits . . .

6738. The Hebrew Church retained many things from the representatives, etc. of the Ancient Church.

6877^e. This (representative of the Church) was instituted with them in order that that which they should represent might be presented in Heaven in an internal form . . .

6914⁵. Unless such things had been represented, this would never have been commanded . . .

6917². With the Egyptians there remained many things from the representatives of the Ancient Church, as is evident from their hieroglyphics; but, as they had applied them to magic . . . they were, with them, false scientifics.

7048. It was permitted that they should represent. Sig. and Ex.

7072. I represented to them birds . . . such as are in our Earth; for in the other life such things can be represented as it were to the life: the very speech of Spirits and Angels is full of representatives.

—^e. For the things of the spiritual sense are abstracted from material things, but are represented in them.

7290. For representatives, etc. conjoin the natural world with the Spiritual.

7417. The reason power was exercised by a rod, was that the things done within the Church by Divine command were done (then) through representatives; for the reason that everything represented the Lord, His Kingdom in the Heavens, and the Church.

7673². As this was a representative of the Divine omnipotence, it had force, as had all representatives, when commanded, at that time.

7779^e. They thus inverted a true representative into a false representative.

7893. For the representatives of the Church (as, here, the abstaining from work on the Sabbath) had been instituted with the (Israelites), that through them there might be a communication of Heaven with man. Ex.

7926. The Egyptians knew the representations of spiritual things in natural ones which then constituted the rituals of the Church . . . as may be evident from their hieroglyphics, which were images of natural things which represented spiritual ones.

8588³. That still representative Divine worship had been instituted with that nation, was because representative worship could be instituted with every nation which held the externals of worship holy, and worshipped them almost idolatrously; for what is representative does not regard the person, but the Thing. . . There has to be somewhere a Church, or a representative of a Church.

—⁶. Communication with the Angels in Heaven through representatives was then effected in this way: their external worship communicated with angelic Spirits who are simple . . . and do not attend to man's internal . . . In these Spirits the interior Angels saw the things which were represented, and consequently the heavenly and Divine things which corresponded . . .

—^e. That the (Israelites) could represent what is holy . . . provided they strictly observed the commanded rituals. Refs.

8788². The Church is represented when man places worship in externals . . . which correspond to heavenly things: then, through the externals are represented internals, and the internals are manifest in Heaven, with which there is thus conjunction. In order, therefore, that the Israelitish people might represent, . . . their interiors were veiled over, so that the externals could communicate with Spirits, and through them with the Angels . . . (If) the internals had been manifest, what was representative would have perished, because filthy things would have burst forth. Sig.

8875^e. For the adoration of other gods, and of images, destroyed everything representative of the Church with them. Ex.

8918². That nation was solely in externals, and in these placed everything of Divine worship, (and) could thus represent heavenly and Divine things; for in order to represent, what is external is required . . .

8972². Where internal things are no longer represented by external ones, as in the Christian Church . . .

9002³. For whatever was permitted to that nation was for the sake of the representation . . . But when the internal things of the Church had been opened by the Lord, the representations of internal things by external ones ceased . . .

9193⁴. (The Ancients then) began to worship the representatives themselves; as the sun, moon, and stars, and also groves and statues . . .

9272⁸. As with (that) people all things were representative of heavenly and Divine things, so also were their fields and the produce of them. Enum. . . Hence they were enriched with such things when they kept the statutes . . . Ill.

9372⁶. That the representatives of the Lord and His Kingdom ceased when the Lord came. Sig.

9380. The representations which are represented without the Knowledge, faith, and affection of interior things, conjoin the Thing, but not the person.

9389². For all the representatives of the Church which are treated of in the Word, in the supreme sense, regard the Lord Himself.

9419. 'Moses and Joshua' = the Word and the representative. . . For the representative serves and ministers. Ex.

—². When this external Holy inflows with man, it presents representatives according to the correspondences with that man.

9457². In the Ultimate Heaven are represented the things being thought, said, and manifested in the Middle and Innermost Heavens. The representatives there, are innumerable. Enum. And it is perceived what they signify. Such things appeared to the prophets. Enum.

—³. Hence it is evident what representation is, and also that by it Heaven was present with man . . .

9474. 'To anoint' = inauguration to represent. 9954⁷, Ex.

9481². All these things are representatives such as continually appear before the Angels . . . and present in a visible form Divine celestial and spiritual things. Such things, in sum, were represented by the Tabernacle and the things in it . . . and therefore when they were seen by the people, at the time they were in holy worship, there were presented in Heaven such things as were represented, namely, Divine celestial and spiritual things . . . Such an effect in Heaven had all the representatives of that Church. Ex.

9576. 'The form of these things (seen in the mount)' = a representative of all things of Heaven.

9806⁵. Thus (in the representations in the Jewish Church) the most holy Thing could be represented by persons whose interiors were unclean, nay idolatrous, provided that, while they were in worship, their externals were disposed to holiness. (Aaron, for example.)

9963. In the representative worship of all things of Heaven and the Church. Sig. and Ex.

10109^e. The reason (the blind, lame, etc.) were not to approach the altar, was that these evils thus stood forth before the people, and (thus) fell into a species of representation . . .

10125. Whatever represents the Lord, also represents Him with the men of the Church, and with the Angels of Heaven; thus Heaven and the Church . . .

10151². Whatever represented the Lord Himself, represented Heaven. Ex.

10194². The representatives (there) are presented according to the states of the interiors with the Spirits; for they are correspondences. Examps.

10244. Lest what is representative should perish. Sig. and Ex.

10276³. These (affections of good and truth which are in the innermost Heavens) are presented in the Ultimate Heaven in external forms which are innumerable . . . Whatever they see there, is thence. These things are representatives of the interior things . . . Examps. There are representatives in the higher Heavens also, which in perfection, delight, and happiness immeasurably surpass those in the Ultimate Heaven . . . All the representatives instituted with the Israelites were similar to those in the Ultimate Heaven, but in less perfection . . . Examps.

10326^e. The conjunction of the Lord with that Church by representatives (was) signified by the Sabbath, in that it was to be kept holy.

10394. That (still) there were with that people representatives which were the ultimates of the Church, to the end that the Word might be written. Tr.

10500³. There were two requisites that this (communication with Heaven by representatives) might be possible: one, that the internal with them should be completely closed; and the other that they were able to be in a holy external when at worship. Ex.

10559⁴. (Necessity that the Word should rest on representatives.)

10632⁴. Another revelation succeeded which was through representatives . . .

10698. All who were in externals without an internal, and still represented internals. Sig. and Ex.

10728. The Sabbath, which was the primary representative of all. 10730^e, Ex.

— The representatives of the Church with the (Israelites) were truths in the ultimate of order. For with representatives the case is this: the things which appear in nature . . . are the ultimates of Divine order; for all things of Heaven . . . are terminated in them; and hence it is that the representative Church was instituted, and such things were commanded as in ultimates completely represented Heaven . . . and the things which represented were forms of such things as are in nature. Enum.

H. 170. On Representatives and Appearances in Heaven. Chapter.

175. As all things which correspond to interior things also represent them, they are called representatives. 176, Examps.

306. All things on earth correspond to spiritual things, or, what is the same, represent them.

411^e. The Angels are delighted (only) with the things represented . . .

517³. The affection of truth suitable for use is insinuated (there) . . . chiefly by representatives of uses. Ex.

W. 233². All Churches . . . before His advent were representative of spiritual and celestial things; but after His advent . . . representative worship was abolished. Sig.

P. 132². An evil man can represent equally as well as a good one . . .

251³. All wars (whatever) are representative of the states of the Church . . .

R. 229^e. The things which John saw were visions which represented . . .

392^e. As representative worship, which took place chiefly on the two altars, was abrogated by the Lord . . .

M. 13³. All the gardens (there) are representative forms or types . . .

21. A bridegroom (in Heaven) represents the Lord, and a bride represents the Church, because a wedding there represents the marriage of the Lord with the Church . . . But after the wedding the representation is changed; for the husband then represents wisdom, and the wife the love of his wisdom . . . and then, both together represent the Church. 125, Ex.

[M.] 76. (Representative carved figures of the Silver Age, seen and ex.) —⁶.

270³. (A palace representative of the dwelling places of conjugal love in human minds, des. and ex.)

—⁵. To those in the Third Heaven every representative of love and wisdom becomes real.

T. 66. All things which come forth in the spiritual World conspire to the human form, and in their inmosts they present it, whence all the objects which are presented to the eyes there are representatives of man. Enum. And it is given to know what affection this or that object represents . . .

109². As the Lord, then, was only represented, which was done by means of Angels, therefore all things of the Church with them became representative. (786) But after He came, these representations vanished; the interior reason of which was that the Lord put on the Divine Natural, (thus causing the light of the moon to be as the light of the sun). Ex.

301. The Sabbath represented the Lord . . . but when the representations of Him had ceased, it was made a day of instruction, etc.

670². When the Lord came, He abrogated representatives, which were all external things, and instituted a Church of which all things were internal . . . and, from them all, He retained only these two, which should contain all things of the Church in one complex . . .

Ad. 3/2039, et seq. (On representations.) D.192. 233.

D. 1050. On spiritual modes of representing Things.

1086. On representations which cannot be described in words.

1390. That the representations in the other life are actual in the world. Ex.

1575. How representations descend from the Heavens. Ex.

1695. Their thoughts go forth into representations, and whatever they see they turn into obscene representations . . .

1753. (Spirits can) represent buildings, gardens, etc., and unless the reflection is given that such things are only representations induced by others (they are supposed to be real). 1752. 2037.

2083. On a more occult representation of Spirits.

2186. On representative angelic ideas. 2192.

2211. The representations and thoughts of the Angels relatively to those of man. Ex.

2289. On a representation of the passage of the Jordan.

2313. (Shown) by continual representative spiritual ideas. 2314.

2350. Their phantasies are turned into pleasant species of representations, which are imaginative . . .

2440. That my representations were seen by Spirits as if alive.

2475. That all things in universal nature are representations of the Lord's Kingdom.

2550. On representations in the World of Spirits, and how they inflow from Heaven. 2620.

2903. On representations—repraesentatis— [seen] on Earth which remain after (death). (Beautiful scenery, palaces, etc.)

3173. Angelic representations are not, although they appear. . . Such things are imaginations, or imaginative representations, which=celestial and spiritual Truths . . . and therefore they are not phantasies, for they are inmostly delighted by them.

3636. Most beautiful representations there. Des.

3640a. Their ideas are most beautiful representations.

3738. How external things have represented internal ones. Ex.

3791. On an ideal representation. (A dream.)

3941. That some representations are variations of Societies.

3952^e. The woman (the Pallas) was not a Spirit, but was the representation of a woman. (How produced.)

4005. The representation of good with the Angels can fall into all the innumerable goods of man . . .

4033. Represented with me in a dream.

4053. Spirits speaking with me by mere representations. 4128.

4095. The generals of an angelic idea . . . are representative and parabolic . . .

4146. That the speech of the Angels falls into representations such as are in the Word.

4176. On representation.—I represented, in order, beautiful birds (their feeding, singing, etc.). . . These things it was granted to represent as if to the life, for the representations appear as living. The Angels then perceived all these things in a celestial and spiritual sense, thus not as representatives . . . Hence was evident . . . the nature of the representatives with the Angels.

4201. Their speech is at the same time representative . . .

4214. On representation with Spirits.—All things can be represented before Spirits, not as if pictured, but seen exactly as in the world; as gardens, groves, palaces . . . but they are representations; they appear, that is, they are not real. There is nothing which cannot be thus represented—the forms of men also—but they are made up representatives . . .

4215. Representatives not made up, but still appearances, are such things as are presented to the sight of the Angels, in a light originating from the order of the Things from which such things are represented. These representations are as it were the originals of the things which are in the world. Hence paradisiacal things, etc.

4216. There was represented a broad way . . . and a narrow one. Des.

4230. The things which come forth in the Spiritual World . . . are turned into representations in the natural World of Spirits. Examp.

4295. How the case is with representatives in Heaven. —I thought about eating, and perceived that the Angels were thinking about Knowledges. Ex.

4336. On representatives and correspondences.—Speech in the interior sphere against truths and goods, when it falls down into the World of Spirits, produces a sphere of adultery . . .

4351. Hence is the representation (of serpents casting off their exuviae) which comes forth in real nature. . . (The hypocrite himself, who caused it) knew nothing of this representative . . . Hence may be evident the nature of representatives.

E. 260°. For whatever is said by the Lord, and perceived by the Angels, is turned into representatives when it descends, and is thus presented before the eyes of the Angels in the ultimate Heavens, and of the prophets . . . 369, Examps. (taken from the scenery of the Revelation).

443°. Representation does not regard the person, but the Thing, and requires no more with the person than what is external in worship. Refs.

513°. All ideas of thought of Angels and Spirits are turned into various representatives outside of them. Examps.

582. From the horses seen by John may be seen the nature of the representative appearances in Heaven. Ex.

654¹⁹. As all the representatives of the Jewish Church regarded the Lord, He represented and perfected them in Himself, and thus fulfilled all things of the Law. For the representatives were the ultimates of Heaven and the Church, and all prior things . . . are in ultimates, and therefore the Lord was in ultimates through those [representatives] . . . Hence it was that His whole life in the world was representative . . . Ath. 181.

700³³. The Churches before His advent were representative ones, because the Lord was then present in the representatives, but when He came, the externals which represented were abolished, because it was the Lord Himself whom the representatives of the Church shadowed forth . . . The primary representatives of the Lord and thence of Heaven and the Church were . . . Enum.

827°. As the Ancient Churches were representative, they made images . . . which represented heavenly things . . . and, when they looked at them, they remembered the heavenly things which they represented . . . Hence in Egypt, where the science of representations flourished, there were images, etc. . . But when the men of those Churches became external, the celestial and spiritual things which were represented remained as traditions with their . . . magi; and the common people . . . began to worship the representatives.

—, For all the things in the world are representatives. Enum.

828°. (The Angels of the Third Heaven) dwell . . .

in gardens . . . thus in perpetual representatives of heavenly things.

5 M. 20. It is said that the objects seen there represent, and not that they are, because each and all things which appear to the sight in that World are correspondences and representations, which contain Truths in them, and thence signify them; thus spiritual things are there presented under forms like those of natural ones.

Q. 6. Before the incarnation, there was not any Divine Human, except a representative one by means of some Angel . . . and as that was a representative one, so all things of the Church at that time were representatives, and like shadows; but, after the incarnation, representatives ceased, like shadows . . . at the rising of the sun. But the representative Human . . . was not of such efficacy as that it could spiritually enlighten men . . . Coro. 51².

Coro. 51³. (Idoltrous worship contrasted with genuine representative worship.) 54.

Representative Church. Ecclesia Representativa.

A. 1001. It was therefore commanded in the Representative Church that . . .

—e. As, in the Representative Churches . . .

1360. The idolatry from which came the Representative Church. Sig. and Ex. 1361.

1361⁵. This Representative Church was instituted, after all internal worship had perished . . . in order that there might be some conjunction of Heaven with earth . . .

1373. That those in idolatrous worship were instructed . . . in order that a Representative Church might come forth. Sig.

1375. The beginning of a Representative Church through Abram. Sig. 1409².

1437. For a Representative Church had been instituted in Canaan, in which each and all things represented the Lord, and the celestial and spiritual things of His Kingdom; not only the rites, but also all things which were adjoined to the rites; both those who ministered, and the things by which they ministered, and also the places where the ministration took place. Because there was a Representative Church there, that Land was called the Holy Land . . .

1447. In order that a Representative Church might be instituted with (the descendants of Jacob).

2118. The Last Judgment of the Representative Church . . . was when the ten tribes were carried away into captivity . . .

2760, Pref.³. In the Jewish and Israelitish Representative Church . . .

3479². Therefore a Representative Church was instituted in that nation. Ex. 3480, Ex.

3686°. That through (the descendants of Abraham) a Representative Church might be instituted, in which nothing is reflected upon the person, or places, but upon the Thing represented. 4112².

4208³. In order that a Representative Church might come forth, and thus some communication of the Lord with man, they had to be kept especially in the acknowledgment of Jehovah . . .

[A.] 4210. Sacrifices and burnt-offerings were the principal things of all the worship of the subsequent Representative Church, that is, the Hebrew one . . .

4281². The Church instituted with them was not a Church, but only the representative of a Church, and therefore that Church is called a Representative Church.

4288². It is to be known what a Representative Church is, and what the Representative of a Church. There is a Representative Church when there is internal worship in the external; but the Representative of a Church when there is no internal worship, but still external. There are in both almost the like external rituals . . . but in a Representative Church the externals correspond to the internals, so that they make a one, whereas in the Representative of a Church there is no correspondence, because the externals are either devoid of internals, or disagree with them. In a Representative Church celestial and spiritual love is the principal thing; but in the Representative of a Church corporeal and worldly love . . . The Ancient Church was a Representative Church; but that instituted with the descendants of Jacob was only the Representative of a Church. (Examples of the worship in a Representative Church, enum. and ex., and how in the Representative of a Church they became idolatrous.) 4425.

—⁵. In general, those of the Representative Church communicated with the three Heavens as to their interiors, for which the externals served as a plane; whereas those in the Representative of a Church did not communicate with the Heavens as to their interiors, but still the externals in which they were kept could serve as a plane (for such communication).

4289². (The Israelites) lost all the worship of the Representative Church . . .

4489³. Hence arose the Representative Church.

— The Christian Church, in its essence, is the same as to the internal form as the Representative Church; but the representatives, etc. of that Church have been abrogated . . .

4680². The Ancient Church . . . was a Representative Church. Ex. 4844⁴. 9391⁸, Ex. 10177¹⁰.

4831. 'Tamar' = a Church Representative of spiritual and celestial things . . . (See 4844. 4846.) 4856. 4866.

4847. A Representative Church, such as was with the Ancients, was to have been instituted with the (Israelites) . . .

4859. The Jews regarded the internal truths of the Representative Church no otherwise than as a harlot. Sig.

7043. That a Representative Church could not be instituted with that nation. Sig. and Ex. 7048.

7044. 'Zipporah' = a Representative Church. Ex.

7779⁴. (The Representative Church among the Egyptians: its fall des.)

8886. In the Representative Church the Sabbath was most holy . . .

9026^e. A Representative Church was instituted with the Israelitish nation, that is, a Church, in which internal things . . . were represented by external ones . . .

9457. What a Representative Church is, and why it [existed]. Ex.

9458. 'The sons of Israel,' here, = the Representative Church. Ex.

9480. The presence of the Lord in the Representative Church. Sig. and Ex.

9525. The worship of the Representative Church. Sig. and Ex.

9966. The laws of order in the Representative Church. Sig. and Ex.

10276. The influx and presence of the Lord in the worship of the Representative Church. Sig. and Ex.

—⁶. This (Representative) Church was instituted in Canaan especially on account of the Word . . .

10326. The Representative Church which was to be instaurated with those in the good of love and good of faith. Tr.

10632⁴. Hence that (Ancient) Church was called a Representative Church.

H. 306. Whence the Churches of that time were called Representative Churches.

S. 99. All the Churches before His advent were Representative Churches; and therefore they could not see Divine truth except in the shade . . . W.233². T.109.

D. 2259. That a Representative Church is the body of the Church.

E. 324²⁴. Hence the Church (of the Israelites) is called a Representative Church.

422²⁰. The Church with (the Ancients in Canaan, Syria, Assyria, Arabia, Ethiopia, Egypt, Chaldea, Tyre, Sidon, and elsewhere) was a Representative Church. Ex.

827². But still there was with (the Israelites) also a Representative Church . . .

P.P. Page 123. All the Churches up to the Lord's advent were Representative Churches: they represented the Church, and, in the supreme sense, the Lord. . . . But the Representative Churches ceased when the Lord came . . . There were three remarkable changes of the Representative Churches: the first, before the Flood . . . the second, after the Flood . . . and the third, the Israelitish . . .

Coro. 43. How the Representative Church with (the Ancients) was turned into idolatry. Ex.

—^e. On this account . . . a new Representative Church was raised up with the sons of Israel, in which real representations were instituted . . .

Representative sense. Sensus repræsentativus.

A. 3471. The representative sense treats of regeneration, and of the Church. 3660^e. 4063². 5398^e.

5730. The historical representative sense.

Repress. Compescere.

A. 8118³. Laws to repress violence . . .

9231. To repress what is in the external man.

9410⁵. One Angel can repress a thousand (infernal).

H. 536^e. Unless the same Lord were to repress the assaults of the Hells . . .

543. The Angels . . . repress the insanities and disturbances in the Hells.

594. The infernal Society is then repressed . . .

T. 84^e. Jehovah . . . could not repress any devil . . . unless He were in ultimates.

123⁵. The subjugation of Hell is meant by His suppressing the sea. E. 514²¹.

611. Regeneration is to restrain the flesh . . .

D. 3726. Occurs. 5093. D.Min.4799.

Repress. Reprimere.

Repression. Repressio.

A. 9072. No repression. Sig. and Ex.

9075. Man becomes guilty if he . . . does not repress the evil of the Voluntary . . . 9132^e.

Reproach. Ignominia.

Ignominious. Ignominiosus.

A. 3969. 'God hath gathered my reproach' (Gen. xxx.23)= . . . that Rachel was no longer barren, and thus was not 'dead.'

—². What this 'reproach' is. Ex.

9960¹¹. 'I will show the kingdoms thy reproach' (Nahum iii.5)=their infernal loves . . .

E. 573¹⁴. 'God hath . . . delivered us to reproach' (Ps.xliv.9). Ex.

654⁵⁹. 'Trust in the shadow of Egypt shall be for disgrace' (Is.xxx.3)=no faculty of resisting evils . . . 'Shame,' and 'disgrace'=their state when they are accounted as vile on account of evils.

960⁵. 'Ignominious vomit' (Hab.ii.16) is predicated of falsified truth.

1012³. Not treat the neighbour with contumely and ignominy. Sig.

Reproach. Opprobrium.

A. 2220². 'To reproach-opprobrio afficere-the people of Jehovah' (Zeph.ii.10)=to inflict evil on truths.

4463. 'This is a reproach unto us' (Gen.xxiv.14)=that it was contrary to them.

E. 555³. 'Gather our reproach' (Is.iv.1). Ex.

654⁶⁶. 'Ye shall be for a curse, an amazement, an execration, and a reproach' (Jer.xlii.18)=all things of damnation.

Reprobation. Reprobatio.

Reprobate, To. Reprobare.

A. 9163³. They reprobate the truths which are from Him.

9256⁷. 'The stone which the builders have rejected.'

T. 384. Those who reprobate the Lord and the Word . . . Those who reprobate the Word also reprobate the Lord . . . and those who reprobate either the one or the other, also reprobate the Church . . . and those who reprobate the Church are outside Heaven.

E. 205⁵. His reprobation by the Jewish nation. Tr.

617⁸. 'That he may know to reject the evil and choose the good' (Is.vii.15). Ex.

Can. Redeemer vii. 4. Occurs. ix.9. Redemption vii.7.

Reproduce. Reproducere.

Reproduction. Reproductio.

A. 4205². Are reproduced when a like delight recurs.

— . Is reproduced when a like affection recurs. (See 4301⁴. 5489.) 5893². N.121⁴,Refs.

7835^e. When the truth is reproduced, the affection . . . is reproduced.

H. 461³. The natural objects in the memory cannot be reproduced (there). 464. —². 563^e.

M. 132⁶. How can man . . . reproduce anything of love and wisdom unless he feels it as his own?

D. Wis. v^e. Their reproduction is reminiscence.

x². Affection produces thought, and thought reproduces affection.

Reprove. Coarguere.

Reproval. Redarguitio.

See CHARGE-arguere.

A. 2546. Self-reproval. Sig. and Ex.

9245. 'Lest his works be reproved' (John iii.20).

E. 246. 'As many as I love, I reprove and chasten' (Rev.iii.19)=temptations then.

Reprove. Reprehendere.

A. 10381. He brought out only such things as he could reprove. . . When he reproved me, it was given to say that what he reproved was not mine, but belonged to the Spirits around me. Ex.

E. 1147³. It has been given me to reprove (the infernals who inflowed).

Reptile. See under CREEP.

Republic. See COMMONWEALTH.

Repudiate. Repudiare.

M. 297². If women were to court men . . . they would be repudiated . . .

D. Min. 4628. If they have no children they repudiate love.

E. 768¹⁹. 'One divorced' (Lev.xxi.14)=good rejected by truth, thus discordant.

Repugnance. Repugnantia.

Repugnant, To be. Repugnare.

A. 18^e. The things which are repugnant must be removed.

1510². If they approach, repugnance arises.

1936. This is repugnant to the Rational.

2294. The infants resisted. . . I have perceived their resistance.

[A.] 2763^e. When what is spiritual and celestial is mentioned, he feels repugnance . . .

3614. 'Wrath and anger' = states which are repugnant. —², Ex.

— . When these states become such that they are repugnant no longer . . .

—². For whatever is repugnant to any affection, produces anger . . . What is repugnant to truth is called 'wrath,' and what is repugnant to good, 'anger'; and, in the opposite, 'wrath' = what is repugnant to falsity or its affection . . .

—³. That 'wrath,' and 'anger,' in the internal sense, are only repugnances. Ill.

—⁵. As they are repugnance, they are also punishment, for the things which are repugnant collide . . . For in evil there is repugnance for good, and in falsity, repugnance for truth; and, as there is repugnance, there is also collision.

5660². When they perceive that everything inflows . . . they resist as much as they can.

9309. These are repugnant to truths from good. Sig. and Ex.

9399³. For the will is repugnant.

W. 266. The love of evil is repugnant; but he can resist it.

R. 715. On account of repugnances arising from their interior falsities and evils. Sig. and Ex.

M. 256². Wives (use) various repugnances. 511.

511². They want to be set on fire by absolute repugnances.

T. 61. From this perpetual resistance, repugnance, etc. of evil and falsity against His good and truth . . .

D. 1744. A certain reaction, consequently repugnance . . .

1746. In every good work they feel a repugnance . . .

2084. A kind of repugnance among those who eat foods repugnant to them. Ex.

2166. Some (of the Spirits) are repugnant. . . (The others) thus perceive the repugnance, although he is tolerated. Ex.

2391. I felt from them such a repugnance (for the interior sense) . . . Those who inhere in the letter only, (feel) continual repugnance when they hear the interiors of the Word.

2480. As soon as any truth comes forth . . . they feel repugnance, and at once resist it.

2703. There are repugnances which expel man (from the angelic sphere).

2714^e. The things which in lowest nature appear to be repugnant, are fallacies . . .

3560. (He was) constant in being repugnant, which was not a bad sign . . .

4841. I perceive in myself (from these priests) a repugnance and aversion (for the internal sense).

D. Min. 4721^e. When man resists or is repugnant to evil and falsity only a little, he can be in the opposite state. The mere noticing of the repugnance is sometimes sufficient.

E. 662³. When he comes into the Spiritual World . . . he feels the repugnance (to goods and truths).

Reputation. Fama.

Famous. Famosus.

A. 1308. The reputation of power thence. Sig. and Ex.

1774. For the sake of the reputation thence . . .

2910². External bonds . . . thus the love of reputation . . .

3147⁷. In the works no regard for reputation, etc.

3963². Through Knowledges of truth may gain reputation, and thence honours and wealth. 5280³. 5376².

4674. 'Their evil report' (Gen. xxxvii. 2) = their blemishes and faults.

4676^e. This influx manifests itself by their (solicitude about reputation after death).

5159². Bridle cupidities in order to capture reputation.

6222³. Desire truths not for the sake of reputation and glory.

6247^e. When man is affected with truth . . . he is at the same time affected with reputation and glory. This latter affection is inevitable (at first) and is then permitted, that it may introduce.

6316. A great part of the learned are sensuous: the cause is that they have learned knowledges solely for the sake of reputation, that they may be promoted to honours, and thus to gain.

7280². Fear lest they be deprived of reputation for the sake of honours and gain. 7437^e. P. 139⁵. M. 267³.

8148². Persuaded that (their) doctrines are true . . . for the sake of reputation.

8870². To capture the reputation of seeming to be good.

9210. If the end is to do good for the sake of reputation . . .

—². Those who do good from Christian charity, sometimes regard the reputation thence for the sake of honours or gain. Ex.

9248. 'Thou shalt not bear a report of vanity' (Ex. xxiii. 1) = no listening to Falsities. 'To bear a report' = to hear and do, thus to listen; for 'reputation,' in the Original, is expressed by a word which means listening.

H. 507. Do not fear for their reputation (there) as in this world.

508. Have performed uses for the sake of reputation . . . These (become) the most stupid.

W. 415². When he fears no loss of reputation, he can speak against God, the neighbour, etc., and also act against them . . .

P. 73⁵. Appears externally as moral, because he loves the reputation of this . . .

250³. The Lord rules them by the celebrity of their name.

274⁹. It is from this implanted Knowledge (of there being a life after death) that some aspire to an immortality of fame. Ex.

M. 286. These (conjugal simulations) are for the sake of reputation . . .

380³. He then poured round (his books) the glory of his reputation . . .

—^b. The glory of reputation has induced you to confirm what you do not believe.

T. 309. 'Not to kill' means also not to inflict any deadly evil on a man's name and reputation, for with many, reputation and life go hand and hand. E.1012³.

D. 3136. (A Spirit) who was stirred up by fear of the loss of his reputation . . .

3191. On a certain most famous man in Europe, Gustavus Adolphus.

D. Min. 4727. On those who have captured reputation by external probity.

E. 406¹¹. Occurs. 721²⁰.

438⁵. That the Word will last to eternity, is signified by 'as thy days thy fame' (Deut.xxxiii.25).

De Verbo 9. That those who have as the end . . . a reputation for erudition, do not see or find anything of genuine truth in the Word. Ex.

Require. Postulare.

A. 5957. The Lord indeed requires humiliation, etc. Ex.

817^e. He demands to be saved of himself.

T. 142². Each requires its analysis confirmed . . .

Require. Requirere.

Requisite. Requisitus.

A. 3142. Nothing else is required of man than . . . 6706^e. D.2470.

7750. Animals have all the requisite knowledge. P.74³.

9459. The things requisite for worship. Sig.

Life 22. Two things are requisite (for man to do). Ex. E.934².

T. 406. The things necessarily required in civil life.

Requite. See under BRING BACK.

Rescue. Eripere.

A. 2416. 'Escape for thy life' (Gen.xix.17)=consult for his eternal life. 2430.

4256. 'Rescue me out of the hand of my brother' (Gen.xxxii.11)=the state relatively.

8671. 'Jehovah rescued them' (Ex.xviii.8)=deliverance by the Divine aid. 8673. 8676.

E. 386¹⁸. Occurs. 537⁹. 556¹⁵. 724¹¹. 783³. 811²¹.

710². 'To rescue' (Is.xlvi.4)=to take away and remove evils and falsities which are from Hell.

714²⁴. 'To rescue' (Ps.xci.14)=to withdraw from falsities.

Resemblance. Instar.

A. 1432. There is in each and all things with man a resemblance of a marriage . . .

1910^e. There is an idea or resemblance of the soul and the body in each thing with man . . .

5194. Unless these two make one by a kind of a resemblance of a marriage . . .

8480². For in all the good which proceeds from the Lord there is a resemblance of Himself; and thence a resemblance of Heaven: whereas in the good which is from man there is a resemblance of the man; and, as man from himself is nothing but evil, there is a resemblance of Hell.

8778. According to the likeness of this it is done here . . .

8870. 'And any likeness'=a resemblance of those things which are from the Divine.

—². Resemblances of the things which are from the Divine are made by men when with the mouth they speak Divine things, and also actually do such things as are commanded by the Divine . . . when yet at heart they think quite differently . . . In the other life, evil Spirits make resemblances of the things which are from the Divine . . .

9079^e. Goods and truths . . . make in man a resemblance of Heaven.

10021². It is explained by its resemblance or image —imaginem.

10076². The whole man is a resemblance of his own will and his own understanding thence; consequently, a resemblance of his own good and derivative truth; or a resemblance of his own evil and derivative falsity . . .

10125². As everything of the body is produced from the soul, thus to the resemblance of it . . .

10156⁴. Thereby cause that in the world also there is a resemblance of Heaven.

H. 319 (n). That between good and truth there is a resemblance of a marriage. Ref.

374. For the body is an effigy of the mind, because it is formed after its resemblance.

381. There is a certain resemblance of conjugal love with some . . .

N. 24⁴. That the good of love is like fire . . . Ref.

P. 98. To which they give a resemblance of reason.

M. 65². Every love which proceeds from the form of love itself is a resemblance thereof.

E. 790¹⁴. Charity . . . forms (faith) to a resemblance of itself; and therein presents an image of itself.

1004⁵. Everything in which there is force, wills to produce a resemblance of itself; and to multiply its own species . . .

Ath. 22. That the Divine, which is Life itself, would make the Human a resemblance of itself, thus also Divine.

D. Love xvii⁵. For the Spiritual inflows into the Natural, and disposes it to correspondence, thus to a resemblance of itself.

Resen. Resen.

A. 1190. 'Resen between Nineveh and Calah' (Gen. x.12)=that they formed for themselves doctrinals of life; and by 'Resen' are signified the false doctrinals thence. . . Falsities of life are here signified by 'Resen,' of which no further mention is made in the Word. Resen was built 'between Nineveh and Calah,' that is, between falsity from reasonings, and falsity from cupidities, which produces falsity of life. It is called 'the great city' because it is from falsities of both the understanding and the will.

Reserve. Reservare.

Reservation. Reservatio.

A. 2482. He had kept back his money.

7556. Good and truth are reserved by the Lord . . .

—^e. The reservation of good and truth . . . is signified by 'remains.' 7601².

7560. That which is not reserved. Sig. and Ex.

R. 324. Those reserved meanwhile (in the Lower Earth). Sig. D.5427a. 5480. 5792e. 5882. E.391. 392³. 394. —³. (Compare 397.) 430¹⁷. 433²⁷.

604. That these things are reserved, and not yet manifested. Sig.

Reside. Residere.

See DWELL.

A. 3368. 'Reside in the Land' (Gen.xxvi.2). Ex.

4600. 'When Israel resided in this land' (Gen. xxxv.22)=while in this state. . . 'To reside'=to live. . . . 'To reside' is predicated of truth, but 'to dwell-habitate,' of good.

9276. (These) loves reside there.

10199⁸. External truths . . . reside in the external man.

H. 506². The Rational had not resided in their interiors, but in their exteriors.

518. Whether their Knowledges resided in their memory, or in their life . . . —². 551.

W. 270. That all evils and falsities thence . . . reside in the natural mind. P.33².

P. 96³. The reason the Lord resides in these faculties with every man . . .

M. 161³. Nothing of conjugal love, nor even of the love of the sex, resides with the men . . .

216a. That conjugal love resides with chaste wives . . .

B. 40². Theological things reside in human minds over all other things . . . T.482.

T. 50. Love resides in wisdom like a king in his kingdom.

366². God resides in their supremes . . .

367². Charity resides in the will . . .

482. Theological things reside in the highest region of the mind . . .

494². In the highest region also resides man's love . . . and there principally resides his free will . . .

498. Free will . . . resides in the soul . . .

829. Religion resides in the supremes with man.

Residue. Residuum.

What is left. Residuus.

A. 407^e. A nucleus of a Church always remains . . .

So with the Most Ancient Church, a residue remained even to the Flood, and continued after it. This residue of the Church is called 'Noah.' 468².

468³. 'He that is left-relictus-in Zion, and He that remains in Jerusalem' (Is.iv.3). Ex.

—⁴. 'Ten' is predicated of residues.

—⁵. Here the residue is called 'a seed of holiness.'

661³. Although there was no life of faith left.

680^e. 'They that are left' (Is.vii.22)=remains.

1690. 'The rest fled into the mountain' (Gen.xiv.10) =that not all were overcome.

2177⁵. 'That which is left shall Aaron and his sons eat' (Lev.vi.15)=what is reciprocal of man, and appropriation . . .

3654³. 'Those left of His people' (Is.xi.16)=goods and truths which survive.

5897². 'Remains,' and 'residues,' in the Word. Ex. and Ill. 5899.

7646. 'The residue of what is . . . left-relictæ—from the hail' (Ex.x.5)=the truth not consumed by the former falsity.

7691. 'No green thing left' (ver.15)=everything sensitive of truth obliterated.

7861. 'What is left until the morning' (Ex.xii.10)=a middle state . . .

8478. 'Let no one leave-residuum faciat—of it until the morning' (Ex.xvi.19)=not to be solicitous to acquire it of themselves. Ex. —². 8480.

9276. 'What they leave-residuum eorum' (Ex.xxiii.11)=what has been left-relictum—by them. Ex.

T. 130^e. The rejection of the residue from the mother. Sig.

D. 4281. Vastated until little life is left. Ex.

E. 315¹⁶. 'Those left' (Is.xiv.30)=all things left-reliqua—of the Church. (=all things which are hatched from this principle. 386³.)

406¹³. Occurs. 413⁵. 532². —⁷. 569²². 619⁵, Ex. 654⁶⁶. 817⁹.

Resin. Resina.

A. 3263^e. Occurs.

4748. 'Spices, gum, and stacte' (Gen.xxxvii.25)=interior natural truths conjoined with good there. Ex. and Ill.

—². What the 'spices, gums, and stacte' here signify in special, may be evident from the other passages where they are mentioned. In general, they =interior truths in the Natural, but which are from good there . . .

—⁶. 'Resin' (Ezek.xxvii.17)=truth from good.

5620. 'A little resin, and a little honey' (Gen.xliii.11)=the truths of exterior natural good, and its delight. 'Resin'=the truth of good, or truth from good. The reason resin has this signification, is that it ranks among ointments, and also among aromatics. . . That this resin was aromatic, see Gen.xxvii.25; and on this account the same expression in the Original Language means balsam. That it was an ointment, or thickly oily, is evident. Hence it is that 'resin' = the truth of good which is in the Natural; in the present case, in the exterior Natural, because it is set in the first place . . .

5943. See FAT-pingue.

M. 77². All the houses (of those from the Copper Age) were of the wood of trees of resin.

Resist. Reniti, Contraniti.

Resistance. Renisus, Renitentia.

A. 5558. They observe whether it flows in without any spiritual resistance. For if the thing is not so a resistance from within is perceived. If no resistance is perceived by them, they suppose that it is so.

6559^e. (That they are good) is perceived from their resistance (to what is evil).

7342. Resistance from the will, and thence obstinacy. Sig. and Ex.

—². If a man has the affection of self and the world . . . he cannot resist it, for this would be to resist his own life . . .

8216. Resistance and impotence. Sig.

H. 83. See RESIST-resistere, here. 479².

479. When an Angel leaves his like there is constantly some resistance.

T. 6³. The heavenly aura resists. 173³.

61. See REPUGNANCE, here.

D. 1696. (He was subjected to motion (with resistance) . . .

3927. By infusing a resistance . . .

4194. They are driven to speak . . . with perception and thus resistance, or without much resistance . . .

5972. The preacher feels a resistance-renisus, so that he can scarcely say those things, and this with variety according to the resistance-renitentiam. Ex.

E. 973^e. Occurs.

Resist. Resistere.

Resistance. Resistentia.

A. 1270². When awake I could not resist them.

1661³. Attributes to himself the power by which he resists. . . He cannot resist any evil and falsity from his Own power. Ex.

1820^e. When evil Spirits perceive man to be such that he can resist, they flee . . .

1937⁵. They who do not resist in temptations from freedom, yield. Ex.

2294^e. The infants are (thus) inaugurated to resist . . .

3927. Resistance by the natural man. Sig. and Ex. 3928. 5650². 5828³.

6097². Hope and truths are the forces . . . from which man resists.

6420. Resistance by falsities. Sig.

6564². This influx . . . is resisted . . .

6574². The Lord . . . through Angels, is present with those in temptation, and resists . . .

6663. With the acknowledgment . . . that all the force of resisting was from the Lord.

6666². (The infernals) cannot possibly be resisted by any man, or Angel, but by the Lord alone. Ex.

7332². There is power in truths, insomuch that they cannot be resisted.

8172². He who believes, when tempted, that he can resist of his own forces, yields . . . But he who believes that the Lord alone resists, conquers. Ex.

8223². The good do not resist evil; for the laws of order defend . . .

8391. Man is erected by the Lord when he resists evil . . .

8393². Man can be withheld from evil (there), in proportion as he has resisted it (here).

8593². Genii never assault man . . . when he is in the vigour of resisting . . .

9049⁴. As evil has the penalty with it, it is said that we are 'not to resist evil' (Matt. v. 39). Ex.

—⁶. That we are 'not to resist evil' is because evil does no harm to those who are in truth and good; for they are safe from the Lord.

9836⁵. To resist. Sig.

10038². These evils altogether resist the Divine influx.

10481. Without all power of resisting the evils from Hell. Sig. and Ex.

—². Because all the power of resisting them is from the Divine; and therefore those who are separated from what is internal . . . have no power to resist them.

10685². When man is in temptations, he resists interiorly (because the Lord inflows from within). This interior resistance does not come to the apperception of the man . . .

H. 83. When (such) come (to the threshold of Heaven) there is perceived a resistance and a strong resistance-renisus.

230. If any Angel believes that he has power from himself, he . . . cannot resist one evil Spirit.

359^e. In proportion as man resists (these) evils, he is led by the Lord and not by himself; and the Lord then resists them with the man, and removes them.

455². The infernals said that they cannot resist the delight of their love . . .

479³. All Spirits can be led, provided they are kept in their reigning love, nor can they resist, however they think that they will resist-renisuri . . .

533². The difficulty of resisting evils increases, in proportion as a man does them from the will . . .

574. For no one in the Spiritual World can resist his own cupidity.

592². Therefore no Angel or Spirit can resist the evils continually exhaled from the Hells . . . To resist all the Hells . . . can be done by the Divine only . . .

Life 97. Let men resist evils in intention only once a week, or twice a month, and they will perceive a change.

W. 266. See REPUGNANCE, here. T. 61. D. Min. 4721^e.

P. 278a⁶. Why evils cannot be removed without the resistance, etc. of them. Ex.

281³. Unless he implores His aid, that he may be able to resist . . .

T. 68. For no one can resist evils and . . . falsities except God only. Ex. 123⁵.

408. When anyone who has charity resists an enemy . . . he does it by means of the external man.

438². Man ought to resist evils from the power given him by the Lord . . .

532². He repents truly . . . still more when he is in the delight from these evils, and is free to do them, and then resists and abstains.

538. That supplication for aid and power to resist evils ought to be made. Gen.art.

D. 152². I could not possibly resist (this general sphere).

2444. Occurs.

2888. That power to resist the evil, even with violence, is given. 2889, Ex.

2890. It is allowable for anyone to resist evil, when there is no other help at hand, but only with the mind to resist the evil, and not to hate him who does it, nor with a mind to exercise vengeance; for then from the Lord, through means suited to the moment, there is given him the force to resist, and a mind to resist, which resistance is ruled by the Lord. (But) they could not (understand) what it is to resist without hatred and vengeance . . .

2891. When a man who is a servant of the Lord seems to himself to resist from anger, it is such Spirits who operate this into him . . .

3039. Evil Spirits . . . wish that the good would never resist . . . But they were told that they cannot but resist, and that if no resistance were made, evil Spirits would abuse their goodness, and would try to destroy all; and therefore resistance is made . . .

3206. No one can resist unless the Lord protects. 4784².

E. 101. Resistance against those who attack the truths of faith. Sig.

105². Man's spirit cannot resist his will . . . or love.

556⁹. 'Resist not evil' = not to fight back again, or retaliate; for the Angels do not fight with the evil, still less retaliate evil for evil, but permit them to do it, because they are protected by the Lord.

711. The resistance of the natural. Sig.

748. Resistance and victory through Divine truth. Sig.

1164². Man must resist Hell, that is, evils, as of himself. If he does not resist as of himself, he remains in Hell, and Hell in him . . .

—^e. In the whole Spiritual World there is not an example of anyone being removed from evils except by combat or resistance as of himself . . .

1165. All who come into the Spiritual World are Known as to quality from this: whether they can resist evils as of themselves, or not. The former (only) are saved. The reason is that man cannot resist evils from himself, but from the Lord; for it is the Lord who resists the evils with man, and causes man to feel and perceive as if he did it from himself. Therefore, those who in the world have acknowledged the Lord, and that all good and truth are from Him . . . resist evils as of themselves; whereas those who have not acknowledged these things, cannot resist evils as of themselves; for they are in evils . . . and to resist the delight of the love is to resist themselves . . . Trial was made whether they could while the penalties of Hell . . . were seen by them, and also felt; but it was in vain . . .

—^e. (Thus) to resist evils is not done by man, but by the Lord with those who acknowledge Him . . .

1166². The reason the Lord alone resists evils with man, and not through any Angels, is that to resist the evils with man is of the Divine omnipotence, omniscience, and Providence. Ex.

Resolution. Resolutio. D.4751.

Resound. Obstreperc. T.112⁴.

Resound. Resonare.

A. 8313³. 'Their voice resounds like the sea' (Jer. vi. 23) = ratioecination thence. 355¹⁹.

E. 175⁹. 'To resound as the sea' = to persuade from the fallacies of the senses.

—¹². 'The sea and the main resounding' (Luke xxi. 25) = fallacies and the derivative reasonings. (= ratioecinations and assaults on truth from the sense of the letter wrongly applied. 304⁴⁷.)

Respect. Respectus.

See under LOOK BACK.

A. 2554². No regard for spiritual truth . . .

5511². When regard for self in uses expires.

7772. Respect for truth Divine now. Sig. . . Here, respect from fear. 7788.

7788. For the evil have not any respect for truth Divine, nor for the Divine itself, except that which they have from fear; for . . . those who love themselves only have no respect for another; for all the respect for others, even for the Divine Himself, they turn to themselves. Where there is love, there is respect; and where there is no love, there is no respect, except that which is from fear.

H. 509. There is no respect for persons (there). D.2514, Ex. 3503, Ex. 3928. 5843^e.

536. Such is the relation of Heaven to Hell, and of Hell to Heaven . . .

D. 3031. No respect at all is had (there) to those who have been parents, children . . . nor to dignities, riches, and the like things which are worldly.

3167. That respect for persons is observed (there), when they are good.

Respective. See RELATIVE.

Resplendence. See SPLENDOUR.

Respire. See BREATHE.

Response. See ANSWER.

Rest, Quiet. *Quies, Requies.

Rest, To. Quiescere, Requiescere.

Quiescence. Quiescentia.

See under SABBATH.

A. 63. The Lord does not rest until love acts as principal.

84. As combat then ceases, the Lord is said to 'rest from all His work;' and therefore the Sabbath was so called from 'rest.' 85.

85³. The Rest of the celestial man described by the Sabbath. III.

87. As the Lord alone has fought for man, it is said that He 'rested.'

851. 'The ark rested' (Gen.viii.4)=regeneration. Ex.

— The spiritual man, after he has undergone temptations, in like manner becomes 'the rest' of the Lord.

—^e. The rest of the celestial man is expressed by a word which means 'Sabbath,' but the rest of the spiritual man by another word, from which 'Noah' is named, which properly means 'rest.'

855. The spiritual man is a holy rest, from the new intellectual lumen which is of charity.

875. 'The dove found no rest for the sole of her foot' (ver.9)=that nothing of the good and truth of faith could as yet take root. Ex.

933³. When corporeal and voluntary things . . . are quiescent, the Lord operates . . . When the body is quiescent, he is in heat. —⁴.

1072². They never acquiesce, to eternity.

1581. There is no separation (of evil), but quiescence. . . . It seems to be separated when it is quiescent . . . Nor does it quiesce . . . except from the Lord; and when it thus quiesces, goods inflow from the Lord. . . With the Angels there is only a detention from evil, thus a quiescence . . .

2041³. When cupidities . . . are quiescent in (the unregenerate) . . .

—⁴. With the evil also . . . there is only a quiescence of corporeal and worldly things . . .

5051. In a quiet dream I saw . . .

— A very pleasant rest . . . affected me.

5114³. (The two lower degrees) are quiescent with (one in the Inmost Heaven), almost as the Corporeal is quiescent during sleep . . .

5141. (During) interior thought . . . the things below are quiescent.

5145³. Each degree is (then) a plane, in which rests . . . the good which inflows . . .

5945³. 'An odour of rest' (Lev.xvii.6, Num.xviii.17) = what is grateful from the good of love.

6391. 'He saw rest that it was good' (Gen.xlix.15)=the works of good without reward full of happiness. 'Rest'=the things which are of Heaven, thus which are in the good of charity, or in works of good without reward. . . For 'rest,' or 'peace,' in the supreme sense, =the Lord; in the relative, Heaven, and thus the good which is from Him; and as no others are in these things which are signified by 'rest,' or 'peace,' than those who are in the good of charity, thus in works of good without reward, these are signified by 'rest.' 6392, Further ex.

6451². Life inflows . . . and does not rest except in the ultimate of order, where it stands still—sistitur.

7684. '(The locust) rested in all the boundary (Ex.x.14)= . . . that falsity pervaded from the extremes.

7721^e. When those in Hell are in a quiet state . . .

8494. 'Rest' (Ex.xvi.23)=a state of peace, when there is no temptation; for a rest such as there was on the days of the Sabbath, was a representative of a state of peace, in which there is a conjunction of good and truth. Ex.

8495³. When the Angels are in this state, they have peace and rest; and the Lord also has rest; for, when they have been conjoined with Him, they labour no more . . . The Rest of the Lord is signified by (His Resting) on the seventh day. 8506, Ex.8510.

8517. 'Rest ye everyone under himself' (ver.29)=a state of peace. Ex.

8694³. The mind then Rests and is serene . . .

8893. 'And rested on the seventh day' (Ex.xx.11)=peace then, and the good of love. Ex.

—^e. As soon as the good of love has been implanted, combat ceases, and rest ensues; for the man is then introduced into Heaven . . .

9216. 'To sleep'=to rest; here, upon the external Sensuous. Ex.

— They cease in it, and thus rest upon it. (Thus) the interiors of the body rest upon the skin. The viscera of the abdomen rest upon the peritoneum.

—². So the things which relate to the Intellectual and Voluntary . . . rest upon the sensuous things which communicate with the world; for they cease in them.

—³. Moreover, all things progress from the First . . . to their ultimates, and there rest. . . Therefore the human race is the ultimate . . . in which Heaven ceases, and on which it rests.

—^e. How the case is with the resting—quiescentia—of interiors upon ultimates.

9274³. This state is what is meant by . . . the land resting (Lev.xxv.3-5). Ex.

9279. 'To cease,' or rest from works (Ex.xxiii.12)=the tranquillity of peace then. 9280.

9430². In (the ultimate) they cease and rest. —.

9922^e. The things of the external memory . . . then are quiescent. H.355. 464². N.51⁸.

10054. 'An odour of rest' (Ex.xxix.18)=a perceptivity of peace. H.287³, III. E.365^e.

10236². This Sensuous then is quiescent.

10367⁶. There is no rest from evils and falsities until good and truth have been conjoined. Then man has rest, and the Lord has rest; for man does not fight . . . but the Lord in him.

10374. 'On the seventh day He rested and breathed'

* Requies is distinguished by a capital R.

(Ex.xxxi.17)=a state of good when the Church has been instaurated, or when man has been regenerated. . . In the supreme sense, by . . . 'the rest and breathing of Jehovah' is signified the union of the Divine Itself and the Divine Human . . . Ex.

[A. 10374]². There was then a rest and breathing of Heaven . . .

—^e. Thus the rest of Jehovah = peace and salvation for the Angels and for men: to the latter when they are in good, and thereby in the Lord.

10567. 'I will cause thee (Moses) to rest' (Ex.xxxiii.14)=the external of the Church, etc., in which Divine interior things cease. . . 'To rest'=to Rest, and cease . . . Ex.

10668. 'On the seventh day thou shalt rest' (Ex.xxxiv.21)=the second state of regeneration, when man is in good, and then in peace.

10669. 'In ploughing and harvest thou shalt rest' (id.)=(the second state of regeneration) as to the implantation of truth in good, and its reception.

H. 400². Nor do they rest until they are in the Hells with their own.

403. No happiness consists in the fact that they rest.

411. Certain Spirits lapsed into quiet, as in sleep . . .

480². The ultimate plane . . . is then quiescent . . . and upon this plane the interiors . . . Rest, like a house on its foundation.

W. 160. Creation there . . . subsists in its rest.

302. Substances at rest . . .

304. Ultimates, which are relatively in a state of rest . . .

— . Cartilages and bones, upon which they rest and subsist.

P. 41. This communication (of the Natural with the Spiritual) is not felt except by a certain rest and peace of mind . . . especially after combats . . .

277a^e. The ultimates of life . . . after death, are quiescent . . .

R. 306. Internal Rest taken away. Sig. and Ex.

329. 'That they should Rest yet a little while' (Rev.vi.11)=that the Last Judgment would be delayed a little. E.396.

637. 'They shall have no Rest day and night' (Rev.xiv.11)=their perpetual state in undelightful things after death. (=continual infestation. E.890.) (Compare 247, E.285.)

639². 'They shall Rest from their labours' (ver.13)=that those who have been tempted will have peace in the Lord. 640. E.900.

640. By peace is meant the Rest of the soul when no longer infested as before by evils and falsities.

M. S. (The notion that) after death there is a plenary Rest from labours, and that this Rest consists in . . . 207. —³. T.694.

T. 33. (Three degrees) in the quiescent things of which the terraqueous globe consists.

—^e. The last (encompassing sphere) consists of quiescent things.

— . Human reason does not rest unless it sees the cause.

46. Into which He can extend His love, and exercise it, and so rest.

67^e. Love and wisdom (then) Rest as in their house.

301. The 'seventh day' represented His victory over the Hells, and thus rest. 302².

— . That day (then) became a day of instruction in Divine things, and thus also a day of rest from labours . . .

D. 1908. On a state of quiet of the lower mind . . . 2342.

2344. Those in a quiet state, that is, those whom the Lord keeps in a state of quiet (are safe) from evil Spirits . . .

2345. But a state of quiet is not a state of cupidities. A state of the cupidities in which a man is delighted, is the state of quiet of evil Spirits, and is turned, in the other life, into a turbulent state.

2880^e. When (evil Spirits) have hope of doing evil, they . . . are at rest . . . Thus they also have a quiet life, from hope.

3484. The things which cause gravity, rest, cold, etc.

3617. No happiness consists in being at rest.

4294. There was such a quiet (in the interior Heaven) as cannot be described.

4441^e. This was to them as a sweet rest.

4644. When the Angels with a man are in such things . . . there inflows with him . . . quiet, etc. of the lower mind; but when such things are not in the faith and affection of the man, there inflows inquietude, etc.

5548^e. Those in that Heaven have an external, like all Spirits, but it is quiescent with them . . . thus it is quiescent like a man's external when he is asleep. (See also 5549).

E. 365³⁵. As those in this peace are called 'the quiet,' it is said, 'quiet be those who love thee' (Ps.cxxii.6) . . . 'Quiet in thy palaces'=in the interior man.

—⁴⁰. 'Quietness' (Is.xxxii.17) is predicated of the peace therein. . . 'Tranquil quietnesses' (ver.18)=the delights of good and the pleasant things of truth.

375³⁴. 'Waters of quietnesses' (Ps.xxiii.2)=the truths of Heaven thence.

388¹¹. Occurs. 445⁴. 653⁴. 701²⁷. 727¹⁸. 731^e. 811²³. 1153³.

411. They have quiet in their evils and falsities . . .

684²⁸. 'Arise Jehovah to Thy Rest' (Ps.cxxxii.8)=the union of the Divine Itself with the Human, and thence peace. 700¹⁰.

700⁸. The 'resting' of the ark (Num.x.36)=the state after temptations when evils and falsities have been removed.

811²⁰. 'To give rest to the earth' (Jer.l.34)=protection from falsities.

Rest on. Inniti.

A. 9166⁵. Truth Divine . . . rests on the literal sense. 9349.

W. 284^e. Nothing for their wisdom to rest on.

Restore. Redintegrare.

Restoration. Redintegratio.

H. 315. In the ultimate . . . that which is of angelic wisdom . . . can be restored . . .

W. 93^e. The spiritual Sun by heat . . . redintegrates spiritual things.

P. 281^e. So that no place for restoration would be left with him.

T. 74⁴. When anything falls from order, God restores it.

5 M. 15^e. Occurs.

Restore. Restaurare.

Restoration. Restauratio.

A. 1241. That representative worship might be restored. 4449^e.

1343. Worship . . . such as was afterwards restored with the descendants of Jacob.

1366. Why the Lord's Church could not be restored with the Jews.

—². As a new Church was to be restored . . .

2243⁶. A fourth Church was afterwards renewed with the descendants of Jacob.

2417^e. In order that the doctrine of charity may be restored.

9470³. The restoration of the Church by the Lord. Tr. 10582⁶. E. 239⁶. 280¹⁰. 304¹⁹. 329¹⁰. 376⁶. 391¹⁷. 654²⁴. 721¹⁰.

9594⁶. To restore the goods and truths of the external Church. Sig.

P. 9. It is of the Divine Providence that . . . the marriage of good and truth be thus restored.

M. 320². Necessaries which may be renewed by (a second marriage).

B. 63^e. The time of the New Church, when there is fulness and restoration.

T. 9². In order to restore the worship of one God.

74⁴. When the Church fell from order, He restored it; and, when it had totally fallen, He . . . by the assumed Human, put on omnipotence, and restored—restituit—it.

E. 538⁴. The restoration of the Church and of doctrine. Sig.

721¹¹. To restore the Church. Sig. 724¹⁹.

Restore. Restituere.

Restoration. Restitutio.

A. 310. So that in the other life (their mind) can scarcely be restored.

649^e. 'Restitution' (Lev. v. 16, etc.). Tr.

927². Thus (the antediluvians) became such that they could not be restored. (That is, regenerated. 933^e.)

—^e. Thus (by the capability of being regenerated as to the intellectual part) man has been restored.

1228². The internal Church perverted . . . and restored. Tr.

1855. The time and state of restoration. Sig. 1856.

2162¹⁰. When internal worship is restored.

2694. The restoration of the spiritual. Tr.

5611. That (interior truth) should be altogether restored to the Church. Sig.

8753³. The perversion . . . and restoration of the truth of the Church. Tr.

8970. What is the penalty, and what the restoration. Tr.

9031. Restoration by interpretation. Sig. and Ex. 9032^e.

9082. That the internal man shall restore it to the full. Sig.

9097. Restoration to entirety. Sig.

9103². 'Five' = the restoration of exterior good to what is much; and 'four,' the restoration of interior good to the full. The reason interior good is to be restored to the full, is that this good makes man's spiritual life; and, unless his spiritual life is restored to the full, exterior good, which makes the natural life, cannot be restored; for the latter life is restored through the former . . . But the good in the Natural cannot be restored to the full . . .

9123. Injuries inflicted on the truth of faith and good of charity, and their amendment and restoration. Tr. 9130.

9133. If anything of good and truth is left through which it can be restored. Sig. and Ex.

9137. Restoration to the full. Sig. 9152. (Compare 9161.)

9142. Restoration from goods and truths still uninjured. Sig.

9147. Restoration of the things taken away through anger . . . Sig.

9152. The loss of the truth of faith . . . thus of spiritual life, and its restoration. Tr.

9170. The restoration of truth to good, in place of that taken away. Sig.

9178. If the good of truth be there together, there shall be no restoration. Sig.

9213. That scientific truths which have disappeared through fallacies are to be restored before there is a state of shade from the delights of external loves. Sig. and Ex. —².

9228². The plenary restoration of good and truth in the Church. Sig.

9396¹². Restoration by the Divine truth proceeding from the Divine Human. Sig.

W. 269^e. This is not restored in the descendants except by shunning evils as sins.

T. 74⁴. See RESTORE—restaurare, here.

117. Like a just king who . . . restores the spoil to his subjects.

—². The restoration of the garden to its state of efflorescence . . .

508^e. I returned the paper.

D. 4151. He said he would restore (the things stolen). . . I said that he ought to restore them.

[D.] 4454. The other part (of the mind) which was restored, is now destroyed in them.

D. Min. 4649. If (these Spirits) were removed, man would be at once restored.

4650. (The diseased) pray that they may be restored, and say that they have been restored by God.

E. 219³. The restoration of the Church. Tr.

304³². 'To restore the earth' (Is. xlix. 8) = to restore—restaurare—the Church. That the Lord has not restored the earth to the Jewish people, is known. 701⁶.

413². Then the Lord intensifies his power from the Sun . . . to restore the state which is labouring.

475¹⁸. 'His flesh was restored' (2 Kings v. 14) = the spiritual life such as it is in those who are being regenerated . . .

595^e. The restoration and instauration of a new Church, called the Ancient Church . . .

Coro. (Prefixed to.) IV. Restoration, and the New Church ; its nature.

Restrain. Coercere.

See under REPRESS, and WITHHOLD.

A. 1547. The pleasures originating in lusts are to be restrained . . .

7280². As they cannot be restrained by internal fear, they are kept in bonds by external fear.

8293. So long as they are in this world, they are restrained through fear . . .

9096. To keep in bonds, means to check and restrain ; spiritual bonds are affections, for these are what lead man, and what restrain him.

H. 380^e. In the other life the interiors are no longer restrained by external things . . .

506². They are separated from the external things which had restrained and checked them in this world. 507.

508⁶. Still their insanity is restrained by the Lord.

509². The Spirit now acts from his nature, which cannot be restrained or broken except through punishments.

536^e. Unless the same Lord restrained the assaults of the Hells . . .

543. Whereby the general endeavour issuing from the Hells is checked and restrained . . .

—^e. The only means of restraining the violence and fury of those who are in the Hells, is the fear of punishment.

581. The reason why torments in the Hells are permitted, is that evils cannot be otherwise restrained and subdued.

M. 450. That with some the love of the sex cannot be wholly restrained . . . without injury. Ex.

459^e. These things are not said to those who can restrain the heat of lust.

T. 497. That the doing of evil, in both worlds, has been restrained by laws, otherwise society in both would perish. Gen. art. 498².

D. 2206. On those who restrain the turpitudes of Spirits.

2322^e. Occurs.

Restrain. Sufflaminare.

A. 4311³. When evil Spirits are restrained from the love of self . . .

Coro. 12. Its good is either clogged or adulterated.

Restriction. Restrictio. D. 2965. 3443. 4121.

Result. Resultare. M. 290.

Resurrection. Resurrectio.

Rise again. Resurgere.

See under BURY, and RESUSCITATE.

A. 14. After His resurrection they called Him 'Lord.' 2921⁶. 4973⁵, Ex.

720. On account of His resurrection on the third day.

901. There is a reason why the Lord rose again on the third day. The Lord's resurrection itself involves all holiness, and the resurrection of all, and therefore this number became representative . . . In Heaven . . . instead of 'three' and 'seven' they have a general holy idea of the Lord's resurrection and Advent.

—⁴. Jonah . . . represented the Lord's . . . resurrection on the third day.

—⁵. 'The third day' (Hos. vi. 2) = the Lord's Advent and resurrection. 2788².

1729². With the Lord all is Jehovah . . . even the body itself, and therefore He alone rose again into Heaven with the body also. Ill.

1850. Do not believe that the dead will rise again till that time . . . and thus confirm themselves . . . that they will not rise again. 4527².

1880². At heart did not believe that the dead will rise again.

1886, Pref. For few believe in the resurrection, and fewer of the learned than of the simple.

—². Say they would believe if anyone rose again from the dead . . .

— . Some say they believe they will rise again, but on the day of the Last Judgment . . .

—³. The Sadducees openly denied the resurrection, and did better than those at this day, who say they do not deny it . . . yet deny it at heart.

— . It has been given me to speak with Souls who had risen again not long after death.

2083^e. His whole body was made Divine . . . as may be evident from the fact that He alone rose again from the dead as to the body.

2119. Every man after death rises again into the other life, and is presented before the Judgment . . . As soon as his corporeal things become cold, which takes place after some days, he is resuscitated by the Lord by means of celestial Angels . . .

2405^e. Hence the Lord's resurrection on the third day in the morning involves all these things . . . in that He rises again daily in the minds of the regenerate, and even every moment.

2813³. That the Lord rose again on the third day, also involves that truth Divine, or the Word as to the internal sense . . . in the consummation of the age . . . will be resuscitated.

2916. Instead of a sepulchre, the Angels perceive continuation of life, and thus resurrection; for man rises again as to his spirit . . . And as burial=resurrection, it also=regeneration; for regeneration is man's first resurrection; for he then dies as to the former man, and rises again as to the new. —⁵. —⁶.

—². In the opposite sense, 'a sepulchre'=death, or Hell, because the evil do not rise again to life.

—⁴. (This) involves resurrection, because of the Lord's resurrection; and, in the interior sense, every resurrection.

2917. That thus (the Lord) would emerge and rise again from the night which was with them. Sig.

— From this state of ignorance . . . the Lord emerges and rises again with man, when He is acknowledged. . . He rises again with everyone who is being regenerated.

2931. That they wanted to emerge from night and rise again. Sig. 2948.

3016^e. Burial=resurrection because it is a plenary putting off.

3908. That thus it would not rise again. Sig. and Ex.

—^e. For whoever has not . . . truths and goods . . . is among the dead who do not rise again, namely, to life, or Heaven.

3916. 'To be built'=to rise again, or to live.

3993¹¹. If one is ignorant that man rises again after death, and hence does not believe in the resurrection, or, if he knows of it, but still doubts, and almost denies it, and yet lives in truth and good, with this falsity also good and truth may be mingled . . .

4459². They believe that unless they will rise again with the body no resurrection is possible, and therefore it has been permitted that they should have such an opinion about the resurrection . . . 4783⁴.[?]

4783⁴. Those in faith separate cannot but believe that they will rise again with the body, and not until the day of Judgment. (Scriptural proofs to the contrary.)

4807^e. Those who care for heavenly things know that the time of resurrection is for everyone when he dies.

5078². The Lord made the very Corporeal in Himself Divine, both its sensuous things and its recipients, and therefore He rose again from the sepulchre with the body, and therefore after His resurrection said . . . 'See My hands and My feet . . . a Spirit hath not flesh and bones as ye see Me have.'

—³. Most believe . . . that everyone will rise again at the last day, and with the body; which opinion is so universal . . . because the natural man supposes that it is the body alone which lives; and therefore unless he believed that the body was again to receive life, he would deny the resurrection altogether. But the case is that man rises again immediately after death, and then appears to himself in a body exactly as in the world. Ex.

—⁵. Who does not know what the Lord taught concerning the resurrection, that 'He is not the God of the dead, but of the living'?

—⁶. Man knows these things, and so thinks and speaks when he is thinking and speaking from his spirit; but when from doctrine, he says that he will not rise again before the last day; when yet it is the last day for everyone when he dies. 10758².

—^e. No man rises again with the body with which he was encompassed (here); but the Lord alone [did so] because He made His body Divine while He was (here).

6221. 'To die'=resurrection into life . . .

— For regeneration is resurrection into life . . . When a man has been regenerated, he becomes alive, and a son of the resurrection. 6554².

—². A man who longs for Heaven . . . thinks no otherwise about death . . . than as being resurrection into life . . .

— Therefore, when the subject treated of in Heaven is resurrection, or regeneration, and this falls downwards . . . it falls into the like things.

6393³. 'Recompense in the resurrection of the just' (Luke xiv. 14)=internal happiness from doing well without reward . . .

6400². Believes that . . . man cannot rise again unless he receives his body again.

—^e. When they think these things, they easily recede from faith concerning the resurrection.

6516. Hence with the Jews who believe in the resurrection, there remains the opinion that although buried elsewhere they will rise again in Canaan. T.845.

6945². Therefore, unless they believed that the body will be again conjoined with the soul, they would not believe in any resurrection at all.

—^e. Therefore they could not be taken out of the Lower Earth, and elevated into Heaven, until after the Lord's resurrection.

6993. He became the Divine good as to the Human . . . after His resurrection.

7090. (Those in the Lower Earth) were carried into Heaven with the Lord when He rose again.

7802^e. Therefore, unless man could now have faith that he will rise again with the body, he would have no faith concerning the resurrection.

7828². (The spiritual in the Lower Earth) were liberated when the Lord rose again. 7932a. 8018². 9197².

—^e. That the glorification and resurrection of the Lord as to His Human is the source of all Salvation. Sig.

7931². This is the order which was in Heaven from the time when the Lord from His Divine Human began to dispose all things in Heaven and on earth, which was immediately after the resurrection (Matt.xxviii. 18).

10252^e. These things signify the Lord's Divine life in the Sensuous, which is the life proper to the body, and also the resurrection of this. That the Lord rose again with the whole body which He had in the world, differently from other men, is known; for He left nothing in the sepulchre. Ill. 10825. 10826. T.109².

10591. (The Doctrine of the resurrection of man.) Gen.art. N.223.

[A.] 10595. It is this continuation of life which is meant by the resurrection. The reason men believe that they will not rise again until the last day . . . is that they have not understood the Word . . .

10738⁵. As there was such a union . . . in the Lord, He rose again not only as to the soul, but also as to the body, which He glorified in the world . . .

10758. I spoke with the Spirits of (the Fifth) Earth about the faith of the inhabitants of our Earth concerning the resurrection . . .

—². Therefore, unless the body was said to rise again, they would reject at heart the doctrine concerning the resurrection . . . But still this idea about the resurrection has this use in it, that they believe in a life after death . . .

H. 76². After His resurrection, the Lord was seen (with the eyes of the spirit). R. 36⁵. M. 31^e. E. 53².

312². In order that the man of the Church may not continue in his erroneous faith as to the resurrection . . . I have spoken with some two days after their decease, (who) said that (those on earth) did well to reject that which had served them for a body . . . and they wished me to say that they were not dead . . . and that they had only migrated from one world into another . . . since they are in a body with its senses as before. Further ex. —⁴. —⁵.

316. The reason the Lord rose again not only as to the spirit, but also as to the body, is that He glorified His whole Human when He was in the world . . . Hence it is that He, differently from any man, rose again as to both. Ill.

447. See RESUSCITATE, here.

449^e. There was . . . as it were a pulling out of the interiors of my mind . . . from the body. . . This is from the Lord ; and thence is the resurrection.

456². (Origin of the prevalent doctrine of the resurrection.)

J. 24³. Hence originated the vain idea about man's resurrection, that bodies eaten up by worms and fishes, and fallen away to dust, are to be collected together, and reunited to their souls . . .

59⁴. These constituted the former Heaven, and they are meant by those who are not of the first resurrection (Rev. xx. 5, 6) ; but . . . that Heaven was destroyed, and those of the second resurrection were cast out.

—^e. The New Heaven is formed of these, who are meant by those who are of the first resurrection. C.J. 31.

C. J. 4. (Notions about the state of the soul while waiting for the resurrection of the body.) 6.

L. 16⁶. That the Lord rose again on the third day, signified the glorification. T. 130^e.

35⁹. As the Lord's Human was glorified . . . therefore He rose again on the third day after death with the whole body ; which does not take place with any man, for man rises again only as to the spirit . . . That man might know, and no one doubt, that the Lord rose again with the whole body, He not only said it by the Angels who were in the sepulchre, but also showed Himself in His human body before His disciples, saying . . .

W. 221². As the Lord had fully glorified the natural Human even to its ultimates, He therefore rose again with the whole body, differently from any man.

R. 845^e. This is meant by 'the graves being opened, and the dead rising again.'

851. 'This is the first resurrection' (Rev. xx. 5) = that Salvation and eternal life is, primarily, to worship the Lord, and to live according to His precepts in the Word . . . Ex.

—². 'Resurrection' = Salvation and eternal life ; and 'first' does not mean a first resurrection, but what is essential and primary of resurrection . . . For there is only one resurrection to life . . . and therefore no second resurrection is mentioned. For those once conjoined with the Lord, are conjoined with Him to eternity . . . for He says, 'I am the resurrection and the Life . . .'

852. 'Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection' (ver. 6) = that those who come into Heaven have the happiness of eternal life, and illustration through conjunction with the Lord. . . By 'the first resurrection' is signified elevation into Heaven by the Lord, and thus Salvation.

M. 28². I have related thousands of things about the departed . . . and I have never heard anyone say, How can such be their lot when they have not yet risen again out of their graves . . .

30. That Angels and Spirits are men, may be evident (also) from . . . the Lord Himself being seen . . . after His resurrection. 31^e, Ex.

41. That spiritual nuptials are meant by . . . that after the resurrection they are not given in marriage. Ex.

—². These are called . . . 'sons of the resurrection' (Luke xx. 36).

532³. (The current doctrine of the resurrection, stated.)

T. 170². That in Him is all the fulness of the God-head, is evident from . . . (that) when He rose again, He took from the sepulchre His whole Human Body, both as to the flesh and as to the bones . . .

Ad. 2/1372. These words ('to be gathered to his people') involve the first resurrection. Ex. 1374-1379.

1380. But, as to the second resurrection . . . 1405.

1404. On death and resurrection. Gen. art.

D. 322. That the love . . . of God alone effects that man rises again after death.

— . This is the sole cause of the resurrection of man ; for love has in it such an efficacy that it can only be expressed by a drawing. 328.

1104. As soon as the interior corporeal things grow cold, the vital substances are separated from the man, wherever they are, even if enclosed in a thousand labyrinths ; for such is the efficacy of the Lord's resurrection, that is, of His mercy, that it is no otherwise than as a living and mighty attraction . . . and therefore nothing of vital substance can remain in the corporeal and material things . . . A. 179.

2339. This opinion carries with it that scarcely anyone believes in the resurrection.

4500². She had plotted . . . that they should not rise again.

4891. On the first and second resurrection. 5186. 5203.

5099. (The resurrection of Count Brahe, who was decapitated, took place within 12 hours.)

5553. In order that the Divine might rule all things . . . the Lord . . . assumed the Human, and rose again with the Human even to its ultimates . . .

5556^e. As man in the Christian world is such, he has been permitted to believe that the body would rise again at some last judgment; otherwise all who had thought from their Intellectual, would have rejected the doctrine concerning the resurrection; on the rejection of which everything of the Church and of Heaven perishes with man.

5680. (This) life of man after death (is not believed in) if the resurrection is thought of.

5749². Those of the first resurrection were not such.

5752. Why in the Christian world they have not believed in a state of resurrection after death. (The reasons enum.)

5761^e. All these were of the second resurrection. (See also LAST JUDGMENT, at D.5763.)

5837. On the resurrection.—I spoke with the following persons three days after death . . . They were present at and saw their obsequies.

D. Min. 4773. See POLHEM, here.

E. 430^e. The same are meant by those who are of the first resurrection, and the rest who are of the second resurrection (Rev.xx.4-6).

655¹⁰. 'The third day He shall rise again' (Matt.xx. 19)=the plenary glorification of the Lord's Human.

659¹³. 'To go forth out of the monuments'=out of the material body, which first takes place with everyone immediately after death, and afterwards when the Last Judgment comes forth, for then the exteriors are removed, and the interiors are opened in all with whom this had not been done before. Those with whom the interiors are heavenly, rise again into life; but those with whom they are infernal, rise again into death, which is meant by 'those who have done goods shall go forth into the resurrection of life, but those who have done evils, into the resurrection of judgment' (John v. 29). 899⁹.

—¹⁵. 'The monuments being opened, and many bodies of them that slept appearing' (Matt.xxvii.52)= . . . the regeneration and resurrection of the faithful to life; not that those bodies themselves . . . rose again; but that they appeared in order that both regeneration and resurrection to life by the Lord might be signified. By the same words are also meant those who are called 'the bound in the pit,' whom the Lord (then) liberated . . . 899¹⁰.

—¹⁶. The representation by 'burial' of resurrection into Heaven. Ill. —¹⁹.

—¹⁹. The Lord glorified His whole Human . . . and therefore, with it glorified . . . He rose again on the third day. Unless this had been done, no man could have risen again to life; for resurrection to life man has solely from the Lord . . .

—²⁰. Therefore non-burial= . . . resurrection to Hell, consequently damnation. Ill.

899. 'Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord . . . '=the resurrection into eternal life of those who live a life of charity. Ex.

—³. That 'death'=resurrection. Ex.

—⁸. Not only resurrection into life by natural death, but also by spiritual death. Sig. Resurrection into life is effected by reformation and regeneration . . .

—¹¹. Resurrection from the dead, in both a natural and a spiritual sense, was represented by the dead whom the Lord resuscitated. Ill.

—¹². Regeneration, which is also a resurrection from the dead, was represented by the vivification of the bones (Ezek.xxxvii.)

—¹⁴. As men rise again after death, the Lord willed to undergo death, and to rise again on the third day. Ex.

1198³. The metamorphoses of insects . . . a representative of man's resurrection.

Ath. 162. Thus the Lord, thoroughly and clearly glorified, rose again with the Human . . .

J. (Post.) 87. Therefore He could glorify the whole body, so that as to that body which by those who are born of men as parents is rejected and putresces, with Him glorified and made Divine from the Divine in Himself . . . He rose again, leaving nothing in the sepulchre . . .

90. I spoke with Mohammedans about the resurrection: that Christians believe . . .

129². He rejected that of the body which He took from the mother: He therefore rose again as to the whole body, nor did He leave anything of it in the sepulchre, as is done with every other man, who rises again only as to the spirit, and never as to his material body.

D. Wis. vii. 4. When the motions (of the heart and lungs) cease in the body, the natural things which are material are separated from the spiritual things which are substantial, for they cannot perform together the same work; and therefore that which is the agent itself, which is spiritual, recedes from all the several things which were being actuated, which are natural, and thus the man becomes another man. This is the death of man, and this is his resurrection. H.446.

5 M. 4. (Man's resurrection from the dead, his introduction to the Spiritual World, and his first experiences there. Fully des.)

Inv. 56. The Lord rose again with the whole natural or external man, and left nothing of it in the sepulchre; and therefore He said that He had bones and flesh, which Spirits have not; and [hence it is] that He ate and drank with the disciples of natural foods . . .

Resuscitate. Exsuscitare.

Resuscitation. Exsuscitatio.

See ROUSE-suscitare.

A. 72. How man is resuscitated from the dead.

324. A new Church resuscitated. Tr. 1834². 2853³. 2901. 2910^e. 2912. 6588².

2916⁴. That the Lord resuscitated Lazarus from the dead, involves the resuscitation--resuscitationem--of a new Church from the gentiles.

[A.] 4618. Resuscitation in the Divine Natural. Sig. —², Ex.

—'. 'To expire and die' = resuscitation. Refs.

—'. The continuation of the representation in another, thus resuscitation.

6554. 'To bury' = regeneration, also resurrection, and also the resuscitation and instauration of the Church. . . . When the Church is resuscitated and instaured with man, it is effected through regeneration. (Compare 6555.)

6557. Apperception that the Church was resuscitated. Sig. and Ex.

8018². Their liberation (from the Lower Earth) was manifested by the resuscitation of the dead from the monuments (Matt. xxvii. 52).

H. 332. As soon as infants have been resuscitated, which takes place immediately after death, they are carried into Heaven . . .

391. There are (Societies) which are present with those who are being resuscitated from the dead.

493^e. The things told him by the Angels when he was resuscitated.

567. The heat of the body which is excited by the heat of its spirit.

E. 659¹⁹. The Divine truth makes the life of Heaven into which man is resuscitated. Sig.

Resuscitate. Resuscitare.

Resuscitation. Resuscitatio.

Resuscitable. Resuscitabilis.

A. 39². When the Lord resuscitates into life, or regenerates, man . . .

70. How it is with man when he is being resuscitated . . .

168. On the resuscitation of man from the dead. Gen. art. D. 300. 1092.

169. The things which happen to those who are being resuscitated. Des. 170-181. H. 449.

181. The man thus resuscitated by the celestial Angels is as yet in an obscure life.

182. Continuation: on the entrance of a resuscitated one into eternal life. Gen. art.

—'. When Celestial Angels are with a resuscitated one, they do not leave him . . . Spiritual Angels (then) approach and give him the use of light, for until now he has seen nothing, but has only thought. (Their action des. 183-185). H. 450.

186. [The resuscitated one] then sets out in life; which at first is happy and glad . . .

187. He is (at first) among Angels, and so appears to himself to be in the flower of early manhood.

314. After the use of light is given to the resuscitated one . . . the spiritual Angels render him all kindly services . . . and instruct him . . . so far as he can apprehend; and, if he has been in faith, and longs for it, they show him the wonderful and magnificent things of Heaven.

315. But if the resuscitated one, or Soul, does not want to be instructed, he desires to be out of the company of Angels. (His further course des. 316-319. 2119.)

1518. When the celestial Angels are with the corpse of a dead man, who is to be resuscitated . . .

2119. See RESURRECTION, here. 2813³. E. 899¹¹.

2289. All infants who die are resuscitated by the Lord . . .

2595. A choir of Gentiles who had been resuscitated three or four days . . .

2762³. Those resuscitated after death . . . see represented to them a young man sitting on a horse . . . Ex.

2901. 'Burial' = resuscitation.

2913³. The resuscitation of the Spiritual Church by the Lord. Tr.

2916⁴. See RESUSCITATE-excusitare, here.

2923. That they would thus emerge from night and be resuscitated into life. Sig. 2925. 2948. 2961.

5551. Without hope of resuscitation (of the Church). Sig.

—'. 'Sepulchre' = resurrection and regeneration, thus resuscitation, namely, of the Church.

—². 'That sepulchre' = resuscitation, Ex.

5573³. (The resuscitation of a dead man would not have convinced them.)

6400². If they are told that it is the interior man . . . who is resuscitated by the Lord when the body dies . . . they cannot apprehend.

6516. That the Church is to be resuscitated. Sig. and Ex.

6517. The resuscitation of the Church by the Internal. Sig. 6519.

6555. To resuscitate the Church. Sig.

8902⁸. When a new Church is resuscitated, on the perishing of the old one. Sig.

H. 445. On the resuscitation of man from the dead. Chapter.

447. After the separation, the spirit remains a short time in the body, but no longer than until the total cessation of the heart, which takes place with variety according to the state of disease from which the man dies; for with some the motion of the heart lasts long, and with some not long. As soon as this motion ceases, the man is resuscitated; but this is done by the Lord alone. By resuscitation is meant the drawing out of the man's spirit from the body, and its introduction into the Spiritual World, which is commonly called the resurrection. Ex.

457. The spirit of man . . . first enters the World of Spirits . . . shortly after his resuscitation. (His first state there, des.)

S. 17⁴. That they were resuscitated = that those became alive who otherwise would have spiritually perished.

R. 56. 'Saying unto me, Fear not' = resuscitation. Ex.

M. 78^e. This love . . . will be resuscitated, because it is resuscitable.

D. 1289. Occurs.

2389. The Knowledges they had . . . are easily resuscitated.

2812. When they resuscitate this in themselves (there). —.

3655. On the resuscitated who were spiritually dead.

3984. [The idea] was resuscitated that . . .

—². To teach Spirits to resuscitate them, also the dead.

4157. On a certain resuscitated woman.

5099. On those who are resuscitated from the dead. (Brahe) was decapitated at 10 a.m., and was seen, and spoke with me at 10 p.m., thus twelve hours after, and afterwards continually for some days. After two days he began to return to his previous state of life . . . and after three days he became as he had been in the world . . .

D. Min. 4702. On the resuscitation of the dead. Twice or thrice I was let into a place where there is the resurrection of the dead . . . It is known from the fact that something balsamic is perceived from the corpses when the Lord and the celestial Angels are present. . . The Lord is especially present there, and therefore celestial Angels are there; for, without such presence of the Lord, there would be no resuscitation of the dead.

4773. Concerning one who was resuscitated shortly after death . . . Polhem died on Monday, and spoke with me on Thursday . . . He heard when the priest said that he would be resuscitated at the Last Judgment, when yet he had already been resuscitated . . .

E. 659²⁰. As 'burial' = both resuscitation into life, and regeneration . . .

D. Wis. viii⁵. The resuscitation of plants from ashes, a type.

Retain. Retinere.

Holding back, A. Retentio.

A. 1390. Some Spirits retain these things; some do not.

1742². They retain this from their life (here).

1876. The Angels retain no idea of any person . . .

1877. Those in the World of Spirits . . . especially the evil, at first retain the things they had (here) . . .

2490. In the interior memory are retained all things. They who are in falsity . . . and evil, retain all things which agree therewith . . . Other things enter, but are so slightly retained . . . Whereas they who are in truth . . . and good, retain all things true and good . . .

3318⁵. A (regenerate) man retains the inclination to evil, and evil itself; but is withheld from evil . . .

4989^e. He (there) retains nothing from the historicals of the Word.

6812. (The Knowledges) they have once acquired they retain . . . Thus (Spirits) retain what they hear, see, and apperceive, most especially such things as they are delighted with. D. 3234. 3258. 3259.

H. 343. The Spirits could not restrain themselves from leading the infants to speak.

W. 72. (Otherwise) these things . . . can be understood, but not retained . . .

243^e. After they had heard these arcana and perceived them . . . they retained nothing.

244. If (the man) is in any affection of knowing, he understands these things, and also retains them.

R. 188. 'Hold fast what thou hast' (Rev. iii. 11) = that meanwhile they should remain steadily in their truths and good. E. 173. 217.

343. 'Holding back the four winds of the earth . . . ' (Rev. vii. 1) = a stronger influx . . . which is kept back—retentum—by the Lord. E. 304⁵⁸. 418.

346. The holding back of the influx. Sig.

655⁷. Every devil can understand truth when he hears it, but cannot retain it. Ex. M. 415³. T. 77³.

M. 132⁶. How can man receive anything of love and wisdom, and retain it . . . unless he feels it as his own?

495. Still, he retains the faculty of elevating the understanding. The reason he retains it, is . . .

T. 50⁵. I could no longer restrain my laughter.

D. 1662. His memory retains every particular . . .

2307. They who have accustomed themselves to speak filthy things, (there) retain like things.

2991. They want to retain him, and strive with all their might to retain him.

3117. He was detained a moment . . . He perceived that if he had not been detained . . .

3486. He took away all understanding . . . I could not retain the least item.

4036. The man feels . . . a kind of holding back.

Retaliation. Talio.

A. 1011². (This) is a law—jus—of retaliation well known to the ancients. (The principles from which it originates.) S214. S223. R. 762².

S214. The evil . . . cast themselves into the penalty of retaliation, which is, that the falsities and evils which they try to inflict relapse upon themselves.

S223. The laws of retaliation, quoted. 9049⁴.

—². The like, or retaliation, when there is evil, is inflicted by the evil, and never by the good. Ex.

R. 762². The evils they have done against God do this . . . for this is the law of retaliation . . .

T. 309². If the fear of retaliation and revenge were taken away . . .

D. 2776. That evil has in it the penalty of retaliation.

2905. 2913. 3037.

E. 556⁸. From this flows the penalty of retaliation, which was dictated to the sons of Israel because they were external men . . .

1114. To retribute according to the law of retaliation. Sig. and Ex.

Retard. See HINDER—retardare.

Reticent, To be. Reticere. Ad. 3/566I. D. 5633.

Reticular. See under NET.

Retire. See under RECEDE.

Retorsion. Retorsio.

Retort, To. Retorquere.

A. 829². (The penalty of) contorsions and retorsions . . .

W. 254². Like the retorsion of a spiral. 263². M. 203 -contorquetur.

268². Cannot by any inversion or retorsion be reduced into a state opposite . . .

P. 319⁴. As the turning cannot be twisted back . . . he so remains to eternity. 338⁷.

D. 2889. Retorting the evil upon them . . .

2913. Evil is retorted upon (the evildoer) . . . for such as is the evil . . . such is the evil retorted upon him . . . They were the cause of this evil, and it was retorted upon them. 3037.

3918. (A representation) of falsity by a retorsion of the forms.

4097. As soon as they acted [upon her], she retorted herself . . .

Retort. Retortus.

T. 141. As fire sublimes the matters in retorts.

Retract. See under DRAW BACK.

Retribution. See under RECOMPENSE.

Retrograde. Retrogradus. M. 401^e.

Return. Reddere.

R. 762. 'Render unto her as she hath rendered unto you' (Rev. xviii. 6) = their just recompense and penalty after death. E. 1114.

E. 433¹¹. Occurs. 527⁵.

1114. To return a penalty which corresponds to the evil deeds. Sig.

Return. Redire.

Return. Reditio.

Income. Reditus.

A. 561². Every state of man returns (there.) 1618^e. 1906, Ex. 2116². D. 4109, Ex. 4481.

823. Whatever a man has done (here), returns successively (there), nay, whatever he has thought. When enmities, hatreds, etc. return, the persons . . . are presented . . .

—^e. With the evil all their evil deeds and thoughts return, to the life; but with the good . . . all their states of good . . . with the highest delight and happiness. 868^e.

2121. Every such person returns into his life . . .

3336². When a like affection returns, the Thing recurs.

4031³. He (then) returns to his former affections . . .

4805^e. According to a law (there) it returns upon themselves.

5481. '(Joseph) returned to them . . .' (Gen. xlii. 24) = influx.

5614. 'To return' (Gen. xliii. 10) = to live thence.

10489. 'To pass through and return' (Ex. xxxii. 27) = to survey and look round from one end to the other.

H. 256. The opinion (that) after thousands of years they will return into their former life.

509^e. But good Spirits are never punished . . . for their evils do not return.

W. 167. The end of creation is that all things may return to the Creator. Ex. 171^e.

316². A return is (thus) made to their primes.

M. 287. His property and income.

B. 117². He thus returned into His Divine . . . T. 3. Can. Redeemer viii.

T. 112^e. Thus . . . I returned into the natural world.

D. 2293². The state they are in . . . returns together with the truths. Therefore, when a like Truth returns, or is recalled . . . the sadness also returns.

3973. He who intends what is good and true, the good returns to him . . .

4198. They want . . . through man to return into the world. Des. 4207. 4225.

4384. How the states of evil of the upright return there. Ex.

E. 700⁸. 'To return' (Num. x. 36) = the presence of the Lord then.

852⁹. 'To go out from the Father, and to return to the Father' (John xiii. 3) = to come forth from Him and to be united to Him . . .

1207^e. That all things may return to the First. D. Wis. viii⁵.

Return. Reverti.

A. 2193. 'In returning I will return to thee . . .' (Gen. xviii. 10) = the conjunction of the Divine with the Human.

2856. 'To return to them' (Gen. xxii. 19) = to be conjoined.

3652⁷. 'Let him not return back to take his garment' (Matt. xxiv. 18) = let those in good not betake themselves to what is doctrinal.

4094. 'To return to the land' (Gen. xxxi. 13) = to betake himself more nearly to Divine good.

4217. 'To return to his place' (ver. 55) = to return -redire - to the previous state.

5627. 'Return ye to the man' (Gen. xliii. 13) = life from spiritual truth.

6518. 'I will return' (Gen. l. 5) = presence in the natural mind.

6553. 'Joseph returned to Egypt' (ver. 14) = the life of the Celestial Internal in scientifics. 'To return' = to live.

7014. 'Moses . . . returned' (Ex. iv. 18) = what is continuous of the previous life. Ex.

7016. 'I will return to my brethren' (id.) = elevation to more interior and spiritual life. Ex.

8097. '[Lest] they return to Egypt' (Ex. xiii. 17) = to lapse into falsities.

8129. 'Let them return' (Ex. xiv. 2) = that they were not yet prepared.

8223. 'Let the waters return upon the Egyptians' (ver.

26)=the overflowing or relapse of falsity . . . S226. S229.

9423. 'Until we return' (Ex.xxiv.14)=even to a reply.

10501. 'Moses returned to Jehovah' (Ex.xxxii.31)=conjunction.

E. 177⁸. Occurs. 279³. 340¹⁷. 405²¹. 537¹¹. 555⁴. 573¹². 654⁵⁶. 695¹⁵.

Reu. Reu.

A. 1347. 'Reu' was a nation so named from him as its father, by which is signified worship still more external.

Reuben. Ruben.

Reubenites. Rubeniti.

A. 340². 'Reuben' means 'Jehovah has seen my misery.'

342. 'Reuben'=faith.

S97^e. 'Reuben,' so called from 'seeing,'=faith.

1063. 'Reuben,' being the first-born of Jacob, =faith, and is called 'the beginning of strength.' 2435.

2435. Reuben . . . polluted his father's couch, and therefore . . . the primogeniture was given to Joseph (I Chron.v.1). 3325¹⁰, Ex. —¹¹, Ex.

2760, Pref.³. Reuben, Simeon, and Levi (parallel to) Peter, James, and John. R.356.

3325¹⁰. Ephraim succeeded in place of Reuben . . . S.79³.

—¹¹. 'Reuben'=the Church receding from charity to faith.

3759. By the birth of the (first) four sons . . . is described, in the supreme sense, the ascent from external truth to internal good; but in the representative sense, the state of the Church, which . . . first has the truth which is called of faith . . . These four degrees are signified by . . . Reuben, Simeon, Levi, and Judah.

3860^e. 'Reuben'=the truth of faith, which is the first of regeneration, and the external from which it commences.

3861. 'She called his name Reuben' (Gen.xxix.32)=the quality of it, (which is, in the supreme sense, foresight; in the internal, faith; in the interior, understanding; in the external, sight; here, faith from the Lord. 3863).

3862³. 'Reuben'=faith from the Lord.

— (The various orders in which Reuben and the other sons are mentioned.)

3863. The universal which 'Reuben' signifies is faith. The reason why faith is the first universal. Ex.

—³. As the regeneration of the Natural is here treated of . . . the first son, Reuben, was named from Jehovah seeing, which=faith from the Lord. Faith . . . is faith in the understanding, and faith in the will. To know and understand the truth which is of faith is called faith in the understanding . . . and is that which is signified by 'Reuben.' This precedes.

3866. 'Reuben,' or the tribe of Reuben, =that which is the first of regeneration, or that which is first when man is becoming a Church, which is the truth of doctrine through which he can arrive at the good of life.

3869². Faith in knowledge or understanding is 'Reuben.'

3870². This faith separated from charity, and thus contrary to charity, is represented by Reuben, in that he lay with Billah . . .

3939². When the order begins from Reuben, or faith . . .

3941. 'Reuben went in the days of wheat harvest' (Gen.xxx.14)=faith as to its state of love and charity; for 'Reuben'=the faith which is the first of regeneration.

3952⁵. 'Reuben'=the truth of faith which is the first of regeneration.

4270². Jabbok . . . was ceded to them . . . because 'Reuben'=faith in the understanding or in doctrine, which is the first of regeneration; or, in the complex, the truth of doctrine through which we arrive at the good of life.

4601. 'Reuben went, and lay with Billah . . .' (Gen. xxxv.22)=the profanation of good through faith separated . . . 'Reuben'=faith in doctrine and in understanding, which is the first of the Church; here, this faith separated from charity. Ex.

4605. 'The first-born of Jacob, Reuben' (ver.23)=the good of faith. . . 'Reuben'=the quality of faith; for 'Reuben,' in the genuine sense, =the truth of faith; but, after the truth of faith has been made good, he=the good of faith. Ill.

—². 'Reuben' (Rev.vii.5)=spiritual good, which is the same as the good of faith, such as is in the Second Heaven.

— (The classes of Reuben were great statutes of the heart' (Judg.v.16) . . . That 'Reuben,' here, =faith, is evident.

4731. 'Reuben heard' (Gen.xxxvii.21)=the confession of the faith of the Church in general; for 'Reuben'=faith in the understanding, or in doctrine, which is the first of regeneration; in the complex, the truth of doctrine through which we can arrive at the good of life.

— The reason Reuben here interposes himself, is that the Church which commences from faith would cease to be a Church, unless this Divine truth remained in it—that the Lord's Human is Divine . . . and therefore Reuben wanted to rescue Joseph . . . by which is signified that that truth wanted to vindicate the Church. And when Reuben returned to the pit, and saw no Joseph there, he rent his garments, and said . . . 'The child is no more, and I, whither shall I come?' by which is signified that there was no longer faith in the Lord, and thus no Church. 4761-4766.

5354¹². Jacob accepted Ephraim in place of Reuben . . . for by 'Reuben' was represented the Intellectual of the Church, or faith in the understanding and in doctrine.

5472. 'Reuben answered them, saying' (Gen.xlii.22) =perception from faith in doctrine and in understanding. Ex.

5541. 'Reuben said to his father' (ver.27)=the things which are of faith in the understanding apprehended by the good of truth.

—^e. The reason Reuben here speaks, is that it treats of the Church in which faith in doctrine and understanding apparently acts the first part, and also teaches what must be done to prevent the destruction of the things of the Church.

[A.] 5542. 'The two sons' of Reuben = both things of faith; for 'Reuben' represents faith in doctrine and in understanding, and his sons the two doctrines which are of the Church: the doctrine of truth, and the doctrine of good. That neither of these things of the Church would live, unless the medium . . . were conjoined, is signified by, 'Cause my two sons to die, if I bring not Benjamin unto thee' . . .

6024². 'The sons of Reuben' (Gen. xlv. 9) = the doctrinals of faith in general.

6238. 'As Reuben and Simeon they shall be mine' (Gen. xlviii. 5) = as truth and the good of truth. 'Reuben' = faith in the understanding, and the truth of doctrine through which we can arrive at the good of life; thus, in general, the truth which is of the Intellectual.

—². Reuben profaned his representative . . . but still there remained a representative with Reuben . . . namely, a representative of faith in the understanding.

6329. (Gen. xlix.) treats first of faith separated from charity, which is utterly rejected. This is Reuben, Simeon, and Levi.

6342. 'Reuben my first-born' (ver. 3) = faith, which is apparently in the first place; for 'Reuben' = faith in the understanding; and the confession of the faith of the Church in general.

6390^e. 'The classes of Reuben' = those in the Knowledges of the truth of faith.

7184. (In Ex. vi.) is described the Lord's Spiritual Kingdom as to faith . . . Reuben and Simeon, and their families, represent the things which are of faith. 7230². 7231.

8093². The opinion concerning faith alone . . . is described, afterwards, by Reuben, in that he ascended his father's couch. E. 237¹⁰.

9642⁸. The tribe of Reuben = the truth of faith in doctrine.

R. 17³. 'Reuben' = truth in doctrine and in faith.

134². This adultery is signified by that of Reuben with Bilhah; for by 'Reuben' is signified this faith, on which account he was cursed . . . By 'Reuben' was represented truth from good, or faith from charity; and, afterwards, truth separated from good, or faith separated from charity. 351³.

351. 'Of the tribe of Reuben were sealed 12,000' (Rev. vii. 5) = wisdom from celestial love with those in the New Heaven and New Church.

—'. 'Reuben,' in the supreme sense, = omniscience; in the spiritual sense, wisdom, intelligence, and knowledge, and also faith; in the natural sense, sight. But here 'Reuben' = wisdom, because he follows Judah. Compare E. 434². —⁷.

—². The reason 'Reuben' = these things, is that he was named from sight, and spiritual natural sight is knowledge; spiritual sight is intelligence; and celestial sight is wisdom. Reuben was also the first-born of Jacob, and was therefore called by Israel his 'strength, the beginning of his forces, excellent in eminence, and excellent in might;' for such is wisdom from celestial love. And as Reuben, from his primogeniture, represented the wisdom of the men of the Church, he exhorted his brethren not to kill Joseph, and grieved when Joseph was not found in the pit. Therefore, also, his tribe encamped on the south, and it was called 'the camp of Reuben.' Further ex.

E. 229⁴. By Reuben, because he was the first-born . . . was represented faith, and it is believed that the tribe named from him was the first, but . . . the tribe of Levi was the first, because by Levi was represented the good of charity.

431¹⁴. If the first tribe named is that of Reuben, by which is signified truth in light, and the understanding of truth, the rest of the tribes derive their significations therefrom.

434. 'Of the tribe of Reuben were sealed 12,000' = the light of truth from (love to the Lord); and that all who are in it are in Heaven, and come into Heaven.

—². As 'Reuben' = faith and understanding, he also = the light of truth; for faith comes forth from the light of truth . . .

—³. Reuben, or his tribe, = the like as 'Peter.' Ex.

—⁴. That Reuben was the first of the sons . . . and that therefore the tribe named from him is mentioned first, in many places . . . was because he was the first-born, and by primogeniture . . . is signified truth from good, or, what is the same, truth in the light, and thence faith from charity. Ex.

—⁷. As truth is apparently in the first place, Reuben was the first-born, and was named from 'sight' . . . and 'sight' = the understanding of truth, and faith; and, in the supreme sense, the Divine foresight.

—⁸. That 'Reuben' = truth from good, or faith from charity. Ill.

—'. The 'mandrakes' found by Reuben. Ex.

—¹¹. As the truth from good which the tribe of Reuben represented, is in the natural man, that tribe received an inheritance beyond Jordan. Ex.

—¹³. That 'Reuben' = truth in the natural man, is evident from the prophecy of Deborah and Barak. Ex.

—'. 'The classes of Reuben' = all things both true and good in the natural man.

—¹⁴. 'Reuben' = the light of truth, and thence the understanding of the Word, in—'Let Reuben live, and not die, yet shall his men be a number' (Deut. xxxiii. 6); 'Reuben,' here, = the understanding of the Word enlightened by light from Heaven; and there are few who receive the illustration.

—¹⁵. In the opposite, 'Reuben' = truth separated from good, or faith separated from charity. Ex. and Ill.

—¹⁷. As this was signified by 'Reuben,' the primogeniture was taken from him, and given to Joseph and his sons (Gen. xlix. 3, 4). Ex. —¹⁸.

435². The three tribes named first . . . Judah, Reuben, and Gad, = those things which fully constitute celestial good. 438.

443. Those in the Third Heaven . . . are signified by Judah, Reuben, and Gad, who therefore constitute the first class of the sealed.

—⁷. That the first three sons, Reuben, Simeon, and Levi, were rejected and condemned by Israel, is because in that prophecy it treats of the instauration of the Church; and the Church is not instaured by faith separated from charity . . . and therefore in that prophecy the three first-born sons are rejected, because by 'Reuben' is signified faith alone . . . These three also destroyed the representative of the Church; Reuben, in that he lay with Bilhah . . .

817⁴. Reuben the first-born of Jacob = the light of truth, and thence the understanding of the Word, and thus truth from good, or faith from charity . . . and also truth separated from good . . .

911¹⁰. For these places were in the inheritance given to the Reubenites . . . by whom, because they dwelt beyond Jordan, was represented the External Church.

Reuel. Reul.

See JETHRO.

A. 6778. 'Reuel' (Ex.ii.) being a priest, = the good of that Church where are those who are in the truth of simple good. 6782.

Reunion. Reunitio. II.183^e.

Revelation. Revelatio.

Reveal. Revelare.

Revealer. Revelator.

A. 4. Arcana never revealed heretofore.

125. The (Most Ancients) had Knowledges . . . by revelations; for they spoke with the Lord, and with Angels; and were also instructed by visions and dreams . . . 597².

194. The third posterity . . . began not to believe in things revealed, unless they saw and felt that they were so. 208.

198. 'The fruit of the tree of the garden' = the good and truth revealed to them from the Most Ancient Church. 199.

608². Then, in place of the revelations of the Most Ancient Church, there succeeded doctrinal things which were first apprehended with the external senses . . .

609. Some of the revelations of the Most Ancient Church were preserved for (their) use.

865. (For the spiritual man) can know nothing of the truth of faith except from the things revealed in the Word . . . The particulars are never so revealed to man . . . It is quite different with the celestial man . . .

895². The man of the Most Ancient Church had revelations, by which he was initiated from infancy into the perception of goods and truths; and . . . he perceived innumerable things without new instruction . . .

1043². Many are regenerated . . . in every dogma, and, when they have been regenerated, they do not receive any immediate revelation, but only the things insinuated through the Word . . .

1408. (The arcana of the internal sense) are not revealed until the mind is removed from the sense of the letter.

1712³. As if one would learn nothing unless he had a revelation.

1775. It has been necessary that some revelation . . . should come forth; for a revelation, or Word, is the common recipient vessel of spiritual and celestial things, thus conjoining Heaven and earth; without it, they would have been disjoined, and the human race would have perished . . .

1785. That after the combats in (His) childhood there was a revelation. Sig.

1786. That 'a vision' = inmost revelation, which is that of perception. Ex.

2500². The Lord's instruction in general . . . was by continual revelations, and thus by Divine perceptions and thoughts from Himself . . .

2535. That it will thus be revealed. Sig. and Ex.

—, There is then something like revelation in prayer . . . Hence, 'to pray' = to be revealed. . . The prayer of the Lord was . . . at the same time revelation. Ill.

2580. Revelation. Sig. and Ex.

2625⁴. The Lord progressed . . . by continual revelations from His Divine.

2760². That no one sees what the Word is in its internal sense . . . but he to whom He reveals it. Sig.

2784. (This) appears too remote to be known without a revelation.

2894^e. As truth is meant by 'the Word,' all revelation is meant.

2896. The Word in the Most Ancient Church was not written, but was revealed to everyone of that Church. Ex.

3131². Who could know, except from an interior searching of the Word, and at the same time from revelation, that . . .

3382. By continual revelations from Himself . . . He united the Divine essence to the human essence. Sig. and Ex.

—, He revealed them to Himself, when He was in a state of the union of the Human with the Divine. Sig.

—². He acquired to Himself all intelligence and wisdom by continual revelations from the Divine.

3398⁴. The arcana of the internal sense are now revealed, because (now) there is scarcely any faith . . . and, when this is the case, they can be revealed without danger of profanation . . . 6595^e.

3603². They know indeed from revelation that . . .

3768². The natural man . . . cannot know spiritual good and truth; for this must be from revelation, thus from the Word. Examps.

3952. The arcana of this heavenly marriage are here revealed . . .

4031². He supposes that the Lord could save everyone . . . by immediate revelations.

—³. (On this account) man is not withheld from evils by immediate revelations.

4060⁷. 'They shall see the Son of Man coming . . .' = that the Word will then be revealed as to its internal sense, in which is the Lord.

4160. That (interior natural truths) cannot be revealed. Sig.

[A.] 4391². Divine revelation, or the Word. Tr.

—³. If interior truths had been revealed, they would have profaned them. Sig.

4689². That (His Human is Divine) could not be openly revealed, because . . .

5097. 'Joseph came . . . in the morning' = what is revealed and clear to the Celestial of the Spiritual. Ex.

— . Perception is an internal revelation. Hence 'the morning' = what is revealed.

5111. Revelation from perception. Sig. . . For revelation is internal perception, and is from perception.

5121. Revelation from perception from the Celestial in the Natural, what it had in itself. Sig. and Ex. 5150.

— . All revelation is either from speech with the Angels through whom the Lord is speaking, or from perception.

—². Those who are in good and thence in truth, especially those who are in the good of love to the Lord, have revelation from perception ; whereas those who are not in good and thence in truth, may indeed have revelations, but not from perception, but by a living voice heard in them, thus through Angels from the Lord : this revelation is external, but the former internal. The Angels, especially the celestial, have revelation from perception, as had the men of the Most Ancient Church, and some of the Ancient Church, but scarcely anyone at this day ; whereas very many, even of those who have not been in good, have had revelations from speech without perception, and also by visions, or by dreams. Such were most of the revelations of the prophets in the Jewish Church : they heard a voice, saw a vision, dreamed a dream ; but, as they had no perception, they were merely verbal or visual revelations, without perception of what they signified . . .

—^e. But the revelation from perception, which the Lord had . . . was from the Divine in Himself . . .

5272. Hence Divine revelation is called the Word.

5331. 'Zaphnath Paaneah' means the revealer of hidden things . . . which, in the celestial sense, = the Divine in it ; for to reveal hidden things . . . is of the Lord alone.

6000. 'God said to Israel in the visions of the night' = obscure revelation. . . For revelations were made either by dreams, or by visions of the night, or by visions of the day, or by speech within the man, or by speech outside of him by visible Angels, and also by Angels not visible. By these things, in the Word, are signified various species of revelations ; by 'a vision of the night,' obscure revelation. Ex.

6371². (This) is an arcanum which no one can know except from revelation. 8794².

6472. This (concerning influx) it has been given to know by revelation.

6595². Therefore the internal things of the Church were not revealed to them.

6836. 'I will see this great vision' = reflection upon this revelation.

7502⁴. That this is so, no one can know except from revelation ; for man has no Knowledge of the things which come forth in the other life, except from revelation ; and as man is but little sollicitous to explore the truths and goods of faith from the Word . . . such things are not revealed to him. 7519².

8357. A truth of order then revealed. Sig.

8426. That in the end of the former state [there shall be] a revelation that they are delivered. Sig. and Ex.

— . That which Jehovah gives 'to Know' is called a revelation.

8541². The Lord has revealed (to the inhabitants of Jupiter) how they should live and believe ; and what He has revealed is handed down . . .

8636. These things man must learn from revelation. (8637, enum.)

8694. That things are then disposed from revealed truth. Sig. and Ex.

—². By revelation is meant illustration when the Word is being read, and perception then ; for those who are in good, and long for truth, are thus taught from the Word ; but those who are not in good cannot be taught from the Word . . . The reason those in good have revelation, and those in evil have not revelation, is that each and all things in the Word, in the internal sense, treat of the Lord and His Kingdom ; and the Angels who are with the man perceive the Word according to the internal sense : this is communicated to the man who is in good, and reads the Word, and longs for truth from affection . . .

—³. But the quality of the revelation possessed by those who are in good, and thence in the affection of truth, cannot be described : it is not manifest, neither is it completely hidden ; but it is a certain consent and approval from within that the thing is true, or disapproval if it is not true. When there is approval, the mind is restful and serene, and in that state there is the acknowledgment which is of faith . . .

8748. It treats (in Ex. xix. et seq.) of the revelation of truth Divine by the Lord out of Heaven ; and, in this chapter, of the preparation to receive it.

8780. Influx of the Divine through truth from the Divine concerning the revelation. Sig. and Ex.

—². By revelation, here, in the internal sense, is not meant a revelation such as was made to the Israelitish people from Sinai, in that the Lord spoke with a sonorous voice . . . but there is meant the revelation which is not made with a sonorous voice, but within the man : this revelation is made by an illustration of the internal sight, which is the understanding, when a man who is in the affection of truth from good, is reading the Word. This illustration is then made by the light of Heaven . . . By this light the understanding is illustrated (or enlightened) no otherwise than is the external sight . . . by the light from the sun of the world. When the understanding is enlightened by this Divine light, he then perceives that to be true which is true ; he acknowledges it within himself, and as it were sees it. Such is the revelation possessed by those who are in the affection of truth from good, when they are reading the Word. Further ex.

—^e. (Hence it is) evident how the case is with the revelation of truth from the Word.

8786. Revelation concerning the preparation. Sig.
 —. 'To say,' when by Jehovah, = revelation by the Divine.

8813. A Divine state in which there was revelation. Sig. and Ex.

8823. What is general of the revelation . . . manifested by the medium of Heaven. Sig. and Ex.

—. For truth Divine is revelation.

8944. It is believed that man can know many things of religion from natural humen, thus without revelation . . . but I have been instructed by much experience, that without revelation man knows nothing whatever from himself about Divine things, and about the things which belong to heavenly and spiritual life. Ex.

—². The ancients who were Gentiles (knew that there is a Divine, that man is immortal, etc.) from revelation, which had emanated to them from the Church . . .

—³. The gentiles of this day who also know (these things) have them from a religiosity which they have derived from ancient times . . . and which in various ways had emanated from the Church where there was a revelation.

9103⁴. The Knowledges of spiritual things must be from revelation.

9212^e. For without the Word, that is, without revealed Divine truth, there is no conjunction (with Heaven); and . . . the human race perishes.

9216³. The Lord always provides that there shall be a Church . . . in which there is revealed truth Divine, which, in our Earth, is the Word.

9248. 'A vision of vanity' = a false revelation.

—². 'To see,' or 'a vision,' when said of the prophets, = a revelation which regards doctrine; and 'to divine,' and 'a divination,' = a revelation which regards life.

9256⁶. 'A light for the revelation of the gentiles' (Luke ii. 32).

9263⁸. That justice is the good of charity from the Lord, is meant by, 'My justice is near that it be revealed' (Is. lvi. 1).

9315⁴. That the Divine truth could not be revealed to men, except by Jehovah in a human form. Ill.

9352. All these things, without a revelation—thus in this Earth without the Word—would have been utterly unknown.

9358. In every other Earth truth Divine is manifested orally through Spirits and Angels . . . but this is done within the families; and therefore the Divine truth which has been revealed in this way . . . is not carried far beyond the families; and unless a new revelation constantly succeeds, it is either perverted, or perishes.

9414^e. The promulgation of the Law . . . signified the revelation of Divine truth in general; for this was the beginning of the revelation . . .

9807⁴. 'Shall He find faith on the earth?' = when truth Divine shall be revealed out of Heaven, it will not be believed. . . The 'coming' of the Lord = the revelation of truth Divine at the end of the Church.

—⁵. 'So shall the coming of the Son of Man be' = the revelation of truth Divine in the consummation of the age . . .

9905⁴. The breastplate . . . through the shining forth of the light of Heaven, revealed Divine truths in the natural sphere, thus in ultimates. A like shining forth is presented inwardly with those who are in truths from good, which dictates, and as it were gives answers, when truth is inquired after from the affection of the heart, and is loved as good. That there is such a shining forth, by which Divine truth from Heaven is revealed in the natural man, with those who are enlightened from the Word, is not perceived in the world . . .

9960¹⁰. 'Uncover thine hair . . . uncover the leg: thy nakedness, shall be uncovered' (Is. xlvii. 2, 3). . . 'To uncover the hair,' etc. = to prostitute external and internal holy things without shame . . .

10318. Without revelation from the Divine, man cannot know anything about eternal life, nor about God, and still less about love and faith in Him. Ex.

10319. Although they know from revelation that there is a God, etc. . .

10320. It follows that from love towards the human race, the Divine must reveal such things as lead to (eternal) life . . .

—^c. That which the Divine reveals is, with us, the Word.

10321. The Word, being a revelation from the Divine, is Divine in each and all things.

10355⁶. How revelations have succeeded one another from the most ancient ages to the present. Ex.

—. At this day revelation is given solely through the Word; but genuine revelation, with those who are in the love of truth for the sake of truth; and not with those who are in the love of truth for the sake of honours and gain. Ex.

10384. Revelation, in our Earth, I said, is effected by writing and preaching from the Word, and not by immediate intercourse, as in other Earths . . .

10577. That Divine truth and good will be revealed to those who receive. Sig. and Ex.

10605. A new arising of the revelation of Divine truth (from the Inmost Heaven . . .) See 10606. Sig. and Ex.

10606. For 'Mount Sinai' = Heaven whence is revelation.

—^e. Thence descends the Word, which is Divine revelation.

10632³. In the Most Ancient times there was no Word, but immediate revelation before the man of the Church, and, through it, conjunction; for, when there is immediate revelation there is the conjunction of Heaven with man.

—⁴. When this immediate revelation ceased . . . another revelation succeeded, which was by means of representatives . . .

10833. (Revelation in the Sixth Earth.) Ex.

H. 1². 'The coming of the Lord in the clouds with power and glory' = His presence in the Word, and revelation. S. 14².

—³. That in the end of the Church . . . the Lord . . .

would reveal the arcana of Heaven. Sig. The arcana which are revealed in what follows are about Heaven, etc.

[H. 1]^e. The reason such an immediate revelation comes forth at this day, is that this is what is meant by 'the advent' of the Lord.

—(m). 'A trumpet' = Divine truth . . . revealed from Heaven. Refs.

306. The Most Ancients had immediate revelation, because their interiors were turned towards Heaven. . . After those times, there was not such immediate revelation, but mediate through correspondences . . .

309. Such a Word (as we have, is necessary on this Earth) because the man of this Earth is such that he cannot receive immediate revelation, and by it be instructed about truths Divine, as can the inhabitants of other Earths; for the former are more in . . . external things, and it is internal ones which receive revelation: if external things were to receive it, the truth would not be understood.

J. 44^e. According to the descriptions in the Book of Revelation.

74^e. At this day interior Divine truths are being revealed with that (gentile) nation.

C. J. 11². Therefore if anything had been revealed by the Lord (before the Last Judgment) it would either not have been understood, or if understood would not have been received, or if received would have afterwards been suffocated.

12. That hence it is, that after the Last Judgment, and not before, revelations have been made for the New Church. Ex.

76. As the Africans are such even in the world, revelation is being made with them at this day, which goes from the middle around, but not as far as the seas . . . T. 840.

W. H. 6. (Refs. to passages on the subject of a revelation.)

W. 249. Every man is taught about Divine precepts by others who know them from religion, and not by means of immediate revelations. Ref.

P. 170. There is also another illustration by which there is revealed to man in what faith, and in what intelligence and wisdom he is, which revelation is such that he perceives it in himself. He is let into a Society where there is genuine faith, etc. . .

R. Title. The Apocalypse Revealed.

1, Pref. That this Revelation is from the Lord alone, and that it is received by those who will be in His New Church . . . Tr.

2. 'The Revelation of Jesus Christ' (Rev. i. 1) = predictions from the Lord concerning Himself and His Church, such as it will be at its end, and such as it will be afterwards, both in the Heavens and on earth. 'The Revelation of Jesus Christ' = all predictions; and, as they are by the Lord, it is said 'the Revelation of Jesus Christ.' E. 5.

5. The things which have been revealed by the Lord through Heaven to those in the good of life . . . Sig. and Ex. E. S.

7. These see in John's visions the arcana . . . (only) when they see them revealed.

24. That the Lord will reveal Himself in the sense of the letter . . . Sig. and Ex. E. 36.

—³. That He will reveal the spiritual sense. Sig.

37. Manifest perception of Divine truth revealed from Heaven. Sig. and Ex. E. 55.

227. Revelations about future things before the Last Judgment, concerning it, and after it. Sig. E. 261.

532. A revelation by the Lord concerning His New Church . . . and concerning the difficult reception of and assault on its doctrine. Sig. and Ex.

656. A revelation by the Lord concerning the state of the Church on earth . . . Sig. and Ex.

718. A revelation by the Lord from the Inmost Heaven concerning the Roman Catholic religiosity. Sig. and Ex.

820. The spiritual sense of the Word revealed by the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

824. That the quality of the Word in its spiritual and celestial sense no one sees but the Lord, and he to whom He reveals it. Sig. and Ex.

943. That the Lord . . . has revealed through Heaven to those who are in truths from Him the things which will certainly be. Sig. and Ex.

M. 533. Those arcana at this day revealed by the Lord . . . are reputed as of no value.

T. 11. Knowledge about God, and thence the acknowledgment of God, are not possible without revelation; and Knowledge about the Lord . . . is not possible except from the Word, which is the crown of revelations; for man, by the revelation which is given, is able to approach God . . .

— The primeval revelation pervaded the universal world, and the natural man perverted it in many ways . . . Hence those who have known from the Word, or some other revelation, that there is a God, differ . . .

22². It is from this revelation that the natural man can elevate himself above nature . . .

D. 152. Revelations at this day.

2476. Said that so many revelations would confuse the mind . . .

2510. The uses of all things reveal the Creator. Ex.

3676. A revelation necessary . . .

4123. On [my] revelations.—They are in place of miracles; and without them people would not know there was such a book . . .

4488^e. He supposed this was a revelation beyond any other.

4758. Unless men had previously known these things from revelation . . .

4759. They who have faith from revelation, can be confirmed from nature, miracles, etc. . . But those who have not faith from revelation cannot . . .

4770. A revelation from Heaven being made with the gentiles. Ex. 4774, Des. 4775. J. (Post.) 117.

4777^e. The Church is being instaurated in Africa by the Lord alone by means of revelations, and not through missionaries.

4874. They answered that they look upwards to the stars, and have a revelation thence.

4881. These inflow into the Hells, and reveal to them what they see below.

5672. Hence immediate revelations are not given.

5919. The Africans with whom is the revelation do not know that the Lord was born a Man . . .

E. 2. The Apocalypse . . . cannot be understood . . . unless there is a revelation from Heaven . . .

S. 'To send' = to reveal, because everything sent from Heaven is a revelation . . .

—². For a revelation from Heaven . . . can be given only to those who are in the good of charity . . .

36². The 'coming' of the Lord = the revelation of Him, and of the Divine truth which is from Him, in the Word, through the internal sense. The Lord does not reveal Himself elsewhere than in the Word, nor there otherwise than through the internal sense. —.

50. 'I was in the isle called Patmos' = a revelation to the gentiles. Ex.

53. 'I was in the spirit' = a spiritual state when there is revelation.

54^e. Hence the revelation was made to John on the Lord's day. Revelation, there, is instruction about the state of the Church.

88. 'The mystery of the seven stars . . .' = a revelation concerning . . .

240³. To reveal filthy loves. Sig.

—⁴. To 'uncover nakedness.' Ex. —⁶. —¹⁰.

260a. 'A door opened in heaven' = arcana of Heaven revealed.

—². Could not be revealed before the Last Judgment, and not except through some one in the world . . .

261. 'The first voice' = revelation now about future things . . .

266. 'I was in the spirit' = a spiritual state with revelation.

567. 'I heard a voice . . .' = revelation by the Lord from the Spiritual Heaven.

601⁸. 'Unless He revealeth His secret' (Amos iii.7) = to illustrate, and to open the interiors of the Word.

611. 'When the trumpet shall sound' = the last state of the Church, and a revelation of Divine truth then.

—^e. Together with the advent of the Lord there is also a revelation of Divine truth.

641². When the end of the Church is at hand, the interiors of the Word, of the Church, and of worship, are revealed and taught, in order that the good may be separated from the evil . . . and besides the interiors of the Word which are revealed at the end of the Church are of service to the new Church . . .

—³. So at this day, for it has now pleased the Lord to reveal many arcana of Heaven, especially the internal sense . . . which revelation is meant by 'the coming' of the Lord in Matt.xxiv. The cause of the revelation at the end of the Church, is that by it may be effected a separation of the good from the evil, and also the instauration of a New Church, and this not only in the natural . . . but also in the Spiritual World . . . for the Church is in both worlds, and in each one a revelation is being made, and, through it, a separation, and also the instauration of a New Church. 670⁴.

702. Such things do not fall into anyone's understanding except by living revelation and thence Knowledge of . . .

— . As these things have been revealed to me . . .

713. 'A great sign' = a Divine revelation, etc.

741²². 'The foundations of the world were laid bare' (Ps.xviii.15) = were overturned from the bottom.

926. 'A sign' = a revelation. Ex.

946. 'Thy judgments are made manifest' = that Divine truths have been revealed to them. Ex.

948. 'The temple of the tabernacle of the testimony opened in heaven' = the interior Divine truth in the Word revealed by the Lord.

—². That, before the Church has been fully devastated, the interior Word is revealed. Ex.

—³. The quality of the Divine Providence in revealing Divine truths. Ex.

— . Inmost Divine truths were revealed to those of the Most Ancient Church; more exterior ones were revealed to those of the Ancient Church; and most external ones to the Hebrew . . . and Israelitish Church . . . After its end, more interior Divine truths were revealed for the Christian Church; and now still more interior truths for the coming Church . . .

957. Hence it is that now for the first time the spiritual sense of the Word is revealed.

963². For no one has religion except from revelation; and revelation, with us, is the Word.

1177. To this is to be added, that immediate revelation is not given, except that which has been given in the Word . . . This revelation is such that everyone can be taught according to the affections of his love, and the derivative thoughts of his understanding; very little those who are not in good as to life; but much those who are; the latter are taught by means of illustration from the Lord. Ex.

1182². 'To uncover the leg passing through the rivers' (Is.xlvii.2) = to adulterate goods by reasonings.

De Dom. 1. A revelation has been made by the Lord concerning Heaven and Hell, the Last Judgment, the spiritual sense . . . Thus has been revealed the way to salvation, and concerning the state of man after death, and this has been done fully and plainly, so that everyone who is acquainted with the Latin language may know . . . more than a year ago. But the Church does not care for it . . . Ath.2.

J. (Post.) 116. At this day, the Church is being instituted with many in Africa, and revelations are being made, and they are receptive of the heavenly doctrine . . .

124. At this day some are speaking with the Africans in the world, instructing them orally. The speech with them falls especially into their interior perception, and they perceive the influx, and thus receive revelations with illustration; and such speech is made to the instructors, in whom they have faith.

[J. Post.] 129. God cannot be manifested to (these Gentiles), because they are not willing to believe that He has been born a Man . . . and this is the primary thing of all revelation.

De Verbo 11. The Most Ancients on this Earth had immediate revelation, and therefore they had not a written Word; but after those times, when immediate revelation could not be given without danger to their souls, nor be received . . . it pleased the Lord to reveal Divine truth by means of a Word which has been written by mere correspondences . . .

13. How greatly the mediate revelation which is made through the Word excels the immediate revelation which is made through Spirits. Ex.

14. There exists no natural theology without revelation.

Coro. De Miraculis V. These revelations (by means of Swedenborg) are not miracles . . .

18. That the Lord . . . from this New Heaven produces a New Church on earth, which is done by means of a revelation of Truths from His own mouth, or from His Word, and inspiration. Ex.

21⁵. That the third of Redemption was a revelation of Truths from the New Heaven, and the consequent raising up of a New Church . . .

39². Religion is not possible except by means of some revelation, and by means of the propagation of this revelation from nation to nation.

Inv. 44. This (disclosing of the spiritual sense) excels all the revelations which have been made since the creation . . . Through this revelation there is an open communication of men with the Angels of Heaven, and there has been effected a conjunction of both worlds . . .

Revenge. Ultio, Ulcisci.

Revenger. Ultor.

A. 8226^e. It is said that revenge will be taken (by the Lord), and that He will be avenged—vindicabitur.

10618³. He wants the Divine to favour him . . . that he may revenge himself—se vindicet—or be revenged on all whom he hates.

L. 14⁴. 'A day of vengeance, that He may take vengeance—vindictam—of His enemies' (Jer. xlv. 10) = His advent on this account into the world.

E. 275¹⁴. Occurs. 750²². 778².

811¹⁴. 'The gall of revenges' (Deut. xxxii. 42) = malice and cruelty.

Revenge. Vindicta, Vindicare.

Avenger. Vindex.

Vindictive. Vindictivus.

Vindictiveness. Vindicativum.

A. 392. 'It shall be avenged sevenfold' (Gen. iv. 15) = that it would be a sacrilege. (And condemnation on that account. 432.)

814. On the Hells of those in revenge. (See HATRED, here. 815. 816.)

942. Claim Heaven.

956. Those tenacious of revenge . . . suffer the penalties of laceration, and of immersion. Des. D. 945-947.

1008. To avenge profanation. Sig. and Ex.

1106. See HATRED, here. 1512, et seq.

1655. The rational man delivered and liberated the external man. Tr. 1713.

1659. The protection—vindicatio—of Lot by Abram. 1714.

2025^e. He delivered the World of Spirits from infernals . . .

2027. Claim justice for themselves. 5758.

2578. 'She was vindicated' (Gen. xx. 16) = no fault.

2910². They breathe revenge (against the neighbour) and feel delight in his ruin.

4067³. He who has delight in revenges adjoins to himself Societies of like Spirits.

4174^e. They claim for themselves what is the Lord's.

4181. He claimed all things for himself. Sig. 4185.

4187. He did not dare to claim these. Sig.

4295². To claim what is not his is spiritual theft.

4317⁵. It is from hereditary evil to . . . perceive delight in revenges.

4319. Claim and attribute goods to themselves.

4368³. They want to claim this for the priesthood.

4738. To claim it for the Church. Sig. and Ex.

4882². Thus they would neither claim good, nor would evil adhere to them.

5135. 'Theft' = the claiming—vindicatioem—of the things of others . . .

5390. Those correspond to the unclean excretions, who in the world have been tenacious of revenge.

5749. That it is against the Divine law to claim it for themselves. Sig. and Ex. 5758. 5759.

5773. Mourning because they . . . could no longer claim truths for themselves. Sig.

5780. That to claim to one's self what is not one's own, is an enormous evil. Sig.

6148^e. That no man ought to claim for himself anything of the good of the Church. Sig.

7161⁴. That (such) have a stench, is evident from the Hells which are called the cadaverous ones, where are . . . those most tenacious of revenge.

7370. Still more is he in the love of self who (because his neighbour does not favour and worship him) burns with revenge against him, and desires his ruin. Such at last love to rage fiercely against the neighbour.

8223³. This appears like revenge from the good; but it is not revenge . . . but is from the evil (who inflict the penalty).

8318². Thus revenge and cruelty become the delight of their life.

8875⁸. The Lord is especially called 'the Avenger' when the man of the Church has corrupted the Divine . . .

9036. 'By avenging he shall be avenged' (Ex. xxi. 20) = the punishment of death; here, of spiritual death.

10795. Priests must not claim Power over souls . . .

H. 389. An Angel does not claim dignity for himself. 488^e. Those who have been desirous of revenge . . . love cadaverous things; and are in such Hells.

S. 67. 'To steal' (in the celestial sense)=to claim for one's self the Lord's justice and merit.

94. Revenge, etc. as ascribed to the Lord, in the Word.

W. 116². In so far as an Angel . . . thus claims love and wisdom to himself as his own, the Angelic is not in him . . .

P. 318⁷. Who can be sensible of the cruelty of revenge, but one who is in good from the love of the neighbour? Who that is desirous of revenge does not sneer at those who call the delight of it infernal?

R. 327. 'How long . . . dost Thou not judge and avenge our blood?' (Rev.vi.10)=why are not those in justice condemned who offer violence to these . . . E.394.

So6. 'Hath avenged the blood of His servants' (Rev.xix.2)=retribution for their violence . . . E.1202.

— It is said . . . that He avenged or revenged—ultus sit—as if He did this from vengeance or revengement . . . Anger and vengeance are attributed to the Lord when the evil . . . are cast into Hell . . . Hence that day is called . . . a day of vengeance; not that the Lord . . . avenges; but that they . . . breathe vengeance against Him. III.

M. 375². The other (cause of this jealousy) is an intestine cupidity of revenge.

—³. This intestine cupidity of revenge completely prevents the influx of conjugal love, absorbs it, and swallows it up, and turns its delight into the delight of revenge . . . and the nearest determination of this is towards the wife.

T. 118. To redeem=to liberate from damnation, to deliver from eternal death . . .

122. That the Lord has delivered the Spiritual World, and, through this, will deliver the Church . . .

409^e. The Lord never avenges . . .

439. Which they claim for themselves.

518^e. He was a burning revenger . . .

D. 810. Those who are as it were viscous, when thwarted in any matter, retain it . . . until they either take revenge, or the case is otherwise ended. They are such as in the life of the body had long retained revenge.

935. Such . . . is the punishment of revenge, because the most filthy impurities—which are in revenges—are thus represented . . . For these, also, there is a miry lake . . . 936.

937. He who punishes revenges is a most malignant Spirit . . . He is black, and is from the region of the colon.

940. Those who constitute the province (of the mammillary processes) are those who . . . are tenacious of revenge when once they have conceived hatred against anyone. But the malignity of it differs according to the causes . . . or ends, which are such that they can imbue the man, and thus root themselves. (Such Spirits further des. 941. 942.)

943. (Those who have conceived hatred and revenge from causes which appeared to them noble.) Des.

944. The most grievous punishments of revenge.—They who have conceived a mind for revenge from specious causes, as that it is royal, and suitable to dignity; and have also conceived it to be just, are punished grievously, in order that they may perceive the filthy nature of it.

947. Such punishments are for those who are tenacious in revenges; and unless they abstain from it, so long are they repeated by turns, if it were to eternity. (These things pertain to myself, such as I was; and to another . . . 948.)

1268. Those who relate to the mucus of the nostrils, are those who most tenaciously desire to be revenged . . .

1269. The same Spirit . . . appears to have been such that he could not desist . . . from the desire of revenging even to the death. Des. 1270. (He caused a miserable torture in the stomach. 1272.) (Further des. 1273, et seq.)

1488. On the punishment of those who are delighted with revenges.—There are some who are so delighted with revenges . . . that nothing is more delicious than to revenge, and to be kept in the cupidity of revenge; nay, they call this deliciousnesses . . . (1489) There are very many of such, who have become so also from the fact that all liberty of speaking, and even of thinking, has been prohibited; so that their revenge is withheld within . . . and their hatred is thus nourished inwardly, until it takes possession of the whole mind. (1490) Such are not content simply to destroy the body, even with torments . . . but, with various deceits, they desire to foully pervert the moral, and even the spiritual, life. Whatever good they observe . . . they promptly pervert . . . and thus endeavour to destroy the eternal happiness of their enemy . . . There are thousands of such.

1491. A Society of such acts softly, like good Spirits . . . so that I marvelled at their being such when told of it. When they are in a Society, they are held in acting together, and care is taken lest one should injure another . . . By subtle collisions they are dispersed, and are sent into other Societies, until they cannot remain anywhere; for their hatreds and loves of revenge burst forth, and they are thus manifested before Spirits and Angels, because in the life of the body they had simulated the celestial . . . (Further des. 1492, et seq.)

1492a. Their first punishment is wont to be that they are let downwards into the lowest parts of the earth . . . through a dark hole, as it were to the centre of it, and even beyond, according to the degree of the hatred; for some are so delighted with revenge . . . that the deliciousnesses of life are placed therein, and consequently cannot be easily extinguished. (This punishment further des. 1493. 1494.)

1495. Beneath Gehenna are the torments of those who in like manner breathe revenge even to the destruction of the souls of men, and thus devote them to Hell. For this is most direful. Of whatever religion a man may be, never ought he, because he dissents from others, to devote anyone to Hell; for this breathes the most atrocious revenge, and thus the most atrocious punishment. (Their torments in this place des. where they remain for ages, until their former life has been changed. 1497.)

[D.] 1501. That those who are desirous of revenge can pray devoutly. Ex.

2890. Anyone may resist evil . . . but not with a mind to exercise revenge. Ex.

2891. It is done by the Lord's servants, without hatred and revenge. Ex.

3203. He was such interiorly that he could never forgive anyone . . . so that he retained vengeance till death . . .

4907. Under and among the rocks are the Hells of those who are in revenges.

4995. Concerning Nerez, and nefarious revenge.

5096. Concerning the Hells of revenge.—There are fixed and separate Hells for those who burn with revenge, according to its quantity and quality . . . There appears there as it were a consuming flame. (Further des.)

5097. They are punished most grievously . . . because it is so deeply rooted that their very life is revenge. Some of them are such that they place all the delight of life in revenge; and then, in proportion as they have previously burned with revenge, they feel joy after it. Many such are asserted to be from Italy, where this vindictiveness has been rooted in from immoderate pride, because they want to command all; for revenge has much in common with the love of self. Since the papal times, when interior pride increased, these are most cruel. Such vindictiveness is also said to be inrooted there, and is thence derived into their offspring.

5098. Those who do not suffer themselves to be mastered otherwise, are put into a great privy, and immersed, and they labour long to rise up, but in vain; and, when they emerge, they are again tested by others, as to whether they want to take revenge; and when it is found that the vindictiveness remains, they are sent there again, and this may last for ages; for, with such, revenge has become of the life.

5634². The further they go, the more stupid and cadaverous they become. The reason is that the interiors of all who . . . have burned with revenge even to the end of life, and have perceived their delight in it, are closed in spiritual death, and at last not anything entire remains with them. . . So long as they are such, they lie like corpses, almost dead. Those with whom this love is diminished, have, afterwards, something of life; but still they dwell in that desert.

5894. Ribbing had continually meditated revenge against others who had spoken anything, even if not evilly, against his love; and he had retained revenge even to the death, and had clandestinely sought how to injure them, even by the legal powers of his own function. (His lot.)

5897. A certain one, who was desirous of revenge . . . had machinated to destroy those whom the Lord protects . . . He said that he could not do otherwise, because he was in the thought of revenge . . .

D. Min. 4774. Concerning revenge together with deceit.—The arch-bishop James Benzelius . . . retained his revenge, however he was punished. When left to himself, little by little his desire for revenge began to be excited by the Hells, and he meanwhile resorted to deceits in like manner for the sake of revenge . . . and he was therefore delivered to a more grievous punishing, being set on fire within as to the viscera; and he was shown that the punishment of burning could be aggravated indefinitely. Being again left to himself, he began, at first cautiously, to think of revenge; then more and more; and at last he came into the delight of revenge . . . So that the life (of such) becomes more and more infernal; so that the life which is the interior life is diminished, that is, it can no longer inflow from the internal, because it falls into the desire of revenge . . . Those who are in the desire of revenge, and at the same time in deceit, become such that they are no longer like any man, but appear like charred skeletons.

4775. As he (the arch-bishop) did this from the desire for revenge, and also from deceit . . . he was fined in this way: his feet were cursed, and appeared black from burning. (Further des.)

4786. On the Hell of those who . . . are desirous of revenge.

—². It was found that (Gustav Benzelstierna) had cherished inextinguishable revenge. (His lot.)

4787. As the same one still breathed revenge from a deeper Hell, he was immersed in the sea there. Des. . . . But he still breathed out thence the poison of revenge, and infected certain around me . . . I was grievously tortured . . .

4788. In that deep are those who have breathed deadly revenges; and they are the deeper in it in proportion as more interior revenges are breathed, even to killing; and in proportion as they have perceived delight in revenges; and as they have been more tenacious in them.

E. 328¹⁹. Deliverance from evils, and liberation from falsities. Sig.

—²⁰. The Lord delivered and liberated by subjugating the Hells.

395¹³. 'The garments of vengeance' (Is.lix.17)=the truths by which (He fought with the Hells).

413^e. 'The year of retributions' is said of falsities; and 'the day of vengeance' (Is.xxxiv.8), of evils. (=the Last Judgment, and the damnation of these who . . . 850¹⁶.)

778². They call (this) vindictive justice . . . adducing passages from the Word, where God is called 'Avenger,' 'Revenger-Ultor,' etc. 805².

805³. Such vengeance-vindicatio—is not possible even with any Angel . . .

Reverberation. Reverberatio.

A. 829². Reverberations (in the punishments there). 957², Ex. D.4277. 4326.

Reverence. Reverentia.

Revere. Revereri.

Reverently. Reverenter.

See VENERATE.

A. 1641². Can there be shame without reverence? D.1051.

3719^e. As 'fear'=holiness, by the same word in the Original is meant veneration and reverence, which likewise is holy fear.

5459^e. Love to God becomes . . . love in which there is holy reverence, with those in celestial worship.

5534. The Holy which then inflows, induces something of fear with holy reverence.

9253. 'Thou shalt not revere a poor man in his cause' (Ex.xxiii.3)=that the falsities of those who are in ignorance of truth are not to be favoured.

M. 14². He reverently introduced them to the prince.

266. I asked the Angels reverently . . .

D. 2302. That there is no need to revere-vereri-any Spirit. Ex.

3141. They esteem above all others those who are without fear, reverence, and shame.

3149. That fear is of shame, and also of reverence. Ex.

4914. On account of reverence . . .

E. 696²². 'To fear Jehovah God' involves . . . to revere, consequently to worship reverently. Ill.

Revile. Afficere probris.

See INSULT.

E. 695¹⁹. 'To revile' = temptations.

Revision. Revisio. D.5479².

Revive. Refocillare.

Revival. Refocillatio.

A. 7218. Those infested by mere falsities, and not revived by truths . . .

M. 5^e. They fled away home, everyone to his work, and were revived.

216^e. The consorts are revived by the hope of its continuation after death.

294⁴. The man is revived by the influent meretricious sphere.

T. 434. Assemblies of friendship . . . for the revival of the sensuous things of the body.

569². Stenches revive their nostrils and hearts.

D. 4700^e. He inquired where he could be revived, and at last he was revived.

5941. This is their quiet, and revival.

E. 1214². Minds are revived, recreated, and excited . . . by the odours and flavours of plants.

Revive. Revivere.

A. 5972. 'The spirit of Jacob . . . revived' (Gen. xlv.27)=new life in natural good.

R. 153. When they die and revive as to the spirit, which is usually on the third day . . .

M. 532². The Angels said, This is for the sake of the end that the Christian Church, which is founded upon the Word, and is now at its end, may revive again, and draw breath through Heaven from the Lord.

E. 418³. 'The breath' from which they 'revived' (Ezek.xxxvii.10)=spiritual life, which is life according to the truths of the Word. 666³.

Dicta Probantia, p. 11. The Word, through which the Church would revive. Sig.

Revolt. Defectio. A.9156³.

Revolve. See CIRCUMGYRATION, and CIRCUMROTATION.

Revolve. Revolvare.

Revolution. Revolutio.

A. 5058. After some revolutions of the state of his life . . .

D. 1278. Then the things in the stomach were revolved.

2680. On heavenly alternations and revolutions.

Reward. See under HIRE, and RECOMPENSE.

Reward. Praemium.

A. 1789. Reward after the combats of temptations. Sig.

— The Lord expected no other reward for victory: the reward of His victories was the salvation of the human race. . . He who fights from this love asks for no other reward . . .

R. 103. 'The crown of life'=eternal life the reward of victory.

M. 136². One appeared . . . having the prizes in his hand, which were robes, hats, and wreaths.

Reward. Remuneratio.

Reward, To. Remunerare.

A. 1936³. No one is ever rewarded (there) for good acts, if he has placed merit in them . . .

2520⁴. No one is rewarded on account of his doing good, and teaching truth.

2715². When (the spiritual man) does good to anyone . . . he thinks of reward, either from them, or from the Lord.

3463³. Whereas he who acts from affection . . . having the reward in the delight, does not think of merit.

4788³. Those who are in good, are in the affection of doing good for the sake of the good, and this without reward to them: their reward is that they are allowed to do what is good . . . But those who are in truth . . . for the most part think of reward . . .

5957. The Lord demands from man humiliation, adoration, etc., which appear like repayings. Ex.

6388. 'Issachar'=reward from works. (See ISSACHAR, here.) —².

6389. Those who do good for the sake of reward, do indeed perform uses, and are of service, but are among those in the Lord's Kingdom who are in the lowest place; for they do not dispense the good which is communicated to them, except towards those who can recompense them, and pass by the rest, who need aid the most; or, if they do good to these, it is from the end of reward by the Lord . . . They thus recede from humiliation, and, in the same proportion, from a state of reception of happiness . . .

[A.] 639I. Works of good without reward: that they are full of happiness. Sig. and Ex.

— . No others are in these things, which are signified by 'rest' or 'peace,' than those who are in the good of charity, thus in works of good without reward.

—². They who do goods merely from the end of reward, cannot possibly know that in doing goods without reward, the happiness is so great that it is heavenly happiness. (The reason ex.)

—³. Such do not believe that there can be any delight in doing good without the end of reward; for they suppose that if there is no end of reward, all delight ceases; and if they are told further that when this delight ceases heavenly delight begins, they are amazed . . . 639², Ex.

6392. 'Pleasant'=the happiness which is in works of good without reward.

639³. That those have Heaven who do good without an end of reward. Ill.

6478. As soon as the thought occurs that he wills to communicate what he has for the sake of obtaining that influx of blessedness, the influx is dissipated; and still more so if there presents itself any thought about a reward from him to whom he communicates his good.

7318. Truth is falsified when it is said that all the good which man does . . . is done for the sake of reward, and that therefore works of charity are not to be done.

8033. Charity is an internal affection, which consists in . . . wanting to do good to the neighbour . . . and this without reward.

8037. They do not comprehend that to want to do good to the neighbour without reward is Heaven in man . . . 846².

8214^e. Hence to every good there has been adjoined its reward.

8516². He knows from doctrine that charity is not to do good for the sake of reward . . .

8979. The man of the External Church does truth and good . . . that he may be rewarded, and therefore in the truth and good he does there is the idea of self . . .

9033². It is a law of Divine order that good has in it the reward, thus Heaven. 9049.

9174⁴. The affection of charity is to communicate goods without the end of reward; but no affection of charity is to communicate goods for the sake of a reward as the end. Ill. and Refs.

9210⁵. 'To give silver to usury'=to teach for the sake of gain only, thus to do good for the sake of reward.

9975. The goods which men do from themselves are not goods, because they are done for the sake of self, because for the sake of the reward . . .

9982. To believe that they will be rewarded if they do good, is not hurtful with those who are in innocence

. . . But to confirm themselves in it when they become adults, is hurtful. For man is initiated into good by looking to the reward.

10790. Order cannot be maintained without governors . . . who must reward those who live according to order.

10791. Unless (men) were held in bonds . . . by rewards suited to their loves, which are honours and gains for those who do goods; and by punishments . . . the human race would perish.

N. 150. For he who wants to merit, wants to be rewarded.

T. 359. Natural charity is a working for favour, for the sake of some reward.

412². Each (officer), according to the extent of his duty, and the goods of use he performs, has remuneration . . .

D. 2452. They are not rewarded from merit, but from mercy.

4206. Mutual love rewards itself.

4560. If (this cutter of wood) thought, spoke, or acted, well, he wanted to be rewarded; so that reward was in every single thing.

E. 1189^e. The Lord leads them . . . by rewards in the world.

D. Love xii. There everyone is rewarded according to the excellence of the use, and at the same time according to the affection for the use.

C. 8. The Lord moves the wicked to do good to others . . . but the man is not rewarded for it. But if a man does good . . . from a spiritual affection, he is rewarded. His reward is the heavenly delight of that affection.

Rezin. Resin.

A. 695². 'Rezin the king of Syria' (Is.vii.4)=the Knowledges of evil. (=the Rational perverted. E. 559⁸.)

Rheumatism. Rheumatismus.

A. 1763². Spoke like those who are in a rheumatism (that is, have a cold). D. 3966.

Rhomb. Rhombus.

M. 263. His breast swelled into a rhomb.

T. 381³. He says, I have caught flat-fish and shell-fish.

D. 4828. They draw a thread out of magician's circles.

Rhydelius. Rhydelius. D.4698. 4699. 4700. 4706.

Rhythm. Rhythmus, Rhythmicus. A.1648. 1649. Ad.3/23.

Rib. Costa.

A. 138. The proprium is called 'the rib built into a woman.' (Gen.ii.21,22).

147. 'The rib,' which is a bone of the breast,=the proprium of man, in which there is little vital, and, in fact, a proprium which is dear to him. 148.

151. 'The rib'=the proprium not vivified; 'built into a woman'=the proprium vivified by the Lord.

10189. 'Upon the two ribs thereof' (Ex.xxx.4)= conjunction with truths on the one side, and conservation thereby. . . 'Ribs,' when they mean the sides, = truths; for the sides, which are called 'ribs,' look towards the south and north. . .

—, Moreover 'the ribs,' being the supports of the breast, = the truths which support good.

R. 574². 'Three ribs between its teeth' (Dan.vii.5) = appearances and fallacies.

M. 193. That a woman is actually formed into a wife according to (the statement) that the woman was created out of the man's rib. . . By a rib of the breast, in the Word, is signified natural truth. This is signified by the ribs which the bear held between its teeth. . . The man's breast = . . . wisdom; and truth supports wisdom as a rib the breast. (Thus) the woman was created from the man by a transcription of his proper wisdom, which is from natural truth; and the love of this was transferred into the woman, in order to become conjugal love. (Further ex.)

T. 577². The ribs first co-operate with the lungs, and then afterwards the lungs with the ribs; hence the respiration of every membrane in the body. . . (See W.403². 408.)

D. 3184. (These Spirits) are permitted no higher than the higher ribs.

3655. (These Angels, who resuscitate those spiritually dead) are the ribs.

4129. While thinking of the meaning of the word rib out of which the woman was built. . .

5814. (Those in a holy external) operated into the lower ribs of the left side. . .

E. 556⁵. 'Three ribs' (Dan.vii.) = all things of the Word. . .

781¹³. 'Three ribs in the mouth between the teeth' = Knowledges of truth from the Word in abundance which are perverted by reasonings from fallacies.

Ribbing, Conrad. D.5867. 5892.

Ribbing, Peter. D.5100. 5835.

Rich. Dives.

Riches. Divitiae.

Rich, To become. Ditescere.

Enrich. Ditare.

See under AID, ENRICH, and OPULENCE.

A. 382⁴. 'Arabia and the sons of the east' = the possession of celestial riches, or those which are of love. . . 'The inhabitants of Hazor' = those who possess spiritual riches, which are of faith.

426². 'Substance, and treasures' = celestial and spiritual riches.

944. Women of low condition who have become rich, and. . . have given themselves up to pleasures and a delicate life. (Their lot.)

945. It is otherwise with those who have been born. . . rich. These, although they have lived in luxury. . . provided they have lived in faith in the Lord and charity towards the neighbour, are among the happy.

1156. 'Tyre' = those who possess celestial and spiritual riches, or Knowledges.

1488. 'Wealth and riches' (Ps.cxii.3) = the wealth and riches of wisdom and intelligence; thus Knowledges.

1631. They who have been rich (here). . . and devoid of conscience and charity. . . are at first introduced into the very same life. . . But their palaces are dissipated, and become small houses, more and more mean, and at last none. They then wander about. . . and beg to be received; but. . . are expelled from Societies; and at last become excrementitious, and exhale a sphere of the fetor of teeth. D.3502.

1750. 'To be enriched' (Gen.xiv.23) = to acquire power and strength.

1877. Yet both the rich and the powerful, who have lived in charity and faith, are in Heaven. D.4158. 4160.

2129⁴. The rich and the poor are equally saved. 5573². D.3503.

3033². When. . . to become great and rich is a man's end. . .

3425². Believes that riches are to be renounced. . . for he believes them to be opposite to spiritual life; whereas, in themselves, they are not opposite, but correspond; for they are means to an end, namely, that the spiritual man may enjoy them for the exercising of the goods of charity. . .

3951². Take the good of riches: so far as riches have spiritual good in them, that is, have for their end the good of the neighbour, the public good, and the good of the Church, so far they are goods. But they who conclude that spiritual good is not possible in worldly opulence, and therefore persuade themselves that. . . they must renounce these things, are much mistaken. For if they renounce them, or deprive themselves of them, they can then do good to no one, nor themselves live in the world except in misery, and thus can no longer have for their end the good of the neighbour, of their country, nor even of the Church; but themselves only, that they may be saved, and become greater than others in the Heavens. Besides, when they divest themselves of worldly things, they expose themselves to contempt. . . and consequently make themselves useless for performing services and discharging offices. (Further ex.)

4227. Many of both sexes. . . subjugate the minds of others. . . especially the powerful and the rich, in order to rule under their name. (Their character and correspondence ex.)

4372. His spiritual riches. Sig. . . For they were flocks and herds, by which are signified goods and truths, which are called spiritual riches. Spiritual riches are predicated of truth, and their uses of good.

4744^e. 'The rich He hath sent empty away' (Luke i.53). 'The rich' = those who know many things; for 'riches,' in the spiritual sense, are scientifics, doctrinals, and Knowledges of good and truth. Those are called 'the empty rich' who know these things, and do not do them; for truths with them are not truths because devoid of good. E.236^e, Further ex. 386¹⁷.

4756. 'Traders' = those who have Knowledges of good and truth; for these are riches, wealth, and merchandize, in the spiritual sense.

[A.] 4981. 'The blessing of Jehovah'=to be content with the state of honour and opulence in which one is, whether one is among the honoured and rich, or among the less honoured and poor. For he who is content in God, regards honours and riches as the means of uses; and, when he is thinking about them, and at the same time about eternal life, he makes the former of no account, and the latter essential.

5008¹. Those who are in truth natural not spiritual . . . call riches, dignities, etc. so many means of removing man from Heaven.

5433³. 'That thou mayest be enriched'=to be in celestial and spiritual good.

5886⁶. 'To sell our possessions,' at this day, would be to make one's self a beggar, and to deprive one's self of all means of exercising charity; besides which, one must needs place merit in so doing; and it is a constant Truth that the rich are in Heaven as well as the poor.

6110². (Such) will say . . . The things which give life, and the delight of life, are riches, honours, and pleasures. But let them know that the life from these is a life of the body, and not of the soul, and it perishes with the body . . .

6210. When I have thought inordinately about worldly things . . . about possessions, the acquiring of riches, pleasures, and the like, I have noticed that I relapsed into the Sensuous: and that in proportion as my thought was immersed in these things, I was removed from consort with the Angels. . . Those who are deeply in such cares cannot have intercourse with those in the other life; for when such thoughts occupy the whole mind, they carry the mind downwards, and are like weights which drag it down; and, when they are held as the end, they remove the man from Heaven. Examp.

6392². At this day, men do not know that there is any other happiness than in . . . abounding in riches, etc.

6777. That they enriched the doctrine of charity. Sig. and Ex.

7770³. The Knowledges of good and truth . . . are like worldly riches, which with one are disposed for good uses, and with another for evil uses: hence riches with everyone are such as are the uses to which they are disposed . . .

7784³. By 'the rich man' (Luke xvi.) are meant those within the Church, and thence abound in spiritual riches, which are the Knowledges of truth and good. (Compare 9231³.)

8628³. Knowledges—scientiae—in themselves, are spiritual riches, and they who possess them are like those who possess worldly riches, which in like manner are means for performing use to one's self, the neighbour, and our country, and are also means for doing evil.

8717^e. The Lord provides for the good . . . riches and honours for those to whom they are not hurtful, and no riches and honours for those to whom they are hurtful; but still to the latter He grants, in time, instead of riches and honours, to be glad with a few things, and to be more content than the rich and honoured.

8906. For riches and wealth, in the spiritual sense, are the Knowledges of good and truth; in general, all those things which are of faith and charity, that is, which are of spiritual life with man.

8995³. For instance, he who desires and procures for himself riches for the sake of a use which he loves above all things, is not delighted with riches for the sake of riches, but for the sake of the uses. Uses themselves make the spiritual life with men, and riches only serve as means. Ref.

9467⁵. 'The rich man'=the Jewish nation, and the Church there, which is called 'rich' from the Knowledges of good and truth from the Word which are there. 10227²⁰. H.365². S.40³. R.725. T.246, Ex. E.118⁴. 236⁹. 455⁷. 717¹⁶. 962⁷. 1042⁴. 1143².

9942⁷. 'The rich of the people' (Ps. xlv. 12)=the Knowledges of good and truth: for by 'riches' these are meant in the spiritual sense.

9960⁷. 'I am rich' (Rev. iii. 17)=is in the Knowledges of truth and good. R.206. E.326.

10227. 'A rich man shall not give more . . .' (Ex. xxx. 15)=that one who abounds in truths and goods, and the Knowledges of them (must also) ascribe to the Lord all things of truth from good. Ex. —⁴, Fully ill.

—^e. Moreover, with the Spirits who are below the Heavens, there are riches in appearance according to the state of reception of truth and good from the Lord.

H. 357. On the rich and poor in Heaven. Chapter.

— . Some suppose that the poor are received into Heaven, and not the rich; some that the rich and poor are received alike; some that the rich cannot be received unless they renounce their property . . . and each confirms his opinion from the Word. But those who make a distinction between the rich and poor in respect to Heaven do not understand the Word. (Continued under POOR.)

358. Man may acquire riches and accumulate wealth as much as possible, provided it is not done with cunning and evil art . . . 359, Ex.

360³. Many of those who have become rich by means of trading and commerce are in Heaven; but fewer of those who . . . have become rich by their public employments; because the latter . . . were led to love themselves and the world . . .

361. The lot of the rich in Heaven is such that they excel the rest in opulence. Some of them dwell in palaces in which all things are refulgent as with gold and silver . . . But they do not set their hearts on these things, but on uses themselves . . . The reason is that in the world they loved uses, and gold and silver only as means and instruments . . . Such, therefore as had been their uses in the world, such is their opulence, and such their delight and happiness. Good uses are for one to provide for himself and his own the necessaries of life; to want an abundance for the sake of one's country, and also of the neighbour, whom a rich man can in many ways benefit more than a poor one; and because he can thus remove his mind from an idle life, which life is pernicious . . .

362. The contrary is the lot of the rich who have not believed in the Divine; and have rejected from their minds the things of Heaven and the Church: these are in Hell, where are dirt, misery, and want. Into such things are changed the riches which are loved as the end; and not only the riches, but also the uses themselves, which are either that they may live at their pleasure, and indulge in pleasures . . . or that they may be eminent above others . . . These riches, and these uses, because they have nothing spiritual in them, but what is earthly, become dirty; for what is spiritual in riches and their uses is like a soul in a body, and like the light of heaven in humid soil; and they become putrid like a body without a soul, and like humid soil without the light of heaven. These are they whom riches have seduced, and have withdrawn from Heaven.

363. Every man's dominant love remains with him after death . . . From this it may be evident that the love of riches, and of the uses from riches, remains with everyone to eternity, exactly such as it has been acquired (here); yet with this difference, that riches with those with whom they have served for good uses, are turned into delights according to the uses, and that riches with those with whom they have served for evil uses, are turned into dirt, with which also they are then delighted . . . because the filthy pleasures and flagitiousnesses, which have been to them the uses from riches, and also avarice, which is the love of riches without use, correspond to dirt . . .

365. (Thus) the rich come into Heaven equally with the poor, and the one as easily as the other.

— By 'the rich,' in the Word, in the spiritual sense, are meant those who abound in the Knowledges of good and truth; thus those who are within the Church, where the Word is. Ill.

—². The rich called to the great supper, who excused themselves (Luke xiv.) also = the Jewish nation . . .

—³. 'The rich man,' of whom the Lord says, 'It is easier for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the Kingdom of God' (Matt. xix. 24) means the rich in both senses, natural and spiritual. The rich in the natural sense are those who abound in wealth, and set their hearts upon it; but in the spiritual sense, those who abound in Knowledges and knowledges—for these are spiritual riches—and by them want to introduce themselves, from their Own intelligence, into the things of Heaven and the Church. (Further ex.) D. 1466, Fully ex.

—⁴. That by 'the rich,' in the Word, in the spiritual sense, are meant those who are in the Knowledges of truth and good; and by 'riches,' the Knowledges themselves, which also are spiritual riches. Ill.

565. The love of the world is . . . to set the heart on riches . . . N. 76.

Life 66. 'A certain rich man came to Jesus . . .' (Mark x. 17-22). It is said that Jesus 'loved him' . . . because he had kept the commandments; but, as he lacked three things, which were [first] that he had not removed his heart from riches . . . the Lord said that he should sell all that he had . . .

P. 215. That temporary things relate to dignities and riches . . .

—². What riches are. Ex.

—⁴. In the earliest times . . . there was no other love of riches than that they should possess the necessities of life. Enum. . . But after the love of dominating invaded them . . . the love of possessing wealth beyond . . . also entered. Ex.

—⁶. The quality of the love of riches for their own sake, and for the sake of use. Ex. . . The love of riches and wealth for the sake of riches and wealth, is the love of the world, properly, is the love of possessing the goods of others by any art. But the love of . . . riches for the sake of use, is the love of uses, which is the same as the love of the neighbour.

—⁹. As to riches not for their own sake, but for the sake of use, this is not the love of riches, but of uses, to which riches serve as means: this love is heavenly. —¹¹. (Further ex. —¹².)

217. (When riches are a blessing, and when a curse. See A1D, here.)

R. 206. That by 'riches,' and 'wealth,' are signified spiritual riches and wealth, which are the Knowledges of truth and good. Ill.

288. 'Thou art worthy to receive . . . riches and wisdom' (Rev. v. 12) = that in Him are . . . Divine knowledge and wisdom, which are omniscience . . . E. 338.

337. 'The rich men' (Rev. vi. 15) = those in the Knowledges of truth. (= internal truths. E. 408.)

604. 'The rich and poor' (Rev. xiii. 16) = those more or less in Knowledges and knowledges; thus from every kind of erudition.

763. The punishment of exultation from riches there. Sig. and Des.

D. 766. That the rich are equally saved. Ex.

773. Knowledges are spiritual riches . . . They are like [natural] riches, which, if esteemed for the sake of riches, [cause] such a man to be the worst in the other life; but if only for the sake of ulterior ends . . . they hurt no one.

777. On certain rich and luxurious ones. . . This man was not born rich, but became so. Such (there) wander about, and seek food, like beggars . . .

1212. That those who acquire riches in deceitful ways never become rich, but become poor.—It is known that evil gains do not come to the third heir, yet many . . . care not by what means they acquire wealth. It has, however, been confirmed by the Angels that ill-gotten wealth melts away, they know not how; but the rest become rich.

1286. True Christians can, as rightly—bene—as others . . . be rich; but as all these things are corporeal and worldly, they are by them accounted as nothing in comparison with heavenly things. 5794.

3508. Care for no one but the rich. 3511². 4375^e.

3523. There are rich traders in Heaven . . .

4427. On riches, etc. in the other life.

—^e. Those who desire to be rich, have nothing.

4428. The Plutonics have the phantasy of seeing immense . . . riches . . . It was given to say that such things are worthless, like mud. 4429, Ex.

[D.] 4911. (Those who get riches by their Own intelligence, become magicians there).

5322. These tracts were properly called Babylon, because riches abounded there . . .

5710. To be raised to honours and riches . . . are not real blessings . . .

D. Min. 4637. The delight of riches not for the sake of use (is the worst soil).

E. 118. 'But thou art rich' (Rev.ii.9)=the spiritual affection of truth. (Continued under Poor.)

—e. The reason 'riches'=the Knowledges of truth and good, and thence intelligence and wisdom. Ex.236.

236. 'Thou sayest, I am rich' (Rev.iii.17)=their belief that they are in truths more than others. Ex.—⁴,Ill.

242. 'Buy of Me gold . . . that thou mayest be rich' (ver.18)=procure genuine good that they may receive the truths of faith. Ex.

—. 'Riches' and 'wealth'=Knowledges of truth and good; and 'the rich,' those who are in intelligence thereby . . .

412²⁴. Not to be of a mind disposed towards the rich . . . more than towards the poor. Sig.

—²⁶. 'The rich of the people'=the intelligent; abstractedly, the intelligence of truth and good. 863¹⁴.

659⁹. 'The rich whom He would give in their deaths' (Is.liii.9)=those of the Church who are in falsities from evil, who are called 'the rich' from the Knowledges of truth and good which they have from the Word.

721¹⁵. 'The riches not made with judgment' (Jer.xvii.11)=the Knowledges of truth and good acquired not for the sake of use . . .

730³. From the love of the world (also), which is the love of riches when they are loved above all things, flow forth all the evils, and, from the evils, the falsities, which are opposite to (these) goods and truths.

836. 'Rich and poor'=the wise and simple. Ex.

893⁴. The riches (of the rich man whom the Lord 'loved')=the Knowledges of evil and falsity, which were traditions, (and therefore the Lord told him to 'sell' them).

978^e. To these (merchants) riches do no harm, because riches to them are means for uses, which are their tradings, whereby they are of service to their country and fellow-citizens. By means of their riches, also, they are in a state for doing the uses to which the affection of good leads them.

1104. 'The merchants of the earth were enriched . . .' (Rev.xviii.3)=instruction . . .

1162. 'The merchants . . . who were enriched by her' (ver.15)=all who gained wealth and honours by that religiosity, and thus the goods of opulence and eminence. Ex.

1168. 'In one hour so great riches are devastated' (ver.17)=the loss of all the things they had gained . . . (that is,) honours and wealth, and also the evils and falsities of doctrine by which they hoped to make gain.

1189³. As in the Christian world there universally reign the love of commanding and the love of riches, and these loves are to-day so deeply rooted in that it is unknown that they ever seduce, it is important that their quality should be taught. (Fully ex. under LOVE OF DOMINATING.)

Richelieu. Richelieu. D.Min.4760.

Riddle. See ENIGMA.

Ride. Equitare.

Rider, Horseman. Eques.

Horsemen, Cavalry. Equitatus.

A. 1288³. 'To ride upon the word of truth' (Ps.xlv.4) =to teach the doctrine of truth. (=the intelligence of truth . . . 2761⁶.)

2015³. 'To ride in chariot and on horses' (Jer.xvii.25; xxii.4)=an abundance of intellectual things.

2567¹⁰. 'Chariots and horsemen'=principles of falsity.

2686⁵. 'Horsemen'=those who state truth.

2761. 'A rider'=one who is intelligent.

—. 'His rider (who falls backward)' (Gen.xlix.17) =one who teaches.

—³. 'To ride on the clouds' (Ps.lxviii.4) =the understanding of the Word as to its interiors.

—⁴. 'Jehovah riding upon a cherub' (Ps.xviii.10) =the Providence of the Lord lest man should enter from himself into the mysteries of faith which are in the Word.

—⁵. 'To ride upon a chariot, and upon horses' (Jer.xvii.)=to be instructed in the doctrine of truth from the Word with internal understanding. 5044⁸.

—⁶. 'To ride upon the high places of the earth' (Is.lviii.14)=intelligence. E.314⁷, Ex. 617¹⁴, Ex.

—⁷. 'I will smite . . . his rider with madness' (Zech.xii.4) =one who is intelligent struck with madness. E.355⁶, Ex.

2781⁸. 'To ride upon an ass' was a sign that the Natural had been subordinated; and 'to ride on a foal the son of a she-ass,' that the Rational had been subordinated.

3190. 'They rode upon camels' (Gen.xxiv.61)=the Intellectual elevated above natural scientifics.

3923². That he is then withdrawn from truth, is signified by 'his rider falling backward.' 6401, Ex.

5895³. 'To ride' is predicated of Ephraim, because 'to ride' is to enjoy understanding . . .

6534. 'Horsemen' (Gen.l.9)=intellectual things. Ill.

7024. 'He made them ride upon an ass' (Ex.iv.20)=things of service to the new intelligence. 'To ride'=the things which are of the understanding . . . because 'a horse'=the Intellectual.

7729⁴. 'Thy walls shall shake at the noise of the horsemen' (Ezek.xxvi.10) . . . 'Horsemen'=the things of a perverted Intellectual.

8156. 'Horsemen'=the things which are of the understanding; here, 'the horsemen of Pharaoh,' false reasonings from a perverted Intellectual. 8188^e. 8210. 8265. 8332.

8343. 'The horse and his rider hath He cast into the sea' (Ex.xv.21)=at His presence the falsities of faith and evils of life have cast themselves into Hell. 'Horse and rider' = falsities from evil.

890⁶. 'Horsemen who run' (Joel ii.4) = reasoners.

W. H. 2^c. Elijah and Elisha were called . . . 'the horsemen of Israel' (2 Kings xiii.14) because both represented the Lord as to the Word; and by . . . 'horsemen' is signified intelligence.

Life 30². 'Horsemen' = intelligence. E. 355¹².

R. 298³. 'Horseman' = wisdom thence.

447. By 'horsemen' - equitatum (Rev. ix. 16) are signified reasonings about faith alone, because by 'a horse' is signified the understanding of the Word destroyed; hence 'horsemen' = reasonings from the understanding of the Word destroyed . . . E. 573.

455⁴. 'His rider' (Gen. xlix.) = the lack of knowledge from them, by which truths are perverted. (=ratiocination from these. E. 355⁸.)

839. A ludicrous cavalry seen, des. and ex.

M. 103. I saw four horsemen as it were flying out of a cloud. Des. and Ex.

T. 776². 'To ride' = to instruct in Divine truths from the Word. Ill.

E. 175⁹. 'To ride upon horses' (Jer. vi. 23) = to persuade from the fallacies of the senses, and through reasonings thence.

355⁴. 'To ride upon horses' (Hab. iii. 8) = that the Lord is in the understanding of His Word in its spiritual sense.

—⁶. 'Rider' = the affection of spiritual truth whence is understanding.

—^{14a}. 'To ride' = to give intelligence and wisdom. Ill.

—¹⁸. 'The voice of the horseman' = ratiocination . . . 411¹⁹.

—²¹. 'Horsemen,' etc. = assaults on truth . . .

—²³.
—²⁹. 'To ride upon a horse' = ratiocination.

—³⁰.
—³³. 'To ride upon white asses' = perception of good.

514¹⁴. 'Horsemen' = ratiocinations. 654⁴². —⁴⁵.

518²⁵. 'To ride upon horses, when predicated of the Lord, = the Divine wisdom which is in the Word.

529². 'To ride' = to give understanding and to illustrate.

557³. 'Horsemen' = the intelligent.

577⁵. 'To make a man ride on our head' (Ps. lxxvi. 12) = no intelligence.

581¹¹. 'Horseman' = intelligence.

594⁴. 'To ride,' when predicated of the Lord, = to illustrate the understanding. —⁵. —⁶. —⁷.

684¹⁵. 'To ride' = to instruct and combat.

780⁸. 'Horsemen' = heresies.

Ridicule. Ludibrium.

A. 888⁴. Holy things held in ridicule. Sig.

T. 312. Direful mockeries.

D. 5213. Occurs. 5219^c. 5221^c. 5226. 5932². D. Love xv³.

Ridiculous. Ridiculus, Ridiculosus.

T. 356². These things (are) absurd and ridiculous.

D. 2521. Occurs. 4360. 4650. 5076. 5962. D. Min. 4631. E. 824. 1182⁵.

Right. Dexter.

See DEXTERITY.

A. 641^e. They inflow into the right side of the brain with cupidities.

644. To the right hemisphere of the brain pertain the voluntary things. 3884.

1270. (The antediluvians) are permitted to inflow into the right side of the head . . . and from the right of the head into the left of the chest. D. 3362. 3375.

1274. Societies which are on the right, appear to the right, whichever way the body is turned . . . 3638. 3639. 4321².

1276. At the Lord's right are the Angels, and evil Spirits at His left.

1531. The moon appeared at the right.

1582. 'If to the left, I will go to the right; and if to the right, I will go to the left' (Gen. xiii. 9) = separation.

— Right and left are merely something relative. Ex.

— The centre is wherever the Lord is; and right and left are from that. Examp.

1762. Round the left eye when they were communicating truth and affections of truth; round the right, when good and affections of good.

1773². Those delighted with the Word, but not solicitous to understand it, had heat in the right arm.

2083^e. 'To sit at the right hand of power' = to have all Power . . .

2162⁷. 'He set his right foot upon the sea, and his left upon the earth' (Rev. x.). Ex. E. 600.

2701². 'The left eye' = the Intellectual; 'the right eye' (Matt. v. 29) = the affection thereof.

2759. At the right side from the Lower Earth rose up as it were a roll . . .

3159. 'I will look to the right hand, or to the left' (Gen. xxiv. 49) = reciprocal freedom. Ex.

3217. (A place to the right, called the abode of the intelligent, where horses appear.)

3387⁴. 'To sit on the right hand' = a state of power. Ill.

3639. Dextrorsum, sinistrorsum. Occur.

3708¹⁰. 'The north and the right hand Thou hast created' (Ps. lxxxix. 12) . . . 'The right hand' = those nearer the light of good and truth. These are at the Lord's right hand. Refs. (Compare 10061³.)

4050^e. These appeared at the right.

4052. Those who correspond to the right side of the brain, are those in the will of good, and thence in the will of truth; and those who correspond to the left side of it, are those in the understanding of good and truth, and thence in affection for them. This is because those in Heaven at the Lord's right are those in good from the will (called the celestial), but those at His left are those in good from the understanding (called the spiritual).

[A.] 4321². The Lord as a Sun constantly appears to the right . . . a little above the plane of the right eye.

4326². The right side of the face together with the right eye, corresponds to the affection of good; the left, to the affection of truth.

4410. The sight of the left eye corresponds to truths which are of the understanding; and the right eye, to the affections of truth, which are also of the understanding; consequently, the left eye corresponds to the truth of faith; and the right eye, to the goods of faith. (The reason ex.) . . . For those in good are at the Lord's right, and those in truth at His left.

4528. The Societies in paradisiacal things appear . . . a little to the right. 4529³.

4592. 'Benjamin' means 'a son of the right hand,' by which is signified spiritual truth which is from celestial good, and thence power, for good is in power through truth. . . 'The right hand' = the highest power. Hence 'to sit at the right hand of God' = a state of power from the truth which is from good, which, predicated of the Lord, is omnipotence, and also the Divine truth which proceeds from His Divine good. Ill. 10019⁵, Ill.

4658². He applied himself to the right ear.

4809⁶. 'He set the sheep on His right hand, and the goats on the left' = separation according to truths from good, and falsities from evil. Those in truths from good actually appear at the right, and those in falsities from evil at the left. Hence 'to be set on the right hand, and on the left' = to be ordained according to the life. 10061². E.600⁵.

4882³. Every Spirit and Angel sees the good to the right, and the evil to the left. Des.

4933^e. 'The right hand,' in the Word, = higher power; and 'to sit at the right hand of Jehovah' = omnipotence. Ill. 7281. 9807⁶. 9809³. L. 14⁸. 35¹⁰. S. 49². W. 221². E. 63⁷.

4936. (Magicians) are . . . at the right.

4946. See LEFT, here.

4948. (Such) are under the sole of the right foot.

5057. Such dwell under the right heel.

5069. Why those on the right hand are called 'the just.' Ex.

5188². (Those who act by artifices and lies) are circumrotated from left to right . . . Their Hell is in a deep place beneath the right foot . . .

5387. (This) Spirit was perceived . . . beneath to the right. (He had been a pirate.)

5394. These Hells (of cruel adulterers) are . . . partly beneath the right foot. D. 4545.

5725. An inundation of cupidities . . . belongs to the right side of the brain; but one of Falsities, to the intellectual part, in which is the left side of it. D. 4155.

6267. 'Ephraim in his right hand toward Israel's left hand, and Manasseh in his left hand toward Israel's right hand' (Gen. xlviii. 13) = the truth of the Intellectual as in the second place, and the good of the Voluntary in the first place. Ex. See 6269. 6287. 6292.

6699. A great continuous stream (of people from the worlds) seen on the right . . .

6923. (Spirits of Mercury) seen a little to the right.

— Their speech was conveyed towards my left eye, although they were on the right; because the left eye corresponds to Knowledges of Things abstracted from material ones, thus to the things of intelligence; but the right eye to the things of wisdom.

7171. The planet Mercury appears behind, a little towards the right.

7358^e. Difference of state causes (Spirits) to appear . . . to the right, or to the left.

7418. This was seen to the right . . .

8206. 'The waters a wall . . . on their right hand and on their left' (Ex. xiv. 22) = withheld from falsities on all sides. Ex.

8281. 'Thy right hand, Jehovah, was magnified in strength' (Ex. xv. 6) = the omnipotence of the Lord. Ex. and Ill. 8282.

—⁵. 'The right hand,' in the supreme sense, = the Lord as to Divine truth. Ill.

8305. 'Thou stretchedst out Thy right hand' (ver. 12) = the dominion of power over all things thence.

8613. To the right and to the left, in the spiritual sense, = on every side; for right and left are not determinations to a certain quarter, but to every quarter . . . and still more so in the Spiritual World . . . for there that which is to the right appears to the right in every turning; in like manner that which is to the left.

8739. Such (saints) appear to the right, backwards . . .

8910⁵. The affection of evil . . . is signified by 'the right eye offending;' and the affection of falsity . . . by 'the right hand offending;' for . . . 'the right eye' corresponds to the good of faith, and, in the opposite, to the evil of faith . . . But 'the right hand' corresponds to the power of truth from good, and, in the opposite, to the power of falsity from evil. 10061⁵.

9049⁶. 'The right cheek-bone' (Matt. v. 39) = the affection of truth from good.

9051². 'The right eye' = falsity of faith concerning the Lord. This is what is to be 'plucked out.'

9133^e. 'To sit at the right hand of the Father' = to be everything with the Father; thus to be Himself.

9391². External or natural good was represented by 'a right foot' (Ezek. i. 7).

9511. The like is signified by the two extremities (of the mercy-seat) as by the right and left hand of the Lord: by the right hand is signified the good of celestial love . . . and by the left hand, the good of spiritual love . . . Hence all the things on the right side of man correspond to celestial good, and those on the left, to spiritual good . . . Those in these goods are meant by 'to sit on the Lord's right and left hand' (Mark x. 40).

9556. For the things on the right side of the body = goods (from which are truths); and those on the left, the truths thence. Enum. 9604^e. 9736. 9843. 10061. H.118^e. W.127. 384². E.386².

9684². The Lord as a Sun appears . . . opposite the right eye; and as a Moon, opposite the left eye. H.118.

10061. 'The right ear' (Ex.xxix.20)=the perceptivity of truth from good. Ill.

—². 'To cast the net on the right side of the ship' (John xxi.6)=to act and teach from good.

—⁴. In the opposite sense, 'the right'=the evil from which is falsity; and 'the left,' the falsity through which is evil. Ill.

10189². In Heaven at the right are those who are in the light of truth, thus those in the south; but at the left those who are in the shade of truth, thus those in the north. H.142. 151.

10283⁷. 'The right'=good from which is truth; 'the left,' truth through which is good. Ill.

10810. When all the Spirits came (to the Lord's presence), the good were separated to the right, and the evil to the left, and this instantly as of their own accord; and those at the right were ordained according to the quality of the good, and those at the left, according to the quality of the evil, with them.

H. 333. The infants who are of a celestial genius, appear . . . to the right; and those of a spiritual one, to the left.

534. The way which tended to the left was narrow, leading through the west to the south, and thus into the light of Heaven; and the way which tended to the right was broad, leading obliquely downwards towards Hell.

J. 49. In the spiritual sense, 'the right'=good; and 'the left,' truth.

L. 27^e. 'The man of Thy right hand' (Ps.lxxx.17)=the Lord as to the Word; He is so called, because the Lord, from Divine truth, has power . . . See E.298⁶.

W. 125. Those more in wisdom see the Lord obliquely to the right; those less in wisdom, obliquely to the left; therefore they are in the south and north respectively.

127. That love and wisdom may make a one with Angel and man, there are pairs in all things of his body . . . Thus there is a right and a left; and all their right parts relate to love from which is wisdom, and all their left parts to wisdom from love . . .

129. That the Angels . . . thus have the south to the right, the north to the left . . . Ex.

220. 'The right hand'=higher power.

270². The natural mind gyrates from right to left; but the spiritual mind from left to right . . . Gyration from right to left is turned downwards . . . but gyration from left to right goes upwards . . . An evil Spirit cannot gyrate his body from left to right, but from right to left; whereas a good Spirit can with difficulty gyrate his body from right to left, but easily from left to right.

409². It is from this marriage (of love and wisdom) that in each and all things of the body there are a right and a left; and the right one relates to good from which is truth, and the left one to truth from good, thus to conjunction.

R. 51. 'Having in His right hand seven stars' (Rev. i.16)=that all the Knowledges . . . are from the Lord alone through the Word.

256. 'I saw in the right hand of Him . . .' (Rev.v.1) =Himself as to omnipotence and omniscience. Ex. E.297. 298, Ex.

386^e. The reason darkness was caused when a window was made at the right side, was that light inlowing from Heaven from that side affects the will; and the reason light was caused when . . . a window was made on the left side, is that light inlowing from Heaven from the left side affects the understanding; and every man can be in the light of Heaven as to the understanding, provided the will as to its evil is closed.

605. 'A mark upon their right hand' (Rev.xiii.16). . . . 'The right hand'=the whole of man as to intellectual power, and thus as to his faith . . . (=the truth of faith in its power. E.838.)

933. 'On this side and on that'=on the right and on the left; and truth on the right is what is in clearness, and on the left, what is in obscurity; for the south, in Heaven, is to the right . . .

M. 20². The bridegroom was on the left, and the bride on his right.

21². Why did she sit at his right hand? Because . . . wisdom is at the right hand of love . . . The right hand also=power, and love has power through wisdom; but after the wedding . . . the husband represents wisdom.

78². Bears were seen to the left, and leopards to the right.

316⁵. There appeared red lightning on the right, and bright white lightning on the left (which were a sign to the wise one to say) that the right one of these pairs (of organs)=their good, and the left one their truth; and this is from the marriage of good and truth . . . Hence, in Heaven, the right eye is the good of sight, and the left the truth thereof; the right ear is the good of hearing, and the left the truth thereof; the right hand is the good of the power of man, and the left is the truth thereof . . . By 'the right eye and the right hand offending,' He meant that if good becomes evil, the evil must be cast out. . . By 'casting the net on the right side,' He meant that they should teach the good of charity . . .

T. 136⁴. 'To sit at the right hand of His Father,' means the omnipotence of God through the Human which He assumed in the world. . . That 'the right hand'=omnipotence. Ill.

137^e. Light from Heaven (caused) many of those on the left side to pass over to those on the right . . .

666^e. Two companies (then) went to the right, and two to the left; the latter descending, and the former ascending.

Ad. 3/2288. I have learned that the right side of man is accounted more holy than the left, and indeed so that the right side is never to be allowed to be touched except by holy things, but the left by other things.

[Ad.] 2289. Hence the right represents the husband, and the left the wife . . .

D. 1018. On the left side of the head are those who have despised . . . things which are good . . . on the right side, those who have despised truths.

1027. The left eye corresponds to the right hemisphere of the brain, and the right eye to the left hemisphere; for so do the fibres flow . . . Thus the left eye, or the right side of the brain, represents the intellectual things of truth; and the right eye with the left side of the brain, the intellectual things of good.

1666. That the things in the left side of the brain correspond to the right things in the body, has been given me to know by experience; for Spirits acted into the left of the brain, and a sense thence was derived through the fibres into the right of the nose, and into the right palm of the hand.

1667. Thus the right side of the brain is allotted to intellectual things, and the left to affections. The reverse in the body . . .

2991. When such a projection appears from right to left, he wants to separate himself from the Society; when from left to right, they want to retain him . . .

3636. For the right eye represents affections.

3863. Formerly . . . the natural operation . . . was shown in the whole face, both the changes of celestial things which belong to the right of the face, and those of spiritual things, which belong to the left of it. When the affections of good ceased . . . the operation into the right side of the face receded, and betook itself to the left, in which it acts from spiritual things, thus in inverted order; that is, not from celestial things to spiritual ones, or from right to left, but from spiritual things to celestial ones, thus from the left; but it is not allowable [to proceed] from left to right, or from spiritual things to celestial ones; and therefore the right of the face is guarded by the Lord . . .

3949. Aristotle . . . thought from affection . . . and he therefore applied himself to my right ear; but his followers . . . from terms . . . and (therefore) they were at my left ear.

4149. (That truths and Falsities have their place in the left side of the head, as cupidities have in the right, and can be found there. From experience.)

4219^e. This Moon did not appear to the right, where the Lord is, but in front above.

4356. Hypocritical Genii operate into the right side of the teeth, etc. . . and hypocritical Spirits into the left side.

4496². By looking at the right side of his face.

4546². At the right . . . are the deceitful . . . and the magicians.

4547. At the right . . . are the brothels of the lascivious.

4642. A gate (of Hell) at the right . . .

—^e. At the right . . . are those in the knowledge of faith, but a life of evil.

4643. At the right . . . is a Hell . . . of violences done to charity from falsities.

4791. The Moravians appeared a little to the right . . .

4831. The region (of) the Mohammedans is towards the right, in the plane of the right sole.

4894. I saw the Sun at the right. (A mountainous tract of Heaven to the right. Des.)

4895. At the right side there appeared a dense and dark forest: thither are sent those in falsities. . . At the left side appeared precipices . . .

4914. (Babylonians) appear . . . on the right and left side of the Sun . . . 4915. 4954.

4936. On the right (in the churches there) are those in the good of love; on the left, those in the truths of faith . . . and in the middle, those who conjoin.

4986. (In the evil cities there) at the right side, are those in evil through which is falsity; and at the left, those in falsity from evil . . .

5206. A gulf at the right which is darker than the rest . . .

5221. (These Babylonians) sit at the right, that is, towards the south . . .

5227. The Jews appeared at the right . . .

E. 79. 'He laid His right hand upon me' (Rev. i. 17) = life from Him. Ex.

SS. 'In His right hand,' when said of the Lord, = what is from Him. 96.

298². That 'the right hand,' predicated of the Lord, = omnipotence and omniscience; and, when of men, power and wisdom. Fully ill.

—¹⁰. 'The right hand' = the Divine truth.

—¹⁵. In the opposite sense, 'the right hand' = falsity from evil. Ill.

—^e. The reason 'the right hand,' when predicated of the evil, = falsity . . . is that the quarters with the evil are opposite to those with the good . . .

313^e. 'The right eye' = the understanding of good; 'the left eye,' the understanding of truth.

336⁶. 'The right hand' = the truth of good.

449³. 'Called 'son of my right hand,' because . . . 'the right hand' = the power of truth from good . . .

513¹⁶. 'The right side of the ship' = that all things are from the good of love and of charity; for 'the right' = this good ex quo. (= that they should teach the good of life. —⁷.)

600². 'The right' = all things of good from which is truth; and 'the left,' all things of truth from good.

—³. The signification of 'right' and 'left' as used separately, and both together. Ex. and Fully ill.

— (Hence) 'the right' = truth in light, and 'the left,' truth in shade; or, what is the same, 'the right' = spiritual good . . . and 'the left,' spiritual truth; thus also 'the right' = good from which is truth, and 'the left,' truth from good. Such things are signified by all the right and left parts of the body and head . . .

—⁴. 'Let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth' (Matt. vi. 3) = that good must be done from good, and for the sake of good, and not for the sake of self and the world in order that it may appear. (Further ex.)

—⁶. The two robbers crucified, the one on the right, and the other on the left, of the Lord = the like as the sheep and the goats.

—⁸. The reason 'the right eye,' and 'the right hand,' are mentioned, and not the left eye and hand. Ex.

684¹⁸. 'At the right hand' = in protection from conjunction with Him.

687⁸. 'Sit at My right hand' = omnipotence through Divine truth. Ill.

740¹⁵. 'Let Satan stand at his right hand' (Ps.cix.6) = to be completely occupied by infernal falsity.

—¹⁶. 'Satan stood at his 'right hand' (Zech.iii.1) = that falsity of doctrine fought against Divine truth.

768⁷. 'The right hand' = truth in light. Ex.

984². The organ or member on the right relates to good, and that on the left, to truth. D.Wis.iii.3³. 4.

1120². 'At Thy right hand stands the queen' (Ps.xlv.9) . . . = the Church from the reception of good . . . For all things with man which belong to his right side, relate to good from which is truth Moreover, the woman is born to be the affection which is of love . . . thus to be good . . . and therefore . . . it is from Divine order for the wife to be on the right.

1168². When in a state of reformation, the mind looks from truth to good, as if from left to right, which is contrary to order; but, after the mind has been conjoined with Heaven . . . it looks from right to left, that is, from good to truth, which is according to order.

J. (Post.) 1. The English appear a little to the right . . .

Right. Fas.

A. 953. Caring not whether by right or wrong-nefas. D.3933^e. 4594^e.

M. 291². Extend their Power beyond right into wrong.

D. 2746. Attract the minds of others by right or wrong.

3462. Ruled him through right and wrong . . .

4658. Have machinated to become powerful by right and wrong.

Right. Rectus.

Rectitude. Rectitudo.

Rightly. Recte.

A. 1798⁴. Lives according to a conscience of right. The right and the truth . . . he believes simply . . .

2235. Justice is predicated of what is just, and 'judgment' of what is right. . . There is what is right when a thing is judged from the law, and thus from the justness of the law, thus also according to conscience, because it has the law for its rule.

2525. 'In the rectitude of my heart' (Gen.xx.5) = that it was so thought from innocence and simple good. . . 'Rectitude,' in the Original, is expressed by a word which means also integrity and perfection, and also simplicity. 2529.

2826⁷. 'Peace and uprightness' (Mal.ii.6) = both (the good of Divine love and its truth).

5434. 'We are right' (Gen.xlii.10) = that they are truths in themselves. Ex. 5437. 5460.

5525. 'Right' = truth.

7740. 'Thou hast rightly spoken' (Ex.x.29) = that it is so from truth.

8121. Charity . . . is to do what is right in every work. Ex.

8123. Consequently, what is just and right, is the neighbour.

8361. 'To do what is right' (Ex.xv.26) = to live according to the dictate of truth.

9263⁸. 'Rectitudes' (Is.xlv.19) = that which is from the truths of faith.

9717². Truths and right things are there presented as things linear and triangular.

H. 468. Moral truths relate to . . . what is sincere and right . . .

484. What is sincere and right is of moral life . . .

Life S3. By sincerity is meant rectitude, etc.

84². Unless anyone is interiorly right, etc., he is not right. Ill.

T. 393. He who lives well, and believes rightly, is saved.

D. Min. 4644. One kind of perception is that of what is just and right . . . and is for man in the world.

— . Good and truth can inflow into what is just and right, as into their correspondent.

— . Those who have a perception of what is right (as distinguished from a perception of what is just). Ex.

E. 223⁵. 'To lead them in a right way' (Ps.cvii.7) = into genuine truth. 730³⁷.

279². 'The right foot' (Ezek.i.7) = the Natural as to good.

323³. The truth of good is signified by, 'The Word of Jehovah is right' (Ps.xxxiii.4).

357¹². 'To shoot in darkness at the upright in heart' (Ps.xi.2) = to deceive those who are in truths from good.

365¹⁵. 'Behold the upright' (Ps.xxxvii.37) is said of truth.

453¹¹. 'Rectitudes' (Is.xxxiii.19) = truths. 741¹².
—¹⁴.

652⁴. To wander from the truths of doctrine, and thence no truth in the life, is signified by, 'Truth stumbleth in the street, and rectitude cannot come' (Is.ix.14).

684¹⁶. 'A sceptre of rectitude' (Ps.xlv.6) = the Divine truth which has power and the kingdom.

1019². Every man who makes what is straight appear crooked, and what is crooked straight (is meant in the eighth commandment).

Righteous. See JUST.

Rightly. Rite.

A. 4730³. The fundamental of charity is to act justly and rightly . . .

H. 432. He who considers rightly . . .

M. 301⁵. That conjugal love may progress rightly . . .

T. 340. That . . . he who lives well, and believes rightly, is saved. Gen.art.

349. That it may be rightly comprehended.

Rigid. Rigidus.

A. 7068. Those in truth are as it were rigid.

D. 4614. The tongue rendered rigid. Ex.

Rigour. See under FIERCE.

Rind. See PEEL-putamen.

Ring. Annulus.

See under CIRCLE, and GIRDLE.

A. 3103³. 'Rings and nose jewels' (Is.iii.21)=good and its badges.

5317. 'And Pharaoh removed his ring from upon his hand' (Gen.xli.42)=what is confirmative concerning power which he before had . . . 'A ring'=what is confirmative. . . Hence 'he removed his ring from upon his hand'=that he abdicated the power he before had. (See under BETROTH here.)

5318. 'To put a ring upon the hand' of another=a confirmative that he yields to the other the power which was his.

9493. 'Thou shalt cast for it [the ark] four rings of gold' (Ex.xxv.12)=Divine Truth conjoined with Divine Good, which is everywhere round about. 'Rings'=the conjunction of good and truth.

9495. 'Two rings upon the one side of it, and two rings upon the other side of it' (id.)=the marriage of truth with good, and of good with truth. . . 'Rings'=the conjunction or marriage of good with truth.

9496². 'The rings'=the conjunction itself. . . The 'staves' have reference to the arms with man; the 'rings' to the ball and socket joints where the arms are conjoined with the breast.

9498. 'Thou shalt put the staves into the rings' (ver. 14)=the power of the Divine sphere. . . The 'rings'=Divine truth conjoined with Divine good, which is on every side round about; thus the Divine sphere which encompasses and closes in Heaven in general, and the heavenly societies and the Angels themselves in particular.

9501. 'The staves must be in the rings of the ark' (ver. 15)=that power is steadfast from the Divine sphere of good and truth.

9536. 'Thou shalt make for it [the table] four rings of gold' (ver. 26)=the ultimate receptacle of the heavenly marriage, which is that of Divine good with Divine truth. 'Four rings of gold'=Divine truth conjoined with Divine good, which is everywhere round about; thus the ultimate receptacle of the heavenly marriage, which is that of Divine good with Divine truth. 9539.

9537. 'Thou shalt put the rings upon its four corners' (id.)=stability . . . from the conjunction of Divine truth with Divine good in ultimates.

9657. The boards shall be twinned below 'to one ring' (Ex.xxvi.24)=thus consistence or steadfastness. A 'ring'=conjunction; here, steadfastness through conjunction.

9728. 'Thou shalt make upon the network four rings of brass' (Ex.xxvii.4)=the sphere of good through which there is conjunction. . . 'Rings'=the sphere of Divine good and of Divine truth, through which there is conjunction.

9882. 'Thou shalt make upon the breastplate two rings of gold' (Ex.xxviii.23)=the sphere of Divine good through which there is conjunction on the side of the higher Heaven. . . The 'two rings of gold'=the sphere of Divine good through which there is conjunction.

9883. 'Thou shalt set the two rings upon the two extremities of the breastplate' (id.)=the conjunction of the sphere of Divine good in the extremes of Heaven.

9896. 'Thou shalt bind the breastplate from its rings to the rings of the ephod' (ver. 28)=the conjunction and preservation of all things of Heaven through the sphere of Divine good in the externals of the Spiritual Kingdom.

10188. 'Thou shalt make two rings of gold for it [the altar of incense] under the border' (Ex.xxx.4)=the sphere of Divine good through which there is conjunction and preservation. Ex.

M. 20³. The bridegroom placed a golden ring on her finger . . .

300². (Rings as betrothal presents.)

E. 279⁶. 'The ring' which was put on the hand of the prodigal son=the conjunction of truth and good in the internal man.

Ripe. See under MATURE.

Riphath. Riphath. See ASHKENAZ.

Rise. See under ARISE, INSURRECTION, and RESURRECTION.

Rise. Assurgere. T.602.

Rise. Oriri. Exoriri.

Rising, Origin. Ortus.

Rising. Ortivus. See EAST.

A. 1808². Hence is the origin of all things on the Earth.

3098. The origin of truth is thence.

3693³. The signification of the rising and setting of the sun.

4930². 'Zarah' means 'the rising,' and it is attributed to the sun and the first appearing of its light . . . So good first rises and gives light.

4300. 'The sun rose upon him' (Gen.xxxii.31)=conjunction of goods. 4312.

5097². The Lord as a Sun is always in His rising-ortivo.

9031. The Sun of Heaven . . . is also said to 'rise,' but in the heart when man is being regenerated, and also when he is in the good of love and of faith . . . Yet the Lord is constantly in the rising . . .

9128. 'If the sun have risen upon him' (Ex.xxii.3)=if he should see it clearly from what is interior. Ex.

9642⁶. 'Towards the east' (or 'rising') (Dan.viii.9)=against goods.

9653. Hence the rising of the sun=the good of love from the Lord in clear perception.

10605. A new rising of the revelation of Divine truth. Sig. and Ex.

H. 141^e. So far the Lord is said 'to arise' with them.

L. 30⁴. 'The dayspring from on high' (Luke i.78)=Jehovah, or the Lord from eternity.

W. 339. Their origin attributed to the sun.

340. Written on the origin of plants and animals.

346². All animals . . . derive their origin from the Spiritual in the ultimate degree . . . man alone from all the degrees . . .

P. 162^e. The sun said to rise and set. Ex.

R. 344. 'An Angel ascending from the rising of the sun' (Rev.vii.2)=the Lord providing . . . For, 'from the rising of the sun,' or from the east, =from the Divine love . . . (See E. 422.)

700. 'The rising of the sun' (Rev.xvi.12)=the beginning of the New Church from the Lord; the like as by 'morning.'

M. 342. The rise of the Mohammedan religion.

I. 5³. The origin of worldly things . . .

T. 512. This contrition arises from fear . . .

D. 2463. From such things arise . . .

2620. How representations arise.

4204. On those who think there is an origin for all things; thus that God is not eternal.

E. 316¹. 'The rising' = where good is in clearness.

401¹⁶. 'The rising of the sun' = the good of love, which is the good of life.

401²⁸. 'The rising of the sun' = those within the Church, because they have the Word, in which the Lord is always present, and thus in the rising.

—'. 'The rising of the sun' = the state of the Church when in light.

422². The reason 'the rising of the sun' = the Lord's Divine love, is that . . . where the Lord appears as a Sun, is the east, and, as He is constantly there, He is constantly in the rising.

—⁶. 'From the rising and from the setting' = all who are in the goods and truths of Heaven and the Church. Ill.

—¹³. 'The brightness of His rising' (Is.lx.3) = Divine truth from Divine good whence is intelligence.

500. Changes originating by influx . . . Sig.

644²⁰. See EAST, here.

704. Originating from correspondences.

997. 'The rising of the sun' = where the Lord is; thus 'from the rising of the sun' = from the Lord.

1000⁴. Originating from the Lord's love.

1006². Adulteries originating from . . .

1009². Infirmity originating from abuse . . .

1100¹⁹. 'The rising,' or 'east' = the good of love; hence 'a bird called from the east' (Is.xlvi.11) = the truth of the Word, which is from the good of love.

1130³. As God is uncreate . . . life itself, which is God . . . is devoid of an origin; and that which is devoid of an origin is from eternity, and is eternal. But an idea without an origin is impossible with the natural man . . . but is possible with the spiritual. Ex.

D. Wis. iii.4². As man in his first origin is such a habitation of the Lord . . .

xii.3². For the Sun of Heaven is always in its rising, and in its power.

Coro. 6. Then is the morning, or rising, of the Church

Rite. Ritus.

Ritual. Ritualis.

A. 1038⁶. Thus all the rites of the Ancient and of the Jewish Church were types representative of the Lord. —⁸. 1736². 2005^e. 2807².

1132. Those who worshipped . . . rituals, etc., and separated them from internal things, are 'sons of Ham.' 1162². 1167. 1172^e.

1141. 'Sons of Japheth' = those who knew no other doctrinals than external rites.

1151. (These nations) = so many doctrinals, which were the same as rituals, which they observed holily. Ill. 1152. 1154. 1156.

1156. Rituals representative of spiritual things. Sig. —. Rituals corresponding to internal worship. Sig. 2576⁸.

1163. (These nations) = the rituals, etc., which are of faith separated from charity.

1172. 'Dedan' = the Knowledges of lower celestial things which are in rituals.

—'. Exterior goods which are of worship, or of rituals. Sig.

1176. These doctrinals they distinguish from rituals. Examp.

1194. (These nations) = so many rituals . . . of external worship.

—^e. The things born of scientifics through ratiocinations are nothing but rituals. Sig.

1195. So many rituals which are mere scientifics. Sig. and Ex.

—'. The rituals of that worship, being from reasonings and scientifics, are called scientific rituals, in which there is nothing spiritual and celestial, because from self. Hence the idols and magic of the Egyptians. And as their rituals came thence, they totally rejected the rites of the Ancient Church. Ill.

—². As their scientifics were diverse, the derivative rituals also became diverse.

1196. Doctrinals of rituals from a like origin. Sig.

1241^e. To other rituals they began to prefer sacrifices, which were unknown in the Ancient Church . . .

1247. (These nations) = so many rituals . . . which are unknown.

1346. Doctrinals which are rituals. Sig. See 1348.

1350. The rituals of such worship. Sig. 1352.

1795. 'Stewardship' pertains to the External Church; as the administration of rituals . . .

1832³. So very many rites in the Ancient Church, and Jewish Church, which in themselves were nothing but rituals containing no truth, were tolerated and permitted, nay, commanded, because they were accounted holy by their parents, and thus were implanted and impressed as truths on their minds from infancy. Sig.

[A.] 1850³. Sacrifices and like rites then ceased.

2037. 'Signs of the covenant' were all the rites of the External Church, which were to be kept holily, because internal things were signified by them. Circumcision was nothing but a representative rite.

2162¹². As all the rites of that Church = internal things, so this 'cleansing.' 3147⁹, Ex.

2177². (Thus) there were heavenly arcana in every rite, especially in the sacrifices . . .

—⁸. (The Holy Supper supposed to be a mere rite.)

2243⁵. The Hebrew Church . . . placed some holy worship in external rites.

—⁶. (The Israelites) did not know what the rites represented.

2523. Unless these things had been as if present to the Angels . . . through all the rites in the Jewish Church . . .

2722³. The Israelites, with whom the representative rite of the Ancient Church had been introduced . . .

2973. Exterior Knowledges are those of the rituals and doctrinals of the External Church.

3021. The Most Ancients had many rites from this, of which one was that they placed the hand under the thigh when they were pledged to any good of conjugal love. (See Gen. xxiv. 2.)

3147¹⁰. (Such) observed this rite as an idolatrous one.

3268^e. Their doctrinals and rituals varied, but still there was one Church.

3270. The externals of the Church are rituals; the internals are doctrinals when these are of the life.

3382^e. 'Statutes' = the externals of the Word, such as rituals . . .

3479. The opinion of the Jews concerning the rituals of their Church.

—². As that nation . . . thus could have holy rituals . . .

3540². That companions are not to be defrauded of external truths, which are doctrinals . . . and rituals. Sig. 3693⁶.

3596². (This) is evident from an internal understanding of the rituals of the Ancient Church.

3869¹⁰. This ritual represented the will of faith . . . This ritual was holy . . .

3915. This custom . . . was derived from the Ancient Church, whose worship consisted in rituals, which were representative . . .

4208³. The rituals themselves of (the Jewish) Church, relatively to them, were idolatrous, because they were separated from internals.

4213. It was a ritual that those who entered into a covenant should pass the night in one place. Ex.

4262³. As this ritual was holy, signifying initiation, the wise men brought presents.

4288². In both (a representative Church and a representative of a Church) there are nearly similar external rituals, namely, similar statutes, laws, and precepts. (The difference ex.)

4292⁵. The externals of the Church are like the body . . . as the altars and sacrifices, the show breads, the candlestick, the perpetual fire, which represented internal things; in like manner the rest of the rites. 4429².

4433. Interior truth . . . is that truth which was the internal of the Church with the Ancients . . . in their statutes, judgments, and laws; in a word, in their rituals and the like.

4489. For the rituals instituted with the (Israelites) were externals which represented the internals which were of the Most Ancient Church.

4496. When any arcanum is represented by a ritual, each single thing of that ritual, until it is completed, involves something of that arcanum.

4545⁵. (Thus) by the rituals here mentioned are signified spiritual and celestial things . . .

—⁶. (Thus) the rituals commanded the Israelites were holy (merely because) they represented holy things.

4580². (The origin of the ritual of erecting a statue.)

4581³. All these rituals (at coronations) derived their origin from the Most Ancient times, when rituals were holy from their representing and corresponding to the holy things in Heaven and thence in the Church.

4692². They knew that all the rituals and externals of their (Ancient) Church represented Him.

4831². The Church is not the Church from externals, that is, from rituals . . . for these are only the formal things.

4844¹⁷. The Knowledges and scientifics (of the Ancients) were to know what the rituals of their Church represented . . .

5317^e. The rituals which are with us from ancient times; as the rituals of betrothals, etc.

5323³. Therefore the ritual of crying out was received among the Ancients.

6004². The scientifics of the Church (then) were the representatives and significatives of rituals; for all the rituals of the Church were from such things.

6265^e. Hence, when they were to be blessed, this external ritual was strictly to be observed.

6292. (This) was a ritual received from the Ancients.

—^e. From that ancient time, the same ritual (of the laying of the right hand upon the head) remains to this day, and is in use in inaugurations, and in blessings.

6587³. The external of the Church is to perform rituals holily, and to do the works of charity according to the precepts of the Church.

—^e. It is then not worship, but a rite which appears like worship. 8680^e.

6846. For the rituals and statutes commanded the (Israelites) were not new, but had existed before in the Ancient Churches, and were only restored . . . because with other nations they had become idolatrous and magical.

7926. The Egyptians knew the representations of spiritual things in natural ones, which then constituted the rituals of the Church.

8408⁵. 'Pottage'=the good of the external rituals of the Jewish Church.

8932². The rites of the Jewish Church . . . in the external form were truths and goods . . . because they represented . . .

9422². (The ritual of 'sitting' among the Israelites. Ex.)

9506⁴. For every ritual with the Israelites was only a representative . . .

9965². For no one is condemned on account of the omission of external rituals . . .

10042⁵. All the process of regeneration is described by all the several rituals of each sacrifice and burnt-offering.

—⁶. For all the rituals of worship instituted with (that) nation regarded the Lord only. 10370, Ex.

S. 20². The rites (of the Ancient Church), and also the statutes, according to which their worship was instituted, consisted of mere correspondences . . .

E. 700³⁵. The abolition of the representative rites of the Jewish Church. Sig.

River. See under BROOK.

River. Flumen.

A. 353². 'The river of Thy deliciousnesses' (Ps. xxxvi. 8)=the Spiritual of faith. (=truth from the good of love. E. 483¹⁰.) (=intelligence and happiness. E. 1159².)

756^e. Filthy things from Hell are called 'rivers' (Ezek. xxxi. 15).

1195^e. 'The rivers of Egypt' (Jer. xlvi. 8)=diverse false scientifics.

2240². 'An inundating stream' (Jer. xlvi. 2)=falsity. (=what is scientific destroying the understanding of truth. 6015⁴.) F. 53.

2446². 'A stream of burning sulphur' (Is. xxx. 33)=falsities from the evils of self love.

4735^e. 'Rivers turned into blood'=the truths of intelligence and wisdom falsified.

6915⁷. 'Streams'=the things which are of intelligence; here, of insanity.

6297³. 'He hath established it upon the floods' (Ps. xxiv. 2)=upon the things which are of intelligence. (=upon the truths of faith. 9755³. E. 275⁹.) 518²³.

6693. 'Every son . . . ye shall cast into the river' (Ex. i. 22)=that they should immerse all truths . . . in falsities.

—². 'The river of Egypt'=falsity. Ill.

—^e. As the waters belong to the river, 'the river'=falsity in general.

6699. A great continuous stream of men from this world, seen.

6723. 'Beyond the rivers of Cush' (Is. xviii. 1)=to knowledges by which they confirm false principles. E. 304²².

6726. 'She set it in the flag at the bank of the river' (Ex. ii. 3)=among false scientifics. 'The river' of Egypt =what is false.

—'. 'Rivers' (Is. xix. 6)=the things of intelligence.

6730. 'To wash at the river' (Ex. ii. 5)=worship from what is false.

6731. 'Her girls walked at the side of the river' (id.) =the ministries of that religiosity which was from what is false.

6954. The Sensuous then dominates, and the interiors follow the force of the stream.

7308. 'The bank of the river' (Ex. vii. 15)=the state of falsity in which were those who infested.

7323. 'Upon their streams, upon their rivers—fluvios' (ver. 19)=into the doctrinals of falsity. . . 'Streams and rivers,' which are collections of water. =doctrinals; here, of falsity. 'Streams'=the things of intelligence, thus those of truth; in the opposite, the things contrary to intelligence, thus those of falsity. 7383.

7729⁵. 'The waters,' and 'rivers,' of Egypt (Ezek. xxxii. 14)=scientific truths.

8478⁴. The stream of Providence . . .

8568⁴. 'Rivers of living water' (John vii. 38)=Divine truth which is from the Lord alone (in abundance. E. 183¹⁰).

W. 291². From (an Angel's body) substances continually emanate like a stream.

R. 409^e. 'The floods came, and beat upon that house' (Matt. vii. 27)=falsities in abundance . . . 'The floods' also=temptations, which are inundations of falsities.

563. 'The serpent cast out . . . water as a flood' (Rev. xii. 15)=reasonings from falsities in abundance. E. 763.

T. 652^e. Carried away by a stream which sets towards Hell.

D. 357. Spirits not yet initiated are urged on as by the force of a stream . . .

1147. See RIVER—fluvius, here.

2806. Like a stream of speech not understood . . .

3176. As in a stream or river—fluvio—of ideas.

3843. Not in the stream of their life.

E. 304¹⁶. 'The floods' (Ps. xxiv. 2)=doctrinal things.

326¹¹. 'Rivers'=the things of intelligence. 372⁴.

336⁹. 'A stream of fire issuing' (Dan. vii. 10)=the Divine good of love; and the same 'going forth'=the Divine truth proceeding.

513⁴. 'The river of Egypt'=intelligence procured by scientifics. (Compare 518²⁷.)

514¹⁰. 'The magnificent Jehovah to us a place of rivers—fluviorum, of a stream' (Is. xxxiii. 21). . . 'Rivers'=wisdom; 'a stream,' intelligence.

518⁴. 'Rivers—fluvii,' and 'streams'=the understanding of truth, and intelligence. Ill.

—²⁰. The Glorification of the Lord through truths which are of intelligence . . . is signified by, 'Let the floods clap their hands.'

—²⁴. 'He shall drink of the stream in the way' (Ps. ex. 7)=the Word in the letter.

—³⁴. 'A stream'=ratiocination from falsities.

—³⁹. Hence temptations are signified by 'floods,' etc.

[E.] 538¹¹. 'A flood,' etc. = evils and falsities.

569. 'The great river Euphrates' (Rev. ix. 14) = man's Rational from knowledges. —⁴. (Compare —¹².)

—¹¹. 'From the river to the ends of the earth' (Ps. lxxii. 8) = the extension of rational and spiritual things.

622⁴. 'Rivers out of the belly' (John vii.) = interior understanding or intelligence.

627⁹. 'The streams shall recede' (Is. xix. 5, 6) = that all things of spiritual intelligence will depart. 654⁴⁹.

644²⁴. 'The floods' (Matt. vii.) which, here, are inundations of waters from rain, = temptations.

654⁴³. 'Streams' = Own intelligence.

1182². 'The rivers' = reasonings.

River. Fluvius.

Fluviatile. Fluviatilis.

A. 78. 'The river,' in the garden (Gen. ii.) = wisdom; 'the first river' thence = good and truth; 'the second,' the Knowledge of all things which are of good and truth, or of love and faith, which are of the internal man; 'the third' = reason; 'the fourth' = knowledge, which is of the external man. All are from wisdom; and this is from love and faith in the Lord. 658^e.

107. 'A river out of Eden' = wisdom from love.

108. The Most Ancients . . . compared wisdom, and the things of wisdom, to rivers. In like manner in the Prophets. III.

—^e. They added the waters and rivers by which man was to be irrigated, by which they meant the things which caused his increase.

116. The things of 'the first river' relate to the will; those of 'the second,' to the understanding.

130. To him who would be wise from the world . . . his 'river Euphrates' = all his Scientific, which is condemned; his 'second river,' where Asshur is, = insane ratiocination, whence are Falsities; his 'third river,' where Cush is, = the derivative principles of evil and falsity, which are the Knowledges of his faith; his 'fourth' = the derivative wisdom, which in the Word is called 'magic.' III.

567. By these 'rivers' are described in the Word passim the boundaries of Canaan. 4454^e.

1761. Spirits who inflow in a fluviatile way.

1866. 'From the river of Egypt to the great river, the river Euphrates' (Gen. xv. 18) = the extension of spiritual and of celestial things; 'to the river of Egypt' = the extension of spiritual things; 'to the river Euphrates' = the extension of celestial things. Ex.

2588¹⁵. 'Rivers,' etc. (Ezek. xxxi.) = spiritual goods, among which was its root. Ex.

2832². To 'place the right hand in the rivers' (Ps. lxxxix. 25) = strength in the Knowledges of truth.

3051. 'Aram Naharaim,' or 'Syria of the rivers' (Gen. xxiv. 10) = the Knowledges of truth, because 'rivers' = intelligence, which is of the Knowledges of truth.

3424. 'The river' (Ezek. xlvi. 9) = the Word; 'the waters which cause everything to live' = the Divine truths which are in it. E. 179⁷.

3542². 'An inundating stream' (Is. xxx. 28) = falsity thus overflowing.

4116. '(Jacob) passed over the river' (Gen. xxxi. 21) = a state where is conjunction. 'The river,' here, the Euphrates, = conjunction with the Divine, because it was the boundary of Canaan on that side . . . As Jacob was now entering Canaan, this river was his first boundary, and thus = conjunction . . .

—^e. Thus the rivers which bounded Canaan (were representative according to their situation).

4271. '(Jacob) made them pass over the river' (Gen. xxxii. 23) = further insinuation. Ex.

4697^e. 'Rivers, and fountains of waters' (Rev. viii. 10) = intelligence and wisdom from the Word.

5113⁴. 'Assyria and the waters of the river' (Jer. ii. 18) = ratiocination from these scientifics against the good of life and truth of faith.

5196. (Pharaoh dreamed that) 'he was standing by the river' (Gen. xli. 2) = from boundary to boundary. 'The river,' here, the river of Egypt, or Nile, = a boundary. The reason 'a river' = a boundary, is that the great rivers, Euphrates, Jordan, and Nile, were ultimate boundaries of Canaan. (Continued under NILE.)

5197. 'Out of the river' (id.) = in the boundary.

5205. 'On the bank of the river' (ver. 3) = in the boundaries.

6502⁵. 'The river on whose bank ascended every tree of food' (Ezek. xlvii.) = the things of intelligence and wisdom.

6606. The affections and thoughts (then) appeared like a river round about, and the subject of thought in the midst encompassed by that river, which extended thence in all directions.

6988. 'In the wilderness shall waters break out, and streams in the plain of the desert' (Is. xxxv. 6) = Knowledges of good and truth for them. E. 239⁷. 455²⁰.

7293⁶. 'Water as a flood' (Rev. xii. 16) = falsities from evil, and the reasonings thence.

7319. 'The river shall stink' (Ex. vii. 18) = aversion for it. 'The river,' here, the river of Egypt turned into blood, = truth falsified. 7320. 7346.

7323. See RIVER-flumen, here. D. 3176. E. 514¹⁰. 518⁴.

7352. 'The river shall bring forth frogs' (Ex. viii. 3) = reasonings from those falsities.

7398. 'Only in the river shall they survive' (ver. 9) = that they should remain with falsities where these are.

8185. 'Thou driedst up rivers of strength' (Ps. lxxiv. 15) = to dissipate the more potent falsities.

8579. 'The river' (of Egypt) = falsity.

8855. In his will like the hidden current of a river . . .

8940². For all the rivers which were boundaries of Canaan = the first and last things (or the primes and ultimates) of His Kingdom.

9050¹⁰. The 'rivers' (Ezek. xlvi.) = the things of intelligence, which are from the truths of faith.

9141³. 'A stream of sulphur' (Is. xxx. 33) = falsities from the evils of the love of self and of the world. (See RIVER-flumen, at A.2446².)

9156^e. 'Rivers' = falsities.

9331⁴. 'The river of desolations' (Is.vii.19) = Falsity reigning everywhere.

9341. 'From the desert even to the river' (Ex.xxiii.21) = from the delight of the Sensuous even to the good and truth of the Rational. (For the Euphrates is meant.)

—². 'Unto the sea and unto the river' (Ps.lxxx.11) = to interior truths and goods.

—³. The boundaries of Canaan, which were rivers and seas, = the ultimates in his Kingdom. Refs.

9755¹⁰. 'I make the rivers a wilderness' (Is.l.2) = to vastate truths themselves.

10582⁴. 'Rivers of desolations' (Is.vii.19) = truths of doctrine completely desolated. (= where are no truths. E.410⁶.)

R. 409. 'It fell upon a third part of the rivers' (Rev.viii.10) = all truths completely falsified. 'Rivers' = truths in abundance. Ill. E.518.

683. 'Poured his vial upon the rivers' (Rev.xvi.4) = influx into the understanding with them. . . 'Rivers' = truths in abundance which are of service to the rational man, thus to the understanding, for doctrine and life.

932. 'A pure river of the water of life bright as crystal' (Rev.xxii.1) = the Divine truth of the Word in abundance translucent from its spiritual sense. 933.

D. 1146. Like a stream of ideas . . .

1147. The words (of angelic speech) are flowing, into which many consonants are not admitted, because they impede the stream . . . as, now, I am not allowed to write flumen, but fluvium.

2806. There was the likeness of a river, full of copious ideas.

4272. Influx is as it were a river of general affections, or continuous rivers inflowing . . . All in this river, or rivers, are affected according to their genius . . . in this common river it acts with all variety . . . Thus all and each within this common river of Heaven, which is solely of affections . . . I spoke with the Angels while I was in such a river . . .

4273. These rivers of general affections are in every degree . . . They are circumstanced like an atmospheric river . . . like the wind blowing, and man knows not whence it comes, and whither it goes.

E. 239⁷. 'Rivers' = intelligence which is from truths. 405⁴⁷.

253⁴. 'The river' Rev.xxii.) = Divine truth. (= intelligence. 430⁷.)

275². 'The river shall be dried up' (Is.xix.5) = no doctrine of truth, and thence no intelligence. 654⁴⁹.

—⁷. That 'rivers' = the things of intelligence. Refs.

304²². 'Rivers' = truths of doctrine; and, in the opposite, falsities.

331³. 'Rivers' = falsities and the ratiocinations from them.

365²³. 'Peace as a river' (Is.xlviii.18) = in abundance. 374⁷. The Church is called 'a land of rivers of water' (Deut.viii.7), because 'rivers of water' = doctrinals of truth.

405²¹. 'He sendeth springs into the rivers' (Ps.civ.10) = intelligence thence. 483⁷.

406¹⁶. 'The river' = the first boundary . . .

411²⁶. 'Rivers' (Is.lvii.5) = Own intelligence.

455²⁰. 'Rivers' = intelligence. 481². 513⁵.

483². 'To open rivers' (Is.xli.18) = to give intelligence.

—¹⁶. 'The fountain and the floods' (Ps.lxxiv.15) = the falsities of doctrine, which are from Own intelligence. 'The rivers of strength' = the derivative confirmed principles of falsity.

504²⁴. 'When thou passest . . . through the rivers, they shall not overflow thee' (Is.xliii.2) = that ratiocinations from falsities against truths (shall not enter and corrupt). 518³³.

513³. 'I make the rivers a wilderness' (Is.l.2) = to deprive the rational man (of truths), whence there is no longer intelligence. 730⁷.

518. 'Rivers' = the understanding of truth, also intelligence, because 'waters' = truths, and the understanding is the receptacle and complex of Truths, as a river is of waters; and because thought from the understanding, which is intelligence, is like a stream-flumen-of truth. —³. —⁴, Ill.

—⁶. 'Rivers in the solitude' (Isa.xliii.20) = the intelligence of truth where it was not before. 650³⁶.

—⁸. 'Rivers of water' = the understanding of truth.

—¹¹. 'The river' (Ezek.xlvii.) = intelligence from the reception of Divine truth . . . (= intelligence and wisdom. 629⁸).

—¹². 'To send out his roots by the river' (Jer.xvii.8) = the extension of intelligence from the spiritual man into the natural.

—¹³. 'Planted by the river,' and 'waters' (Num.xxiv.6,7) = Divine truth inflowing, whence is intelligence.

—¹⁴. The influx of Divine truth, and thence of intelligence, is described by 'the river which went out of Eden to water the garden . . .'

—¹⁵. The increase of intelligence is signified by 'its rivers running about his plant' (Ezek.xxxi.4).

—¹⁸. The power of the Lord even to ultimates . . . is signified by 'setting His right hand in the rivers.' 684²².

— The two rivers which formed boundaries of Canaan were Euphrates and Jordan.

—²¹. 'He opened the rock . . . rivers ran in the dry places' (Ps.ev.41). . . 'Rivers' = intelligence and wisdom thence.

—²⁵. 'The rivers,' and 'the sea' (Hab.iii.8) = all things of the Church, because they = its ultimates.

—²⁶. That the Word, or the Divine truth for the Church, shall not perish, is signified by, 'There is a river, the streams-rivi-whereof shall make glad the city of God . . . it shall not be changed' (Ps.xlvi.4,5). 'A river,' here, has the like signification as 'a fountain,' namely, the Word; because its 'streams,' which = truths, are spoken of.

[E.518]²⁸. 'The rivers of Egypt' (Is.xxxvii.25)=the Knowledges and appereceptions of truth, because . . . the natural man ('Egypt') has Knowledge and appereception, as the spiritual man has intelligence.

—²⁹. 'I will make the rivers dry [land]' (Ezek. xxx.12)=no longer the Knowledge and appereception of truth. 654⁴⁰.

—³¹. 'I will make the rivers islands' (Is.xlii.15)=that intelligence will perish.

—³³. In the opposite sense, 'rivers'=the understanding of falsity, and ratiocination from Own intelligence, which is for falsities against truths. Ill.

—'. 'Whose land the rivers have spoiled' (Is.xviii.2): 'rivers'=the falsities which are of Own intelligence.

—³⁵. 'The stream had gone over our soul' (Ps.cxxiv.4): 'the stream' = ratiocination from these falsities against truths, (which) would have destroyed the spiritual life, which man receives through truths and a life according to them.

569¹². 'The great river' (Deut.i.7; Jos.i.4)=the influx of spiritual things into rational ones.

—¹⁸. 'The waters of the river, strong and many, the king of Asshur' (Is.viii.7)=reasonings from mere fallacies and falsities.

627⁹. 'The rivers of Egypt shall be diminished and dried up' (Is.xix.6)=that all things of natural intelligence will perish.

654¹⁴. 'The rivers of Egypt' (2 Kings xix. 24)=the intelligence of the natural man from scientifics which are from a spiritual origin . . .

—⁵¹. 'The river' (Ezek.xxix.)=Own intelligence.

—⁶⁰. 'What hast thou to do with the way of Assyria, to drink the waters of the river?' (Jer.ii.18)=ratiocinations thence, whence are falsities of faith.

684²². For seas and rivers are the ultimates of Heaven; and ultimates=all things.

730¹⁷. 'He maketh rivers into a wilderness' (Ps.evii. 33)=intelligence from the understanding of truth, and also of the Word as to its interior sense, devastated by means of falsities from evil.

—²⁴. 'I will open rivers upon the cliffs' (Is.xli.18)=intelligence from spiritual truths.

995. The Euphrates is called 'the great river,' from the intelligence which man has from the Rational; for 'a river'=intelligence . . .

1100⁹. 'Fountains'=the truths of the Word; and 'rivers' (Ps.civ.10)=the intelligence thence.

Coro. 27. 'The river' out of Eden=doctrine . . .

34². 'An inundating stream' (Is.xxx.28)=ratiocination from falsities.

Roam. Grassari.

Wasting away, A. Grassatio.

A. 2799¹⁰. A wasting away even to consumption. Sig.

6858. A great part of such spirits roamed at large. S289.

S261². The diabolical crew then raging about more than ever. S273, Ex.

Roar. Fremere.

E. 781¹⁸. 'We roar like bears' (Is.lix.11)=the grief of the natural man.

Roar. Rugire.

Roaring, A. Rugitus.

A. 934⁸. 'The voice of the roaring of a lion' (Ezek. xix.7)=falsity.

R. 241². 'To roar'=from power to speak and act against the Hells, which want to carry man off. . . Ill.

471. 'To cry as a lion roareth' (Rev.x.3)=a grievous lamentation concerning the Church, and that it has been taken away from Him. Ex. & Ill. E.601.

—^e. That 'a roaring'=grievous lamentation. Ill.

E. 278⁷. Jehovah is here compared to 'a roaring lion' (Is.xxxi.4) because . . . 'to roar'=the ardour of defending against evils and falsities. Ill. 601⁵.

—^s. 'To roar'=desire.

304¹³. 'The roaring of a lion' (Ezek.xix.7)=the desire to destroy and make desolate.

601. 'To roar'=the effect of grief, on account of the desolation of Divine truth in the Church. Ill.

—⁴. 'To roar,' or 'the roaring of a lion,'=ardent affection to defend Heaven and the Church, and thus to save the Angels of Heaven and the men of the Church, which is effected by destroying the falsities of evil by the Divine truth and its power. —¹¹, Ill. S50¹⁵.

—'. In the opposite sense, 'to roar,' and 'the roaring of a lion,'=a burning cupidity to destroy and devastate the Church, which is effected by destroying Divine truth by the falsities of evil. These things are signified by 'the roaring of a lion,' because a lion roars when it is hungry and seeks its prey, and also when it is enraged against its enemies. —¹¹, Ill.

—⁶. The defence of the faithful by the Lord by means of Divine truth, is described by 'Jehovah shall roar out of Zion' (Joel iii.16).

—⁷. 'He shall roar like a lion, because He shall roar' (Hos.xi.10)=their defence by means of Divine truth.

—^s. 'The lion hath roared, who will not fear?' (Amos iii.8)=a powerful revelation and manifestation of Divine truth.

—⁹. 'The voice of the roaring of the young lions' (Zech.xi.3)=grief on account of the desolation of Divine truth.

—¹¹. Their burning desire to destroy Divine truth by means of the falsities of evil, is signified by, 'They shall roar together like lions, they shall give forth a roaring like lions' whelps' (Jer.li.38).

—¹². 'The young lions roar against him, they give forth their voice' (Jer.ii.15)=the desolation of Divine truth in the Church by the falsities of evil.

—¹³. 'The voice of his roaring' (Ezek.xix.7)=the destroying falsity of evil.

—¹⁴. 'Jehovah shall roar from on high, and utter His voice from the habitation of His holiness' (Jer.xxv. 30)=testification of grief in Heaven on account of the vastation of Divine truth. 'In roaring He shall roar against their dwellings'=grievous grief and lamentation over all things of the Church.

—¹⁵. 'Jehovah shall roar from Zion' (Amos i.2) = grievous grief.

—¹⁶. '(Jehovah's) roaring is like that of a lion, He roareth as the young lions' (Is.v.29) = grief and lamentation over the vastation of Divine truth in the Church through the falsities of evil.

—¹⁷. That 'roaring' = grievous lamentation from grief of heart. Ill.

706²¹. 'Enemies have roared in the midst of thy feast' (Ps.lxxiv.4) = that falsities have destroyed all things of worship.

Roasted. Assus.

A. 5620¹⁴. Occurs.

7852. 'Roasted with fire' (Ex.xii.8) = the good which is of love; for things roasted with fire = the good of love, because 'fire' = love, and 'roasted,' that which is imbued with love, consequently, good. A distinction is made in the Word between what is roasted, and what is boiled; and by 'what is roasted' is signified good, because by fire . . .

—². Thus the 'broiled fish' (Luke xxiv.42). (See under FISH, at E.513¹⁹. 619¹⁵.)

—³. As 'roasted with fire' = the good of celestial and spiritual love, in the opposite, it = the evil which is of the love of self and of the world. Ill.

—^e. 'To roast roast,' and 'to roast flesh' (Is. xlv.16) = to operate evil from filthy love.

Robber. Latro.

Robbery. Latrocinium.

Rob, To. Latrocinari.

See under STEAL.

A. 820. Those who have practised robberies and piracies, love rank and fetid urine . . . A certain robber gnashed with his teeth . . . He confessed that he would rather live in urinous filth than by the clearest waters, and that the smell of urine was what he delighted in. He said he would rather abide in urinous vats than anywhere else. D.1156. 1159. 1160.

938. Robbers in a desert. Gen.art.

941. The Jews are in fear of robbers, but so long as they are in that city they are safe. Between the two cities, there is a . . . space where are robbers . . . who cruelly torture those whom they meet. These robbers, the Jews from fear call the Lord, and the desert where they are, the Land. (Further des.) D.723, Gen.art. 728. 749. 761.

—². The robbers (when seen) were very black, speaking with a bass voice, like giants; and when they come they strike terror and horror . . . (They describe their occupation.) They are Jews.

4631. A cadaverous odour . . . from a Hell containing filthy robbers, etc.

4776². (This is like) robbers, who love each other while in consociation, but at heart desire to kill if there is booty thence.

4942. (A sound heard as of robbers breaking in) because to some, fear is a means of amendment.

5060³. (These adulterers) are among the robbers who relate to the general involuntary sense. (See 4327.)

5246⁴. A state of temptation compared with the state of a man when among robbers. Des. . . There are infernals . . . who, like robbers, then surround and attack the man . . .

5566. Some Spirits, especially robbers, have the power to excite fear. (One such Spirit des.) 7803.

5764. The union and friendship (of the infernal Societies) is that of robbers.

10794. These (priests, who teach and do not lead to the good of life) are called 'thieves and robbers' (John x.7-16).

P. 199. So a robber in a forest, when he sees travellers.

R. 316⁴. 'The man wounded by robbers' (Luke x.) = those spiritually wounded by the Jews through evils and falsities. E.444¹⁴.

M. 504^e. (These deflowerers) are spiritual robbers . . .

T. 443^e. Such a so-called moral man is like a robber in a city and a forest, who acts the moral man in the city, but the plunderer in the forest.

D. 1151. On the life of robbers after death, both on land and sea. Ex. (1153) All such, at the slightest success, are most courageous, but at the least danger are most timid . . . (1154) Such preside over the bladder, especially over its function of ejecting the urine . . . (1157) They have no face, but only something obscure, black and bearded . . . with grates of teeth . . . so that the interiors of the face are nothing but teeth, ivory-like. (1159) They excite urinous humours in the eyes. They are infernals of the class of the spiritual (as is shown by their love of urine).

1864. (A robber who could kill by a stroke through the heart, or brain.) Des. (See 4494.)

2953. On pirates, or sea robbers. Ex.

3101. On a certain Jewish robber. Ex.

3868. Such are robbers-praedones, robbers, and at this day constitute the general natural sense. Hence robbers dwell under the occiput. Where the abode of the celestials was formerly, is now the abode of the worst robbers. Des. 4085.

4488. On a certain interior hypocrite (called a robber). Fully des. (See 4490.)

4496. Beyond the desert of the robbers . . .

4545². A little in front are robbers and criminals.

4566. Everywhere (in the Hells) I met Spirits who were robbers, and this in an immense abundance, who tried nothing else than to plunder and kill . . . At this day the Hells are very full of such . . . 4920.

4708. On a robbing and seducing good . . . He had appeared good to everyone; but beneath was a robber. Des.

4734. On the abodes of robbers. Gen.art. . . When Spirits wander and come thither, they are assailed by the robbers; but those in good are at once liberated. . . The deeper the places are, the worse are the robbers there. Some of them had been in much dignity (here); for their interior delight had been to plunder and rob.

4813. (A dream about robbers.)

[D.] 5035. Those who are evil, act as robbers; for there are robberies of various kinds with the evil, which they practise as soon as they are outside the cities... 5041.

5227. Jews... become robbers.

5365^e. Such as do nothing from religion... become robbers; and would become such (here) if external things did not hold them in bonds.

5619^e. The evil (Jews) are in a certain desert, which is called the desert of the robbers, in the northern quarter.

5714. See LAST JUDGMENT, here. (The robbers outside the cities there.)

6046. When (those in faith alone) go out, and see others afar, they fear to speak with them, because there are robbers there also, but these dwell in caverns of the rocks. Ex.

E. 325¹⁰. 'A den of thieves' (Matt. xxi. 13) = the profanation of the Church and of worship. (See 410⁸.)

375⁴². 'The man wounded by robbers' (Luke x.) = those who are being infested by those who are from Hell; for these are robbers, because they injure and kill man's spiritual life. (= those who are infested and wounded as to the conscience by evil men, who are 'robbers.' 376³⁰.)

410⁸. 'Is this house become a den of robbers?' (Jer. vii. 11). 'A den of robbers' = evil of life from falsities of doctrine... That the Church where is evil of life from falsities of doctrine is called 'a den of robbers,' is because 'a den' = this; and those are called 'robbers,' who steal truths from the Word, and pervert them, and apply them to falsities and evils, and thus extinguish them.

840⁴. 'Robbers' = those who plunder the truths and goods of the Church, and thence make gain for themselves.

962⁶. 'Robbers' (Luke x.) = those who have infused falsities whence are evils; in special, the Jews. The 'wounds' are these evils.

J. (Post.) 230^e. Such are like robbers, who in a city live honestly, but in the forest think constantly about robberies.

Robber. Praedo.

H. 560. Their love is like that of robbers among themselves...

M. 504. That defloration without the end of marriage is the villainy of a robber. Ex.

D. 3648a. Occurs.

3868. See ROBBER-latro, here.

Robe. See under CLOAK, MANTLE, and TALARIS.

Robe. Palla.

D. 5461a. When (Lagerberg) was at home, and had on the Equestrian robe over his dress (he could not think as before); but when he cast away that garment, he at once returned to his former judgment, and disposition-animus; and he therefore determined that he would not put on such a thing at home; but only in public on account of the command.

Robe. Stola.

A. 4007². 'White robes.' Ill.

—⁴. In all these passages 'white garments,' and 'robes' = the truth of faith...

9391⁶. 'The primary robe' (Luke xv. 22) = general truths.

R. 328. 'White robes were given to every one' (Rev. vi. 10) = communication and conjunction with the Angels who are in Divine truths. Ex.

—, 'Robes,' 'mantles,' and 'cloaks' = truths in general, because they were general clothings. Ill.

367. 'Clothed in white robes' (Rev. vii. 9) = communication and conjunction with the higher Heavens.

378. 'And have washed their robes' (ver. 14) = have cleansed their religious things from the evils of falsity... 'Robes' = general truths, (which are) the Knowledges of good and truth from the sense of the letter, according to which they had lived; thus religious things; and, as everything religious relates to good and truth, 'the robes' are mentioned twice... 'The robes,' or religious things, are cleansed solely with those who fight against evils, and thus reject falsities, thus through temptations.

379. 'And have made white their robes in the blood of the Lamb' (id.) = and have purified them from the falsities of evil by truths, and thus have been reformed by the Lord... 'Robes' here, also, = general truths from the Word, which make their religious things.

T. 514. (The idea that) God the Father... thus clothes man in a robe... made white in the blood of the Lamb.

E. 279⁶. 'The primary robe' = general and primary truths.

395. 'White robes given to every one' = Divine truth from the Lord with them, and protection. Ex.

—, 'A robe' = truth in general, because it is a general clothing.

—, Garments next the body = interior truths, but those which surround and encompass them = exterior truths; hence 'a robe,' etc. which are general clothings, = truths in general.

—². Why 'the white robes' = also protection by the Lord. Ex... The Lord surrounds them with a sphere of light, from which they have white robes.

—³. That 'a robe,' etc. = Divine truth in general. Ill.

457. 'Clothed in white robes' = then in truths, and in protection against falsities. 'White robes' = the reception of Divine truth, and protection against falsities. 472.

475. 'Have washed their robes' = the removal of falsities thereby... 'Robes' = protecting truths in general; but here, by 'robes,' before they have been washed and made white, are signified the falsities from which they have been purified; for those who are in falsities from ignorance appear at first in dull garments of various colours; and, when in temptations, in squalid ones; but, when they come out of temptations, they appear in white robes, brilliant according to the purification from falsities.

476. 'Have made white their robes' = to put off falsities, and put on truths. Ex.

Robust. See under STRENGTH-robur.

Rock. Petra.

Rocky. Petrosus.

A. 581. (The antediluvians are covered with a misty rock.) 1266-1270^e. 1512. 1673². D.3358. 4217.

795³. 'The rock of Israel' (Is.xxx.29)=the Lord in predication to the goods of charity.

1678³. 'The rock' out of which the waters gushed (Num.xx.)=the Lord. 2702¹³.

2039⁸. 'Swords of rocks' (Jos.v.3)=the truths with which they were imbued, so that they could castigate and dispel filthy loves; for without the Knowledges of truth there is no purification. That 'a stone,' or 'rock,' = truths. Refs.

3310². 'Rocky places' (Matt.xiii.5)=truth which has no root in good.

3703³. 'Look unto the rock whence ye were hewn' (Is.li.1); treating of the Lord . . . who as to Divine truth is called 'the rock.'

4299². 'Say to the mountains and rocks. Fall on us' (Rev.vi.16); for the misty and pitch dark sphere which exhales from the evils and falsities of the infernals, appears like a mountain or rock, beneath which they are hidden. S265².

4368³. The 'rock' upon which the Church will be built (Matt.xvi.18)=the faith of charity.

4715⁴. 'The rock of the plain' (Jer.xxi.13)=faith in which is no charity.

5096. 'Hard rock'=persuasion.

5886³. 'Their rock sold them' (ver.30). 'Rock,' in the supreme sense, =the Lord as to truth; in the representative, faith.

5895⁴. 'Shall horses run upon the rock?' (Amos vi.12)=will the truth of faith be understood?

6426³. 'A stone cut out of the rock' (Dan.ii.) . . . =out of the truth of faith.

7044. 'Zipporah took a rock' (Ex.iv.25)=quality shown . . . through truth.

— Circumcision done with knives of rock = purification . . . through truths of faith. Ex.

S278. 'He made them drink great abysses out of the rock' (Ps.lxxviii.15)=truths of faith without defect; for 'a rock'=faith from the Lord, thus the Lord as to faith.

S304^e. 'A rock,' in the Word, =faith.

S581. 'I stand . . . upon the rock in Horeb' (Ex.xvii.6)=the Lord as to the truths of faith; for 'a rock'=faith, here, faith from the Lord, or the Lord as to faith; for the Lord says, 'I stand upon the rock.'

— That 'a rock'=the Lord as to faith; and, relatively to man, the faith which is from the Lord. Ill.

—². 'A rock'=the Lord as to the truth of faith, because by 'a rock' is also meant a bulwark against falsities . . .

—³. 'A rock'=the Lord as to faith, and also the faith which is from the Lord, in the Lord's words to Peter . . . 9410³.

—⁵. When Jehovah is called 'a rock,' there is meant the Lord as to faith. Ill.

—⁶. As 'a rock'=the Lord as to faith, and faith from the Lord, wonderful things were done upon a rock. Ill.

—⁷. 'The hole of a rock' (Ex.xxxiii.20-23)=what is obscure of faith. 10582, Ex.

S582. 'Thou shalt smite the rock' (Ex.xvii.6)=that they should urgently entreat the Lord, but from a humble heart.

S583. 'The rock from which the waters went forth' =the Lord as to faith.

9093^e. 'The rocks were rent' (Matt.xxvii.51)=the dissipation of all things of faith; for 'a rock'=the Lord as to faith, and hence the faith which is from the Lord.

9341⁶. 'Hidden in a hole of a rock near Euphrates' (Jer.xiii.)=where faith is in obscurity and becomes null through falsities from reasonings. ('A hole of a rock'=truth falsified. 9828⁴.)

10194². Round those in truths, and not from good, appear nothing but rocky places . . .

10438. On the rocks (there) are those who are in faith . . . Hence it is that by rocks are signified those in the good of faith, and thence who are in the ultimate Heaven; and, in the abstract sense, that good, and that Heaven.

10580. 'Thou shalt stand upon the rock' (Ex.xxxiii.21)=a state of faith in God. . . 'Rock'=faith.

—^e. That 'a rock'=faith, is from the appearances (there): those who are in faith there dwell upon rocks . . . The rocks there appear stony, but not the mountains.

10582⁴. 'The clefts of the rocks' (Is.vii.19)=the derivative falsities of faith.

—⁶. Those 'in the holes of the rocks' (Jer.xvi.16)=those in faith, but not yet illustrated: thus those in what is obscure of faith. E.405¹⁷.

—⁷. 'To dwell in the holes of a rock' (Jer.xlix.16; Obad.3)=in the falsities of faith. It treats of those who exalt themselves over others, believing that they are more learned than all others, when yet they are in falsities, and cannot see truths. These (there) dwell in holes of the rocks; and sometimes they project themselves forth upon the rocks, but are cast down again into their holes, and into caverns, which are beneath the rocks. Sig.

10608². The spiritual Angels dwell upon rocks. . . But infernals beneath . . . the rocks.

10712. The (Fourth) Earth in that part is very rocky, and only some valleys between the rocks are cultivated.

H. 188. The Angels in the lowest parts of Heaven dwell in places which appear like rocks of stone-ex saxis. . . It is from this that . . . 'rocks'=faith.

—(e). 'Rocks'=the good and truth of faith. Refs.

[H.] 488³. Those who have been in the knowledge of doctrinal things . . . but have not applied anything to life, choose for themselves rocky places, and dwell among stone-saxas-heaps . . .

C. J. 29. (Overthrow of the rocks at the Last Judgment.) See LAST JUDGMENT, here. D.4925. 4930. 5070. 5077. 5078. J.(Post.) 135-138.

Life 90. 'The seed upon the rocky places'=Truth with those who care for the Truth but not for its own sake, thus not interiorly.

R. 338. 'Hid themselves . . . in the rocks of the mountains' (Rev.vi.15)=that they were now . . . in the falsities of evil. E.410.

— Those who have pretended to be in the truths of faith, and yet were in falsities of evil, hide themselves in the rocks of the mountains. The entrances appear like . . . fissures . . . Ill. E.410².

339. 'And said to . . . the rocks, Fall on us . . .' (ver.16) = confirmations . . . of falsity from evil. . . 'The rocks'=falsities of faith. E.411.

409^e. 'It was founded upon the rock' (Matt.vii.25) = upon the Lord as to Divine truth.

798. The Divine truth which is meant by 'the rock' upon which the Lord would build His Church, is that which Peter then confessed: 'Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God.' T.224^e.

915⁵. 'Laid the foundation upon the rock' (Luke vi. 48). 'The rock'=the Lord as to the Divine truth of the Word. T.379.

D. 2696. Occurs.

3365. They were let down through a rock . . . it was a hard rock, inclining downwards.

4553. As it were Jesuits appear . . . they are let down deeper (in Hell) and covered over with a cloud, like a rock.

4788. (A dream about two rocks.) Ex.

4854. (Rocky places, in Hell.)

4924. Those who dwell upon a certain rock . . .

4927. When the whole rocks subside, and become valleys, it is good, and=those who suffer themselves to be regenerated.

4995. (Nerez) was in a city upon a rock . . .

5012. I was brought upon a rock, into a city there . . . it was like London. Des.

5103. (Luther) betook himself upon a high rock.

5170. (These infernals) were then on a rock, and could thus have communication with those round about . . .

5572. The Genii . . . are separated from the Hells of Spirits by, as it were, a hard rock . . .

D. Min. 4786². (G. Benzelstierna) was put beneath a rock; for there is a misty rock which goes over such . . .

E. 212². Those in faith from charity are described by 'the house built on the rock.'

326⁴. 'The inhabitants of the rock' (Is.xlii.11)=the good of faith in them.

355¹⁸. 'The rocks' (Jer.iv.29)=their faith.

374¹¹. 'The rock'=the Lord.

375³⁶. 'To suck oil out of the flint-saxo-of a rock' (Dent.xxxii.13)=to be imbued with good through the truths of faith.

400⁷. 'The rocks which are overturned' (Nahum i.6) =the truths of faith, because those in faith, who do good from obedience, although not from charity, (there) dwell upon rocks.

401⁶. 'The rock of Israel'=the Lord as to Divine truth in the Church. E.411⁸.

—³⁵. 'Rocky places'=historical faith, which faith is the faith of another in one's self.

405¹⁴. Regeneration through truths from good, is signified by, 'He turned the rock into a pool of waters, and the flint-silicem-into a fountain of waters' (Ps.cxiv. 8). 'The rock'=the natural man as to truth before reformation; and 'the flint,' as to good.

—⁴¹. 'Rocks'=where are truths of faith, here, falsities of evil. 410.

410². The Hells are under the mountains, and in the rocks.

—³. For their Hells appear as caves in the rocks, and the entrances as the rents of rocks, and fissures of crags-rupium.

— 'Rocks-petrae et rupes'=falsities of faith and of doctrine.

411³. 'Rocks'=truth from spiritual good, and the truth and good of faith: and, in the opposite, what is false of faith. (Fully ill.)

— 'Rocks and crags-rupes-appear (there), and upon them dwell those who are in truths from spiritual good, and who are in the truth and good of faith. . . The mountains and hills are of soil, but the rocks and crags-rupes-are of stone-saxo: for . . . stone-saxum-corresponds to the truth of faith. . . Those in falsities of faith dwell within the rocks in the caverns there.

—⁴. That 'a rock'=truth from good, and the truth of faith, and, in the supreme sense, the Lord as to these. Ill.

—⁵. That 'a rock'=the Lord as to Divine truth. Ill.

— For 'a rock,' in the Word, =the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord; and therefore Moses and Aaron were commanded to speak to the rock.

— 'Rock,' in these passages, =the Lord as to Divine truth, or what is the same, Divine truth from the Lord.

—⁶. 'Look unto the rock whence ye were hewn' (Is.li.1)=the Lord as to Divine truth. . . 'To be hewn out of the rock'=to be regenerated from Divine truths . . . for stones which are hewn out of a rock=truths from the Lord. 721¹¹.

—⁷. That they have natural good and spiritual good through the Divine truth from the Lord, is signified by, 'He made them suck honey out of the rock-rupe, and oil out of the flint-saxo-of the rock' . . . 'The rock-rupes=external Divine truth from the Lord which is for the natural man; and 'the flint of the rock'=internal Divine truth from the Lord which is for the spiritual man. . . 'The rock which begat thee hast thou given to forgetfulness'=that the Lord, and hence the Divine truth, were rejected. . . That they were altogether deprived of truth and good, is signified by, 'Their rock has sold them' . . . That they would be in falsity from evil, is signified by, 'Their rock is not as our rock.'

—¹⁰. In these passages, by 'rock' is meant the Divine truth from the Lord, and the Lord Himself.

—¹¹. 'The house founded upon the rock'=the Church and the men of the Church who have founded their doctrine and life upon the Divine truth which is from the Lord, thus upon those things which are in the Word, consequently who are in truths from good from the Lord. Ex.

—¹³. Peter represented the Divine truth from the Lord in the Church, and therefore he was called 'Petra,' and it is said, 'Thou art Petra, upon this Petra I will build My Church, (that is,) upon the Divine truth from the Lord, or, what is the same, upon truths from good, for upon these the Church is built. That Peter might represent this in the Church, he was called 'Petra,' (or 'a Rock') as is evident from . . . 'Thou shalt be called Kephas, which is, by interpretation, a Rock' (John i.42) . . . 820². —⁴.

—¹⁷. In the opposite sense, 'a rock'=the infernal falsity which is confided in. Ill.

—²⁰. I have seen rocks which consisted of heaped up stones, and not of any verdure clad fields, as elsewhere are upon the rocks: upon them were Spirits who had been in faith separated from charity . . . This is meant by 'the dryness of the rock.' Ill. When there is no soil upon the rocks, and the rocks are dry, or consist of mere heaps of stones, it is an indication that there is not any good, and, where there is no good, there is mere falsity.

—²¹. Most who have light from the Moon there, dwell upon rocks. The spiritual natural dwell upon rocks which are covered on the surface with soil, whence are fields, groves, etc., but not such as are upon the mountains and hills . . . But the merely natural are not at this day upon rocks, but in rocks in caverns; and those in falsities from evil dwell among heaps of detached rocks-saxa-there.

—²². Damnation through falsities, is signified by, 'I will roll thee down from the rocks' (Jer.li.25).

—²³. 'Dwell in the rock' (Jer.xlviii.28)=in falsities and the doctrine thereof.

—²⁴. 'Is not My word . . . like a hammer that scattereth the rock' (Jer.xxiii.29)=(like) the truth of faith (which scatters) falsity in the whole complex.

—²⁵. 'The rocks shall be overturned before Him' (Nahum i.6)=(the perishing of falsities from evils at the Last Judgment). Moreover the rocks upon which are they who are in principles of falsity and thence in falsities of every kind, are visibly overturned, and those on them are thus cast down into Hell.

—²⁶. 'Under the peaks-scopuli-of the rocks' (Is.lvii.5)=falsities . . . from the Sensuous in which the lumen is ultimate natural; for they who are in this lumen only, stand under steep rocks, and do not see any truth.

—²⁷. 'Blessed shall he be that . . . scattereth thine infants to the rock' (Ps.exxxvii.9)=nascent falsities destroyed (by) the reigning falsity of evil.

—²⁸. 'The snow of Lebanon from the rock'

(Jer. xviii. 14)=the truths of the Church from the Word.

—²⁹. 'The rock of the plain' (Jer.xxi.13)=the falsity of doctrine (from the ultimates of the Word).

—³⁰. 'Enter into the rock' (Is.ii.10)=into falsity.

—³¹. As those in falsities dwell in rocks, it is said, 'Let them be cast down through places of the rock' (Ps. cxli.6), by which is signified that they are let into their falsities, and dwell in Hells which correspond to their falsities.

—³². Those who are in the faith of the doctrinals of their own Church, and in some charity, dwell upon rocks where there are fields-campi-upon which are some bushes and some trees, and grassy places; but those in faith alone as to doctrine and life, and thence in falsities of faith and evils of life, dwell within the rocks, in caverns and cells there.

—³³. This signification of 'rock' is from the correspondence which has been stated. But the signification of 'rock' from its hardness, is contained in the following passages. Ill.

— The reason hardness is expressed by 'a rock,' is from the correspondence of 'a rock' with truth from good, for all power is in truth from good; but, when truth acts against falsity from evil, then good is blunted, and the remaining truth acts hardly. Ill.

444⁹. The 'rock' at which that temptation took place (Deut.xxxiii.)=the Lord, and 'the waters' thence, Divine truths. 518²¹, Ill.

644²². The Lord, from the Divine truth which proceeds from Him, is called 'the rock of Israel.' 701⁸.

—²⁴. 'The rock' upon which the wise man built his house,=the Lord as to Divine truth, or the Divine truth received in soul and heart, that is, in faith and love.

666^e. 'He has set my feet upon a rock' (Ps.xl.2)=on the truth of doctrine from the Word; and, in the supreme sense, the Lord as to Divine truth.

799⁶. 'He shall exalt me upon a rock' (Ps.xxvii.5) = to instruct in interior truths.

Rock. Rupes.

A. 795⁴. 'The inhabitants of the rock' (Is.xlii.11)=those who are in charity. (Compare Rock-petra, at E. 326⁴.)

2832². 'Jehovah my rock-petra . . . my rock in which I confide' (Ps.xviii.2)=significatives of the power of truth. (=protection. E.316¹⁰.)

5620⁶. 'To suck honey out of the rock' (Deut.xxxii. 13)=delight from scientific truths. (=the truth of faith from the Lord. E.375³⁶.)

10582⁵. 'To enter into the rents of the rocks-petrarum, and into the fissures of the ragged rocks' (Is.ii.21)=into the obscure and pitch dark things of faith, thus into falsities.

H. 586^e. In some places (in the Hells) there are rough rocks in which are caverns.

D. 3359. According to the hardness of the intermediate rock, they can be heard . . . for that rock is a representation . . .

[D.] 4895. (In a view of the Heavens) there came into sight rather lofty rocks, which extended lengthwise, so far that they vanished in the distance. Those are said to dwell there who are in truths, and not yet so much in good. . . These rocks . . . decrease, and become lower, and at last a plain, and (then) it is well. (Compare Rock-petra, at D.4927.)

4907. I was carried to the right, where are the mountains and rocks . . . and at last upon the rocks, and a little below them: on the rocks dwell those in the good of faith.

E. 410³. See Rock-petra, here. 411⁷.

Rock. Saxum.*

Rocky. Saxeus.

A. 9780⁸. 'To suck oil out of the flint of rock-petrae' (Deut.xxxii.13)=to be imbued with good through the truths of faith. E.314⁷.

9841³. Those who take with them (there) truths of faith in the natural memory only . . . appear to themselves, when they go out, to wander among rough stones-saxa petrae.

H. 488³. See Rock-petra, here.

D. 4739. Built of rough stone plastered with lime.

5662a. Appears as a man . . . stony without life.

E. 411³. See Rock-petra, here. —⁷. —²¹.

J. (Post.) 219. Occurs.

Rock. Scopulus.

T. 28². Like a ship carried on the rocks. 127.

803. Like an image . . . placed upon a rock in the sea.

D. 3798. To dash it against the rocks.

E. 411²⁶. See Rock-petra, here.

730³². Occurs. —³⁵.

Rod, Staff. Baculus.

A. 1085². 'A staff of reed' (Ezek.xxix.6) = such power.

1460³. 'To break the staff of bread' (Ps.cv.16) = to be deprived of heavenly food.

2466¹⁰. 'Their staff will indicate it' (Hos.iv.12) = the imaginary power of their own understanding.

2576¹¹. 'The staff of bread, and the staff of water,' which shall be 'removed,' (Is.iii.1) = the good and the truth.

3424⁹. 'Their staves' (Num.xxi.10) = the power which they have.

3858¹¹. Levi's rod 'blossomed' (Num.xvii.). Ex.

4013. 'Jacob took a fresh rod of poplar' (Gen.xxx.37) = the power proper to natural good. 'A rod,' when mentioned in the Word, always = power, both from the fact that shepherds use it for exercising power over their flocks, and because it serves for the support of the body, and as it were for the right hand. Therefore a rod was used by kings, and the royal badge was a short staff, and also a sceptre. It was also used by priests and prophets, that they also by their rod might signify the power which they had, as Aaron and Moses, and therefore Moses was so frequently commanded to 'stretch out his rod' . . . From the signification of a rod as power, the Egyptian magi made use of it when they performed their magical miracles . . .

—². But, in the Original, the rods used by shepherds, kings, priests, and prophets, are expressed by another word; here, by a word by which is expressed the staff of travellers, and also that of shepherds. Ill. Here, indeed, the rod is not mentioned as supporting the hand, but as a rod-virga-cut from a tree . . . but still it has the same signification.

4015. 'The rods' = power. 4016. 4019. 4030.

4255. 'A staff' (Gen.xxxii.10) = power, and is predicated of truth.

4677⁹. 'A staff' = the power of truth from good.

4876. 'The staff which is in thy hand' (Gen.xxxviii.18) = by the power of that truth.

—¹. The reason 'a staff' (or 'rod') = power, is that it is a support, for it supports the hand and arm, and thereby the whole body, and therefore a staff puts on the signification of that part which it proximately supports, namely, that of the hand and arm.

—². That by 'a rod' was represented power. Ill.

—³. The hand is the principal, and the rod the instrumental. Ill.

—⁴. From these passages it is evident that 'a rod,' like the hand, represented power; and, in the supreme sense, the Divine omnipotence of the Lord.

—⁵. That 'a staff' (or 'rod') = power. Further ill.

—⁸. 'Thy rod-virga, and Thy staff' (Ps.xxiii.4) = the Divine truth and good, in which is power.

4911². The power was not in Moses' rod, but solely in the Divine command.

4936. Spirits have appeared who had rods: they were magicians . . . They seem to themselves to have rods, and by phantasies they form many kinds of rods, and believe that by them they can do miracles; for they suppose that there is force in the rods . . .

5622². 'A rod' (Jer.i.11) = power.

6492^e. A long roll fastened to rods, seen.

6947. 'What is that in thine hand? He said, A rod' (Ex.iv.2) = the power of the Lord's Divine Human. Ex.

—⁶. The power signified by 'the hand,' is the power proceeding from the Lord's Divine Rational; but that signified by 'the rod,' is the power proceeding from His Divine Natural; because a rod (or staff) supports the body like a foot . . .

6948. 'A rod' = power in the Natural, and, when said of the Lord, the power proceeding from His Divine Natural. Ex. 6954.

7011. 'Take this rod in thine hand' (ver.17) = the Divine power in them. 'A rod' = power, when it is in the hand; for the hand = spiritual power, and a rod natural power. As there is no power in the Natural except from the Spiritual, so there is none in a rod unless it is in the hand . . . 7026.

* Saxum, like Petra, is a rock in general, whereas Rupes is a steep rock, crag, or cliff, and Scopulus is a projecting point of rock.

7026. 'Moses took the rod of God in his hand' (ver.20)=that those things were from Divine power. . . 'The rod of God'=Divine power. 8599.

— That 'a rod'=power, derives its origin from the representatives (there); for those who exercise things magical appear with rods, which also are of service to them for powers; and hence the Egyptian magicians had rods, by which they did such things as appeared like miracles; and hence the Ancients in their writings everywhere assign rods to magicians. (Thus) a rod is a representative of power; and it is also a real correspondence, for power is actually exercised by means of rods; but this, with magicians, is an abuse of the correspondence, and does not avail except within the Hells where they are. . . And, as there is a real correspondence of a rod with power, Moses was commanded to take a rod in his hand, and by means of it do signs; and therefore, also, kings have a sceptre, which is a short rod, and by it is signified the royal power. The correspondence of a rod and of the power is from this, that a rod (or staff) supports the hand and arm, thus at the same time the body, and the hand and arm corresponds to power. . .

7292. 'Take thy rod, and cast it before Pharaoh' (Ex. vii.9)=power which is shown. 7295. 7298.

7296². (Such Spirits) form rods for themselves. . . and so exercise magical power.

7299. 'Aaron's rod swallowed up their rods' (ver.12)=that power was taken away from them.

7309. 'The rod which was turned into a serpent take in thine hand' (ver.15)=power like the former.

7316. 'The rod'=power.

7322. 'The rod'=natural power; 'the hand,' spiritual power.

7382. 'The rod'=natural power, which is of external truth; and therefore the words, 'Stretch forth thine hand with thy rod'=the power of internal truth through external truth.

7417. 'Stretch forth thy rod'=to exercise and show Divine power. Ex.

7572. 'Moses stretched forth his rod towards heaven' (Ex.ix.23)=communication with Heaven. Ex.

7678. 'Moses stretched out his rod over the land of Egypt' (Ex. x. 13)=the dominion of the power of truth Divine. . .

7865. 'Your staff in your hand' (Ex.xii.11)=as to mediate things. Ex.

8182. 'Take up thy rod' (Ex.xiv.16)=the power of Divine truth.

8579. 'Thy rod'=Divine power.

8904⁸. 'Their staff answereth unto them' (Hos.iv.12)=the imaginary power from Man's Own Intellectual. E.376³⁸.

9014⁵. 'That supporteth himself with a staff' (2 Sam. iii.29), that is, one lame, =those with whom all good is destroyed.

9028^e. 'The staff of bread'=power from good; 'the staff of water'=power from truth.

9034. 'To smite. . . with a staff' (Ex.xxi.20)=to ill-treat. . . from Own power. Ex.

9141⁴. 'The hand-staff' (Ezek.xxxix.9)=the power of truth from good. (=the power of truth; and, in the opposite, the power of falsity. 9228².)

9323². 'The staff of bread'=power and life from good; 'the staff of water'=power and life from truth.

9643⁵. 'The staff of the foundation' (Is.xxx.32)=the power of truth.

9942¹². 'A staff'=the power of truth. Refs.

10754. Holding in their hands shepherds' staves.

W. 341². The dust in my garden, on being stirred with a stick, rose in clouds of insects.

R. 485. 'A reed like unto a rod' (Rev.xi.1)=power from the Lord. Ex. (Compare E.627.)

—³. 'A rod'=mighty power, which is from the Lord; here, that of Knowing the state of the Church, because the temple and altar were measured with the rod. . .

— The reason power is signified by 'a rod,' is that the wood of which the rods were made, among the Ancients=good; and because it is in place of the right hand, and supports it; and by the right hand is signified power. Hence it is that a sceptre is a short rod, and by a sceptre is signified the power of a king.

—⁴. That 'a rod' (or 'staff'=power. Ill.

D. 4595. A counterfeit wand (used by Sirens). 4598.

5803. Those who use magic arts have rods.

E. 431². The two words in the Hebrew for 'tribes'=a sceptre and a rod, and by a sceptre is signified Divine truth as to government, and by a rod, Divine truth as to power. (Hence) it was commanded, when the people were murmuring. . . that the princes of all the tribes should place their rods in the tabernacle. . . and, in the midst of them, the rod of Levi, upon which was written the name of Aaron, and which yielded almonds (Num.xviii.); for by 'rods' the like is signified as by 'tribes,' and by 'the rod of Levi' (therefore) the good of charity. . . and the good of love. (Further ex.)

433³⁸. 'To remove all the staff of bread, and all the stay—scipionem—of water' (Is.iii.1)=all the good of love and truth of faith. . . 'The staff,' and 'the stay'=powers, and thence all things of spiritual life. (Compare 727¹².)

518³⁰. 'The staff of Egypt shall depart away' (Zech. x.11)=that scientific inservient to reasonings will avail nought. 538⁵. 654²⁴.

537³. 'With their staves' (Num.xxi.18)=the power and forces of the mind; here, from the Lord through the Word.

627¹⁰. 'The staff (of this bruised reed, Egypt)' (Is. xxxvi.6)=the power thence of perceiving, and also of reasoning about, truths. . . To 'lean upon this staff'=to confide in one's own power of perceiving truths, and reasoning about them from the proprium.

—¹². Their confidence is signified by 'a staff of reed' (Ezek.xxix.6). (Further ex.) 654⁵².

727. That 'a rod—virga,' and 'a staff,'=power, and indeed the power of Divine truth, is chiefly from the fact that they were boughs or branches of trees, and these = the Knowledges of truth and good, which are the truths of the natural man: and, as they also supported the body, they signified power; and, still more so 'an iron rod-virga.' Ex. and Ill.

[E.727]². 'Thy rod-virga, and Thy staff, shall comfort me' = that Divine truth spiritual, together with Divine truth natural, will protect, because there is power in them. 'Rod-virga' = Divine truth spiritual; 'staff,' Divine truth natural, both together as to the power of protecting.

—⁴. 'How is the staff of strength broken, the rod of beauty' (Jer.xlviii.17) = that they no longer had Divine truth in its power. 'The staff of strength' = this in the natural sense; and 'the rod of beauty' = in the spiritual sense.

—⁵. 'The rod of thy strength' (Ps.cx.2) = Divine truth in its power.

—¹². As 'a staff' = the power of Divine truth, it also = the power to resist evils and falsities. Ill.

—¹⁴. As 'a rod-virga,' and 'a staff' = the power of Divine truth, and thence Divine truth as to power, in the opposite sense, they = the power of infernal falsity, and thence infernal falsity as to power. Ill.

Coro. 45. (In the Hells from the men of the Ancient Church) they go with rods in their hands. Ex.

Rod. Virga.

A. 426⁴. 'An iron rod' (Rev.xii.5) = the Truth which is of the Lord's Word.

4594^e. 'A rod out of the stock of Jesse' (Is.xi.1).

4876⁵. The power of those who reason from scientifics against the truths of faith . . . is signified by 'the rod with which Asshur will smite . . .' (Is.x.24).

—⁶. 'A staff,' and 'rod,' (Is.xiv.5) manifestly = power.

—⁸. See ROD-baculus, here. E.727. —². —¹⁴.

—⁹. 'An iron rod' (Ps.ii.9) = the power of spiritual truth in natural . . .

6119². 'The rod of His mouth,' and 'the breath of His lips' (Is.xi.4) = the Divine truth from which is Judgment.

F. 16. The tree is man; the sprout or stalk with branches and leaves, are the means, and are called the truths of faith.

R. 148. 'He shall rule them with an iron rod' (Rev.ii.27) = through truths from the sense of the letter, and at the same time through rational things from natural lumen. . . For by 'a rod-virgam seu baculum,' in the Word, is signified power . . . E.176.

544. 'Who should pasture all nations with an iron rod' (Rev.xii.5) = (the same as above). S28.

E. 304²⁵. 'The rod of His mouth' = truth in ultimates, which is the truth of the sense of the letter. 727⁷.

504²⁷. 'The rod of her branches' (Ezek.xix.12) = the falsity of doctrine in which is evil.

726. 'An iron rod' = the power of natural truth from spiritual; for by 'a rod' is signified power, and it is predicated of Divine truth spiritual.

727³. 'Rods of strength' (Ezek.xix.11) = Divine truth as to power . . .

—⁶. 'Pasture Thy people with Thy rod' (Micah.vii.14) = the instruction of those of the Church in Divine truths from the Word. . . 'The rod,' here, = the Word, because it = Divine truth.

—¹⁶. 'The rod of His fury' (Lam.iii.1) = the dominion of infernal falsity.

—¹⁸. The signification of 'a rod.' Further ill.

—¹⁹, et seq. 730³⁹.

Rogue. Maleficus.

A. 8120. He who aids an indigent rogue, through him does evil to the neighbour. Ex. T 428.

D. 3928. Occurs.

4815. (The Moravians) do not speak evilly against rogues.

Roll. See DEVOLVE.

Roll. Volumen.

Volume, In a. Volumatim, Voluminatim.

A. 1271. A tumult heard like a great turbulent revolution. D.3584.

1763. The speech of many Spirits heard undulating like a wave. 6923.

2759. There rose up from the Lower Earth as it were a volume (of Spirits). D.3531, below.

5620¹³. 'The roll,' in Ezek. and 'the little book,' in the Rev. = truth Divine . . .

6492². A long roll fastened to rods, seen. D.2821.

7077². Humiliation was represented by the letting down of their volume (of Spirits); for that company then appeared as a volume (or roll) . . . But the volume appeared as if hollowed out in the middle, and elevated at the sides. 7170. D.3238.

10585. (The Spirits of the Fourth Earth) were seen as a volume. Des. D.3267.

H. 269. The Angels can utter in a few words all the things written in a volume of any book.

P. 264³. They write volumes (about faith, only).

M. 209. This work would expand into a large volume.

D. 2397. If a man merely runs over a volume with his eyes . . .

2678. They act like a wave of the sea.

2953. He whirled round as it were a roll in the form of a fish, (which) = his natural things.

3008. A thousand (confirming) volumes might be written.

3233. The Spirits of Mercury spoke in a volume . . .

3284. They saluted them in a volume. Ex.

3387. They might fill the greatest library with volumes . . .

3531. There rose up . . . a volume, or wave-fluctus-of people. In the other life such waves-undae, or volumes, are people. These rose up thus in a volume.

3911. These Spirits affected the brain like a soft and almost watery wave . . . This undulating volume adhered to the head.

D. Min. 4549. His sphere was rolled round him like a roll extended in length, according to the roundness of a roll. (Further des.)

E. 222³. 'A roll of a book written in front and behind' (Ezek.ii.9,10; iii.1)=the state of the Church then, thus the quality of the life of those of the Church. (=the Word. 622².)

299³. By 'a book,' when mentioned in the Word, is meant a roll; for in ancient times it was written upon parchments, which were rolled together, and the parchment is called 'a book,' and 'the roll of a book.' Ill. 404^e.

481⁴. 'The roll of a book' which Jehoiakim burnt (Jer.xxxvi.)=the Word . . .

675¹⁵. 'A flying roll' (Zech.v.1). Ex.

726³. These ethers and airs, when acted upon in a volume, give heat . . .

Roll. Volutare. A.9377².

Roll. Volvere.

A. 4779³. 'To roll themselves in ashes'=to be condemned on account of falsity.

T. 67². Be revolved abstractly in the mind.

393². The understanding, while revolving—volvit et revolvit—this, or turning it over—versat.

658⁴. To turn over and revolve means.

D. 2776. The evil which he actually intends rolls itself through the Spirits around.

3027. Those who rolled themselves from Heaven.

3662. When anything (the pope says) is contradicted, he feels something rolling and creeping in his abdomen.

E. 637⁹. 'To roll themselves in ashes'=mourning on account of the destroyed truth of the Church.

Roll. Volvulus.

T. 137. Collars with rolls (or ruffles).

380⁴. Like rolls of pastry with serpents inside.

569⁴. Like a great serpent twisting himself into rolls.

582. The paper which is . . . formed into rolls round spices.

Roll out. Evolvare.

See also EVOLVE.

D. 4563. They continually endeavour to roll out from (their Hell). 4653.

E. 1079². These senses are within the sense of the letter, and are evolved thence, one after the other . . . De Verbo 6. 7².

Roll together. Convolvare.

R. 335. 'Like a book rolled together' (Rev.vi.13). Ex. E.404, Ill.

T. 79². (He said) Nature rolled itself together into vortexes . . .

Roman Catholic. Romanus Catholicus.

See under BABEL, CATHOLIC, PAPIST, and POPE.

A. 10040². Almost like worship exists with the nation of the Catholic religion, as it is called; namely, external without internal. Ex.

H. 587². In the most remote Hells in (the western) quarter are those who have been of the Catholic religiosity, as it is called, and have desired to be worshipped as gods, and have consequently burned with hatred and revenge against all who did not acknowledge their Power over the souls of men and over Heaven. (Their state there des.)

R. Pref. The Doctrinals of the Roman Catholic Church and Religion. (Quoted.)

631. That the Roman Catholic religiosity, as to its dogmas and doctrinals, is now dispersed. Sig. and Ex. 713.

— After the New Christian Heaven had been formed, at the same time a new thing came to pass with those who had been of the Roman Catholic religiosity. Ex.

717, Pref. The Roman Catholic religiosity is treated of in Rev.xvii. and xviii. 753, Pref.

718. Influx, and revelation from the Lord, from the inmost of Heaven, concerning the Roman Catholic religiosity. Sig. and Ex.

— It is not said the Roman Catholic Church, but the Roman Catholic religiosity, because they do not approach the Lord, nor read the Word; and because they invoke the dead. Ex.

719. Revelation concerning that religiosity as to its profanations and adulterations of the truths of the Word. Sig. and Ex. 720.

721. Insanity in spiritual things from the adulteration of the Word with those who are in that religiosity. Sig. and Ex.

723. That religiosity upon the Word profaned by them. Sig. and Ex.

— 'A woman,' here, = the Roman Catholic religiosity, which is in an affection opposite (to the affection of truth).

725. Divine good and Divine truth celestial, which are of the Word; Divine good and Divine truth spiritual, which are of the Word; and the Knowledges of good and truth, which are of the Word, with them. Sig. and Ex. 726. 727.

728. That religiosity from the holy things of the Word profaned, and from its goods and truths defiled by direful falsities. Sig. and Ex.

729. The Roman Catholic religiosity, as to its interior quality which is concealed: that from its rise from the love of dominating, from the love of self, over the holy things of the Church, and over Heaven, and thus over all things of the Lord and His Word, it has defiled and profaned the things which are of the Word, and thence of the Church. Sig. and Ex.

— By 'Babylon the great' is signified the Roman Catholic religiosity and all its quality.

730. That religiosity insane from adulterated and profaned Divine truths and goods . . . Sig. and Ex.

731. Amazement that that religiosity is such interiorly, when yet it appears otherwise exteriorly. Sig. and Ex.

733. The Word acknowledged as holy among them, and yet really not acknowledged. Sig. and Ex.

[R.]734. 'The abyss' = that religiosity, and especially where its throne is, thus the Papal Cousistory.

735. The amazement of those of that religiosity . . . that the Word, although thus rejected, still is. Sig. and Ex.

737. The Divine goods and truths of the Word, upon which the Roman Catholic religiosity has been founded, destroyed in time, and at last profaned. Sig. and Ex. (See 738. 739.)

740. The Word as to power from Divine truths with those in . . . France, who are not so much under the yoke of the Papal Dominion, with whom, however, there has not yet been formed a Church accordingly separated from the Roman Catholic religiosity. Sig. and Ex. (See 741. 742. 743. 744.)

745. That those are under the Papal Dominion, but in truths of the Word variously adulterated and profaned by that religiosity, who are of its varieties of doctrine and discipline, and of its varieties of religion and confession. Sig. and Ex.

746. Those who have receded from the Roman Catholic religiosity, are here treated of.

748. That from hatred they will condemn and destroy with themselves the evils and falsities which are proper to that religiosity, and will hold the religiosity itself accursed, and will blot it out with themselves. Sig. and Ex.

749. Judgment in them from the Lord, that they should altogether repudiate and hold accursed the Roman Catholic religiosity, and should destroy and extirpate it with themselves. Sig. and Ex.

751. That the Roman Catholic religiosity, as to doctrine, reigns in the Christian world, and in part also still with the Reformed, although they are not under the Papal Dominion. Sig. and Ex.

753. The destruction and damnation of those who were in the Roman Catholic religiosity, and had exercised Power over the holy things of the Church and over Heaven, with the mind of dominating over all, and of possessing all things of others. Sig. and Ex. 759.

— The dogmas of that religiosity are prefixed to this work, that those in illustration . . . may see that they regard nothing else than dominion over the souls of men, to the end that they may be worshipped as gods, and may alone possess the goods of the whole world. (These infernal and detestable dogmas enum., and their purpose ex.)

755. That all who have been in that religiosity, and at the same time in the love of dominating from it, have been destroyed in the Spiritual World, and have been cast into many Hells. Sig. and Ex. 756. 757.

—². But those from the same religiosity who had lived according to the precepts of the decalogue . . . and at the same time had looked to the Lord, have been saved. Ref.

760. Exhortation by the Lord to all, both in that religiosity and out of it, to beware of conjunction with it by acknowledgment and affection . . . Sig. and Ex.

765. Into these three plagues or penalties do those of that religiosity come, who have dominated from the love of self . . . Sig. and Des. These are atheists at heart . . . and the rest of that nation, who are such, but do not think interiorly, are idolaters.

769. Their fear of the penalties, and, then, grievous lamentation, that that religiosity, so fortified, could be so suddenly and completely overturned. Sig. and Ex. 787. 788.

770. That religiosity is called 'a mighty city,' because it had fortified itself mightily; not only by the multitude of the nations and peoples who acknowledge it; but by many other things; as by monasteries . . . immeasurable possessions . . . the Inquisition . . . Purgatory . . . the prohibition of the reading of the Word . . . masses in an unknown language . . . external sanctities . . . the worship of the dead and of images . . . external splendours; in order that by all these means the people may be in a corporeal faith concerning the sanctity of all things of that religiosity. Hence it is that it is altogether unknown what lies hidden within that religiosity. Ex.

782². The lot after death . . . of those of that religiosity who have been in the love of dominion from the love of self, and thence in the love of the world. Des.

783, 784. The various dispensations and promises by which they make gain. Sig. and Enum.

786. It now treats of those not in any order of the ministry, but who still love and kiss that religiosity, or in heart acknowledge and venerate it.

—³. But those who are of the same religiosity, who indeed acknowledge it because they were born and educated in it, and do not know anything of their devices and snares for arrogating to themselves Divine worship, and for possessing all things . . . and still do goods from a sincere heart, and also turn their eyes to the Lord—these, after death, come among the blessed . . . There are many heavenly Societies of them . . . over which are set . . . some who had been emperors, kings, dukes, and princes, who had indeed acknowledged the Pontiff as the supreme one of the Church, but not as the Lord's vicar; and who had also acknowledged some things from the papal bulls, but yet had held the Word holy, and had acted justly in their administration.

787^e. On account of the Power of their domination, they cannot recede from all the externals of that religiosity; but they can recede from its internals. Ex.

790. That the Angels and men of the Church . . . should rejoice in heart that those in the evils and falsities of that religiosity have been removed and rejected. Sig. and Ex.

791. That by a strong influx of the Lord out of Heaven, that religiosity with all its adulterated truths of the Word, will be cast headlong into Hell, and will not appear to the Angels any more. Sig. and Ex.

792². That those in the evils and falsities of the Roman Catholic religiosity, have no affections of spiritual truth and good, nor of celestial truth and good. Sig. and Ex.

793. That those in that religiosity from doctrine and a life according to it, have no understanding of spiritual truth, and thence no thought of spiritual truth, in so far as [these are] from themselves. Sig. and Ex. And not any search for, investigation, or confirmation of spiritual truth. 794, Sig. and Ex. And have no illustration from the Lord, and thence no perception of spiritual truth. 796, Sig. and Ex. And no conjunction of good and truth. 797, Sig. and Ex.

So1. That from (this) religiosity is the adulteration and profanation of every truth of the Word . . . and that thence has emanated falsity into the whole Christian world. Sig. and Ex. So2, Ex.

So3, Pref. A Glorification . . . by the Angels, because the Roman Catholic religiosity in the Spiritual World has been removed, whereby they have come into their light and blessedness. Tr. So7, Sig. and Ex.

825². The Roman Catholic religiosity teaches that the Lord's Human is not Divine, and therefore they have transferred all things of the Lord to themselves; also that the Word is to be interpreted solely by them . . .

962⁴. Then was heard a voice from the Roman Catholics . . . —⁸.

B. 2. The doctrinals of the Roman Catholics concerning justification; from the Council of Trent.

19. That the Roman Catholics before the Reformation taught exactly similar things to those the Reformed taught after it, concerning a Trinity of Persons, original sin, the imputation of Christ's merit, and justification by faith in it, with the sole difference that they conjoined the same faith with charity or good works. Ex.

21. In order that they might be torn asunder from the Roman Catholics . . . T. 796⁴.

105. That at this day the Roman Catholics know nothing about the imputation of the merit of Christ, and justification by faith in it, because it lies completely covered over by the externals of worship; and therefore if they in part recede from the externals of their worship, and immediately approach God the Saviour Jesus Christ, and administer the Holy Eucharist in both kinds, they can be introduced into the New Jerusalem . . . more easily than the Reformed. Ex.

108. A second reason why the Roman Catholics can be introduced into the New Jerusalem more easily than the Reformed, is that with the Roman Catholics there is an idea of Divine Majesty in the Human of the Lord, more than with the Reformed, as is manifestly evident from their most holy veneration of the Host. A third reason is that with them charity, good works, repentance, the study of a new life, are essentials of salvation . . . These are the three reasons, why the Roman Catholics, if they approach God the Saviour Himself, not mediately, but immediately; and also if they distribute the Holy Eucharist in both kinds, may more easily than the Reformed receive a living faith in place of a dead one, and be borne by the Lord through Angels to the gates of the New Jerusalem or New Church, and be introduced with joy and shouting.

T. 94. The reason the Lord is called the Son of Mary . . . is that the Roman Catholics have sanctified Mary . . .

174. From the Nicene Council (a Trinity of Persons) was introduced into the Roman Catholic Church . . .

508⁴. (Hence) by the Divine Providence the Word has been taken away from the laity among the Roman Catholics . . .

562². See CONFESS, here.

820². Turn away their minds from the sanctifications introduced into the Roman Catholic Church.

821. All of the Catholic religion who had thought more of God than of the papacy, and have done works of charity from a simple heart . . . are easily led away from the superstitions of that religion. Des.

—². None who pass into the Spiritual World from this Catholic religiosity see Heaven where the Angels are: there is as it were a dark cloud over them . . . But as soon as any convert comes among the converted, Heaven is opened . . .

D. 4913. On those from the Catholic religion who have persuaded themselves that they have Power from the Lord over the souls of men. Gen.art.

4953. On the Roman Catholic religion and Babel. Gen.art.

5006. A Catholic crowd . . . adored him . . .

5030. Evident from those who are in the Catholic religion—the simple of them are in good without truth . . .

5074². The worst of all among the Catholics are those who have been devout in external form, and have thereby aimed at becoming great . . .

5265. See LAST JUDGMENT, here. 5266. 5406. 5457. 5503. 5649. 5737.

5362. Situation of the Hells of the evil of the Catholic religion . . .

5642. Character of those who belong to the Catholic religion there. 5790b.

6020. (A Society of Catholics there, after the Last Judgment, and how it was purified.)

D. Min. 4597^e. Many such are in the Roman Catholic religion, where they do not know the truths of faith. Des.

4603. A conversation with a certain Roman Catholic about their saints.

J. (Post.) 112. I saw a vast multitude from the Catholic nation, who had been long hidden and reserved by the Lord, and preserved from the idolatrous contagion of the rest, because they had lived well, and acknowledged the Lord . . . In a word, the Societies instituted from the Catholics are many and great . . . Thence, if after being instructed they have received the truths of faith in the good of love, they are elevated into Heaven. It is not their fault that they were born there.

113. The most wicked from the Roman Catholics become the most stupid. Ex.

Inv. II. The doctrinals contained in the True Christian Religion, agree with those of the Roman Catholic Church, and of the Protestants [with those persons] who acknowledge a personal union in Christ, and approach Christ, and partake of the Eucharist in both kinds.

Can. Trinity iii. 4. Not allowable from the Catholic religion to say . . .

[Can. Trinity] v. 1. These creeds . . . ecumenical and Catholic, that is, universals of doctrine . . .

Rome. Roma.

Roman. Romanus.

See LATIN.

A. 2724^o. Hence with the Gentiles, especially in Greece and Rome, so many gods . . .

8944². How the things of Divine worship reached the Italians or Romans.

10177¹⁰. Censers, etc., in use with the Roman nation . . . Such a religiosity was derived from the Ancient Church. E.504^o.

P. 312². Think of Rome, etc.

R. 737². The idea that 'the seven mountains' mean Rome. E.1062².

M. 451. (Modern) Rome, mentioned.

T. 141. The Roman government of Consul, Senate, and Tribune . . .

D. 2147. As with the Romans, who longed for immortality (of fame) more than others . . .

3394. One who was like the Romans. Des.

— . But the valour of the Romans was mad.

4094. A certain celebrated Roman seen. (See CICERO.)

5408. The city of Rome there.

5648. See LAST JUDGMENT, here. 5650.

6012. He of Rome who was from Upsala . . .

E. 573¹³. Believed to be said of the destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans . . .

C. 86. If I had been born at Venice, or Rome . . .

Roof. Tectum.

See BEAM-trabs, and COVER-tegere.

A. 896. 'Noah removed the covering of the ark' Gen. viii. 13) = the removal of falsities. . . 'The covering' = what obstructs or prevents the man from seeing heaven, or the light; and this was falsity.

3652⁶. When man has arrived at a state in which he acts from good, or the will, he ought not to betake himself to his former state . . . which is signified by, 'Let him that is upon the roof of the house not go down to take anything out of his house' (Matt. xxiv. 17). (These words = the second class of men within the Church — those who are in charity towards the neighbour. 3653.)

4050. There appeared walls, but no roof.

10161. They make for themselves roofs . . .

10184. 'The roof' (of the altar) (Ex. xxx. 3) = what is inmost. The reason a roof = what is inmost, is that it is what is highest . . . and also because it = the like as the head with man . . .

—². As by 'the roof' is signified what is celestial — which is what is inmost — good also is signified. Ill.

—³. As 'a roof' = good, the ancients had roofs on their houses where they walked, and also where they adored. Ill.

—⁴. (Thus) 'a roof' = the good of love.

10769. The roof was round.

10835. Their houses have a flat roof, around which there is a border sloping downwards.

H. 532³. Like one looking from the roof of a house.

R. 859^o. 'Gog and Magog' mean a roof and a floor.

M. 12. The roof was of plates of gold.

T. 71. The ground made a roof over them.

73⁴. A radiant light . . . inflowed through the roof.

D. 3016. I seemed to be elevated to the roof, and to adhere to it with my head.

4739. The chambers were devoid of a roof.

4860. (In a Hell of Genii) there were walls . . . but no roof. . . They cannot dwell in houses with roofs . . . they would feel suffocated. . . The reason is that roofs = the closure (of thought).

E. 405³⁴. 'The roof of the house' (Matt. xxiv.) = the intelligence which is from genuine truths, thus also the genuine truths through which is intelligence.

650⁶⁶. 'The roof' = what is inmost.

652²¹. 'Roofs' = interior things.

Room. See CHAMBER.

Root. Radix.

Root, To. Radicare.

Rooting, A. Radiciatio.

Radical. Radicalis.

Radically. Radicitus.

See INROOT.

A. 382³. 'The root is dried up' (Hos. ix. 16) = charity cannot bear fruit.

875. That nothing of the good and truth of faith could yet take root. Sig.

880. Then first are the truths of faith rooted. Ex. Rooting never begins until the man receives the good of charity. All the truth of faith is rooted by the good of faith . . . So a seed does not take root until the heat of the sun warms the earth . . . then the seed begins first to push its root within itself, and afterwards to send it forth into the ground. So spiritual seed . . . is never rooted until the good of charity warms it: then first it pushes its root within itself, and afterwards sends it forth.

1846⁴. 'They have no root in themselves' (Mark iv. 17) = no charity, for in this faith is rooted; and those who do not enjoy this root, yield in temptations.

1861⁵. 'Leave them neither root nor branch' (Mal. iv. 1) = neither charity nor Truth.

2228². Can send a root no deeper than the thought.

2851⁶. 'To kill the root with famine,' etc. (Is. xiv. 30) = to take away the goods and truths which had been stored up interiorly by the Lord.

2879. The Lord inflows . . . with good and truth: their root must be in the inmost . . .

3146. Such is the rooting of faith.

3671. The seed, which is interior good and truth, cannot be rooted except in exterior good and truth as soil.

3986². Affections are rooted . . . in man by his life.

4205². (Thus) no truth can be implanted with genuine affection, and interiorly rooted, unless the man is in good.

4317⁵. This root (hereditary evil) lies deeply hidden.

6273. Reflect, whether the truth which is of faith can be rooted except in good, and whether faith, unless rooted there, is faith.

8869⁵. The proprium, radically, is evil.

9141^e. Until nothing (of the truths and goods of the Church) is left in the internal and the external of man, is signified by, 'it will leave them neither root nor branch.' The 'root' of good and truth is in the internal of man, and the 'branch' is in the external.

10132². 'The Root of Jesse' (Is. xi. 10) = the Lord from whom is this good. E. 175⁶. 205⁶.

C. J. 63. Lest this worst root of evils be excited with them.

Life 90^e. (Thus) the Truth of the Word cannot be rooted with those who do not care for the Truth; nor with those who love the Truth exteriorly (only); nor with those who are in the concupiscences of evil; but with those with whom the concupiscences of evil have been dispersed by the Lord: with these the seed is rooted, that is, the Truth in their spiritual mind.

93. As this proprium of man constitutes the first root of his life, it is evident what kind of a tree a man would be, unless this root were extirpated, and a new root implanted. . . This root is not removed, and a new one implanted in its place, unless the man regards the evils which constitute the root as things hurtful to his soul, and therefore wants to banish them . . .

94. He who combats acts from the interior, and against the concupiscence itself, which constitutes the root of evil . . . (Thus) the root of evil is not removed except by combat.

108^e. With the merely natural, the root of evil remains implanted.

W. 310². This endeavour is continuous from the earths through the root even to the ultimates . . .

314. Vegetations take place through the barks, by pushing through the envelopes of the roots . . .

P. 220^e. Avarice is the root (or a root) of evils.

R. 17². All truth is sown in the internal man, and rooted in the external, and therefore unless the sown seed is rooted in the external man, which is done by acting, it becomes like a tree planted not in but on the soil . . . This root the man carries with him after death who has done Truths; but not the man who has only Known them.

266. 'Of the tribe of Judah the root of David' (Rev. v. 5) = through Divine good united to Divine truth in His Human.

954. 'I am the root and the Offspring of David' (Rev. xxii. 16) = that He is the Lord Himself, who was born in the world, thus the Lord in His Divine Human. From this he is called 'the root and Offspring of David' . . .

T. 173. Like the root of a tree in the earth (which grows again).

585². When the earth is first opening a seed, it begins from the root, which is like a heart, and sends out from it the sap, which is like blood . . .

Ad. 3/5445. This radical evil would at once burst out . . . 5486. 5593. 5606. 5687.

D. 1436. Like the derivation of the roots of a tree in the earth; or like a glandulous root which is rooted inwardly . . . Evils are the 'tares' which strike broad roots, and oppress the roots of the good seed.

1437. Therefore, unless they are the Truths of faith, they cannot be rooted; but they are the roots of the tares which oppress them, but still cannot extirpate them . . .

1438. For then the roots do not work down deeply. 1439.

2312. Thus there is a root . . .

E. 281². 'The roots' (Ezek. xvii. 6) = knowledges.

310. 'The root of David' = the Divine truth. . . The Lord as to the Human is called 'the root of David,' from the fact that everything of Divine truth is from Him, as also all things come forth and subsist from their root. Hence, too, it is, that He is called 'the root of Jesse.'

315¹⁶. 'To kill the root with famine' = to completely perish from there being no good: 'the root' = everything from which it lives.

386³. 'The root of the serpent' (Is. xiv. 29) = that false beginning or principle. 727²¹. (Compare 817⁹.)

481². 'It sendeth forth its roots beside the river' (Jer. xvii. 8) = the extension of intelligence from the spiritual man into the natural . . . for the 'roots' are sent forth from the spiritual man into the natural. 518¹².

638¹¹. The second state of regeneration is signified by, 'he shall infix his roots' (Hos. xiv. 5), which state is that of its coming forth in the Natural; for there the roots are fixed.

654¹⁷. 'Thou hast caused its roots to take root' (Ps. lxxx. 9) = instruction according to order, namely . . . that they are introduced into the Church.

710⁵. 'The root' = the first thereof.

1173³. To inflow into the interiors of the mind (as the Lord does), and through them into its exteriors, is to infix the root, and to produce from the root: the root is in the interiors, and production in the exteriors.

Inv. 22. As the Lord is not dead, there remains, according to Daniel, 'a root in the earth' . . . That which remains is the faculty of being able to understand truth and to will good. This is 'the root that remains.'

Rope. See CORD.

Rosary. See under ROSE.

Rose. Rosa.

Rosebed. Rosetum.

Rosary. Rosarium.

A. 9841³. The things which are of life, are represented in Heaven by rosebeds, etc.

P. 282^e. Like a dead body covered over with roses, etc.

M. 8. Walking on roses . . .

—². Sitting by threes and tens on rosebeds.

—³. We have lain down upon this rosebed.

42⁴. From her necklaee hung a rosary of chrysolites.

137. Garlands of lilies and roses of a hyacinthine colour . . . adorned their bosoms.

147^e. Like a rosebed in the spring time.

293. Seven women seen sitting on a rosebed.

—⁶. The rosebed on which we sit—the deliciousnesses of wisdom.

—⁷. She wove a garland of roses, sprinkled it with water from the fountain, and placed it on the boy's hat . . . and said, Receive the deliciousnesses of intelligence . . .

294. I again saw those seven wives in a rosary, but not in the same one. It was a magnificent rosary . . . round, and the roses formed a rainbow—roses or flowers of a crimson colour its outside circle; others of a golden yellow the next; within this, others of a dark blue; and the inmost of a leek-green or bright green: and within this rainbow rosary there was a little lake of limpid water. . . Such a thing is created by the Lord in a moment, and represents something new on the earth . . . we think it is the deliciousnesses of conjugal love. Ex. —³.

315³. A hat on the crown of which was a rosary surrounded with small sapphires.

D. 6110⁸. The commonness, when there is love truly conjugal, is the plane in which the deliciousnesses form themselves from within, as upon the plane of the rose, and each rose becomes a plane, in which are formed interior deliciousnesses to eternity.

Rosenadler. Rosenadler. D.5700.

Rosenstolpe. Rosenstolpe. D.5863. 5948³. 5960. 5977.

Rouge. Fucare, Fucus.

P. 121². Rouged—inducto fuco—so as to appear handsome.

M. 231⁵. Their office is to prepare red-lead into rouge, to bedaub the faces of harlots.

T. 109⁴. Like an old woman whose face had been rouged—fucata, and who, from the crimson of the rouge, appeared to herself beautiful.

E. 972^e. Their sincerity and rectitude are only a pretence and cunning.

Rough. Asper.

Roughness. Asperitas.

Roughly. Aspere.

A. 3527^e. 'The rough ways made smooth' (Luke iii. 5) = the falsities of ignorance turned into truths.

5246⁴. Rough as to his face.

6516^e. A milder or harsher modification (of utterance).

H. 368. The man has a rougher and less beautiful face.

S. 90². (In the Third Heaven) they do not express any consonant roughly, but softly . . . Roughness in letters is in use in the Spiritual Heaven . . . because truth admits of what is rough, but not good.

P. 279⁸. Through the trachea or wind-pipe—asperam arteriam.

M. 218. The intelligence of the men is grave, rough, hard . . .

D. 5620. The rough letters, which are uttered roughly. Enum.

5622. See HEBREW LANGUAGE, here.

De Verbo 4². The rough letters . . . have no meaning (in the Third Heaven), except when they utter them with a soft sound, and this is why many rough letters are pointed within . . .

Rough. Hispidus.

T. 155². Zeal is outwardly harsh—asper, rough . . .

Round. Rotundus.

A. 7484. A certain round fruit . . .

8243. (The round faces of the inhabitants of Jupiter.)

8458. 'A small round thing' (Ex.xvi.14)=the good of truth. 'Round' is predicated of good.

—². Good is (there) presented as round, which is continuous in its form. 9717².

M. 268². (Those who are in the phantasy of the possession of all the wealth of the world) appear with round faces . . .

T. 86. The Divine good is like the round hilt of a sword.

503. A round temple like that at Rome called the Pantheon, seen.

E. 253⁷. 'Round' (1 Kings x.19)=the corresponding good.

Round about. See AROUND, and under SURROUND.

Rouse. Suscitare.

See RESUSCITATE.

A. 6370. 'Who shall rouse him up?' (Gen.xlix.9)=that he is safe among all in the Hells.

E. 899⁸. 'To rouse the dead' (John v.21)=resurrection into life, not only by natural death, but also by spiritual death.

Rotate. See WHEEL.

Rower. Remex.

See OAR.

A. 1201³. 'Zidon' = exterior Knowledges; therefore her inhabitants are called 'rowers.' Ex. 6385².

E. 514². Those who teach, lead, and rule, are meant by, 'pilot,' captains,' 'rowers,' etc.

Royal. See under KING.

Royal Exchange. J.(Post.)268.

Royal Society. W.344.

Rub. Fricare.

Rubbing. Fricatio.

P. 256⁴. When any Spirit rubs his face, or garment, with the Word, from the mere rubbing it shines . . . T.209².

D. 4851. The pride (of being rational and wiser than others) produces tickling and rubbing of the anus.

Rub. Terere. M.3So.

Rubbish. See under REFUSE, and RUINS.

Ruby. Pyropus.

A. 655. 'I will make thy suns (windows) of rubies' (Is.liv.12)=intellectual truths from charity; and therefore they are likened to a ruby.

1232. 'Ruby' etc. (Ezek.xxvii.16)=Knowledges of good.

2735. Auroras sparkling as it were with rubies—rubinis—and carbuncles. H.382^e.

M. 2. He was girt with a band which as it were flamed and shone with rubies and sapphires.

42³. A golden girdle, upon which were three precious stones: two sapphires at the sides, and a ruby in the middle.

—⁴. She wore a necklace of rubies . . .

266. He wore a tiara studded on the right side with some rubies.

T. 112. A cloud which sparkled like a carbuncle from the flame of the sun.

E. 268³. 'A sardius' also is mentioned (Rev.iv.3), because by this stone is signified good . . . It is this stone which is called pyropus, which, as it shines as if from fire, by both is signified the translucence of truth from good.

401²⁵. 'I will make thy suns of rubies, and thy gates in stones of carbuncle'=goods coruscating from the fire of love (and truths resplendent from good). 'A ruby'=coruscation as from fire. 717⁵.

Ruby. Rubinus.

See SARDIUS.

A. 2735. See RUBY—pyropus, here.

9865. 'A ruby, a topaz, and a carbuncle' (Ex.xxviii.17)=the celestial love of good . . . on account of their red and flaming colour . . . here, celestial love, because they are in the first row . . . Hence these three stones represent the Inmost Heaven, and consequently the love there . . .

—³. 'The 'ruby,' which is in the first place, in the Original Language, is derived from a word which means redness.

S. 42. Hence, the Word, in its ultimate bosom, from its natural sense in which are the two interior ones, is like a ruby and a diamond: from celestial flame, like a ruby . . .

R. 232. The Divine sphere which encompasses the Lord . . . appears, in the Celestial Kingdom, glowing red like a ruby . . .

M. 20². The bride (wore) on her head a crown of gold studded with rubies.

42⁴. (She wore) a stomacher fastened in front with rubies.

137^e. The furniture of their houses . . . flashed with gold as if flaming from the interstudded rubies.

609. These three degrees are distinct from each other as . . . are a ruby, a sapphire, and an agate. Moreover . . . 'a ruby,' in the Word,=celestial good, which is the good of the highest Heaven.

E. 364⁷. That a ruby is so called from redness. Ill. Hence it is that by 'a ruby' is signified the truth of celestial good.

Rudbeck. Rudbeck. D.4396.

Rudberg. Rudberg. D.4757^e. 4836. 4842. 4843. 5228.

Rude. Rudis.

Ignorance. Ruditatis.

A. 3909. The things in the sense of the letter are relatively rude.

4379. These arcana are open . . . as to some rude image . . .

8149^e. Thus are the very ignorances of falsity wiped away.

D. 1935. Thus the Knowledges of Truths with men (are) vessels . . . rude, may the rudest.

2185. They said . . . that the things I have written are so rude and gross . . .

6042. In his chamber are many things which are rude and sad.

Rudiment. Rudimentum.

A. 4707. The first rudiments, Sig. and Ex.

—^e. The first rudiments are also the generals of doctrinals.

6751^e. The generals of faith, or the rudiments of the doctrine of the Church, are the first plane.

7780². When the Ancients were describing the first rudiments of the doctrine of faith . . .

T. 426^e. (These are) the rudiments of charity.

D. 5814. Scarcely wanting to hear about spiritual truth, except the first theological rudiments.

Ruffles. See under ROLL.

Rugged. Scaber. H.584. 586^e.

Ruin. See under DESTROY—labefactare.

Ruin. Pernicies.

Ruinous. Perniciosus.

A. 9028. 'The day of my ruin' (Ps.xviii.18)=a weak state as to the faith of truth.

H. 361². An idle life is ruinous.

D. 2621. (David) is acute, or pernicious.

4635. Sirens are the most pernicious of all.

5669. (At) the ruin of the worshippers of the Lord they are silent, and abstain until they see that he is beginning to rush into some ruin, and then they are suddenly present . . .

Ruin. Resupinare. T.37^e.

Ruin. Ruina.

A. 988. 'Upon his ruin . . .' (Ezek.xxxi.13). E.388¹², Ex. 654³⁶.

D. 2116. Occurs. 2123.

E. 223³. The vastation of the Church as to doctrine is meant by 'Thou hast made of . . . a defenced city a ruin' (Is.xxv.2).

601¹⁶. 'Ruins' (Is.v.30)=a total subversion.

Ruins. Rudera.

H. 586². In some Hells appear as it were the ruins of houses and cities after conflagrations, in which the infernal Spirits dwell . . . D.4897. 5598.

W. 303^e. They do not appear like a house, but like a heap such as is [formed] of ruins.

D. 3931. As the ruins of temples [built] of such rocks are wont to appear. 3936.

4734. Around the cities . . . and elsewhere, appear . . . also great ruins of houses . . .

4872. At last I arrived at the ruins of houses . . .

Rule. Amussis.

A. 9424¹⁰. 'He marketh it out with a rule' (Is.xliv.13)=how doctrine is formed from Own intelligence. 10406⁹. E.587⁷.

9632². To which they accurately—ad amussim—correspond.

Life 27. Knows accurately all things of the doctrine of his Church.

T. 32². The speech, etc., of one is never exactly equal to that of another.

Rule. Norma.

A. 2235. It has the law for its rule.

6637². So that doctrine is the rule of life.

8899. The precepts of the decalogue are for rules both for those in the world and those in Heaven.

9192. All worship has for its rules doctrinals . . .

M. 147. It is a universal rule that . . .

B. 84^e. It is a general rule of religion that . . .

D. Min. 4751^e. Occurs.

E. 345^e. The rule . . . that the understanding must be under some blind obedience to faith.

Rule. Regere.

Government. Regimen.

See under COMMAND, DOMINION, GOVERN, LOVE OF DOMINATING, and REIGN.

A. 50. Man . . . is ruled by the Lord through Angels and Spirits. 581. 2025^e. 2034ⁿ. 2121². 6191, Ex. 10655⁴.

—². So long as man has not been regenerated, he is ruled quite differently. Ex.

—³. The Angels lead, but they only minister; for it is the Lord alone who rules man through Angels and Spirits.

592. The most general idea, that the Lord rules and disposes everything. D.2320.

1317. The Angels with man, being of the Lord, rule nothing else with man than his ends: and, when they rule these, they rule his thoughts and deeds, also.

1399. Each Spirit . . . is ruled by the Lord through Angels.

1673⁴. Man can perceive whether he is ruled by such, by this . . .

1752^e. The form of government (there) is such that good Spirits are subordinated to angelic ones; and (these) to the Angels themselves; so that they constitute one angelic Society.

2015¹⁰. For a government from truths alone condemns everyone to Hell; but a government from goods . . . elevates into Heaven . . .

2026². As the Lord rules the universal Heaven, He also rules all things on earth; for they are so connected that He who rules the one, rules all things. Ex. H.5.

2447². According to this order, each and all things are ruled by Him; but with a manifold difference, namely, from will, from good-pleasure, from leave, and from permission. Ex.

2515². Do not suffer themselves to be ruled by good and truth . . .

2592³. He it is who rules the universe.

2706. The Lord rules the smallest singulars of everyone, even with the worst . . . but diversely, according to the reception of life. Ex. 2878^e.

2892. He who lives in good, and believes that the Lord rules the universe . . . can be endowed with heavenly freedom and . . . peace . . . Whereas he who believes that he rules himself, is continually disquieted, is carried away into cupidities, into solitudes about future things . . . and, because he so believes, the cupidities of evil and the persuasions of falsity adhere to him.

2973⁴. From man's inmost, the Lord rules the things in his circuits . . .

3603^e. The Involuntary from the Lord . . . has (in childhood) disposed and ruled everything of their thought and will.

3642^e. Thus does the Lord, from the Divine, rule the Hells also.

3644. Every man has his situation in the Grand Man . . . and is ruled thence.

3645. Through this (Divine sphere of ends and uses) all things are ruled.

3704¹⁵. The Lord from the Divine good, through the Divine truth, rules each and all things in the universe.

3835. Everyone's affection . . . is called (a bond) from the fact that it rules the man . . .

4067². Around man are Spirits and Angels, and the internal man is in the midst of them, and he is thus ruled by the Lord.

—³. These (Societies) communicate with Hell; the man is in the midst of them, and he is entirely ruled by them . . . although he supposes from the delight he has, and the derivative freedom, that he rules himself . . .

4077^e. Man has not the least of thought, nor of will, except by influx through (Heaven and Hell) from the Lord; and it is these through which the Lord mediately rules the human race; and, in particular, everyone.

4167². These three planes are what rule man, that is, through which the Lord rules man. Through the interior plane, or through the conscience of spiritual good and truth, He rules those who have been regenerated. Through the exterior plane, or through the conscience of what is just and fair, that is, through the conscience of moral and civil good and truth, He rules those not yet regenerated, but who can be regenerated, and also are being regenerated. But through the outermost plane, which appears like conscience, and yet is not conscience, He rules all the rest, even the evil. These, without this government, would rush into all wicked and insane things . . . Those who do not suffer themselves to be ruled through these [planes], are either insane, or are punished according to the laws.

4190. The Lord rules the interiors (of the good gentiles) . . .

4217³. The Lord rules the man who is in good through internal bonds . . . but him who is in evil solely through external bonds.

4227. In order that they themselves might rule under the name (of the rich and powerful). (See COMMAND-imperium, here.)

4419. He had contracted this evil, that wherever he was, he wanted to rule all things. . . (And) was troublesome to them, because he wanted to rule them from his own intelligence.

4658⁴. The radiant circle is the Divine from Him, which inflows not only into Heaven, but also into the universe, and disposes and rules them. He added, that He who disposes and rules Heaven, also disposes and rules the universe, because the one cannot be separated from the other.

4687³. This Ipsium is that from which the Divine truth now proceeds . . . consequently which rules and governs the universe, as it has ruled and governed it from eternity.

5396. How the Lord rules inordinate things which are outside, from what is peaceful in the middle. Rep.

5608⁵. Infants suffer themselves to be ruled by the Angels . . . not like adults, who rule themselves from their own judgment and will.

5718. A kind of Spirits, who, because they want to dominate, and alone to rule all others, excite among others enmities, hatreds, and combats. Des. (Their correspondence.)

5732². In the speech (of the Angels) there is nothing of command to another, for no one wants to be lord, and so regard another as a servant, but everyone wants to minister to and be of service to another. Hence is evident the nature of the form of government in the Heavens. Ill.

5854². Therefore the Lord rules man through his freedom . . .

6058. There is an influx from the Divine of the Lord into every Angel, Spirit, and man, and the Lord thus rules everyone, not only in the universal, but also in the veriest singulars; and this immediately from Himself, and also mediately through the Spiritual World.

6213². Then the Lord, through Angels, rules him as to externals, which are called external bonds . . . 6495².

6325. It is an eternal Truth that the Lord rules Heaven and earth . . .

—². Spirits who want to rule themselves, suppose that this would be to lose their freedom . . .

6338. If man, Spirit, or Angel ruled himself in the singulars, there would be confusion of all things.

6466^e. For man is ruled, in particular, through Angels and Spirits, and, in general, through Heaven, by the Lord.

6473. That the Lord rules the ultimates of man equally with his primes. Ex.

6474. How all the thoughts are ruled by the Lord. Shown.

6482. I have spoken with Spirits about the Lord's universal government: that what is universal is quite impossible without singulars. Ex.

7270⁴. There, from the First, the Lord rules and provides each and all things . . .

7290⁴. For what is negative universally reigns on earth against the Divine influx and government.

7342. The will is what rules man. It is believed . . . that the understanding rules; but the understanding does not rule unless the will inclines; for the understanding favours the will . . .

7773. In Hell, equally as in Heaven, there is a form of government; for there are dominations and subordinations; without these, society would not cohere. But . . . in Heaven all are like equals: for the one loves the other as a brother a brother; nevertheless the one sets the other before himself in proportion as he excels in intelligence and wisdom; the love of good and truth itself causes that everyone as it were from himself subordinates himself to those who are in wisdom of good and intelligence of truth more than themselves. But the subordinations in Hell are those of command . . . and he who commands rages cruelly against those who do not favour his every nod . . .

8237². For the Lord rules the Hells also, through Angels, to whom is afforded an opportunity, from the place where they are, of seeing all things which come forth there. This is done in order that there may be order there . . .

8455. Peace has in it confidence in the Lord: that He rules all things . . .

8717². The Lord, through the Truth proceeding from Him, rules all things down to the most singular ones, not like a king in the world, but like God in Heaven and the universe. Ex.

8728. Through the Angels and angelic Societies, the Lord mediately acts and rules men; but still it is not the Angels who rule, but the Lord through them.

[A.] 8770⁴. Why the forms of government with the descendants of Jacob were successively changed. Ex.

9278³. Thus it is according to Divine order, that the Lord should rule the world with man through Heaven, and by no means the reverse.

9846^e. How the Lord rules man mediately through Heaven; for a regenerated man is a Heaven in the least image; and therefore when He rules Heaven, He also rules such a man at the same time.

9930³. For government from Divine good was represented by a crown; and government from Divine truth by a sceptre.

10188². The Lord rules the Hells through (the external sphere of the Divine good).

10773. The government of the Lord in the Heavens and on earth is called Providence.

10810². In order that the evil may be ruled by the Lord through the good (there).

10814². (Men then) entered upon governments under various forms; for in proportion as the love of self increased, evils of every kind increased. . . N. 81.

H. 5. To rule Heaven and earth, is to receive from Him all the good which is of love, and all the truth which is of faith, thus all intelligence and wisdom, and thus all happiness; in a word, eternal life. III.

63. As Heaven is such, it is ruled by the Lord as one man, and thus as a one.

108. Bees live in a certain form of government. . .

213. On governments in Heaven. Chapter.

— . As . . . all within a Society are in like good, but not in like wisdom, it necessarily follows that there are governments; for order must be observed. . . But the governments in the Heavens are various; different in the Societies which constitute the Celestial Kingdom from those which constitute the Spiritual Kingdom; they also differ according to the ministries which belong to each Society. But in the Heavens there exists no other government than the government of mutual love; and the government of mutual love is heavenly government.

214. The government in the Celestial Kingdom is called Justice, because all who are there are in the good of love from the Lord to the Lord. . . The government there belongs to the Lord alone; He Himself leads them, and teaches them in the Things of life. . . 216, III.

215. The government in the Spiritual Kingdom is called Judgment, because they are in spiritual good. . . These also are led by the Lord, but mediately, and therefore these have governors, fewer or more according to the need of the Society. They have laws also, according to which they live together. 216, III.

217. In the Spiritual Kingdom there are various forms of government; in one Society not the like as in another: the variety is according to the ministries which the Societies discharge. Ex.

—². But all the forms of government therein agree in regarding the public good as the end, and, in this, the good of each person. . .

219. There is a like government, in the least form, in every house. . . the master loves the servants, and the servants love the master. . .

220. There are governments also in the Hells; for, unless there were governments, they would not be kept in bonds; but the governments there are opposite to the governments in the Heavens: they are all those of the love of self. . . The more malignant ones are set over them, whom they obey, from fear.

228. The will and understanding of man are ruled by the Lord through Angels and Spirits, and (therefore) so also are all things of the body. . .

—². The Angels have been permitted to move my steps, actions, tongue, and speech, as they willed, by influx into my will and thought. . . They said, afterwards, that every man is so ruled. . .

296. The reason man is ruled by the Lord through Spirits, is that he is not in the order of Heaven. . . If man were born into good, which is according to the order of Heaven, he would not be ruled by the Lord through Spirits, but through order itself, thus through general influx. Through this influx, man is ruled as to those things which proceed from his thought and will into act, thus as to his speech and actions. . . Through general influx from the Spiritual World, animals also are ruled, because these are in the order of their life.

468. Civil truths relate to. . . the things which belong to government in kingdoms. . .

536. That the Lord rules the Hells. Chapter.

— . As (Heaven and Hell) are two opposites. . . from the action and reaction of which results an equilibrium in which all things subsist. . . it is necessary that He who rules the one should also rule the other. . .

543. The Hells are ruled in general through a general afflux of the Divine good and truth from the Heavens, through which the general conatus flowing forth from the Hells is restrained and coerced; and also through a special afflux from each Heaven, and from each Society of Heaven.

— . The Hells are ruled, in particular, through Angels, to whom it is given to look into the Hells, and to suppress the insanities and disturbances there; and sometimes Angels are sent there, and, present, they regulate these disturbances.

— . In general, however, all who are in the Hells, are ruled through fears, some through those implanted in the world; but, as these fears do not suffice. . . they are ruled through the fears of penalties. . . For the most part, the more malignant are set over the others, who prevail by craft and arts, and can hold the rest in compliance and servitude through penalties and their terrors: these governors dare not go beyond the prescribed limits.

592. Unless the Lord ruled both the Heavens and the Hells, there would be no equilibrium, and (thus) no Heaven nor Hell. . .

—^e. (Thus) unless the Lord alone ruled both the Heavens and the Hells, there would be no salvation for anyone.

N. 81³. That the Lord rules the world through the evil, by leading them through their Own loves. . . Refs.

311. On Ecclesiastical and Civil Government. Gen. art. (See also A. 10789, et seq.)

P. 1. That the Divine Providence is the government of the Divine love and Divine wisdom of the Lord. Gen.art.

2. The conservation of the state of Things after creation is the government of the Lord; and this is now to be treated of.

162². The Lord is in the whole angelic Heaven as the soul is in a man . . . But, as it is from the appearance that the Lord rules the universal Heaven, and, through this, the world, from the Sun . . . it is allowable for those who are not in wisdom itself to think that the Lord rules each and all things from His Sun, and also that He rules the world through the angelic Heaven . . . But the Angels of the higher Heavens . . . think from the Truth, which is, that the Lord rules the universe from the angelic Heaven, which is, from Himself.

163². (Thus) the Lord rules the universal angelic Heaven as one man . . . The Lord Himself rules that Heaven, as the soul rules its body.

250³. Therefore the Lord rules the impious at heart, who are in dignities, through the reputation of their name . . .

285^e. As this Divine is with man in his veriest singulars, it follows that the Lord rules the veriest singulars, with both an evil and a good man; and the government of the Lord is what is called the Divine Providence.

299. That the Lord rules Hell through opposites, and that the evil who are in the world He rules in Hell as to their interiors, and not as to their exteriors. Gen.art. 307. —². —³.

R. 31. 'The Almighty' = . . . Him who rules all things from primes through ultimates.

M. 7⁴. In the Heavens, as on earth . . . there are also governments and forms of governments, and therefore there are greater and less Powers and dignities . . .

79⁷. They whispered, Beware not to say anything against . . . the form of government, etc.

T. 50. (Love) relinquishes all the government of justice to its judgment; (thus) it relinquishes all the government of love to its wisdom.

73³. The government (of the Divine omnipotence), which is called Providence, is according to order . . .

412². There are in the world higher and lower offices, in subordination according to their more, or less, universal government over societies; and the king is he whose government is the most universal . . .

814. As the Germans are under despotic government in particular in each dukedom, they are not in the freedom of speaking and writing like the Dutch and British, and when this freedom is restrained, freedom of thought (is) also. Ex. . . For this reason, that notable nation devotes itself little to matters of judgment, but rather to those of memory . . . 815, Ex.

D. 635. On the fact that man is ruled by Spirits and Angels.

638². (This) is licence, or the government of cupidities . . . While they are under the government of evil

Spirits . . . they suppose that they are ruled by themselves.

1076. On universal and singular government.

1743. When those rule man who constitute the cuticle. Des.

1890. That Spirits are urgent to rule man. Ex.

2008. From an almost similar general (sphere) others are ruled differently . . .

2020. That the Lord rules each and all things. Ex. 2062. 2065. 2101. 2163. 4819^e.

2239. (Thus) if the Lord did not rule the universe, the universal world of spirits, and therefore the human race, would perish in a moment . . .

2321. That the Lord rules the universe. Gen.art. 3054.

2423. That the Lord rules the universe from interior things, in order. Ex.

2432. That the Lord alone rules the thoughts of man, his prudence, etc. (From experience.)

2664. On government in the other life.

2713. On the government of the universe: that the universe is not ruled by the Lord according to the fancies of men. Ex.

2951. With what difficulty man can be persuaded that he is ruled through Spirits. Ex.

3177. That the Lord rules the human race in the veriest singulars.

3410. Supposing that thus they can rule all things.

3663. That thus they might be easily ruled . . .

— . They are ruled by . . . Sirens. . . By such are the pontiffs ruled, when they become pontiffs.

3845. These (interior evil Spirits) are ruled by the Lord through Heaven, but not by interior influx . . . but by external bonds . . .

3846. But the Angels who are at the head, are ruled by the Lord immediately, and also through Heaven, and in fact by interior things . . . (and) they rule the Subjects (of the interior evil Spirits who are above the head).

4426. In the other life, there is another form of government, another government, other laws, etc.

4441. On a simple idea about the Lord: that He rules all things.

4467. He there ruled others incognito.

5513²³. But at this day no such (patriarchal) government, or commonwealth, can be instituted, because there is seated in everyone, by heredity, the love of reigning over others for the sake of his own honour and reputation . . .

5629. A comparison between the government with (the English), and that with the Italians, at this day: the governments are entirely opposite, and consequently their geniuses are different. Ex. J.(Post.)5.

5781. In the Lower Earth there are both good and evil Spirits, but as it were stratified, in order that the evil may be ruled by the good: as in the corporeal system of fibres from the cerebrum adjoined to fibres from the cerebellum . . . that the voluntary things may be ruled from the involuntary ones ; for the good always rules the evil with man.

[D.] 5786. (On those who desire to rule others there.) 5790a. 5791a.

D. Min. 4803. Those seem to be infested by bears, who have confirmed themselves in the principles of doctrinals . . . and desire to rule other minds according to them, and thus to exercise command . . .

E. 176. 'He shall rule them with an iron rod' (Rev. ii. 27) . . . 'To rule' = to chastise . . .

405¹⁴. 'Israel' = spiritual good, which is the truth from (celestial) good, through which is government ; for the Lord has all government in the Divine truth which proceeds from the Divine good.

683³. The Lord rules not only those who receive Divine celestial and spiritual things from Him, but also those who do not receive them, like all in Hell ; but still it cannot be said that the Lord's Kingdom is there, because they are utterly unwilling to be ruled from the Divine which proceeds . . . but still the Lord rules them, not as subjects and citizens of His Kingdom, but as rebels, by keeping them in bonds to prevent them from doing evil to each other, and especially to those who are of His Kingdom.

735². In Societies of Angels there are moderators set over the rest ; but there are no Archangels under whose obedience they stand from anything arbitrary : no such government exists in the Heavens ; for all there at heart acknowledge no other above themselves except the Lord alone. III.

946. The laws of government in the spiritual Kingdom are called 'judgments ;' but the laws of government in the celestial Kingdom are called 'justice ;' for (the former) laws of government are from Divine truth, whereas (the latter) laws of government are from Divine good. III.

J. (Post.) 133. Certain from Tartary (said) that they are devoid of the love of reigning, and that they give the government to those who say that they can rule and govern ; but if they cannot, they are rejected and fined.

Rule. Regula.

A. 7236^e. A general rule in the world . . .

7270^e. Evident from a rule not unknown to the learned in the world.

7291^e. It is a general rule, that . . . D. 3972.

7343². Evident from the general rule, that . . . 9407².

D. 798. A universal rule concerning the life after death, that . . .

2329. According to the rule, that . . .

2605. There has this day been confirmed from Heaven this rule, that . . .

3662. Regular, occurs. 3666.

3891^e. Why does he want to reason when he does not know the rules ?

4264. Man thinks and speaks . . . according to all the most arcane analytical rules . . . yet thinks not a whit about rules . . . The case is the same with charity. Ex.

Ruler. Dynastes.

E. 783³. Hence those in falsities are called 'rulers,' etc.

Ruler of Feast. Architridinus.

E. 376²⁹. 'The ruler of the feast' (John ii.) = those in the Knowledges of truth.

Ruling love. Amor dominans.

See REIGNING LOVE.

A. 6690². The disposition of scientific truths in the Natural is varied with every man ; for the ruling love induces a form on them. This love is in the middle, and ordines every thing round itself, placing nearest itself the things which are most in agreement, and the rest in order, according to their agreement. Examp.

7081. The ruling or reigning love, that is, the love of the Thing which one has for the end, is what makes a man. This love has subordinated to it many particular and singular loves, which are derivations, and appear under another aspect, but still the ruling love is in each of them, and directs them, and, through them, as through mediate ends, regards and pursues its own end, which is the primary and ultimate end of all ; and this both directly and indirectly.

7648^e. The ruling affection is the veriest form of the spirit, and all the rest of its affections apply themselves into it.

8794^e. Everyone (there) comes among those with whom he had communicated in the life of the body : his ruling love determines this ; for this is what constitutes everyone's sphere of life, and it extends itself according to its quality and quantity.

N. 54. The ruling love is like the king and head (of all the other loves.)

58. Everyone has all his delight and happiness from his ruling love, and according to it . . .

62. That all the interiors . . . are disposed into a form according to the ruling love. Refs.

Rumah. Reumah.

A. 2868. 'His concubine, and her name was Rumah' (Gen. xxii. 24) = the Gentiles who are in idolatrous worship and in good.

—^e. That her name is called Rumah, involves the quality thereof ; here, exaltation, which is meant by 'Rumah.'

Ruminate. Ruminare.

Ruminatory. Ruminatorius.

A. 5135². When man . . . begins to think for himself, he . . . as it were ruminates the things he had before learned and believed . . .

P. 233⁸. The memory of man may be compared to the ruminatory stomach of some animals . . . and, so long as the food is there, it is not in their bodies, but outside of them ; but, as they take it out thence, and devour it, it becomes of their life . . . Spiritual food is Knowledges, and in proportion as man takes these out (of his memory) by thinking of, and as it were ruminating them, his spiritual mind is nourished. T.173.

M. 326³. He said, I have meditated and ruminated about this distinction . . .

T. 146². While they are preaching and teaching, they hang (the bag into which they have thrown faith and charity) before them as a kind of ruminatory stomach, from which they take out and disgorge such things as they know will serve for food to their hearers.

D. 2018. Upon which he ruminates . . .

E. 242⁴. Illustrated by comparison with the stomachs possessed by birds and animals of the earth, which are called ruminatory stomachs . . . The memory corresponds to these stomachs . . . into this, man first collects spiritual foods, which are Knowledges, and afterwards takes them out by as it were ruminating, that is, thinking and willing, them . . . 290^e.

Rumour. Rumor.

A. 335². 'Wars and rumours of wars' (Matt.xxiv.6). (= discussions and disputes about truths, and the consequent falsifications. E.734-24.)

Run. Currere.

Run about. Discurrere.

Running round, A. Circumcursio.

A. 3088. 'The servant ran to meet her' (Gen.xxiv.17) = exploration from Divine good. Ex.

3127. 'The girl ran' (ver.28) = the propensity or animus of that affection.

3131. 'Laban ran out unto the man' (ver.29) = the animus of the affection of good towards truth.

3804. 'She ran and told her father' (Gen.xxix.12) = acknowledgment through interior truths. 'To run and tell' = the affection of making known; here, from acknowledgment.

3806. 'He ran to meet him' (ver.13) = agreement.

4050³. Those of this province run about hither and thither.

4350. 'Esau ran to meet him' (Gen.xxxiii.4) = the influx of Divine natural good.

5135¹⁰. 'To run with a thief' (Ps.l.18) = to alienate truth from one's self through falsity.

R. 437. 'To run to war' (Rev.ix.9) = the ardour of fighting. E.558.

D. 436. On punishment by a running round.

E. 652⁵. 'To run about' (Nahum ii.4) = to go astray.

Rupture. Hernia. M.253.

Rush. See BULRUSH.

Rush. Ruere.

Rush in, Rush on. Irruere.

A. 587^e. The whole human race is evil, and, from himself, everyone rushes to Hell.

868. An Angel . . . from himself, would rush to Hell.

929^e. If a man were left to himself, he would rush into all evil and falsity.

987². If not hindered by external bonds . . . a man would rush into every crime . . . 4459³. 4793².

1011. When these bonds are relaxed . . . in the other life, he rushes into the most cruel and obscene things, thus into self-condemnation.

1080^e. When the exterior sphere is taken away from them, they rush into all wickedness.

1241. Lest the whole Church should go to ruin . . .

1322². As soon as this common [bond] is dissolved, they rush upon one another.

2335². Man, from himself, rushes to Hell . . . 2406².

4167². Without this government, they would rush into all nefarious and insane things; and, moreover, when without the bonds of this plane, they do rush into them.

4274^e. Otherwise they would rush headlong into the loves of self and of the world.

4952². They would have invaded everyone's life and property . . .

5002². Whenever the external bonds are relaxed, one (infernal) rushes to destroy another. 6832⁹. H.559.

5008². Would rush into every crime, unless withheld by fear. 5990².

5717². Such slew whole armies . . . for they rushed into the chambers of the brain . . .

7032². They would rush to destroy all who do not favour them.

8206². Are in a perpetual endeavour to rush in; but they cannot rush in, because the Lord's presence wards them off.

8227. They rush on them, and, in proportion as they rush on them, they cast themselves into punishments . . .

10122⁴. Such a man . . . if left in freedom, rushes into evils . . . In the other life . . . those who have not received a new will . . . rush into evils of every kind.

10201⁴. In the same proportion he rushes into falsities.

10745. They (then) rush into every crime, according to their interiors . . .

N. 71. In proportion as external bonds are removed . . . the love of self rushes . . .

J. 10². Man, without the influx of Heaven, thus without the Divine government . . . would rush headlong into all nefarious things, one against another.

71. When left to their internals, they rush into nefarious things according to their lusts . . . C.J.28.

M. 78². They rush on all who are spiritual.

T. 588. Man, when left to the freedom of his will, would rush into nefarious things.

D. 2560. When I was remitted, I at once rushed into evil.

2737^e. If relaxed, everyone would rush into evil enormously, in fact, into all destruction.

E. 107⁴. If their external bonds were remitted . . . they would rush into every crime . . .

Rush away. Proripere.

H. 488. They shun the light of Heaven, and rush away into caverns.

Russia. Russia.

Russian. Russus, Russicus.

D. 2701. As it were in Russia.

5043. The Swedish nation is the worst in Europe, except the Italian and the Russian.

5452. Concerning the Russian nation.—They dwell in the south-eastern corner, quite in the corner, beneath the earth there, and are in greater obscurity than the rest. I was conveyed thither, and saw, first, an unclean place, where there were many who were consulting about the affairs of their kingdom, and, in fact, about freedom such as there is elsewhere; but they did not appear, being in complete concealment. I afterwards heard one saying that they feared the Czar, and that the Czar was everywhere.

5453. I was afterwards carried down to others of that nation who were better; these laboured continually: and afterwards to others, who also laboured. I then saw many leading women in procession. . . This was Heaven to them.

5454. They do not care for religion. . . If there is a God, there is. . . In a word, they are entirely empty; and care not for truths.

5455. Within, they are more wicked than the rest, and operate very strongly by phantasies, but are not skilled in magic; for those learn magic who are in Knowledges.

5456. Those of them who were better were carried down in a great multitude towards the north, beyond the Babylonish desert tract there, and were sent into a plain, at a great distance towards the north, which tract is terminated in forests, where are those who are as it were wild animals. They enter there into caverns . . . and scarcely ever appear upon the plain. The tract of these there is on the northern side, towards the eastern corner.

5949. Concerning the Russians.—They believe that the Czar has Power over their lives and possessions: that they are not theirs, but his. . . (This) I contradicted (telling them) that they should give sufficient for the protection of the kingdom, and no more; and that their life is from the Lord; and that they are under the law, and so is the Czar. It was shown that when the Czar wants to have their all, they give it; for they worship him as their god. They do not inflict any pain on the right temple, and on the teeth, as Christians do. . . They are devoid of the love of self; but yet are thieves; and, in order to acquire money, dare and do all things.

5963. Concerning the Russians.—These are not so wicked as the rest in Christendom: they are in great subordination, believing that all things they possess are not theirs but the Czar's . . . and therefore he takes from them whatever he pleases, and they confess what they have, and give; in like manner when the officials say that it is his command. In the other life they retain this belief, and live in this subordination; but with this difference, that all they have is not the Czar's, but God's, being given them in order that they may employ it rightly for uses; and therefore . . . if they are evil, part or all will be taken from them according to the abuse . . . They are sometimes told—when they set their hearts too much on money—that they should give something to the poor . . . which they do; but, after some time, they receive more; for they are blessed. They are sometimes told that they must go out of their places, because they are evil; but they then think, and say that there are evil ones with them, and that these make them evil: they therefore seek for them, and, when they find them, they cast them forth into the sea, whence they never return; and thus . . . they remain in their possessions . . .

—^e. The Russians have sometimes been with me, and the evil from Christendom were warded off by them. They were in obedience, and modest, so that they were much better than those. The reason is that they can be kept in good affection, from the fact that they are in obedience and subordination, and do not aspire to high things, and thus can be withheld from the proprium of the will; but they are but little intellectual.

6027. See MARRIAGE, here.

De Verbo 16. The Word is but little read in Russia; but still is believed to be holy.

Rust. Aerugo.

See MILDEW.

P. 217⁶. 'Where rust and moth doth corrupt.'

Rustic. Rusticus.

Rustically. Rustice.

A. 2759. There rose up from the Lower Earth as it were a volume . . . They were rustics and other simple ones. Des. D. 3531.

3647. Some from the nautical and rustic crowd . . . appeared to have so little life that I thought it impossible for them to receive eternal life like other Spirits, being like machines, little animated; but the Angels had care for them solicitously, and through the faculty which they possessed as men, insinuated into them the life of good and truth . . .

3749². Such as rustics are wont to make a sound with.

H. 364². I have spoken with those who were of the rustic race . . . who had believed in God, and had done what is just and right in their works. Being in the affection of knowing truth, they asked what charity and what faith is . . . They understood well, and rejoiced, and said that they had not comprehended that to believe was anything else than to live.

M. 6³. Many of those (who personated old men) were of the rustic race, who . . . having some wealth, were proud . . .

86^e. Can be seen even by a rustic.

T. 503^e. You have spoken from rustic things rustically.

D. 4655. Concerning the Heaven of rustics.

J. (Post.) 230. A low rustic may be together with eminent persons (in that prison).

5 M. 4. A husbandman is there surrounded with rustic things—rusticalia.

Rye. See SPELT.

Sabbath. Sabbatum.

Sabbatical. Sabbatharius.

A. 84. As combat then ceases, the Lord is said to 'rest from all His work;' and therefore the seventh day was sanctified, and was called 'the Sabbath,' from 'rest.'

85. That the celestial man is . . . the Sabbath, is evident from the fact that the Lord Himself is the Sabbath, and therefore He says, 'The Son of Man is Lord also of the Sabbath' (Mark ii. 28), which words involve that the Lord is . . . the Sabbath itself. His Kingdom . . . is called, from Him, a Sabbath, or eternal peace and rest.

—². The Most Ancient Church . . . was more a Sabbath of the Lord than those which followed. Every . . . inmost Church . . . is also a Sabbath. So is every regenerated man, when he becomes celestial, because he is a likeness of the Lord. . . These things were represented . . . by the seventh day, which was the Sabbath, in the Jewish Church.

—³. The 'rest' of the celestial man, is described by 'the Sabbath,' in Is. lviii. 13, 14.

86. When the spiritual man . . . is beginning to become celestial, it is the eve of the Sabbath; which was represented . . . by the hallowing of the Sabbath from the evening. The celestial man is the morning. 480.

87. That the celestial man is the Sabbath, or rest, is also because combat ceases when he becomes celestial.

666. The Sabbath is called 'an eternal covenant,' because it = the Lord Himself; and man regenerated celestial by Him.

883^e. As the evening = the twilight before the morning . . . the Sabbaths and feasts commenced from the evening.

1038⁷. The Sabbath called 'a sign of a covenant.' Ill. and Ex.

1618. Worship, in the internal sense, means all conjunction through love and charity . . . The Angels are in such worship, and therefore with them there is a perpetual Sabbath. Hence, also, 'the Sabbath,' in the internal sense, = the Lord's Kingdom.

1798³. Another precept is, 'Thou shalt observe the Sabbath.' He who is in the life of love, or in charity, observes the Sabbath holily; for nothing is sweeter to him than to worship the Lord, and to glorify Him every day.

1988. 'Seven' = what is holy, from the fact that the celestial man is the seventh day, or Sabbath; thus the rest of the Lord. Refs.

2252³. 'Fifty' = what is full . . . and therefore the feast of seven Sabbaths was on the fiftieth day (Lev. xxiii. 15).

3755². 'Pray that your flight be not . . . on the Sabbath' (Matt. xxiv. 20) . . . 'Flight on the Sabbath' = removal from (the good of love and of innocence) in a state of too much heat: heat is a holy external, when within are the love of self and of the world.

7893. The reason it was so severely forbidden that they should do any work on the feasts and Sabbaths, was that they might then be in a full representative state. Ex.

8490. The seventh day, or Sabbath, = the conjunction of good and truth.

8494. See REST, here.

8495. 'A holy Sabbath to-morrow to Jehovah' (Ex. xvi. 23) = the conjunction of good and truth to eternity. 8504.

— . The reason the Sabbath was accounted most holy, was because, in the supreme sense, it represented the union of the Divine and the Divine Human, in the Lord; and, in the relative sense, the conjunction of the Divine Human with the human race. Hence the Sabbath was most holy. And, as it represented these things, it also represented Heaven as to the conjunction of good and truth . . . And, as this conjunction is effected by the Lord alone . . . and, as it is effected in a state of peace, it was most severely forbidden that man should then do any work (Ex. xxxi. 14; Num. xv. 32-37). Therefore, also, the commandment concerning the Sabbath is the third . . . and follows immediately after the two which relate to the holy worship of Jehovah; and the Sabbath is called 'an eternal covenant.'

—². 'Those who sanctify the Sabbath' (Is. lvi. 2-7) = those who are in conjunction with the Lord.

—³. (From Is. lviii. 13, 14) it is evident what was represented by not doing any work on the Sabbath day, namely, that they should not do anything from the proprium, but from the Lord . . .

—⁴. By 'work on the Sabbath' (Jer. xvii. 24) is signified everything which is from the proprium.

—⁵. That the Sabbath was representative of the Lord's conjunction with the human race, is evident in Ezek. xx. 12; Ex. xxxi. 13.

— . Therefore, also, it was forbidden to 'kindle a fire on the Sabbath day' (Ex. xxv. 3) because . . . 'to kindle a fire' = that which is of life from proprium.

—^e. (Thus it is) that the Lord is 'Lord of the Sabbath;' and (this also is) why many cures were performed by Him on the Sabbath days. Ill.

8504. 'The Sabbath' = the conjunction of good and truth. 8507. 8515.

8510. He who acts from the good which is of charity, is in the order of Heaven. Des. When this state exists, it is the Sabbath; for then the Lord has rest. This state comes forth when good is conjoined with truth. . . This is the state of Heaven; hence Heaven itself is called a Sabbath, or it is said that in Heaven there is a perpetual Sabbath.

8539². After regeneration, man is led by the Lord through good . . . and (this) posterior state is signified by the seventh day, or Sabbath.

8856. 'Remember' = what is perpetual in the thought; 'the Sabbath day' (Ex. xx. 8) = in the supreme sense, the union of the Divine and the Divine Human of the Lord; in the internal sense, the conjunction of the Divine Human in the Heavens, thus Heaven, and thus the marriage of good and truth there. As such things are signified by 'the Sabbath,' in the representative Church it was most holy, and was to be perpetually thought of, that is, was to reign universally. Ex.

[A.]8889. 'But the seventh day is a Sabbath to Jehovah thy God' (ver. 10)=good implanted, and thus a marriage; for 'a Sabbath'=the heavenly marriage; thus good implanted through truths, and afterwards formed by them; for the good with man is not spiritual good until it has been formed by truths; and, when it has been formed, there is then the heavenly marriage; for this is the conjunction of good and truth, and is Heaven itself with man. Hence, too, it is, that 'the seventh day'=a holy state.

9086². The Sabbath day was most holy in that Church, because it=the heavenly marriage . . . Hence cures were performed by the Lord on the Sabbath day . . .

9274². The second state of man, is to be led through good: in this state the order is inverted, and he is led by the Lord; consequently he is then in Heaven, and thus in the tranquillity of peace. This state is what is meant by 'the seventh day,' 'the seventh year,' 'the jubilee,' that is, by 'the Sabbath,' and 'the Sabbath of Sabbaths.' Ill.

9295². 'The morrow of the Sabbath' (Lev.xxiii.11)=what is holy of the conjunction of good and truth.

9296³. 'On the first day a Sabbath, and on the eighth day a Sabbath' (ver. 39)=the conjunction of truth with good, and, reciprocally, of good with truth. . . The reason the eighth day was also called a Sabbath, is that by 'eight' is signified the beginning of a new state.

9741⁶. The six days which precede the Sabbath=the former Church even to its end, and a new instauration: the Sabbath=the conjunction of good and truth, thus the Church.

10326. (Ex.xxxi.) then treats of the conjunction of the Lord with that Church through representatives; which is signified by 'the Sabbath which was to be kept holily.'

10356. 'My Sabbaths ye shall keep' (Ex.xxxi.13)=holy thought constantly about the union of the Divine Itself with the Human of the Lord. 'Sabbaths,' in the supreme sense, =the union of the Divine Itself with the Divine Human, in the Lord; and, in the relative sense, the conjunction of the Lord as to the Divine Human with Heaven; also the conjunction of Heaven with the Church; and, in general, with those . . . with whom the Church is, the conjunction of good and truth. (E.449⁵.) . . . Hence, by 'to keep the Sabbaths of Jehovah' is signified to think holily and constantly about (all these conjunctions). As these are the very essentials of the Church . . . the Sabbath, which signifies them, is mentioned last, and also again and again to the end of the chapter.

10357. 'It is a sign between Me and you' (id.)=that this is the principal thing by which those who are of the Church are known in Heaven. Ex.

10360. 'And ye shall keep the Sabbath' (ver. 14)=that the Divine Human of the Lord is to be worshipped. . . 'The Sabbath,' in the supreme sense, =the union of the Divine which is called 'the Father,' with the Divine Human which is called 'the Son,' thus the Divine Human in which is this union. The reason why this union is signified by 'the Sabbath.' Ex.

—². (The Lord's) state when this union had been effected, is signified by 'the seventh day,' which is called 'the Sabbath,' from 'Rest,' because the Lord then had rest. Hence by 'the Sabbath' is signified also the conjunction of the Lord with Heaven, with the Church, with an Angel of Heaven, and with a man of the Church . . . because all who are to come into Heaven must first be in combats . . . and when these have been separated, they enter Heaven, and are conjoined with the Lord, and then they have rest. In like manner men in the world.

—³. The reason the conjunction of good and truth is also signified by 'the Sabbath,' is that while man is in combats, he is in truths; but when truths have been conjoined with good . . . he has rest; in like manner as was the case with the Lord . . .

—⁵. He, therefore, who knows that by 'the Sabbath,' in the supreme sense, is meant the union of the Divine Itself in the Divine Human of the Lord, may know what are signified by the things so often said in the Word about 'the Sabbath.' Ill.

—⁵. 'The Sabbath' (Is.lviii.)=a state of the conjunction of man with the Lord; thus a state when man is led by the Lord, and not by himself, which state is when he is in good. For to be led by the Lord, and not by himself, is to 'turn away the foot from the Sabbath; not to do his own wills; not to do his own ways; not to find his own desire; and not to speak a word.' (Further ex.) And that the Sabbath is the Divine Human in which is the union, is signified by the Sabbath being called 'a day of holiness,' and 'deliciousnesses to the Holy of Jehovah.' 10362.

—⁷. As by 'the Sabbath' was signified the Lord as to the Divine Human, in which is the union, it was commanded that 'the breads of faces should be ordained on the table every Sabbath' (Lev.xxiv.8); [for] the Lord as to the Divine Human is meant by 'bread.' Therefore, also, the Lord . . . calls Himself 'the Lord of the Sabbath.'

—⁸. And therefore the Lord, when . . . He had united His Human to the Divine Itself, abrogated the Sabbath as to representative worship . . . and made the Sabbath day a day of instruction in the doctrine of faith and love. Ill.

10362. 'To profane the Sabbath,' or to do work on the Sabbath day (Ex.xxxi.14)=to be led by self, and not by the Lord; thus by one's own loves. Ill. and Ex. 10364.

10367. 'On the seventh day is the Sabbath of a Sabbath' (ver. 15)=a state of good, which is the end propter quem; thus when man becomes a Church and enters Heaven. Ex.

—⁵. From these things it may now be evident what is the conjunction of good and truth, which is signified by 'the Sabbath.'

—⁶. That this conjunction is called 'the Sabbath,' is from rest. Ex.

—⁷. That 'the Sabbath,' in the supreme sense, =the Divine Human of the Lord. Ex.

10730. 'The sons of Israel shall keep the Sabbath to do the Sabbath in their generations' (ver. 16) = that the essential itself of the Church is the acknowledgment of the union of the Divine Itself in the Human of the Lord; and that this must be in each and all things of worship. Ex.

10728. These things are said of the Sabbath, which was the primary representative of all; thus the primary truth to which all have reference.

10730. 'In the seventh day there shall be holiness to you, the Sabbath of a Sabbath to Jehovah' (Ex. xxxv. 2) = the second state of the regeneration of man, when he has conjunction with the Lord; and, in the supreme sense, it = the union of the Human of the Lord with the Divine Itself. Ex.

—². By 'the Sabbath,' in the proper sense, is signified rest and peace, because, when the Lord had united His Human to the Divine Itself, He had peace . . . and so also had the Angels, and men on earth.

—^e. Hence the Sabbath, with the Israelitish nation, was the principal representative.

10731. 'Everyone that does work in it shall die' (id.) = spiritual death to those who are led by themselves and their own loves, and not by the Lord. Ex.

10732. 'Ye shall not kindle a fire in all your habitations on the Sabbath day' (ver. 3) = that nothing of the proprium's love, which is that of self and of the world, ought to appear in each and all things of man which are from the Lord. Ex.

H. 287^e. As 'peace' = the union of the Divine Itself and the Divine Human . . . and the conjunction of the Lord with Heaven and the Church . . . the Sabbath was instituted in remembrance of these things, and was named from 'rest,' or 'peace,' and was the most holy representative of the Church; and on this account the Lord called Himself 'the Lord of the Sabbath.' E. 365^e.

R. 10². 'Seven' = all . . . Hence the Sabbath was instituted on the seventh day, and the seventh year was called the Sabbatical year.

M. 9. Because the life of Heaven, from the worship of God, is called a perpetual Sabbath. (Wrong idea about this, shown by experiment.)

23. At daybreak (in Heaven) they heard a proclamation, This day is the Sabbath. The Angel said, It is for the worship of God, which returns at stated times, and is proclaimed by the priests. It is performed in our places of worship, and lasts about two hours. Des. 24.

T. 185². (A Sabbath day in the frigid zone there.)

301. The Third Commandment: 'Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy; six days shalt thou labour and do all thy work; but the seventh day is a Sabbath to Jehovah thy God.' Gen. art.

— In the natural sense . . . this means that the six days are for man and his labours, and the seventh for the Lord, and for man's rest from Him. 'Sabbath,' in the Original Language, means 'rest.' The Sabbath, with the sons of Israel, was the holiness of holinesses, because it represented the Lord . . . The seventh day represented His victory over the Hells, and thus rest. And as that day was representative of the close of the Lord's whole work of redemption, it was holiness itself.

But, when the Lord came . . . and the representation of Him ceased, that day was made a day of instruction in Divine things, and thus also a day of rest from labours, and of meditation in such things as belong to salvation and eternal life, and also a day of love towards the neighbour. Ill.

302. This commandment (concerning the Sabbath) in the spiritual sense, = the reformation and regeneration of man by the Lord: the six days of labour, combat against the flesh and its concupiscences . . . and the seventh day, his conjunction with the Lord . . .

303. In the celestial sense, by this commandment (concerning the Sabbath) is meant conjunction with the Lord, and, then, peace, because protection from Hell . . .

E. 54. 'The Lord's day' is the Sabbath day; and, in the Ancient Churches, which were representative, the Sabbath was the most holy thing of worship, because it signified the union of the Divine and the Human in the Lord, and thence also the conjunction of His Divine Human with Heaven. Refs. But, after the Lord had united His Divine with His Human, this holy representative ceased, and that day was made a day of instruction. Hence was the revelation made to John 'on the Lord's day' . . .

208⁷. 'The Sabbath day' (Jer. xvii. 24) = the conjunction of the Lord's Divine Human with Heaven and the Church. 449⁵.

223⁸. By the sanctification of the Sabbath (id.) is signified a holy acknowledgment of the Lord's Divine Human and of His conjunction with Heaven and the Church.

391¹⁶. By 'the Sabbath' is signified the conjunction of the Lord with Heaven and the Church, thus with those who are there, and therefore by 'to keep the Sabbath' (Is. lvi. 6) is signified to be in conjunction with the Lord.

422⁹. That introduction (into Heaven and the Church) is effected through the worship of the Lord from the good of love, is signified by, 'on the Sabbath day (this gate) shall be opened' (Ezek. xlvi. 1).

537⁶. 'To pull an ass or an ox out of a pit on the Sabbath day' (Luke xiv. 5) = that if anyone falls into falsity and evil, he must be brought out of it through the truth which is taught by the Lord on the Sabbath day . . . 'To be drawn out on the Sabbath day' = to be instructed, and so to be brought out; for 'the Sabbath day' here = the Lord as to instruction and doctrine; and therefore He calls Himself 'the Lord of the Sabbath.'

701²⁷. The reason the Sabbath was called 'the covenant of an age' was that the Sabbath, in the supreme sense, = the union of the Divine with the Human, in the Lord; and, in the relative sense, the conjunction of the Lord with Heaven and the Church; and, in the universal sense, the conjunction of good and truth . . . 'Rest on the Sabbath day' thence signified the state of this union and of this conjunction . . . Refs.

965². On the Third Commandment of the Decalogue, which is, that they were to keep holy the Sabbath. Gen. art. The third and fourth commandments contain things which are to be done . . . the rest contain things not to be done . . . The reason is that the keeping holy of the rest of the commandments depends upon these two ; for 'the Sabbath'=the union of the Divine Itself and the Divine Human in the Lord, also His conjunction with Heaven and the Church, and thence the marriage of good and truth with the man who is being regenerated . . . As 'the Sabbath'=these things, it was the principal representative of all the things of worship in the Israelitish Church. III. Ex. and Refs.

[E. 965]⁴. The latter state (of a man who is being regenerated) is the one which is signified by rest on the Sabbath day. Refs.

—e. That the Sabbath day is not at this day representative ; but is a day of instruction. Ref.

Sabeans. Sabaci, Sebaei.

A. 1164⁵. 'The merchandise of Cush and of the Sabeans' (Is. xlv. 14)=the Knowledges of spiritual things, which will be of service to those who acknowledge the Lord ; for these have all knowledge. 1171². 2588¹⁴.

E. 654²⁰. 'The labour of Egypt and the merchandise of Cush and of the Sabeans'=the delight of natural love from the acquisition of the Knowledges of truth and good : the Knowledges themselves are signified by 'the Sabeans,' who are called 'men of length,' from good.

Sabtah. Sabtha.

A. 1170. See SEBA, here.

Sabteca. Sabtheka.

A. 1170. See SEBA, here.

Saccharine. Saccharinus.

I. 12³. Like the saccharine juice in the grape . . .

T. 324². Like poison in saccharine juices and pastes.

Sack. Saccus.

A. 5489. '(To restore the silver) of each into his sack' (Gen. xlii. 25)=wherever there was a receptacle in the Natural. 'A sack'=a receptacle. . . 'A sack,' here, in special, =what is scientific ; for, as a sack is a receptacle of corn, so is what is scientific a receptacle of good.

5494. 'A sack'=a receptacle in the Natural ; and to 'open it'=to observe.

5497. 'A sack'=a receptacle. 5531, Ex.

5529. 'Sacks'=receptacles in the Natural, thus the Natural.

6311. (Spirits seen) carrying sacks in which were raw materials. D. 4627¹².

S. 26³. Great purses which appeared like sacks, containing money. Seen and Ex. T. 277. D. 3605a.

T. 22^e. Carry the things of religion as it were in a sack on their backs. T. 146.

D. 3562. On the other side of Gehenna was seen a great sack, out of which when opened there flew a dense and black smoke . . . which indicates such hatred.

4045. A great [piece] of silver conveyed into the pocket of my garment. Ex.

4056. He was put into the veil, as into a sack.

4361. He was wrapped in a cloth . . . like a pyramidal sack . . . which was then whirled about. Des.

6008. (These Spirits) sometimes put industrious Spirits into a state of somnolence, which they call putting them into a sack.

Sackcloth. Saccus.

A. 4293³. They could go in sackcloth . . .

4779. '(Jacob) put sackcloth upon his loins' (Gen. xxxvii. 34)=mourning for good destroyed. Ex. and III.

—⁸. As to put on sackcloth, and roll themselves in ashes, represented mourning over evils and falsities, they represented also humiliation, and likewise repentance. Ex.

7804. The Spirits who instruct . . . appear as if clothed in sackcloth.

R. 332. 'The sun became black as sackcloth of hair-pilosus' (Rev. vi. 12)=all the good of love adulterated. Ex.

492. 'Clothed in sackcloth' (Rev. xi. 3)=mourning on account of the non-reception of truth. By 'to be clothed with sackcloth,' is signified mourning on account of truth being devastated in the Church ; for 'garments'=truths ; and therefore 'to be clothed in sackcloth,' which is not a garment, =mourning that there is no truth ; and, where there is no truth, there is no Church. Ex.

—². That mourning on account of truth being devastated in the Church, was represented by 'putting on sackcloth.' III.

E. 240³. 'To put off the sackcloth from off the loins' (Is. xx. 2)=to reveal filthy loves. Ex.

617²⁶. The affection of truth (lamented for) is signified by 'sackcloth.'

637. 'Clothed in sackcloth'=in mourning on account of the non-reception of Divine good and Divine truth. Ex.

—³. Their rending the garments and putting on sackcloth, signified mourning on account of the desolation of truth and good in the Church, and on account of the non-reception of them. . . The putting on of sackcloth, signified mourning on account of the deprivation of good and truth, and the consequent vastation of the Church. III.

Sackcloth of hair. Saccus cilicinus.

E. 401. 'The sun became black as sackcloth of hair' (Rev. vi. 12)=that all the good of love had disappeared. . . . It is said 'as sackcloth of hair-cilicinus seu pilosus,' because there is meant the Sensuous of man, which is the lowest of the Natural, and is thence round the interior things, and induces thick darkness on them. Ex. (See also SACKCLOTH, at R. 632.)

Sacrament. Sacramentum.

See BAPTISM, and HOLY SUPPER.

A. 1175. If anyone lives where there are . . . no sacraments . . .

—². They place the essential of worship in this : that . . . they observe the sacraments . . . Those who make worship from love and charity essential, in like manner . . . observe the sacraments . . . but do not place the essential of worship in them.

3046. A sacred obligation. Sig.

3452. 'Let there be an oath between us' (Gen.xxvi. 28)=the consensus of doctrinals with the literal sense of the Word.

3670². The sacrament of baptism and the Holy Supper (is equally holy when performed by an evil man).

C. J. 85. As (the Quakers) have rejeeted the two sacraments . . . no Society is formed of them in the Spiritual World . . .

R. Pref. VII. On the seven sacraments (of the Roman Catholics). Extracts.

776³. That baptism is holy and a sacrament . . .

T. 177². (In their) use of the sacraments . . . there is a Trinity of gods.

667. That without a Knowledge of the spiritual sense . . . no one can know what the two sacraments . . . involve and effect. Gen.art.

—². Yet these two sacraments, regarded in the spiritual sense, are the most holy things of worship.

669. The two sacraments . . . are, in the Christian Church, like two jewels in a king's sceptre: if the uses of them are not known, they are like two forms of ebony on a staff. (Other comparisons made.)

700^e. It has pleased the Lord to reveal the spiritual sense . . . in order that this New Church may come into the use and enjoyment itself of the sacraments . . . which takes place when they see with their . . . understandings the holiness which lies hidden therein, and apply this to themselves through the means which the Lord has taught in His Word.

701. The holiness of this sacrament . . . without the opening of the spiritual sense . . . cannot be spiritually acknowledged. (Des. by comparisons.)

721. These two sacraments . . . are like two gates to eternal life. Ex.

D. 3677. Otherwise, . . . the sacraments, etc., effect nothing: they rather confirm the man . . . that his sins are remitted . . . and so he returns to his previous filth.

3768^e. This (communion of wives) is their sacrament of the Supper.

3777. As (the Quakers) reject the sacraments . . .

6059. On the sacrament of the Supper . . . among the Papists. (The separation of the wine from the bread, has not been done on account of a lack of wine) but it was from the Divine Providence . . . because good is not good if separated from truth.

E. 250⁴. (The Exhortation before) the sacrament of the Supper. (Quoted in English.)

794⁴. If a man . . . go to the sacrament of the Supper frequently every year . . . and his internal has not been purified from (evils), it is a hypocritical work.

Inv. 41^e. That which the Lord teaches about the sacraments.

45. Hence it is that the two sacraments are correspondences of spiritual things with natural ones. Hence their power. 59^e.

Sacrarium. Sacrarium.

S. 72. A copy of the Word . . . is stored up with every greater Society . . . in its sacrarium. 73. R.669².

E. 1067³. Divine truth . . . lies hidden in the sense of the letter as in its sacrarium.

Sacred. See HOLY.

Sacrifice. Litamen, Litare.

R. 458. 'To adore demons'=to sacrifice to these concupiscences from the love of them.

T. 151^e. After he has sacrificed to his pleasures . . .

434^e. Sacrifices offered to the delights of the body.

E. 827⁷. Doctrinals sacrificing to these loves.

Sacrifice. Sacrificium, Sacrificare.

Sacrificatio. Sacrificatio.

See under BURNT-OFFERING, DRINK-OFFERING, and MEAT-OFFERING.

A. 1. The Lord revealed to the apostles a few things: as that the sacrifices=the Lord.

349. All the sacrifices are called 'gifts.' 4262².

353. All these (celestial things) are represented by the 'fats' in the sacrifices.

921². Moses sacrificed (Ex.xxiv.4-6) before the sacrifices were instituted. . . Thus Divine worship by means of altars and sacrifices was not a new thing instituted with the Jews.

—^e. As the worship of the Lord was performed principally by burnt-offerings and sacrifices.

923^e. 'Burnt-offerings'=worship from love; 'sacrifices,' worship from the derivative faith.

1010^e. Sacrifices elsewhere than upon the altar . . . represented profanation; for to sacrifice was a holy thing, but was profane in the camp or outside of it.

1083². The externals of the Ancient Church were sacrifices, libations, and many other things, all of which . . . related to the Lord.

— . In the Christian Church . . . other externals have succeeded, to wit, in place of sacrifices and such things, symbolical things, from which the Lord is in like manner regarded.

1128. Such was the posterity of the Ancient Church when it began to perish, especially among those who instituted worship by sacrifices and images.

1167². 'To sacrifice sons and daughters to the idols of Canaan' (Ps.cvi.38)=to profane the things of faith and charity by external worship separated from internal.

1241². (In the Church) instituted by Eber . . . they began to prefer above other rites, sacrifices, which in the true Ancient Church were unknown, except with some of the descendants of Ham and Canaan, who were idolaters, and with whom they were permitted so that they might not sacrifice their sons and daughters.

1343. The worship (of the nation named from Eber had for its chief essentials) that they called their God Jehovah, and had sacrifices. —⁵,III.

—⁶. That there were sacrifices with the idolaters in Canaan. III.

[A.]1361². (Signification of the animals and birds which were sacrificed.) 1823. 2179. 2180². 3519³. E.650²⁵.

1832⁴. Why in the sacrifices the birds were not divided. Ex.

1850³. Representatives, to wit, sacrifices and similar rites, then ceased.

2165². See BREAD, here. —³.

2177. (The burnt-offerings and sacrifices represented) the celestial things of the Lord's Kingdom . . . (The meat-offering and drink-offering represented) like things as the sacrifices, but in an inferior degree; thus the things of the Spiritual Church, and of the External Church.

—². With (the Gentiles) also there were sacrifices, etc., derived by them from the Ancient, and especially from the Hebrew Church; which, however, because the internal things which they represented were separated from them, were merely idolatrous; as they became with the Jews also. There are heavenly arcana in every rite, especially in the sacrifices and all their particulars.

2180². Sacrifices (and burnt-offerings) were the chief representatives of the worship of the Hebrew, and, afterwards, of the Jewish Church. 2807².

—⁴. As to the sacrifices in general—they were indeed commanded . . . to the Israelitish people: but the Most Ancient Church knew nothing about sacrifices; (neither did) the Ancient Church: this Church was in representatives, but not in sacrifices; but they were first instituted in the following Church, called Hebrew, and thence emanated to the gentiles, and also to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and so to the descendants of these.

— . That the descendants of Jacob used sacrifices before they were commanded upon Mount Sinai. Ill. 4449³.

—⁵. The command came, because the worship of sacrifices had been turned into idolatry; and they could not be removed from this worship, because they placed the principal holiness in it. For what has once been implanted from infancy, as holy, . . . the Lord does not break, but bends it. This is the reason why it was prescribed that they should be instituted as we read in the books of Moses. E.391².

—⁶. That sacrifices were by no means acceptable to Jehovah, and were only permitted and tolerated for the aforesaid reason. Ill.

—⁷. (From these passages) it is evident that the sacrifices were not commanded, but permitted; and also that nothing else was regarded in the sacrifices than what was internal . . . and therefore the Lord abrogated them. Ill.

2341³. The feasts of the sanctified things, when they sacrificed, represented the dwelling of the Lord together with man in the holy things of love which were signified by the sacrifices.

2405⁶. That nothing of the paschal lamb, or of the sanctified things of the sacrifices, should be left until the morning, signified that when the Lord came, sacrifices would cease.

2818². (Origin of the custom among the Gentiles of sacrificing their children.)

—^e. Lest the sons of Jacob should rush into this abomination, it was permitted to institute burnt-offerings and sacrifices. Refs.

2830. It is known that the burnt-offerings and sacrifices . . . signified the Lord's Divine Human; but the burnt-offerings and sacrifices from (the various animals all signified different things); in general, they signified the Divine celestial things, Divine spiritual things, and Divine natural things, which pertain to the Lord; and thence they signified the celestial, spiritual, and natural things which are from Him in His Kingdom; consequently in everyone who is a kingdom of the Lord; which may also be evident from the Holy Supper, which succeeded the burnt-offerings and sacrifices. Ex. . . Hence it is evident that the burnt-offerings and sacrifices involved celestial worship from love to the Lord, and spiritual worship from charity towards the neighbour, and thence from faith in the Lord.

3400². The separation (of guilt) through good from the Lord, is redemption, which was represented by the expiation made by the priest, when they offered the sacrifice of guilt. Ill.

3880⁸. The sacrifices of confession, in the Jewish Church, were thanksgivings, and were called, in a universal sense, eucharistic and retributory sacrifices, which were of two kinds, of confession, and votive. That the sacrifices of confession involved the Celestial of love. Ill.

—⁹. But the votive sacrifices, which were the other kind of eucharistic ones, in the external sense, = recompense; in the internal sense, the will that the Lord should provide; in the supreme, a state of Providence. Ill.

4005². (The male and female animals in the sacrifices and burnt-offerings.) Ex.

4210. 'Jacob sacrificed a sacrifice in the mount' (Gen. xxxi. 54) = worship from the good of love. 'A sacrifice' = worship . . . because the sacrifices and burnt-offerings were the principal things of all the worship in the Hebrew Church. They sacrificed on mountains, because mountains = things which are high . . . 5943⁵. 6435¹¹.

4211. 'Bread' = love and charity; nor did the sacrifices formerly signify anything else, and therefore they were called, in one word, 'bread;' and they ate from the flesh of the sacrifices, in order that the heavenly feast might be represented, that is, conjunction through the good which is of love and charity. That is what is now signified by the Holy Supper; for this has succeeded in place of the sacrifices, and of the feasts from the sanctified things.

4449³. (Thus) the sacrifices commanded to the people of Jacob were not new . . . but, as they had become idolatrous . . . they were recalled, in order that the representative worship of the (second) Ancient Church might be restored.

4680³. The Hebrew Church . . . differed from the Ancient Church, in that it placed the essential of external worship in sacrifices . . .

4843². The worship of evil, is signified by 'to sacrifice upon the heads of the mountains' (Hos. iv. 13).

4874². In the Hebrew Church there were many new worships, as burnt-offerings and sacrifices, which had been unknown in the Ancient Church.

5943⁵. Therefore, by the burnt-offerings and sacrifices in general, is signified worship; and by the things which were sacrificed, and also by the whole process of sacrifice, is signified the quality of the worship.

—⁶. (These things) affected the Angels while the sacrifice was being made, and were therefore commanded, in order that Heaven might be near to man through the representatives and correspondences.

5998. 'He sacrificed sacrifices to the God of his father Isaac' (Gen.xlvi.1)=worship thence, and influx from the Divine Intellectual. Ex.

6762. 'To sacrifice the sacrifices of justice' (Deut. xxxiii. 19)=worship from charity. (=worship from the truths which are from good. E.445⁵).

6905. 'We will sacrifice to Jehovah our God' (Ex.iii. 18)=thus the worship of the Lord. 'To sacrifice'=worship in general; for, in the Hebrew Church, and afterwards with the descendants of Jacob, all worship related to sacrifices. Ex. 7726.

6917². See ALTAR, here.

7119^e. As the Egyptians were averse to sacrifices.

7393. 'I will let the people go, and they shall sacrifice to Jehovah' (Ex.viii.8)=that (the infesters) will leave those of the Spiritual Church, in order that they may worship their God. 7458. 7460.

7454. 'We shall sacrifice the abomination of the Egyptians to Jehovah our God' (ver.26)=. . . that they would worship God with a worship which would be abominated by those who are in falsities from what is infernal contrary to that worship, which would infest it. Ex.

7726. 'Thou shalt give into our hand sacrifices and burnt-offerings' (Ex.x.25)=that they shall leave all things through which worship shall be performed. Ex.

7857². The sacrifices and burnt-offerings=the worship of the Lord from faith and love; the sacrifices, from faith; and the burnt-offerings, from love.

7938. 'The sacrifice of the Passover is this to Jehovah' (Ex.xii.27)=the worship of the Lord on account of deliverance.

8080⁴. The law concerning the redemption of the first-born of man, was delivered to prevent them from sacrificing their sons, which had come into use with the Gentiles . . . That the first-born were to be sanctified to God, was from the statutes of the Ancient Church; but by sanctification they began to mean sacrifice. The descendants of Jacob inclined to do the like . . . and, to prevent their doing so, the Levites were taken in place of the first-born.

8088. 'I sacrifice to Jehovah every opening of the womb, being males' (Ex.xiii.15)=that the faith of charity . . . is to be ascribed to the Lord . . . 'To sacrifice,' here, =the like as 'to sanctify' (ver.2).

8680. The reason 'burnt-offerings'=the things of the good of love; and 'sacrifices,' the things of the truth of faith, is (that) in the burnt offerings all things were consumed, both the flesh and the blood; but in the sacrifices the flesh was eaten. III.

8682. For, when the sacrifices took place the flesh of them was eaten near the altar.

9192. 'He that sacrifices to gods' (Ex.xxii.20)=the worship of falsities which are from evil. Ex.

9194. 'To sacrifice,' here, 'to Jehovah alone'=worship.

9229⁸. 'A gift,' or sacrifice, (Matt.xxiii.19)=the things of faith and charity which are from the Lord. Refs.

9298. 'Thou shalt not sacrifice the blood of My sacrifice upon what is leavened' (Ex.xxiii.18)=that the worship of the Lord from the truths of the Church is not to be commingled with falsities from evil. Ex.

9416². In general (the Lord's conjunction with man) was signified by all the sacrifices, of which part was offered upon the altar, and part was given to the people to eat.

9959³. All the expiation which was effected through washings, burnt-offerings, and sacrifices, represented the purification of the heart from evils and falsities, thus regeneration.

9990. By the sacrifices was signified purification from evils and falsities, or expiation; here, purification from the evils and falsities which are in the external man; whereas purification in the internal man is signified by the burnt-offering from a ram. (Continued under BURNT-OFFERING.)

10021. For by this sacrifice, and by the sacrifices in general, (purification, and the reception of good and truth from the Divine) are signified.

10022. By the sacrifices are signified purification, the implantation of truth and good, and their conjunction. Refs.

—². As sacrifices and burnt-offerings are treated of in this chapter, it shall be said what, in general, was represented by them. By the burnt-offerings and sacrifices, in general, was represented purification from evils and falsities; and, as purification was represented, so also was the implantation of good and truth from the Lord, and also their conjunction. For, when man has been purified from evils and falsities, which is effected by the removal of them, good and truth from the Lord inflow; and, in proportion as they inflow in this state, they are implanted, and conjoined . . . Hence may be evident what, in general, was represented by the burnt-offerings and the sacrifices. But what was represented in special, is evident from the various species of animals which were sacrificed.

—³. As these three things . . . were represented by the sacrifices and burnt-offerings, therefore by them is also signified all worship from the truth of faith and good of love; for all worship has for its end that man may be purified from evils and falsities, consequently that goods and truths from the Lord may be implanted in him, and he be thus regenerated, which is effected through the conjunction of them.

10042³. As to what concerns sacrifices and burnt-offerings from beasts, it is to be known, I. That representative worship with the Jewish . . . nation consisted chiefly in sacrifices and burnt-offerings. Ex.

—⁵. II. That the sacrifices and burnt-offerings, in general, signified the regeneration of man through the truths of faith and the goods of love to the Lord from the Lord; and, in the supreme sense, the glorification of the Lord's Human. Ex.

[A. 10042]7. III. That everything of worship, according to its various things, was represented by the sacrifices and burnt-offerings . . . and that on this account various kinds of animals were commanded. Ex.

—8. By the sacrifices and burnt-offerings from a bullock, ox, and he-goat, was represented the purification and regeneration of the natural man; from a ram, she-goat, and kid, that of the spiritual man; and from a lamb, a she-lamb, and a she-kid, that of the celestial man.

10053. See BURNTOFFERING, here.

10097. (The peace-making sacrifices. See PEACE, here.)

101057. 'All they that sacrifice' (Zech. xiv. 21) = those in Divine worship.

101329. 'A lamb . . . for a burnt-offering, and the son of a dove, or a turtle-dove, for a sacrifice' (Lev. xii. 6) = . . . purification from evils through the good of innocence.

10134. 'To do a lamb,' that is, to sacrifice it (Ex. xxix. 39) = the removal of evils through the good of innocence from the Lord. Ex.

1013711. The sacrifice of sin and of guilt = purification and expiation from evils and the derivative falsities.

102839. The sacrifices represented goods which are from the Lord.

10424. 'They adored (the golden calf), and sacrificed to it' (Ex. xxxii. 8) = that they worship it as good itself and as truth itself. . . 'To sacrifice' = to worship as truth itself. Ex.

106033. How the sense of the letter was changed on account of that nation: altars, burnt-offerings, sacrifices, meat-offerings, and libations were commanded for the sake of that nation, and therefore are mentioned in the Word . . . as the most holy things of worship, when yet they had been conceded to them only because they were first instituted by Eber, but were quite unknown in the representative Ancient Church. Refs.

10649. '(Lest) they sacrifice to their gods' (Ex. xxxiv. 15) = thus worship from falsities. 10650.

N. 221. (Refs. to passages on the subject of sacrifices.) E. 3299.

S. 101. That worship by sacrifices had been known before. III.

P. 3282. In (the Hebrew Church) worship by sacrifices was first instituted.

R. 277. Worship by sacrifices was worship from celestial good; and by incense, from spiritual good.

E. 141. From the sacrifices, especially the eucharistic ones, some things were offered upon the altar, and some were eaten in the holy place: the sacrifices themselves signified worship from love and faith; and the eatings, the appropriations of this good.

32419. 'They sacrifice in gardens' (Is. lxx. 3). Here

'to sacrifice' = what is opposite, namely, worship from the falsities of doctrine which is from Own intelligence . . .

—20. Worship from the love of self, is signified by 'to sacrifice upon the tops of the mountains' (Hos. iv. 13).

32910. 'A great sacrifice upon the mountains of Israel (Ezek. xxxix. 17) = all things of their worship. 3552. 38830.

3912. The reason no altar, etc., appear in Heaven at this day, is that sacrifices were never known to the Ancients, and were entirely abolished after the Lord's Advent; for they had been begun by Eber . . .

—31. The reason (the Egyptians abominated the Hebrews on account of sacrifices) was that the Ancient Church . . . was ignorant of sacrifices, and regarded them, when they had been instituted by Eber, as abominations, in that they wanted to please God by the slaughter of various animals . . .

4447. 'Burnt-offering' = worship from the good of love; 'meat-offering' = worship from the good of charity; and 'sacrifice' (Jer. xxxiii. 18) = worship from the truths of faith.

4495. 'Burnt-offering' = worship from celestial good; 'sacrifice' (Jer. xvii. 26) = worship from spiritual good; 'meat-offering and frankincense' = good, and the truth of good, in the natural man. 4913.

5863. The sacrifices which took place at the door of the Tent, represented the worship of the Lord, because the altar and tabernacle represented Heaven, where the Lord is present; but the sacrifices which took place elsewhere, represented a worship where the Lord was not present, thus the worship of demons.

61723. Hence it was granted to the sons of Israel to eat of the sanctified things, or of the sacrifices; for by the sacrifices were signified Divine celestial and spiritual things, and the eating of them, the appropriation of these things. III. 6305.

65047. 'A great sacrifice' = the worship of the Lord from faith and love; for this was represented by the sacrifices in general.

6549. 'They shall make a sacrifice, and a meat-offering' (Is. xix. 21) = the worship of the Lord according to His precepts from the Word, thus from the truths of doctrine, and from the good of love.

68440. 'In the midst of the week he shall make the sacrifice and the meat-offering to cease' (Dan. ix. 27) = that still interiorly with those who are reformed, there is no truth and good in worship: 'the sacrifice' = worship from truths; and 'the meat-offering,' worship from goods.

72511. 'To sacrifice' = to worship.

10823. Divine good from the Lord, was signified by the flesh of the sacrifices, which was eaten by Aaron, his sons, and those who were sacrificing, and by others who were clean. III.

J. (Post.) 337. (Why nothing of the sacrifices was left over.)

Sacrificed to idols. Idolothya.

See under IDOL.

Sacrilege. Sacrosanctus.

A. 392. That to do violence to faith thus separated, would be sacrilege. Sig. and Ex. 395. 432. 433. —^e.

395. 'Seven' = something sacred.

482. 'Three' and 'seven,' in the Word, = what is holy, or what is sacred, as to the states . . .

E. 375¹⁶. As the kings were called 'Jehovah's anointed,' it was sacrilege to injure them. Ex. —.

Sacrilege. Sacrilegium.

M. 76⁵. See SACRIMONY, here.

D. 4623^e. It is sacrilege (there) to supplicate anyone not to do evil, because this is to supplicate the devil.

Sacrimony. Sacrimonium.

M. 76⁵. Marriage with one wife we call sacrimony; but, with more than one, sacrilege. Ex.

Sad. Maestus.

Sadness. Maestitia.

A. 6500. Sadness. Sig. and Ex.

— . The sadness here signified by 'to weep,' does not mean sadness on account of death in the internal sense as in the external; but on account of the good of the Spiritual Church, in that it cannot be elevated above what is natural.

H. 160. When the Angels are in the last state, which is when they are in their proprium, they begin to become sad. I have spoken with them when they were in this state, and have seen their sadness . . .

W. 188². The Angels are in sadness on account of the darkness on the Earth.

D. 5123. In those (spheres of consociations) in which they cannot be, they fall into sadness.

5126. I heard one (on that mountain of the celestials) saying that he was in a sad state. Ex. 5127.

E. 650¹¹. Sadness—maeror, occurs.

Sad. Tristis.

Sadness. Tristitia.

A. 762. In place of spiritual temptations, there (now) are sadnesses, etc.

1393. Sad and troublesome things are removed in an instant, (and then) the Angels inflow and communicate their happiness.

2363. To those in evil . . . the bliss in the affection of good and truth appears . . . as something sad . . .

—². Those in this state perceive . . . how sad . . . is the life of those who are in the evils of the love of self and of the world.

3477². The narrow way at first appeared sad and dark.

3881. When the spiritual life is mentioned, or the spiritual sense, it is (then) like something sad . . . 5006².

3909^e. This zeal, in the internal form, is not anger . . . but a certain sadness . . .

4054^e. A sad lot awaits (these pleasure-seekers). Des.

4215². Sadness produces weeping . . .

4805^e. This thought (that others are not the elect) when communicated, induces what is sad, which, according to a law of order (there) returns to those (who entertain it).

5034^e. This sadness is turned into grief, and the grief into anger.

5084⁸. (The idea) that joy in Heaven is to serve others by doing them good, without any reflection of merit or recompense, comes to them as what is sad.

5099. That they were in a sad state. Sig.

5102. From what affection was the sadness. Sig. and Ex.

5384. Those in the province of the kidneys, etc., chastise (by) inducing things undelightful and sad.

6202. Spirits sent out of some infernal Society into the sphere of a man's life, speak together about things which are adverse to the man, whence there generally inflows what is . . . undelightful, sad, or anxious, with much variety.

6408². The delight from these loves is . . . after death turned into what is sad and shocking.

6507. Sadness of the scientifics of the Church. Sig. and Ex.

— . The sadness here means sadness, because the good of the Church had left the scientifics . . .

6736. 'The child (Moses) wept' = sadness.

8247. It is these cares (about worldly things) which induce on minds, and thence on faces, what is sad and anxious.

H. 299. Whence there comes to man the interior sadness which is called melancholy. (Fully ex. under ANXIETY, here.)

358. Man has no need to go with a sad and moaning face . . .

360. Those who have renounced the world . . . in the other life are sad in genius and life. 528². 535.

P. 137. Compulsory worship is . . . sad, because there is no delight of Heaven in it.

M. 155^e. When (celibates) feel the sphere of conjugal love there, they become sad and anxious.

356^e. The novitiate Spirits went away sad.

533. The Angels . . . perceived a sadness in me. (Its cause ex.)

D. 231. That from sadnesses (there,) come the Delights of intelligence. Ex.

2673. This fire . . . in a spiritual idea, appeared as what is sad: such is the life in them. Ex.

4644. When the Angels with man are in such things, and speak together about them . . . and when such things are not in the faith and affection of the man, there inflows sadness, and inquietude . . . although he may then be thinking about something quite different.

5540. I was in a sad state, but did not know the cause. (See HEAVENLY DOCTRINE, here.)

5570. See MELANCHOLY, here.

5942. I perceived an influx now of sadness, now of cheerfulness . . . and I perceived there were Spirits . . .

who had explored what things are a source of sadness to me, and had spoken together about them . . .

D. Min. 4716^e. (Societies of friendship cause) a sadness in me. Ex.

E. 654⁴⁹. 'To be sad' (Is.xix.8)=to toil at.

—⁷⁰. 'Thou shalt be filled with drunkenness and sadness' (Ezek.xxiii.33)=insanity in spiritual things, and aversion.

660. All sadness and grief of mind proceed from an assault on the love.

863². 'Her virgins are sad' (Lam.i.4) = that the affections of truth have been destroyed.

Saddle. Insternere.

A. 2781. 'He saddled the ass' (Gen.xxii.3)=the natural man which he prepared.

Sadducees. Sadducaeii.

A. 1886, Pref.³. The Sadducees (Matt.xxii.23) openly denied the resurrection; but did better than those at this day, who say they do not deny it, but deny it at heart.

Safe. Salvus. D.4155. D.Min.4771.

Safe. Tutus. See under PROTECT.

Safety. Incolunitas.

A. 5713. Heaven . . . holds all things together in connection and safety. D.4585.

Sagacity. Sagacitas.

Sagacious. Sagax.

A. 4624. Hence to be keen-scented, is predicated of those who by divination come near the point, and also of those who perceive.

7454². Which sphere is smelt by keen-scented beasts.

W. 403². Consult those sagacious in anatomy.

M. 163. The things of the rational wisdom of men are called . . . in special, sagacity, etc.

315³. Five (youths) were found who excelled in sagacity.

380^e. He spoke . . . with a new sagacity of cleverness.

T. 699. The most sagacious men of the Church have taught . . .

D. 2181. Occurs. 2252.

Sail. See under EXPAND and VEIL.

Sailor. Nauta.

Nautical. Nauticus.

A. 3647. See RUSIC, here.

6385². These Knowledges are described by 'sailors,' etc.

9755⁸. 'Ships'=doctrinals from the Word: hence it is evident what 'pilot,' 'sailor,' and 'sea,' signify.

R. 767. 'The ship-masters and sailors' (Rev. xviii. 17)=those who contribute, who are called laymen.

786. 'Every ship-master'=the highest of them—emperors, kings, etc. 'Everyone employed upon ships'

= those in various functions in a higher or lower degree. 'Sailors' (id.)=the lowest, called the common people. Ex.

M. 328. Than a ship's-nauticus-rope can enter the eye of a needle.

D. 3125. They turn everything that is spoken of into what is filthy, as is the custom of many of the common people—sailors and the like. (Their correspondence.)

E. 514². Those who teach, lead, and rule, are meant by 'the sailors,' etc. (Ezek.xxvii.).

538¹⁰. 'The sailors' (id.)=the ministers; 'the ship-masters,' the leaders who lead and teach.

1170. 'The sailors' (Rev.xviii.)=those in knowledge (as distinguished from those in intelligence, and those in wisdom. Compare R. 786, above.)

C. 171. On charity in sailors. Sailors become charities if they look to the Lord, and shun evils as sins, while they do their work sincerely, justly, and faithfully . . . They do goods in no other way, continuously, than in their own work which is enjoined upon them, which is that of a seaman-nauticum. . . Then they do not fear death; because if they die, they die in the Lord, and come into Heaven. . . I exhort sailors, also, . . . to approach the Lord, and pray to Him; because there is no other God of sky, land, and sea.

Saint. See under HOLY.

Saint Paul's Cathedral. Templum Pauli. D.3520.

Sake of, For the. Propter.

See under CAUSE, HONOUR, GAIN, REPUTATION, etc.

A. 2515^e. For the sake of his reputation.

4167². To do what is just and fair for the sake of self and the world; that is, for the sake of his own honour or reputation, and for the sake of the wealth and possessions of the world; and also for the sake of the fear of the law.

4459⁶. Regards health of mind . . . not for the sake of reputation, honours, gain; but for the sake of the life after death.

5145⁵. For these had done good for the sake of good, or for the sake of truth; and had done what is just for the sake of what is just, or fair; not for the sake of gain, honour, and the like.

5340^e. Perceives delight in doing well to the neighbour for the sake of truth and good; and not for the sake of self or the world.

5365⁴. Mutual love without an end for the sake of self and for the sake of the world.

5432⁴. For these have not the affection of truth for the sake of truth, still less for the sake of life; but for the sake of gain . . .

—⁵. But those who are in the affection of truth for the sake of truth, and for the sake of life, consequently, for the sake of the Lord's Kingdom . . .

5433². Those who learn truths not for the sake of truth, nor for the sake of life, but for the sake of gain . . .

5639². The Spiritual . . . is the affection of good and truth for the sake of good and truth, and not for the sake of self . . .

5695². (The Angels have no latent thought of) wishing well to the neighbour for the sake of themselves.

5807^e. Celestial love is quite averse to doing well to anyone for the sake of self; but it does it for the sake of the good which is with the other . . . consequently for the sake of the Lord Himself . . .

5820. He who had learned the truths of faith, not for the sake of willing and doing them . . . but only for the sake of knowing, and teaching them, for the sake of causa—honour and gain . . .

6222³. This illustration (is) in such as long to know truths, not for the sake of reputation and glory, but for the sake of life and use. 10551².

6666². If they do good, it is for the sake of self.

6938. Everyone may provide (wealth and honours) for himself; not for the sake of self, but for the sake of the neighbour. He who does so for the sake of self, provides evilly for himself; but he who does so for the sake of the neighbour, provides well for himself.

7293⁵. For the sake of the lust of exercising command, and of gain, they confess (truths and goods of faith).

7392³. All perceive delight (there) in doing evil, who (here) do not do well to the neighbour for the sake of the neighbour, nor to their country for the sake of their country, nor to the Church for the sake of the Church; but for the sake of self: consequently, who do not do truth and good for the sake of truth and good.

8034. Faith (is to want to know what is true and good), not for the sake of doctrine as the end, but for the sake of life.

8977². Spiritual good is . . . not for the sake of gain, nor for the sake of honour; but for the sake of the Church, and for the sake of the salvation of the neighbour . . . Those in the externals of the Church (are) affected with truths of faith principally for the sake of self, and secondarily for the sake of the Church.

8987². Those who act from affection . . . do truth for the sake of truth, and good for the sake of good, and thus exercise charity for the sake of the neighbour. (Otherwise those who act from obedience. Ex.)

9210². They who do truth for the sake of truth, do it for the sake of the Lord . . . To do truth for the sake of truth, is to do good.

9449. Signs that sins have been remitted.—They perceive delight in worshipping God for the sake of God, in serving the neighbour for the sake of the neighbour; thus in doing good for the sake of good, and in believing truth for the sake of truth.

10309. And to act for the sake of self is to act for the sake of gain, honours, and reputation, as ends; and not for the sake of the salvation of the neighbour and the Lord's glory.

10336. All who will and do good and truth for the sake of good and truth. Sig. and Ex.

—^e. To love the neighbour for the sake of self, is [to do so] for the sake of gain and honour as the ends.

10355⁶. See TRUTH, here. 10683². —³. —⁴. —⁵.

10718. Those who have Heaven in them . . . perceive delight in doing well to others, not for the sake of self and the world, but for the sake of good and truth . . . (The contrary state ex.)

H. 68^e. That (hypocrites) do well, is for the sake of self; if it is for the sake of others, it is that they may be seen, and is thus also for the sake of self.

557. Heavenly love is to love uses for the sake of uses, or goods for the sake of goods . . .

P. 215⁶. The love of dignities and riches for the sake of themselves; and for the sake of uses. Ex.

217³. A judge is for the sake of justice; a magistrate for the sake of the common weal; and a king for the sake of the kingdom; and not the reverse.

220⁸. (He then thinks) that the commonwealth is for the sake of him, and not he for the sake of (it) . . . Like a king who thinks that the kingdom and all its men are for the sake of him; and not he for the sake of (them).

R. 294³. They prayed to God the Father for the sake of the Son.

E. 102. 'For My name's sake hast laboured' (Rev. ii. 3) = the acknowledgment of the Lord . . . Ex. and Ill.

—⁷. See GOOD, here.

114. For the sake of the Son. —³. 8054, Ex.

600⁴. That good is to be done . . . for the sake of good; and not for the sake of self and the world. Sig.

624⁶. To receive truth for the sake of truth. Sig.

825⁴. When man abstains from evils . . . for the sake of civil laws . . .

1124. 'On account of this' (Rev. xviii. 8) = because they are such.

Salaciousness. Salacia.

M. 459. Those who on account of salaciousness cannot moderate their lusts. Gen. art. D. 6054.

Salary. Census. T. 441².

Salary. Salarium. T. 430.

Salem. Schalem.

A. 1726. 'King of Salem' (Gen. xiv. 18) = a state of peace as to interior or rational things. 'Salem,' in the Original, means 'peace,' and also 'perfection;' thus a state of peace, and a state of perfection. A state of peace is the state of the Lord's Kingdom. Ex. . . This is meant by 'Salem,' in . . . 'His tabernacle is in Salem' (Ps. lxxvi. 2).

—^e. When man is in the combats of temptations, the Lord gifts him by turns with a state of peace, and he is thus refreshed: this state of peace is here signified by 'Salem.'

4393. 'Jacob came to Salem, the city of Shechem' (Gen. xxxiii. 18) = the interior truths of faith which are of tranquillity. 'Salem' = the tranquillity of peace. Ill.

[A.4393]. 'Salem,' in the Original, means 'tranquillity,' and 'perfection.'

4430³. The city of Salem was afterwards called 'Shechem.' Ill. . . And also 'Sychar' (John iv.5,6). By this city is signified interior truth. Ill.

E. 357²⁹. 'In Salem is the tabernacle of Jehovah, and His habitation in Zion' (Ps.lxxvi.2)=His Spiritual Kingdom and His Celestial Kingdom; 'Salem'=the Spiritual Kingdom where is genuine truth.

365³⁸. (In Ps.lxxvi.) Jerusalem is called 'Salem,' because by 'Salem' is signified peace, from which Jerusalem also was named. The reason it was so named, is that 'peace'=all the above-named things. 'The tabernacle of God' which was there=the Church from them.

Saliva. Saliva.

Salivary. Salivalis.

A. 1103^e. Humours which in themselves are excrementitious, as are many of the salivary ones (are of use).

5386. (Use of) the salivary glands.

D. 1742². (The food) softened by the purer saliva alone.

— (The evils and phantasies of man) imitate the circle made by the salivary water in digestion . . .

2129^e. As is known from the salivary menstua.

3096. On those who relate to the salivas of the mouth . . . They serve to instruct others, as the saliva does to digest the things received into the mouth.

3124. Some (of the excretions) serve for uses, as the salivas.

3566. (Conversation at meals) opens the salivary ducts . . .

Salt. Sal.

Saltiness. Salsugo, Salsedo.

Salt. Salsus, Salsuginosus.

Salt, To. Salire.

A. 1666². 'This is the sea of salt' (Gen.xiv.3)=the foul things of the Falsities . . . For 'the sea of salt'=the Falsities which break forth from cupidities.

—³. As cupidities and Falsities are what vastate man . . . vastation is described by 'saltiness.' Ill.

—⁴. 'Sulphur'=the vastation of good; 'salt,' the vastation of truth; for parching and saltiness destroy the land and its products, as cupidity destroys goods, and Falsity truths.

—^e. As salt signified vastation, it was customary to sow with salt the cities they destroyed, that they might not be rebuilt (Judg.ix.45). 2455^e.

— 'Salt,' in the contrary sense, =that which gives fertility, and as it were savour.

2313. The fourth state (of that Church), that the affection of truth perishes, is Lot's wife becoming 'a statue of salt.'

2455. 'She became a statue of salt' (Gen.xix.26)=that all the good of truth was vastated. 10300⁷.

—². 'Salt,' in the genuine sense, =the affection of truth; in the opposite, the vastation of the affection of truth, that is, of the good in truth. Ill.

—³. 'A salt land' (Jer.xvii.6)=truths vastated.

2702¹⁵. 'To be given to salt' (Ezek.xlvii.11)=to be vastated.

3718. Love, without holy fear, is like something unsalted—insulsum, or like food in which there is no salt, and thence no savour; but love with fear is like food salted, which however does not taste of salt.

4430^e. The extinction of interior truth is signified by Abimelech destroying that city and sowing it with salt (Judg.ix.45).

9207². 'Ye are the salt of the earth' (Matt.v.13)=the truth of the Church, which longs for good. 'Salt which has lost its savour—infatuatum'=truth devoid of a longing for good (which is good for nothing).

—³. 'To be salted with fire' (Mark ix.49)=the longing of good for truth; and 'to be salted with salt'=the longing of truth for good; 'salt which has lost its saltiness—insulsum'=truth devoid of a longing for good; 'to have salt in themselves'=this longing.

—⁴. 'Salt is good' (Luke xiv.34)=truth longing for good; 'salt which has lost its savour—infatuatum'=truth devoid of a longing for good (which is fit for no use whatever, good or evil). Those in such truth are those called 'lukewarm.'

—⁵. 'Every . . . meat-offering shall be salted with salt; neither shalt thou cease to make the salt of the covenant of thy God upon thy meat-offering; upon every gift thou shalt offer salt' (Lev.ii.13)=that the longing of truth for good, and of good for truth, was [to be] in all worship; hence, too, that salt is called 'the salt of the covenant of God; for 'covenant'=conjunction; and 'salt'=the longing for conjunction. 10137^e. 10300⁴. E.701²⁸.

—⁷. The reason 'salt'=the longing of truth, is that salt renders the land fertile, and makes food savoury; and because in salt there is what is fiery and at the same time conjunctive, as in truth there is an ardent longing for good, and at the same time what is conjunctive.

— 'A statue of salt'=the disjunction (of good) from truth; for 'salt,' in the opposite sense, =the destruction and vastation of truth. Ill. —⁶.

9325⁹. 'Salt' (2 Kings ii.19–21)=the longing of truth for good. (Thus the healing of the waters by Elisha with salt)=the amendment of the Church and of the life through the Word, and through the derivative longing of truth for good. 10300^e.

10300. 'Salted' (Ex.xxx.35)=the longing of truth for good; (for) 'salt'=the longing of the love of truth for good; hence 'what is salted'=that in which there is this longing. The reason there ought to be a longing of truth for good, is that this longing is conjunctive of both . . . The conjunction of good and truth is what is called the heavenly marriage, which is Heaven itself with man; and therefore, when, in Divine worship, and in each and all things of it, there is a longing for this conjunction, there is Heaven in each and all things there, thus the Lord. This is signified by [the requirement] that the incense was to be salted.

— The reason 'salt' has this signification, is from its conjunctive nature; for it conjoins all things, and hence gives them savour; nay, it conjoins water and oil, which otherwise are not conjoined.

—². When it is known that by 'salt' is signified the longing for the conjunction of truth and good, it may be known what is signified (in Mark ix.49,50): 'everyone must be salted with fire'=that everyone must long from genuine love; 'every sacrifice must be salted with salt'=that the longing from genuine love must be in all worship; 'salt which has lost its saltness'=a longing from some other love than a genuine one; 'to have salt in themselves'=the longing of truth for good.

—³. So in Luke xiv.34,35 . . . 'salt which has lost its savour'=a longing from the proprium, thus from the love of self and of the world; such a longing is salt which has lost its savour; it is not fit for anything.

—⁵. As the longing of truth for good conjoins, so the longing of falsity for evil disjoins, and that which disjoins also destroys; hence 'salt,' in the opposite sense,=the destruction and devastation of truth and good. III.

—⁶. 'He shall dwell in parched places and in a salt-salsuginosa-land' (Jer.xvii.6)=in filthy loves and their longings, which have destroyed the good and truth of the Church.

—⁶. 'A pit of salt' (Zeph.ii.9)=a longing for falsity; which, as it destroys truth and good, is called 'a waste to eternity' (=the devastation of all truth. E.653⁶).

—⁸. (Thus) 'salt,' in the genuine sense, =the longing of truth for good, thus what is conjunctive; and, in the opposite, the longing of falsity for evil, thus what is destructive.

W. 420². That the blood nourishes itself from the air . . . is evident, also, from the immense abundance of salts of various kinds [which are] in company with the water from the earth, rivers, and lakes.

R. 122^o. 'Salt' (Mark ix.49,50)=a longing for truth.

M. 232¹. (Such) become statues of salt.

Ad. 3/5431. Salt is what causes savour, nay, odour; for without salt [anything] is insipid and flat-fatuum; there is therefore a keenness and very force in it which excites the sense. This, therefore, is 'salt' (Lev.ii.) namely, that it is to be done with sense, thought, and perception.

D. 2362. Without suitable repugnances, there is no stimulus-sal.

D. Min. 4548. On the poisonous acute sayings-sales (of Gustaf Benzelstierna).—He could pour out such acute sayings against others, that they could not be answered; for he so turned them that he against whom he poured them, became as it were stupid, and angry that he could not retort. . . . As he supposed himself to be more learned than others, he was inspired to pour out such acute sayings. Examp. (His sphere des.) 4786, Des.

4627. On the almost irresistible acutenesses-sales—of man.—Anton. Swab could speak with such intelligence, modesty, and semblance of reason, as could scarcely be resisted. Such acutenesses, with the evil . . . were represented by the head of a certain animal

. . . from which went forth coarse spicula of salt, of a yellow colour. (Diagram.) It was . . . poison salts, which, when they puncture, cannot be plucked away, and at the same time they infuse poison.

E. 342⁷. 'To go away into salt' (Ezek.xlvii.11)=not to receive spiritual life, but to remain in a life merely natural. (Compare 513⁷.)

653¹³. 'Salt' (Deut.xxix.22)=the vastation of all truth through falsities from these concupiscences.

730¹⁷. 'Saltness' (Ps.evii.34)=the devastation of truth through falsities.

C. 190. (If the affection which is in every employment be not relaxed by diversions) it becomes dull . . . like salt when it has lost its saltness-salsedo, whence there is no excitation, nor stimulus.

Salute. Salutare.

Salutation. Salutatio.

A. 8736. These saints, who are saluted as lords.

H. 287². Salutations in ancient times were . . . Peace be with you; which the Lord confirmed . . .

R. 12. 'Grace be to you, and peace'=a Divine salutation. III.

463⁶. I saluted them, and said . . .

M. 75^o. After a salutation of peace, we departed.

115^o. The Angel, after a salutation of peace . . . ascended.

D. 3284. Occurs. 4728². E.365⁸.

Salvation. Salus.

Saving. Salutaris.

Wholesome. Salubris.

See under SALVATION-salvatio.

A. 301². When a man becomes (profane) there is not any hope of salvation (there). Ex.

302. So there would not be any hope of salvation for them in the other life.

978^o. The things here said about the internal man . . . are not necessary to salvation.

1789. The reward of His victories was the salvation of the universal human race. 1812. 1813. 1820⁵.

1937¹. They compel themselves . . . for the sake of the salvation (or health) of their souls after death; within which there is . . . a regard for the . . . Lord.

2225. The essentials of faith, being necessary to salvation, are stated in the letter . . .

2343³. That all regeneration . . . consequently salvation, is from the Lord alone, is known . . . but is believed by few. Ex. . . Only so far as a man is in charity . . . can he be in this principal thing of faith: that all salvation is from the Lord.

2666. That from the Lord's Divine Human is all salvation for those who are in good. Sig. and Ex.

2670. 2714^o. 2854.

—². There is salvation for the spiritual also, if they are in good. III.

3441². 'My salvation unto the extremity of the earth' (Is.xlix.6). Ex.

[A.] 3913⁵. That the Lord is salvation to the human race . . .

— The generals of that Thing which conduce to the salvation of man.

4171³. If one who leads a life of good . . . suffers himself to be persuaded that a life of good contributes nothing to salvation . . . and that a saving—salvans—means has been provided, which is called faith, and thus that he can be saved—salvari—through faith without a life of good . . . he is called 'torn.'

4190². Think that all outside the Church are damned, and this from the received canon, that outside the Lord there is no salvation, which is true. But in the other life good gentiles easily acknowledge the Lord; whereas (such Christians) when left to themselves . . . do not even adore Him; so that these are the ones who are outside the Lord, who have not salvation.

4245². From (doctrinals), and not from (the goods of charity), they think much about eternal salvation.

4681^e. By 'peace,' they understood . . . life in the Lord's Kingdom, or salvation; in the external sense, salvation in the world, or health—valetudinem. 4712.

4730². He confirms himself . . . until he believes that works of charity are not necessary to salvation; and (then) that there has been provided . . . a means of salvation called faith; and, at last, this: that he will be saved—salvetur, if, from confidence (he says a certain thing at the hour of death).

5120³. 'I will take the cup of salvation' (Ps. evi. 13) = the appropriation of the goods of faith.

5351³. Who believes that the fruits (of faith) contribute anything to salvation, when it is believed that man is saved—salvetur—through faith in the last hour of his life, however he has previously lived; and (said) that faith alone saves—salvet—without good works, or that works . . . contribute nothing to salvation?

5758². (This is) contrary to the acknowledgment that all salvation is from mercy. Ex.

6402. 'I wait for Thy salvation O Jehovah (Gen. xlix. 18) = unless the Lord brings aid. Ex.

6405^e. 'Gad' = those who place in works alone everything of salvation, like the Pharisee . . . That which saves—salvat—them, is the intention to do what is good, and something of innocence in their ignorance.

6481. The Divine Providence has for its end the eternal salvation of man, not his being well off (here).

6639³. See SALVATION—salvatio, here.

6779². For those in evils never acknowledge that charity and its works contribute to salvation; for they cannot acknowledge what is contrary to their own life.

7280². With the evil, there is no internal fear, namely, for salvation . . .

8164². Anxieties (in spiritual temptations) are . . . on account of the loss of faith and charity, and consequently of salvation. S567.

8172. 'Stand still, and see the salvation of Jehovah' (Ex. xiv. 13) = Salvation—*salvatio—by the Lord alone, and not at all by themselves. Ex.

S268. 'He has become my salvation' (Ex. xv. 2) = that thence is Salvation.

S560. Providence continually leads to salvation, through various states . . .

S639. He who does not know that all good is from the Lord, cannot think that . . . his salvation is from Him . . .

S700². It is impossible to compel man to salvation; (otherwise) all men in the world would be saved. Ex.

9715³. 'Mine own arm brought salvation unto Me' (Is. lxiii. 5) = . . . that the Lord did these things from His Own power. That thence is salvation, is described by (His being) 'great to save—salvandum . . . and that He became their Saviour.' —⁴. 10828.

9917³. That salvation went forth from the Divine in ultimates. Sig.

10205². Therefore he who, within the Church, does not acknowledge the Lord, has no conjunction with the Divine . . . and when there is no conjunction with the Divine, there is no salvation.

10370². That the salvation of the human race is from (the union of the Divine Itself in the Lord's Human) . . . Ill.

10730^e. The universal of all things (of the Church) is that the Lord united His Human to the Divine Itself, and that thence man has peace and salvation; and it is also a universal, that man must be conjoined with the Lord—which is effected through regeneration—in order that he may have peace and salvation.

10773. (Thus) the Divine Providence is in each and all things which conduce to the salvation of the human race.

10796. (Such priests) prefer honour and gain to the salvation of souls; but those who give the honour to the Lord . . . prefer the salvation of souls to honour and gain.

10828^e. Unless the Lord had . . . become a Man, and in that way delivered from Hell all who believe in and love Him, no mortal could have been saved. Thus is it understood, that without the Lord there is no salvation.

H. 524^e. It is known from the Word that the Lord wills the salvation of all, and the damnation of no one.

L. 18². Nothing of the Lord can be imputed to man, but salvation can be ascribed—adlicari—by the Lord after the man has performed repentance . . . Then is salvation ascribed to him in this way: that the man is saved, not from his own merit, or justice, but from the Lord, who . . . alone fights for man, and conquers the Hells for him.

S. 55. All things which pertain to man's life, thus to his salvation, are naked (in the letter of the Word).

Life 39. The good of the priesthood is to look out for the salvation of souls . . . (Compare 72.)

P. 139^e. They can blaze with zeal for the salvation of souls, yet from infernal fire.

328⁸. It is provided . . . that in every religion there are the two essentials of salvation, which are to acknowledge God, and not to do evil because it is against God . . .

* Salvation—salvatio—is distinguished from salvatio—salus—by the use of a capital S in the former.

R. 368. 'Salvation to our God . . .' (Rev.vii.10)= that the Lord is salvation itself, and that all salvation is from Him; thus that He is the Saviour.

469². Because on the Knowledge and acknowledgment of God depends the salvation of everyone.

553. 'Now is come salvation and power' (Rev.xii.10) =that now they are saved by the Divine power of the Lord. E.745.

566^e. (The notion that good is to be done, but not for the sake of salvation, refuted.)

804. 'Salvation and glory and honour and power to the Lord our God' (Rev.ix.1)=that now there is Salvation from the Lord, because now there is reception of the Divine truth and Divine good from His Divine power. 'Salvation to the Lord our God'=the acknowledgment and confession that Salvation is from the Lord. (Compare E.1198.)

M. 7⁴. These highest ones (in Heaven) are chosen from those whose heart is in the public welfare.

T. 142². The Lord is continually operating these salvations (reformation, regeneration, etc.) with every man; for they are steps to Heaven; for the Lord wills the salvation of all; and therefore the salvation of all is His end; and he who wills an end, wills the means. His advent, redemption, and passion . . . were for the sake of the salvation of men (Matt.xviii.11; Luke.ix.10); and, as the salvation of men was, and to eternity is, His end, it follows that the above-mentioned operations are the mediate ends, and Salvation the ultimate end. 152.

150. Because He is salvation and eternal life; salvation, because He is the Saviour, which 'Jesus' means. . . . As He is salvation and eternal life . . . He is all that by which salvation and eternal life are obtained; consequently, is the all of reformation, etc., and, at last, is Salvation.

361². In proportion as this spirituality is augmented, this delight becomes bliss; and this is his salvation, which is called eternal life.

369. That conjunction with the Lord is [that] through which man has salvation and eternal life. Gen.art. 726, Ex.

564. Does not know what saving good is. Ex.

628. That (the modern) imputation is twofold: one, of the merit of Christ; and the other, of salvation thence. Ex.

649^e. From the transcription of the imputation of the former Church into that of the New one . . . would arise tragic things, which would stand in the way of the man's salvation.

726. That (the Lord) is also salvation, is because this and eternal life are one. His name 'Jesus' also means salvation . . . and from this He is called the Saviour.

787^e. Salvation depends upon conjunction with God.

D. 1164. Good and saving counsels . . .

2520. Where nothing exists which does not have something of health from the general (body) . . .

2736. That knowledges contribute nothing to salvation . . .

3565. Good and salutary foods . . .

3998^e. (Animals eat foods) which are wholesome to them.

4796. (The Moravians) think much about their salvation, and that they are saved, and not others; hence they have (this interior friendship).

5933^e. This first of the Church is to acknowledge . . . that without the Lord there is no salvation.

E. 295². Hearing and help . . . through the Divine truth, is signified by . . . 'Answer me in the Truth of Thy salvation' (Ps.lxix.13).

340². As the Lord then come into the world would save all who receive Him, (Simeon) called the Lord 'the salvation which his eyes saw, which He prepares for all people' (Luke.ii.30,31).

—4. 'The fountain of salvation' (or 'of Israel') (Ps.lxviii.26)=spiritual good, because through this is salvation.

—5. 'Name,' is said of truths; and 'salvation' (Ps. xvi.2) of good.

365²⁰. 'Salvation' (Ps.cxix.166)=eternal life.

—30. 'To make to hear salvation' (Is.lii.7)=conjunction with Him through truths, and through a life according to them; for through this is salvation.

406⁶. 'My justice is near, My salvation is gone forth' (Is.li.5)=the Judgment, when those are saved who are in the good of love, and who are in truths thence; 'justice' is said of the Salvation of those who are in good . . . and 'salvation,' of the Salvation of those who are in truths.

411⁹. 'Exalted be the God of my salvation' (Ps.xviii.46)=that He is to be worshipped through truths from good, whence is salvation.

412²⁷. 'The salvations of my faces' (Ps.xlii.11; xliii.5) =all things which are within; thus which are of the mind and the affections, consequently which are of love and faith, which, because they save, are called 'salvations.'

440⁶. That they may be saved, is signified by, 'Go for salvation to us' (Ps.lxxx.2).

445. 'From the tribe of Issachar were sealed 12 thousand'=faith and salvation. Ex.

460. 'Salvation to our God . . .' (Rev.vii.10)=that eternal life is from the Lord alone. . . 'Salvation'=eternal life; for by 'eternal life' is meant eternal salvation.

—2. Salvation being [ascribed] to Him=that salvation is from Him, because He is salvation; for everything of salvation and eternal life is from Him, and is of Him with man and Angel. Ex. and Ill.

— . The Lord is here called 'salvation,' from Salvation, and from the fact that He is salvation with man; for in proportion as He is with man, man has salvation. Ill.

— . Therefore He was called 'Jesus,' which means 'salvation.'

701³. (It is a mistake) that man can do nothing towards his salvation. Ex.

744². (Thus) the health of the body depends upon the state of the extremes.

[E.] 781¹⁸. 'We await . . . salvation far from us' (Is. lix. 11) = the hope . . . of Salvation, but in vain.

811²². Deliverance from evils by the Lord, and Salvation, is meant by, 'Who shall give out of Zion the salvation of Israel?' (Ps. xiv. 7).

1180. That the Lord provides for every nation a universal means of salvation. Ex.

Can. Trinity ix. 6. (It is found) that there is nothing of salvation, except with those who have done goods from religion; because these are receptive of faith in the Lord God the Saviour (there).

xi. That the Divine Trinity is in the Lord God the Saviour, and consequently (He) alone is to be approached, for there to be salvation, or eternal life. Chapter.

C. 160. When the salvation of souls affects (a priest).

Salvation. Salvatio.

Save. Salvare.

Saviour. Salvator.

Saving. Salvificus.

See under SALVATION—salvus.

A. 598. That the Lord foresaw that He could thus save the human race. Sig. and Ex.

608^e. Unless the Lord had reduced the human race into this genius, or state (of the Church called 'Noah'), no man could ever have been saved.

1123. Who would save the universal human race.

1728². If only Divine truth (were predicated of the Lord) no mortal could be saved.

1735. Love Itself . . . wills to save all. 1803.

1781. He willed to be made certain that the human race would be saved. Sig.

1865². The salvation of the human race was His only consolation.

1902^e. For the salvation (of the universal human race), He fought in all His temptations.

2025^e. Therefore He is so often called, in the Old Testament 'the Saviour,' etc., which is His name 'Jesus.'

2034⁷. That everyone who should . . . love Him, and the things which are of Him, and should be in His love which is towards the universal human race . . . should be conjoined and saved.

2049⁴. This (life of charity) is the life which saves after death, and never any life of faith without it. Ex.

2077². The Angels, to save a soul from Hell, regard death as nothing, and would, if possible, undergo Hell.

2115. The gentiles . . . are equally saved, when they are rational, that is, live in charity.

2116³. It is true that those who have faith are saved. Ex.

2129^e. Believe that they are saved of the Lord's mercy only.

2140. (The Lord) obtained that those might be saved with whom there are goods and truths. 2141.

2171². Thus was made known to Him . . . the quality of the human race which would be saved through Him, that is, through the union of the Human essence with the Divine, in Him. 2218².

2228. That by Him all who are in charity will be saved. Sig. and Ex.

—¹. Those who are gifted with goods . . . are also gifted with eternal salvation—salvate, that is, are saved. 'All the nations of the earth' = those in goods . . . not all the people in the world . . . because very many among them are not saved: only those in charity.

—². By (mere thought, the acknowledgment of something to be believed, or the Knowledge of all things of the doctrine of faith) no one can be saved; for they cannot send a root any deeper than into the thought. Thought saves no one; but it is the life which he has procured to himself in the world through the Knowledges of faith . . .

2243². He who believes . . . that any man can save, and therefore worships him, from this falsity does evil.

—⁷. From doctrine, they say that the Lord is the Saviour of the human race . . . yet few believe it.

2250^e. In His state of glorification . . . the Lord does not intercede, but . . . from His Divine bears aid, and saves.

2253. The universal human race, which He burned to save to eternity.

2261. It may be supposed that man cannot but be saved if his truths are full of goods; but (still) he is saved . . . from mercy; for there are very few truths with man, and the goods in them have their quality according to the truths and life of the man. Ex.

2262. [Five classes of those who] will be saved. Sig. 2273. 2277. 2281. 2285.

2273. Not that they would be saved on account of temptations; for some undergo temptations who succumb . . . Nay, neither is man saved on account of temptations, if he places anything of merit in them . . .

2284⁴. They judge that (others) cannot be saved unless they believe as they do, which the Lord forbade (Matt. vii. 1, 2). From much experience (I know) that men are saved from every religion, provided that through a life of charity they have received remains of good and appearances of truth. This is meant by, 'I will not destroy (Sodom) for ten's sake,' by which is signified that if there were remains they would be saved.

—⁵. The life of charity is . . . to perceive joy from the fact that others also are saved; but those have not the life of charity who wish that no others be saved than those who believe as they do: this may be evident from the mere fact that more from the gentiles, than from Christians, are saved.

2318^e. It now follows concerning the salvation of those who are in some good and truth, who, in this chapter, are represented by 'Lot.'

2320. In this chapter it treats of Judgment; namely, of the Salvation of the faithful, and the damnation of the unfaithful.

2334. In all temptation there is doubt about Salvation, etc. (in order that) they may be confirmed in the fact that all things are of the Lord's mercy; that they are saved through Him alone; and that with themselves there is nothing but evil.

2335². To be judged from good, is to be saved, because they have received it . . . Good is the Lord's ; and they who acknowledge this in life and faith, are the Lord's, and therefore are saved ; but they who do not acknowledge it in life . . . cannot be the Lord's, thus cannot be saved. Ex.

2388. That all in the good of charity . . . would be saved ; and also those in the truth of faith, if they would recede from evil. Sig. and Ex.

2401². (Thus) man cannot be saved through (merely) thinking and speaking truth, or even good.

2432^e. That those in the affection of truth, that is, in faith, are saved, provided it is the faith of good.

2456². 'God remembered Abraham' = salvation through the union of the Lord's Divine essence with His Human essence ; 'and sent Lot out of the midst of the overthrow' = the salvation of those who are in good, and of those who are in truth in which is good . . . 'the cities in which Lot dwelt' = although they who were saved were also in falsities from evils. 2457.

2523. After the fall . . . the human race of that time could not have been saved (without these representations before the Angels).

2589. See GENTILE—Gentilis, here. 2590, etc.

2661². The Lord did not come . . . to save the celestial, but the spiritual. If the Most Ancient Church . . . had remained in its integrity, the Lord would have had no need to be born a man . . . Those of the Ancient Church (being spiritual) could not have been saved unless the Lord had come into the world. Sig.

—^e. With the Lord, when He was in the world, were represented all the states of the Church, and how they would be saved through Him.

2664^e. In no other way (than by the separation from Him of the merely human Rational) could the human race be saved.

2760, Pref.^e. Those who arrogate to themselves the Power of saving the human race . . .

2764. (Gen.xxii.) treats of the salvation of those who constitute the Lord's Spiritual Church, through this union. 2765.

2769^e. From good is all deliverance and Salvation. Truth condemns and good saves. Refs.

2773. 'Thine only one, whom thou lovest' = the only thing (the Human) in the universe, by which He would save the human race. Ex.

2776². It is this union (the Divine Human) through which can be saved those who have the faith of charity in Him ; for the Supreme Divine Itself could no longer reach the human race . . .

—³. If the Lord had not united (the two Essenes, neither men nor the spiritual Angels) would have had any capacity for understanding truth and good ; thus would have had nothing of blessedness, and consequently nothing of salvation—salutis ; from which it is evident that the human race could not have been saved, unless the Lord had assumed the Human . . .

—⁴. (The notion that) men are saved if they only think from a kind of interior emotion that the Lord suffered for them . . .

2839. That the spiritual are saved through charity, and not through faith separated from charity. Sig. and Ex.

2853. The Salvation of all who are in good. Sig. and Ex.

—². In these words is contained this arcanum : that through the Church are saved those outside the Church. Ex.

2861². As in (Gen.xxii.13-19) it has treated of those who are saved by the Lord's Divine Human within the Church ; in what follows, to the end of the chapter, it treats of those who are saved outside the Church.

2869. These constitute the third class of the spiritual who are saved. Sig.

2881. If man could be reformed under compulsion, there would be no man in the universe who was not saved . . .

2921^e. Our Saviour was called 'Lord' . . . because He was Jehovah.

2954. See REDEEM, here.

3005. The reason 'Jesus' = Divine good, is that it means 'salvation—salutem,' 'Salvation,' and 'Saviour ;' for from the Divine good . . . and thus through the reception of it, is all Salvation.

3272². By the '12 thousand sealed' from every tribe, is signified that all in faith, that is, in its good, are saved.

3380². That by the good and truth which are from the Lord, are saved all who live in mutual charity, whether within or without the Church. Sig.

3441. Through (the Divine Human) man is saved ; for unless . . . man could mentally view and adore the Lord's Human, and thus have access to the Divine, he could never have been saved.

3488⁷. 'He that persevereth unto the end, he shall be saved' (Matt.xxiv.13) = the Salvation of those in charity.

3934⁷. (Thus) works are what save man, and what condemn him . . . for in works is man's will . . . III.

3957^e. Believes that . . . he can be saved by faith, however he has lived . . .

3969. '(Joseph') . . . in the external sense, = Salvation . . .

—¹¹. 'I will save the house of Joseph . . .' (Zech. x.6) . . . treats of the Salvation of the Spiritual.

3986³. (Although man has few genuine truths) still, those in the good of life—that is, who live in love to God and charity towards the neighbour—are saved. The reason they can be saved, is that the Lord's Divine is in (this good) ; and, where that is, all things are disposed into order, so that they can be conjoined with the genuine goods and genuine truths which are in the Heavens.

3993¹¹. See BELIEVE, here.

—¹². In every doctrine are some who are saved.

4031². He who does not know that . . . no regeneration is possible except in freedom, when he reasons about . . . the Salvation of man . . . casts himself into mere shades . . . supposing that if the Lord willed, He could save everyone, by innumerable means. Enum.

[A.] 4046^e. For everyone (even the most external) who is in a life of good from the affection of charity, is saved.

4054. For whatever inflows from the Lord is an end which regards the Salvation of the human race.

4334^b. They are ignorant that it is what is internal which saves or damns; and not what is external separated from what is internal.

—8. 'Two shall be in the field; the one shall be taken, and the other left'—that those (in the Church) who are in good will be saved; and those in evil damned.

4352^a. As men have made faith (alone) saving; yet see that the truths of faith cannot save, because they exist with the evil also, they acknowledge confidence . . . If the confidence which appears in a state of compulsion would save man, all mortals would be saved; for everyone is easily reduced to it.

4493^e. Hamor and Shechem, with their families (were killed) that they might be saved.

4588. This is why, if the natural man has not been prepared (here) to receive the truths and goods of faith, he cannot receive them (there), thus cannot be saved . . .

4593^a. But, in the Divine affection, there is the end for the sake of self . . . to save the human race. III.

4601^a. In order that those of the Spiritual Church could be saved, the Lord miraculously separated their intellectual part from their voluntary, and implanted in the intellectual the power to receive a new Voluntary. Refs.

4638^b. 'All those virgins . . . trimmed their lamps' . . . For, those in truths (alone) . . . suppose that faith alone saves, not knowing that there is no faith where there is no charity.

4683. They preach . . . faith alone, and say it is saving without works.

—2. The savingness—salvificum—of faith they place in confidence . . . and even persuade that the confidence of one moment . . . saves. 4925^a.

4724^d. They who live a life of faith, adore the Lord . . . as God the Saviour.

4776^a. That no one can be saved unless he has lived in the good of charity. (From experience.)

4783^a. If Heaven were of mercy or grace, independently of the life, everyone would be saved.

5145^b. Consequently, all who have had conscience are saved; but those who have had none cannot be saved.

5982. For, in order that man may be saved, he must be in freedom; and, in freedom, be withdrawn from evil, and be led to good. Ex.

6207. This conscience (of what is just and fair) exists at this day with many; an interior conscience with few; but still those who enjoy the former conscience are saved in the other life . . .

6373^a. From this it resulted that none but the celestial could then be saved; and, at last, scarcely these, unless the Lord had assumed the Human . . .

6490. Unless the Divine Providence were in every most minute particular—singularissimis, man could not possibly be saved . . .

6495. For the Lord loves the universal human race, and wills to save everyone to eternity.

6639^a. Believe that Salvation is only introduction into Heaven of mercy . . . If (this were so) all in the whole world would be saved; for the Lord . . . wills the salvation salutem—of all . . .

6657. The sphere (which is about everyone from Heaven) is one of endeavours to do good, and save.

6854^a. Such spiritual ones have been saved solely through the Lord's advent into the world; because the Divine passing through Heaven, which was the Divine Human (then), could not reach them. Ex. 7035^e.

7206^a. By these 'judgments' (or truths) those in falsities from evil are damned, and those in truths from good are saved. . . Nor do the truths which proceed from the Lord save, if the man believes that he is saved by the truths of faith with him, and not by mercy . . .

7250. Those (of the savages in Venus) who are such that they can be saved, are in the places of vastation. Des. . . When they have suffered the extreme things, as the corporeal things with them have as it were died, they are finally saved.

7272^a. He who believes that faith alone saves, and that works of charity contribute nothing to salvation—salutem; and also he who believes that he is saved even in the last hour . . .

7296^e. For the end of order is Salvation; thus is to do good to all.

7318^a. Truth is falsified when it is said that . . . thus man can be saved whatever his life may be; and (also) when it is said that no one is saved except those within the Church.

7686^a. Unless (the 'Nephilim' had been shut up by the Lord when He was in the world) very few could have been saved. Ex.

7761. Natural good saves none; but spiritual good saves all. Ex.

7828^a. Without the advent of the Lord into the world (those in the Lower Earth) could not possibly have been saved.

—^e. That the glorification and resurrection of the Lord as to His Human, is the source of all Salvation. Sig. and Ex.

7935. That in the minds of those (of the Spiritual Church) must be fixed this truth: that their salvation . . . is due to the Lord alone . . .

8051^a. The reason falsity is not appropriated to him who is in good . . . is that he thinks well about God, etc. . . Unless this were the case, scarcely anyone could be saved . . .

8211. A state of . . . the destruction of those in falsity from evil; and one of . . . the Salvation of those in truth from good. Sig. and Ex.

8236. 'Jehovah saved Israel' (Ex.xiv.30)=that the Lord protected those of the Spiritual Church.

8307. See MERCY, here.

8321. That thus, without danger of infestation, all will be saved who are in the faculty of receiving the truth of good and the good of truth. Sig. and Ex.

— . For, so long as the evil had not been cast into Hell, scarcely any could 'pass over,' that is, be saved. Ex.

—^e. As it is charity which gives (the above-named) faculty, it is charity which saves; for those who are saved, are not saved through charity from themselves, but through charity from the Lord, consequently through this faculty of receiving.

8387. He who wants to be saved, must confess his sins, and perform repentance. Ex.

8408⁴. The Salvation of the faithful. Tr.

8543. (The inhabitants of Jupiter) do not worship the Lord as a King; but as a Saviour.

8553. This order (of life) with man must be completely inverted in order for him to be saved; which is done through regeneration . . .

8620. By the Divine remembrance is signified Salvation; and by oblivion, damnation.

8622². Therefore, if these (Genii) were to inflow, the man of the Spiritual Church could never be saved. Ex.

8700². It is according to order that those who have lived well are saved; and those who have lived evilly condemned . . . consequently, it is impossible for those in Hell to be brought out thence into Heaven, and saved of the Lord's pure mercy; for it is the reception of His mercy, when He lived (here), through which everyone is saved . . .

—⁴. (There) all are consociated according to their life . . . hence it is not possible for the evil and the good to be together; nor is it possible for those to be in good who are evil; for good and evil are opposites, and the one destroys the other: (thus) it is not possible that those in Hell should be saved; thus it is not feasible that Salvation, however a man had lived, should be from mercy alone.

8762. The Salvation of those who are of the external and internal Spiritual Church. Sig. and Ex.

9122. Those who have not received conscience (here), cannot receive it (there), thus cannot be saved, because they have no plane into which Heaven may inflow and operate, that is, the Lord through Heaven, and lead them to Himself.

9192². Those in genuine truths are often damned; and those . . . in falsities are often saved. (From experience.)

9239. To believe in God is the faith which saves; but to believe the things which are from God, is the faith, which, without the former one, does not save. Ex.

9244. All who are in heavenly love have confidence that they will be saved by the Lord . . .

9363. To believe the things which the Word, or doctrine, teaches, and not to live according to them, appears like faith . . . but by this alone no one is saved; for it is a persuasive faith.

9453. (Thus) it is his own fault that he cannot be saved.

9715. No one could have been saved. L. 3².

—⁷. From Divine power thus acquired in the Human, the Lord alone fights for . . . the universal human race, conquers, and thus saves.

9806². Called 'Jesus,' or 'Saviour,' when good is treated of.

9809. 'The priesthood,' in the supreme sense, = the whole office which the Lord discharges as the Saviour; and whatever He performs as the Saviour, is from the Divine love . . .

9928. By Aaron's office was represented all the work of Salvation . . .

10017. The Lord as to the work of Salvation in successive order. Sig. and Ex.

— . See PRIEST, here. —². 10152. 10279.

10019². (Thus) was represented . . . the Divine power of saving the human race; and the power of saving the human race is power over the Heavens and Hells; for through this power . . . the Lord saves man. Ex.

— . Man is saved through the removal of evils and falsities from the Hells, and the inflow, then, of the good of love and truth of faith through Heaven from the Lord.

10083⁵. The reason (the Lord so often said that the sick must have faith) was that the first thing of all is to acknowledge that the Lord is the Saviour of the world. Ex.

10112². Those born within the Church who at heart deny the Lord, whatever may be their quality in moral life . . . cannot be saved. Ill. Whereas the gentiles who . . . have lived in some kind of charity towards their neighbour, and in some kind of love to God the Creator of the universe under a human form, in the other life are accepted by the Lord and saved; for, when instructed . . . they acknowledge the Lord, and believe in, and love Him.

10152². The Lord's work of Salvation. Ex.

—³. How man has been saved and redeemed by the Lord, through His subjugating the Hells, and glorifying His Human. Ex. 10828.

10409⁴. If not led through his Intellectual, no man could be saved.

10648. Hence it is that everyone, from every religion, can be saved . . .

10659^c. All would (then) be saved. H. 524.

10731². Therefore such cannot be saved; for they have not Heaven in them.

10766. Everyone with whom the Church is, is saved; but everyone with whom the Church is not, is condemned.

10829. That those are saved who receive the Lord, and believe in Him; but not those in evils and the derivative falsities. Ill.

H. 318. That the Gentiles also are saved, may be known from this alone: that the Lord's mercy is universal . . . 319, Ex.

319. A moral life for the sake of the Divine . . . saves man; (but a moral life for the sake of men in the world) does not save him. Ex.

522. The Divine mercy is pure mercy towards all the human race to save it . . . and therefore everyone who can be saved, is saved ; but no one can be saved except through Divine means . . . which are called Divine truths : these teach how man should live in order that he may be saved. Ex.

[H.] 595². The Divine sphere proceeding from the Lord, is a perpetual endeavour of saving all ; and, as those in the Hells cannot be saved, because all there are in evil, and against the Divine of the Lord, the . . . cruelties there are restrained so far as possible . . .

J. 33. And when man's freedom perishes, he can no longer be saved. Ex.

C. J. 30. On the Salvation of the sheep (after the Last Judgment).

L. 18^e. (Thus) those are saved who are in the good of love and truths of faith from the Lord ; and not those who are in proprium.

27. That the Lord is called 'the Son of Man,' where it treats of Salvation, etc. Ill.

31. That . . . Jehovah took on the Human to save men. Ill.

33⁴. It is from these things that the Lord is called Saviour and Redeemer.

34³. For the Redeemer and Saviour of the world is no other than the Lord as to the Divine Human, which is called 'the Son.' For Redemption and Salvation is an attribute proper to His Human, which is called merit and justice . . .

S. 11. The spiritual sense of these words (concerning the 12 thousand sealed from every tribe) is that all with whom there is the Church from the Lord are saved. Ex.

49. Through the truths with a man, the Lord has the power of saving him . . .

Life 3. Every man who has religion, knows . . . that he who lives well is saved, and that he who lives evilly is condemned. Ex.

65. See RELIGION, here.

72. (Such a priest) does a good work, because from the love of saving souls.

91. It is a common opinion that to be saved is to believe this or that . . .

F. 34. That without Him no mortal could have been saved; and that they are saved who believe in Him.

35. 36. R.67. B.116. T.2. E.806^e.

W. 37. The Divine love wills to save all ; but it cannot save except through the Divine wisdom ; and to the Divine wisdom belong all the laws through which Salvation is effected.

P. 16. The Lord permits (this) for the sake of the end, which is Salvation.

55. That the Divine Providence in everything . . . regards what is infinite and eternal from itself, especially in saving the human race. Gen.art. 58.

79^e. (That man should be in this strong appearance) the Lord wills for the sake of his Salvation ; for, without this appearance (that he does good, etc. as of himself) no one can be saved.

86^e. This is why evils do not damn a regenerated person, and goods do not save an unregenerated one.

253². All born men in any religion can be saved, provided they acknowledge God, and live according to the precepts which are in the decalogue. Ex. 254².

258. Confirms himself against the Divine Providence because (some) place salvation in certain words . . . Ex.

259³. It is provided that everyone in every heresy . . . can be reformed and saved, provided he shuns evils as sins, and does not confirm the false heretical things . . .

275. That evils are permitted for the sake of the end, which is Salvation. Gen.art. 281, Ex.

322⁴. He says to himself, Is not this (Gentile) saved ! . . . Can this (Christian) be saved !

325. That hence it is from the Divine Providence that every man can be saved ; and that they are saved who acknowledge God, and live well. Gen.art.

326⁹. That these (two things) are the generals of all religions, through which everyone can be saved. Ex.

327. That the man himself is in fault, if he is not saved. Gen.art.

328⁸. That (in spite of the decrease and consummation of religion) it is provided by the Lord that everyone can be saved. Ex.

— . Also that all who die as infants, wherever born, are saved.

329³. (Thus) no man lacks a Knowledge of the means through which he can be saved ; nor the power, if he wants to be saved ; from which it follows that all have been predestinated to Heaven. 330⁴.

330³. The reason some are not saved, is that the Divine love wills that man should feel in himself the happiness and bliss of Heaven . . . and this cannot be, unless it appears to man that he thinks and wills from himself . . .

—⁵. That those only are saved who have been born within the Church, is an insane heresy. Ex.

332. That the operation of the Divine Providence to save man begins from his birth, and lasts to the end of his life, and afterwards to eternity. Gen.art. 333, Ex.

333. But no more can be saved than want to be saved ; and those want to be saved who acknowledge God, and are led by Him ; and those do not want, who do not acknowledge God, and lead themselves ; for these do not think about eternal life, and Salvation.

338. That instantaneous Salvation from immediate mercy is not possible. Gen.art.

—². That faith concerning instantaneous Salvation from immediate mercy has been taken from the natural state of man. Ex.

—⁸. That the doctrines of the Churches in the Christian world, interiorly regarded, are against instantaneous Salvation from immediate mercy ; but still the external men of the Church maintain it. Ex.

340. That instantaneous Salvation from immediate mercy is the flying fire-serpent in the Church. Gen.art.

—⁴. That through a faith in instantaneous Salvation from pure and mere mercy, there is induced security of life. Ex. (And damnation is imputed to the Lord. —⁵, Ex.)

R. 9. There are two essentials through which is effected conjunction with God, and thence Salvation: the acknowledgment of one God, and repentance of life . . .

62. 'I have the keys of Hell and of death' = that He alone can save. E. 86.

—^c. Therefore He who rules (Heaven) necessarily rules (Hell); otherwise, man could not be saved. To be saved is to be brought out of Hell.

169. That (he who is reformed becomes spiritual and) will be saved. Sig.

174. That He alone has the omnipotence of saving. Sig.

224⁵. Hence, he who acts well, and thinks well; that is, who lives well, and believes well, will be saved.

263^e. Place Salvation, not in amendment of life, but in certain words . . .

272^e. Therefore he who lives according to these things because they are Divine truths . . . is saved; but he who lives according to them only because they are civil and moral truths, is not saved . . .

281. 'Thou hast redeemed us to God in Thy blood' (Rev. v. 9) = Salvation through conjunction with Him.

500². Unless they immediately approach God the Saviour . . .

502. These loves cannot be removed, except by God the Saviour . . . and they cannot by God the Saviour, unless He is approached . . .

553². That they are saved who are in the Lord and the Lord in them . . . and that no others are saved than those who believe in Him. Ill.

798³. Who cannot see . . . that the salvation of man is the continual operation of the Lord with man, from his first infancy to the last of his life; and that this is purely Divine, and never possible to any man . . .

—⁴. The very advent of the Lord into the world was solely for the sake of man's Salvation. For the sake of this, He assumed the Human, removed the Hells, and glorified Himself, and put on omnipotence even in ultimates.

851. That Salvation and eternal life primarily consists in worshipping the Lord, and in living according to His precepts . . . because through these is effected conjunction with the Lord, and consociation with the Angels. Sig. and Ex.

920. 'The nations which are saved shall walk in the light of it' (Rev. xxi. 19) = that all who are in the good of life, and believe in the Lord, will there live according to Divine truths, and will see them within themselves . . .

947. That this is necessary at the end of the Church, in order that some may be saved. Sig. and Ex.

M. 351. That of these, although they are polygamists, those are saved who acknowledge God, and, from religion, live according to the civil laws of justice. Ex.

B. 117². (Thus) without the advent of the Lord into the world, no one could have been saved. It is the like at this day, and therefore unless the Lord comes into the world again in the Divine truth which is the Word, no one can be saved. T. 3.

T. 73². God is in the perpetual endeavour of regenerating and thus saving man: but He cannot effect it except as man prepares himself a receptacle . . .

107^e. But those who know nothing about the Lord . . . if they believe in one God, and live according to the precepts of their religion, are saved by their faith and life . . .

118. That without this Redemption no man could have been saved. Gen.art.

129. That thus He might be acknowledged in the Heavens as the Saviour of both worlds . . .

139. The Divine virtue and operation proceeding from . . . the Lord God the Saviour.

142. See HOLY SPIRIT, here.

337. That saving-salvific-faith is in the Lord God the Saviour Jesus Christ. Gen.art.

340. That the sum of faith is that he who lives well, and believes rightly, is saved by the Lord. Gen.art.

341². As it is impossible for God to damn anyone who lives well, and believes rightly; so . . . it is impossible for God to save anyone who lives evilly, and thence believes falsely. Ex.

344. The esse of the faith of the New Church is . . . 2. Trust that he who lives well, and believes rightly, is saved by (the Lord God the Saviour Jesus Christ.)

393. Who does not see (it) from a certain interior perception . . . when he hears anyone say, He who lives well and believes rightly, is saved? And who does not reject (it) . . . when he hears it said that he who believes rightly, and does not live well, is also saved? Ex. . . So again, if . . . it is said that he who lives well, although he does not believe, is saved. (See LIFE, here.)

520. That . . . unless man removes evils in part by repentance, he remains in them, and (therefore) cannot be saved. Gen.art.

577. The Lord is continually in the act . . . of saving man; and no one can be saved unless he is being regenerated. Ill. Therefore regeneration is the means of salvation.

579². So that He could afterwards be present with men . . . and save those who would live according to His precepts, consequently regenerate and save them; for those are saved who are regenerated . . . And, as regeneration and salvation make one, all can be saved. . . . That without the Lord's advent no one could have been saved, is to be understood thus: that . . . no one could have been regenerated.

—³. He thereby became the Saviour, etc. to eternity.

580. Still, everyone, according to his state, can be regenerated and saved.

—². All these (in the three Heavens) have been saved, but in different ways.

—³. See REGENERATE, here.

700. For men have not approached the Saviour Himself . . .

729². For there is not any nation in the whole world which cannot be saved, if it acknowledges God, and lives well . . .

D. 766. That the rich and powerful . . . are saved equally with the low and poor.

[D.] 5734². People are saved from every religion, even those in the doctrine of faith alone, provided they live the life of faith . . .

5934². Hence they believed that all can be saved, even those in Hell; but were told that they cannot, because they are not in freedom . . .

E. 105³. No one is saved through these things alone. (From experience.)

119². Few (Jews) are saved; for no others are saved than those who believe in the Lord.

293². 'Power—potestas,' when predicated of the Lord, principally regards Salvation. Ill.

297^c. Those who receive Divine truth in good are saved; but those who receive it . . . not in good, are not saved. Ex.

455. It here treats of those who are saved, although they had been in falsities . . . For all are saved who are in the good of life according to the dogmas of their own religion, which they have believed to be truths, although they are not truths. Ex.

474². All those are saved who are let into temptations . . .

478². Their having been in the good of life according to their religion does indeed save; but it does not save so long as they are in falsities; and therefore after (death) the falsities with them are removed. The reason they cannot be saved before, is that good derives its essence from truths . . .

714. Think to be saved through knowledge alone. Sig.

734¹⁰. 'I will save them by their God Jehovah' (Hos. i. 7) = Salvation by the Lord . . .

745². For the Lord could not save those who had been of His Church, until the dragon . . . had been expelled . . .

—^c. (Thus such) cannot be saved, because they do not want to be reformed and regenerated . . .

751. The Salvation and consequent joy of those who become spiritual through the reception of Divine truth. Sig. and Ex.

805⁸. See REDEM, here. 806⁴.

948⁵. These therefore . . . cannot be saved.

1135³. Why is not every man saved? Ex.

1165. Those (who are found to be able to resist evils) are saved; but those who cannot, are not saved. Ex.

1179^c. (Thus) the Lord provides that every man can be saved.

De Dom. 66. Those within the Church who deny the Divine of the Lord . . . cannot be saved.

Ath. 58^c. Without this (thought about God: that He is one, and that He is the Lord) no one can be saved.

204. No one can be received and saved unless he acknowledges the Divine of the Lord in His Human; and therefore He so often said, 'Believest thou that I can do this?'

D. Love xvii^e. If a man, through combat against evils as sins, has acquired any spiritual, although very little, he is saved . . .

Can. Redemp. viii. 13. This Salvation is perpetual redemption. Trinity x. 7.

Trinity x. That unless a New Church comes forth . . . no flesh can be saved.

Docu. 245. H. To worship God the Saviour cannot be prohibited throughout Christendom . . .

X. Swedenborgianism, which is the worship of the Lord our Saviour.

Samaria. Samaria.

Samaritan, A. Samarita.

Samaritan. Samaritis.

A. 1368³. 'Aholah' = the Spiritual Church, which is called 'Samaria.' 6534⁵.

2220². 'Samaria' = the perverted spiritual Church. Tr. 9466⁴. E. 163⁴.

—³. 'Samaria,' as mentioned in place of Gomorrah (Ezek. xvi.) = [the Church] as to falsities.

2466⁴. 'Samaria' (Ezek. xxiii.) = the Church which is in the affection of truth. (= the Spiritual Church. 7456⁴.)

2702⁵. 'Samaria' = the Spiritual Church, as often in the Word; and therefore the Lord talked with a woman from Samaria, and taught that the doctrine of truth is from Himself . . .

4169². 'The cities of the Samaritans' (Matt. x. 5) = those who are in falsities.

4720². That they were brought by Elisha to Samaria, where their eyes were opened (2 Kings vi. 19, 20) = instruction through the Word.

9057². The 'Samaritan' (Luke x.) = one who is in the affection of truth . . . because 'Samaria,' in the Word, = this affection.

9156². 'Samaria' (Micah i. 5) = the Church of perverted faith.

10050². 'They that dwell in Samaria' (Amos iii. 12) = those who are in external worship.

T. 410^e. That there are degrees of love towards the neighbour, is evident from the parable of the Samaritan . . . Compare E. 785⁴.)

E. 193⁸. 'The evils of Samaria' (Hos. vii. 1) = the evils of the will.

223²⁰. 'Into a city of the Samaritans enter ye not' (Matt. x. 5) = the false doctrine of those who reject the Lord . . . for the reason that the Samaritans did not admit Him (Luke xii. 52-56).

240⁶. 'Samaria,' where were the sons of Israel, = the Church in which are not truths, but falsities.

279⁹. 'The calf of Samaria.' Ill. and Ex.

375⁴². The 'Samaritan' = the gentiles who were in the good of charity towards the neighbour. 376³⁰. 444¹⁴.

391²⁸. 'Samaria' = the Spiritual Church, or the Church in which charity and faith make a one; but, after it had become perverted, 'Samaria' = the Church in which charity has been separated from faith, and still the latter is pronounced to be essential; and therefore also 'Samaria' = where there is truth no longer because no good; but evil of life instead of good, and falsity of doctrine instead of truth. This is signified by 'Samaria' is cut off' (Hos. x. 7) —²⁹. —³⁰.

483¹². The reason the Lord said these things to the Samaritan woman, when He sat by Jacob's well, was that by the Samaritans the Lord meant the gentiles who would receive Divine truths from Him; and by the Samaritan woman, the Church from them. 537⁴.

555⁷. Samaria, the metropolis of the Israelites, in the Word, = the Spiritual Church; and Jerusalem, the metropolis of the Jews, the Celestial Church; both as to doctrine. 576⁶. 653³. 724³². 960⁴. 1088, Ex.

587¹⁵. 'Samaria,' after it had become idolatrous, represented the Church vastated as to truths of doctrine and goods of life; or destroyed through falsities of doctrine and evils of life.

695²⁴. 'Samaria' = the Spiritual Church as to the truths of doctrine; here (Micah i.) as to the falsities of doctrine. 714²⁰.

962⁶. The 'Samaritan' = those in the good of charity.

Same. Idem.

A. 2015⁵. Whether you say . . . or . . . it is the same. M. 186. etc. etc.

10200^e. What is exactly similar, or the same, never returns.

H. 486². One thing the same as another is not possible. W. 155.

W. 77. That the Divine in the greatest and the least things is the same. (Gen. art. 223³).

226. There is not any least thing which is the same as another.

318². No substance, state, or Thing . . . can ever be the same as any other . . . to all eternity. (For example) not one face is the same as another . . . and therefore not one mind. P. 56². 190².

R. 961². The Divine Esse is One, the Same, etc.

—⁴. The Divine Esse, which in itself is God, is the Same; not the same simple, but infinite. This is the same from eternity to eternity, it is the same everywhere, and the same with and in everyone: all that is variant is in the recipient. T. 366.

M. 186². There does not exist the same; or the absolute identity of two things . . . T. 32. D. Love x.

Samson. Simson.

A. 3301⁴. Why Samson had strength from his hair. Ex. E. 66². 196³.

—⁴. Samson was not a sanctified Nazarite; that is, one who had put on good instead of truth. His strength on account of his hair was principally from his representing the Lord, who from the natural man as to truth fought with the Hells and subjugated them.

10182⁶. The thought of man from his Voluntary makes all the strength of the body; and if this were inspired by the Lord through His Divine truth, a man would have the strength of Samson . . .

S. 49². The Lord's power from the ultimates of truth, was represented by the Nazarites . . . and by Samson, of whom it is said that he was a Nazarite from his mother's womb; and that his power consisted in his hair. Ex.

D. 4751. (Charles XII.) wanted to die like Samson . . .

D. Min. 4756. Such are signified by Samson when he was put to sleep by his harlot. Ex.

E. 619¹⁸. See LION, here.

1086⁵. This power in ultimates was represented by the hair . . . with Samson; for the hairs correspond to the ultimates of Divine truth.

Samuel. Samuel.

Ad. 3/5023. (The Spirit brought up by the witch was not Samuel.) Ex.

E. 395⁵. Mentioned. 951².

750²¹. 'Moses and Samuel' (Jer. xv. 1) = the Word. 811⁹.

Sanctify. Sanctificare.

Sanctification. Sanctificatio.

A. 2187. Celestial and spiritual food was signified by the sanctified things which they ate . . . The sanctified things were [the parts of] the sacrifices which were not burned upon the altar, and were eaten either by the priests, or by the people who made the offering. Ill.

2776. That He should sanctify Himself to the Divine. Sig. and Ex.

— Their sanctifications were made by (burnt-offerings and sacrifices).

— The Lord sanctified Himself to the Divine; that is, united the Human to the Divine, through the combats and victories of temptations. 2788.

2788. The beginning of [His] sanctification. Sig. and Ex.

2834. The sanctification and adoption of (the spiritual). Sig. and Ex.

4545. 'To be purified,' or cleansed, = to be sanctified. Ex.

—⁶. By such things no one is sanctified.

7272. That they were sanctified by external things . . . and that they were not sanctified by charity and faith; thus that they were holy, although they lived in hatreds, etc. (an example of the evil of falsity).

8042. 'Sanctify to Me all the first-born' (Ex. xiii. 2) = that faith is from the Lord. 'To sanctify to the Lord' = to ascribe to Him; that is, to confess and acknowledge that it is from Him.

8080⁴. By sanctification they began to understand sacrifice. Ex.

8788. 'Sanctify them to-day and to-morrow' (Ex. xix. 10) = the veiling over of the interiors so that they may appear in the Holy of faith . . . 8806. 8832. 8838.

8887. 'To sanctify (the Sabbath)' (Ex. xx. 8) = no violation in any way.

8895. 'And hallowed it' (ver. 11) = that (the heavenly marriage with a regenerated man) cannot be violated.

9229². 'I sanctify Myself, that they also may be sanctified in the Truth' (John xvii. 19) = that He made Himself Divine by His own power: those who receive in faith and life the Divine truth which proceeds from Him, are said to be 'sanctified in the Truth.'

[A. 9229]. The sanctifications with (that) people were in order that the Lord who alone is holy might be represented, and in order that the Holy which is from Him alone might be represented. Ill.

9378⁴. 'I will be sanctified in them that are nigh to Me' (Lev.x.3)=with those who have been conjoined with the Lord through the good of love and the truth of faith from the Word.

9820. 'To sanctify him' (Ex.xxviii.3)=thus a representative of the Divine truth in (the Spiritual) Kingdom. 'To be sanctified'=to be imbued with the Divine truth; for the Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord is what is called 'holy' . . .

—^e. (Thus) it is the Lord who sanctifies man, Spirit, and Angel . . .

9956. 'Thou shalt sanctify them' (Ex.xxviii.41)=thus a representative of the Lord as to the Divine Human. 'To sanctify'=to represent the Holy itself which is the Lord as to the Divine Human; for this is what alone is holy . . . —², Ill. 9988.

9988. All sanctification represents the Lord. 10098^e.

10091. 'To sanctify'=to represent the Lord, and the holy things which are from Him. 10111. 10126.

10126. 'To sanctify it' (Ex.xxix.36)=thus the Lord there. Ex.

10128. 'Thou shalt sanctify it' (ver. 37)=to receive the Lord. Ex.

10149. 'It shall be sanctified in My glory' (ver. 43)=what is receptive of the Divine truth from the Lord. Ex.

10150. 'I will sanctify the tent of the assembly' (ver. 44)=what is receptive of the Lord in the lower Heavens. Ex.

10276. 'Thou shalt sanctify them, and they shall be the holies of holies' (Ex.xxx.29)=thus the influx and presence of the Lord in the worship of the representative Church. 'To be sanctified'=to represent the Lord as to the Divine Human, and the reception of the Divine good and Divine truth which are from Him. Ex.

10277. 'To be sanctified'=the influx and presence of the Lord . . .

10359. 'To know that I Jehovah sanctify you' (Ex.xxxi.13)=the Lord as to the Divine Human, which all things of Heaven and the Church regard as their only source. Ex.

—². Sanctification is the reception of the Divine of the Lord. Refs.

R. 758^e. The dogma that justification is real sanctification . . .

839⁹. 'Hallowed be Thy name'=to approach the Lord, and worship Him. Ill.

T. 142. See HOLY SPIRIT, here.

—². Through Divine truth from good; that is, through faith from charity, man is . . . sanctified, etc. . .

149. That the Lord sanctifies, etc. those who believe in Him . . .

301. 'Remember the Sabbath day, that thou sanctify it.' Gen.art. (See SABBATH, here.)

591^e. It is said that . . . sanctification follows this faith of itself . . .

E. 204⁹. 'Sanctification'=the Divine proceeding; for Divine good is what sanctifies; and Divine truth is that which is derivatively holy.

228⁴. 'To sanctify Himself'=to make His Human Divine.

Sanctuary. Sanctuarium.

A. 57^e. 'The waters out of the sanctuary' (Ezek.xlvii.12)=the life and mercy of the Lord, who is 'the sanctuary.' 109^e.

1038³. Love is meant by His 'sanctuary in the midst of them' (Ezek.xxxvii.26). (=conjunction through love and faith. 6804⁹.)

2049³. Who were not to be admitted 'into the sanctuary,' that is, into the Lord's Kingdom.

3210. The sanctuary of truth in the Divine Human. Sig. and Ex.

—². It is the veriest Divine good and truth in the Lord's Divine Human, with which the truth from the human was conjoined, which was signified by the sanctuary, which was the holy of holies in the tabernacle, and in the temple; and its quality was represented by the things therein. . . This was the very holy of holies, or the sanctuary of truth.

6502⁵. 'The sanctuary' (Ezek.xlvii.)=celestial love; in the supreme sense, the Lord's Divine Human, from which is this love.

8309^e. 'His sanctuary' (Ezek.xxxvii.)=where is the Divine truth in which is Divine good. (=the Lord's Divine Human. 9594³.) (=everything of the Church. 10248³.)

8330. 'Thy hands, O Lord, have prepared a sanctuary' (Ex.xv.17)=Heaven where are those who are in the truth of faith from the Lord. 'A sanctuary'=Heaven where is the truth of faith.

—³. As to 'a sanctuary,' in the supreme sense, it =the truth of faith which is from the Lord; and thence, in the representative sense, the Lord's Spiritual Kingdom, and also the Spiritual Church; and thence a regenerated man; thus, in the abstract sense, the truth of faith, thus faith itself. . . Hence Heaven is called 'a sanctuary,' from the truth of faith which is from the Lord. Ill.

9406². 'The place of My sanctuary' (Is.lx.13)=Heaven and the Church, and also the Word.

9479. 'They shall make for Me a sanctuary' (Ex.xxv.8)=a representative of the Lord, thus of Heaven . . . because it was the tabernacle, which could not be a sanctuary except through the representation. For a sanctuary is the Holy itself, and nothing is holy except what is Divine. . . That Heaven is a sanctuary, is because Heaven is Heaven from the Divine there. . . 10098^e.

—². That 'a sanctuary,' in the supreme sense, =the Lord . . . and that 'a sanctuary'=Heaven and also the Church; and that 'sanctuaries'=those things in Heaven and the Church which are from the Lord. Ill.

9642³. 'Sanctuaries' (Ezek.xxi.2)=the things which are of the Church.

10123^e. 'The sanctuary' (Lam.ii.7)=everything of the Church as to truth.

M. 75⁸. That light was from the sanctuary of the tabernacle of their worship . . . Within that sanctuary was a tablet . . .

77². In the midst of their sacred edifices there is a sanctuary, where in an ark, lies the (Ancient) Word . . .

D. 2393. Reasons which are in the Lord's sanctuary.

E. 270⁵. The 'sanctuary' from which they should 'begin' (Ezek.ix.6)=the Church as to the good of love and truth of faith.

288⁴. 'Strength and beauty are in His sanctuary' (Ps.xvii.6)=(Divine good and Divine truth in) the Church.

316¹⁶. 'The habitation of his sanctuary was cast forth' (Dan.viii.11)=the vastation of the Church.

336⁵. 'In the sanctuary' (Ps.lxxviii.17)=Heaven and the Church where is Divine truth.

391¹⁵. 'Sanctuary' is said of the Church as to truths.

405¹⁴. 'His sanctuary' (Ps.cxiv.2)=the Holy itself of Heaven and the Church (=in the supreme sense, the Lord Himself; and, in the relative sense, the worship of Him from the good of love. 433²⁴.)

601¹⁷. 'The sanctuary' (Ps.lxxiv.3)=the Church.

632⁸. 'To tread down the sanctuary' (Is.lxiii.18)=to destroy the truths of doctrine from the Word.

684²⁹. 'The sanctuary' (Dan.ix.26)=the Church.

701¹⁹. Heaven and the Church are called 'a sanctuary' (Ezek.xxxvii.26) from the good of love; and 'a habitation,' from the truths of that good.

706²¹. 'The enemy hath destroyed all things in the sanctuary' (Ps.lxxiv.3)=that evil has destroyed the holy things of the Church.

724²⁵. 'The sanctuary' which He will 'profane' (Ezek.xxiv.21)=the Word from which is the Church; for this is the sanctuary itself, because it is Divine truth.

768²⁶. 'My sanctuary' (Lev.xx.3)=the truth of Heaven and the Church.

863¹³. His advent is meant by, 'His steps in the sanctuary' (Ps.lxxviii.24).

1088². Divine truth is not holy until it is in its ultimate, (which) is the Word in the sense of the letter; and therefore Divine truth there is holy, and may be called the sanctuary. Ex.

Can. Holy Spirit v. 4. Hence the place in the tabernacle where the ark was . . . was called 'the sanctuary,' and 'the holy of holies.'

Sand. Arena.

Sandy. Arenosus.

A. 1803². 'Seed as the sand' (Is.xlviii.19)=good.

2850. 'As the sand which is upon the sea shore' (Gen.xxii.17)=the multitude of corresponding scientifics . . . 'The sand'=scientifics in special and in particular. Scientifics are compared to that sand, because the little stones of which sand consists, in the internal sense, are scientifics.

—². 'Stars,' or Knowledges, relate to the Rational; and 'the sand of the sea shore,' or scientifics, to the Natural.

5345. 'Joseph heaped up corn as the sand of the sea' (Gen.xi.49)=the multiplication of truth from good. . . When the multiplication of (truth in the will and act) is compared to 'the sand of the sea,' it signifies that it is from good.

6479. One scruple is like a grain of sand placed close before the pupil of the eye.

6762. 'He hid him in the sand' (Ex.ii.12) that he relegated it where falsities are . . . 'Sand'=scientific truth; here, scientific falsity; for the reason that stone, from which comes sand, signifies both.

—². 'The covered things of the hidden things of the sand' (Deut.xxxiii.19)=the arcana of scientific truths. (=the spiritual things which lie concealed in the sense of the letter of the Word. E.445⁵.)

H. 488². Those who have studied knowledges merely, to be called learned; and those who have not cultivated the Rational by them . . . love sandy places . . . because sandy places correspond to such studies.

S. 96a. He who is in the doctrine of a false religion, and has confirmed its falsity . . . is not even in a forest, but is outside it in a sandy plain, where there is no grass.

W. 172^e. Even from sand there breathes forth that which contributes aid to producing something, thus to effecting something.

R. 90^e. Around those in faith separated from charity, there is not even grass, but sand. D.6044. 6046.

463^e. (They were then seen) in a sandy place.

565a. 'I stood upon the sand of the sea' (Rev.xiii.1) =his spiritual natural state now such as is with those in the First Heaven. Ex.

655². The satyrs . . . sprinkled sand upon the place of slaughter.

860. 'The number of whom is as the sand of the sea' (Rev.xx.8)=the multitude of such. . . By 'the sand' is signified that which serves no use in the sea, except to make the bottom.

D. 2391. As when one is walking in deep sand . . .

6044. He then saw nothing but sandy places . . .

E. 212². Those in faith separated from charity are meant by . . . those who 'build their house upon the sand' (Matt.vii.26). 'Sand'=faith separated from charity.

444⁷. 'The sand of the sea' (Jer.xxxiii.22)=these Knowledges in the natural man.

644²⁴. 'The sand' (Matt.vii.26)=Divine truth received only in the memory, and thence a little in the thought, and thus scattered and disconnected, because corrupted by falsities, and falsified by ideas.

771. 'I stood upon the sand of the sea'=a continuation of the state of those who are signified by the dragon. Ex. Moreover, by 'the sand of the sea' is signified what is barren, such as is with those who do think about faith, but nothing about the life of faith, which is charity ; for where such dwell there appears nothing but heaps of stones, and also sand . . .

[E.] 811⁷. That all truths will be destroyed through falsities, is signified by 'he shall gather captivity as the sand' (Hab.i.9).

Sane. Compos. D.2582^e. 3963. 5569².

Sanity. See under HEAL.

Santorian. Santorianus. D.1738.

Sap. See under JUICE.

Sapphire. Sapphirus.

Sapphirine. Sapphirinus.

See under STONE.

A. 9407. 'As the work of a sapphire' (Ex.xxiv.10)= what is translucent there from internal truths, and all things from the Lord ; (for) 'the work of a sapphire'= the quality of the literal sense of the Word when the internal sense is apperceived in it . . . E. 329⁷. 701¹¹.

—⁸. Truth Divine translucent in the ultimate of order, which is the Word in the letter, is especially signified by 'a sapphire.' Ill.

—⁹. (Thus) 'a sapphire'=truth in ultimates translucent from internal truths.

—¹⁰. 'A sapphire stone' (Ezek.i.26)=truth translucent from internal truths ; 'a stone'=truth ; and 'sapphire,' transluence.

9643⁵. 'Sapphires' (Is.liv.11)=interior truths.

9868. 'A chrysope, a sapphire, and a diamond' (Ex.xxviii.18)=the celestial love of truth, from which are what follow . . . The stones of this row partake of a blue which is from red . . . which sparkles inwardly from what is flamy ; and it is this blue which=the celestial love of truth.

—⁴. The sapphire . . . is of an azure colour, such as is that of the sky . . . and therefore it is said . . . 'there was under His feet like the work of a sapphire, and like the substance of heaven for cleanness' (Ex. xxiv.10). This stone=what is translucent from interior truths, which are the truths of celestial love.

9873⁴. 'The sapphire,' in a general sense,=the external of the Celestial Kingdom . . . and therefore it was the middle stone in the second row ; (for) the stones of the second row=the external good of the Celestial Kingdom, which is called the celestial love of truth, (and the middle involves the whole. —⁷).

—⁵. That 'the sapphire'=the external of the Celestial Kingdom. Ill.

M. 2. See RUBY=pyropus, here. 42³.

15. The councillors . . . wore ent-sculpti-sapphires, pendant from their necks . . .

315³. Each (successively) put on . . . a hat, upon the crown of which was a rosary girt about with small sapphires.

381^e. Clad in cloaks of a sapphirine colour.

T. 609². The sapphire (in the Word)=spiritual good, which is the good of the Middle Heaven.

E. 196^e. 'A sapphire'=what is translucent from truths. Ref.

253². The reason the throne appeared in the aspect of a sapphire stone (Ezek.i.26 : x.1) was that 'a sapphire'=the Divine truth proceeding from His Divine good, and, thence, spiritual truth pellucid from celestial good . . .

717⁵. By sapphires, carbuncles, rubies, etc. are signified such truths as are in the sense of the letter, which are ultimate, because for the natural and sensuous man.

—¹⁴. 'The work of a sapphire stone under His feet' (Ex.xxiv.10)=Divine truth in ultimates, such as is the Word in the letter. . . 'A sapphire'=what is translucent from internal truths.

Sarah. Sarah.

Sarai. Sarai.

See under ABRAHAM, and INTELLECTUAL TRUTH.

A. 1371. 'Sarai was barren, she had no offspring' (Gen.xi.30)=that evil and falsity produced themselves no more.

1402. 'Sarai' as 'a wife'=truth to be adjoined to the Celestial ; 'Sarai' as 'a sister'=intellectual truth. 1468.

1432. 'Sarai' (Gen.xii.5)=truth.

1469. That 'Sarai a wife'=the truth adjoined to the celestial things which were with the Lord. Ex. 1489.

1893. 'Sarai the wife of Abram did not bear to him' (Gen.xvi.1)=that as yet there was no rational man.

1894. 'Sarai'=truth adjoined to good. 1895. 1898. 1911.

1901. 'Sarai'=intellectual truth which as a wife has been adjoined to good. Intellectual truth . . . is like a mother without offspring when as yet there is no Rational, into which and through which it may inflow . . . This intellectual truth represented by Sarai is the Spiritual itself which inflows through Heaven . . .

—^e. As the Rational cannot come forth except also through the influx of the intellectual truth represented by Sarai . . .

1904. 'Sarai, Abram's wife, took' (ver.3)=the affection of truth, which, in the genuine sense, is 'Sarai the wife ;' (for) 'Sarai'=truth adjoined to good ; and 'a wife'=affection. 1907. 1913.

1921². These things were said to Sarai, by whom is represented intellectual truth, which the Lord Himself had, and from which He thought . . .

1936. What, in special, is signified by Sarai ; by Sarai as a wife, and by Sarai as a mistress, cannot be described . . .

2010. (Why Sarai was changed to Sarah. See ABRAHAM, here.)

2062. 'Sarai thy wife' (Gen.xvii.15)=truth conjoined with good. 'Sarai'=intellectual truth ; and, as 'wife' is here added, she=this truth conjoined with good.

2063. 'Thou shalt not call her name Sarai, for Sarah is her name' (ver.15)=that He will put off the human, and will put on the Divine . . . For the letter 'H,' which was added in the name 'Sarah,' was taken from the name 'Jehovah,' in order that Surah, like Abraham, should represent the Lord's Divine; namely, the Divine marriage of good with truth in the Lord; Abraham, the Divine good, and Sarah, the Divine truth, from which should be born the Divine Rational.

—². The truth which was to be conjoined with the Divine good, was represented by 'Sarai,' and which, when made Divine, is represented by 'Sarah' . . . The truth not as yet Divine, represented by 'Sarai,' was not as yet so united to good as to be truth from good.

2065. For by 'Sarah' is represented . . . the truth of good, which is intellectual truth.

2069². By 'Sarah' is signified the Divine truth which the Lord had. —³.

2075. 'Shall Sarah a daughter of ninety years bear?' (ver. 17)=that truth conjoined with good will do this; (for) 'Sarah'=truth conjoined with good, or truth Divine.

2081. 'Sarah'=Divine truth conjoined with Divine good. 2093.

2093³. The truth itself represented by Sarah was of the internal man, thus was Divine.

2173. That 'Sarah' is here the Lord as to truth, is evident from the representation of Sarah, which is intellectual truth adjoined to good; here, rational truth. Ex.

2189. 'Where is Sarah thy wife?' (Gen. xviii. 9)=rational truth, which then did not appear, because it was in rational good. Ex.

2194. 'A son for Sarah thy wife' (ver. 10). . . 'Sarah'=rational truth.

2195. 'Sarah heard at the door of the tent' (id.)=that rational truth was then near what is holy.

2198. Sarah represents the Lord as to rational truth . . . thus both (she and Abraham) here represent the Human with the Lord.

2200. 'It ceased to be with Sarah as is the way of women' (ver. 11)=that it could no longer remain thus.

2202. 'Sarah laughed within herself' (ver. 12)=the affection of that rational truth in regard to its being so done. 2203, Ex. 2207.

2204. 'Sarah'=rational truth. 2207.

2213. 'A son for Sarah'=the Divine Rational about to be.

2208^e. The rational truth represented by Sarah could not comprehend (this). Sig.

2216^e. The state of the human Rational with the Lord is described by Sarah's laughing; and thereby is signified with what affection the truth of the Rational, then separated from good, regarded that which was said: that it should be put off, and the Divine put on . . . It perceived from the Divine of what quality it still was, and how much of the human there was still in it, which it should expel. This is signified by the laughing of Sarah.

2507. 'Sarah his wife' (Gen. xx. 2)=spiritual truth conjoined with the Celestial; (for) 'Sarah a wife'=intellectual truth conjoined with Divine good; or, what is the same, spiritual truth conjoined with the Celestial. Refs. 2558. 2569. 2588.

2510. (Abimelech) regarded Sarah . . . as Abraham's sister; and by Sarah as a sister is signified rational truth. 2556. 2587.

2517². 'Sarah a wife'=spiritual truth . . . And as 'Sarah'=Divine spiritual truth, the doctrine itself of true faith is also meant by 'Sarah a wife:' for doctrine is from truths.

2531. Sarah as a sister=what is rational.

2558. Sarah from a sister made a wife=spiritual truth conjoined with the Celestial by means of rationality.

2574. 'Sarah as a wife'=Divine spiritual truth.

2616. 'Jehovah visited Sarah' (Gen. xxi. 1)=the presence of the Divine Celestial in the Divine Spiritual. . . 'Sarah'=the Divine Spiritual, that is, the Divine truth. 2639. 2643. 2651.

2629. 'Whom Sarah bare to him' (Gen. xxi. 3)=the esse and existere from the Divine Spiritual united to the Divine Celestial.

2665. '[In] all that Sarah saith unto thee, hearken unto her voice' (ver. 12)=that He should act according to spiritual truth. 'Sarah'=the Divine Spiritual, or Divine truth.

2901. 'Sarah,' here (Gen. xxiii.)=the truth Divine which expired.

2904. 'The lives of Sarah were' (ver. 1)=the times and states of the Church as to the truths Divine which had preceded.

—². Sarah, when she lived as a wife with Abraham, represented the Lord's Divine truth conjoined with His Divine good . . . and, as she=the Lord's Divine truth, she also=the truth Divine of the Church; for in the Church there is no other truth than that which is the Lord's.

2906. 'The years of the lives of Sarah' (id.)=while any truth Divine remained. 'The lives of Sarah'=the states as to truth Divine.

2908. 'Sarah died' (ver. 2)=night as to the truths of faith. . . 'Sarah'=truth Divine. 2910.

2979. 'Abraham buried Sarah his wife' (ver. 19)=that they received from the Lord truth conjoined with good. . . Sarah as a wife=truth conjoined with good.

3141. 'Sarah' (as the mother of Isaac)=the Divine truth.

3210. 'Isaac introduced her into the tent of Sarah his mother' (Gen. xxiv. 67)=the sanctuary of truth in the Divine Human. . . 'Sarah the mother'=truth Divine, from which was born the Divine Human, the Rational of which is represented by her son Isaac.

3235. Abraham and Sarah represented the Lord as to the Divine Celestial . . . Ex.

3264. By Sarah is represented the Lord's Divine truth.

Sardis. Sardes.

R. 154. 'To the Angel of the Church in Sardis write' (Rev. iii. 1)=to those and concerning those who are in dead worship, or in worship which is devoid of the goods of charity and the truths of faith. Ex. (=those who lead a moral life, but not a spiritual one, because they have little regard for the Knowledges of spiritual things, and the derivative intelligence and wisdom. E.182.)

E. 195. 'Thou hast a few names even in Sardis, which have not defiled their garments' (ver.4)=those who lead a moral life from a spiritual origin by applying the Knowledges of truth and good from the Word to the uses of their life.

256. Life according to doctrine is treated of in the things written to the Churches in Thyatira and Sardis.

Sardius. Sardius.

R. 231. 'He . . . was like a jasper and a sardius' (Rev.iv.3)=the appearance of the Divine wisdom and Divine love in ultimates. . . The sardius, because it is red, =the things which are of the good of love. Ex.

915. 'The . . . sixth (foundation) was a sardius' (Rev.xxi.19). Ex.

E. 268. 'A sardine stone' = the celestial love of good.

—³. 'A sardius' also is mentioned, because by this stone is signified good; here, the Divine good. It is this stone which is called a 'pyropus' (or ruby) which . . . shines as if from fire . . .

Sardonyx. See ONYX.

Sarepta. Sarepta.

A. 4844¹³. 'To Sarepta of Sidon' (Luke iv.26)=to those outside the Church who long for truth.

9198⁶. 'Except to Sarepta of Sidon, to a widow woman' (id.)=except to those who are in good and long for truth. Sarepta of Sidon is said, because 'Sidon'=the Knowledges of good and truth.

Satan. Satan.

Satanic. Satanicus.

A. 9993⁶. To worship Satan from the truths of faith. Sig.

— Those in the Hell of evil Spirits are called 'Satan.'

10137⁷. To worship Satan from evils. Sig.

H. 311². See DEVIL, here. P.153^e. R.387^e. 550. 841. M.380². 492. E.120. 740. 758^e.

544. By 'Satan' is meant that Hell which is in front, where they are not so malignant, and are called evil Spirits.

W. 273³. There is another love, called 'Satan,' subordinate to that called 'the devil,' and which is the love of possessing the goods of others by every evil art. (Clever wickednesses and cunning are its crew. Those in this Hell are called, in general, satans.)

P. 33³. The falsity of evil, and Satan, are one.

310³. Those are called 'satans' who confirm with themselves the concupiscences of evil.

R. 97. 'But are the synagogue of Satan' (Rev.ii.9)=because they are in falsities as to doctrine. . . 'Satan' = the Hell from those in falsities . . . properly, those who are in the conceit of Own intelligence . . .

110. 'Thou dwellest where Satan's throne is' (ver.13) = their life in thick darkness. 'Satan' = the Hell from those in falsities; and to be in falsities is to be in spiritual thick darkness.

—³. Moreover (there) the satanic Spirits have power through those who are in works alone; but without them, none at all; for they adjoin [the satanic Spirits] to themselves. Ex.

112. 'Who was slain among you, where Satan dwelleth' (id.)=when all truth has been extinguished through the falsities in the Church.

—^e. 'Satan' = the Hell where and whence are falsities.

143. 'Who have not Known the depths of Satan, as they speak' (ver.24)=who do not understand their interiors, which are mere falsities. 'Satan' = the Hell of those in falsities; and, abstractedly, falsities.

181. 'The synagogue of Satan' (Rev.iii.9)=those who are in falsities as to doctrine.

393. Propitiation lest the Angels of the Spiritual Kingdom be hurt by the Spirits of the Satanic Kingdom. Sig. and Ex.

440. That in the Satanic Hell are those who are in falsities from concupiscences, and who have destroyed the Church through the total falsification of the Word. Sig. and Ex.

— 'The abyss' = the Satanic Hell.

802². The love of possessing all things of the world is 'Satan;' and the Devil and Satan act as one, as if conjoined in a covenant, with such as from the one love are in the other.

856. 'When the thousand years have been consummated, Satan shall be loosed out of his prison' (Rev.xx.7)=that after . . . the New Christian Heaven had been augmented (by those from the Lower Earth), all those who had confirmed with themselves the falsities of faith should be let loose. Ex.

M. 415. Some satans in Hell said . . . Would that we might be allowed to speak with the Angels . . . We will demonstrate . . . that nature is what they call God . . . As those satans believed this with all their heart and soul . . . they were permitted to ascend . . . and speak with two Angels . . . in the World of Spirits. (Their conversation related.) T.77.

—³. A satan, equally with an Angel, can understand truth when he hears it; but he does not retain it . . .

—⁴. The satans replied, In the state in which we now are, we can conclude . . . that there is a God; but when the delight of evil takes possession of our minds, we see nothing but nature.

—⁶. A guard was (then) given the satans, and they ascended with the two Angels into Heaven . . . and then, in illustration from the light of Heaven, they acknowledged that there is a God . . . As they descended, the love of evil returned, and closed their understanding above, and opened it beneath . . . and the moment they touched the earth with their feet, the ground yawned under them, and they sank back to their own.

T. 14². When (the man who denies God) is thus excluded from communion with the Angels . . . he introduces himself into communion with the satans of Hell, and thinks in unity with them; and all satans deny God, and think fatuously about God and the spiritual things of the Church; and in like manner does the man conjoined with them.

34^e. (This) is done when God is denied, and Satan is worshipped.

71³. (A Spirit raised himself up from the Lower Earth, who could transform himself into an Angel of light). This satan (then said) in a bland tone . . . On hearing this, that satan changed in face . . . and said, You have spoken paradoxes against paradoxes; and instantly sank down to his own.

So. A satan, by leave, ascended from Hell, together with a woman, and approached the house where I was. On seeing them, I closed the window, yet spoke with them through it . . . I asked the satan whether she was his wife. He replied, What is a wife . . . The satan said that his employment was erudition . . . Our God (said he) is the universe . . . (He states his ideas about religion, Heaven, and Hell) not knowing that he was living after death, and having forgotten all he had heard when he first entered the World of Spirits . . . But recollection being given him, he was ashamed, and cried out, I am insane . . . but now I will retain this, and will relate it to my companions . . . and he kept it on his tongue to call them insane; but, as he descended, forgetfulness expelled recollection, and, when he was there, he was as insane as they were, and called those things insanities which he had heard from me. Such is the state of thought and speech of satans after death. Those are called satans who have confirmed with themselves falsities even to faith.

380³. When a spirit from Hell has been adjoined, the man enters more and more as into a fraternity with satans; and then confirms himself more and more in falsities against the truths of the Word, and in the Arian and Socinian abomination against the Lord. The reason is that no satan can endure to hear any truth from the Word, nor to hear Jesus named. If they do hear them, they become like furies . . . and if light from Heaven then inflows, they cast themselves headlong into caverns . . . All become such after death who in heart and faith deny the Divinity of the Lord, and the holiness of the Word.

401⁴. With the evil, the internal man is a satan; and, while he lives in the body, is in society with them, and, after dissolution from the body, comes among them.

487². With a satanic countenance they looked at me . . .

569⁵. I saw a certain satan punished by his own (for bringing with him the odour of Heaven in his clothes).

D. 2656. Concerning Satan. Gen.art.

6045^e. Sometimes Satan (appears to them as God).

E. 120. 'The synagogue of Satan' = the doctrine of all falsities with them. . . 'Satan' = the Hell from which are all falsities.

134. 'Where Satan's throne is' = where all falsities reign.

138. 'Where Satan dwells' = those in the doctrine of all falsities. . . When a man comes into spiritual temptation, he is then among these Spirits who are in falsities . . .

210. 'The synagogue of Satan' = those who are in the doctrine concerning faith alone, and in no charity.

535². By 'Satan' is meant all the falsity which destroys truth; for the Hells where such things are, and whence they are, are called 'Satan;' whereas the Hells where and whence are the evils which destroy goods are called 'the Devil;' and therefore 'Satan as lightning fell from heaven' = that all the falsity which has destroyed the truth of the Word has been cast down out of Heaven. (Compare 544².)

655². The Kingdom opposite to the Spiritual Kingdom is in front, and those there are called evil Spirits: this Kingdom is what is meant in the Word by 'Satan.' 740³. 1043².

1142². All those (in Hell) are called either devils or satans; devils, those with whom the love of self has predominated; satans, those with whom the love of the world has predominated. The Hell where devils are is meant in the Word by 'the Devil;' and the Hell where satans are, by 'Satan.' The Lord so conjoins the devils that they are as a one; and also the satans; hence it is that the Hells are named 'the Devil,' and 'Satan,' in the singular.

De Verbo 6². They began to conjoin themselves with some satans there . . .

5 M. 1. Suddenly there ascended from the Hells a certain satan. The satans are all merely natural, and can reason skilfully, but from the fallacies of the senses, and therefore they see falsities as truths. (The appearance of this satan. Des.) (Continued under SEE.)

— But the rationality with satans is solely in externals . . .

21. Satanic Spirits who (had formed as it were Heavens) . . .

Coro. 20. The cause is that man is then in the midst of satans; and the satans with their falsities veil his head round, and inspire the delights of evil, and thence the pleasantnesses of falsity . . .

Satellite. See GUARD.

Satisfy. Satiare.

Satiety. Satietas.

A. 5579. In the Spiritual World they are satisfied [in appetite] with truths and goods . . .

S410. 'In our eating bread to satiety' (Ex.xvi.3) = enjoy the good of pleasures as much as they wanted. S432. S448.

—^e. For the will is what is satisfied with good with the good, and with evil with the evil.

9393³. 'Ye shall eat fat to satiety . . . Ye shall be satisfied upon my table' (Ezek.xxxix.19,20). Ex. E.355². 617²⁵.

R. 837. 'All the birds were filled with their flesh' (Rev.xix.21) = that the infernal Genii are as it were fed with their concupiscences . . .

T. 167^e. Like burdening a table with food after satiety.

E. 295⁹. 'To satisfy every living thing with good-pleasure' (Ps.cxlvi.16)=to enrich all who receive life from Him with Divine truth from love.

376³³. 'The dogs . . . do not know satiety' (Is.lvi.11) =cannot receive good. 'Satiety'=the reception of good; for 'satiety' is predicated of food, by which is signified spiritual nourishment.

519⁴. Occurs. 960⁵.

532⁸. 'Not to be satisfied' (Amos.iv.8)=not to find truth which in itself is truth.

555¹². 'To eat and not be satisfied' (Lev.xxvi.26)=because truth from good is so little and so rare that it will yield scarcely any nourishment for the soul.

617¹⁰. 'Wherefore do ye spend . . . your labour for that which is not for satiety?' (Is.lv.2)=that it is in vain to procure for ourselves from proprium that which nourishes the soul. . . 'Satiety'=that which nourishes the soul; here, that which does not nourish it. (Further ill.)

—¹³. 'To eat to satiety' (Dent.vi.11) = plenary reception, perception, and appropriation.

653⁴. 'Satiety of bread' (Ezek.xvi.49)=contempt for all the good and truth of Heaven and the Church, and nausea at them.

654⁷. 'No satiety for thee' (ver.28)=the cupidity of falsifying truths without end.

Satisfy. Satisfacere.

Satisfaction. Satisfactio.

A. 9046. Amendment even to satisfaction. Sig. and Ex.

L. 18. Expiation, satisfaction, and propitiation . . .

M. 6⁶. There is a certain vein . . . which draws the mind to do something: the mind by this tranquillizes and satisfies itself. This satisfaction and tranquillity make a state of mind receptive of the love of use from the Lord . . .

T. 33^e. That human reason may be satisfied.

Satisfy. Saturare.

Satiety. Saturitas.

See FULL—satur.

A. 574². Occurs. E.405²¹ 654⁴⁴. 721⁸.

1458². 'To satisfy the afflicted soul' (Is.lviii.10)=the goods of charity in general. (=to instruct in the good of faith. 9050⁷.) (Compare E.386²⁵.)

2220². That they are averse to the goods of charity, is signified by 'satiety of bread' (Ezek.xvi.49).

E. 141⁶. 'When I had fed them to the full, they scortated' (Jer.v.7)=when truths had been revealed to them, they falsified them.

294⁷. 'Thou openest thine hand, they are satisfied with good' (Ps.civ.28)=that they receive the good which inflows from the Lord.

329¹⁰. The abundance (of good and truth) is described by, 'they shall eat flesh and fat to satiety, and drink blood to ebriety' (Ezek.xxxix.19).

386². 'To eat and not be satisfied' (Is.ix.20)=to be deprived. (Compare 600¹³. 617²⁹.)

—¹⁷. 'Blessed are they that hunger for righteousness; for they shall be filled' (Matt.v.6).

—²³. 'They that were full' (1 Sam.ii.5). Ex. 721⁶.

439³. To be infilled with the good of love, is meant by, 'satisfied with the good-pleasure of Jehovah' (Dent. xxxiii.23).

622³. That those who are affected with truths are fully instructed, is signified by 'the sons are satisfied' (Ps.xvii.14).

—¹⁰. That from these things there is not any spiritual nourishment, or intelligence and affection of good, is signified by, 'they shall not satisfy their soul, and they shall not infil their viscera' (Ezek.vii.19).

630¹¹. 'To be satisfied with the good of Thy house' (Ps.lxv.4)=to be in wisdom from Divine good; and, 'to be satisfied with the holiness of Thy temple'=to be in intelligence from Divine truth; and, from both, to enjoy heavenly joy.

721⁶. Those of the Jewish Church are called 'full,' from the fact that they had truths in abundance.

780¹⁰. 'Then they were filled' (Hos.xiii.6)=. . . to the full nourishment of the soul.

Saturated. See under ADDICT.

Saturn. Saturnus. (The god.)

Saturnian. Saturninus.

A. 8118. The Golden or Saturnian Age. M.153³. 315³.

T. 159³. See APOLLO.

D. 4775². See JUPITER (the god).

De Conj. 120. The Most Ancient Church, which was the Golden Age, the age of Saturn.

Saturn. Saturnus. (The planet.)

A. 6697^e. The planet Saturn, because furthest distant from the sun, has, besides its moons, a great lunar belt, which gives much light, though reflected, to that Earth.

7171^e. (In the idea of Spirits) the planet Saturn appears quite in front, at an extraordinary distance.

8947. On the Spirits and inhabitants of the planet Saturn. Gen.art. 9104. U.97. D.1513.

— The Spirits from [Saturn], and also [Saturn] itself, appear in front at an extraordinary distance, in the plane of the lower part of the knees; and, when the eye is opened thither, a multitude of Spirits come into view, who are all from that Earth. They are seen on this side of the planet, and to the right.

8948. (The inhabitants of Saturn) are upright and modest; and, as they esteem themselves as relatively little, in the other life they appear little. D.1515. 1516.

8949. In worship they are very humble; for in it they esteem themselves as nothing. They worship our Lord, and acknowledge Him as the only God; for the Lord sometimes appears to those in that Earth under an angelic form . . . When they come of age, they speak with Spirits, by whom they are instructed about the Lord, how He is to be worshipped, and how they ought to live. D.1525.

8950. When any want to . . . draw the Spirits of Saturn from faith in the Lord, from humiliation towards Him, or from uprightness of life, they say that they want to die. Small knives then appear in their hands, with which they seem to want to strike their breasts . . . They say they would rather die than be led away from the Lord . . . D.1517.

8951. Some in that Earth call the great nocturnal light the Lord; but these are separated . . . That nocturnal light is shed from that great belt . . . and from the moons . . . D.1518.

8952. That great belt . . . does not appear to them as a belt, but only as a snowiness in the sky in various directions.

8953. They relate to . . . that which is intermediate between the spiritual and the natural sense, in man; but they . . . approach the spiritual. Hence it is that those Spirits often seem to themselves to be rapt into Heaven, and afterwards to be sent back, thus alternately . . . 9107. D.1526. 1528.†

8954. There are no cities, nor kingdoms, there; but they live distinct in families . . . thus a man and his wife with their children. When these marry, they are separated from the houses of their parents . . . and therefore the Spirits from that Earth appear in pairs. D.1520.

8955. All in that Earth . . . know that they will live after death; and therefore they make no account of their bodies, except in so far as concerns their life, which they say will remain and serve the Lord. Therefore they do not bury the bodies of the dead, but cast them forth, and cover with branches of trees from the forest.

8956. They are but little solicitous about food and clothing; they feed on fruits and leguminous plants of various kinds . . . and are slightly clad; for they are encompassed with a thick skin or coat, which repels the cold. D.1521-1523.

9104. The Spirits of Saturn appear at the end of our solar system; (but) the passage to them is effected in a moment. Ex.

9105. They spoke to me thence through intermediate Spirits . . . saying that it is insane to ask them what God they worship, since there is but one God; and that (the Spirits of our Earth) are still more insane in not knowing that the Lord is the only God . . . D.1514.

9107^e. Thus the Spirits of our Earth relate to the external man; and those of Saturn to the internal.

9108. (When violently infested by Spirits of our Earth) those of Saturn feared nothing, because they were safe, and in tranquillity; whereas the former, when in the midst of them, began to respire with difficulty . . . and disappeared. D.3330.

9237. That there are inhabitants in the satellites around the Earth Saturn.

D. 1516. The Spirits of Saturn relate to that in man which is called the internal sense, or reason. 1527. 1558a. 1583. 3328.

1524. (The inhabitants of Saturn) have almost no speech; but signify what they are thinking and willing by the face, especially by the eyes; and thus they instruct the little children.

1583. A Spirit who wanted to arrogate merit . . . came to those who are the internal sense, or to the Spirits of the Earth Saturn, and said that he was nothing . . . But, at his first approach, they replied that he wanted to be great, and that as they were little, they could not be with the great . . .

3328. Concerning the Spirits of our Earth against the Spirits of Saturn. Gen.art.

3330^e. When the Spirits of Saturn did not appear, tranquillity at once arose among the Spirits of this Earth. Ex.

Satyr. Satyrus.

Satyric. Satyriacus.

A. 1326³. 'Satyrs' (Is. xiii. 21). Ex. (This is rendered 'daemones sylvestres—forest demons—in R.458²; and it is said that they)=concupiscences such as those of priapi and satyrs.

R. 655. (A company of dragonists who appeared afar like satyrs and priapuses. Their cruel sports des.) T. 388.

—³. It was the appearances of the cupidities with them which were seen as satyrs and priapuses . . .

M. 44⁴. The maidens (of Heaven) flee away from such, and tell their companions that they have seen satyrs or priapuses . . .

521. I saw a crowd of satyrs in a thick forest. (Their appearance, doings, and conversation, des.)

—². The satyrs with feet like calves, said, concerning marriages . . . Those with feet like panthers, said, concerning nature . . . Those with feet like wolves said, concerning religion . . .

—³. On seeing me . . . they began to speak modestly . . . by which I knew that they were not from the common people. I then told them that I had seen them as satyrs: twenty as calf satyrs; six as panther satyrs; and four as wolf satyrs; at which they wondered, because they had seen themselves as men; in like manner as they saw themselves when with me. I instructed them that they had so appeared from afar from scortatory lust; and that this satyric form is the form of dissolute adultery . . . They said that they came from Italy, Poland, Germany, England, Sweden; but had never seen anyone from Holland among them.

T. 316². Adulterers may be compared to . . . the satyrs and priapuses of the ancients . . . Moreover, adulterers (there) actually appear as satyrs and priapuses.

574^e. How many of the human race are there who have not been born satyrs and priapuses . . .

D. 4859. On priapuses and satyrs.—Those who have continually thought about adulteries . . . when seen by the Angels, appear as satyrs. Des.

E. 586⁶. 'Forest demons,' or 'satyrs,' = cupidities merely corporeal.

[E.] 1029¹⁴. 'Satyrs' (Is. xiii.) = adulterated goods ; 'to dance' = joy from a filthy love which has adulterated the good of love. 1037⁹.

Satyriasis. Satyriasis. M.459². T.566.

Saul. Saul, Schaul.

A. 1361². See KING. 10540⁷.

4763³. Saul mentioned. —⁴. D.1997. 2472. E.951².

R. 166³. These things are said of Saul, because by him as a king is signified Divine truth. E.195¹⁰.

D. 2022. Thus did Saul prophesy . . . 2272.

E. 278¹⁰. By Saul as a king (2 Sam. i. 23) is meant truth protecting the Church. (= the truth of the Church. 281⁷.) (= truth from good. 357³.) (= the Divine truth of the Church. 395⁷.)

323¹². Saul (when the evil spirit was upon him) = the falsities opposed to spiritual truths ; which were dispersed by the sound of a harp, because 'a harp' = the affection of spiritual truth.

357³. 'The sword of Saul' (ver. 22) = truth from good.

Savage. Immities. A. 7246.

Save. See under KEEP—servare, and SALVATION.

Saviour. See under SALVATION.

Savour. See under RELISH.

Savoury Meats. See DAINTIES.

Sawing. Serratio.

Sawyer. Serrarius.

A. 1111. (Such) are called sawyers of grass. They are cold, and by this sawing try to warm themselves . . . They return to their sawings . . . D. 3054. 3079.

5184. Those who belong to the pancreas, act . . . as it were by a kind of sawing. D. 1009, Ex.

Saxe Coburg. See under SWEDENBORG, at the end.

Saxony. Saxonia.

T. 796⁶. I have spoken with the Prince of Saxony . . .

D. 5667a. The other Mohammed was a native of Saxony. J. (Post.) 79.

Say. Dicere.

Saying. Dictio, Dictum.

See SPEAK, and UTTER.

A. 55³. The Lord 'blessing and saying' (Gen. i. 28), that is, operating.

359. 'Jehovah said unto Cain' (Gen. iv. 6) = that conscience dictated. (= something perceptive within which dictated concerning charity. 370.)

366. 'Cain said unto Abel' (ver. 8) = a space of time.

383. 'Cain said unto Jehovah' (ver. 13) = a certain confession . . .

630. 'God said' (Gen. vi. 13) = that so it was. 1037. 1315.

708. 'Jehovah said unto Noah' (Gen. vii. 1) = that it was so done.

926. 'Jehovah said in His heart' (Gen. viii. 21) = that it would not any more be so done. For, when it is predicated of Jehovah that He 'says,' it means that it is so, or is not so ; for of Jehovah nothing else can be said than that He is.

1019. 'God said . . .' (Gen. ix. 8) = the Truth of the things which follow . . . 1020.

1295. 'They said a man to his companion' (Gen. xi. 3) = that it was begun . . .

1303. 'They said' (ver. 4) = that it was so done.

1404. Sayings—dicta, occurs. 1406.

1410. 'Jehovah said unto Abram' (Gen. xii. 1) = the first mental advertence.

— . In the Ancient Church, when anything was true, they said 'Jehovah said,' or 'Jehovah spake,' which signified that so it was. But, after significatives had been turned into representatives, the Lord did actually speak with them, and when it is said then that 'Jehovah said,' or 'spoke,' to anyone, it = the same as before ; and therefore (the above words) = the first mental advertence ; just as when, in the Ancient Church, anyone adverted by conscience, by some other dictate, or by their Word, that it was so, it was said, in like manner, that 'Jehovah said.'

1791. 'Abram said, Lord Jehovah' (Gen. xv. 2) = the Lord's perception. Ex. So wherever this expression is used.

1798⁴. He believes it simply, because the Lord has said so ; and he who so believes does no evil, although it should not be true in itself . . . 1911⁶.

1815⁹. The perception which the Lord had was . . . from Jehovah Himself, which is here signified by 'Jehovah said unto him.' 1822. 1841.

1898. 'Sarai said unto Abram' (Gen. xvi. 2) = that (the affection of truth) so perceived. 1913.

1913. 'To say' = (in the historicals of the Word) = to perceive. 1991. 2000. 2080. 2097. 2104. 2155. 2192. 2260. 2552. 2617. 2778. 2822. 2862. 3113. 3619. 3661. 3682. 3716. 3944. 4712. 4903. 4991. 5103. 5228. 5431. 5472. 5473. 5509. 5688. 5698. 5795. 6063. 6076. 6132. 6250. 6560. 6766. 6783. 6945. 7159a.

1919. 'Abram said unto Sarai' (ver. 6) = a perception. . . . The Lord's perception was represented by 'Abram said to Sarai ;' but thought from perception by 'Sarai said to Abram.'

2032. 'God said unto Abraham' (Gen. xvii. 9) = a perception. 2061.

2077. 'Abraham said unto God' (ver. 18) = the Lord's perception from love. 'To say to God' = to perceive.

2157². The thought and speech of the Spiritual Angels are determined to the subject according to the series of the sayings.

2206. 'Jehovah said unto Abraham' (Gen. xviii. 13) = the Lord's perception from the Divine. 2224.

2238. When 'Jehovah said' occurs, it = a perception which is not altogether continuous with the former one ; but a sequent one, and sometimes a new one. 2260.

2358. 'He said' (Gen.xix.7)=exhortation.

2387. 'The men said unto Lot' (ver.12)=that the Lord draws the attention of those in the good of charity.

2506. 'Abraham said' (Gen.xx.2)=thought.

2515. 'God said unto Abimelech' (ver.3)=a thought from perception. Ex.

2522. 'To say'=to think. 2560.

2568^d. Doctrine is to be believed because the Lord has said so. (See AFFIRMATIVE, here.)

2571. 'Abimelech said' (ver.15)=the Lord's perception ; (for) 'to say'=to think . . .

2574. 'To Sarah he said' (ver.16)=a perception from spiritual truth.

2619. The perception which is signified by 'Jehovah said' (Gen.xxi.1) was from the Divine Celestial ; but the thought which is signified by 'Jehovah spake,' was from the Divine Celestial through the Divine Spiritual . . .

—^e. Good is of love . . . and therefore perception is from it ; but truth is of faith, and consequently this is of thought : the former is signified . . . by 'to say,' and the latter by 'to speak.' But when 'to say' occurs alone, it sometimes = to perceive, and sometimes to think ; because 'to say' involves both.

2639. 'Sarah said' (ver.6)=a perception from the Divine Spiritual.

2642. 'And she said' (ver.7)=thought. 'To say'=to perceive, and also to think.

2656. 'Abraham said' (ver.10)=a perception from the Divine.

2663. 'God said unto Abraham' (ver.12)=the Lord's perception from the Divine. 2769.

2693. 'The Angel of God . . . said to her, What aileth thee, Hagar?' (ver.17)=perception concerning its state. Ex.

2786. 'God said'=to perceive from Divine truth. 2810.

2802. 'He said,' occurs four times in this verse (Gen. xxii.7) ; (for) it is usual in the Word, when any new thing is begun, to say 'and he said.'

2929. 'To speak, and say'=to think and perceive.

3029. 'The servant said unto him' (Gen.xxiv.5)=the Lord's perception concerning the natural man.

3032. 'Abraham said unto him' (ver.6)=the Lord's perception from the Divine.

3060. '(The servant) said' (Gen.xxiv.12)=a communication. 'To say'=to perceive and will ; and (therefore) to communicate ; for communication is from perceiving and willing.

3088. 'To say'=to perceive, thus also to explore. 3204.

3292. 'Jehovah said'=to perceive from the Divine.

3319. 'Esau said to Jacob' (Gen.xxv.30)=the Lord's perception from the good of the Natural.

3367. 'Jehovah appeared to him, and said' (Gen. xxvi.2)=thought from the Divine.

3393. 'Abimelech called Isaac and said' (ver. 9)=the Lord's perception from doctrine. 3414.

3395. That 'to say'=to perceive and think, is more manifestly evident here (id.) than elsewhere.

3438. 'Jehovah appeared to him in that night, and said' (ver. 24)=the Lord's perception concerning that obscurity.

3509. 'Rebekah said unto Jacob her son' (Gen. xxvii.6)=the Lord's perception from Divine truth concerning natural truth.

3525. 'Jacob said unto Rebekah his mother' (ver. 11) =the Lord's perception from Divine truth concerning natural truth. 3531.

3549. 'Jacob said unto his father' (ver. 19)=the apperception of natural truth. 'To say'=to perceive ; here, to apperceive, because from the Natural.

3554. 'Isaac said unto his son' (ver. 20)=the perception of the Rational concerning the Natural. 3558.

3558^e. The reason it is so often said 'he said,' is that thus what is new begins, or a new perception.

3599. 'Isaac his father answered and said unto (Esau)' (ver. 39)=a perception concerning natural good, that it would become Divine.

3606. 'Esau said in his heart' (ver.41)=thought.

3609. 'To call to him, and say to him' (ver. 42)=a state of perception.

3797. 'Laban said unto him' (Gen.xxx.27)=a perception from that good (Laban).

4068. 'Jehovah said unto Jacob' (Gen.xxxi.3)=the Lord's perception from the Divine.

4085. 'The Angel of God said unto me' (ver. 11)=a perception from the Divine.

4131. 'Laban said unto Jacob' (ver. 26)=a state of communication (between these two goods).

4184. 'Laban answered and said unto Jacob' (ver. 43) =an obscure state of perception.

4436. 'Shechem said unto Hamor . . .' (Gen.xxxiv.4) =a thought from the truth which was among the Ancients. 'To say'=perception and thence thought.

4454. 'To say,' here (ver. 11)=to consult.

4521. 'They said' (ver. 31)=an answer.

4538. 'God said unto Jacob' (Gen.xxxv.1)=the perception of natural good from the Divine.

4571. 'God said unto him' (Gen.xxxv.11)=a perception from the Divine. Ex.

4588. 'The midwife said unto her' (ver. 17)=a perception from the Natural.

4708. 'Israel said unto Joseph' (Gen.xxxvii.13)=a perception from the Divine Spiritual.

4725. 'To say' (ver. 19)=to perceive and think. 4846.

4892. '(The men of the place) said' (Gen.xxxviii.21) =a perception from truths.

5012. 'She said to them in saying' (Gen.xxxix.14)=an exhortation ; (for) 'to say' . . . here, =vehement communication.

5111. 'He said unto him' (Gen.xl.9)=a revelation from perception; for revelation is internal perception, and is from perception. 5121.

[A.] 5142. 'He said unto Joseph' (ver. 16)=the perception of the Celestial in the Natural.

5251. 'Pharaoh said unto Joseph' (Gen.xli.15)=the perception of the Celestial of the Spiritual from the Natural. (=the perception of the Natural from the Celestial of the Spiritual. 5308. 5315.)

5262. 'Joseph said unto Pharaoh' (ver. 25)=the perception of the Natural from the Celestial of the Spiritual.

5306. 'Pharaoh said unto his servants' (ver. 38)=the perception of the Natural with all things there.

5361. 'As Joseph had said' (ver. 54)=as foreseen by the Celestial of the Spiritual. 'To say' . . . when predicated of the Lord, =to perceive from Himself, thus to foresee.

5366. 'Pharaoh said to all Egypt' (ver. 55)=an apperception . . . in both Naturals.

5402². He confirms with himself that they are truths [merely] because others have said so.

5403. 'Jacob said to his sons' (Gen.xlii.1)=a perception concerning truths in general.

5445. 'Joseph said unto them' (ver. 14)=a perception concerning that Thing of which his brethren had spoken. 5458.

5468. 'They said a man to his brother' (ver. 21)=a perception concerning the cause. Ex.

5498. '(One of them) said unto his brethren' (ver. 28)=a general perception. Ex.

5518. 'The man, the lord of the land, said unto us' (ver. 33)=an apperception concerning the Celestial of the Spiritual reigning in the Natural. (Compare 5591.)

5535. 'Jacob their father said unto them' (ver. 36)=a perception with them from the good of truth. (=a perception from the things of the Church. 5581.) (=a perception from spiritual good. 5595. 5616.)

5541. 'Reuben said unto his father' (ver. 37)=the things which are of faith in the understanding apperceived by the good of truth.

5603. 'Judah said unto Israel his father' (Gen.xliii.8)=a perception from the good of the Church concerning these things.

5680. 'They said, Thy servant our father hath peace' (ver. 28)=thence an apperception of the Natural that it is well with the good a quo.

5687. The reason 'to say'=to perceive, is that in Heaven the very thoughts from which is the speech are perceived . . .

5743. As 'to say'=perception relatively to him who hears and receives, it=to inflow relatively to him who says; for they mutually respond.

5753. 'They said unto him' (Gen.xliv.7)=apperception.

5779. 'Joseph said unto them' (ver. 15)=their perception then . . . The reason it=their perception, is that Joseph says, who=the Internal, through which comes all perception.

5782. 'Judah said' (ver. 16)=a perception given to the good of the Church in the Natural.

5802. 'We said to my lord' (ver. 20)=a reciprocal perception.

5808. 'Thou saidst to thy servants' (ver. 21)=a perception given. 5814.

5819. 'Our father said' (ver. 25)=an apperception from spiritual good. (=a perception from spiritual good. 5825.

5828. 'I said' (ver. 28)=an apperception . . .

5877. 'Joseph said unto his brethren' (Gen.xlv.3)=that the Celestial Internal gave the faculty of perception to the truths in the Natural. (=the perception of the new Natural. 5882.)

5907. 'Say ye unto him. Thus saith thy son Joseph' (Gen.xlv.9)=the perception (of spiritual good) concerning the Celestial Internal.

5937. 'Pharaoh said unto Joseph' (ver. 17)=the perception of the Natural from the Celestial Internal.

5963. 'He said unto them' (ver. 24)=a perception given by the Internal.

5966. 'They told him, saying' (ver. 26)=influx and apperception.

6023. They are ruled by truths when the truth is acknowledged because the Lord has said so in the Word.

6035. 'Israel said unto Joseph' (Gen.xlvi.30)=the perception of spiritual good from the Celestial Internal. 6302.

6040. 'Joseph said unto his brethren' (ver. 31)=the perception of the truths in the Natural from the Celestial Internal.

6072. 'Pharaoh said unto (Joseph's) brethren' (Gen.xlvii.3)=the perception (of the Natural) concerning the truths of the Church in the Natural.

6081. 'Pharaoh said unto Joseph, saying' (ver. 5)=a perception in the Natural where scientifics are. . . 'Joseph'=the Internal, whence is the perception in the Natural.

6092. 'Pharaoh said unto Jacob' (ver. 8)=a perception in the Natural where scientifics are, concerning the general truth of the Church.

6152. 'Joseph said unto the people' (ver. 23)=the influx of the Internal into scientific truths . . . As 'to say' is predicated of the Internal, it=influx; for that which is perceived in the external inflows from the internal.

6220. '(One) said unto Joseph' (Gen.xlviii.1)=eminent apperception. Ex.

6228. 'Jacob said unto Joseph' (ver. 3)=the communication of natural truth with the Internal . . . For that which is perceived by another, is communicated.

6262. 'Israel said unto Joseph' (ver. 11)=elevation to the Internal. Ex.

6291. 'Joseph said unto his father' (ver. 18)=a perceptible influx. Ex.

6562. 'Thus shall ye say to Joseph' (Gen.i.17)=a perception from the Internal what to do.

6673. 'The king of Egypt said . . .' (Ex.i.15)=influx from separated scientifics . . .

6683. 'The midwives said . . .' (ver.19)=apperception concerning these scientific truths . . .

6788. 'He said unto his daughters' (Ex.ii.20)=thought concerning the holy things of the Church.

6835. 'Moses said' (Ex.iii.3)=perception from the law which is from the Divine.

6851. 'To say,' when predicated of Jehovah,=not perception, but omniscience. Ex.

6866. 'Moses said unto God' (ver.11)=perception from the Divine, and humiliation. 6980.

6891. 'Say unto them' (ver.16)=instruction.

6902. 'Ye shall say unto him' (ver.18)=influx. Ex.

6946. 'Jehovah said unto him' (Ex.iv.2)=foresight what their quality would be. (For) 'to say,' when predicated of Jehovah,=foresight. 6959.

6951. 'Jehovah said unto Moses' (ver.4)=Providence by the Divine; (for) 'to say,' when predicated of Jehovah,=foresight, and therefore also Providence . . . 6964.

6986. 'Jehovah said unto him' (ver.11)=Divine influx.

7028. 'Jehovah said unto Moses' (ver.21)=a perception from the Divine.

7033. 'Thou shalt say unto Pharaoh' (ver.22)=exhortation. For 'to say,' when done from a Divine command,=exhortation. 7090.

7036. 'I say unto thee' (ver.23)=a command. 7234.

7094. 'Pharaoh said' (Ex.v.2)=contrary thought. Ex. 7103.

7107. 'Pharaoh said' (ver.5)=the will of those who are infesting the truths of the Church. . . The reason 'to say'=to will, or will, is that it involves the things which follow: for, when anyone wills anything, he says it. As 'to say' involves the things which follow, it=various things; as a command, exhortation, communication, thought: properly, perception. Refs.

7186. 'Jehovah said unto Moses' (Ex.vi.1)=instruction concerning the law Divine; (for) 'Jehovah said'=instruction from the Divine. 7267. 7288.

7191. We often read 'Jehovah said,' and 'Jehovah spake' . . . which repetition=nothing else than something new there beginning, which, however, is to be connected with what precedes. That 'Jehovah said'=what is new of perception. Refs.

7201. 'Say to the sons of Israel' (ver.6)=that the law Divine shall give those of the Spiritual Kingdom to apperceive. . . 'To say'=to apperceive; here, to give to apperceive, because it is said concerning the law Divine that it should 'say.'

7244. 'Moses said before Jehovah' (ver.30)=thought concerning the law Divine [as it exists] with those who are in falsities. . . For when 'he said' is said, and by it is signified thought, that which follows is involved.

7248. It was said to me, that . . . 7249. 7250.

7291. 'Thou shalt say unto Aaron' (Ex.vii.9)=the influx and communication of the law Divine with doctrine. . . 'To say,' here,=the like as 'to speak,' namely, both influx and communication.

7304. 'Jehovah said unto Moses' (ver.14)=Divine instruction; (for) 'he said,' when anything is commanded anew,=instruction, here, Divine instruction, because Jehovah 'said.'

7310. 'Thou shalt say unto him' (ver.16)=a command; (for) 'to say,' when done by the law Divine . . . to those in falsities . . . =a command.

7321. 'Jehovah said unto Moses' (ver.19) execution, as is evident from the things which follow.

7347. 'Jehovah said unto Moses' (Ex.viii.1) = new instruction, (because) something new is commanded. 7380. 7434. 7517. 7672. 7765.

7380. What 'to say' involves in the historicals . . . is evident from the things which follow it, for it involves them.

7381. 'Say unto Aaron' (ver.5)=the influx of the internal law into the external law. Ex.

7394. 'Moses said unto Pharaoh' (ver.9)=an answer. 7594. 7725. 7739.

7429. 'The magicians said unto Pharaoh' (ver.19) = a perception and communication with those in evils.

7499. 'Thus saith Jehovah the God of the Hebrews' (Ex.ix.1)=a command from the Lord who is the God of the Church. 7539. 7567. 7630. 7639.

7588. '(Pharaoh) said unto them' (ver.27)=humiliation, as is evident from the things which follow.

7638. '(Moses and Aaron) said unto (Pharaoh)' (ver.3)=apperception . . . because they=truth Divine . . . and, from the presence of (this) there is apperception.

7652. 'The servants of Pharaoh said unto him' (Ex. x.7)=an admonition from those who were in fear.

7657. '(Pharaoh) said unto (Moses and Aaron)' (ver.8)=an inclination, as is evident from the things which follow . . . This will, or inclination, is contained in 'he said unto them.'

7665. 'He said unto them' (ver.10)=mockery, as is evident from the words which Pharaoh 'says.'

7735. 'Pharaoh said to him' (ver.28)=the wrath of anger then against the truth. For 'to say' involves the things which follow.

7769. 'Now say in the ears of the people' (Ex.xi.2) = information and obedience. 7793.

7775. 'Moses said, Thus said Jehovah' (ver.4) = instruction.

7825. 'Jehovah said unto Moses and unto Aaron' (Ex.xii.1)=information through truth Divine. For 'to say,' when by Jehovah concerning the things to be instituted in the Church, =information: for 'to say' involves the things sequent. 8041.

7913. '(Moses) said unto (the elders of Israel)' (ver.21)=a perception.

7935. 'Your sons shall say unto you' (ver.26)=an interior perception of the truth which is of conscience. Ex.

7937. 'Ye shall say' (ver.27)=thought . . . because this is the answer.

8048. 'Moses said unto the people' (Ex.xiii.3)=instruction through truth Divine. For 'to say,' when through truth Divine concerning the things to be observed in the Church, = instruction. Refs.

[A.] 8095. 'God said' (ver. 17) = the Divine foresight.

8132. 'Pharaoh will say . . .' (Ex. xiv. 3) = the thought of those in damnation . . .

8144. 'They said' (ver. 5) = a chiding.

8164. 'They said unto Moses' (ver. 11) = the height and desperation of temptation; for the things which follow are involved in 'they said.'

8170. 'Moses said unto the people' (ver. 13) = an elevation from the state of despair through truth Divine.

8178. 'Thus said Jehovah unto Moses' (ver. 15) = an exhortation, (because) it treats of elevation and deliverance from temptation.

8217. 'The Egyptians said' (ver. 25) = the thought of those in falsities from evil. 'To say,' when evil is assailing, = thought.

8221. 'Jehovah said unto Moses' (ver. 26) = influx, (because) it treats of the exercise of the dominion of power through Divine truth.

8262. 'They said in saying' (Ex. xv. 1) = thus from influx, (because) it treats of the glorification of the Lord by a song.

8289. 'The enemy said' (ver. 9) = the thought of those in evils and derivative falsities before the Lord's advent.

8359. 'And He said' (ver. 26) = instruction, (because) by Jehovah concerning a truth of order as to temptations.

8384. The Spirits of Jupiter . . . consider what they say . . .

8406. 'The sons of Israel said unto them' (Ex. xvi. 3) = thought from anxiety.

8415. 'Jehovah said unto Moses' (ver. 4) = consolation from the Lord.

8425. 'Moses and Aaron said unto all the sons of Israel' (ver. 6) = information by truth Divine. 8430. 8463.

8437. 'Moses said unto Aaron' (ver. 9) = the influx of the truth Divine which proceeds immediately from the Lord through that which proceeds mediately. 8529.

8438. 'Say unto all the congregation . . .' (id.) = instruction. Ex. 8492.

8461. 'They said a man unto his brother' (ver. 15) = amazement. Ex.

8477. 'Moses said unto them' (ver. 19) = exhortation. Ex.

8512. 'Jehovah said unto Moses' (ver. 28) = the appearance of the Divine obscured with them. Ex.

8565. 'Moses said to them' (Ex. xvii. 2) = an answer through influx into the thought. 'To say,' when from truth Divine . . . = an answer; and, as all answer from the Divine is effected through influx, and that into the thought, the above is signified.

8576. 'Jehovah said unto Moses' (ver. 5) = aid. Ex. (= instruction. 8619. 8929. 9414. 10537.)

8595. 'Moses said unto Joshua' (ver. 9) = Divine influx into truth combating.

8660. 'Jethro said unto Moses' (Ex. xviii. 6) = influx and the consequent perception. Ex. (= foresight. 8697.)

8691. 'Moses said to his father-in-law' (ver. 15) = what is reciprocal which is in the reply. Ex.

8762. 'To say,' and 'to announce' (Ex. xix. 3) = Salvation. Ex.

8786. 'Jehovah said unto Moses' (ver. 10) = a revelation concerning the preparation; (for) 'to say,' when said by Jehovah, = revelation from the Divine. (= an exhortation by the Divine. 8829.) (= an admonition. 8839.)

8834. 'Moses said unto Jehovah' (ver. 23) = the thought of truth from the Divine.

8864². For that which is said first must be kept in the memory in the things which follow, and be regarded as what is universal therein. The things which have been said by the Lord are such; namely, that the things said first must reign in those which follow, and involve them . . .

8919. 'They said unto Moses' (Ex. xx. 19) = a complaint.

8923. 'Moses said unto the people' (ver. 20) = information. Ex. (= instruction. 10728.)

8928². Those of the Spiritual Church . . . do not know from any internal perception that what the Church says is true, but solely from the fact that the Church says so they confirm it . . .

8985. 'If in saying the servant shall say' (Ex. xxi. 5) = thought then from the implanted truth.

9282. 'All that Jehovah has said unto them' (Ex. xxiii. 13) = all things which are of life, of worship, and of the civil state.

9372. 'And He said unto Moses' (Ex. xxiv. 1) = that which concerns the Word in general. Ex.

10290. 'Jehovah said unto Moses' (Ex. xxx. 34) = illustration and perception again by the Lord through the Word. 'To say,' when predicated of Jehovah, = illustration and perception. Refs. 10354.

10398. '(The people) said unto Aaron' (Ex. xxxii. 1) = exhortation. 10473. 10486.

10470. 'Aaron said' (ver. 22) = what was perceived. Ex.

10559. 'Moses said unto Jehovah' (Ex. xxxiii. 12) = indignation that the Divine . . . was not with them.

10602. 'Jehovah said unto Moses' (Ex. xxxiv. 1) = what is concluded concerning the Israelitish nation . . . For 'He said' involves the things which follow, because these are the things which He said, or which are said. (= information. 10682.)

S. 64². (These Spirits) recite some sayings from the sense of the letter, and note the Society with which communication is effected.

W. 233. It has been told me from Heaven . . .

R. 253. 'To say' (Rev. iv. 11) = confession.

294². They could not say One God.

—⁴. None of the clergy could say Divine Human . . .

415. 'To fly in the midst of Heaven, and say' (Rev.

viii.13)=to perceive and understand; and, when predicated of the Lord, to look out for and provide; here, to instruct and preach.

886. 'Said,' being used twice, (Rev.xxi.5)=that it may be known with certainty.

887. 'He said to me' (ver.6)=that it is Divine truth, because the Lord said the third time 'He said to me' . . . and what the Lord says the third time is what must be believed because it is the Divine Truth . . .

M. 115⁴. They then said with a half utterance, Yes, yes: we apprehend. But the Angel said, Turn yourselves a little away from me, and say in like manner. They did so, and said with a full utterance, It is not so.

135. Those from the east replied, We will speak; but as man does not take anything from himself . . . we will speak from the Lord, and still from ourselves, as if from ourselves . . .

D. 1486. The penalty of those who do not say what they think . . .

2998. They were informed that they must by no means say differently from what they think, except in the last necessity.

E. 236. 'Thou sayest' (Rev.iii.17)=what is believed by them.

— 'To say,' in the spiritual sense, =to think, because that which is said comes forth from the thought, and thought is spiritual . . . and saying is natural. Hence 'to say' has many significations.

460. 'Saying' (Rev.vii.10)=confession: for a confession follows.

471. To 'answer and say,' (ver. 13) when done by the elders, by whom is signified Heaven where the Lord is, =influx and perception . . .

474. 'He said to me' (ver. 14)=information.

530. 'Saying with a great voice' (Rev.viii.13)=a manifestation.

624. 'He said to me' (Rev.x.11)=a Divine command (because), by an Angel, by whom is represented the Lord as to the Word; for what the Lord says is a command. 628.

1120. To 'say' (Rev.xviii.7)=boasting.

Inv. 51. The sayings-dicta-of Scripture by which Truths are confirmed, ascend into Heaven: they are like the smoke from incense.

Scab. Scabies.

A. 2240⁷. That in place of truth there is found evil, is 'for judgment . . . a scab' (Is.v.7).

4793^e. Such Spirits correspond to the filthy cavernules in the epidermis where is the scab, thus to the scab.

7419. For the lice are in the epidermis, in filth and under a scab.

7524³. The various kinds of ulcers are the scab, etc., which=so many kinds of falsities from evils.

M. 253. Virulent scab (a cause of lawful separation).

D. 3719. They are the cavernules in the scalp where is the abode of lice . . . chiefly with those who are covered with a deadly scab.

4466. The quality of his delight was shown him by a pestilent scab, which occupied his head, and that all his ideas were like it. The quality of the scab was shown to the life, that it was full of disgusting insects, which tickled, and made that delight.

Scale. See under BALANCE.

Scale. Squama.

Scaly. Squamosus.

A. 1385. See SKIN. 5556. D.3703^e. D.Min.4740.

1500. Empty scientifics . . . are like crustaceous or scaly things, which separate themselves spontaneously.

1876. The names and words (in the Word) are like . . . scales, which fall down when they enter Heaven.

3527². Interior natural things were signified by the excrescences (of the face) such as the hairs and scales of the skin: things from the Natural as to good, by the hairs, and . . . as to truth, by the scales.

4957. The discourse (of such) is like a husk and chaff, relatively to the kernels.

5168². Scientifics . . . without good in them, are nothing but scales among the dirt, which fall off.

6693⁴. 'Scales' (Ezek.xxix.4)=those things which are completely external, thus sensuous things, to which scientifics which are false adhere.

7790². The truths which descend from such a principle, adhere to the surface; and, when they are being vastated, they fall off like scales, leaving stinking places, from the falsities which exhale from the evils there.

R. 450². The moral things of their life (here) then become like the scales of fishes, which are wiped off.

D. 2656. His upper lip was scaly . . .

4672. Its body (appeared) like a scaly fish . . . because a scaly fish is sensuous scientifics.

D. Min. 4741. Such (useless matters of learning) are like scales upon scales, which grow on and make dense the outer skin, and take away the sense for interior things.

E. 513³. In the sensuous man . . . there are fallacies and derivative falsities, which is signified by that 'the fish shall adhere to the scales of the whale' (Ezek. xxix.4).

654³. 'Scales' (id. =the fallacies of the senses, which are scientifics of the lowest sort.

Scandal, or Stumbling-block. Scandalum.

Scandalize. Scandalizare.

Scandalization. Scandalizatio.

See under OFFEND.

A. 2034³. As they do not believe (this) it is a scandal (or stumbling-block) to them. . . When they think that the Lord became a man . . . they fill the sphere with scandals, because this had been a scandal to them (here).

2343⁶. When the Lord was merely named, they at once filled the sphere with mere scandals . . .

2590. The Gentiles . . . have formed no . . . scandals against the Lord, like many Christians who have led a life of evil. H. 321.

[A.] 2649^e. They think about His Human as of that of another man: hence (their) scandals.

2701². 'If thy right eye shall cause thee to stumble, pluck it out' (Matt. v. 29; xviii. 9) = that this affection is to be mastered if it causes to stumble.

2751. This emissary babbled scandalous things, chiefly against the Lord, so that he was as it were composed of mere scandals.

3704⁷. To many His Human is a scandal (or stumbling-block) because they distinguish it from the Divine. 4692⁴. 4733^e.

4302⁶. By the foot which is to be 'cut off' if it scandalizes' (Mark ix. 45) is meant the Natural, which constantly opposes itself to the Spiritual, and which is to be destroyed if it endeavours to infringe upon truths.

4311³. It is of no consequence from whom the voice of good and truth flows forth, provided their life is not manifestly wicked, for this scandalizes (or causes people to stumble).

4629. The general of thought of many Spirits concerning the Lord as born a man consisted of mere scandals.

4799⁴. The scandals of Christian Spirits against the Lord.

6000⁵. Hence the Lord said . . . to the disciples, 'All ye shall be offended against Me in this night' (Matt. xxvi. 31).

6310^e. (Origin of) scandalous thoughts concerning the holy things of the Church. D. 4627⁵.

6313. Man is then withdrawn from the influx of scandalous and filthy things.

6876⁶. If Jehovah were now to appear in the Church as a Man, they would be scandalized.

8383. European Spirits (then) injected direful scandals . . . 8545.

8910⁵. The Lord expressed an affection of evil by 'the right eye scandalizing'; and an affection of falsity by 'the right hand scandalizing.'

9163². 'To stumble' = to be scandalized, and thus to lapse from truths into falsities.

9348¹⁰. 'A stone of stumbling, and a rock of offence' = scandalization. . . For all the proud are not only scandalized, but ensnared, by the fact that the Divine has appeared in a human form . . .

H. 322^e. Some Christians poured in various scandals, but they disregarded them.

R. 114. 'Who taught Balak to cast a stumbling-block before the sons of Israel' (Rev. ii. 14) = those who do hypocritical works (to the injury of) the worship of God. . . The counsel which Balaam gave was the stumbling-block . . . E. 140, Ex.

131. That the things which follow may be a scandal (or stumbling-block) to them. Sig.

584. Their utterances, which are scandals against the Divine Itself and the Divine Human, and at the same time against everything of the Church . . . Sig. and Ex.

585. Scandals against the Lord's Celestial Church, and against Heaven. Sig.

M. 342. (This) may be a stumbling-block to those who think about the Divine Providence . . .

T. 23². The identity of the three Divine essences is an offence to reason.

D. 338. That the intellectual life of some is composed of mere scandals.—That scandals (or offences) must come, is predicted in the Word . . .

791. On an odour of scandals.

1696. (This penalty was inflicted on him) before the Spirits . . . to whom he had presented a scandal (or stumbling-block). Des.

2114. In a perverted state, nudities cannot even be mentioned, for they at once give rise to scandals, because the loves are filthy.

2320. That it must needs be that offences come. Ex.

3377. For man is composed of mere scandals. . . This scandal was as it were almost continuous with the antediluvians. With (the postdiluvians) there was made what is discrete . . . which would not have been done unless the scandals had remained with man; and therefore the Lord also was made a scandal to them . . . and therefore He suffered . . . in order that the scandals might remain; for otherwise so continuous a scandal could never have been rendered discrete, and man be saved by the insertion of scientifics and intellectual things, so that the scandals should not appear.

4378. How dangerous it is to instruct others concerning evils, or to make stumbling-blocks for anyone. Ex.

4754². His life (here) had been scandalous. Des.

6102^e. Besides many other things which are scandals.

E. 138. (In spiritual temptation, the Spirits who are in falsities) continually pour in scandals (or stumbling-blocks) against the truths of faith . . .

152¹². 'The right eye causing to stumble' = the understanding thinking evil. 600⁸.

600⁸. 'If thy right hand shall cause thee to stumble cut it off' (Matt. v. 30) = that if he wills what is evil, this of the will is to be shaken off.

— All scandalization (or causing to stumble) is done by evil, and not by falsity unless it is the falsity of evil.

740¹¹. Those in faith without charity cause themselves to stumble, from the fact that the Lord suffered Himself to be crucified, and therefore it is called a stumbling-block.

1182³. 'He who shall cause to stumble one of the little ones who believe in Me' (Matt. xviii. 6) = to pervert those who acknowledge the Lord.

De Conj. 127. (Scandals caused by obscene representations there.)

Scapegoat. Asasel.

A. 9937⁸. See GOAT, here. E. 730⁴³.

E. 730⁴³. 'The (scapegoat) = the natural man not purified; and, as this swarms with cupidities and uncleannesses of every kind (the scapegoat) was sent out of the camp into a land of cutting-off and the wilderness, that he might carry off the iniquities and sins of all in that Church. 'The land of cutting off and the wilderness'=Hell. The laying on of hands by Aaron upon his head and the confession of sins, represented communication and transference; for so is it done when man is purified or expiated from sins; for the sins are then remitted to Hell, and affections of good and truth are implanted in their place . . .

Scapuleja. Scapuleja.

D. 6090. The word scapuleja (in the spiritual language) means to cast out of doors. J.(Post.) 324.

Scar. Cicatrix.

A. 9103². Good in the Natural cannot be restored to the full, because there remains a wound as a scar which becomes callous.

E. 962². 'A scar,' etc. (Isa.i.6)=evils of the will and the derivative falsities of the thought.

Scarcity. Penuria.

A. 1460. A scarcity of Knowledges. Sig. and Ex. —².

1464. Much scarcity with His external man. Sig. and Ex.

2575³. Occurs.

9052³. A scarcity of good. Sig.

E. 1226⁶. Compelled to work by the scarcity of food.

Scarlet. Coccinum, Coccineus.

See DOUBLE-DYED.

A. 4922. When a scarlet colour appears (there), it=spiritual good, that is, the good of charity towards the neighbour. Ill.

—⁵. The 'scarlet double-dyed' (in the tabernacle)=spiritual goods.

—⁷. 'Scarlet,' in the opposite sense,=the evil which is opposite to spiritual good; as in, 'If your sins were as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow' (Is.i.18). The reason 'scarlet'=this evil, is that the blood, also from its redness, =spiritual good . . . and, in the opposite, violence inflicted on charity. 9468¹⁰. E.1042^e.

A. 2576⁴. These appearances are described by the 'double-dyed scarlet,' etc. . . .

9468. 'Scarlet double-dyed' (Ex.xxv.4)=mutual love; (for) 'scarlet,' and 'double-dyed'=celestial truth, which is the same as the good of mutual love. . . The external of the Celestial Kingdom is the good of mutual love; this good is signified by 'scarlet double-dyed'; by 'scarlet,' the good itself, and by 'double-dyed,' its truth.

—². That 'scarlet double-dyed'=the good of mutual love, and its truth, is from the appearance of it in the other life; for when the sphere of this good and truth is presented to view in the lowest Heaven, there appears this colour scarlet; for that which flows down from the celestial Heaven, and appears below, derives its colour from what is flaming, and, below, becomes scarlet from the bright whiteness of the light of the Middle Heaven which it passes through. Hence it is that 'scarlet double-dyed' was, among other colours, employed for the curtains of the Habitation, etc. Ill.

—³. That 'scarlet double-dyed'=the good of mutual love, which is the external good of the Celestial Kingdom or Church, is evident from the fact that a cloth of scarlet double-dyed was spread 'over the table . . .' (Num.iv.8). Ex.

—⁴. Hence the more exterior (of the things to be collected are enumerated) in the second place, which were 'scarlet double-dyed, fine linen, and wool of she-goats.'

—⁵. As external celestial good and its truth is signified by 'scarlet double-dyed,' therefore the Word as to the external sense, and what is doctrinal thence, is expressed by it. Ex. and Ill.

—⁶. As the things of the Word in the external sense, in Heaven appear in a scarlet colour, those who apply the external sense of the Word to confirm falsities from the evils of the love of self and the world, thus which are contrary to the truths and goods of love to the Lord and of mutual love, are said to be 'clothed in crimson and scarlet . . . Ill.

—⁷. As the external of the Word appears in Heaven in a scarlet colour, and as there is an influx from Heaven into man's memory, in which the things from the Word appear in such a colour, scarlet was employed in connection with the recollections of things. Ill.

—⁸. As man can be withdrawn from evils and falsities only through the truths and goods which are with him from the Word, in the cleansings of leprosy, 'scarlet,' etc., were employed (Lev.xiv.; Num.xix.). Ex. E.1042^f.

9596. 'Scarlet double-dyed' (Ex.xxvi.1)=spiritual good, or the good of truth. . . At last there is spiritual good, which is 'scarlet double-dyed.' 9671. 9687.

9873³. 'Scarlet double-dyed'=the good of spiritual love.

J. 58⁷. 'The scarlet beast' (Rev.xvii.)=the profanation of celestial love.

S. 46^e. 'Scarlet double-dyed' (in the curtains and veils)=spiritual good.

R. 463. They gave them . . . scarlet for paints (for the complexion).

723. 'The scarlet beast'=the Word. Ex.

—¹. 'Scarlet'=the truth of the Word from a celestial origin.

725. 'The woman was arrayed in crimson and scarlet' (Rev.xvii.4)=the celestial Divine good and truth, which are of the Word, with them. . . 'Scarlet'=Divine truth celestial.

—². In each Kingdom there are good and truth; and the good and truth with the Angels of the Celestial Kingdom are signified by 'crimson and scarlet' . . . These goods and truths are with the Angels through the Word . . . Ill.

—³. As 'crimson and scarlet'=celestial good and truth, the garments of Aaron, and the veils and curtains of the tabernacle, were woven of scarlet, etc. 773.

M. 20². The bride wore a scarlet cloak—chlamys.

42⁴. (The Angel wife) wore a scarlet mantle—toqa.

136^e. To those who sat on the west he gave mantles of a scarlet colour

[M.] 266. The other (Angel) wore like garments of scarlet, with a tiara.

Ad. 3/1290. Scarlet double-dyed is that red which is extreme in relation to hyacinthine. 1291^e.

E. 1038. 'The scarlet beast'=the Word as to its holy things which had been profaned.

—^e. For 'scarlet'=truth from a celestial origin, such as is the Word in the sense of the letter . . . which is what is meant by its holiness.

1042. 'Scarlet'=truth from a celestial origin, and also the falsity opposite thereto, which is called diabolical falsity. —⁴, Ill.

—⁴. 'To be brought up upon scarlet' (Lam. iv. 5)=to be instructed from infancy in truths from celestial good.

—⁵. As 'scarlet double-dyed'=the truth of celestial good, a 'cloth of scarlet double-dyed' was spread over the table . . . For the inmost things of the Celestial Kingdom were signified by the things upon the table . . . and the exterior ones by those which covered them . . .

—⁶. As truth from celestial good, which is the truth of the sense of the letter . . . is signified by 'scarlet,' it was employed in connection with recollections. Ill.

—⁷. The reason such things are signified by 'crimson,' and 'scarlet,' is their colour . . . for a red colour, in Heaven, originates from the fieriness or flamminess, and (this) from the good of love. Hence . . . scarlet, which derives its colour from the flamminess and bright whiteness together—which latter=truth—the truth of celestial good.

1144. 'Scarlet' (Rev. xviii. 12)=good from a spiritual origin. This good coincides with truth from a celestial origin: and therefore it also is signified by 'scarlet' in the Word. 1166.

Scatter. Spargere.

Scatteredly. Sparsim.

Sprinkling, A. Sparsio.

See under DISPEL, and DISPERSE.

A. 66². The third style of the Word . . . is scattered.

1514². A stench of mice is disseminated from (such).

1756. Then the things which are scattered appear beautifully coherent . . .

2853². Those in good, although scattered through the whole world, are still one.

3074. As these things are scattered . . .

4545^e. To 'scatter clean waters' (Ezek. xxxvi. 25)=the purification of the heart. E. 587¹⁴.

7153. (These things) to man . . . appear scattered. —^e.

7396². The Societies which constitute (this man) are scattered through the whole world . . .

7520. 'Let Moses sprinkle it towards heaven' (Ex. ix. 8)=that these falsities were shown to those in Heaven. . . . 'To sprinkle'=to show.

8152^e. The Lord's Church is scattered through the whole world, and yet is one. 8650. 9256⁴. 9400^e. H. 328. W. 25. P. 325.

9022^e. In the sense of the letter, Things are scattered . . . 9200^e. E. 89.

9399. 'Moses sprinkled the blood upon the people' (Ex. xxiv. 8)=adaptation for reception by man (of the Divine truth) . . . 'To sprinkle'=to inflow, thus to adapt.

10047⁴. The sprinkling of the blood at the foundation of the altar, represented the union of the Divine truth and Divine good solely in the external man. Ex.

10067. 'Thou shalt sprinkle it upon Aaron . . .' (Ex. xxix. 21)=the reciprocal union of the Divine good and Divine truth in the higher Heavens. . . 'To sprinkle upon them'=to unite; for that which was sprinkled and poured upon anyone represented union.

10465. 'He scattered it upon the faces of the waters' (Ex. xxxii. 20)=a commixture with truths.

T. 57. To scatter conjectures, fables, etc.

D. 2698. (The idea) seemed to me so scattered that nothing cohered; but still . . . the things insinuated into man . . . although they appear so scattered, in Heaven have a wonderful connection.

3214. The Sirens so scattered their deceits . . .

4474. Wherever she scattered her corporeal things . . .

D. Min. 4692². So that the pebbles appear scatteredly.

E. 17. The explications must appear as if scattered.

329⁸. The blood 'sprinkled . . .'=the [truth] proceeding.

Scene. Scena.

A. 1631². But the scene is changed. Des. P. 298.

8118³. But this scene has been changed.

H. 574³. Thus is one scene changed into another.

C. J. 19^e. Thus have the scenes of these theatres been changed.

R. 655². Such theatrical scenes are changed into direful infernal ones.

M. 297. Thus would marriages be turned into tragic scenes.

T. 137³. Turned the Church into a theatre . . . within which the actors represented new scenes.

Scent. Redolentia.

See under ODOUR.

M. 430². The scents from fruits, and the fragrances from flowers.

Sceptic. Scepticus.

D. 3335. I perceived a sphere of incredulity: that they want to believe nothing of the things said and seen. In the world these are commonly called sceptics, because they believe nothing . . .

Sceptre. Sceptrum.

A. 3322³. His Human essence is called 'a star out of Jacob,' and 'a sceptre out of Israel' (Num. xxiv. 17).

4013. See ROD, STAFF. 7026. R.485³. E.431².

4876¹⁰. As 'a rod' represented the power of truth, that is, the power of good through truth, kings had sceptres, and the sceptres were formed like short rods; for kings represented the Lord as to truth, (and) the sceptre = the power they have, not through dignity, but through the truth which must command, and no other truth than that which is from good: thus, principally, Divine truth; and, with Christians, the Lord from whom is all Divine truth.

6371. 'The sceptre shall not be removed from Judah' (Gen. xlix. 10) = that the Power shall not recede from the Celestial Kingdom. . . 'A sceptre' = Power, in fact, the Power of truth from good: for a sceptre is an ensign of royal Power; and by the royalty is signified truth. = that the Power shall not recede from the good of celestial love. E.433⁴.)

9930³. See RULE—regere.

R. 349⁹. For 'tribe,' and 'sceptre,' in the Hebrew, are one word: and 'sceptre' = kingdom: and the Lord's Kingdom is Heaven and the Church.

E. 31⁶. A king (when being crowned) held a sceptre in his right hand . . . For a sceptre, which is a rod, = the power of truth from good. Refs.

177⁵. 'Thou shalt break the nations with an iron sceptre' (Ps. ii. 9) = to chastise and master the evils in the natural man: 'a sceptre,' here, = the like as 'a rod.'

447⁴. 'The scribe's sceptre' (Judg. v. 14) = intelligence.

684¹⁶. 'A sceptre of rectitude is the sceptre of Thy kingdom' (Ps. xlv. 6) = . . . the Divine truth which has power and the kingdom.

727³. 'There is in her no rod of strength, a sceptre of those who dominate' (Ezek. xix. 14) = the desolation of Divine truth as to power and as to dominion.

850¹³. 'The sceptre of strength out of Zion' (Ps. cx. 2) = the Divine truth which has omnipotence . . .

Schism. Schisma.

A. 373. 'The ground' = a schism, or heresy. 380.

400. That this schism, or heresy, produced another from itself. Sig.

1834². Together with evils, falsities insinuated themselves; whence came schisms . . . If charity reigned . . . they would not call a schism a schism . . . but what is doctrinal according to their opinion.

4738². Schisms came forth at that time, by which the papal Power would have been dissipated . . . D.4551.

T. 11. The natural man has perverted (the primeval revelation), whence came the schisms, etc. of religions.

Scholar. See under LEARNED—literatus, and SCHOOL.

Scholastic. Scholasticus.

A. 521. The faculty of thinking well perishes, as with those who stick in scholastic dust.

4658². (Aristotle) was of a different genius from those scholastics who had first emerged. Ex. . . His followers, who are called schoolmen, do not go from thought to terms, but from terms to thoughts . . . and many of them not even to thoughts, but stick in terms only, and if they apply these, it is to confirm whatever they want, and to impose on falsities an appearance of truth according to the desire of persuading . . .

R. 421³. Among those (in that abyss) are some . . . schoolmen, who are esteemed above the rest there.

I. 1. See PHILOSOPHY, here.

19². Then the Aristotelians, who were also schoolmen, began to speak . . . T.696².

D. 1605. There is nothing but scholastic words so conglutinated . . .

2736⁶. He who is confused with hypotheses and scholastic things.

3949. (Aristotle) went from thought to terms, which afterwards were called scholastic, from which is his philosophy.

3960. The schoolmen, who call themselves Aristotelians, can write an entire page full, and express Things in mere scholastic terms, such as trans-substantiality, predicaments, entities . . . and, when the page thus written is read, it is scarcely understood by themselves . . . and this they deem most learned, when yet they are such things, that when a sensible person evolves the meaning, he rejects the scholastic terms, and can set forth the same Thing clearly in two lines, so that anyone understands what it is . . . while the learned by their scholastic language perceive little if anything.

4446. (Aristotle's) followers (go) in the inverse order, from . . . scholastic things, which they call logical and metaphysical; in general, philosophical . . .

D. Min. 4578. Some (sciences) utterly destroy the faculty of thinking, and destroy the Rational, as scholastic things; namely, when they describe one clear Thing . . . by many scholastic terms, until no one understands it.

Schönström. Schönström.

D. 3732. Abraham Schönström. 4693. 5887. 6037.

4829. Peter Schönström. 5103. 5884. D. Min. 4771.

School. Schola.

Scholar. Scholar.

See under COLLEGE, PALAESTRA, and SCHOLASTIC.

R. 500². All who have these dogmas deeply impressed on their minds in the schools and gymnasia, do not afterwards recede from them. Ex.

M. 163². To rational wisdom pertain all the knowledges into which youths are initiated in the schools . . . Enum.

182. Diogenes, with his scholars, stays under the Heliconem . . .

—⁸. Those who were of the Socratic school said . . .

E. 886⁶. Because they have learned the steps of justification in the schools . . .

J. (Post.) 159. See PRAECI—praedicare.

Inv. 16. Let them know that the falsity imbibed in the schools sticks within . . .

Science, scientific. See under KNOW-scire.

Scientific Truth.* Verum scientificum.

A. 671. Rational and scientific truths may be with him, but they are not alive.

1496^e. Scientific truth is one thing, rational truth another . . . Scientific truth is of knowledge; rational truth is scientific truth confirmed by reason . . .

1904³. Intellectual truth, rational truth, and scientific truth, are distinguished from each other as internal, middle, and external. Ex.

—^e. No one can be in scientific truth, that is, in its affection and faith, unless he is in rational truth . . .

1958. 'Between Kadesh and Bared' . . . 'Bared' = that which is below, thus scientific truth, from which also is the Rational.

2503. See RATIONAL TRUTH.

2554. Although Divine good is thus united to Divine truth only, still it inflows into the lower truths, and conjoins itself with them, but not as in a marriage . . . It inflows even into scientific and sensuous truths, which are scarcely anything but fallacies, and conjoins itself with them, otherwise, man could never be saved . . .

3114. 'Straw' = scientific truths. 3146.

—^e. The truths of the natural man are scientific truths.

3161². Doctrinal things, so long as they are solely in the memory, are only scientific truths, and are not as yet appropriated . . .

3309. For no one can be in scientific truths unless he is previously in sensuous truths; for the ideas of scientifics are procured from these . . .

—³. 'Hunters' = those who teach from scientific truths, and also from doctrinals.

3310⁴. Doctrinals are interior truths which are in the natural man. The first are sensuous ones; the second are scientific ones; the interior are doctrinal ones; these truths are founded upon scientific truths, seeing that man can form and retain no idea, notion, or conception of them, except from scientifics. Scientific truths, however, are founded upon sensuous truths; for without sensuous things, scientifics cannot be apprehended by man. These scientific and sensuous truths are those signified by 'a man knowing in hunting.'

3361. Scientific truths adjoined to the good there. Tr.

3368². Scientifics are of the Natural, inasmuch that natural truths, and scientific truths, are the same.

5319². 'Embroidery' = scientific truths; 'fine linen' = natural truths . . .

5546. That it should not let itself down . . . to the scientific truths which are in the exterior Natural. Sig.

5620⁶. 'To suck honey out of the rock' = the delight from scientific truths.

Scientific Truth, in the Writings, may be defined to be truth which is exclusively in the external memory; thus not in the Rational, nor in the life. Therefore the truths of the literal sense, as such, are Scientific Truths.

5670. 'Provender' = the good of scientific truths . . . The good of scientifics is the delight from scientific truths.

— . Scientific truths are the most general truths, which appear in natural light, which is from the light of the world; but, in order that they may appear, namely, that they are truths, there must be a general influx from the Internal, that is, illustration from the light of Heaven.

5939^e. As 'asses' = scientifics, and as conjunction has now been effected with internal good . . . they = scientific truths, and are therefore called 'beasts of burden.'

6146. That scientific truths were referred to doctrinals. Sig. and Ex.

6152. The influx of the Internal into scientific truths. Sig. and Ex.

6385⁴. 'Creatures in the sea having souls' = scientific truths with goods.

6525^e. 'Egypt' = the natural mind where scientifics are, thus where truths are; for scientifics are the truths of the natural mind; and, when they are true, they are called scientific truths.

6673. An influx from separated scientifics into the Natural where are the scientific truths which are of the Church.

—^e. 'The Hebrew women' = the things of the Church, thus also scientific truths, which are of the Church.

6675^e. 'The seats' (of the Hebrew women) = the things in the Natural which receive the goods and truths inflowing from the Internal, thus they = scientific truths; for these receive.

6678. That the scientific truths, being from the Divine, were guarded. Sig. and Ex. 6689.

6681. That those in falsities formed a design against those in scientific truths in the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

— . 'The midwives' = the Natural where are scientific truths.

6683. An apperception concerning these scientific truths in the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

6686. The scientific truths in the Natural have all their life from the good which inflows through the Internal . . . (But) the Natural does not know when scientific truths have life, consequently, when it is being regenerated. Sig. and Ex.

6690. That the scientific truths in the Natural were disposed into a heavenly form. Sig. and Ex.

—². But the disposition of the scientific truths in the Natural varies with each man; for the dominant love induces the form on them. Ex.

6723². 'Grass for reed and rush' = that there will be scientific truth instead of such things as have no truth in them.

6745². 'To suck the affluence of the sea' = that they will imbibe scientific truth in abundance . . . (= to abound in scientific truths. 6762.)

6755. 'Moses grew' = increase in scientific truths.

6762². 'The covered things of the hidden things of the sand' = the arcana of scientific truths; and, as 'sand' = scientific truth, in the opposite, it = scientific falsity.

6767². 'The herb of the whole field' = all the scientific truth of the Church.

6784. Because the scientific truth which was adjoined to the Church had prevailed over the power of the doctrine of falsity from evil. Sig. and Ex.

6789. How, without that truth, could they be conjoined with the good of the Church? Sig. and Ex. . . The scientific truth, here represented by Moses, is the truth of the External Church. This truth comes forth from the truth which is of the Law from the Divine, which also is 'Moses' . . . External truth, unless it is from internal truth, cannot be conjoined with good. Examp. . . (Thus) external truth is conjoined with internal truth, when man is in good, unknown to him.

6792. That (scientific truth agreed with the truth of good of that Church). Sig. and Ex.

6793. That (it adjoined to scientific truth the good of its Church.) Sig. and Ex.

6832. 'In a flame of fire out of the midst of a bramble bush' = the Divine love in scientific truth. 'A bramble bush' = scientific truth, because all the small trees = scientifics . . . and, as the bramble produces flowers and berries, it = scientific truth.

— The scientific truth of the Church is nothing else than the Word in the sense of the letter, and also every representative and significative of the Church which was with the descendants of Jacob. In their external form, these are called scientific truths; but in the internal form they are spiritual truths.

6833. An apperception that scientific truth was full of the good of Divine love. Sig. and Ex.

7093³. Scientific truth is signified by 'a branch of a dense tree;' and sensuous truth, which is the most external, by 'the willows of the torrent.' S369.

7131. 'To gather stalk for chaff' = to find some scientific truth. Ex.

— The scientifics of faith and charity are indeed truths, but general ones; and thus are the recipient vessels of particular and singular truths . . . For example, it is a scientific truth that charity towards the neighbour is an essential of the Church. (Other examps.)

7729⁵. The waters and streams 'of Egypt' = scientific truths.

8005. 'Thou shalt not break a bone in it' = that scientific truth also must be entire.

—^e. Scientific truths are doctrinals.

9025. The weakening of one (truth of the Church) by some scientific or general truth. Sig. and Ex.

—². By scientific truths are meant the truths which are from the literal sense of the Word. The general truths thence are those which are received by the generality, and are thence in common speech. Such truths are very numerous, and prevail with much force; but the literal sense . . . is for the simple . . . hence there often appear there things dissimilar and as it were contradictory to each other; as, that the Lord leads into temptation, and, elsewhere, that He does not, etc. etc. Such things, being from the literal sense . . . are called scientific truths, and are different from the truths of faith which are of the doctrine of the Church, for these arise from those by explication . . . The true doctrine of the Church is what is here called the internal sense. Further ex.

9028. The elevation of spiritual truth to agreement with scientific truth. Sig. and Ex.

9029. It here treats of those who, from any spiritual truth . . . regard any scientific truth, which is truth from the sense of the letter . . . and, as there appears no agreement, the spiritual truth is weakened . . . but not denied . . .

9030. Spiritual truth is that truth, which, together with good, makes the life of the internal man; but scientific truth is that truth which makes the life of the external man: the latter truth is from the literal sense . . .

9031. The restoration of spiritual truth is effected by a just interpretation of scientific truth, or of the literal sense . . .

9032. In these two verses it has treated of spiritual truth . . . weakened through scientific truth, which is the truth of the literal sense; but, as it is commonly believed that the truth of doctrine of faith of the Church is one and the same with the truth of the literal sense . . . we may illustrate the matter by an example . . .

9033. It (now) treats of the weakening of scientific truth, which is the literal sense . . . by spiritual truth . . . Examp.

9034. That if anyone within the Church ill-treats scientific truth, or its affection, from his Own power (spiritual death will follow). Sig. and Ex. 9036-9039.

— 'A man-servant' = scientific truth, which is the truth of the Word, but of its literal sense.

9050⁹. 'Vessels' = exterior truths, or scientific truths.

—¹⁰. 'The living soul which creeps' = scientific truths which are of faith.

9061². If the scientific truths in the external man have been perverted or extinguished, the internal man cannot see truth; thus cannot think or perceive, except pervertedly or falsely. Sig.

9209⁶. 'Bones' = scientific truths. 9407⁹.

9212. That if scientific truths disappear through fallacies . . . there must be restoration before a state of shade . . . comes. Sig. and Ex. 9213.

—². Scientific truth, relatively to the truth of faith which is of the internal man, is called 'a garment.' And the Sensuous . . . is 'a garment' relatively to scientific truth.

9295^e. 'The seed of Shihor' = scientific truth.

9340. Extension from scientific truths to the interior truths of faith. Sig. and Ex.

— 'The sea Suph' = sensuous and scientific truths, which are ultimate with man . . . And 'Egypt,' here, = scientific truth, because it treats of the extension of the spiritual things of faith . . .

—³. The truths in the external man are called scientific truths; and those in the internal man, interior truths of faith. Scientific truths are in man's memory : when they are drawn out of it, they come to apperception ; whereas the interior truths of faith are truths of his life, inscribed on the internal man, and of which but little appears in the memory. . . Scientific truths, and the interior truths of faith, are signified by 'the waters below,' and 'the waters above, the expanse.'

[A. 9340]⁶. 'The sons of Israel out of the land of Egypt' = those who have been initiated into spiritual truths and goods through scientific truths.

9372⁸. 'Camel's hairs' = scientific truths such as are in (the Word) before man in the world.

9391⁷. 'A female calf' = scientific truth, which is the truth of the natural man ; and 'a male calf' = the good thereof, which is the good of the natural man. —¹⁰.

9394⁶. Scientific truths from a celestial stock are 'vessels of basins ;' and scientific truths from a spiritual stock are 'vessels of psalteries.'

—^e. 'The bells of the horses' = the scientific truths which are from an enlightened Intellectual.

9433^e. 'The abyss with which the earth is covered as with a garment' = scientific truth from the natural man.

9553. 'Its flowers' = the scientifics of truth . . . (which) precede . . .

—³. 'Leaf' = scientific truth in general.

9688. In the other life appear embroidered garments of various modes, and by them are signified scientific truths.

—². Scientific truths differ from intellectual truths, as external things from internal ones, or as the Natural with man from the Spiritual ; for scientifics are of service to the understanding for objects, from which it hatches truths ; for the Intellectual is the sight of the internal man, and scientifics are its objects in the external man.

9755. The state of the (Ultimate) Heaven as to scientific truths. Sig. and Ex.

—². The truth of the natural man is signified by 'the water of the sea :' this truth is scientific ; for the truth in the natural man is truth in knowledge—scientia ; whereas the truth in the spiritual man is the truth of faith ; for from truth in knowledge is made truth in faith, when the former is elevated out of the external man into the internal. Hence it is that the truths with man in childhood are truths in knowledge, but in adult age, if he suffers himself to be regenerated, they become truths in faith . . .

—⁵. 'Sons from the sea' = scientific truths which are of the natural man.

9776. 'For all the vessels of the Habitation in all the service' = the scientific truths and goods which are of the external man. Ex.

9825³. 'Garments of embroidery' = the scientific truths which are in the Natural. The reason these truths are signified, is that in the Spiritual Kingdom reigns truth which is of the understanding.

9881^e. 'Silver and gold from Tarshish' = scientific truth and good.

10540². What is embroidered = scientific truth.

—⁶. 'Entwined work' = scientific truth.

N. 51⁹. That the scientific truths with the evil are not truths . . . Ref.

E. 283⁶. 'To trust under the abyss' = scientific truth, which is Divine spiritual natural.

391¹³. The Lord's advent, and the state then of those who are in scientific truths from Him. Sig.

—^e. 'In the midst of the land of Egypt' = through scientific truths which are in the natural man. Scientific truths are also Knowledges from the sense of the letter.

401²⁵. That scientific truths, which are of the natural man, shall be pleasant and delightful from good. Sig.

406. 'Islands' = the truths of the natural man, (which) are scientific truths, which are under the view of the rational man ; and are Knowledges of truth, which are under the view of the spiritual man. The Knowledges of truth are those which the natural man knows from the Word ; and the scientific truths are those which the rational man sees from the Rational, by which also he is wont to confirm the truths of the Church. Ex.

507. 'All the green grass was burnt up' = that all scientific truth has perished through the cupidities of these loves. . . For, as green grass serves animals for provender, so scientific truth serves men for spiritual nourishment.

—². By scientific truth is meant every scientific by which spiritual truth is confirmed, and by which it has life from spiritual good ; for, through scientifics, man can be wise or be insane. He is wise through scientifics when by them he confirms the truths and goods of the Church . . . and he is insane through scientifics when by them he weakens and refutes the truths and goods of the Church. (In the former case) they are called scientific truths, and also living ones ; (in the latter) scientific falsities, and also dead ones. (Continued under Know-scire.)

511. The truth in the natural man is called scientific. But truth in itself is spiritual ; and, in the spiritual man, it makes a one with the affection of truth, for it is the form of the affection there. In proportion, therefore, as this affection, with its form, is thence in the scientifics which are in the natural man, in the same proportion the scientifics contain truths in them, and are scientific truths ; for the scientifics which are of the natural man, regarded in themselves, are not truths, but only vessels which contain truth.

545. That they should not injure any scientific and living truth from the sense of the letter, nor any Knowledges of truth and good there. Sig. and Ex. . . By scientifics from the Word are meant all things of the sense of the letter in which there does not appear what is doctrinal ; and by the Knowledges of truth and good are meant all things of the sense of the letter in which and from which is what is doctrinal.

633². 'Egypt' = the Church as to scientific truths, upon which doctrine is founded.

790⁹. The things in the natural mind from the Spiritual are called rational truths, moral truths, natural truths ; and, in general, scientific truths.

Scissors. Forceps, Sax.

D. 5038. Scissors=the truth of civil life. Ex. 5039.

Scold. See under CHIDE.

Scold. Increpare.

Scolding, Rebuke. Increpatio.

Scolder, Rebuker. Increpator.

A. 649. 'Rebuke.' Occurs.

1949². The man whose Rational is in truth alone . . . scolds, chastises, etc.

1992⁶. Scolding, etc. are never of good, but of truth.

—⁸. The Angels . . . moderate the scolding.

2745. Such (wives) begin by talking much, then scolding (which was represented by a cock, and a wild-cat).

4700. 'His father rebuked him' (Gen.xxxvii.10)=indignation.

5056. He said he did not know that he had done evil: he had only scolded the inhabitants of that Earth: for there are scolders and chastisers of those who do not live rightly . . . After having scolded, he instructed them. . . He could not remain in the company of upright Spirits of that, nor of our Earth. He was black, but he himself said that he was of a murrhine colour. Those are such, at first, as are afterwards received among those who constitute the province of the seminal vesicles . . . (He burned to be received into Heaven, and stripped off his garment with great quickness.) 8846. 8847. D.872.

6682. These are words of scolding, thus of anger.

6765. Scolding. Sig.

8144. Self-rebuke. Sig.

10382. In that Earth, if anyone thinks, or does evil, he is scolded by a certain Spirit, who threatens him with death . . . One such Spirit induced a pain in the region of my abdomen, which is the method he uses . . . This Spirit was a rebuker.

M. 292². By uncultured wives this (subjugation of their husbands) is effected by alternate scoldings and favours.

T. 535. Everyone wants to rebuke another who intends evil . . . and yet can with difficulty say it to himself. Ex.

D. 1675. A certain rebuker Spirit came to me . . .

2120. They could not live without scolding. Des.

4439². It was given me to rebuke them.

E. 275⁷. Occurs. 439⁵. 627¹³. 735⁴. 740¹⁶.

342⁸. 'The rebuke of Jehovah' (Is.l.2)=the desolation of all truth. (=the destruction of the Church. 513³.)

355¹¹. 'The rebuke of the God of Jacob' (Ps.lxxvi.6)=the inversion of their state by themselves.

741²². That this destruction is from the hatred and fury of the evil against Divine things, is signified by, 'By Thy rebuke, O Jehovah . . .' (Ps.xviii.15). By the 'rebuke,' and the 'breath of the nostrils of Jehovah,' is signified the same as by His anger and wrath . . . and is so said according to the appearance.

Scold. Objurgare.

Reproach. Objurgatio.

E. 721¹⁷. That this was a grief of heart and mind, and disgraceful to the Church, is signified by 'a day of straitness, reproach, and contumely' (Is.xxxvii.3).

747. That they scolded and disputed with them from the Word continually. Sig. and Ex.

Scorch. See under HEAT=aestus.

Scorpion. Scorpio.

A. 10019⁴. 'Serpents and scorpions' (Luke x.19)=evils and the falsities of evil: 'to tread upon them'=to destroy them.

10071². 'Tails like scorpions, and stings in their tails' (Rev.ix.10)=adroit reasonings from falsities through which they persuade, and thus injure . . .

S. 13². By 'a scorpion' (id.) is signified their Persuasive. . . 'Their tails like scorpions'=persuasions.

R. 425. 'Power was given (the locusts), as the scorpions of the earth have Power' (ver.3)=the power of persuading that their falsities are truths. By 'a scorpion' is signified a deadly Persuasive: and by 'a scorpion of the earth,' a Persuasive in the Things of the Church. . . For a scorpion, when it strikes a man, induces a stupor on his members: and, if it is not healed, a death. The like is induced on the understanding by their Persuasive. Ill.

428. 'Their torment was as the torment of a scorpion when it strikes a man' (ver.5)=that this (stupor) is from their Persuasive. . . 'A scorpion'=this Persuasive. In the Spiritual World there is a Persuasive which takes away the understanding of truth, and induces a stupor and thus a pain on the lower mind; but this Persuasive is unknown in the natural world.

438. 'They had tails like scorpions' (ver.10)=the falsified truths of the Word by which they induce a stupor . . . 'a scorpion'=a Persuasive which induces a stupor on the understanding.

T. 165³. Like one who . . . sees a scorpion and believes it to be a bird . . .

D. 2743⁹. They are like . . . scorpions, which when triturated and mixed with oil, at once snatch to themselves all the poison of a wound.

2748. Their fingers were . . . as it were the digits of a scorpion.

3913. As bruised scorpions . . . imbibe poison, and thus protect others from dying from the bites of other scorpions.

E. 544. 'A scorpion'=what is persuasive infatuating and suffocating. Ex. 549. 559.

—². Deadly persuasions are signified by 'scorpions,' in the following passages.

—'. 'Serpents and scorpions' (Luke x.)=the crew of Satan, which had been in cunning, and in a direful Persuasive of falsity, by which men after death are spiritually murdered, unless they are protected by the Lord. The antediluvians . . . were pre-eminently in such a Persuasive . . . That the Lord delivered the Spiritual World from these and the like, is meant by His seeing Satan 'fall from Heaven,' and by His giving those who are in truths from good from Him, the 'Power to tread upon serpents and scorpions.'

[E. 544]³. 'Scorpions'=a direful Persuasive, also in Ezek.ii.4,6 . . . 'To dwell among scorpions'=among those who have persuaded themselves and strongly persuade others of falsities, and do not admit any truth . . .

—⁴. As the temptations of the faithful are effected through injections and persuasions of falsities by evil Spirits, it is said that they were led 'through a formidable desert of the serpent, the fire-serpent, and the scorpion' (Deut.viii.15). (The 'scorpions,' here, =persuasions. 730-34.)

Scortation. Scortatio.

Scortate. Scortari.

Scortatory. Scortatorius.

Fornicator. Scortator.

See HARLOT-scortum.

A. 1072⁴. 'Wine of scortation' (Rev.xiv.8, etc.)=the adulterated truths of faith, of which 'drunkenness' is predicated.

1113. Girls who have been enticed into scortations, and persuaded that there is no evil in it, and are otherwise well-disposed . . . have an instructor . . . who chastises them whenever, in thought, they break out into such wantonness . . . Thus are they devastated . . . (Continued under HARLOT-scortum.)

1186³. Ratiocination from scientifics about spiritual and celestial things, is called 'scortation' (or 'whoredom'.)

2015⁸. The falsification and adulteration of the doctrine of faith . . . is 'scortation.' Ill.

2466. The adulterations of good, and the falsifications of truth, are described in the Word by 'adulteries,' and 'scortations.' (Continued under ADULTERY.) 2729^e.

—³. That what is perverted of the Church is called 'scortation.' Ill.

—¹⁵. Many kinds of adulteries and scortations, and still more numerous species, are treated of in the Word.

2588². This ratiocination is called, passim, 'scortation with the sons of Egypt,' and 'with the sons of Asshur.'

3242⁴. The scortations of the sons of Israel with the Midianitish women . . . have a like signification; for by 'scortations' were represented the falsifications of truth.

3703¹⁵. 'To scortate' (done by the daughter of a priest) (Lev.xxi.9)=to profane good.

4227³. (Such) are very much delighted with the company of those who have been harlots-scorta.

4434. Adulterations of good are meant by 'adulteries;' and falsifications of truth, by 'scortations,' in the Word. Refs. and Ill. 4552^e. 6348². 6432⁵.

4818². The Jews lyingly said that they were 'not born from scortation.'

—³. 'Scortation,' everywhere in the Word, =the falsification of truth.

4820^e. It is said that Judah 'took' Shuah, by which it is tacitly indicated that it was not marriage, but scortation, and thus that the sons from her were born from scortation; neither is the conjunction of evil with falsity anything else.

4843². A life of evil is signified by 'your daughters scortate' (Hos.iv.13); and a doctrine of falsity from which is a life of evil, by 'your daughters-in-law commit adultery.'

4868^e. Such things are called 'scortations.'

4876⁸. 'The spirit of scortation' (Hos.iv.12)=a life of falsity from evil.

4903. 'Tamar . . . hath scortated' (Gen.xxxviii.24)=that it is false that anything conjugal intervenes. . . 'To scortate'=falsity. . . The Jewish nation . . . perceived the Internal of the Church no otherwise than as a harlot-scortum; and its preaching and life according thereto, no otherwise than as scortation. Ex.

4904. 'She is with child-gravida-to scortations' (id.) =that thence anything can be produced. . . 'Scortation' =the falsity from their religiosity.

5135¹¹. 'Scortations' (Rev.ix.21)=falsified truths.

6091^e. This (increase of good and truth) cannot take place before, except as from scortation; but the good from this is spurious, and also the truth . . .

6537³. 'To scortate, and love meretricious hire' (Hos.ix.1)=to falsify truths, and to love the things falsified.

6978^e. 'The scortations of the harlot' (Nahum iii.4)=the falsifications themselves. (=the falsified good of truth. 7297².) (=perversions of truth. 9188⁵.)

7456⁷. The reason a married girl was to be stoned if virginities were not found with her . . . (Deut.xxii.20,21) was that by 'scortation' was signified the falsification of truth, thus the destruction of it . . . For spiritual scortation is the falsification of truth.

8904². Hence it is that the falsification of truth is scortation; and the perversion of good is adulteration, in the internal sense. Ill.

—⁶. In these passages everyone can see that by 'scortations' are meant spiritual scortations, that is, perversions of the good, and falsifications of the truth, which are of the Church.

9231⁴. 'Dogs, enchanters, and fornicators' (Rev.xxii.15)=those who falsify the good and truth of faith; who are said to be 'without' when they are outside Heaven or the Church.

—'. 'The hire of a harlot'=the falsified truths of faith. That 'scortation'=the falsification of the truth of faith. Refs.

9466⁴. 'To scortate in Egypt' (Ezek.xxiii.3)=to falsify truths through scientifics.

9688⁵. 'To scortate'=to pervert truths through applications to falsities or evils.

10283⁹. 'To scortate with the sons of Egypt great in flesh' (Ezek.xvi.26)=to falsify the truths of the Church through scientifics which are from the natural man only, thus through sensuous scientifics.

10648. 'Lest they go a whoring after their gods' (Ex.xxxiv.15)=the consequent falsities of evil. . . For to 'go a whoring' (or 'scortate')=to be conjoined illegitimately; and 'the gods of the nations'=the falsities of evil.

—². 'To scortate' is often mentioned in the Word, and by it is signified illegitimate conjunction with truth; and by 'to commit adultery,' illegitimate conjunction with good. Hence by 'to scortate' is signified the falsification of truth . . . (which) is effected in three ways. Ex.

—⁴. All these kinds of falsifications are called, in the Word, 'scortations,' and 'harlotries;' for, as by marriage is meant a lawful conjunction, which is that of good and truth, illegitimate conjunctions are meant by scortations. Ill.

10652. 'And their daughters go a whoring after their gods, and make thy sons go a whoring after their gods' (ver.16)=thus the profanation of good and truth; (for) 'to scortate'=illegitimate conjunction.

S. 79⁵. The like is signified by 'the scortation of Ephraim;' for 'scortation'=the falsification of the understanding of the Word, that is, of its genuine truth.

Life 79². 'Scortations'=adulterations and falsifications of the Word. Ill.

P. 199. When a fornicator sees a harlot . . .

233¹⁰. Adulterations of good are described in the Word by adulteries; and falsifications of truth, by scortations.

R. 114. 'Balaam taught . . . to commit fornication' (Rev.ii.14)=hypocritical works, by which the worship of God is . . . adulterated. . . 'To commit fornication'=to adulterate and pervert worship. (=to falsify truths. E.141.)

134. '(Jezebel) teacheth and seduceth My servants to commit fornication' (ver.20)=from which the truths of the Word are falsified. . . 'To commit fornication'=to adulterate and falsify the Word. The reason this is signified by 'to scortate,' is that in each thing of the Word is a marriage of good and truth, and this marriage is broken when good is separated and is taken away from truth. It is from this that 'to scortate'=to adulterate the goods and falsify the truths of the Word; and, as this is spiritual scortation, those who, from their Own reason, have falsified the Word, after death . . . become fornicators . . . E.161.

—³. That 'scortations'=adulterations of the good, and falsifications of the truth, in the Word. Ill.

136. 'I gave her time that she should repent of her fornication, and she repented not' (ver.21)=that those who have confirmed themselves in that doctrine (of faith alone) do not recede although they see things contrary to it in the Word. 'To recede from scortation,' here = to recede from falsifying the Word. E.162.

153¹⁰. It is forbidden under a penalty to scortate promiscuously. (See HARLOT-scortum.)

316⁵. 'Scortation'=the falsification of truth.

461. 'They repented not of their . . . fornications' (Rev.ix.21). Ex. (=did not actually turn away from falsifying truth. E.590.)

632. 'The wine of the anger of her fornication' (Rev. xiv.8)=profanations of the Word, and adulterations of the good and truth of the Church. . . 'Scortation'=the falsification of truth; and 'the anger of scortation'=adulteration and profanation.

655. Those meant by 'the dragon' . . . appeared at a distance like satyrs . . . and those in the upper seats, like fornicators and harlots. Des. T.3SS.

720. 'With whom the kings of the earth have committed fornication' (Rev.xvii.2)=that it has adulterated the truths and goods of the Church which are from the Word. 'To scortate'=to falsify and adulterate truths. 767.

892. 'And murderers, and fornicators,' etc. (Rev.xxi.8)=all who make nothing of the precepts of the decalogue . . .

952. 'Without are . . . fornicators,' etc. (Rev.xxii.15) =that no one is received into the New Jerusalem who makes the precepts of the decalogue of no account . . .

M. 44⁷. In Heaven they are quite ignorant what scortation is: that there is such a thing, or that it is possible. The Angels are cold all over the body at unchaste or extra-conjugal love . . .

48^e. (Thus) the love of the sex . . . being roving and unlimited, is scortatory.

54. In an infernal prison, where to both promiscuous scortation is interdicted under a penalty.

—³. Those who have been celibates (here), and have quite alienated their minds from marriage . . . if they are natural, become fornicators.

55⁷. They have this eminent potency from a total renunciation of scortation.

75⁶. He could not utter the word scortation, because the chastity of their Heaven resisted it.

77⁵. If fornicators invade us, they are cast out into the fatuous lights of the south.

78⁵. This was from polygamous love, which is . . . scortatory.

79⁷. We asked, What is your religion as to scortations? The crowd murmured, What have you to do here with scortations? scortations are scortations: let him who is innocent cast the first stone.

147. That the chastity of marriage comes forth through a total renunciation of scortations, from religion. Ex.

— . Consequently, in proportion as scortation is renounced, the chastity of marriage enters.

—^e. Therefore, when the heat of conjugal love removes and rejects the heat of scortatory love, conjugal love begins to warm pleasantly . . .

149. The reason this renunciation of scortations must take place from religion, is that . . . if a natural man renounces scortations, still his spirit does not renounce them . . .

225². The sphere opposite to it is called meretricious with such women; and scortatory with such men.

247. Conjugal love believed to be one with scortatory love, except that the latter is illicit by law (a cause of cold). Ex.

—^e. Nothing stores up in itself conjugal cold more than scortatory love; and, as it passes into cold, it may be called conjugal cold itself.

249. By application to uses (a man) exterminates the wild insanities of scortatory lust.

261³. The universals of Hell are these three loves: the love of dominating . . . the love of possessing . . . and scortatory love.

294⁴. The pleasures on the part of (such) a husband are to be called those of scortatory love.

[M.] 294⁸. The pleasures of scortatory love descend to the lowest Hell, and on the way, and there, conjoin themselves with the pleasures of all infernal loves, and thus enter into their unhappiness, which consists in a distress of all the delights of the heart. The reason is that the pleasures of this love are also those of insanity.

331^e. The love of proprium . . . so long as it prevails, remains scortatory.

345². Evil regarding the sex, which is in the natural man, is scortation; but as this is ruinous to society, in place of scortation there has been induced its likeness, which is called polygamy.

376^e. There are also scortatory marriages, in which, by mutual consent, the license of lust is given to both.

423. The Pleasures of Insanity concerning Scortatory Love. Title.

— . On the opposition of scortatory love and conjugal love. Chapter.

— . By scortatory love is not meant the fornicatory love which precedes marriage; nor that which follows it after the death of the consort; nor concubinage . . . nor the mild kinds of adultery; nor the grievous kinds of which a man actually repents . . . But by the scortatory love opposite to conjugal love is here meant the love of adultery, when it is such that adultery is not held to be sin . . . but allowable and according to reason. This scortatory love not only makes conjugal love the same as itself; but also ruins, destroys, and at last nauseates it.

424. That the quality of scortatory love is not known unless that of conjugal love is known. Ex.

425. That scortatory love is opposite to conjugal love. Ex. 426, Ex. 427, Ex. 429, Ex.

426². He who is devoid of charity, is dissolute to all the lasciviousnesses of scortatory love.

—^e. Scortatory love, regarded in itself, is natural love.

430. That the uncleanness of Hell is from scortatory love . . . Ex.

— . The appearances in Hell under which the lascivious delights of scortatory love are presented, are ordure and filth; the odours . . . are stench and stinks; and the forms of beasts and birds . . . are swine, serpents, and the birds called ochim and ziim.

431. Those in the immodest and obscene delights of scortatory love summon to themselves like (Spirits) from Hell.

—². (The sons of Israel were commanded to cover their excrement) because . . . these unclean things correspond to the lasciviousnesses of scortations.

432. That scortatory love makes a man more and more not a man . . . Ex.

434. That there is a spiritual sphere of scortatory love . . . Ex.

435. That the sphere of scortatory love ascends from Hell. Ex.

436-439. That the two spheres (of scortatory and of conjugal love) meet each other in the world, but do not conjoin themselves together. That between these two spheres there is an equilibrium, in which is man.

That man can turn himself to whichever sphere he pleases; but that in proportion as he turns himself to the one, he turns himself away from the other. And that each sphere carries delights with it. Ex.

439. The ultimate plane in which the delights of both loves cease . . . is the same; and hence scortatory amatory things, and conjugal ones, in the extremes, are perceived as alike, although in internals they are altogether unlike . . .

440. That the delights of scortatory love begin from the flesh; and are of the flesh even in the spirit . . . Ex.

442. That the delights of scortatory love are pleasures of insanity . . . Ex.

—^e. With these (three degrees of natural men) scortatory love, and its insanities and pleasures, are of like degrees.

443. The quality of the delights of scortatory love, elucidated by comparisons.

444. Two Angels . . . said . . . Omit these (meditations about scortatory love) because they are nothing. I replied, This love . . . is not nothing, because it exists.

—³. I rejoiced because it had been granted me to speak with Angels of such innocence that they were quite ignorant of what scortation is.

—³. See MARRIAGE (OR CONJUGIAL) LOVE.

—^e. Those who die as infants . . . are quite ignorant what scortation is, or that it is possible.

455. See FORNICATION.

466. That (concubinage conjointly with a wife) is scortation, by which the Conjugal . . . is destroyed. Ex. . . It is a scortation more opposite to conjugal love than common scortation, which is called simple adultery. Ex. . . In polygamic scortation there is what is analogous to conjugal love . . .

477. I heard a certain (novitiate) Spirit boasting of his scortations . . .

—³. In his internal sight, in which scortation played the first part, he was not rational; (and the heavenly scenery) did not appear before his internal sight, which was scortatory, and turned heavenly into infernal things, seeing only the opposites. Des.

—⁸. As the evil of scortation defiles the internals of the mind more than any other evil . . .

—^e. Impotence is the lot which awaits those who glory from the potency of scortation.

483. I have heard in the Spiritual World that some married men have the lust of scortating with virgins; some with harlots; some with wives; some with those of noble family; and some with those not of noble family. Des.

500². Nine hundred out of a thousand (Christians) say . . . What is marriage but allowable scortation?

507. That by the lust of varieties is meant the utterly dissolute lust of scortation. Ex.

515. On the correspondence of scortations with the violation of spiritual marriage. Chapter.

523. On the imputation of each love, scortatory, and conjugal. Chapter.

530. That thus is scortatory love imputed to each one. Ex.

—e. The like is the case with scortations, whether they be fornications, pellicacies, concubinages, or adulteries; for these are imputed to everyone, not according to the deeds themselves, but according to the state of mind in the deeds.

531^e. No inference is to be drawn . . . from the appearances of scortations, as to whether anyone has conjugal love, or not. Therefore 'Judge not, lest ye be condemned.'

D. 1070. On fornicators who allure virgins to scortations with deceit.

4146. When spiritual Angels conversed about the things written by me not being true . . . I seemed to myself to scortate, and even to commit adultery, in my sleep.

4218. I have perceived . . . sometimes, a sphere of scortation, which sphere was around . . . It was from those who had persuaded themselves that faith alone saves . . .

4888. There were very many who are to be called fornicators and adulterers, who have said that they acknowledge true doctrine, yet have not done so with the heart . . . (Other kinds of scortations and adulteries, enum.)

4932. (Cities there where there is much scortation and adultery, almost as in Sodom.) The cause is that in the world such things are everywhere regarded as of no moment; and also because they place all the Church in doctrine alone; and also because they do not care whether doctrinal things are false or true; and falsifications of doctrine are scortations, and adulterations of good are adulteries.

5054. When those on a higher mountain . . . say that doctrine is false and evil, those lower down want to scortate and commit adultery with the women of others, whom they say are in the falsity or evil of doctrine; (this being) a representative which corresponds.

5070. See LAST JUDGMENT.

6106⁴. In those Hells which are under judges . . . they are allowed to conjoin with themselves some woman . . . but are not allowed to . . . scortate promiscuously.

—⁵. There are Hells full of harlots, into which novitiates come, and scortate to satiety. Penalties accrue from various shocking diseases; and on this account they desist. Sunt ibi societates turpes, ubi conveniunt scorta et adulteri: coctus sunt ubi scorta quavis nocte sibi eligunt mares; non coctus sunt ubi mares eligunt scorta. Scorta ibi possunt per phantasias se facere pulchras.

6110⁶. See ADULTERY. E. 1010⁴.

E. 141². 'To scortate' = to imbue falsities, and also to falsify truths. Ill.

—³. Scortations, in the spiritual sense, or spiritual scortations, are nothing else than falsifications of truth.

—¹⁶. That scortations and adulteries involve such things, has been evident from much experience . . . The spheres from Spirits who had been such, manifest them: from the presence of Spirits who have confirmed falsities with themselves, and have applied truths from the sense of the letter to confirm them, there exhales a sphere of abominable scortation. Such spheres correspond to all the forbidden degrees (Lev. xx. 11-21), with a difference according to the application of the truths to the falsities, and according to the conjunction of the falsities with the evils, especially with the evils which spring from the love of self.

195⁷. 'To scortate' = to make doctrine and worship from falsities.

240⁴. 'To scortate' = to imbue Falsities. 242¹⁵.

—⁵. 'Scortations and adulteries' = falsities and the derivative evils.

283^e. 'Scortation' = the falsification of truth. 304¹⁷. 324¹⁵. 355²³. 376³⁸. —³⁹. 654⁵⁶. —⁶⁷. —⁶⁸. —⁶⁹. —⁷⁰. —⁷¹. 724³⁰. 725¹⁰. 727²². 730¹¹. —¹⁸. 805⁵. 811²⁸. 827⁷. 887^e. 1029¹⁵. 1045². 1047. 1130.

511². Conjunctions of truth with merely natural affections, correspond to scortations and adulteries of various kinds . . . It is conjunctions of the Truths of the Word with the love of self and the love of the world which correspond to them.

555⁷. 'To scortate in Egypt' = to falsify truths through the scientifics of the natural man; and to falsify truths there, is to turn holy things into magical ones, as the Egyptians did. 576⁶.

655⁷. 'To scortate with the daughters of Moab' = to adulterate the goods of the Church.

D. Conj. S2. On sacerdotal scortation, Gen. art.

Scotland. Scotia.

T. 812. The English have a twofold theology: one from their doctrine of faith, and the other from the doctrine of charity . . . from the doctrine of charity, with many of the laity, especially those who dwell in Scotland and its borders. The solidians fear to engage in controversy with these, because they fight with them from both the Word and reason.

E. 1070². See ENGLAND.

Scourge. Flagellare.

D. 3550. Occurs.

E. 655⁹. 'To scourge' (Matt. xxiii. 34) relates to the Word, which is 'a scribe.' . . . and = to pervert.

—¹⁰. 'To mock, and to scourge, and to crucify' (Matt. xx. 19) = the blaspheming, falsification, and perversion of the truth, and the adulteration and destruction of the good of the Church and of the Word.

Scrape. Excoriare.

A. 939. Like the vapour from swine scraped in a trough. D. 1292. 1295.

D. 1250. They suspend a sheep thus skinned . . .

Scrape together. Corradere.

A. 987². Until he had scraped together the wealth of all.

1008. Confirms by many things he scrapes together from the Word.

D. 3455. He then scraped together whatever he could from the Word . . .

Screech. Ululare.

See OWL-ulula.

T. 71. From those birds of night I heard a screeching-ululatus.

Scribe. Scriba.

M. 207⁵. They were taken to the abodes of the scribes (there), who wrote copies of the writings of the wise of the city; and they inspected the writings . . .

E. 447⁴. 'The sceptre of the scribe' (Judg.v.14)=intelligence.

453¹¹. 'Where is the scribe?' (Is.xxxiii.18)=when there is no intelligence.

655⁹. 'I send unto you . . . scribes' (Matt.xxiii.34)= . . . the Word from which is doctrine.

—¹⁰. 'The chief priests and scribes' (Matt.xx.18)=adulterations of good and falsifications of truth, both from infernal love.

746¹⁷. 'To abound over (the righteousness) of the scribes and Pharisees' (Matt.v.20)=that there must be internal life, and not external without internal. The scribes and Pharisees were solely in external representatives . . .

Scrip. See under BAG.

Scripture. See HOLY SCRIPTURE, and WRITE.

Scrivenerus. Scrivenerus. D.4831.

Scroll. See BOOK, at R.335.

Scrotum. Scrotum. D.Min.4582.

Scruple. Scrupulus.

A. 215. Then the least scruple prevails over a thousand Truths.

1072². When instructed . . . they advance a thousand scruples.

2249⁴. The scruples (of the Angels) are thus easily dissipated.

5386. (These Spirits) raise scruples in Things in which nothing of scruple ought to be, (and thus) oppress the consciences of the simple . . . for, where any scruple, or doubt, arises, if the mind is anxious . . . there are never wanting things confirmatory. 5724. D.1240.

6479. With (those in the negative) one scruple avails more than a thousand confirmations; for one scruple is like a grain of sand placed close before the pupil . . . But those in the affirmative . . . reject the scruples from fallacies . . .

M. 157^e. (This) admits of no doubt.

D. 2591. There arose this tender scruple . . .

3667. Against these things scruples can be excited to eternity . . . When they are such, the smallest scruple, before the eyes, causes them to see nothing.

Scrutiny. See under SEARCH.

Scum. See FROTH.

Scurf. Porriago.

A. 7524³. (Correspondence of the scurf of leprosy.) E.962¹⁰.

Scutiform. Scutiformis. A.9236.

Scylla. Scylla. Scia.33.

Sea. Mare.

See under DEEP-abyssus, DEEP-profundus, RED SEA, and WAVE.

A. 27. These Knowledges are 'the waters gathered together to one place' and 'called seas' (Gen.i.27.28).

28. Hence 'seas'=a collection of Knowledges and scientifics. III. 991^e.

953. I saw afar a great sea heaving with great billows . . . Those see such a sea, with a fear of being sunk in it, who have wanted to be great in the world, caring nothing whether by right or wrong.

994⁶. 'Seas' (Ps.civ.25)=spiritual things.

1267^e. (The antediluvians) roll those they meet in a cloth, and cast them into a certain sea.

1444³. See JORDAN.

1453. 'Bethel on the sea' (that is, on the west) (Gen.xii.8)=His state obscure.

1610. 'The sea'=what is spiritual of love.

1666². 'This is the sea of salt' (Gen.xiv.3)=the foul things of the Falsities thence. Ex.

1692^e. The Hells compared to a sea which presses on a dyke.

2120. 'The sea and the billows-salum-shall roar' (Luke xxi.25)=that heresies and controversies . . . will be thus in uproar.

2162⁷. 'The sea' (Rev.x.1)=natural truths; 'the earth.' natural goods.

—¹². The 'brazen sea.' Ex.

2702¹⁵. 'To go towards the sea' (Ezek.xlvii.8)=towards scientifics; 'the sea'=a collection of them.

2708⁸. 'The desert of the sea' (Is.xxi.1)=truth vastated through scientifics and the reasonings thence. (=the worthlessness of the knowledges which are not for use. 3048⁴.)

2761². 'Thou hast made Thine horses to tread in the sea' (Hab.iii.15). 'The sea'=Knowledges; and as these are of the understanding of the Word from God, it is said (as above).

2762⁴. When they described the god of the sea, as by the sea are signified knowledges in general, they gave him horses.

2832². 'I will set his hand in the sea' (Ps.lxxxix.25)=strength in the knowledges of truth.

2850. 'The sea'=scientifics in general, or a gathering together of them. 2967³.

3048⁵. 'The multitude (abundance) of the sea' (Is.lx.5)=an immense abundance of natural truth.

3693⁵. 'The great sea,' and 'the going down of the sun' (Josh.i.4)=the other (boundary of the Lord's Kingdom), by which is represented the ultimate, which is relatively obscure.

3708. 'Thou shalt break forth to the sea, and to the east' (Gen.xxxviii.14)=the infinite extension of good. . . 'The sea,' or west.=good as yet obscure, thus commencing.

—7. 'To wander from sea to sea' (Amos viii.12)= to seek out where there are Knowledges; 'seas'= Knowledges in general.

4255³. 'The sea saw it and fled' (Ps. cxiv. 3). . . 'The sea'=the Knowledges of truth.

4394. When man is in interior truths in faith and life . . . he regards exterior things as one who from a lofty hill regards the sea in tumult.

4735^e. 'Seas'=scientific truths in the complex.

5313⁷. 'The sea of glass before the throne' (Rev. iv.) =all the truth in the Natural; thus Knowledges and scientifics.

6015⁷. 'Seas'=gatherings together of scientifics.

6297³. 'Jehovah hath founded the world upon the seas' (Ps. xxiv. 2)=upon the things which are of knowledge.

6384. 'Shall dwell at the haven of the seas' (Gen. xlix. 13)=life where is the conclusion of truth from scientifics. . . 'The seas'=scientifics in the complex.

6385⁴. 'The sea'=the Natural where scientifics are.

—'. 'Creatures in the sea having souls' (Rev. viii. 9) =scientific truths with goods.

6723. 'To send ambassadors into the sea' (Is. xviii. 2) =to consult scientifics.

6745². 'To suck the abundance of the sea' (Deut. xxxiii. 19)=that they will imbibe scientific truth in abundance, or that it will be insinuated. 6762. (=to imbibe truths of doctrine from the Word, and thence intelligence. E. 445⁵.)

8099⁴. 'The people whom He made to ascend out of the sea' (Is. lxiii. 11)=those delivered from damnation.

8137². The Hell where are those who have lived in faith separated from charity . . . is circumfused as by the waters of a sea. The falsities of evil do not appear to them as waters, but to those who are outside. Above this sea . . . are the Hells of adulterers. Ex.

8185². 'To pass through the sea of straitness' (Zech. x. 11)=temptations.

—^e. 'Dry land' (relatively to the sea) is predicated of good; and 'the sea,' of truth.

8288. 'The heart of the sea' (Ex. xv. 8)=the evil of the love of self, and the falsities thence. . . (=the Hells where are Falsities from cupidities. —^e.)

8313³. 'Their voice roars like the sea' (Jer. vi. 23)=the ratiocination thence.

8452. A bird of the sea = what is natural.

8891². 'In six days Jehovah made heaven, and earth, and the sea' (Ex. xx. 11)=the regeneration . . . of the things in the internal and external man. . . 'The sea'=the Sensuous which adheres to man's Corporeal.

9050¹¹. 'The sea'=scientifics in the complex.

9340. 'The sea of the Philistines' (Ex. xxiii. 31)=interior truths of faith. Ex.

9341². See RIVER—fluvius. —³.

9653. 'The two thighs of the Habitation towards the sea' (Ex. xxvi. 22)=conjunction with Heaven where good is in obscurity. . . 'The west,' or 'sea,'=a state of good in obscurity.

9688⁴. 'The princes of the sea' (Ezek. xxvi. 16)=primary scientifics, which are called dogmas. . . 'The sea'=what is scientific in general.

9755. 'The breadth of the court at the corner of the sea' (Ex. xxvii. 12)=the state of that Heaven as to scientific truths. . . 'The sea'=where there is a collection of scientifics from which there is ratiocination about truths, thus also the Natural and the Sensuous, for these are the containants. 'The corner of the sea,' here means that of the west, and 'the west'=good in obscurity; but when the west is not mentioned, but 'the sea,' there is then signified what is scientific, which also is relatively in obscurity. . .

—³. The reason 'the sea'=a collection of scientifics, is that waters, springs, and rivers=truths; hence the collections of these are 'seas.' Ill.

—⁴. 'To tread the sea with horses'=to instruct the natural man. (=that the Lord is in the understanding of His Word in its natural sense. E. 355⁴.)

—⁵. 'The eastern sea,' and 'the hinder sea' (Zech. xiv. 8)=the Natural and the Sensuous, where are scientifics, [and] which are collections of truths.

—⁸. Seas appear (there), and ships on them. . . The seas there, in an evil sense, =the false things of scientifics.

—¹⁵. 'The sea,' in the opposite, =what is scientific looking to the world.

—¹⁶. The signification of what is scientific by 'the sea' is according to the density and blackness of its waters; or according to their tenuity and transparence. Hence what is scientific looking to Heaven . . . is called 'a sea of glass.'

—^e. No ratiocination about the truths of faith from scientifics . . . is signified by 'no more sea.'

10235⁶. The laver was called 'a sea,' because by 'a sea' is signified what is scientific in general. Refs. E. 275²².

10261^e. Those are said to be 'at the sea' (that is, the west) who are in evils.

10416⁴. 'The sea'=a gathering together of scientific truths, thus what is external with man, and in the Church.

J. 48. Outside the gentiles, there appeared as it were a sea, which was the boundary.

61. These Babylonians were cast into a sea, whose waters were black. —⁷. 64.

—⁷. That part of the sea was encrusted with dust and smoke . . . and therefore that sea no longer exists to the sight. . .

—^e. The gulfs and the sea are their Hells.

R. 238. 'In view of the throne a sea of glass like unto crystal' (Rev. iv. 6)=a New Heaven from Christians who were in general truths from the sense of the letter. . . Aqueous atmospheres appear where are the Angels of the Ultimate Heaven; and these are the seas which appear in the boundaries of Heaven; and there are those who are in general truths from the sense of the letter. 'Waters'=truths; hence 'the sea,' in which waters cease and are collected, =Divine truth in the boundaries. . . As 'the seven lamps . . . before the throne'=a New Church which will be in Divine truth

. . . it is evident that 'the sea of glass' which was 'in sight of the throne'=the Church with those who are in the boundaries. (=the appearance of truth in ultimates, where are its generals, and transparence from the influx of Divine truth united to Divine good in primes. E.275.)

[R.238]². (Those in the seas at the boundaries of the Heavens) have been seen by me as in the sea; but they said that they were not in the sea, but in an atmosphere; from which it is evident . . . that the sea is the appearance in the boundaries of the Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord. —³, Ill.

— . That there are seas in the Spiritual World. Ill.

—⁵. As by 'the sea' is signified Divine truth with those who are in the boundaries of Heaven, by Tyre and Zidon, because they were near the sea, is signified the Church as to the Knowledges of good and truth; and, on the same account also, by the islands of the sea are signified those who are in a more remote Divine worship. And therefore 'the sea,' in the Hebrew, is the west, that is, the place where the light of the sun passes into its evening, or truth into obscurity.

—^e. 'The sea' also=the Natural of man separated from what is spiritual, thus also Hell. 343⁴. 791.

290. 'Every creature . . . in the sea,' etc. (Rev.v.13) = . . . the Angels of the lowest Heavens. E.342.

—^e. See FISH.

343². 'The earth and the sea' (Rev.vii.1)=all the lower things. (=the ultimates of the earth there. E.420.)

398. 'The land (or earth) and sea,' everywhere in the Apocalypse, when both are mentioned,=the universal Church; 'the land,' the Church from those who are in its internals; and 'the sea,' the Church from those who are in its externals . . . Ill. 470. 475. 558. 680. E.600. 609.

—^e. In the Spiritual World . . . those in the externals of the Church are as in seas; but the seas are appearances from the general truths in which they are.

403. 'A mountain burning with fire cast into the sea' (Rev.viii.8)=the appearance of infernal love with those in the externals of the Church and in faith alone. . . . And those in externals are called by the general term laymen. 404. 405.

567. 'The beast out of the sea' (Rev.xiii.1)=the laity in the Churches of the Reformed . . . (=the things of the natural man. E.774.)

659. 'I saw as it were a sea of glass mingled with fire' (Rev.xv.2)=the last boundary of the Spiritual World, where were collected those who had religion and derivative worship, and no good of life. Ex. . . This is the 'sea' meant in Rev.xxi.1. (=the general truths in the Word transparent from spiritual truths which are from the good of love. E.931. 934.)

786². 'As many as work on the sea' (Rev.xviii.17)=all . . . who love . . . this religiosity . . . because by 'the sea' is signified that religiosity; for by 'the sea' is signified the external of the Church; and this religiosity is merely external. (Compare E.1170.)

869. 'The sea gave up the dead which were in it'

(Rev.xx.13)=the external and natural men of the Church called together to judgment. 'The sea'=the external of the Church, which is natural.

878. 'The sea was no more' (Rev.xxi.1)=that the external of the Heaven collected from Christians from the first instauration of the Church, after those written in the Lord's book of life had been taken out and saved, was in like manner dissipated. 'The sea'=the external of Heaven and of the Church, in which are the simple . . .

—^e. The reason the Heaven where are the external men of the Church, is called the sea, is that their habitation in the Spiritual World appears from afar as in the sea; for . . . the spiritual natural Angels, who are the Angels of the Ultimate Heaven, dwell as in an aqueous atmosphere, which from afar appears like a sea. Hence it is that the external of Heaven is meant by 'the sea' in many other places in the Word.

T. 71. I once heard beneath me as it were the roaring of the sea. Ex. See also 390.

123⁵. The subjugation of Hell by the Lord is meant by His calming the sea (Mark iv. Matt.viii. Luke viii.); for by 'the sea' there, as in many other places, is signified Hell.

614³. By 'the sea' (in which the swine immersed themselves) is signified Hell. E.659⁶.

D. 243. On a tumultuous sea at the time of the Last Judgment. Ex. 277.

2345. A state of cupidities . . . is turned, in the other life, into the state of . . . a rough sea.

3295. On a sea under the feet.

4453^e. A stagnant sea into which they were to be cast, in another universe.

4769. Many appeared as it were to rise out of the sea, that is, out of knowledges.

5296. See LAST JUDGMENT. 5300. 5328. 5331. 5345. 5363. 5409. 5502. 5636.

5847. The western sea.

D. Min. 4787. One immersed in a tumultuous sea there, and swimming.

E. 175¹². 'The sea and billows roaring' = fallacies and derivative reasonings. 304⁴⁷.

179⁷. The waters which 'went down into . . . the sea,' causing the waters of the sea to be healed (Ezek. xlvii.)=influx into . . . the Knowledges in the natural man. 342⁷.

275². That 'the sea'=(the generals of truth, such as is the truth in the ultimates of Heaven, and with man in the natural man, which is called scientific truth, because in the sea there is a gathering together of waters, and by 'waters' are signified truths). (Fully ill.)

—⁸. 'Thou rulest in the uplifting of the sea, when it lifts up its waves' (Ps.lxxxix.9)=the natural man because general truths are there; 'its waves'=falsities.

—¹¹. 'He gathereth the waters of the sea together as a heap' (Ps.xxxiii.7)=the Knowledges of truth, and truths in general, which are together in the natural man.

—¹³. 'Thy way is in the sea, and Thy path in many waters' (Ps.lxxvii.19)=such things as the Lord is in, which are the Knowledges of truth in general from the Word, and the truths there; 'the sea'=these Knowledges; and 'the waters'=truths; Knowledges being of the natural man, and truths of the spiritual.

—¹⁴. 'The sea of Babel' (Jer.li.36)=their traditions, which are adulterations of good from the Word.

—¹⁷. 'The wicked are like a troubled sea' (Is.lvii.20)=reasonings from falsities; 'its waters cast up mire and dirt'=the falsities themselves, from which are evils of life and falsities of doctrine.

—²⁰. 'The eastern sea'=the natural man as to good; and 'the hinder sea,' the same as to truth.

304¹⁶. 'The seas' upon which He has founded the Church=the Knowledges of truth in general.

—¹⁷. 'The mountains' (goods of love) are said to be 'shaken in the heart of the seas' (Ps.xlvi.2) when the essential Knowledges of truth are perverted.

316¹⁵. The beast (Dan.vii.) was seen to ascend 'out of the sea,' because by 'the sea' is signified the natural man separated from the spiritual . . .

326¹¹. 'The sea' (rejoicing)=the things which are of knowledge in agreement with truths and goods.

342³. The three degrees of the Ultimate Heaven are meant by 'those in heaven, on earth, and in the sea.'

—⁴. But the seas in which the lowest of this Heaven dwell, are not like the seas in which the evil dwell; they differ in the waves, (which) in the former are thin and pure; but in the latter are thick and impure.

— . I have seen the former seas, and have spoken with those in them, and found that those are there who in the world had been merely sensuous, but still upright; and, being sensuous, they could not understand what is spiritual, but only what is natural, nor could they perceive the Word and the doctrine from the Word, except sensuously. All these appear as in the sea; but they do not seem to themselves to be in the sea, but in an atmosphere like that in which they had lived here. That they are in the sea, appears solely to those who are above. At this day there is a vast number there . . . This ultimate part of Heaven corresponds to the soles of the feet. It is from this that 'seas' are so often mentioned in the Word, and also the 'fishes' there; and by 'the seas' there, are signified general truths, which are of the natural man; and by 'the fishes,' sensuous scientifics, which are the lowest things of the natural man . . . (Fully ill.) (Compare —¹⁰.)

—¹⁰. Thus 'seas'=the general things of truth.

—¹¹. The quality of those who are in that aqueous atmosphere, which is meant by 'the seas,' shown by an example.

355⁴. 'The sea,' in general, =all things which are of the natural man, and for the natural man. 406².

—³⁷. 'The sea'=damnation and Hell, where all are in proprium, because in the natural man separated from the spiritual, and thence in evils and falsities of every kind.

365²³. 'The sea,' in the Word, is predicated of truths.

376¹⁴. 'The sea'=what is scientific.

386¹¹. 'From sea to sea'=on every side; for the ultimate boundaries in the Spiritual World, where truths and goods begin and are terminated, appear like seas; and therefore 'seas,' in the Word, =the Knowledges of truth and good, and scientifics in general.

405²³. 'The western sea' (Zech.iv.8)=where are those who are in evil; for the sea in the western quarter in the Spiritual World separates.

—⁵³. See MOUNTAIN.

406⁴. 'The sea,' when it means the west, =what is natural.

—⁵. 'The sea,' and its 'fulness'=the natural man, and all things there.

—¹¹. 'The sea'=the natural man in general.

—¹².

—¹⁶. 'From sea to sea'=all things of Heaven and the Church as to goods; for the seas in the Spiritual World are the boundaries of the eastern and the western earth . . .

—¹⁸. 'The sea'=the general things of truth, or the truths of the natural man in general.

418⁸. 'The great sea' (Dan.vii.2)=the Hell whence these come.

447³. 'Seas'=scientifics, which are natural Truths.

483¹⁴. Babel's 'sea'=falsities in one complex.

511. 'Cast into the sea'=into the natural man; for 'the sea'=what is scientific in general, which is in the natural man, consequently the natural man as to what is scientific there. The reason is that 'water'=truth, and truth in the natural man is called what is scientific. Ex. 512. 513.

—². (Thus) by 'the sea,' relatively to its water, is signified what is scientific in general; but relatively to its waves, the disputing and ratiocination which is effected through scientifics; and, as both are in the natural man, by 'the sea' is signified the natural man himself. Ex.

—³. That 'the sea'=the natural man with the things which are therein, is also from correspondence; for in the Spiritual World seas appear in various places, especially near the ultimate boundaries, where cease the spiritual Societies, or Heaven itself; and this is because in the boundaries of Heaven, and outside them, are those who had been merely natural men, who also appear there in the depths, where their abodes are. But the natural not evil are there, whereas the evil natural are in the Hells. The quality of those in these seas is evident from . . . the colour of the water verging to obscurity or to clearness; if to obscurity, sensuous Spirits are therein, who are the lowest natural ones; if to clearness, interior natural ones are therein. But the waters of the seas which are over the Hells are dense, black, and sometimes red; and the infernal crew therein appear like snakes and serpents, and like monsters such as are in the seas. 538, Ex.

513³. To 'dry up the sea'=to deprive the natural man of scientific truths, and thus of natural life from spiritual.

514¹¹. 'This great and wide sea' (Ps.civ.25)=the external or natural man, who receives goods and truths scientifically; 'great' is said of the good, and 'wide,' of the truth there. . . To 'play in the sea' = the delight of knowing and of being wise thence.

[E. 514]²¹. 'The walking of the Lord upon the sea' (Matt. xiv.) = His presence and influx also into (the ultimate of Heaven and the Church); and the derivative life from the Divine for those who are in the ultimates of Heaven. . . And their faith obscure and vacillating, was represented by Peter when walking upon the sea beginning to sink, but being caught by the Lord, was saved. 'To walk' = to live. . . That meanwhile the sea was in commotion with the wind, and that the Lord assuaged it, = the natural state of life which precedes, which state is unpeaceful and as it were tempestuous . . . —²².

518²⁰. A Glorification by the ultimates of Heaven, is signified by, 'Let the sea give forth a sound and its fulness.'

—²³. 'The seas' = the Knowledges and knowledges which are the ultimates of the Church; in special, Knowledges of truth and good such as are in the sense of the letter; (and therefore) it is said that 'He hath founded the world (the Church) upon the seas' . . . for there are seas and rivers in the boundaries of Heaven, represented by 'the sea Suph,' 'the sea of the Philistines' . . .

—²⁵. By 'the rivers,' and 'the sea,' are signified all things of the Church, because they are its ultimates. 684²².

537. The waters of these (infernal) seas are grosser or denser according to the falsifications; and the depths also vary according to the evils which have falsified.

—¹⁶. 'The heart of the seas' = the Hell where and whence are these falsities; similarly as 'the abyss.'

538. See WATER.

—². That by 'seas,' 'depths,' and 'abysses,' are signified the Hells where and whence are the falsities of evil. Ill.

—¹³. In these passages, by 'the abyss,' and 'the depth of the sea,' is signified the Hell where and whence are the falsities of evil, for the reason that those Spirits who are there, and who when they lived in the world as men, had been in falsities of evil, appear to dwell at the bottom of seas, and the more deeply there in proportion as the evil from which is the falsity had been more grievous.

600²¹. The 'brazen sea' represented the general purificatory.

601⁷. 'With honour shall the sons from the sea draw near' (Hos. xi. 10) = that those in natural good will accede to the Church.

606². In special, by 'the sea,' and 'the earth,' upon which he set his 'feet,' is signified the Ultimate Heaven, and the Church on earth. Ex.

609. 'Heaven,' 'earth,' and 'the sea' (Rev. x. 6) = in special, here, the higher and the lower Heavens. Ex.

650¹⁰. 'The sea great and broad in spaces' (Ps. civ. 25) = the Natural itself; 'wherein is creeping thing innumerable' = what is scientific there; 'both small and great wild beasts' = various affections. —¹².

654¹¹. The extension of truth from one end to the other is signified by, 'from sea to sea.'

—⁴⁹. 'The waters shall fail in the sea' = not any truth in the natural man.

706²³. 'The tumult of the seas, and the tumult of the waves' (which He maketh to cease) (Ps. lxxv. 7) = the disputings and ratiocinations of those who are beneath the Heavens, and are natural and sensuous.

752. 'Woe to the inhabitants of the earth and of the sea' (Rev. xii. 12) = a lamentation over those who become merely natural and sensuous. Ex.

774. By 'the sea' are signified various things which are of the natural man, which relate to its scientifics, both true and false, and to the thoughts and ratiocinations thence. Refs.

815¹⁰. 'Be thou (the sycamore) planted in the sea' (Luke xvii. 6) = such a faith of falsity from evil cast into Hell.

876. 'Adore Him who made . . . the sea' (Rev. xiv. 7). . . 'The sea' = Divine truth in ultimates, thus the Word in the letter . . . because in the ultimates of Heaven there appear as it were seas; and it is the Divine truth . . . which forms the Heavens . . .

965. 'The second Angel poured his vial into the sea' (Rev. xvi. 3) = the state of the Church manifested as to the Knowledges of truth in the natural man. . . 'The sea' = the generals of truth in the natural man, here, from the Word, in which the generals of truth are Knowledges. Hence by 'the sea' is signified the natural man as to the Knowledges of truth from the Word, and also as to the Knowledges of good thence; for Knowledges of good are also Knowledges of truth. Ex.

967. 'Every living soul in the sea died' (id.) = no longer anything from the spiritual in the natural man from the Word. Ex.

969^e. For man is like a black sea . . .

1182. 'To cast into the sea' (Rev. xviii. 21) = into Hell.

C. 170². Those who live upon the sea, who are charities . . . pray and sing morning and evening more devoutly than those who live upon the dry land; for they trust in the Divine Providence more. I counsel those who live upon the sea that henceforth they pray to the Lord, because He is the God of sky, and land, and sea, and no other is. (See CAPTAIN, and SAILOR.)

Sea. Pelagus. T. 342^e. D. 4203^e.

Sea. Salum.

A. 2120. See SEA-mare. E. 175¹². 304⁴⁷.

Seal. Sigillum.

See under SEAL-signare.

A. 4874. 'Thy seal' (Gen. xxxviii. 18) = a token of consent . . . because in ancient times decrees were confirmed by a seal, and therefore 'a seal' properly = confirmation itself, and testification that it is so.

— The external of the Church is signified by 'a seal,' etc.

7643⁹. 'Those who have a seal upon their foreheads' (Rev. ix.) = those who have been regenerated.

9846. 'The engravings of a signet' (Ex. xxviii. 11) = the heavenly form of all Truths such as is in the Intellectual of a regenerate man; for therein the truths of faith are disposed into a heavenly form. 9877, Ex.

9931. 'The engraving of a signet' (ver. 36) = the heavenly sphere. Ex.

10522^o. The Holy Supper is the seal of this conjunction. T. 728, Ex.

S. 12. The opening of the seals of the Book by the Lamb = the manifestation of these states of the Church by the Lord.

R. 257. 'Sealed up with seven seals' (Rev. v. 1) = the Word completely hidden from Angel and man. E. 300.

259. 'To open the Book, and loose its seals' (ver. 2) = to know the states of life of all in the Heavens and on earth, and also to judge everyone according to his state. 295. 324. 330. 388. E. 303.

345. 'Having the seal of the living God' (Rev. vii. 2) = who alone Knows all and each, and can distinguish and separate them from one another. (= the Divine will. E. 423.)

388^e. To 'open a seal' = to explore the states of life; or, what is the same, the states of the Church and thence of the life.

426. 'Those who have not the seal of God in their foreheads' (Rev. ix. 4) = those not in charity and the derivative faith. . . 'To have the seal' = to know them and distinguish them from others. E. 546.

463^d. (Those represented by the turtles) carry a certain small mark on their garments. . .

E. 352. 'Opened the first of the seals' = the first manifestation; for 'to open a seal' = to reveal the hidden things which are written inside. 361. 369. 378. 390. 399. 486.

427⁷. 'The engraving of a signet' = permanence to eternity.

Seal. Signare.

See under SIGN.

S. 11. 'To be sealed in their foreheads,' or to be sealed -obsignari- (Rev. vii.) = to be acknowledged by the Lord and to be saved.

R. 347. 'Until we have sealed the servants of our God upon their foreheads' (ver. 3) = until those have been separated who are in truths from good from the Lord. 'To seal upon the foreheads' does not mean to seal them there; but to distinguish and separate those in the good of love. III. E. 427. R. 348. 349.

T. 241². The names of persons and places (in the celestial Word) are marked with signs.

E. 427². That 'to be sealed' is not to be sealed, but to be reduced into such a state that their quality can be acknowledged, consequently that they can be conjoined with those who are in a like state, and be separated from those in an unlike one. III.

429. 'I heard the number of the sealed' (ver. 4) = the quality of those in good and separated from the evil. 433. 434.

438². By 'the sealed' are meant those who have been separated from the evil, and received into Heaven. 443.

Seal up. Obsignare.

A. 3272. Occurs. 3923⁹.

9954¹³. 'To seal up the vision and the prophet' (Dan. ix. 24) = to conclude the things said in the Word about the Lord, and to complete them. E. 375¹³.

S. 11. See SEAL-signare.

R. 257. See SEAL-sigillum.

473. 'Seal up the things which the seven thunders have spoken, and write them not' (Rev. x. 4) = that these things are not committed to heart and received, until after the dragon . . . has been cast out of the World of Spirits. Ex. E. 604.

843. 'And set a seal upon him' (Rev. xx. 3) = that communication with the rest has been completely taken away.

947. 'Seal not up the words of this prophecy' (Rev. xxii. 10) = that the Apocalypse must not be closed up, but opened. —³, Ex.

T. 728. That to those who approach worthily, the Holy Supper is a sealing up and a seal-sigillum, that they are sons of God.

730². That by all means there must be a sealing up . . .

E. 624²⁰. Occurs. 684³⁵.

Search. See under INQUIRE.

Search. Pervestigare.

Searching. Pervestigatio.

See INVESTIGATE.

A. 4402⁷. 'In His hand are the searchings of the earth' (Ps. xcv. 4) = the truths of the Church.

7343. A searching out of truth which they might apply to falsities. Sig. and Ex.

—³. 'To dig' = to search out. Ex.

E. 434¹³. 'Statutes of heart,' and 'searchings of heart' (Judg. v. 15, 16) = all things which are from good in the spiritual man determined and ordained in the natural.

Search. Scrutari, Scrutatio.

Searcher. Scrutator.

Scrutiny. Scrutinium.

A. 192. Hence the serpent or Sensuous persuaded the woman to search the things which are of faith in the Lord as to whether they are so; which is signified by 'eating of the tree of knowledge.'

204. 'If they eat of the fruit of the tree' = that if from the Sensuous and Scientific, that is, from themselves, they search the things of faith . . .

4162. 'And he searched, and found not the teraphim' (Gen. xxxi. 35) = that they were not his. Ex.

4368². They who love to be instructed . . . and for this end search the Scriptures . . .

5381. They who constitute the province of the kidneys, etc. . . will nothing more than to explore and search of what quality others are. 5382.

5383. The methods by which they explore or search the dispositions of others. Des.

[A.] 5385. From these things it is evident what is signified by its being said that 'Jehovah proveth and searcheth the reins and the heart' . . .

5432¹. When such read the Word, they search it merely with the end to confirm doctrinal scientifics, for the sake of gain; and many of them search the Word to see the nakedness of the land. . . But they who are in the affection of truth for the sake of truth and for the sake of life . . . have indeed faith in the doctrinals of the Church, but still they search the Word for the sake of no other end than the truth . . . [knowing] that the Word is to be searched with devout prayer to the Lord that there may be illustration.

5769. 'And he searched' (Gen.xliv.12) [for the cup] = investigation.

6047². From this it is manifest that the Word is to be searched, and it is to be seen therein whether [doctrinal things] are true . . .

—³. Wherefore it is to be denied to no one to search the Scriptures from the affection of knowing whether the doctrinal things of the Church into which he has been born are true; for otherwise he can never be illustrated.

7178. Wherefore no one can search himself unless he knows what good is from its two loves, and also truth from good; and unless he knows what evil is from its two loves, and falsity from evil.

8648^e. There are very many such [appearances] in the Word, which are manifest to any one who searches the Scriptures from the affection of truth, and for the sake of the good of life; because he is illustrated by the Lord.

8993². When they arrive at an age when they begin to think for themselves, they search the Scriptures . . . for they know that without a searching of the Scripture from a genuine affection of truth, they would have remained in [any doctrine into which they might have been born].

9188¹. Such are called 'searchers of heaven' (Is. xlvii.13).

N. 257. That they who are in the affection of truth for the sake of truth, when they become adults . . . do not remain simply in the doctrinal things of their Church, but search whether they are true from the Word. Refs.

R. 79. 'And thou hast explored those who say they are Apostles' = that they search those things which in the Church are said to be goods and truths . . . E.100.

140. 'I am He who searcheth the reins and the hearts' (Rev.ii.23) = that the Lord sees the quality of truth and of good with every one. E.167.

224⁶. Search himself once or twice a year . . .

794. 'The voice of a mill' = inquiry, search, and confirmation of spiritual truth, especially from the Word.

797¹. That they who are in that Religiosity . . . have no inquiry, search, and confirmation of spiritual truth. Sig.

M. 186^e. Philosophical inquiries from the understandin .

T. 46. This may be clearly seen from a scrutiny and examination . . .

446. Without scrutiny into his quality as to his internal . . .

532². If he searches to find out whether he would do such things if fear . . . did not hinder, then after such scrutiny he . . . repents truly . . .

564. He who has not . . . looked into and searched himself, at last does not know what evil is . . . Gen.art.

580. Those in scrutinies concerning the externals of the Word, and concerning its internals . . .

E. 167³. 'To search the heart' (Jer.xvii.10) = to purify good by separating evil.

Search out. Exquirere.

A. 2760, Pref. Such do not search out the internal sense from other passages.

Seasonable. Tempestivus.

E. 375²⁹. See RAIN. 376⁹. 644⁶. —¹⁵.

Seat. See BENCH.

Seat. Sedile.

M. 13². (The seats in the Prince's garden). Des.

151a². The seats in the Palladium. Des.

Seat. Sella.

A. 6675. 'The seats' (Ex.i.16) = the things in the Natural which receive the goods and truths inflowing from the internal; thus they = scientific truths, for these receive.

8377. When (those in Jupiter) sit at table, they do not sit on seats, or benches . . .

Seat. Solium.

A. 255^e. 'His throne' (Ps.lxxxix.36) = His Kingdom.

5313. 'The seat,' or throne (Gen.xli.40) = the Natural; for the Natural is meant by 'a seat,' when the Celestial of the Spiritual is meant by him who sits on it; for the Natural is like a seat to the Spiritual. . . In general, what is lower is like a seat to what is higher.

—². 'A seat' is often mentioned in the Word where it treats of Divine truth, and of judgment therefrom; and by 'a seat' there, is signified that which is of the Divine royalty; and by him who sits upon it, the Lord Himself as a King, or a Judge; but the signification of 'a seat' is relative. (Examps. in which 'a seat' = the Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord; the universal Heaven which is infilled with the Divine truth; and Divine truth in the lowest Heaven, and also that which is in the Church.) The reason why by 'a seat' is signified that which is of Divine truth, is that by 'a king' is signified truth.

—³. What, in special, is meant in the Word by 'a seat,' or 'throne.' Ill.

R. 962. Around (the golden table) were three rows of seats. Des. T.188.

M. 20². The seat for the bridegroom and bride . . .

132. Seats were set in a square form, upon which sat the lovers of wisdom.

796. Luther's seat there. Des.

D. 5932. The seat of an infernal judge.

Seba. Seba.

See under SHEBA.

A. 117^e. Occurs.

1170. 'Seba, Havillah, Sabtah, Raamah, Sabteea' (Gen.x.7)=so many nations, with which were the Knowledges of faith; and by which are signified the Knowledges themselves.

1171. 'Sheba and Seba' (Ps.lxxii.10)=the internal things of worship; 'Sheba,' the celestial things of worship; and 'Seba' the spiritual things. (=the Knowledges of good and truth. 9293^d.)

—². 'Cush and Seba' (Is.xliii.3)=the spiritual things of faith. —.

E. 654²⁷. See EGYPT.

Second. Secundus.

Secondary. Secundarius.

See Two.

A. 900. 'The second month' (Gen.viii.14)=the whole state before regeneration. Ex.

4823^e. The mother named the second (son), because by him was signified evil (as distinguished from falsity).

P. 332. The secondary ends of creation.

Second Heaven. Coelum secundum, vel alterum.

Spiritual Heaven. Coelum spirituale.

Middle Heaven. Coelum medium.

See under ANGELIC SPIRIT, HEAVEN, SPIRITUAL ANGEL, and SPIRITUAL KINGDOM. FOR INTERIOR HEAVEN, see the Diary passages under HEAVEN.

A. 167. Whatever is represented . . . is perceived in the Second Heaven, by angelic Spirits, as to the more minute things . . .

1042^e. The Spiritual Heaven, or that of the spiritual Angels, is represented from the loins downwards. For (this part) in the Grand Man=natural things.

1053^e. The Lord . . . in the Heaven of the Spiritual Angels, is a Moon. 2034^e.

1525. All the angelic Spirits in the Second Heaven . . . are distinguished into celestial and spiritual.

1752². Angelic Spirits are in the Second Heaven. 1770. 1799².

1802. See FIRST HEAVEN.

2576⁶. The hanging for the door of the Tent=the (lower) appearances of good and truth, or those of the middle Rational, in which are the Angels of the Second Heaven.

3344^e. (The speech of the Second Heaven.)

3346. It has been granted me to speak . . . sometimes (also) with the Angels of the Second Heaven in their speech.

3474⁴. I saw others carried up into the Second Heaven among angelic Spirits . . . (This is called the INTERIOR HEAVEN in D.2061.)

3691³. There are three Heavens . . . which are distinged from each other according to degrees . . . Those in the interior, or Second Heaven, are more remote from the Lord (than those in the Third). (Continued under HEAVEN.)

—⁴. Those in charity . . . so as to have a perception of it, and not so much a perception of love to the Lord, are in a lower degree of good and truth, and are in the interior, or Second Heaven . . . and are called spiritual Angels.

3720. See TEMPLE.

3739. The Second Heaven . . . is an 'image' of the Lord, because in this Heaven are simultaneously presented, as in a certain General, those things which are in the higher Heaven.

3969⁴. See SPIRITUAL KINGDOM. 8797. S.6.

—¹⁰. The spiritual were saved by the Lord's advent: and are spoken of in John x.16 . . . and they constitute the Second Heaven . . . and, there, are one (with the celestial who constitute the Third Heaven), because the Celestial inflows into the Spiritual. For the Celestial Spiritual (in the Third Heaven) is charity, and this is the principal in the Second or interior Heaven, where the spiritual are. Sig.

4180⁵. Then, by (the Divine Human) He could illuminate . . . also the Spiritual Heaven . . .

4240. The Middle or Second Heaven is spiritual, because in love towards the neighbour.

4279. The Middle Heaven is called the Second Heaven . . . and therefore the Word, when it ascends, as it descends . . . in the Second Heaven is spiritual; for this Heaven is the Spiritual Heaven.

—². In the Second Heaven (the Word) is spiritual . . . The sense of the Word is circumstanced according to the Heavens . . . its internal sense, in which it treats of the Lord's Kingdom, is for the Middle or Second Heaven.

4286². The Middle or Second Heaven is spiritual; for the Angels there are called spiritual, because they are in charity . . . that is, in mutual love, which is such that the one loves the other more than himself; and, because they are such, they are in intelligence, and are therefore called Intelligences. These Angels also are distinguished into internal and external ones; and the internal are more spiritual than the external.

—³. Those are called the celestial spiritual who just above are called the spiritual, and they are in the Middle or Second Heaven . . . The internal there are represented by 'Joseph' . . . and the external by 'Israel' . . . the former partake of the Rational; and the external of the Natural; for they are intermediate between the Rational and the Natural . . .

4411. The light which proceeds from the Lord . . . when it inflows into the Middle or Second Heaven, mediately and immediately, is received as the truth which is from charity.

4605². 'Reuben' (here)=spiritual good, which is the same as the good of faith, such as is in the Second or Middle Heaven.

5145². The second degree is made by the exterior Rational: in this are the spiritual Angels, that is, in this is the Middle or Second Heaven.

5328. The Middle or Second Heaven relates to the body (as distinguished from the head and feet) . . . because it is spiritual. 6436. (See 10005, below.)

[A.] 5344. The interior things of the interior Natural are those which are called spiritual . . . The spiritual things there are those which correspond to the angelic Societies in the Second Heaven. With this Heaven man communicates through remains. It is this Heaven which is opened when man is being regenerated ; and it is this Heaven which is closed when man does not suffer himself to be regenerated ; for the remains . . . are nothing else than correspondences with the Societies of this Heaven.

5922. The communication of the Spiritual Heaven, in the Natural, with spiritual good. Sig. and Ex.

—². That 'glory' = the Spiritual Heaven. Ex. . . The Spiritual Kingdom is the Middle or Second Heaven . . . its good is spiritual good . . . which is the good of love towards the neighbour. (Continued under CELESTIAL KINGDOM.)

—⁹. 'The glory of the God of Israel' (is said) relatively to the Middle or Spiritual Heaven . . . For truth itself in the Spiritual Heaven appears before the eyes as a bright cloud . . . and the good in that truth appears there as a fieriness.

6013. The Middle or Second Heaven is the Heaven of charity, in which is the innocence from the Inmost Heaven.

6065. In good from an origin in the understanding were the Ancients of the Spiritual Church . . . in this good are those in the Middle or Second Heaven.

6366². Therefore also . . . His Spiritual Kingdom is the Middle or Second Heaven ; thus is more remote from the Lord.

6417². The Middle or Second Heaven constitutes the Spiritual Kingdom.

6524³. Those are called intelligent who are in the Middle or Second Heaven ; thus who are not so near the Lord.

6832². The Lord appears to those in the Middle or Second Heaven as a Moon, because there they are more remotely in love to the Lord ; for they are in love towards the neighbour.

6854². After the Lord . . . had made His Human Divine, He liberated those in the 'pits,' and elevated them to Heaven ; and from them He formed the Spiritual Heaven, which is the Second Heaven. Sig.

7836⁵. But, into the Second Heaven, where are the spiritual, the Lord inflows with innocence mediately, namely, through the Third Heaven. It is this influx through which are disposed or ordained the Societies in the Second Heaven as to their goods ; and therefore the states of good are changed according to the influx of innocence ; and, consequently, are varied the conjunctions of the Societies there.

7877². But the spiritual, who are in the Second Heaven, are led through the truth of faith to the good of charity ; and therefore these reason as to whether it is truth or not, because they do not perceive whether it is ; hence truths with them become knowledge, and are called doctrinals of faith.

8054². Before the Lord's advent . . . there was as yet no Spiritual Heaven : the region where the Spiritual Heaven was to be was occupied by those who were in falsity and evil, but who could be kept in some good and truth by external means . . . The reason that region of Heaven was then occupied by such, was that good [Spirits] were lacking, and those of the Spiritual Church had not as yet been prepared, and yet every place had to be filled up with Spirits, in order that there might be what is continuous from the Lord down to man, (otherwise) man would have perished . . .

8443². Truth Divine in the fourth degree is such as is in the Middle or Second Heaven ; and this also is not intelligible to man.

8794⁴. The extension of life of those of the Spiritual Church is to the angelic spheres in the Second Heaven, which is called the Spiritual Heaven . . .

8796. See CELESTIAL KINGDOM.

8827. The Angels in the Second Heaven are called spiritual Angels ; hence the Divine . . . in this Heaven is called the Divine Spiritual.

8920². The form of truth Divine in the Middle or Second Heaven, in like manner transcends that in the First, and still more the form of truth Divine in the world. Hence the things uttered in (the Third and Second) Heavens are such as no human mind has ever perceived, or ear heard.

9186⁴. All the ideas of thought of the Angels who are in the Second Heaven, and are called spiritual, are from truths which, through life, have been made goods.

9216³. The Third Heaven inflows into the Second Heaven ; and the Second Heaven inflows into the First . . .

9404^e. See THIRD HEAVEN. H.227. W.179. 202. R.744^e. D.4670.

9407. The Word . . . in the Second or Middle Heaven is spiritual . . .

9408. 'Throne' = truth Divine from the Lord received in the Middle Heaven.

9457². In the Middle Heaven reigns the good of charity towards the neighbour.

9466. The good of love reigns in the Inmost Heaven, and presents, in the Second Heaven, a crimson and a hyacinthine colour . . .

9468³. The Word is the Divine truth proceeding . . . and appears . . . in the Middle Heaven, as a bright white light. 9865².

9543^e. By the habitation and court of the Tent, and by the curtains and veils there, are represented the things in the Lord's Spiritual Kingdom, which is the Second or Middle Heaven.

9548. 'The candlestick' = the Spiritual Heaven. Ex. —⁴. That the Lord would come and restore the Spiritual Heaven and Church. Sig.

9549. The Lord inflows through the Celestial Heaven . . . into the Spiritual Heaven, which is in the truth of faith in Him. Hence the candlestick was of pure gold.

9561. The power of truth from good as to all things in the Spiritual Heaven. Sig. and Ex.

9570. The light of the Spiritual Heaven. Sig. and Ex.

9592. In (Ex.xxvi.) is represented the Second or Middle Heaven by the habitation and the Tent; and the celestial and spiritual things there, by the things of which they were constructed; and the medium uniting this Heaven and the Inmost one, is represented by the veil . . .

9595. The habitation = the Second Heaven, which is Heaven from the reception of the Divine truth which is from the Lord's Divine good.

9596. In such an order follow the . . . truths and goods with a man and Angel who is in the Second Heaven: first, truth from a celestial origin; then the affection of truth; afterwards the derivative affection of good; and, at last, spiritual good. Sig.

9615^e. The Lord inflows into all the Heavens both mediately and immediately: mediately, through the Inmost Heaven into the Middle one; and through the internal of this into its external.

9622. The communication of all things of this Heaven with the extremes there, and influx thence into the Ultimate Heaven. Sig. and Ex.

9634. The good supporting this Heaven. Sig. and Ex.

9639. The consequent conjunction of the Lord with those in this Heaven. Sig. and Ex.

9670. The medium uniting this Heaven and the Inmost Heaven. Sig. and Ex.

— The good of charity . . . makes the Middle Heaven. 9687^e.

—². The Angels of the Middle Heaven correspond to the things pertaining to the provinces of the lungs and the cerebrum; (which) are called voluntary (as distinguished from involuntary) things. The intermediate Angels, who accede to both (the Inmost and Middle) Heavens, correspond to the cardiac and pulmonary plexuses . . . and to the medulla oblongata . . .

9673. The guard to prevent the commingling of . . . the Middle Heaven and the Inmost one. Sig. and Ex.

9680. The good of charity . . . is the internal in the Middle Heaven; and the good of faith in the Lord is the external good there. In each Heaven there is an internal and an external, as in the Church.

—². The Lord is in the Middle Heaven also; but is more present in the Inmost one . . . In the Middle Heaven there is conjunction with the Lord through faith implanted in the good of charity.

9684². Of this good (of charity) and truth (of faith) consists the Middle Heaven, which is called the Spiritual Heaven.

9712. It treats, lastly (in Ex.xxvii.) of the good of charity, through which the Spiritual Heaven is illuminated by the Lord in the truths of faith. (Sig. by the oil of olive, and the luminary. 9782.)

9741. Those in the Ultimate Heaven are called angelic Spirits; those in the Middle Heaven, spiritual Angels . . .

—⁶. 'The throne of Jehovah' = the Spiritual Heaven.

9780. The Spiritual Heaven on earth is the Spiritual Church.

9811. The Divine Spiritual is the Divine truth proceeding from the Divine Celestial; thus is the Divine of the Lord received in the Middle or Second Heaven. This is represented by the two first born sons of Aaron . . .

9812. Divine spiritual good, which makes the Middle or Second Heaven, is the good of charity towards the neighbour.

9815. The Spiritual Heaven, which is here meant by 'the garments of holiness' which are 'for glory and beauty,' is 'glory' in so far as Divine truth is there in an internal form.

9832. 'Gold' was interwoven everywhere, because by the garments of Aaron was represented the Spiritual Heaven; and, in this Heaven, as in all the rest, good reigns . . .

9868. In the Second Heaven there is the spiritual love of good, which is its internal; and the spiritual love of truth, which is its external. The one inflows into the other . . . and they constitute as it were a one. (Sig. by the third and fourth rows of stones in the breastplate.)

9870. The internal of the Second Heaven is the good of charity; and the external is the good of faith.

9933². In the Second or Middle Heaven is the good of spiritual love, which is the good of charity towards the neighbour; and in the First Heaven is . . . the good of faith and of obedience.

9992. In the Second or Middle Heaven is the Spiritual. 10005².

10005⁴. The breast down to the loins corresponds to the Middle or Second Heaven, where is spiritual good. (See H.65, below.)

10062. 'Upon the thumb of their right hand' = the Intellectual thence in the Middle Heaven. Ex. . . For the things of the Middle Heaven are signified by the body (trunk) and the things of it. (Compare H.65^e.)

10130³. All are consociated according to loves . . . Those in love towards the neighbour from the Lord, are consociated in the Middle Heaven.

10181³. The things in a more interior degree are more perfect . . . hence those in the Inmost Heaven are more perfect than those in the Middle one . . .

H. 15. There are two distinct loves in heaven . . . In the Second or Middle Heaven is love towards the neighbour. Ex.

29. (The Middle Heaven is like) the middle of man called the body (trunk), and the middle things of a house.

31. The Divine which inflows from the Lord and is received in the Second or Middle Heaven, is called the Spiritual, and, thence, the Angels there, spiritual Angels.

—². (Those in the First Heaven) are called spiritual natural who receive influx from the Second Heaven . . . (There are internal and external Angels in each Heaven. 32.)

[H.]33. Those with whom the second... (degree has been opened) are in the Middle Heaven. 267. W.67. E.739⁴. 1125².

—². Those who do not at once admit Divine truths into the will, but into the memory, and thence into the understanding, and, from this, will and do them, are in the Middle or Second Heaven.

34^e. Therefore the perfection of the Angels of the Inmost Heaven immensely surpasses that of the Angels in the Middle Heaven, whose interiors have been opened in the second degree; and in like manner the perfection of the Angels of the Middle Heaven surpasses that of the Angels of the Ultimate one.

65². The Middle or Second Heaven forms the breast down to the loins and knees (exclusive of the arms).

100. To the Third Heaven corresponds the Second Heaven; and to the Second Heaven corresponds the First.

207. There is no communication of one Heaven with another, but influx; (for) the Third Heaven is above; the Second or Middle one is below...

208. With those in the Middle Heaven, the second degree is open, and the first and third closed.

210. The thoughts and affections, and also the discourses, of the Angels of the Inmost Heaven are never perceived in the Middle Heaven...

280. Those in the Middle or Second Heaven are in the second or middle degree of innocence.

295. In adolescence and young manhood (Spirits) are present who are in the affection of truth and good, and thence in intelligence, thus who communicate with the Second or Middle Heaven.

N. 49. That the light with the Angels in the Second Heaven is like light from a Moon. Refs.

S. 90². Harshness-asperitas—in the letters is in use in the Spiritual Heaven, because they are in truths... De Verbo 4².

W. 85^e. The Angels of the Second Heaven (see the Sun) frequently.

428. (Those who constitute the Second Heaven. Des.) 429².

R. 49². The Second or Middle Heaven is in the Divine Spiritual... and makes the body (of the Grand Man).

390. 'The seven Angels standing before God' = the universal Spiritual Heaven, in the Lord's presence, hearing and doing what He commands. (See 387².)

396^e. Communication opened... between those in the Spiritual Heaven, and those below in faith alone.

443. A command from the Lord out of the Spiritual Heaven to those who should explore and manifest. Sig. and Ex.

—, 'The golden altar' = the Spiritual Heaven. E.567.

615. When the Lord speaks through Heaven, He speaks from the Third Heaven through the Second Heaven; thus from love through Divine wisdom...

926³. When they opened the Heaven of the Spiritual Angels, who are in wisdom... that Tabernacle appeared like a Temple. Des... (Therefore) the way was again opened for the light from the Second Heaven...

I. 16⁵. Those in the Middle Heaven are in the love of understanding truths and goods...

T. 119. Unless the Lord had wrought redemption, this Man would have been destroyed... as to the chest (exclusive of the gastric region) by the falling away of the Second Heaven...

121. At the time of the first Advent, the Hells had... also assaulted the Middle Heaven, which they had infested in a thousand ways, and which would have gone to destruction unless the Lord had protected it.

212. There are three Heavens... the Middle Heaven makes His Spiritual Kingdom...

221. The 'Temple' represented the Heaven in which are the Spiritual Angels; the 'Tabernacle,' that in which are the celestial.

580². There are three Heavens... into the Middle one come those who through regeneration receive love towards the neighbour.

D. 4639. (When this lucidity of the Sun adds itself to the Moon) it becomes morning in the Spiritual Heaven... For when it is morning in the Inmost Heaven, it is evening in the Second or Spiritual Heaven. Ex.

4640. Between the Third Heaven and the Second, there is an intermediate-medium, (which) is represented by 'Benjamin;' the internal Second Heaven, by 'Israel,' and the external, by 'Jacob'...

4826^e. He was then elevated into the Second Heaven...

5032^e. The inmost ones in the Spiritual Heaven—through whom is the communication of the Spiritual Kingdom with the Celestial—are also in this perception when they turn themselves to the Celestial Kingdom.

5137. On love in the Inmost Heaven, and faith in the Second Heaven.

5549. (In reference to the seven degrees of the Heavens) the Angels in the Spiritual Heaven are not in internals, but in externals: this external is also tripartite: internal, middle, and external; the external, which accedes to the external Sensuous in the World, is quiescent; in the middle they live as to thought and perception; the internal is like a soul to them. They indeed have the Internal mentioned above, but it is closed. Communication is effected with these through the Celestial Spiritual Heaven, across the Celestial one. Hence the Spiritual Angels are in the internal Natural.

5561. In the Spiritual Heaven there is writing like the writings in the world, in Roman letters; but quite unintelligible to those in the natural world; for the language, which is a universal one, is quite different... I have seen their books... and often read them. They have the Word in like manner; some, according to its internal sense; some according to its external, but more spiritual.

5775. The Second Heaven forms the breast...

E. 62². In the Spiritual Heaven appear candlesticks in great magnificence, by which is represented their Heaven,

219. The Heavens in a lower degree support those in a higher, therefore by the Lord 'making him a pillar in the Temple' is signified that they will be in a lower Heaven. Moreover, those in the faith of charity are in a lower Heaven, which is called the Spiritual Heaven . . .

283². The Second Heaven consists of those in spiritual good, that is, the good of charity . . . 313.

304². The Angels in the Second Heaven dwell upon hills . . .

307². The Angels of the Second and of the Ultimate Heaven have illustration of the understanding (as distinguished from perception). Ex.

313. 'The elders' = those in truths from good; here, therefore, those in the Second Heaven . . . 462.

322. The Second Heaven is where are Angels who are in spiritual love . . . (and is one of the higher Heavens).

326. The Middle Heaven is formed according to affections of truth (as distinguished from affections of good).

342³. Each Heaven is distinguished into three degrees . . . and therefore in each Heaven there are higher, middle, and lower Angels . . . Upon the hills there dwell those in the Second Heaven. —⁴.

—¹⁰. Those Societies which are in the Second Heaven appear in an atmosphere less pure, such as is the aerial one . . . 726⁴.

353. The voices which fall down from the Middle Heaven, being attended with illustration, are heard sonorously only as words of speech (and not as thunders) . . . because they enter man's Intellectual (not his Voluntary).

375². The Second Heaven is in lower goods and truths, that is, those of the second degree . . .

438². By these three tribes (Asher, Naphtali, and Manasseh) are meant those received into the Second Heaven, where all are in charity . . . 443.

443². Those in the Second Heaven are all in the spiritual affection of knowing and understanding truth and good, and in the affection of doing it . . .

445². In the Second Heaven are those who are in goods of life from spiritual affection . . .

447. The 'tribe of Joseph' = the conjunction with the Lord of those in the Second Heaven . . . 448, Ex.

465. The reception of Divine truth in the Second Heaven is called 'glory' . . .

529^e. 'To fly' = to illustrate the Middle Heaven. Ex.

567. Revelation by the Lord from the Spiritual Heaven. Sig. and Ex.

600. The breast down to the loins corresponds to the Second Heaven . . .

627⁵. Divine truth of the second degree is that which arrives at the perception of the Angels of the Second Heaven, and makes their wisdom and intelligence . . .

638⁶. In the Second Heaven, vines, and many kinds of fruit trees, make (their paradises and forests).

700³³. The Tent itself, outside the veil, represented the Second Heaven . . .

817¹². The spiritual goods and truths in which are the Angels in the Middle Heaven, are signified by 'rams' . . .

S31². Spiritual love, in which are the Angels of the Second Heaven, is the love of truth, and, in the supreme sense, the love of the Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord; thus also is love to the Lord, but in a lower degree . . . for the spiritual Angels are in love to the Lord from the reception of the Divine truth from Him. The difference (between them and the celestial Angels) is like that between love in the will and love in the understanding, or like that between a flame and its light . . . In like manner differs their life . . . that of the Angels of the Second Heaven consists in affections of truth.

—⁵. The Angels of the Second Heaven also . . . dwell distinguished into Societies; (which are beneath those of the Third Heaven) on account of the influx of celestial love into spiritual; for spiritual love derives its essence from celestial . . .

—⁶. In the Spiritual Heaven there are magnificent palaces. Des. Art there is in its art, especially that of architecture. From this Heaven, many arts in the world derive their laws and harmonies . . . The silver found with those who dwell beneath these Heavens is given by the Lord from this Heaven . . . The spiritual Angels are clad in garments of fine linen and silk, in general, in things resplendent; and as the Spiritual Heavens correspond to the eyes, there are paradisaical things there, and rainbows also of ineffable beauty are seen in many places. They know nothing of the sense of the letter of the Word, but its spiritual sense, in which sense they have a Word which is read by everyone. Justice, sincerity, Truth, chastity . . . reign there. These Heavens constitute the Lord's Royalty . . .

S32⁶. There are three degrees of life with man . . . the second degree is that in which are the Angels of the Second Heaven . . .

—⁷. To ascend from the Second Heaven into the Third, would be like a bird flying above its own atmosphere . . .

S37¹⁰. The Angels of the Second Heaven see truths from the light of truth, by which their understanding is illustrated, and do not acknowledge the word faith. They laugh when they hear anyone saying that . . . we must have faith in things not perceived and not seen . . .

1073. In the Second Heaven Divine truth is more received than Divine good . . . and therefore the Second Heaven is called the Lord's 'royalty' . . . and the Angels in the Second Heaven are called 'sons of the kingdom,' and 'the king's sons,' thus also 'kings.' Ill.

1074. The Angels of the Second Heaven, who are in love towards the neighbour, are called the 'elect' (as distinguished from the 'called,' and the 'faithful.')

De Verbo 2. The natural sense of the Word (when read) becomes spiritual in the Second Heaven . . . and it then lives from the light of truth there . . . for the spiritual ideas with the Angels of the Second Heaven partake of the light there, which in its essence is Divine truth . . . for in the Second Heaven there is a bright white light, from which the Angels there think . . .

3. There are three Heavens . . . In the Second Heaven they are spiritual . . .

[De Verbo 3]². It was granted to some Angels of the Middle Heaven to be together with Angels of the Third Heaven, and to think there, and to speak with them, and also to retain in the memory the things they had thought and spoken, and afterwards to return into their own heaven; and they said to me thence that they could not express any idea, or any word, of the previous state . . . and at last they said that there is no ratio, or approximation.

—⁶. But the thoughts of the Angels of the Middle Heaven are all devoid of space, time, and what is personal and material, and therefore they are unlimited and untermiated. The objects of their thoughts are as it were thoughts themselves, spiritual objects, and therefore they think about them spiritually, and not naturally . . .

—⁷. The speech of the Angels of the Middle Heaven is like the ideas of their thought . . .

D. Wis. xii. 5². The Angels of the Middle Heaven live as it were in the ether . . .

De Conj. 108. The Spiritual Heaven is in the communication of the thoughts of truth . . . Hence filthy . . . thoughts close it.

C. 94. The Second Heaven is from a lower love which is called charity, and from a wisdom which is called intelligence.

Coro. 17³. The Angels of the Middle Heaven dwell in a spiritual ether beneath (the highest Heaven).

Secret. Secretus.

See under ARCANUM, and HIDE.

A. 6354. 'Into their secret let not my soul come' (Gen. xlix.6)=that spiritual good does not want to know the evils which are of their will. . . 'Not to come into the secret'=not to want to know. E.443⁶.

M. 103². That they might solve the secret concerning the origin of conjugal love . . . —³.

252². The cupidty of divulging the secrets of the house (a cause of lawful separation). 472.

T. 508⁵. In the New Church it is allowable to enter and penetrate with the understanding into all its secrets, and to confirm them by the Word.

D. 3780. (The Quakers have) a species of secret deceit.

Secretion. Secretio.

Secretary. Secretorius.

A. 5380. There are secretions and excretions. Ex. D.999.

D. 925. All who explore Spirits, and have . . . pleasure therein, pertain to the provinces of the secretories, and therefore there are as many kinds of them as there are viscera; for there is no viscus which does not discharge also a secretory function, each in its own way . . .

Secretly. Clam. A.4227.

Secretly. Clanculum. T.317.

Sect. Secta.

Sectary. Sectarius.

A. 337. The heresies and sects (of the Most Ancient Church). Tr.

6222². Everyone (of these heresies) is confirmed by the sectaries from the literal sense . . .

C. J. 72². (Christians make the soul like wind); but those not of this sect believe (quite differently).

R. Pref. xia. (Christian sects enum.) T.378². (Their cause.)

224². When we have spoken with . . . sectaries, they appeared [equally] learned.

M. 5. In others they spoke of ecclesiastical things and sects.

D. 6043². Their sensation was from Spirits of the same sect.

—³. Those who secede from their sect, they want to kill.

E. 1177³. (Why there are so many sects and religions.)

Secular. Saecularis.

R. 341^e. The king saw most of the bishops in a secular dress.

716^e. Their ardour of dominating exceeds that of those in secular Power.

784. Dispensations . . . without any authority of the secular [rulers].

Secure. Securus.

Security. Securitas.

Securely. Secure.

See PLEDGE-hypotheca.

A. 2220³. That they had acquiesced in them, is signified by 'security of ease' (Ezek. xvi.49).

3384³. 'To make to dwell in safety-securum' (Ps. iv.8) = a state of peace.

9942¹⁰. 'To strip the coat from those who pass by securely' (Micah ii.8)=to deprive of their spiritual truths those who live in simple good.

N. 325. On this depends the public security.

P. 340⁴. Faith in instantaneous Salvation . . . induces security of life. Ex.

—, Every man who is in this security makes nothing of adultery, etc.

R. 306. Charity, spiritual security, and internal rest, taken away. Sig. and Ex.

—, In protection against the Hells . . . is spiritual security.

M. 290^e. Occurs.

B. 93. Faith alone . . . induces security, etc. T.182³.

D. 1934. To 'lie down safely, none making afraid' (Lev. xxvi.). Ex. E.650⁵⁸.

2678. On those who live securely, not fearing any God. Ex. 2777. 2778.

3614. (Such) are secure from evil Spirits. Ex.

E. 365¹³. 'Thou alone makest me dwell in safety-securum' . . . By 'security' is signified external delight.

—²⁷. Security from evils and falsities. Sig.

—⁴⁰. 'Security to eternity'=thus no infestation and fear from evils and falsities . . . 'The tents of security' (Is. xxxii.17,18)=thence goods of love and worship without infestation from evils and falsities.

395¹⁰. 'To pass by securely' = to live well.

555⁸. 'Those who pass by securely' = all who are in truths.

—²⁰. 'Ye careless women' (Is. xxxii. 10) = the cupidities with those who have no care that the Church is laid waste.

650⁷. 'The joyous city that dwells carelessly' (Zeph. ii. 15) = the doctrine of what is false with which they are delighted, and in which they rest.

687¹¹. 'To sit securely' (Is. xlvii. 8) = to be in confidence that their empire will endure, and that they will not perish.

706⁷. The Jews . . . had lived securely in falsities from evil. Sig.

734⁴. 'I will make them lie down safely' (Hos. iii. 18) = (the cessation of) infestations from the evils and falsities which are from Hell.

802⁴. Predestination, from which flows . . . security of life with the evil.

Sedge. Uva.

See FLAG.

A. 5201. 'They fed in the sedge' (Gen. xli. 2) = instruction. . . The sedge, or larger grass which is near rivers, = the scientifics which are of the natural man. . . Thus 'to feed in the sedge' = to be instructed in scientifics, and, through scientifics, concerning truths and goods.

E. 518⁷. That there will no longer be . . . even natural and sensuous truths, is signified by 'the reed and sedge shall wither . . .' (Is. xix. 6). 627⁹. (= that all perception of truth and good from the sense of the letter, which otherwise belongs to the sensuous man, will vanish. 654⁴⁹.)

Sediment. Sedimentum.

A. 4769⁴. 'They drink the sediment of the waters' (Ezek. xxxiv. 18, 19). Ex. E. 632⁴.

Sedition. Seditio. D. 5426.

Seditious. Seditiosus. D. 5093.

Seduce. Seducere.

Seduction. Seductio.

Seducer. Seductor.

A. 2449³. Lest any goods with them should seduce the upright.

2468⁹. As those in natural good are easily seduced, Moab is called . . . 8315.

3469⁴. Those in the natural good of evil love . . . suffer themselves to be easily seduced . . .

3488⁵. 'And shall seduce many' (Matt. xxiv. 11) = that there will be derivations from (false doctrine). E. 734²⁴.

—⁷. 'He that persevereth unto the end' = him who does not suffer himself to be seduced.

3529. 'I shall be in his eyes as one who seduces' (Gen. xxvii. 12) = rejection because apparently contrary to order.

—, 'One who seduces,' or 'a seducer' = contrary to order: all seduction is nothing else.

4335. Truths which they pervert in order to seduce. Sig.

5555. Such, when they lived here, suffered themselves to be much seduced by the deceitful . . .

7332. Lest they should seduce simple upright Spirits.

7356. The delight of their life will be to ratiocinate . . . and thus . . . seduce others.

8950. When any want to seduce (the Spirits of Saturn) . . . they say they would rather die.

9424³. Falsities from the fallacies of the senses do not seduce them . . .

10641. Seduction thence in the Word itself. Sig. and Ex.

H. 364. Poverty equally seduces . . .

506^e. By appearances of good . . . they would seduce the simple . . .

P. 217². Dignities and wealth seduce some, and some they do not seduce. Ex.

328⁷. For in all evil there is the lust of seducing.

R. 325. Lest (the souls under the altar) should be seduced. Sig.

551. 'That seduces the whole world' (Rev. xii. 9) = that they pervert all things of the Church. E. 741.

562. On account of the cunning of those who seduce (the New Church grows cautiously). Sig. and Ex.

565. Accosting novitiates with the design of seducing them. Sig.

600. 'To seduce' (Rev. xiii. 14) = to lead into errors. (= to persuade of falsities. E. 826.)

800. 'By thy sorcery were all the nations seduced' (Rev. xviii. 23) = their wicked arts . . . by which they have led away the minds of all . . . E. 1191.

834. 'With which he seduced them that received the mark of the beast . . .' (Rev. xix. 20) = . . . by faith alone have induced others to receive that faith . . .

—². Have seduced the laity and the common people.

858. 'To seduce' (Rev. xx. 8) = to draw to their party.

864. 'The devil that seduced them' (ver. 10) means the dragon (that is) those who are in evils as to life and in falsities as to doctrine.

M. 513. On the lust of seducing innocences. Gen. art.

T. 320. Those who . . . seduce (by fallacies) may be compared to . . .

D. 776. Such, who are seducers, are let out to men in the world . . .

1355. Spirits can be greatly misled in their judgments concerning Souls. Ex.

2502. Thus the human race is especially seduced by these . . .

3206. Sirens who . . . delude and seduce . . .

3614. Spirits complained that (thus) they have nothing by which to seduce; for by such (objections) they very greatly seduce men.

3997. Such (Sirens) can seduce also the upright.

5207^e. These are interior seducers.

[D.] 5835. Thus they can seduce even the intelligent.

E. 160. 'To seduce' (Rev.ii.20) is predicated of goods or evils.

556⁹. The spiritual sense of these words (is) for men in the world who are in good, when the evil try to seduce them.

739⁶. Their seduction by the serpent, means their seduction by the Sensuous . . .

1190². Man is led to such things as do not seduce.

See. Conspicere.

Sight. Conspicere.

Visible. Conspicuous.

Clearly. Conspicue.

See CLEAR-perspicuus.

A. 1274. No Spirits are so far away that they cannot be seen; yet no more come into view than the Lord permits.

—e. Under his view and Providence.

1379^e. Are there presented to view-conspicua.

1382. Are instantly present under the Lord's sight.

1628. They are so clearly seen-conspicua, that nothing can be more clearly seen.

1756². They represented Divine things by those which were visible-conspicua-on earth.

6122. If they no longer have any visible truth. Sig. and Ex.

6134. Good (also) was no longer visible on account of the desolation. Sig.

8939². Invisible before the bodily eyes; but visible there . . .

8947. A multitude of Spirits (then) comes into sight . . . They are seen plainly . . .

9108. Spirits of Saturn came into sight . . .

H. 14. They are all as one in the Lord's sight.

479⁴. When the spirit in man turns itself away from another, it is no longer in his view.

W. 93. The Sun which is visible to the Angels . . .

T. 312². There came into my sight . . .

343. May be more clearly-conspicue-comprehended.

E. 25. 'In sight of -in conspectu-His throne' (Rev.i.4) = presence and Providence.

275. 'In sight of the throne' (Rev.iv.6) = appearance. See R.238.

974². This difference does not appear to the sight of men; but manifestly to the sight of the Angels.

See. Pervidere. A.6921.

See. Videre.

Sight. Visus.

Visual. Visualis.

See under BLIND, EYE, LIGHT, LOOK, OBJECT, REUBEN, SENSES, VIEW, and VISION.

A. 194^e. The third posterity . . . would not believe unless they saw and felt . . .

241. The Most Ancients saw, but . . . their sight was merely instrumental. Ex.

322. (The sight of Spirits: its perfection.)

896. 'Noah . . . saw' (Gen.viii.13) = the light of the truths of faith.

— . 'To see,' in the Word, = to understand, and to have faith. Ex.

897. 'To see' (when predicated of the Ancient Church) = to acknowledge and have faith. Ill.

994⁴. Unless there were an interior sight, the eye could never see. The sight of the eye comes forth from the interior sight; and therefore after death man sees much better than here; not worldly things, but those in the other life. Those who have been blind here, there see . . . Therefore when man is asleep, he sees equally well in his dreams . . . By the internal sight it has been granted me to see the things in the other life, more clearly than I see those in the world. From which it is evident that the external sight comes forth from an interior sight, and this from a sight still more interior, and so on. The like is the case with every other sense, and pleasure. 1378².

1054. 'I see (the rainbow)' (Gen.ix.16). . . 'To see' anyone, when predicated of the Lord, = to know of what quality he is. . . When he cannot be regenerated, it is not said that the Lord 'sees' him. Ex.

1277^e. If many had the internal sight open, they could be together . . .

1321². They seem to themselves to . . .

1409. When they saw these objects, they did not think about them, but about . . .

1446. 'Jehovah seen . . .' (Gen.xii.7) = that He appeared to the Lord . . .

1521. If only the [interior] sight were opened to anyone . . .

1524. That light dazzled . . . not only the sight of the eye, but also the interior sight . . .

1529^e. The Celestial and Spiritual is manifested before their external sight as light. 1530^e.

1530. Their interior sight had been opened.

1531. The interior sight was opened to me . . .

1532. Man cannot see them with the eyes of the body; but the moment the interior sight, which is the sight of his spirit, is opened by the Lord, like things can be presented to view. The visions of the prophets were nothing else than openings of their interior sight. Ill. 1619.

1563. These organic vessels . . . are opened . . . especially by the senses of hearing and sight.

1589². The external Sensuous, here, is the sight and hearing.

1594². Interior things can see what is exterior, but not (the reverse); thus the internal sight can see what the external sight is; but not the external sight what the internal sight is. 1914².

1619. When the interior sight, which is the sight of his spirit, is opened to man, the things in the other life appear, which can never be presented to view before the sight of the body.

1622. Paradises are presented (there) with such life before the external sight, that they not only see them, but also perceive each thing much more vividly than the sight of the eye does on earth. Examp.

1806. The sight of the interior man which from things external sees internal ones. Sig. and Ex.

— . When man sees anything with his eyes, and sees them as if he does not see them, but from them sees or thinks of (spiritual) things, then his interior sight . . . is 'led forth abroad.' The eye itself is properly nothing but the sight of his spirit 'led forth abroad,' to the end especially that from external things he may see internal ones. Ex. . . Such was the sight in the Most Ancient Church; such is the sight of the Angels with man; and such was the Lord's sight.

1807⁴. Those in Divine ideas never stay in the objects of the external sight, but constantly from and in them see internal things. . . Such was the Lord's sight.

1869². The rays of the vision of the sight of the eye are dull and obscure . . . but when the same things are looked at through a microscope, interior things are presented to view . . . (So is it) with the internal sight, the rays of which are nothing but ideas . . .

1880. Spirits cannot (and still less Angels) see anything in the world by their own sight, that is, by the sight of the spirit . . . just as man, by his sight, that is, by the sight of the body, cannot see anything in the other life . . .

—². Still, Spirits and Angels, when the Lord pleases, can see the things in the world through the eyes of a man, (but only when the man is speaking with them). Through my eyes . . . they have seen their husbands and babes . . .

—³. When the interior sight was first opened to me, and they saw the world through my eyes . . . the Spirits and Angels were astounded . . . but now that it has become familiar, they marvel nothing. . . With other men, Spirits and Angels see not a whit of anything in the world . . .

1885. All these things are not visions, but ordinary things seen. . . They are not visions, but things seen in complete wakefulness of the body. 1972.

1925³. The lowest of nature, in which is man as to the sight and hearing.

1953. See HEAR. 3869. —⁵. — 8.

—². So in visual things: the first ideas taken from the objects of sight are material . . . but there is a sight still more interior, which views them, and thus thinks.

1954. 'Thou God seeing me' (Gen.xvi.13)=influx. View from the higher into the lower . . . is called influx, for it is effected by influx; as [for instance] the interior sight with man: unless this continually inflowed into his external sight, or that of the eye, the latter could never apprehend or discern any object; for it is the interior sight, which through the eye apprehends the things which the eye sees . . . It is the sight of man's spirit . . . which sees through the eye. The Spirits with me have seen through my eyes the things in the world as well as I do; and some of them, who were still in the fallacies of the senses, supposed that they saw through their own eyes . . .

—². In his dreams, man sometimes sees as in day.

— . Still, this interior sight does not see from itself, but from one still more interior, or that of the Rational; nor does this see from itself, but there is a sight still more interior, which is of the internal man. But still it is not this, but the Lord through the internal man, who alone sees, because He alone lives, and gives to man to see. however much it may appear to him that he sees from himself. Such is the case with influx.

1955. To 'see after Him that seeth' (id.)=to see from what is interior, or higher. . . The Lord saw (this) from His interior man in the Exterior, without the Rational as a medium. 1957.

1972. The things I have seen in the World of Spirits, I have seen in clear light; more obscurely those in the Heaven of angelic Spirits; and still more so those in the Heaven of Angels, for the sight of my spirit has rarely been opened so far . . .

2150. 'He saw' (Gen.xviii.2)=when he apperceived this. 'To see'=to understand and apperceive, also to be illuminated.

2196¹³. Cannot apprehend that Spirits and Angels can be seen . . . when yet they appear more manifestly before the internal sight, than a man to a man.

2242. 'I will see' (Gen.xviii.21)=visitation. . . 'To see if it is so' cannot be predicated of the Lord.

2245. 'To see,' in the internal sense, as in common discourse, =to understand; for the understanding is internal sight . . . 2271.

2325. 'Lot saw' (Gen.xix.1)=conscience. . . 'To see,' in the Word, =to understand; but, in the internal sense, it=to have faith; (and) those who have faith have conscience . . .

2309^e. Things seen and heard.

2485. By the interior sight he was led by me through the cities where I had been . . .

2487^e. The interior memory . . . is formed from the objects of the interior sight . . . 2490.

2520⁶. 'Seeing they see not' (Matt.xiii.13). 'Those who see and hear'=those within the Church, who, although they see and hear, do not understand. (Compare 2542^e.)

2534⁴. 'The seers-videntes' (Is.xxix.19)=those who see truth, and who are said to be 'covered' when they . . . see no truth. . . The prophets were called 'seers,' because 'to see'=to understand. III.

2588⁷. Sight is not of the eye, but of the spirit . . . as may be confirmed by the fact that spoken things which are heard refer themselves to a certain interior sight, and are transmuted into it . . . and also that whatever is thought, is seen by an interior sight . . . and also that unless the spirit which is within the body, sees that which the eye as its organ takes in, it can see nothing in the other life. (Further confirmed.)

2641. 'To hear' is predicated of the things of affection; 'to see,' of those of thought.

2651. 'Sarah saw' (Gen.xxi.9)=the Lord's view from the Divine Spiritual. 'To see'=to understand, which is the same as to view from the sight of the mind.

2699². Spiritual light enlightens both the sight and the understanding.

[A.] 2701². The sight of the body corresponds to the sight of the spirit, which is the understanding.

—³. 'Blessed are your eyes which see' (Matt. xiii. 16) = intelligence and faith. Ex. For understanding is the Spiritual of sight; and faith is the Spiritual of understanding. The sight of the eye is from the light of the world; the sight of the understanding is from the light of Heaven inflowing into the things which are of the world; but the sight of faith is from the light of Heaven . . .

2789. 'Abraham . . . saw' (Gen. xxii. 4) = . . . mental view from the Divine.

2790. 'To see from afar' = to foresee.

2807. 'To see for Himself' (ver. 8). when predicated of God, = to foresee and provide. For 'to see,' in the proximately internal sense, = to understand; but in a sense more interior, to have faith; and, in the supreme sense, to foresee and provide.

2837. 'Jehovah shall see' (ver. 14) = the Lord's Providence.

2839. In the mountain Jehovah shall see' (id.) = charity through which it is provided . . . that the spiritual shall be saved.

2896. Whatever they saw was representative.

3132. 'To see' (Gen. xxviii. 30) = to apperceive.

3138. The internal man has his sight and understanding from the light of Heaven; the external, from that of the world.

3310^e. The most arcane thing of faith . . . is there, if the man wishes, presented before the sight . . .

3342. Whatever Spirits are thinking, they present to the life before the internal, and at the same time before the external sight of him to whom they speak.

3391. 'A window' = the Intellectual, thus the internal sight. Ill.

3425. They did not see it. Sig. and Ex.

3451. 'Seeing we have seen' (Gen. xxvi. 28) = to apperceive and thus know for certain.

3493. 'To see' = to apperceive and understand.

—². The Rational has its sight from the light of Heaven; and the Natural has its sight from the light of the world; and, unless there is correspondence, the Rational can see nothing which is in the Natural . . .

3628³. So with the organ of sight: unless there were an interior light . . . there could be no sight.

3679. 'Esau saw . . .' (Gen. xxviii. 6) = thought . . . for to think is nothing else than to see inwardly.

3686. 'Esau saw' (ver. 8) = foresight and providence.

3674. '(Jacob) saw' (Gen. xxix. 2) = perception.

3796. 'Jacob saw' (ver. 10) = acknowledgment.

3854. 'Jehovah saw' (ver. 31) = the Lord's foresight and providence.

3863⁴. 'To see,' in the external sense, = sight; in the interior sense, understanding . . . for the sight of the internal man is understanding; and therefore in common discourse the understanding is called the internal sight, and light is predicated of it, just as of external sight. . .

'To see,' in the internal sense, = faith from the Lord . . . for the interior understanding, or internal sight . . . has for its objects the truths of faith . . . 'To see,' in the supreme sense, = foresight . . . for infinite intelligence is nothing but foresight. Fully ill.

—¹⁴. From all these passages it is evident that 'to see' = to have faith in the Lord. Ex. —¹⁵.

3901. Birds which fly high and see sharply = rational things. Ill.

3993⁷. Every regenerate man sees goods and truths in his natural lumen from the light of Heaven; for the light of Heaven makes his intellectual sight, and the light of the world his natural sight.

4038². The sensuous things of the sight and hearing are what perfect the intellectual faculty.

4186. 'To see' (Gen. xxxi. 43) = to perceive and understand.

4198. See LOOK AT.

4224. There are organic forms still purer . . . as those of the internal sight . . . Still they are forms, that is, substances; for no sight, not even intellectual sight, can come forth, except from something.

4247². Everything belonging to knowledge is insinuated through the sight or hearing into the thought . . . or else from the memory, which is like . . . an internal sight . . .

4251. So long as truth dominates in the Natural, it cannot see what is (true and good); but, when good dominates there . . . then it sees it.

4301³. In proportion as man is affected with them, so he sees them . . .

4339. 'Jacob lifted up his eyes and saw' (Gen. xxxiii. 1) = the perception and intention of the truth of good. . . To 'lift up the eyes' is an external which corresponds to the elevation of the mind . . . thus to perception; hence to see corresponds to intention (or directing of the mind).

4404^e. The sense of sight corresponds to the affection of understanding and being wise. 4405, Ex.

4405, 4406. The sight of the body corresponds exactly to the sight of its spirit, thus to the understanding. Ex. . . And therefore sight is attributed to the understanding, and is called intellectual sight; and the things which man apperceives are called the objects of this sight; and, in familiar discourse, it is said that these things are seen, when they are understood . . .

4407. The sight penetrates to the internal sensory by a shorter and more interior way than speech . . . Man (differently from animals) has a large brain, in order that his Intellectual may not depend upon his sight, but his sight upon his Intellectual. That the sight of man depends upon his Intellectual, is evident from the fact that . . . the interior affections, which are of the thought, appear in the eyes, from a certain flame of life . . .

4408. That there is a correspondence of ocular sight with intellectual sight, appears (from the fact that) the objects of the world . . . enter through the eye, and store themselves in the memory . . . under a like visual form. . . Hence imagination . . . When these objects appear still more interiorly, they present thought, also under some visual form, but a purer one . . . There is an interior light . . . which illuminates the interior sight, and meets the things which have entered through the external sight . . . The things which enter through hearing are also turned within into like forms of visual things . . .

4409. As ocular sight corresponds to intellectual sight, it also corresponds to truths . . . Moreover, all things of the external sight relate to what is true and good, because to the symmetries of objects . . . 4426^e.

4411². Thus the correspondences (in the three Heavens) succeed each other even to the external sight of the Angels. Ex.

4429. 'To see the daughters of the land' (Gen.xxxiv.1) = to know the affections of truth . . .

4526. The correspondence of the sight of the eye . . . is with the things of the understanding; for the understanding is the internal sight; and this internal sight is in a light above that of the world. (Continued under LIGHT.)

4527^e. As men see each other with their eyes, so Spirits see each other with theirs; and man cannot see Spirits except with the eyes of his spirit; and he sees them, when the Lord opens the internal sight . . .

4528. Gladden not only the sight, but the understanding.

4533². As soon as the Angels remove their sight (the infernals) appear in their own form.

4567. 'God seen' (Gen.xxxv.9) = interior perception. Ex.

4618². (So) the sight of the eye perishes unless it has objects outside of itself . . . (In like manner) the sight of the Rational perishes . . . for the scientifics in the Natural are the objects of sight of the Rational . . .

4653a. See EAR. 4658.

4679. 'His brethren saw' (Gen.xxxvii.4) = the things of faith; (for) 'to see' = to apperceive and understand.

4723. 'They saw him from afar' (ver. 18) = a perception of the Divine Human remotely.

4783⁶. Those not in the affection of charity are in external sight only . . .

4862. 'She saw' (Gen.xxxviii.14) = a clear view-perspectio.

4864. 'Judah saw her' (ver. 15) = how that religiosity . . . considered the internal things . . .

4903. There must be internal sight which shall judge of the things of external sight; and the internal sight, in order to judge of the things of external sight, must be in the light of Heaven (which it cannot be) unless it is in faith in the Lord, and, from this faith, reads the Word.

4974. 'His lord saw' (Gen.xxxix.3) = perceived in natural good. . . 'To see' = to understand and apperceive. Refs.

5010. 'She saw' (ver. 13) = perception about this Thing.

5077³. The Sensuous which is subject to the intellectual part is especially sight . . .

5078³. When a man sees and touches himself (there) he says that he is a man just as (here). (Continued under EYE.)

5094³. A rational natural man comprehends that there are Spirits . . . who are invisible; but a sensuous man does not, supposing that to be nothing which he does not see and touch.

5098. 'He saw them' (Gen.xl.6) = perception. 'To see' = to understand and apperceive.

5114. The Intellectual in general is the Visual of the internal man, which sees from the light of Heaven . . . and that which it sees is all spiritual and celestial. But the Sensuous in general is of the external man, here, the Sensuous of sight, because this corresponds and is subordinate to the Intellectual. This Sensuous sees from the light of the world . . . and that which it sees is all worldly, corporeal, and earthly. Further ex.

5127². What the exterior man sees from phantasy.

5140. 'The prince of the bakers saw' (ver. 16) = apperception of the Sensuous subject to the Voluntary. 'To see' = to understand and apperceive.

5165². For man sees interior things in the sensuous things of the exterior Natural, almost as he sees affections in the face, and still more interior ones in the eyes . . .

5172. They have an interior perception which is not made so visual by meditations . . .

5188³. (The artful) have the most intense sight. Des.

5274. 'Made Pharaoh see' (Gen.xli.28) = the apperception of the Natural.

5286. 'Let Pharaoh look out' (ver. 33) = the looking forward of the Natural; for 'to see,' here, involves what is active, that it may do; but when 'to see' does not involve what is to be done, it = to understand and apperceive. Refs. 5496.

5343². (Such things) can be presented to the very sight (there) . . . but with a man whose interiors have not been opened, they can only be acknowledged from rational view, and thus be seen rationally from the light of Heaven.

5400. 'He saw' (Gen.xlii.1) = the things which are of faith; for sight, abstracted from the things of the world—that is, spiritual sight—is nothing else than the perception of truth, that is, of such things as are of faith.

5421. 'Joseph saw his brethren' (ver. 7) = perception.

5427. The Angels in the Heavens . . . can see everything taking place in the World of Spirits . . . and also in the Lower Earth, and in the Hells; but not conversely. Moreover, the Angels of a higher Heaven can see all things taking place beneath them in a lower Heaven, but not conversely, unless there is a medium . . . Examp.

—³. (Just as) the soul can see everything . . . in the exterior man, but not conversely, unless there is correspondence and a medium . . . But, when there is correspondence, then even the exterior man sees through the medium what is going on in the interior one. Ex.

5433. 'To see the nakedness of the land' (ver. 9) . . . To 'come to see' = to desire to know that it is so.

[A.] 5477². (Thus it is) that the Lord, who is Light itself, sees everything in man's thought and will, nay, in universal nature. Ex.

5508⁵. That at this day man ought to believe things he does not see, is evident from . . . 'Blessed are they who do not see, and believe' (Johu xx.29).

5510³. In the light of Heaven such things are presented manifestly to the sight.

5639. 'Joseph saw' (Gen. xliii. 16) = apperception. 5685. 5845.

5664a. That it will seem like truth procured by them. Sig. and Ex.

5816². For, when man is in good, then from good, he sees truths . . .

5849². They say, If I saw (Spirits) I would believe: that which I see, is; but that which I do not see, I do not know whether it is: when yet they know that man's eye is so gross that they do not even see the comparatively more extant things in ultimate nature . . . How, then, could the eye see the things which are within even purer nature, where are Spirits . . . These man cannot see, except with the eye of his internal man; for this has been accommodated to seeing such things; but, for many reasons, the sight of this eye is not opened to man while he is in the world.

5919. 'Your eyes see' (Gen. xlv. 12) = testification from perception.

5923. 'All that ye see' (ver. 13) = whatever is apperceived and perceived there.

5975. 'I will go and see him before I die' (ver. 28) = a longing for conjunction . . . 'To go and see' = to be conjoined. The reason 'to see' = to be conjoined, is that in the Spiritual World the interior sight conjoins. The interior sight is the thought . . . and thought conjoins. Ex.

6032. 'Became visible unto him' (Gen. xlvi. 29) = perception. 'To see' = to understand, to apperceive, and to have faith. Refs. and Ex. (See LIGHT, here.)

—². Hence it is that by 'to see,' in the spiritual sense, is signified not only the understanding, but also whatever belongs to it; as thought, reflection, mental advertence, prudence, and many other such things; and so also not only faith, but whatever belongs to it, as truth, what is doctrinal from the Word, and the like things.

6037. 'Since I have seen thy faces' (ver. 30) = after the apperception of mercy.

6068. As with the sight of the eye: the things directly under it are in the middle . . . (other things) appear obscurely. For the internal eye, which is the intellectual mind, and which has its sight from the light of Heaven, looks at the things in the Natural [as] outside itself . . . The internal sight is determined to the things which delight the most, and which are at heart; and at these it fixes a direct view, as does the external sight at the like things in the fields of objects. Thus the internal sight [is determined] to the scientifics which are most in accordance with the truth and good in which the man is . . . The reason the internal sight regards scientifics, is because it is spiritual, and hence is determined to spiritual things, thus to scientifics, for these fall under the spiritual view. 6084².

6229. 'God Shaddai was seen by me' (Gen. xlviii. 3) = that the Divine appeared . . .

6249. 'Israel saw Joseph's sons' (ver. 8) = apperception about the Intellectual and Voluntary . . .

6258. 'He could not see' (ver. 10) = no mental advertence.

6287. 'Joseph saw' (ver. 17) = a perception that . . .

6310². Such are to be called the sensuous; for . . . they believe that only which they see and touch.

6311^e. For Sirens . . . cannot see any other Spirits than those who are in sensuous lumen . . .

6322. It is according to all appearance that . . . the sight, hearing, etc., inflow into the thought, and there excite ideas . . . but this is a fallacy. Ex. It is the internal sense . . . which sensates through the external sense, and disposes the external sensory to receive objects according to its bidding; and therefore . . . the sensory of sight, or eye, accommodates itself in a moment to all objects according to their quality. Ex.

6541. 'The inhabitant of the Land saw' (Gen. i. 11) = apperception by the good of the Church.

6557. 'Joseph's brethren saw . . .' (ver. 15) = apperception that the Church was raised up.

6583. 'Joseph saw' (ver. 23) = the instauration of the Church by the Internal.

6601². The extension of thought from the objects which are the subject of thought, is circumstanced as with the objects of sight, from which a sphere of rays diffuses itself . . . which falls into man's sight, and this at a greater or a less distance according to the flamminess in the object . . . So the internal sight, which is that of the thought, [in regard] to its objects. The objects of this sight . . . are spiritual, and therefore they diffuse themselves to such things as are in that World, thus to the truths and goods there, and consequently to the Societies which are in them . . .

6608. (This intellectual) light itself has been perceived by me as an illumination which illustrated (or enlightened) the substances of the interior sight, as the lumen of the sun does the organs of sight . . .

6675. 'When ye see them upon the stools' (Ex. i. 16) = the apperception of the inflowing truth and good.

6720. 'She saw him that he was good' (Ex. ii. 2) = apperception that it was through Heaven. 6732.

6757. 'He saw their burdens' (ver. 11) = apperception that they were infested.

6805. 'God saw the sons of Israel' (ver. 25) = that He gifted the Church with faith.

6833. '(Moses) saw' (Ex. iii. 2) = apperception.

6836. 'I will turn aside and see this great vision' (ver. 3) = reflection upon this revelation. Ex.

6849². Therefore the Ancients feared to see God. Ill.

6851. 'Seeing I have seen the affliction of My people' (ver. 7) = mercy towards them . . . For when the Lord sees anyone in misery, He has mercy on him . . .

6893. 'Became visible unto me' (ver. 16) = presence

. . . For by 'to be seen' (or visible) in the internal sense, is not signified to be seen with the eyes, but with the thought; and thought itself makes presence; for he who is thought of appears as if present before the internal sight. In the other life this takes place actually.

6945. 'Jehovah seen' = the appearing of the Divine of the Lord in His Human. 'To be seen' = to appear.

6945^e. They will not believe . . . unless they see that it is so, thus unless they see signs. Sig.

6990. 'Or the seeing, or the blind' (Ex. iv. 11) = faith through Knowledges, and no faith through no Knowledges. . . In the Original, 'to see' is a word which means what is open, namely, the eyes; thus one who sees from Knowledges; for Knowledges open.

7001. 'He shall see thee' (ver. 14) = perception.

7017. 'I shall see whether they yet live' (ver. 18) = a perception of that life.

7038². The delight of hearing, and that of sight (as compared with the delights of the other three senses) are in the last place, because they only receive the things which are to be of service to uses; and they serve the Intellectual, and not so much the Voluntary.

7155. 'To see' = to apperceive.

7160. 'Jehovah look upon you and judge' (Ex. v. 21) = the Divine disposing . . . For what Jehovah sees . . . He disposes; for 'to see' = the Divine perception, properly, foresight.

7187. 'Thou shalt see what I will do to Pharaoh' (Ex. vi. 1) = a manifest perception of what will happen . . .

7298². (The presenting of opposite things) effects extension to the spiritual sight, as to a truth, even to its opposites . . .

7503². For the understanding is the internal sight . . . which, in proportion as it is illustrated by the light of Heaven, apperceives, sees, and acknowledges the truths of faith.

7612. 'Pharaoh saw' (Ex. ix. 34) = apperception.

7645. 'Cannot see the land' (Ex. x. 5) = the obscuration of the whole natural mind; that is, no perception of truth.

7716. 'They saw not a man his brother' (ver. 23) = they did not perceive the truth of any good. 'To see' = to understand and perceive. Refs.

7877. 'I shall see the blood' (Ex. xii. 13) = the apperception of that truth . . .

8172. 'Stand still and see' (Ex. xiv. 13) = to have faith.

8237. 'Israel saw the Egyptians dead' (ver. 30) = the aspect of the damned.

8237^e. To look into the Hells, and see . . . is sometimes granted to good Spirits; for it is from order that lower things can be seen from what is higher, but not (the reverse); thus the Hells can be seen by those in Heaven . . . Hence it is that evils can be seen from good, but not goods from evil.

8460. 'The sons of Israel saw' (Ex. xvi. 15) = apperception.

8514. 'See ye' (ver. 29) = that they should advert to and reflect. 'To see' = to understand, thence to perceive, and also to reflect. Refs.

8628. Terms, which are like motes and dense clouds before the intellectual sight . . .

—². On this Earth, knowledges are the means of opening the intellectual sight, which sight is in the light of Heaven.

8688. To 'see all he did' (Ex. xviii. 14), when said of the Divine good, = omniscience. 'To see,' in the internal sense, = to understand and perceive; in the supreme sense, foresight and providence. Refs.

8707². So the sight of the internal eye . . . in order to see, must have a light . . .

8709. 'To look out from' (ver. 21) = to choose.

8725. Such things as delight the intellectual sight.

8763. 'Ye have seen' (Ex. xix. 4) = remembrance.

8767^e. For (the commandments) thus open . . . the sight to the Lord.

8780². This revelation is effected by the illustration of the internal sight . . .

8830. 'To see Jehovah' (Ex. xix. 21) = to perceive the Divine.

8861. It is this Light which illuminates our internal sight . . . As this sight sees . . . spiritual things, it has truths for its objects . . .

8914. 'All the people seeing' (Ex. xx. 18) = a perception of Divine truths from good.

8946^e. 'No one can see Jehovah and live.' Ex.

9079^e. When those meet who have never seen each other, if they are in like good, it is as if they had seen each other from infancy.

9103³. Thus man sees these objects within himself almost as the eye sees them . . . When light from Heaven inflows into these, the man begins to see them spiritually . . .

9128. If he should see this (evil and falsity) clearly from the interior. Sig. and Ex.

—². As to sight from the interior: man sees with himself whether what he thinks, wills, speaks, and does is good or evil, true or false, which would be impossible unless he saw from the interior. To be seen from the interior is [to be seen] from the sight of the internal man in the external. (So) the eye cannot see the things in itself, but those out of itself. Hence it is that man sees the good and evil which are in himself . . . These . . . can see the evils and falsities in themselves; for evil can be seen from good, and falsity from truth, but not the reverse. Ex.

—³. To see from the interior, is to see from the Lord. Ex.

— (Thus may be apprehended) that the Lord sees each and all things, even to the most singular things with man.

9160^e. 'The seer-videns,' and 'the prophet' (1 Sam. ix. 9) = truth Divine, and the doctrine thence.

9165. 'No one seeing' (Ex. xxii. 10) = of which the mind is not conscious. . . As the understanding is the sight of the mind, 'to see' = that the mind is conscious.

9213⁵. For thought is internal sight.

[A.] 9248². See VISION.

9266. 'To see' = to know, understand, and acknowledge truths, and also to have faith. Refs.

9297. 'To be seen' (Ex.xxiii.17) = appearance and presence.

9394. The internal sight, which is the understanding, sees nothing in the fields . . . of its memory except what agrees with the loves . . .

9405. 'They saw the God of Israel' (Ex.xxiv.10) = the advent and presence of the Lord in the Word. 'To see,' when said of the Lord, = His advent and presence. Refs.

9411. 'They saw God' (ver.11) = faith; for 'to see God' = to be gifted with intelligence and faith; for 'to see,' in the internal sense, is to see spiritually, and to see spiritually is to see in faith.

9577. 'Which thou wast made to see in the mount' (Ex.xxv.40) = which had been seen in Heaven with the eyes of the spirit. Ex. . . That 'to see,' when said of the representatives which appear in Heaven, is to see with the eyes of the spirit, it is to be known that the angelic Spirits who are in the First Heaven continually see forms of Things like such as are in the world. Enum.

—². Such things cannot be seen with the eyes of a man, while (here). Ex.

9723. The things man loves, he sees in light; but those he does not love, he sees in shade.

9969. The inhabitants of (the Second Earth) relate to the keenness of the external sight . . .

9996. The sensuous Scientific, which is the ultimate of the Intellectual, is imbibed through the two senses of hearing and sight.

10130⁵. When an Angel determines his sight to others, his interiors are transferred into them . . . Therefore if he determines his sight to the good, it causes joy; but if to the evil, torment.

10189⁴. Thus their external sight, determined by their internal sight . . . and this by the love . . . looks whither the love carries it.

10199. Hence sight = the understanding of the truths of faith. —³, Refs.

10227³. Those who do not ascribe all things to the Lord . . . do not see anything except what is of others . . .

10396. 'To see,' when concerning the understanding of the Word, = apperception. Refs.

10410. 'Aaron saw' (Ex.xxxii.5) = approbation.

10479. 'Moses saw' (ver.25) = that it was perceived from the Internal.

10574. 'Make me to see Thy glory' (Ex.xxxiii.18) = the apperception of internal Divine truth . . .

10578. 'Thou canst not see My faces' (ver.20) = that Divine interior things . . . cannot appear to (that) nation.

10675^e. He sees nothing within himself, but without himself. To see within self is from Heaven; to see without self is from the world; and he who sees from the world only, sees from fatuous lumen . . .

10692. 'Aaron saw . . .' (Ex.xxxiv.30) = their apperception . . .

10705. 'The sons of Israel saw' (ver.35) = that nation acknowledged . . .

10712. Such as the thought of man is, such is his sight; for it is the interior sight which is of the thought which sees in the exterior, and through it.

10751. The interior sight (of the inhabitants of the Fifth Earth) is then opened.

H. 35. One who ascends from a lower Heaven into a higher . . . cannot see those there.

76. Angels cannot become visible to man through the eyes of his body . . .

— . Still, these things are seen by man, when he is withdrawn from the sight of the body, and the sight of his spirit is opened; which is done in a moment when it pleases the Lord that they be seen; and then the man knows not but that he sees them with the eyes of the body. Thus were Angels seen by Abraham, etc. So was the Lord seen after His resurrection . . . As the prophets saw in this way, they were called 'seers,' and 'those who had their eyes open.' Ill.

—^e. That making them see in this way is called 'opening the eyes' (is evident from): 'Elisha prayed, Jehovah open his eyes that he may see,' and on Jehovah opening the eyes of his boy, he 'saw that mountain full of horses and chariots of fire' (2 Kings vii.17).

85². Everyone knows how greatly the sight of the eye extends itself—to the sun and stars; and he who thinks more deeply knows that the internal sight, which is that of the thought, extends itself still more widely; and thence that a sight still more interior does so still more widely. What then must the Divine sight do, which is the inmost of all!

121. This presence is called the presence of the internal sight.

128. The spiritual see from their own Sun . . . and it is the Divine truth from which the Angels have understanding, and the understanding is their internal sight, which inflows into their external sight, and produces it.

144. All see the Lord before them.

— . Their aspect to the other three quarters is from their interior sight.

145. The Angels see the Lord in one way, and the Lord sees them in another: they see the Lord through the eyes, but He sees them in the forehead. Ex.

196. The sight of the Angels acts as one with their thought, and their thought as one with their affection . . .

203². As the sight of the eye has extension to remote things . . . so the interior sight, which is the understanding, has extension in the Spiritual World . . . The difference is that the sight of the eye is affected naturally . . . but the sight of the understanding spiritually . . .

209. The Angels of a lower Heaven . . . cannot see those of a higher one; whereas the latter can see the former, but are not allowed to join in conversation with them . . .

266. The light of Heaven simultaneously illustrates their internal sight, which is of the mind, and their external sight, which is of the eyes.

270². As soon as (the celestial Angels) hear genuine Divine truths, they at once acknowledge and perceive them, and afterwards as it were see them within them . . .

—⁴. Those who ratiocinate about truths . . . as they do not see truths from the light of truth . . . say that we must have faith, into which they then do not want the interior sight to enter.

271². The (celestial) Angels are perfected in wisdom by hearing, and not by sight . . . The things which these Angels see with their eyes, enter into their memory, and about these things they ratiocinate and speak.

292. (The Spirits who are with man) do not see him, because the things in our solar world do not fall into their sight.

351². True intelligence and wisdom is to see and perceive what is true and good . . . from an interior view and perception. . . As the interiors (with man) have been formed, and make a one, with the exteriors, so does the man see and perceive. Ex.

—^e. The simple whose interiors have been opened . . . perceive truths when they hear them, but do not see them in themselves; whereas the wise . . . both see them in themselves and perceive them.

353². Hence they cannot see what is true and good.

402. Each sense has its own delight . . . the sight from beauty and forms . . . sight has such delight from the use which it performs to the understanding, which is the internal sight.

427². (When they come into Heaven, or Hell) they see each other no more . . . unless they are of a like mind . . . 481².

462. Those in Heaven . . . see and hear much more exquisitely than (when here) . . . For the light of Heaven, being Divine truth, gives to the sight of the Angels [such power] that they apperceive and distinguish the most minute things; moreover their external sight corresponds to their internal sight . . . for with the Angels the one sight inflows into the other, so that they act as a one; hence such keenness of vision . . . The rest of their senses are not so exquisite as those of sight and hearing; for the reason that the sight and hearing are of service to their intelligence and wisdom. (Continued under SENSE.)

481⁴. The more interiorly they come into the light of Heaven, the more clearly they see all things.

532. The thought is the internal sight of man, which, like the external sight, turns and stays wherever it is bent and strained. If therefore the internal sight is turned to the world . . . the thought becomes worldly; (and so on).

582. Spiritual [beings] see things which are from a spiritual origin, and natural ones those which are from a natural origin; and therefore man cannot possibly see the things in the Spiritual World, unless he is permitted to be in the spirit . . . Neither can Angels and Spirits see anything whatever in the natural world, if they are not with a man who is permitted to speak with them . . .

583. The Heavens do not appear to Spirits . . . except when their interior sight is opened . . . The Spirits, however . . . see each other. But . . . when they are let into their interiors, the evil Spirits do not see the good ones; although the good ones can see the evil ones; but they turn away from them; and Spirits who turn away, become invisible.

584². Therefore when (the infernals) come out of their caverns, they see nothing.

598. Evils can be seen from good; but not goods from evil.

J. 24². A spiritual man cannot appear before a natural man; for the Natural cannot see the Spiritual, but the Spiritual can see the Natural; for this is according to order . . . for there is an influx of the Spiritual into the Natural, and so also of sight; for sight, too, is influx. . . A spiritual man is what is called the spirit of man . . .

27³. All things of the spiritual mind are (there) presented in forms before their sight.

C. J. 36. A spiritual man sees a spiritual man equally clearly as a natural man sees a natural man; but a natural man cannot see a spiritual man, nor a spiritual man a natural man, on account of the difference between the Natural and the Spiritual. M. 31².

F. 4. The Angels say, What is to believe, and not see whether the thing is true? If anyone says that still it is to be believed, they reply, Do you suppose you are a God whom I must believe, or that I am insane that I am to believe a dictum in which I do not see truth? Make me see it therefore. . . Angelic wisdom consists solely in this: that they see and comprehend what they think.

10. By (the Lord's words to Thomas) is not meant faith separated from an internal acknowledgment of truth: but that those are blessed who do not see the Lord with the eyes, and still believe that He is; for this is in the light of truth from the Word.

W. 41². So with sight: when man sees objects at a distance, it appears as if the sight were there; yet it is in the eye . . . and is an affection of it . . . Thus the sight does not go out from the eye to the object; but the image of the object enters the eye, and affects its substance and form.

91. Thus those in one world cannot see those in the other. Ex.

96. For, when the mind thinks, it sees its objects in light . . . (Hence the expression) to see that a thing is so: (yet) the understanding cannot see from natural light.

271. For evil delights the sense, especially the sight and hearing.

352². As the sight of the eye is so gross . . .

361³. The simple see more clearly . . . This common perception is from influx . . . and falls into the thought even to the sight; whereas thought separated from common perception falls into the imagination, from the sight, and from proprium.

363³. The understanding sees through the eye.

404³. That the third conjunction (of the will and understanding) is through the affection of seeing truth, from which is thought. Ex.

[W. 404]⁴. Thought is nothing but internal sight.

P. 34. Perceptions and thoughts present themselves in the internal sight of the mind, which corresponds to the external sight of the body.

74. Instead of thought (beasts have) internal sight, which makes, by correspondence, a one with their external sight.

117^e. (Such there) see in the dark, and nothing in the light, like owls.

150². What the Lord teaches, He gives to man to perceive with the reason, and this in two ways; one, that he sees in himself that it is so as soon as he hears it . . . To see in himself is in his internal man . . .

166. The understanding, which is the internal sight, is enlightened by spiritual light, as the external sight by natural light. . . The internal sight is taught from spiritual objects; and the external sight, from natural ones.

189. (Such a one) sees the Divine Providence in everything. (In) natural things, he sees it; (in) civil things, he sees it; (in) spiritual things he sees it . . .

—^c. Such . . . if raised into Heaven . . . do not see anything.

219². Reasoning about Divine things (results from) the reasoner not seeing them from the Lord, but wanting to see them from himself; and what man sees from himself is evil. Still, the Lord wills that man . . . should reason about them, to the end that he may see that it is so or is not so; and this . . . reasoning, provided the end is to see truth, may be said to be from the Lord with man; but it is from the man until he sees the truth . . .

298. Own intelligence . . . sees nothing but falsity . . . Ex.

—⁴. The Divine Providence continually causes man to see truth . . . Ex.

310. They believe nothing but what they can perceive with the sense . . . especially that of sight.

314. The idea that the sight of the eye inflows into the internal sight.

R. 7. 'All things that he saw' (Rev.i.2)=their illustration in all things in this Revelation. Ex. (=to understand from illustration. E.II.)

—'. 'To see'=to understand . . . for man has a sight as to his spirit also . . . The sight of the spirit of a man is what is called understanding.

25. 'To see' (ver.7)=to acknowledge.

351². Spiritual natural sight is knowledge; spiritual sight is intelligence; and celestial sight is wisdom.

449. 'To see' (Rev.ix.17)=to disclose their quality.

460. 'Can neither see, hear, nor walk' (ver.20)=in which is nothing of spiritual and truly rational life.

505. 'They shall see' (Rev.xi.9)=when they have heard and shall hear of them.

564². In the New Church is rejected the dogma that the understanding is to be kept under obedience to faith, and in place of it is received, that the truth of the Church must be seen in order to be believed; and . . . truth can be seen no otherwise than rationally . . .

867^e. I do not say that a rational man can see (this) from the light of his own understanding; but he can if he will . . .

896. That John was translated into the Third Heaven, and his sight opened there . . . Sig. and Ex.

914. The delight of love and wisdom elevates the thought, so that it sees as in the light that a thing is so, although it had not before heard it.

920. That all (such) will see Divine truths within themselves, as the eye sees objects. Sig. and Ex.

926². The interiors of my mind were opened; and then instead of the magnificent temple I saw a house full of chinks . . . —³.

945. 'I John saw these things, and heard' (Rev.xxii.8) . . . For whatever John saw, he saw with the eyes of his spirit . . . and no one can come into this state . . . except through Angels who are closely adjoined to the man . . .

M. 2³. The seventh company was from the east, which, on account of its light, was not seen by the rest.

115². (They all said they could not see the Angel, except some simple ones.)

210. Every love has its own sense: the love of seeing, from the love of understanding, has that of sight; and the amenities of this are symmetries and beauties.

220. Natural sight flows from spiritual sight, which is understanding.

231⁴. It was found that they could not see what is just.

233⁵. If heavenly light does not inflow into natural light, man does not see whether any truth is truth, or falsity falsity.

—⁷. To be able to see that truth is truth, and falsity falsity, and to confirm it, is [the part] of an intelligent one.

—³. All these are in posterior vision, and not in any prior sight.

477². In his external sight, such as he had been in here (he could see the garden) and in this sight he was rational. But in the internal sight, in which scortation played the first part . . . he was not rational; and . . . when the internal sight was opened, he (saw) straw and dry wood . . . For his internal sight, being scortatory . . . could see only the opposites. Ex.

—'. As is the mind, so does man (there) see objects.

—⁴. The Angel then closed his internal sight, and opened his external sight . . . and he saw magnificent palaces. Des. . . He said, I see magnificent things . . . Then the Angel again closed his external sight, and opened his internal one . . . and he then exclaimed, What do I see now? . . . I see ruins . . . (The experiment repeated with other things.)

I. 1². The cogitative mind (inflows) into the sight, according to the state induced on the eyes by the objects, which state that mind disposes at its pleasure.

4³. The internal sight of man . . . receives influx from the spiritual Sun; but the external sight . . . from the natural sun ; and in operation they conjoin themselves together, in like manner as does the soul with the body.

T. 61. (Hence) the Angels can see whatever is going on in Hell . . . But the Spirits of Hell cannot see a whit of what is going on in Heaven . . . D. 4759.

64². The sight of the body emulates this same presence . . . Such presence (of distant objects) has each sight, intellectual and corporeal, because the spirit sees through the eyes ; but no beast has the like, because these have no spiritual sight.

66. When the inmost sight (of the Angels) is opened, they recognize their own image in (the surrounding objects.) Ex.

344. The manifestation—cristentia—of the faith of the New Church is spiritual sight, etc.

346. As spiritual sight . . . and natural sight . . . mutually correspond, every state of faith may be compared to some state of the eye and its sight.

— The correspondences of these two sights, as to the perverted states of both (shown and enum. in various diseases of the sight).

354³. Every true worshipper . . . as soon as he hears any truth . . . at once sees, acknowledges, and receives it. Ex.

361. When he thinks, reads, or hears anything, he sees within himself whether it is the Truth or not. Ex.

504. I was in interior spiritual sight, in which are the Angels of the higher Heaven ; but was then in the World of Spirits ; and I saw two Spirits not far from me, yet distant from each other . . .

— From that freedom in their minds there appeared a lucidity, from the first sight which was of perception, to the ultimate sight which was of the eye.

759^e. For falsity does not see truth, but truth sees falsity ; and every man is such that he can see and comprehend truth, when he hears it . . .

767. Every Angel looks at the Lord . . . before him : it is the Sun . . . which appears before their eyes while they are in spiritual meditation. It is the like with a man . . . in whom is the Church, as to the sight of his spirit ; but, as this is veiled over with the natural sight . . . this state of his spirit is not known. Ex.

839. Interior men . . . think from the spirit . . . and therefore see truths in light ; but exterior men . . . think from the fallacies of the senses, and therefore see truths as in a mist ; and, when they revolve them, they see falsities as truths.

—^e. The Africans, from the interior sight, in which they excel, acknowledged that it is so.

Ad. 3/3783. How it is with internal hearing and sight, which are not at all different from external hearing and sight. Ex. 3784.

D. 651. On the sight of Spirits. Ex.

— There are four kinds of sight . . . First, the sight of sleep . . . Second, vision with the eyes closed, which is as vivid as with them open . . . Third, in a state in which the eyes are open, when the things in Heaven are represented : this is representative vision . . . Fourth, when the man has been separated from the body, and is in the spirit . . . this is a sight greater than that of being awake, being exquisite . . . (It has been conceded to me four or five times. 653.) (All these are states of Spirits. 652.)

2163. That the Lord provides, sees, etc. everything . . .

2191^e. Hearing is the corporeal Sensuous, but sight is the natural Sensuous.

2533. As sight is intermediate between hearing and thought.

3344. There are visual spheres, distinct from those of odour . . . 4220^e.

3427. A visual experience.

3470². Thought is internal sight (and cannot exist without an organ). Ex.

3574^e. The internal sight, or thought, regards a common end . . .

4159. The sight of Spirits among themselves is so exquisite that . . .

4556. When I was in a city, awake, the evil Spirits with me saw nothing but serpents and monsters. So that evil Spirits in a city where the good are, cannot see them . . . because there is light from Heaven there.

4627⁸. The interior understanding sees by the light of Heaven : the exterior, by the influx of the light of Heaven into that of the world . . .

4860. I was let down into a Hell of Genii . . . but was permitted to see little : for it would have been dangerous to unclose that sight, because their operations would have at once inflowed . . .

4893². In the Heavens they saw grass and shrubs ; but not the gardens and paradises, nor the palaces, still less did they see the Angels there having and doing differently from elsewhere. The reason was that when they are in worldly and corporeal things, they cannot possibly see such things as are with the Angels . . . The cause is that their interiors do not correspond. So is it in the Spiritual World : (all) see with their eyes things which conform to . . . the internal sight, and to the affection of truth and good.

4916. When (such ascend by a way which is not right) they do not see any Angel, nor their abodes ; but some see sandy places ; some a little grass, and they advance to the front in order to see those who are below. The reason they do not see the Angels there, is that their eyes have been closed by conceit . . . The Angels see them, and let them pass, knowing that they will shortly descend.

5154. When one not in heavenly love comes to (the Angels), he sees nothing there with his eyes : merely something obscure, without any beauty . . .

5528. The Angels see also at the sides and behind when they turn their faces to the Lord : thus they see to the south, north, and west at the same time as to the east ; but within themselves. It is as if their sight were also all around . . .

5531. When Spirits not yet vastated turn themselves about, they . . . vanish out of sight . . .

— Also those who do not agree (in sentiment) do not see their houses, nor anything from their dwelling places. They at once vanish, although they are there. The reason is that their mind is elsewhere, and also their love. Hence, in a city, there are many who do not appear . . . likewise their houses. The evil may ascend mountains where Heaven is, and see nothing at all there, just as if those mountains were devoid of men, when yet they are full. The cause is the disagreement of the loves; and, where the loves are, there they turn their interiors, and therefore they do not see those things.

[D.] 5587². What (the celestial) see with their eyes, they know, and speak of as well as others; for these are such worldly visible things . . . as pertain to their body . . . But they must be seen by them; (for) the things which enter through the hearing into the perception, enter into the interior man, thus into the Voluntary . . . but those which enter through the sight, enter only into the exterior man, and into the external Intellectual. 5941. E. 14².

5784. Heaven was seen, and the palaces there; and it was said by some . . . that they had ascended thither, but had seen no one there, and very few houses, not magnificent ones. The cause was that they were in externals . . . Moreover, those who are in more interior things see more magnificent things than those who are not so much in interior things; because all things increase in perfection according to the interiors, and are presented to view . . .

5789². The extension of sight there (also) is wider in proportion to the elevation.

5825. (The English have) an interior sight, which is a receptive sight of mental view. This appears with them in the Spiritual World, and therefore they are in the middle there, among Christians; for those are in the middle who are in interior light. (This is not an active, but a receptive sight. 5357.)

5869. The evil who are below, see clearly all the approaches to others . . . They have this light from those on high . . . These see thence all the approaches, and, when they look to the evil, and have delight in what is being done by them, their sight is communicated to the evil, and the evil see all things round about equally as well as they . . . Those who are below can (otherwise) see nothing around them, except what meets them . . . (See also 5902.)

5905. On those who see like birds of night.—Many of the spiritual cannot see those who are in the interior Heaven, or, if they see them, they see them in an obscurity like that of evening, and then they see them as unbeautiful, and some as one sees an object in the dark, which he sees in a different form according to his imagination. The same, in the light itself, in which are the interior Angels, can see little, if anything. Their eyes are such as is their thought; because, with Spirits, the thought and the sight of the eye act as a one. (Thus) the sight of everyone in the Spiritual World is such as is his intelligence. As to those in Hell . . . as their thought is of what is false . . . they believe what is false to be true, and therefore their sight makes the same, and they see things which are not, exactly as if they were; which is the reason why there are mere phantasies there, and nothing real.

5923. (When Melancthon) ascended into that Heaven, he saw nothing; but, when his eyes had been opened, he saw magnificent things.

6030. (Magic) by the sight being determined to certain quarters.

6086. Although not in the light of Heaven (these worldly Spirits) saw. When he came there, he at first saw nothing; afterwards he saw as they did; for his eyes were [fitted] for darkness . . . and he then saw as in the light; (but) on being brought back . . . where there was spiritual light, he did not see, until the previous sight had been removed.

D. Min. 4602. When these spirits rose up and applied their ears (so as to see what is going on in the World of Spirits) my sight was kept in the World of Spirits . . .

4647. The speech of Spirits [as compared] to that of men, is like sight to hearing, and still more excellent: it sees the Things themselves . . .

E. 8². Those who receive (things revealed from Heaven) in love, see them in their understanding: there is the sensation of their internal sight.

14. Two senses are given man which . . . receive the things by which the Rational is formed, and also those by which man is reformed: sight and hearing . . . The things which enter through the sense of sight, enter into his understanding, and illustrate it; and therefore by the sight is signified the understanding illustrated . . .

—^e. (Thus) hearing has been given to man chiefly to receive wisdom; but sight to receive intelligence.

37. 'Every eye shall see Him' (Rev. i. 7) = that all will acknowledge who are in truths from good. 'To see' = to understand, perceive, and acknowledge. Refs.

53². Man sees not things in Heaven, unless the sight of his spirit is opened . . . So saw John, etc. . . This sight is the spiritual sight of man . . . Angels, when seen by man, did not assume a human form . . . When the Lord was seen (after His resurrection) the eyes of their spirit were open; and, when He became invisible, they were closed.

—^e. All the things I have seen in the Heavens, have been seen by this sight; and I was then in a like state of waking as when they were not seen. But this sight is rarely opened by the Lord at this day.

61. 'I turned to see the voice' (ver. 12) = the understanding illustrated. . . The Divine influx is into the will, and through it into the understanding; (that is) into the cerebellum, and thence towards the anterior things in the cerebrum where is the understanding; and, when it comes through this way into the understanding, it comes also into the sight; for man sees from the understanding. . . Hence it is said that John 'heard the voice behind him,' and then 'turned to see it.' . . . It is different if the influx comes by the way of the understanding alone. It is said 'to see the voice,' because 'to see' = to understand from illustration . . .

76. 'I saw Him' (ver. 17) = the presence of the Divine majesty.

—². 'To see,' here, = their now inmost presence. Ex.

—³. Man has two sights; one from cogitative faith, the other from love. When he has only (the former) sight, the sight is devoid of amazement at His Divine majesty ; but when he has sight from love, it is attended with amazement. Ex.

84^e. 'Ye see Me' (John xiv. 19). 'To see the Lord' is to believe in Him.

87. 'Write the things thou hast seen' (ver. 19). Ex.

152². All the sight of the eyes with men and Angels is from the understanding. Ex.

235⁷. 'Seers' = those who should see truths.

239¹⁸. 'Those who see not' = those outside the Church and do not know truths . . . 'Those who see' = those within the Church, and have the Word . . .

242⁵. In Heaven no one believes any truth, unless he sees, or has seen it ; for they say, Who can believe that it is so unless he sees ! . . . The evil, from evil, see falsities ; but the good, from good, see truths ; and, as good is from the Lord, the sight of truth from good is also from Him. The reason the Angels see truths, is that the light of Heaven . . . is the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord. Hence all in the world also, with whom is this light, have the sight of truth. Ex.

245. 'Anoint thine eyes with eye-salve, that thou mayest see' (Rev. iii. 19) = that the understanding may be somewhat opened. Ex.

—^e. For the understanding sees nothing of truth unless the will is in good . . .

260. 'After these things I saw' (Rev. iv. 1) = the understanding illustrated. 'To see' = to understand. Ex.

— . Truths from good . . . are seen as manifestly in Heaven as are objects before the eye . . . but those truths are seen intellectually, that is, are perceived ; the quality of which sight, or perception, cannot be described . . . and can be comprehended only by this : that there is in it a consent and confirmation from the inmost that it is so ; for there are confirming reasons in immense abundance which present themselves as a one in the intellectual sight, (and which) are in the light of Heaven . . . which operates into each Angel according to the state of his reception. This is spiritual or intellectual sight. As this sight, with the Angels, operates into the sight of the eyes, and presents the truths of the understanding in corresponding forms, which appear in Heaven in forms not unlike those (here) which are called objects, 'to see' = to understand. —². Ill.

294². 'That they may see, Know, attend, and understand together' (Is. xlii. 20) = Knowledges, understanding, perception and affection . . .

351. 'I saw' (Rev. vi. 1) = a manifestation of the states of those who are of the Church . . .

376³¹. 'They err among the seers' (Is. xxviii. 7) = they do not see truths.

—³². 'The seers' (Is. xxix. 10) = the intelligent ; and, abstractedly, intelligence. 577⁷.

391. 'To see' (ver. 9) = to make manifest.

416. 'After this I saw' (Rev. vii. 1) = a new perception concerning the state of Heaven.

529. 'To see and hear' (Rev. viii. 13) = to open the understanding to perceive. Ex.

588. 'To see' (Rev. ix. 20) = to understand truth.

624⁷. 'Many . . . have desired to see the things which ye see, and have not seen them ; and to hear . . .' (Matt. xiii. 17). . . 'To see,' and 'hear' = to understand and to perceive ; here, the interior truths which proceed from the Lord ; for to understand and perceive these reforms man, when he also does them.

657. 'To see' = to know, perceive, and understand.

667. 'Upon those who saw them' (Rev. xi. 11) = those who could not endure their presence.

671. 'Their enemies saw them' (ver. 12) = Knowledge and acknowledgment with those who are interiorly against the goods and truths of the Word. 'To see' = to understand ; consequently, to Know and acknowledge.

759⁵. In Heaven nothing is acknowledged as truth except what is seen, that is, understood ; for the light of Heaven is such that, from it, truths appear before the understanding of the mind as do the objects of the world before the sight of the eye ; and therefore those who (here) have seen truths merely from the sight of a blind faith, when carried into Heaven to the Angels, see nothing at all . . . and become stupid as to the understanding . . .

768⁸. 'All that see them' (Is. lxi. 9) = illustration.

783². Thousands of cohorts of evil Spirits can be led, coerced, conquered, and dispersed by one Angel by truths from the Lord ; and this merely by sight from a directing at them of the will.

831⁴. The spiritual Angels do not admit any truth into the memory, and thence into the understanding, unless they see it ; for the Angels in that Heaven see truths from the light of truth, thus from illustration from the Lord ; for truths in the Heavens are spiritual objects, which appear more clearly before the Angels, than natural objects do before men. Therefore they do not know that faith is anything but an acknowledgment of truth, because they see that it is truth . . . (Thus) intellectual sight with them is spiritual sight.

832⁴. Thus man, in order for his love to become spiritual, must see his truths, that is, apprehend them with the understanding. If you say that spiritual truths cannot be seen . . . while man is in the world ; know, that he who loves truth from truth, that is, because it is truth, can see them, and those which he does not see (here), he sees in Heaven. The love itself of truth receives the light of Heaven, which illustrates the understanding . . .

904. 'I saw' (Rev. xiv. 14) = a prediction about . . . 'To see' involves the things which he saw.

1080². The sight of man's thought, which is called the understanding, corresponds to the sight of his eyes ; and therefore from the light and flame of the eyes appears the quality of the thought from the understanding. The sight of the eye is a correspondence . . . and the action of the understanding into the eye . . . is an influx.

1081³. 'To see' = to understand and believe.

1100^e. Be it known that all the truths of the Word . . . can be seen with the understanding ; in Heaven spiritually ; in the world rationally ; for an understanding truly human is the sight itself of them ; for it is separated from what is material : and, when it has been separated, it sees truths as clearly as the eye sees objects : it sees truths as it loves them ; for, as it loves them, it is illustrated. From the fact that they see truths, the Angels have wisdom ; and therefore when anyone says to an Angel that something is to be believed although it is not understood, the Angel replies, Do you suppose me to be insane, or yourself a god whom I am to believe ? If I do not see it, it may be what is false from Hell.

[E.] 1119^e. 'To see the Son' (John vi.40) = to see Him in spirit.

Ath. 166^e. In the Spiritual World, no one receives anything which he does not see . . .

J. (Post.) 6. The English . . . have an interior sight as to religion ; but they have a receptive sight, but not an active one so that they themselves see, until it has been confirmed with them by an illustrious leader. Their interior sight is called an intuitive receptive and affirmative sight, and also a confirmative one . . . Therefore they are in the middle ; for those are in the middle who are in interior light.

De Verbo 64. An Angel can see a Spirit grosser than himself : but this Spirit cannot see an Angel purer than himself. Ex.

D. Wis. x. 4^e. The organ of sight corresponds to intelligence.

C. 202^e. Say (this to any common person who has some rationality) and he will see it clearly ; but say the same to anyone who has confirmed himself in faith alone . . . and he will not see it ; for falsities have closed the rational sight of the latter ; but not that of the former.

5 M. 2. I looked into the eyes (of the satan), and behold, their pupils sparkled as with rays of light ; afterwards they became opaque, and the irises green, and finally were seen to be covered with a coat, by which the whole crystalline lens in the pupil appeared like a film. I then asked him whether he saw anything ; and he said, I see clearly, and more things than before. . . I said . . . Perhaps you see something from a fatuous light within . . . and I asked him, What are you thinking from your light ? He said, I am thinking in clear vision that a beast thinks as rationally as a man : that God is nature, and nature God ; also, that religion is vanity . . . I then advanced some genuine truths, which before, when in externals, he had seen and confirmed. As soon as he heard them, he inverted his eyes, acknowledged and turned them over in his mind, and, with a certain border of the coat which covered the pupil, he sucked in those truths, and injected them into his fatuous light, and then he called those truths falsities.

Seed. Semen.

Sow. Seminare.

Semination. Seminatio.

Seminal. Seminalis.

See INSEMINATE, SEED-TIME, SEMINARY, & SOW-semen.

A. 29. 'The herb yielding-seminificans-seed' (Gen. i.11). When man is so prepared that he can receive heavenly seeds . . . the Lord causes . . . something more useful, which again seeds-proseminat, and is called (as above) ; and at last something good, which is called 'the tree bearing fruit, in which is its seed' . . .

—². That it is the Lord who sows ; that the seed is His Word ; and that the earth is man. III.

43. Fruit which is of love has seed, by which it multiplies itself.

55³. See SELF, here.

57. 'The herb yielding-seminificans-seed' (ver.29) = all truth which regards use.

—. 'Fruit' = what the Lord gives to the celestial man ; and 'seed' from which is fruit, is what He gives to the spiritual man.

250. 'The seed of the serpent' (Gen.iii.15) = all infidelity ; 'the seed of the woman' = faith in the Lord. 254, 255, Ex. and III.

254. 'Seed' = what produces and is produced, or what begets and is begotten.

255^e. 'Seed' = faith.

256. Not only faith is called 'the seed of the woman,' but also the Lord Himself . . .

268. When man has been regenerated, he is called . . . 'ground,' because heavenly seeds have been implanted in him. . . It is the external man, that is, its affection and memory, in which are implanted the seeds of good and truth ; and not the internal man. Ex.

310. Thus celestial seeds were inseminated in them, and their descendants had in them seed from a celestial origin. Seed from a celestial origin is such that love rules the whole mind, and makes (the will and understanding) one mind . . .

—². With those in whom there is not celestial seed, but spiritual seed, as with . . . men now, there is no love . . . but faith is possible . . .

437. 'God hath appointed me another seed instead of Abel' (Gen.iv.25) = that He gave another faith.

653². Then first can be inseminated celestial seeds, which are seeds of charity. The seeds of charity can never be sown in ground where falsities reign, but where truths do.

726. 'To vivify seed upon the faces of the whole earth' (Gen.vii.3) = the truths of faith ; (for) by this Church seed was vivified : 'seed' = faith.

880. This is like seed which is cast into the earth in winter time . . . So with spiritual seed . . .

932. 'Seedtime and harvest' (Gen.viii.22) = the man who is to be regenerated, and thence the Church. . . Man is compared, in the Word, to a 'field,' thus to a seedtime, and the Word of the Lord to 'seed' . . . It here treats of every man : that there will never be lacking to him the inseminating of seed by the Lord, whether he is within the Church, or without it . . . Without seed inseminated by the Lord, man cannot do a whit of good. All the good of charity, even with the gentiles, is seed from the Lord . . .

1025. 'With your seed after you' (Gen.ix.9) = those who are being created anew. . . 'Seed,' in the literal sense, = posterity ; but, in the internal, faith ; and as there is no faith except where there is charity, charity itself is meant by 'seed' . . . Wherever there is charity . . . there is seed; for celestial seed is charity.

— The 'seed' of God = faith, (that is to say) the charity from which is faith.

—². So 'the seed' of Abraham, of Isaac, or of Jacob, = love, or charity. Ex.

—³. Thus when 'seed' is mentioned in the Word . . . by 'seed' the Angels understand charity . . . And when 'the seed' of Abraham, etc. is mentioned, they understand not their descendants, but all in the universe . . . with whom there is celestial seed, or charity; nay, the interior Angels perceive love itself, abstractedly, which is celestial seed. 1416³. —⁴.

—⁴. That 'seed' = love, and also every one who has love. Ill.

—⁹. 'A seed of truth' (Jer.ii.21) = the charity, or faith of charity (of the Spiritual Church).

—¹¹. 'A seed of holiness . . .' (Is.vi.13) = remains which are holy.

—^e. Those in His Kingdom, being regenerated from love, are called 'the seed of the blessed of Jehovah' (Is.lxv.23).

1123. 'The seed of the woman . . .' a most ancient saying.

1438. The celestial things of love (were) first imbued; thence, as from their seed, all things were fructified. The seed itself in Him was celestial . . . and He was the only one who had this seed . . . All men have no other seed than what is filthy and infernal . . . therefore unless they receive from the Lord new seed . . . they must be accursed to Hell.

1447. 'To thy seed will I give this land' (Gen.xii.7) = that celestial things should be given those who would have faith . . . 'Seed' = faith in the Lord. 1608.

1610. 'Seed as the dust' (Gen.xiii.16) = multiplication immeasurable.

—². As to the Human essence, He is called 'the seed of the woman.'

1798. 'To me Thou hast not given seed' (Gen.xv.3) = no internal to the Church. 'Seed' = love and faith.

1803. 'Seed as the sand' (Is.xlviii.19) = good.

1810. 'So shall thy seed be' (Gen.xv.5) = the heirs of the Lord's Kingdom. 'Seed' = love and the derivative faith; or, what is the same, those in love and faith, both Angels and men. 1865.

1843. 'Thy seed shall be a sojourner' (ver.13) = charity and faith rare.

1937^e. All good and truth must be inseminated in freedom . . . there is no other soil in which the seed can grow.

1940. 'I will multiply thy seed' (Gen.xvi.10) = the fructification of the rational man . . . 'Seed' = love and faith; here, to 'multiply seed' = the fructification of the celestial things of love in the Rational . . .

1941. With the man in good . . . the seed is not so multiplied by the Lord (here); but in the other life incredibly; for so long as man is (here) the seed is in corporeal soil . . . but when this is put off . . . the seed is set loose, and grows, as the seed of a tree is wont to do when it rises from the soil . . . For all knowledge, intelligence, and wisdom, and their delights . . . are thus multiplied . . . to eternity, from the smallest seed, as the Lord teaches of the grain of mustard.

2019. 'Thy seed after thee' (Gen.xvii.7) = those who have faith in Him. 2023, 2027, 2034, 2038, 2085.

2023. 'Seed' = the faith of charity. 2027, 2038, 2670, 2853.

2049. 'A stranger not of thy seed' (Gen.xvii.12) = those outside the Church.

2085. 'Seed' here = those who have the faith of love, that is, have love to the Lord, consequently the celestial . . . for it treats of seed from Isaac . . . 2666.

2343³. The good of charity is the very soil of the seeds of faith. 3324². —⁴.

2666. 'In Isaac shall seed be called to thee' (Gen.xxi.12) = from the Divine Human is all salvation to those in good. 2670.

— The spiritual also are seed, but from the son of the handmaid. Ill.

2813⁴. 'The good seed' = truth.

2826⁶. 'The seed of Israel' = the Spiritual of the Church, or the good and truth of faith.

2848. 'Thy seed' (Gen.xxii.17) = the spiritual who in the good of faith are saved by the Divine Human.

— 'Seed' = the faith of charity, or, those of the human race who are in it, that is, the spiritual; for these are called 'seed,' and 'the sons of the kingdom,' in Matt.xiii.37,38.

2851. 'Thy seed shall inherit the gate of thine enemies' (Gen.xxii.17) = that charity and faith shall succeed in the place where before were evil and falsity. 3187.

2853. 'In thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed' (ver.18) = the Salvation of all who are in good. 3380.

2971. Good is what receives the truths of faith, which are called 'seeds.' 3030⁴.

3038. 'To thy seed will I give this land' (Gen.xxiv.7) = the Divine truth pertaining to the Lord's Human. 'Seed' = the faith of charity, and those in it; and, as all the good and truth of faith are from the Lord, it is the Divine truth itself which is meant by 'seed' in the supreme sense.

3187. 'Seed' = those called the spiritual: thus, in a universal sense, all who constitute His Spiritual Kingdom, or this Kingdom itself; for 'seed' = charity and faith, consequently those who are in charity through faith, who are the spiritual.

3310². 'The seed' (Matt.xiii.) = the Lord's Word, thus the truth of faith.

3324². Such as is the ground, such is the reception of the seeds, that is, of the truths of faith. Truths may be stored up in the memory, like seeds in a pod . . . but they do not become the man's until the ground has been prepared . . .

3373. 'To thy seed' (Gen.xxvi.3) = truth . . . thus the truth which is from the Lord's Divine, which is 'thy seed.'

— In the internal sense, by 'seed' is not meant any posterity from Isaac; but all who are the Lord's sons, thus the sons of His Kingdom, or, what is the same, those who are in the good and truth which are from the Lord; and, as these are 'seed,' it follows that the good and truth itself from the Lord is 'seed;' for thence are the sons; and therefore the truths themselves which are from the Lord are called 'the sons of the kingdom,' in Matt. 'He who sows the good seed is the Son of Man; the field is the world; the seed is the sons of the kingdom.'

[A. 3373]^e. 'The seed of Abraham,' etc. . . means all who are the Lord's seed, that is, who are in the good and truth of faith in Him.

— That from the Lord alone is heavenly seed, that is, all good and truth. Refs.

3378. 'I will multiply thy seed' (ver.4)=increase of truths. 3379. 344^o.

3404. 'Isaac sowed in that land' (ver.12)=interior truths appearing to the Rational. . . 'To sow,' in the supreme sense, = the Divine truth which is from the Lord who is the sower; in the internal, the truth and good with man which is thence.

3648. Unless the Spiritual from the Lord continually acted into their primitive forms which are in their seeds, they would never vegetate; but the forms there are such that they do not receive anything of life. It is from this influx that they have in them an image of the Eternal and the Infinite, as is evident from the fact that they are in the continual endeavour to propagate their kind. . . This is in every seed.

3671. 'Seed' = the good and truth of faith.

— It is with good and truth as with seeds and soil: interior good is like seed which produces, but not except in good soil: exterior good and truth is like the soil in which it is produced: the seed, which is interior good and truth, can in no other way be rooted. Hence it is that the Rational must be regenerated first of all—for the seeds are there—and then the Natural, in order to serve as soil. . .

—². Perceptions of good and truth thence are like seeds. . . scientifics and works are like the soil; and, when man is affected with scientifics which confirm good and truth. . . the seeds there are as in their soil, and grow. . .

3703¹³. Their goods and truths in the Church are called 'the seed which God chose' (Deut.x.15).

3706. 'Seed' = the truth of faith. 3710.

3707. 'Thy seed shall be as the dust of the earth' (Gen.xxviii.14)=that Divine truth natural should be as natural good. 'Seed' = truth, hence 'the seed of Jacob' = Divine truth natural.

3855². Like seeds, which are more perfect within than without. . . The external forms thence produced can be easily injured; but not so the inmosts of the seeds, which are in a more interior and perfect nature.

3941. The seeds sown—seruntur—in a field = things which are of good and truth.

4259. 'Thy seed as the sand of the sea' (Gen.xxxii.12) = fructification and multiplication. . . 'Seed' = the faith of charity, and also charity itself.

4266^e. Would be like easting seed—sementem—into water or sand.

4577. 'To thy seed after thee I will give the land' (Gen.xxxv.12) = to Divine truth Divine good appropriated. 'Seed' = the truth of faith; in the supreme sense Divine truth. . . (Thus) 'to thy seed after thee' = Divine truth appropriated to Him. . .

4686^e. 'To carry a easting of seed' (Ps.cxxvi.6) = instruction in truths.

4835^e. 'Raise up seed to thy brother' (Gen.xxxviii.8) = lest the Church perish. 'Seed' = truth from good, or the faith of charity.

4904. For seed is the truth of faith, and conception is reception.

5056². Such are afterwards received into. . . the province of the seminal vesicles. For in the vesicles is collected the seed with a suitable serum with which it is combined, and by the combination is rendered fit so that after it has been emitted it is resolved in the neck of the uterus, and thus serves for conception; and there is in such a substance a conatus and as it were longing to perform use, and thus to put off the serum with which it is invested. Rep. 8847². D.875. 884.

5084². It is a fallacy. . . that from the first creation there has been impressed on seeds the quality of growing. 5116³.

5096. 'Seeds' (Matt.xiii.) = Divine truths.

5113⁵. 'The seed of the land' (Ezek.xvii.5) = the truth of the Church. E.281².

—⁸. 'The seed of peace' (Zech.viii.12) = good in the interior man. (=remains: those who are in truths of good. 5897⁷).

—^e. The man of the Celestial Church is regenerated by. . . seed implanted in the Voluntary; but the man of the Spiritual Church, by seed implanted in the Intellectual.

5115². Man when reborn, also begins from seed; and therefore by 'seed,' in the Word, is signified the truth which is from good.

5116². A representation of the eternal and infinite in seeds. J.13². W.60. 318, Des. P.56³. T.32³, Des.

5135⁷. 'Seed' = the truths which are of faith from charity.

6019. 'Jacob and all his seed with him' (Gen.xlvi.6) = natural truth and all the things of faith belonging thereto. . . 'Seed' = the faith of charity. 6022.

6125². Before (adult age) the good of love and truth of faith fall like seed into barren ground.

6139. 'Give seed' (Gen.xlvii.19) = influx of the good of charity and truth of faith.

6154. 'Lo seed for you, and ye shall sow—seratis—the ground' (ver. 23) = the good of charity and truth of faith which were to be implanted. 'Seed' = truth from good, thus both.

6158. 'For seed of the field' (ver. 24) = for the nourishment of the mind. 'Seed' = truth and good, thus faith and charity.

6233. 'I will give this land to thy seed' (Gen.xlviii.4) = the Lord's Kingdom to those in this good and truth. 'Seed' = the truth of faith and the good of charity.

6264. 'God hath made me see thy seed' (ver. 11) = . . . the good and truth thence.

6297. 'His seed shall be a fulness of nations' (ver. 19) = that the truth which is of faith shall reign. 'Seed' = faith and charity; here, faith, because it is predicated of Ephraim.

7056. Good is the soil; truths are the seeds.

7112^e. But seeds, barley, wheat, and the like, = interior truths and goods.

7131. Seeds, in the Word, = truths and goods.

7966^e. This is represented (there) as a tree . . . its leaves are truths; its fruits are the goods of truth; its seeds are goods themselves, from which are all the rest.

8326². Man is compared to 'a tree' . . . and its seeds from which are new trees, to truths which are from good, or to the faith which is from charity.

8505. Man is called 'a field' because he receives the truths of faith, which are seeds, and produces the fruits of the seeds, which are goods.

8521. 'Like coriander seed, white' (Ex.xvi.31) = the truth therein that it was pure. 'Seed' = the truth of faith.

8603². Still more interior (in fruits) are the seeds, which are encompassed with cases, and the seeds themselves with membranes; and underneath these is the interior flesh (or pulp), in which is the first form, like a soul, from which again come new trees . . . The first form, which is the inmost one in the seed . . . must be successively opened . . .

9258². This is like the germ in the seed of a fruit; all the fibres (of which) look to this germ, which they nourish and form by the percolating sap; but after it has been formed, the fibres retreat, and convey the sap from the seed. Then the pulp of the fruit rots, and serves the germ for soil; and the case is the same with the seed itself. . . The germ in plants corresponds to the good in man; the seed itself to the internal things; and the pulp of the fruit around the seed, to the external things. (The correspondence of this with regeneration.) This is meant by: 'the Kingdom of the heavens is like a grain of mustard . . . which is the least of all seeds . . .'

9262⁵. 'Seed' = the truth of faith. Refs.

9294. 'To sow' = to instruct.

9295². 'The seeds which are sown in a field' = the truths of faith which are implanted in good.

—⁴. 'Good seed' (Matt.xiii.37) = truths of faith from the Lord. (= Divine truth. 9807⁸.)

—^e. 'Seed of Sihor' (Is.xxiii.3) = scientific truth.

9666². Seeds are in a more perfect state than the pulp outside them; (for) when the pulp rots, the seeds remain entire. So in the seeds—the germ within them is in a more perfect state than the parts outside it . . .

10030⁵. 'The seed of man' (Dan.ii.43) = truth of faith from proprium; thus truth falsified and adulterated by application to evils from a looking to self and the world. (= the truth of the Word. R.913^e. M.79.)

10181³. The inmosts of a seed (are in a degree discrete from) its exteriors.

10249. 'To him and to his seed, to their generations' (Ex.xxx.21) = all who receive the things which proceed from the Lord, thus who are being regenerated by Him. 'Seed' = those who are born from the Lord . . .

—². 'The seed of Aaron,' in special, = those in the Celestial Kingdom; and 'generations,' those in the Spiritual Kingdom.

— . That 'seed,' sons, etc. = those who are in love and faith in the Lord; and, in the abstract, the goods of love and truths of faith. Ill.

—⁴. 'Seed of man' (Jer.xxxi.27) = the internal good of these Churches; 'seed of beast,' their external good. E.280⁷. (Compare E.433²⁵. 768⁴.)

—⁵. 'Seed of David' = those who have been regenerated by the Lord; and, in the abstract, those things with them which are from the Lord, which are the truths of faith and the goods of charity.

—⁶. 'Seed' = those who are regenerate, thus those who are of the Church; in the abstract, the things which make a regenerate man, or which make the Church with man, which are faith and charity from the Lord.

—⁸. 'Seed,' in the opposite, = those who are against the things of the Church, thus who are in evils and falsities; and, in the abstract, evils and falsities. Ill.

10445. 'I will multiply your seed as the stars' (Ex.xxxii.13) = goods and truths, and their Knowledges.

— . 'Seed,' when predicated of Heaven and the Church, = the good and truth there. 10446.

10527. 'I will give it to thy seed' (Ex.xxxiii.1) = to those who are in the good of love and truths of faith from the Lord.

H. 111. Foods, especially those from the seeds of harvest, correspond to affections of good and truth . . .

567³. Natural heat . . . merely disposes seeds into their natural forms, by expanding and opening them, in order that the influx from the Spiritual World may act as the cause (of vegetation) there.

S. 66. A tree extracts . . . the purest sap for its seeds.

Life 90. Truth is meant by 'seed in a field' (in the parable of the sower). 'The sower-seminans' = the Lord; 'the seed' = His Word, thus the Truth: 'the seed upon the way' = with those who do not care for Truth; 'the seed upon the stony places' = with those who care for Truth, but not for its own sake, thus not interiorly; 'the seed in the midst of thorns' = with those who are in the concupiscences of evil; and 'the seed in good ground' = with those who love the Truths which are in the Word from the Lord, and do them from Him, thus the fruits.

W. 60. That the Divine is in each and all things of the universe actually . . . may be seen from the wonderful faculty which is in every seed. Des.

61². For as soon as a seed falls into the bosom of the earth, it cherishes it, and from all sides gives from itself resources-copius, in order that it may germinate, and present itself in a form representative of man.

204^e. Unless there were such a pre-eminent perfection in prior and simple things, neither man nor animal could come forth, and afterwards subsist, from seed; nor could the seeds of trees and shrubs vegetate; for the more prior and simple a thing is, because it is more perfect, the more exempt it is from injury.

[W.] 207. There is a like (simultaneous) order of discrete degrees in every seed.

269. For the seed which is from the father is the first receptacle of life, but such a one as it was with the father; for it is in the form of his love, and the love of everyone is like itself in the greatest and in the least, and there is in it a conatus into the human form . . .

310². That there is such a conatus . . . in the substances and matters of earths, is evident from the fact that seeds of every kind, opened by means of heat even to their inmost, are impregnated by the most subtle substances—which must be from a spiritual origin—and by this are in the power of conjoining themselves with use, from which is their Prolific, and then, by conjunction with matters from a natural origin, are in power to produce their forms, and then send them forth as from a womb, that they may come into the light, and thus germinate forth and grow.

312. The first production from these earths, when they were still recent, and in their simplicity, was the production of seeds. The first conatus in them could not be anything else.

314. The primes (of plants) are seeds . . . and, through the bark, which is the ultimate of the stems, they tend to seeds . . .

—². In all their progression there is the end of producing fruits and seeds, which are uses.

315. The heat, light, and atmospheres of the natural world only open seeds, keep their productions in expansion, and induce matters on them, which fix them; but this not by forces from their own sun . . .

316. (So in the animal kingdom) a body is formed from seed introduced into a womb or ovum, which body is the ultimate of the seed; and this body . . . produces new seeds. (The parallel with the vegetable kingdom.)

P. 3. The Prolific is not from the seed, nor from the sun . . . but is in the seed from God the Creator . . .

144². An adulterer commingles his life with that of the husband; for a man's life is in his seed.

211. 'The seed of the woman' = the Lord.

277³. In the seed is the soul; for impregnation is effected by it; and it is that which is clothed with a body by the mother. The seed is the first form of the love in which the father is: it is the form of his reigning love with the proximate derivations, which are the inmost affections of that love. T. 92.

296². (This conversion can only be done by) eradicating evil from its seed, and implanting good seed instead thereof.

321⁷. Like the Prolific in a seed, which accompanies it within even to new seed.

332³. The procreations of wisdom from love are like seeds . . .

R. 565. 'The remnant of her seed' (Rev. xii. 17) = . . . novitiates who receive . . .

—³. 'The seed of the woman,' here, = those who are of the New Church and are in the truths of its doctrine. Ill. E. 768, Ill.

936. By the seeds (of a tree) are signified the ultimates and primes of man.

M. 127. Semination corresponds to the power of truth.

183⁴. Love and wisdom together with use . . . propagate man; for in the seed of a man is his soul in a perfect human form, covered over with substances from the purest things of nature, from which (substances) is formed a body in the womb.

220. Virile semination is from a spiritual origin . . . being from the truths of which the understanding consists. . . Nothing is received by males from the spiritual marriage . . . except truth, and that which relates to truth; and this, in its progress into the body is formed into seed; and hence it is that seeds, spiritually understood, are truths.

—². The masculine soul is truth . . . and therefore when the soul descends, truth descends . . . and, when this takes place, the entire soul forms itself, and clothes itself, and becomes seed; and this can be done thousands and thousands of times, because the soul is a spiritual substance. Ex.

245. Hence the soul (in spite of conjugal disjunction) is still procreated, but in the descent, when it becomes seed, it is veiled over with such things as are of his natural love. From this springs hereditary evil.

389². The protection of seeds by shells (is analogous to the love of infants).

T. 94². (Otherwise) all the noble seed of the Church would be turned into ignoble seed; as the seed of an olive into the seed of a pine, etc.

103². For in the seed of everyone . . . there is a graft or offset of the soul of the father, in its fulness, within a certain envelope of elements from nature: by these its body is formed in the womb . . .

290². That there is such an infinity of spiritual seeds, or of Truths, in the Word. Ex.

347². Faith without Truths, is like seed bereaved of its medullary substance . . .

—³. Like one who scatters seed . . . and does not harrow it in . . .

348. Faith is (then) like barren seed . . .

374³. In the seed of a tree lies hidden as it were the end, intention, and purpose to produce fruits: in these things the seed corresponds to the will . . .

470³. Unless there were spiritual substances together with the material ones, no seed could be impregnated from the inmosts, and grow . . .

499². From this sphere about every particle of earth the inmost of each seed is impregnated, and the Prolific vegetates. Ex. 585². 785². D. 1847.

584. The seed of man is conceived interiorly in the understanding, and is formed in the will, and is thence transferred into the testes, where it clothes itself with a natural covering . . .

Ad. 1008. On seeds. 1009. 1011.

D. 1436. On the insemination and rooting of the seeds of faith.

1440. The seeds are innumerable . . . but the universal and one only seed, in which all the rest are ordinated . . . is that the Lord alone rules the universe . . .

2628^e. For everything is like a seed from which grows a tree.

3122. I have sometimes perceived the odour of human seed: it is from those who relate to the seminal vesicles, and to the spermatic vessels.

4372. When I was collecting seeds, the angelic Spirits thought about the last times, when the good seeds should be separated from the evil. So in all other things.

6110⁶³. The seed dispersed on all sides through the body, is received by the soul which is in the whole body, thus in the fibres and vessels on all sides, and then delicates the wife . . .

—⁶⁸. What is purest of touch causes that the interiors, which are the seed, are excited. Ex.

E. 31². 'The seed sown in a field are the sons of the kingdom'=the truths from good from the Lord with man. 48².

176². 'The seed of man'=the Divine truth which is in the Word. 237^e. 411⁴. 1029⁵.

205⁴. 'The seed of David'=those in truths from good from the Lord; or, truths from good.

223¹⁶. 'Seed'=truth. 600¹². 740⁶.

340²². 'Seed'=Divine truth . . . 401⁸. 594⁹. 632⁶. 683⁶. 684²⁰. 768⁵. —⁶. —⁸. —⁹. —¹¹. —¹³. —¹⁴. —¹⁵. —²⁰. 911⁶. —¹⁷.

374¹⁵. 'The good seed in a field'=the truths of the Church which are from good: 'to sow'=to inflow and receive, thus to instruct; 'the man who sowed'=the Lord by the Word where are all the truths of the Church.

401³⁵. 'The seeds'=truths from the Word, or those which man receives from the Lord.

405¹⁶. 'Seed from Jacob'=the Knowledges of good and truth.

422⁵. 'Their seed'=all of that Church.

426². 'The good seed'=the good.

433²¹. 'Seed'=charity and faith.

—²⁵. 'To sow . . . '=to reform . . .

543¹¹. 'The seed of the field'=the truth of the Word.

644¹². 'Seed'=the truth of the Word.

—¹³. 'Seed'=the truth of doctrine. 768¹². —¹⁹. —²¹. —²⁵.

695¹³. 'Seed of peace'=the truth of the Church which . . . protects against the Hells . . .

768¹⁸. 'His seed' (Jer. xxii. 30) = infernal falsity. —²³. —²⁴.

—²⁵. 'The seed of evil-doers' (Is. xiv. 20) = direful falsity of evil.

—²⁶. 'Seed given to Moloch'=such infernal falsity.

911³. 'The man sowing good seed in his field'=the Lord as to Divine truth, which is the Word, in the Church. . . 'To sow tares'=to insinuate and implant falsities.

1005². That adultery is Hell . . . everyone may conceive from the commixture of diverse seeds in the womb of one woman. Man's seed is that in which lies hidden the inmost of his life, and thence the beginning of a new one, which, from this, is holy . . . J.(Post.)341. De Conj.37.

—^e. But in chaste marriages the man's life through the seed adds itself to that of the wife. Hence an inmost conjunction, from which they become one flesh . . .

1159³. 'The rain of thy seed' (Is. xxx. 23) = the multiplication of truth.

1203². Plants resemble the animal kingdom in that they come forth from seed . . .

1209³. It matters not that continuations (of creation) are effected by seeds: it is still the same creative force which produces. Angelic Idea.

1211⁴. In the inmost Heaven there are fruits and seeds of pure gold; in the middle one of silver; and in the lowest one of copper . . . All these are growths from the earths there . . . But nothing is produced there from seed sown, but from seed created; and creation there is instantaneous . . .

D. Wis. iii. 2. Nothing in nature comes forth except from seed . . .

viii. 5. Seed is the first of a tree . . . and it returns to (seed) . . . Seed also is the first of an animal . . . and, when it matures, it has seed in it.

De Conj. 37. The man's seed, as to its Spiritual, and also as to its interior Natural, adds itself to the body of the woman . . .

Can. Trinity iv. 4. The Divine truth, which is the Word, in which is the Divine good, was the seed from the Father, from which the Human was conceived. From the seed is the soul, and through the soul is the body.

5. The spiritual origin of all human seed is truth from good.

Docu. 302. I. 6. There is not a single object in the mineral kingdom which does not give out an odour, and, indeed, in the form of an impalpable powder, by which seeds are impregnated.

Seedtime. Sementis.

A. 932. See SEED.

E. 610². 'Seedtime' describes and signifies the instauration of the Church.

—⁶. 'Seedtime and harvest'=the state of the Church as to the implantation of truth and good, and as to the fructification of good thence.

Seek. Conquirere.

See INQUIRE—Disquirere.

N. 180. He seeks reasons in himself.

W. 241². The love seeks means in the understanding.

D. Min. 4735. Confirmations sought.

Seek. Quaerere.

See under INQUIRE, and QUESTION.

A. 1008. 'To require the life of man' (Gen. ix. 5) = to avenge profanation.

3058². 'Those who seek water' (Is. xli. 17) = those who long to be instructed in truths.

[A.] 4367. 'Nay, I pray' (Gen. xxxiii. 10) = the origin of affection.

4718. 'What seekest thou?' (Gen. xxxvii. 15) = foresight.

5610. 'Of my hand thou shalt require him' (Gen. xliii. 9) = that it shall not be separated.

6513. 'Speak, I pray' (Gen. i. 4) = solicitation.

6563. 'Remit, I pray' (ver. 17) = supplication.

7021. 'Those who seek thy soul' (Ex. iv. 19) = those who endeavour to destroy the life.

7043. 'To seek to kill' (ver. 24) = not to receive.

H. 563². Reduced to seek alms.

W. 342. This shall now be [a matter] of investigation-questionis. T. 796². De Just. 59.

P. 101^e. It is not asked, What has thy faith been . . .

R. 429. 'Men shall seek death' (Rev. ix. 6) = that they want the understanding to be closed up in the things of faith. . . 'To seek' is predicated of the understanding; and 'to desire,' of the will. E. 550.

D. 4676. Do not care for these intricate questions.

E. 386¹⁹. 'Those who seek Jehovah' (Ps. xxxiv. 10) = those who are therefore loved by the Lord.

706²⁴. Occurs. 750¹².

Seem. See under SEE.

Seethe. Elixare.

A. 8496. 'To seethe' (Ex. xvi. 23) = preparation for the conjunction of truth. 8497.

10681. 'Thou shalt not seethe a kid in its mother's milk' (Ex. xxxiv. 26) = that the good of innocence of a posterior state is not to be commingled with the truth of innocence of a prior state. 3519⁷.

Coro. 47^e. Occurs.

Segment. See PIECE.

Seir. Seir.

A. 1673. 'The Horites in mount Seir' (Gen. xiv. 6) = false persuasions which are from the love of self. 1675. —⁶, Ex.

1675. Why the Horites were expelled from mount Seir.

—³. 'Mount Seir,' and 'Paran' = the things of His Human essence, namely, the celestial things of love. Ill.

2714². 'Seir' is said as to celestial love; 'mount Paran,' as to spiritual love.

—³. The Lord's Divine Human is signified by 'mount Seir.'

3322². 'Edom,' and 'Seir,' the 'inheritance' (Num. xxiv. 18) = the Divine good of the Lord's Divine Natural.

—⁹. 'Seir,' in the opposite. Ill.

3527². Mount Seir, where Esau dwelt, has a similar signification, namely, what is shaggy; and, on this account, there was a mountain by which there was an ascent to Seir, which was called 'the smooth mountain' (Josh. xi. 17; xii. 7) which was representative of truth ascending to good.

4240. 'The land of Seir' (Gen. xxxii. 3) = celestial natural good. 'The land of Seir,' in the supreme sense, = the celestial natural good of the Lord; because mount Seir was the boundary of the land of Canaan on one side (Josh. xi. 16, 17), and all boundaries . . . represented ultimate things. —², Ill.

—³. 'The land of Seir,' in the relative sense, properly = the Lord's Kingdom with those outside the Church.

4384. 'Until I come unto my lord in Seir' (Gen. xxxiii. 14). . . 'Seir' = the conjunction of spiritual with celestial things in the Natural; that is, of the truth of faith with the good of charity. The good to which truth is conjoined in the Natural; and, in the supreme sense, the Lord's Divine Natural as to good conjoined with truth there, is what is properly signified by 'Seir' in the following passages. Ill.

4387. 'Esau returned on his way to Seir' (ver. 16) = the state of Divine natural good to which were adjoined the truths of good. . . 'Seir' = the conjunction of truth with good.

4645^e. 'Esau dwelt in mount Seir' (Gen. xxxvi. 8) = the truth of natural good.

4646. 'In mount Seir' (ver. 10) = the truths of good.

10134¹¹. 'Seir,' out of which the watchman 'calls' (Is. xxi. 11) = the illumination of the gentiles who are in darkness.

E. 594¹³. 'To go out of Seir . . .' (Judg. v. 4), when said of Jehovah, = the illumination of the gentiles by the Lord when He assumed the Human.

Seize. Arripere.

A. 1016³. What a man loves he freely seizes on . . . H. 479⁵.

1482. The knowledge He learned with avidity in early childhood.

1515. Sirens learn with avidity all things. 1983³. D. 4307.

5135². In childhood . . . man learns easily . . .

9188². Instead of these, they learned falsities with avidity. 10283⁹.

H. 352. They can learn with avidity falsity equally with truth. 464⁴. 479⁵.

M. 133. (An infant) seizes whatever comes to hand, and puts it into his mouth.

T. 377². Snatches fruit from the trees.

D. 4243^e. As soon as they perceive anything delightful, they seize it.

Seize. Corripere.

A. 1573⁶. They are seized with horror . . . 1740^e. 2132. 7193².

2057³. They are seized with anguish. H. 525^e.

E. 406¹¹. Occurs. 734². 850⁶.

Seize. Rapere.

See RAPACIOUS, and SPOIL-rapina.

A. 6441. See WOLF.

—². A lion also is a rapacious animal, of which it is said that he seizes spoil.

6442. 'He seizes in the morning' (Gen. xlix. 27) = . . . that when the Lord is present, there is a snatching and deliverance of the good. Ill.

9348⁴. 'To seize spoil, and devour men' = to destroy truths and goods. E. 280¹.

E. 728. 'Snatched up to God and His throne' (Rev. xii. 5) = protection by the Lord.

Selenite. Selennites. M. 443. T. 320².

Self. Se, Semet.

See under AS, FREE, HIMSELF-ipse, LEAD, LIFE, LOVE OF SELF, and PROPRIUM.

A. 9. The goods he (now) produces are inanimate, because he supposes [that they are] from self. 29, Ex. 39.

32². Those in love . . . perceive that . . . they have not a whit of love, life, and happiness from themselves.

39. For man, from himself, is dead.

42². Want to enter into the mysteries of faith from themselves.

47. At first man produces as if from himself.

55³. It is 'the least of all seeds,' because the man supposes that he does good from himself. What is from self is nothing but evil; but, as he is in a state of regeneration, there is something of good, but the least of all.

80. [The celestial man] is not allowed (to know what is good and true) from self and the world. 126.

105. No one can do what is good from self.

138. That he desired to be led by self and the world. Sig.

150. Evil Spirits (are thus compelled to) confess that they do not live from themselves.

—². Of myself-memet-I do not think the least thing. (From experience.)

—^e. By believing that he lives from himself, man appropriates all evil and falsity. 4151⁶. 4319. 6324. H. 547.

155². When Angels do not reflect, they know not but that they live from themselves.

189. Without the acknowledgment of self-sui-no one can be led to Heaven.

198. 'Not to eat of that tree' = not to think of the good and truth of faith from themselves . . .

204. 'To be as God' = that if they did so from themselves . . . they could lead themselves.

233². Man, of himself, cannot but do evil . . . yet the man does not do it . . . but still he is to blame. Ex.

546. Those who want to be innocent from themselves. Rep.

—^e. Such is the state of those who believe that they are spiritual from themselves, or that they can have faith from themselves.

552. Angelic Spirits made a beautiful candelabrum, as they supposed from themselves. . . I told them that they had invented and formed nothing from themselves . . . Being then illustrated, they confessed it was so. D. 2646.

557. Direful persuasions about the greatness of self. Tr.

735. If he believes in simplicity that he can do good from himself . . .

874. At first they suppose that they do good and think truth from themselves . . . and the Lord leaves them so to think . . . But whatever man produces from self cannot be good, because it is from self, which is an impure fount . . . for he is always thinking about the merit and righteousness of self.

876². Whatever good a man supposes he does from self, returns to him; for it regards himself-ipsam. (Sig. by the return of the dove to Noah.) SS2, Ex.

904³. Man (supposes) that he thinks from himself; but has not the least of an idea from himself . . .

1044. Man, from himself, is in Hell. 1049.

1124. Said they could adore the Lord, but from themselves.

1153². Humiliation consists in the acknowledgment of self-sui: that with self there is nothing alive, or good . . . 2327². 2694^e.

1316. How self is substituted for the Lord.

— The sphere of one who regards himself in everything, appropriates everything to himself . . . thus all the delight of the Spirits around . . .

1321². As there is present a continual reflection upon self . . .

— Their very end being the worship of self . . . they acknowledge truth only so far as self is in it. 1322². 1326⁴.

1384. They perceive what is from the Lord, and what from self. Ex. 2882^e.

1386. So long as Spirits suppose that they lead themselves, that they think from themselves, and know, understand, and are wise from themselves, they cannot have perception.

1505. The sphere of one who has formed (a high) opinion of himself . . . Wherever he goes, looks at others, and speaks with them, he has an intuition of self . . . This forms a sphere. 1506, Examp. 1507.

1557². (Holiness with the Angels dwells in the acknowledgment) that they know nothing from themselves.

1661³. At first, every man . . . attributes to himself (the good and truth from which he combats), and also the power . . . This is permitted . . . Before regeneration, no one can know . . . that nothing of good and truth is from himself . . . The Lord supposed the same.

1712². Man must do good as from himself. D. 2733.

—^e. (Although) man does not live of himself, unless he appeared as if he lived from himself, he could not live at all.

1879^e. They were dispersed of themselves.

1909. When (the life of the internal man) inflows into affections which have self for their end . . . there results corporeal life.

—^e. If his end is self and the world, let him know that his life is infernal.

1953. No one can look into himself: there must be something higher . . .

2057³. As they exhale a filthy idea of self-sui, their delight is turned into a cadaverous stench, by which they are sensible of the Hell of self-sui.

[A.]2335². From himself, man does, thinks, and intends nothing but evil; and, from himself, rushes to Hell. 2410².

2371². They who strive to do good from themselves, because the Lord has so commanded, are those who at last receive this good. . . They are then averse to the merit of self.

2520⁴. Man does not live from self, does not do good from self, does not believe truth from self, does not think from self . . . and, what is more, those in Hell do not think from self . . .

2694³. When there is anxiety (even to despair) because they can do nothing from themselves, the Persuasive is broken.

—⁴. When they . . . perceive Hell in themselves . . .

2761⁴. The Divine Providence lest man should enter into the mysteries from self. Sig.

2882. (Argument from man's not doing good from himself.)

—^e. So far as it is from themselves, the Angels are not in happiness.

2883. The reason it is given to man to suppose that (good and truth) are from himself, is that they may become as his Own.

2886. No man, Spirit, or Angel can will and think from himself, but from others; nor these others from themselves, but from others again, and so on; thus every one from the Lord. 4319. 5986. From experience.

2891. (Man not a machine, although he does not act from himself.)

— . By all means men ought to think, will, and do good from themselves.

2892^e. He who believes that he rules himself is continually disquieted, is carried into cupidities . . . and causes (evils and falsities) to adhere to him.

2946. Not to want to be redeemed by the Lord, but by themselves-seipsis. Sig. and Ex.

— . At first . . . all believe that they are reformed by themselves . . . and are left in this state by the Lord; for otherwise they cannot be reformed; for if they were told (then) that they cannot do anything of good of themselves, nor think anything of truth of themselves . . . they would await an influx . . . Or they would suppose that nothing is imputed to them justly. Or that they were like machines . . . and therefore it is granted them to think, at that time, that what is good and true is from themselves-seipsis. 2960. 4145². 4151³.

2954². The spiritual are introduced through truth into good; but not into any will of good from themselves-sometipsis; because (this) has been destroyed with them.

3069². Truth is given gratis, so as not to be from self. Sig.

3417^e. An Angel has power from the Lord in proportion as he believes he has none from self.

3425². As with a man who is in opposition in himself . . . he sees what is of the internal man as opposed to himself . . .

3463³. He who acts from this precept . . . begins from himself, and . . . thinks of merit.

3570². If man studies the neighbour and the Lord more than self, he is in a state of regeneration; but if he studies self more . . . he is not.

3607. Privation of the life of truth from self. Sig. and Ex. 3610.

3701². (By hereditary evil) man, as to what is from himself, is nothing but evil . . . and, of himself, wills nothing of good . . .

— . Loving self above others . . . studying for self alone, and not for others except for the sake of self . . . he calls goods . . .

—⁴. Such ideas are (first) insinuated as are not quite contrary to those he has had: as that all love begins from self; that self is first to be regarded, and then others . . .

3743. Are indignant when told that they do not live from themselves.

—². Good cannot be appropriated to them, because they believe it is from themselves.

3769³. These loves have self for the end, which end kindles natural lumen, but extinguishes heavenly light; so that they see acutely the things of self and the world, but not a whit those of the Lord and His Kingdom . . .

3796². If affections of truth and good are for the sake of self and the world, they are not genuine . . .

—³. Sometimes it appears as if his ends were for self, when yet they are not; for man is such that in everything he reflects upon self . . . Let a man attend to the delight he perceives in himself from the praise and glory of self, and to that . . . from use separate from self. (This will show whether he is in genuine affection.)

3816. Good becomes no good when reward is thought of; for an end for the sake of self at once adjoins itself, (which) induces denial that it is from the Lord . . . and thus removes the influx . . .

3863¹⁴. Faith from self, or from man's proprium, is not faith; for it causes falsities to be seen as truths, and truths as falsities; and, if the man sees truths as truths, still he does not see them, because he does not believe; for he sees himself in them, and not the Lord.

3901⁵. See CHERUB.

3906². Has (then) a perception that good from proprium must regard self, thus the preference of self before others, consequently contempt for others, and a feeling of merit. (External and internal truth) cannot be conjoined until the intuition of self begins to cease, and the intuition of the neighbour begins to be felt.

3913². The natural man regards self and the world; but the spiritual man does not regard self and the world, except so far as conduces to promote uses in the Spiritual World.

—⁴. For man to become spiritual . . . ends for self and the world must be put off . . .

3938². Man believes that he is, and that from himself; when yet he is not from himself; but comes forth . . .

3993⁵. When anyone does good, not from the good of truth, he always wants to be recompensed; for he does it for the sake of self.

3994. The proprium of innocence is that he knows, acknowledges, and believes, with the heart, that nothing but evil is from self . . . Then the Lord inflows with good and truth, and insinuates into him a heavenly proprium . . . He is then in the annihilation of self, nay, in aversion for self, and thus in absence from self, and so is in a state of receiving the Divine of the Lord. Hence it is that the Lord inflows with good into a humble and contrite heart.

—². He who places merit in goods, acknowledges and believes that all good is from self; because in the goods he does he regards self, and not the Lord . . . Therefore such a one despises others, and even condemns them . . .

3996. That which is from self. Sig.

4044^e. There is not anything which can subsist from itself . . .

4104. The Lord acts from himself—se ipso.

4174. See MERIT.

4179. 'Reward,' predicated of the Lord, = from himself.

4215^e. For he who regards self as the end, and not as an end intermediate to good . . . is in evil.

4221. Did good to the neighbour for the sake of self . . . 4226. 5807^e.

—^e. Lot of those who regard themselves alone in everything. 5395.

4249³. Almost every man of the Church believes that all the truth and good . . . are from self, although he says otherwise . . . (and) would say that he feels his life in himself, and that he thinks from himself, and wills from himself. 4319. 10330².

4286². The Angels in the Middle Heaven are . . . in mutual love, which is such that one loves another more than himself; and, being such, they are in intelligence.

— . But in the First Heaven . . . they do not love others more than themselves, but as themselves.

4319². The evil who had confirmed themselves in the opinion that they live from themselves, and consequently that whatever they think, will, and act is from themselves . . . now said they believed; but were told that to know is not to believe . . .

4368⁴. (Such) when they hear that love towards the neighbour does not begin from self, rejoice; whereas (such) sharply defend the idea that it does begin from self. — .

4459⁴. Believing from affection that he has no power of himself, nothing of intelligence and wisdom of himself, and nothing of good and truth of himself, he is gifted with power, intelligence of truth, and wisdom of good . . . (Such are signified by 'the poor and needy.' 5008².)

4532. Lot of those who believe that they understand . . . from themselves.

4564³. (Such are shown) by living experience that, of themselves, they are nothing but evil.

4638⁹. They want to enter Heaven from works in which is . . . the life of self. Sig.

4750⁵. Only loves those whom he regards as one with himself; thus loves them in himself, and himself in them, solely for the sake of the end of self. 4776. 4997². 5132^e.

4948. Those who have studied nothing but the things of self and the world, have shut out all influx from Heaven . . .

4956^e. The essence of charity is . . . the acknowledgment of self as being evil and falsity . . .

—^e. The 'naked,' 'sick,' and 'bound' = those who acknowledge that there is nothing of good and truth in themselves; that there is nothing but evil in themselves; and that there is nothing but falsity in themselves.

5025³. The natural man rejects whatever he regards as separated from self, and accepts whatever he regards as conjoined with self . . .

5069^e. All evil is from themselves, that is, with themselves, from Hell.

5259. That which is exterior never thinks from itself. Ex.

5342². In adolescence, he begins to think from himself . . .

5378^e. In saying that they do not act from themselves, but from others, they relate to the peritoneum, which also is such.

5428³. Heavenly freedom is . . . to will nothing from self . . . nay, to think nothing from self . . . They are in trouble and grief if permitted to think, or will, from themselves.

5511. That man thinks nothing from himself . . . appears as hard to him who wants to think from himself . . .

—². Heaven and its joy begin in man when regard for self in the uses he does expires.

5557. Those who relate to the membranes . . . are passive forces; for they act nothing from themselves, but from others.

5639². Affection of good and truth not for the sake of self . . . is spiritual.

5651². For man to become spiritual, it is necessary for his Natural . . . to be able to do nothing from itself. Ex.

5660². Spirits (then) think that . . . if they cannot do good of themselves, nor believe truth of themselves, they should . . . await influx. They are permitted to (try it).

5664^a. That man may be gifted with a heavenly proprium, and heavenly freedom, he must do good as of himself, and think truth as of himself . . .

5749. That it is against the Divine law to claim it for themselves. Sig. and Ex. 5758.

5758. Spiritual theft is claiming for self the good and truth which are from the Lord. Tr. No one can be admitted into Heaven until he acknowledges in heart that nothing of good and truth is from himself . . . and that whatever is from himself is nothing but evil. Ex.

5985. A Subject thinks and speaks nothing from himself . . . 5986.

6138. When left to self, he is seized with grief and anxiety . . .

6144. Despair produces an effectual acknowledgment that nothing of truth and good is from themselves—ipsis, and that, from themselves, they are damned . . .

[A.] 6193². The Angels are in the manifest perception (that the influxes of good and truth are not from themselves); and love nothing more than not to think and will from themselves, but from the Lord; whereas evil spirits are angry if told that they do not think and will from themselves . . .

6201^e. Troops of such Spirits come from the world, and the influx from them with man is that he . . . should live for self and the world, and not for others, except in so far as they favour self and its pleasures.

6368. For man, from himself, is in Hell.

6388². Thought about recompense renders love impure; because they then think about themselves . . . how they may render themselves happy . . . Thus they turn love towards the neighbour into love towards self; and, in the same proportion joy and happiness . . . cannot be communicated to them; for they concentrate the influx of happiness . . . on self, and do not transmit it to others; and are thus like objects which . . . absorb the rays of light . . .

6469. The Angels perceive sweetness from this: that they do not think and will from themselves, but from the Lord: hence they have tranquillity, peace, and happiness.

6471. One who had instructed others that . . . man cannot think or will good from himself, when brought into a state in which he did not think and will from himself . . . said that he could not live so . . .

6481. The evil are permitted to believe that all things are of their own prudence . . . and their successes incite them more because they ascribe them to themselves.

6692². Those especially are prone to magic who . . . have trusted in themselves . . .

6852. Those who cry to the Lord for themselves alone . . . He hears, but does not aid them.

6938. For he who turns the ends to self, turns himself towards Hell; but he who turns the ends from self to the neighbour, turns himself towards Heaven.

6954. Man, from himself, looks only downwards, that is, to the world . . . because, from himself, he is in evil and falsity.

7367, 7368. The love of self reigns . . . when man does all things for the sake of himself and his . . . It is said for the sake of himself and his, because he with his, and his with him, make one . . . They regard themselves in him, and him in themselves.

7479. (Inhabitants of Mars) said that from themselves, they are devils . . .

7814. Man has been so created that he can look above self, and also . . . below self. To look above self is to look to the neighbour, one's country, the Church, and Heaven, especially to the Lord: to look below self is to look to the Earth, the world, and especially to self. 7815, Ex. 7816. 7817. 7818. 7820. 8604.

7817. He who turns the good and truth inflowing from the Lord to self, sees self and the world before himself, and the Lord with His good and truth he does not see, because they are behind him.

7821. To look above self is proper to man, but to look below self is proper to beasts; thus, in proportion as a man looks below self, he is a beast . . . and in proportion as he looks above self, he is a man . . .

8035. Those in the genuine affection of charity and faith believe that they will nothing of good from themselves, and understand nothing of truth from themselves.

8179². In temptations, man must combat as of himself, but still acknowledge and believe that it is of the Lord. Sig. and Ex. 8969, Ex.

8185². They who trust in themselves. Tr.

8271. Divine worship consists in the exaltation of the Lord relatively to self . . . Man is then in the state of receiving . . . the truth of faith and the good of charity . . . But if man exalts himself before the Lord, he closes the interiors of his mind . . .

8307². Man can abstain from evils from himself; but he cannot receive good from himself. The reason man can abstain from evils from himself, is that the Lord continually inflows into the will of man with this conatus . . .

8391. Man, from himself, is continually falling . . .

8478⁴. Those are not in the stream of Providence who trust in themselves alone, and attribute all things to themselves; for they are in the opposite. 8480.

8480. The abuse of Divine good: that they want to procure it from themselves, for themselves. Sig. and Ex. —^e. They who trust in themselves continually induce evil on themselves . . .

8505³. For he who acts from truth, leads himself . . .

8513². When man does good for the sake of self . . . he closes his interiors, and cannot be led . . . by the Lord; but is led by self . . . He who loves self more than the neighbour, leads himself . . . 8516^e.

8517^e. If the man were then to lead himself, even by truth, he would dissipate the state of peace.

8546. Spirits of Jupiter modestly replied that they suppose they can do good from themselves . . . saying that it is simpler to say so. It was given to reply that the Lord leaves those who live in simplicity and innocence to say so, provided they know that nothing of good comes from themselves-ipsis, but from the Lord.

8606. The faith which looks . . . to self and the world yields, because the man then fights from himself.

8636. No one can know these (spiritual truths) from themselves. Ex.

8676^e. (Man is) in a state of misery, because from himself he is wholly in evil and in Hell . . .

8700². When man, in this freedom, from himself desists from evil, the affection of truth and good is insinuated.

8705⁵. All who, from themselves, that is, from the flesh, think about God, think about Him without any terminated idea . . .

8719². Hence (the Angels) have the appearance that they act from themselves, but the perception that they do so from the Lord.

8906. That the things of the Lord are not to be attributed to self. Sig. and Ex.

8979. He does truth and good (merely) to be rewarded, and therefore in the truth and good he does there is the idea of self . . .

8988. Those who are in good . . . act from . . . the will, thus from themselves; for whatever is of the will with man is his proprium; for the esse of man's life is his will . . . 8990².

—². The Lord inspires good into the will, (which) appears to be from (the man) himself, thus from freedom.

8990². Those in truths of faith only . . . are relatively servants, because they do not act from themselves; because they have no good in themselves from which to act, but outside themselves . . .

8995⁴. (A regenerate man) when he looks to the Lord, holds himself as nothing, and also the world; and, if he regards himself as anything, it is that he may be able to serve the Lord. Previously, he had been in the contrary: when he looked to himself, he held the Lord as nothing . . .

9166⁷. 'To make one hair white' = to say that truth is truth from themselves; and 'to make one hair black' = to say that falsity is falsity from themselves.

9210². They who regard themselves and the world in the first place, cannot see what is just and good, because they are in the intuition of self and of gain.

9213^e. He who binds and enkindles another to confirm his own truths, causes the other not to think and speak from himself, but from him; and when anyone thinks and speaks from another, the truths with him are disturbed, and yet he is not amended.

9223. That all goods and truths are to be ascribed to the Lord, and not to self. Sig. and Ex.

9262. Innocence is to acknowledge at heart that of himself he wills nothing but evil, and perceives nothing but falsity. 9301². H. 278. 279.

9278⁴. When man is in externals . . . he is in such shade that he cannot apprehend otherwise than that externals inflow into internals, consequently that the eye sees and the ear hears from itself; and that their objects produce thoughts . . . and thus he can from himself believe in, and from himself love God.

9296³. If the use of life is solely for self and the world, this initiament of the new will is closed; and below it is formed a Voluntary from the evils of the love of self and the world . . .

9378². It is to be known that, from himself, man cannot approach the Lord . . .

9405^e. These do not suffer themselves to be elevated; for they keep their intuition (or mental view) fixed to themselves and the world.

9445. That man cannot of himself do good or think truth, but of the Lord, is evident from: 'a man cannot do anything unless it is given him from heaven' (John iii. 27). Further ill. 9981.

9709^e. They who are illuminated of self . . . see falsity as truth, and evil as good.

9942¹². They who are in goods and truths from the Lord, possess nothing of good and truth from themselves. Rep. Goods and truths from self . . . are signified by 'possessing gold, silver, and brass in their girdles,' and by 'a scrip.' . . 'Two coats, shoes, and staves' = truths and their powers from both the Lord and self . . .

9974. They who believe that by the goods they do they merit Heaven, do goods from themselves . . .

9975. None of the goods which men do from themselves are goods, because they do them for the sake of themselves . . .

9980. Besides, man from himself is nothing but evil; thus to do good from self is to do it from evil. P. 277.

10184⁴. In this state, man is led through truth to good, thus partly by himself.

10219. Lest there be the penalty of evil in doing good as of themselves. Sig. and Ex.

— . It is said as of themselves, because the goods which man does he does as of himself: he perceives no otherwise until he is in faith from love. Ex.

—³. So long as man believes that he does all things of himself, both goods and evils, so long the goods do not affect him, and the evils adhere to him . . . But so long as man is in such a state that he cannot perceive and feel the influx of goods from the Lord, so long he does goods as of himself, but still he ought to acknowledge and believe that it is of the Lord; and, when he does this, he is delivered from evils . . .

—⁴. There are three plagues which follow those who attribute the truths and goods of faith and love to themselves . . . 1. That they cannot receive anything of the good of love and truth of faith. 2. That evils and falsities constantly pursue them. 3. That the truths and goods received from infancy perish. Sig.

10227². In proportion as it is acknowledged that nothing of good and truth is from self, the love of self departs . . .

10266^e. It does not matter if at first . . . the affection of truth is also for the sake of self and the world . . .

10299⁴. But still . . . man ought to think, will, and act as of himself . . .

—^e. For man then loves influx from the Lord, and is averse to operation from self.

10330². Man looks outwards from himself . . . (and) when he looks from himself, he looks to Hell . . .

10362. 'He that profaneth the Sabbath' = to be led by self and one's own loves. Ex.

—². 'To cut wood' = to operate good from self.

10638². They then do not think from self; nor are affected with the Word from self, but from the Lord; hence no evil nor falsity of evil enters.

—³. But these, when they read the Word, are not illustrated . . . what they see they see from themselves; and to see from themselves is to see falsities for truths; and if they see truths they falsify them by principles taken from themselves . . .

10653. 'Not to make gods of what is molten' = the worship of self.

10702. Men have two states as to the things of the Church: some turn themselves to the Lord; some turn themselves to themselves and the world. The former receive influx from Him, and are in illustration . . . the latter are in no illustration . . .

—^e. To turn one's self to one's self, is to be turned by Hell; and, when this takes place, the things of the internal man are closed, lest the man should serve two masters.

[A.] 10709. When anyone is in the temple (the inhabitants of the Fourth Earth) say that he is not with himself . . . by which they mean that he is with God . . . for so far as he is with God he is not with himself, or in his own house . . .

10731. 'Everyone doing work on the seventh day shall die' = spiritual death for those who are led by themselves and their own loves, and not by the Lord. Ex.

10796. (Priests) who attribute the honour to themselves . . . set honour and gain before the salvation of souls . . .

H. 8. Everyone there . . . perceives that he wills and does nothing of good from himself . . . 9^e.

10. Spirits who have confirmed themselves in the faith that the good and truth they do are from themselves, or are appropriated to themselves as their own . . . are not received into Heaven: the Angels shun them . . .

68². Hypocrites are those who speak and do well, but regard themselves in every single thing . . .

230. The Angels have no power whatever from themselves . . . An Angel who believes that he has power from himself, becomes (utterly) weak.

319. He who lives a moral life for the sake of men, is led by self. —².

327^e. Interiorly, they are worshippers of self and the world.

347². He who loves Divine truths for the sake of the glory of self, regards himself in Divine truths . . . and thus turns his sight . . . from the Lord to self; and thus is . . . not in the light of Heaven.

408. In Heaven the least is the greatest, and he is called the least who . . . wills to have no power or wisdom from self . . .

532. If the thought is turned to self and the honour of self, it becomes corporeal.

558. Man is let into his . . . hereditary evils whenever he regards self in the goods he does; for he looks from the goods to self; and not from self to the goods; and therefore in the goods he presents an image of self, and not any image of the Divine. . . There are evil Spirits . . . who are skilled in the art of letting upright ones . . . into thoughts about self . . .

563. Spirits who had . . . set themselves before their uses.

C. J. 46². Man ought to shun evil and do good as if of himself, yet with the acknowledgment that it is of the Lord. Life 22. 101, Gen.art. C.203, Ex.

Life 9. That no one can do good which is good from himself. Gen.art. 17, ill. 29.

18. In proportion as man shuns evils as sins, he does goods not from himself . . . Gen.art.

31^e. Every man is such that he can shun evils as of himself from the Lord's power, if he implores it . . .

96. The man who fights against evils, cannot but fight as of himself; for he who does not do so as of himself, does not fight; but stands like an automaton . . . But still . . . it only appears to man as if he fights from himself; and the Lord wills that it should so appear . . . 101, Gen.art.

101. To act from freedom according to reason is to act from self . . . (but) as freedom and reason are in man from the Lord . . . it follows that he does not act from self, but as from self.

103. No one can act repentance except as of himself.

107. Still, the reaction (on the part of man) is as of himself.

W. 16. God is . . . not existent from Himself, but in Himself . . . 44. 76.

68^e. Thus reaction becomes of action, and man acts with God as of himself.

76². For that which is in itself, is the Esse ipsum—from which all things are . . .

115. An Angel perceives no otherwise than that he is in love and wisdom of himself . . . Unless he so perceived, there would be no conjunction (with the Lord).

117. Some opine that Adam . . . could love God of himself . . .

264. From these (faculties) comes the appearance that man thinks, wills, speaks, and acts as from himself.

P. 33². As man feels as if he does from himself whatever he does from the natural man, he ought as from himself to remove evils . . .

44. The (celestial) Angels . . . call it slavery to be led by self. Ex.

76^e. No one can receive good and truth from the Lord unless it appears to him that he perceives them as of himself.

79⁴. So far as man acknowledges (that goods are of the Lord with man) so far the Lord grants that good should appear to man as his, that is, that it should appear to man that he has charity as of himself, that he has faith as of himself, that he does good and understands truth, thus is wise, as of himself. From which an enlightened man can see how strong is the appearance in which the Lord wills man to be . . .

87. That . . . man can be regenerated in so far as . . . he can be brought to acknowledge that all the truth and good which he thinks and does are from the Lord, and not from himself. Gen.art.

88². Hence man wills and understands nothing from himself, but only as from himself.

90. It is not truth and good in itself . . .

92². (By this Reciprocal on the part of man) good and truth appear to him as from himself, and as his, exactly as if they were his: there is no difference . . . except that man ought to acknowledge that he does not do good and think truth from himself, but from the Lord . . .

93. The difference between those who believe all good to be from the Lord, and those who believe good to be from themselves. (From experience.)

100. It is a law of the Divine Providence that man should as from himself remove evils as sins in the external man . . . Gen.art. 118.

116^e. (Necessity of the appearance that man does good, etc. as from himself.) 210, Gen. art. R. 541. M. 132⁶. 134⁵. E. 802⁵.

154. It is a law of the Divine Providence that man be led and taught by the Lord from the Word . . . in all appearance as of himself. Gen. art. 174, Ex.

181². As man disposes the externals, so the Lord disposes the internals; thus in one way if man disposes the externals of himself, and in another way if he disposes them from the Lord, and at the same time as of himself.

217³. He who attributes the honour of his office to himself, appears (there) inverted.

219³. A reasoner wants to see Divine things from himself; and that which man sees from himself is evil.

220⁸. When a man regards himself in his dignities . . .

227². The difference is that one is interiorly in the Lord, and exteriorly as it were in self; and the other is interiorly in self, and exteriorly as it were in the Lord . . .

249. (Arguments of) every worshipper of self and of nature against the Divine Providence. Ex. 250. 251. 252.

288. That no one can think from himself . . .

289. That no one in Hell thinks from himself, but from others around himself, nor these from themselves, but also from others . . . (From experience.)

—². Leibnitz was thus convinced that no one thinks from himself, but from others; and that neither do these think from themselves; but all from influx from Heaven: and Heaven from influx from the Lord. 294.

294⁴. As man . . . wants to think from himself . . . he cannot reject the fault [of evil] from himself . . . Whereas if he does not love (to think from himself), he sets himself loose from connection with them . . .

— . Whatever, therefore, man believes that he does from himself, is said to be done from the man . . .

298⁵. Man is thereby led away from evil: not by himself, but by the Lord. Ex.

—⁶. The difference between these two kinds of intelligence is like that between what is believed to be in itself, and that which is believed not to be in itself, but still as in itself.

312. From Own prudence man persuades himself, and confirms with himself, that all good and truth is from himself, and in himself; in like manner all evil and falsity. Ex.

321. It is from a law of the Divine Providence that man should think as from himself, and should act prudently as from himself; but should acknowledge that it is from the Lord. It follows that he who (does this) is a man; but not he who confirms with himself that everything he thinks and acts is from himself . . .

—⁴. Still, man thinks as from himself, although he does so from Hell . . .

—⁵. (Thus) man can think evil and falsity as from himself; and can also think that this or that is evil and false; consequently that it is only an appearance that it is from himself . . . The human itself is to think from the Truth; and this is the Truth: that man does not think from himself; but to think is given him by the Lord, in all appearance as from himself.

—⁶. Everyone in Hell supposes that he thinks from himself.

R. 178. They know that they can avail nothing from themselves—seipsis. Sig.

198. 'Laodicea' = those in the Church who believe alternately from themselves and from the Word; and thus profane holy things.

224⁹. (Thus) man can reform and regenerate himself as of himself, provided he at heart acknowledges that it is from the Lord. . . . Man must do both as of himself; but the as of himself is from the Lord . . . In a word, do it from yourselves—vobis, and believe that it is from the Lord; and thus you will do it as of yourselves.

—¹⁰. The Englishmen asked whether to do as of himself has been implanted in man from creation. The Angel replied, It has not been implanted, because to do of self is of God alone; but it is continually given, that is, continually adjoined; and then, in proportion as man does good and believes truth, as of himself, he is an Angel of Heaven; and in proportion as he does evil and thence believes falsity, which also is as of himself, he is an Angel of Hell . . . Everyone becomes guilty who believes that he does of himself, whether it is good, or evil; but he does not become guilty who believes that he does as of himself.

417¹⁰. When we are acting from the Word, we cannot say, I am doing this from myself—ex me.

517^e. All those do goods from themselves who do not shun evils as sins.

678². Man can, from himself, reject evil; but not its concupiscences . . .

854². Therefore, no Angel, or man, can produce from himself anything good or true, which in itself is good and true.

875⁹. I longed to know how man can do good from God, and yet as of himself. —¹⁰, Fully ex. T. 461².

—¹². The ability to desist from evil is given by the Lord to every man, because He gives him to will and understand as of himself . . .

937³. This is done by man as of himself, because he does not feel that he does anything from the Lord.

961³. The Divine Esse is the Divine Esse in itself, not from itself; because from itself implies an Esse in itself a quo . . . T. 21.

M. 132⁵. The 'likeness of God' is the full appearance as if love and wisdom were in man . . . for man feels . . . that he loves of himself, and is wise of himself, or that he wills good and understands truth of himself; when yet [he does these things] not a whit of himself, but of God. God alone loves of Himself, and is wise of Himself . . .

135. 'The tree of the knowledge of good and evil' = man believing that he lives from himself, and not from God . . . 444⁴.

—³. The Lord alone, when in the world, was wise from Himself, and did good from Himself.

269^e. The highest region in man has been turned upwards to God; the middle one outwards to the world; and the lowest one downwards to self; and, because this last has been turned downwards, man thinks as of himself . . .

[M.] 444⁵. The two Angels asked, How could man turn himself from God, and turn to himself, when yet man cannot will, think, or do anything except from God . . . I replied, Man has been created so that all he wills, thinks, and does appears to him as in himself, and thus from himself. Without this appearance, man would not be man . . . But if from this appearance, he induces on himself the belief that he wills, thinks, and does good from himself, and not from the Lord in all appearance as from himself, he turns good into evil]with himself, and thus makes in himself the origin of evil. This was the sin of Adam. Further ex.

B. 69^e. Whatever man believes that he does of himself, he appropriates to himself, (whether good, or evil).

T. 40². Let everyone beware how he persuades himself that he lives from himself, or that he is wise, believes, loves, perceives truth, and wills and does good from himself; for (in the same proportion) he casts down his mind . . . to the earth, and . . . becomes natural, sensuous, and corporeal. Ex. 69².

105. This man must do of himself, but acknowledge that it is from God.

110⁶. Man from himself is merely passive; but . . . from the perpetual influx of life from the Lord, it appears to man as if he were active from himself . . .

330^e. Two canons for the New Church. I. No one can shun evils as sins, and do goods which are goods before God, of himself; but, in proportion as anyone shuns evils as sins, he does goods not from himself, but from the Lord. II. Man ought to shun evils as sins, and fight against them, as of himself . . . 596².

359^e. In proportion as man does not prepare himself, he removes the Lord from himself, and does all things himself-ipse, from himself; and that which man himself does from himself has no life in itself.

362². It has been provided . . . that man should feel in himself as his own the things which inflow from without, and thence should produce them from himself as his own . . .

371⁶. There is a mutual conjunction of the Lord and man . . . for the Lord acts, and man receives action from Him, and operates as of himself, nay, from himself from the Lord . . . 576, Ex.

381. Man becomes a hypocrite when he thinks much about himself, and sets himself before others . . .

423^e. Man cannot possibly act from himself from spiritual justice and fidelity; for every man derives from his parents [the nature] that he does what is good and just for the sake of self and the world . . . and therefore he who worships the Lord, and acts from Him when from himself, alone acquires spiritual charity.

457⁴. As man does nothing of good, unless it appears to him as if ability, will, and action were of himself, therefore this has been given him; and, when he does it from freedom as of himself, it is imputed to him . . .

489^e. Free will is that man can will, do, think, and speak in all appearance as of himself . . . 504⁷.

D. 660. On the life of those who are wise from themselves.

900. The wonder of the Spirits when I said that I can do nothing from myself-ex me . . . I told them that the things done from me were not done by me, but through me, so that I seemed to myself-*mih*i-to do them . . .

994. A Spirit who defended himself by saying that he did nothing of himself.

1071. Punishment of a Spirit who desired to do everything from himself, as if he were alone.

1370a. On the vastation of those who trust in themselves. 1386. 1414.

1628. Spirits were told not to do anything from themselves; thus without reflection on themselves; but this does not mean to become passive. Whenever they attempt anything from themselves, it is nothing, except sin. 1629. 1630. 1637.

1740^e. They supposed things to be done by themselves which were done by others.

2060. That he who knows nothing from himself begins to be wise . . .

2150. That neither man nor Spirit can do the least thing from self, although to themselves, all things seem to be from themselves. 2325. 2428. 2464. From experience. 2470.

2505. Those who study themselves only . . . 2566. 2772.

2661. Those in faith do not speak from themselves . . .

2870. The sweetness of not thinking from self. Ex.

2956. Indignant that they can do nothing from themselves. 2966.

3026. On one who supposed he could do good from himself.

3854. This offspring of the Most Ancient Church supposed that they could do good of themselves.

3782. Man cannot know otherwise than that [he acts] from himself. Ex.

4041. Nothing is from itself. Ex.

4190. When anyone there thinks and speaks within the sphere of generals, it is as if from himself . . . But when he thinks and speaks what does not pertain so to the general sphere, it is as if not from himself . . .

4194. Punishment of those who suppose they act from themselves. Ex.

4220. One who was constantly thinking about himself . . . hence a sphere of self-honour.

4222. Man first does good from the end of self or the world . . . These ends are gradually removed by the Lord.

5462. On those who are in offices and dignity, and think only about themselves.

5463. Evil Spirits . . . know how to lead all those who think about themselves, and also do lead them wherever they want . . . in proportion as they can turn their thoughts upon themselves. But those who do not [direct their thoughts] to self, but to others whom they esteem more worthy than themselves, most especially if to the Lord, they cannot move. When man is thinking about self, he is in the love of self . . . if he sets himself above others . . . Evil Spirits know how . . . to turn the thoughts of another Spirit upon himself, and so to lead him . . . Ex. 5464, Ex.

6032. The influx of good from the Lord effects nothing unless man does good as of himself. Ex. 6050.

E. 107. They do not think within themselves, but without themselves, (that is,) from the memory only.

—². They apprehend all things from themselves . . . and the things man apprehends from himself (alone) are false, because he thinks in darkness.

118. The acknowledgment that they know nothing from themselves. Sig. and Ex.

248³. The Lord wills that man should from himself abstain from evils and do goods . . .

517³. Two states of man's thoughts . . . one when he thinks about truths from self . . . his mind then falls into the light of the world . . .

556. (Fascinating effect of self-confidence upon others.) Sig. and Ex.

774⁶. (This implies) that if man could fulfil the law from himself, he would be saved, which is false.

797⁷. He abstains from self, and not from the Lord.

794³. Whatever man does from the external (alone), he does from himself. Sig.

— . If man does and speaks what is good, true, sincere, and just, for the sake of self and the world, he does and speaks these things from self . . . and they are all evil . . . —⁴.

798⁶. As the Lord is continually present . . . man has the faculty of desisting from evils as of himself; this has been given to every man. Hence, as man of himself can close Heaven, he can of himself open it, provided that when he thinks and wills to desist from evils, he looks to the Lord . . .

802⁴. That faith has been given as the means of Salvation, because man cannot do good of himself. Ex.

—⁵. That man can (keep these commandments) of himself, is known . . . but still he cannot desist from these sins from himself, but from God; but, when he desists from them from God, the man is still thinking that he wills to desist from them because they are sins; thus he desists from them as of himself . . . Then, as he calls adultery sin, he lives in chastity and loves it, and this also as of himself; and, as he calls theft sin, he lives in sincerity and loves it, and this also as of himself; as he calls murder sin, he lives in charity and loves it, and this as of himself; as he calls false witness sin, he lives in truth and justice, and loves them, and this as of himself; and, although he lives and loves these things as of himself, still he lives and loves them from God; for whatever man does as from himself from chastity itself, from sincerity itself, from charity itself, and from Truth and justice itself, he does from God, and thence they are good. In a word, all things whatever which man does from these things as from himself, evils being removed, are from God, and are good . . .

864. No one can follow the Lord of himself. Ex.

— . Unless it appeared to man that he follows the Lord as of himself . . . there would be no appropriation and conjunction, and hence no reformation and regeneration; for everything enters man, and is as his, which he receives from freedom, that is, as from himself . . . But still man ought to believe, as the Thing is in itself, that he does not do it from himself, but from the Lord; and therefore it is not said that he must do it of himself, but as of himself. The reason it is so, is also that man does not perceive the Lord's operation into his will and thence into his thought . . . and he therefore supposes that whatever he wills and thinks, he wills and thinks of himself; and therefore he cannot know otherwise than that he does this of himself, when yet all the good inflows . . . and, as he knows this from doctrine . . . he ought to believe that he does not do good of himself, although he does it as of himself. This is taught by the Lord in Mark iv. 26, 27; John iii. 27; xv. 5. 911¹⁷. 946^e.

897. The mistake of supposing that Angels were so created that they could do good of themselves.

938^e. If man does not fight against them as of himself, evils are not separated.

971². Still, man ought to shun evils as of himself; for that which man does as of himself, becomes his, and is appropriated to him as his own; but that which he does not do as of himself, never becomes his, or is appropriated to him. That which comes from the Lord to man must be received by man, and it cannot be received except with him conscious, that is, as of himself. This reciprocal is necessary for reformation.

—³. Man's thinking that he will shun evil and do good as of himself is not caused by man, but by the Lord . . . for the sake of what is reciprocal . . .

1043^e. And this also as of themselves, although from Hell.

1114^e. All who see God as a Man, see Him from the Lord; all others see Him from themselves; and those who see Him from themselves, do not see Him.

1126. Life from itself cannot be said, because from itself involves an origin.

1135³. As man cannot (do anything) from himself . . . why is not every man saved? Ex.

1145¹¹. Loves these apparently from himself, but actually of the Lord. . . Loves these apparently from himself, but actually from Hell.

1147². Some Angels . . . not comprehending that evil and falsity are from Hell . . . were brought into infernal Societies . . . in each of which they thought as the devils there did . . . They were told to think from themselves, thus differently: but replied that they could not . . . 1148⁴.

1148³. Man . . . does not know that . . . the faculty of acting as of himself, is from the influx of life from the Lord into his inmost . . .

1153⁷. From himself, man is constantly acting against order . . .

1164². In order to be drawn out of Hell . . . it is necessary for man to resist it . . . as of himself. If he does not resist it as of himself, he remains in Hell, and Hell in him, to eternity. (From experience.)

[E. 1164]^e. In the whole Spiritual World there is not a single case of anyone's having been removed from evils, except through combat, or resistance, as of himself.

1173². The Lord does not teach man truths immediately . . . for otherwise he would not act as from himself. Ex.

J. (Post.) 221. Neither had Adam freedom from himself, but as from himself.

241. They have a continual intuition upon self . . .

Conv. 8. To act and think as of himself in spiritual things, is the image of God in man, and is given perpetually by the Lord.

Inv. 26. The 'likeness of God' . . . is that man can live, that is, will, etc., in all appearance as of himself . . .

Self Love. See LOVE OF SELF and PHILAUTIE.

Sell. Vendere.

Selling, A. Venditio.

See under BUY.

A. 2967⁹. 'To trade=mercari,' that is, to buy and sell, =to procure the Knowledges of good and truth, and, through them, good itself.

3325. 'Sell thy birth-right' (Gen.xxv.31). . . 'To sell' =to claim for itself.

4098. 'He hath sold us' (Gen.xxxi.15)=that he had alienated them.

4638⁷. 'Go ye rather to them that sell' (Matt.xxv.9)=the good of merit: those who boast of it are 'they that sell.' Compare S. 17².

4751^e. By their selling the Lord, the like was represented . . .

4752. 'Let us sell him to the Ishmaelites' (Gen.xxvii.27)=that those in simple good acknowledge Him; for 'to sell' =to alienate from one's self, thus to be received by others; and, when predicated of truth, it =to be acknowledged. 4758. 4788.

4756^e. It may be supposed that as Joseph was sold to the Ishmaelites, he was sold by these into Egypt, and not by the Midianites: but . . . Divine truth cannot be sold by those who are in good . . .

5371. 'Joseph sold to Egypt' (Gen.xli.56)=appropriation. 'To sell' =to appropriate to anyone; for that which is sold becomes his who buys it. 5418.

5886. 'To sell' =to alienate the things of faith and charity. Ex. and Ill.

— In the Spiritual World, there is no buying and selling such as there is on earth; but the appropriation of good and truth signified by 'buying,' and the alienation of them signified by 'selling.' By selling is also signified the communication of the Knowledges of good and truth. Ex.

6143. 'The Egyptians sold everyone his field' (Gen.xlvii.20)=the renunciation and subjection of all things which are of service to the Church. 'To sell' =to alienate so that it is no longer his; thus to renounce and subject. 6151.

8906^e. 'To sell a man of the sons of Israel' (Deut.xxiv.7)=to alienate the truths and goods of faith, and also to make them serve . . .

8993. 'When a man shall sell his daughter for a maid-servant' (Ex.xxi.7)=the affection of truth from natural delight. Ex.

8998. 'To sell' =to alienate.

9018. 'He that stealeth a man and selleth him' (ver.16)=the application of the truth of faith to evil, and alienation.

9092. 'They shall sell the living ox' (ver.35)=that the affection of the one which had injured . . . shall be alienated. 9101.

9132. 'He shall be sold for his theft' (Ex.xxii.3)=the alienation of the good and truth taken away, of which nothing remains. Ex.

Life 66². That he should 'sell all things which he had' (Mark x.21)=that he should remove his heart from riches. (=to alienate all things which are of our Own love. E.840⁹.)

R. 606². 'To buy and sell' =to procure for themselves Knowledges, and to teach them, in like manner as 'to trade,' etc. Ill. E.840.

D. 5946³. (The Africans) sell such. 6095^e.

E. 119⁴. 'To sell the sons of Judah . . .' (Joel iii.6)=to falsify the goods . . .

355²³. 'To sell nations' (Nahum iii.4)=to alienate goods; and 'to sell families by sorceries' =to alienate truths.

548⁷. 'To sell' (Ex.xxii.1)=to pervert.

840². 'To go to them that sell, and buy' =to those who teach, and learn or procure for themselves . . .

—⁴. 'They that sold and bought' (Matt.xxi.12)=those who make a profit for themselves from holy things.

—^e. 'To sell,' and 'to be sold,' also =to alienate truths, and to be alienated from them, and to accept falsities instead of them, and be captivated by them. Ill.

860². Those who have been alienated through falsities are called 'sold.'

1044³. 'He went and sold all that he had, and bought that pearl' (Matt.xiii.46)=that he rejected proprium, in order that he might receive life from the Lord.

Semblance. See RESEMBLANCE.

Seminal Vesicles. Vesiculae Seminales.

A. 5056². See under SEED. 8847². D.875. 884. 3122.

Seminary. Seminarium.

A. 997². Conjugal love is the seminary of human society. 2039.

2733². Marriages are the seminaries of the human race, and thence are the seminaries of the Heavenly Kingdom. 5053. 9961⁴. H.384. E.988⁵. 1002³.

6697. For the human race is the seminary of Heaven. 7069. 9441^e. J.10, Ex. D. Wis.viii⁷. xii. 5³.

H. 315^e. Therefore (in the ultimate) is the seminary of Heaven.

D. 3794^e. The propagation of the human race is the primary seminary of earthly and heavenly societies.

5505. These had been preserved there . . . as a seminary.

5515. The middle Heaven, where are those who are in truths from the Word, thus where is a seminary . . .

Senate. Senatus.

Senator. Senator.

T. 141². Like Consul, Senate, and Tribune of the plebs.

D. 5210. The seat of a Senator on the Capitoline . . .

6047. In one of the chambers was a Senator . . .

Send. Delegare.

P. 279³. They were sent out of Heaven, and remitted into their evils.

283. Evils are only sent to the sides.

R. 791². They are sent to Societies which are in conjunction with the Hells.

Send. Mittere.

Sending, A. Missio.

A. 2295. The infants (there) are sent by the Lord to infants (here).

2397². It is said of the Lord that He was 'sent' by the Father, as also here, 'Jehovah hath sent us' (Gen. xix.13), and everywhere by 'sent,' is signified 'to go out.' Ill.

—³. So it is said of the Holy Spirit that it is 'sent,' that is, that it goes out from the Divine of the Lord. Ill.

—^e. As all Divine truth goes out from Divine good, the term 'sent' is properly predicated of Divine truth.

3088. He that is sent puts on the person of the sender . . .

3182. 'They sent Rebekah' (Gen. xxiv. 59) = separation from the affection of Divine truth. 'To send' = to be separated.

3704⁹. That the Father 'sent' Him = that He proceeds from the Father.

3750³. Anyone (there) can easily be let into the state of life which he had (here). 4659².

4137. 'I would have sent thee in gladness . . .' (Gen. xxxi.27) = . . . that it separated itself in freedom . . .

4283. 'Let me go' (Gen. xxxi.26) = that temptation ceased. 4284. (Compare 4290.)

4710. 'I will send thee unto them' (Gen. xxxvii.13) = that he should teach Divine spiritual goods. . . 'To send' = to go out and proceed, and also at the same time to teach. Ill.

4750. When (the celestial Angels) are sent to others . . .

5036². Man is then let into the state of evil in which he is . . . 6657².

5280³. Man is let into a state of temptation.

5630. 'Send you your other brother' (Gen. xliii.14) = that he may give the good of faith.

5957. 'To his father he sent . . .' (Gen. xlv.23) = given gratis to spiritual good.

6027. 'He sent Judah before him' (Gen. xlvii.28) = a communication of the good of the Church.

6280. The Divine Human is called 'an Angel,' because by an Angel is meant one sent, and the Lord as to the Divine Human is called 'sent.'

6831⁰. 'To be sent' = to proceed; and 'sent' is 'Angel.' That the Lord calls Himself 'sent.' Ill.

6864. 'I will send thee unto Pharaoh' (Ex.iii.10) = the Holy which proceeds from the Lord's Human . . .

6912. 'He will let you go' (ver.20) = the driving away of those in falsities, and the deliverance of those in truths. 'To let go—mittere seu dimittere = to be driven away.

6996. 'Send by the hand Thou wilt send' (Ex.iv.13) = that the Divine truth . . . should be uttered mediately. . . 'To send,' when said of the Lord, = to proceed. 7059. 7166.

7188. 'With a strong hand he shall let them go' (Ex.vi.1) = that they shall flee from them . . . Ex.

7221. 'That he let the sons of Israel go' (ver.11) = that they go away and leave them. 7271. 7305. 7312. 7349. 7439. 7540.

7541. 'I will send all My plagues' (Ex.ix.14) = that all the coming evils should rush together upon them. . . 'To send' = to rush in.

9199⁶. 'I will send the Spirit of Truth to you' = to go and proceed.

9210⁴. 'A sending,' occurs.

9303. 'I send an Angel before thee' (Ex.xxiii.20) = the Lord as to the Divine Human. 'To send,' when said of the Lord, = to proceed. 10528.

10561^e. 'To send with them,' when by Jehovah, (Ex.xxxiii.12) = the Divine leading, and also the Divine proceeding. Therefore 'Angels' are so called from 'being sent;' and therefore the Lord so frequently said that He was 'sent' by the Father, by which is signified the Divine proceeding. R. 344^e. T. 92², Ill.

H. 271. They at once commit them to life.

L. 20. That he was 'sent by the Father into the world' means that He was conceived from Jehovah as a Father. . . Unfold the passages where 'send' and 'sent' are mentioned, and you will see (that this is the meaning). Ill. (= to take on Himself the Human. 31^e.)

R. 5. 'Sending by His Angel' (Rev.i.1) = revealed by the Lord through Heaven. E.S.

T. 146. The sending of the Holy Spirit. Ex.

E. 114⁶. After death, man is let into both states.

661. They sent gifts one to another' (Rev.xi.10) = their consociation from love.

J. (Post.) 230. Those who have done the good of life . . . are not let into the evils of their will.

Send away. Dimittere.

Dismissal. Dimissio.

See BANISH

A. 2222. To send them away' (Gen.xviii.16) = that He wanted to depart from that perception.

[A.] 392⁸. 'A hind let loose' (Gen.xlix.21) = the affection of natural truth in a free state. 6413.

5962. 'He sent away his brethren' (Gen.xlv.24) = a hiding; for 'to send away' = to remove from himself, consequently to be no longer present with them.

7037. 'Let My son go' (Ex.iv.23) = a command that they should abstain from infesting. 7092.

7393. 'To let the people go' = to leave those of the Spiritual Church. 7440. 7500. 7540. 7552. 7593. 7617. 7641. 7654. 7707. 7734. 7767. 7768. 7798. 7964. So85. So92. S145.

8648. 'After her dismissals' (Ex.xviii.2) = separation . . . Ex.

9156². 'For your transgressions was your mother put away' (Is.l.1) = when the Church departs from faith.

9274. 'In the seventh year thou shalt . . . let it lie fallow' (Ex.xxiii.11) = the second state, when the man of the Church is in good, and thus in the tranquillity of peace. Ex.

Send forth. Emittere.

See EMISSARY.

A. 878⁸. 'To put forth the hand' = Own power.

2678. 'He sent Hagar forth' (Gen.xxi.14) = that He left it in proprium.

6948. 'To cast,' or 'send forth' = what proceeds, thus influx.

9272⁶. 'To send forth the foot of the ox and the ass' (Is.xxxii.20) = to be instructed in . . .

R. 949². The Lord cannot emit anything from Himself except what is Himself.

E. 318. 'The seven Spirits of God sent forth into all the earth' (Rev.v.6) = all wisdom and intelligence communicated . . .

Seneca. Seneca.

S. 115³. (Source of Seneca's knowledge of spiritual things.)

De Verbo 6. Mentioned.

Sennacherib. Sancherib.

E. 518²⁸. 'Sennacherib the king of Assyria' = the perverted Rational destroying all the Knowledge and apperception of truth. 778¹⁰.

654¹⁴. The natural man as to his Intellectual . . . is also described by the commander [of] Sennacherib the king of Assyria . . .

Sensation. Sensatio.

See under FEEL, SENSE (of body), and SENSITIVE.

A. 104. Perception is a kind of internal sensation . . .

272². The external man has similar sensations to the brutes.

322. All sensations relate to touch, of which they are only diversities and varieties.

991. These scientifics . . . come to the sensation or perception of man . . .

1389. Corporeal things have a gross sensation.

1514^e. These odours cannot be sensed by man except one to whom the interior sensations have been opened.

1791. Perception was a perceptive sensation and Knowledge of all things which were taking place in Heaven.

2473. The sensations, etc. of Spirits are more perfect.

3632. Divine order is terminated . . . in the external sensations . . .

3635. The heart and lungs are the two founts . . . of all external sensation.

3887². Embryos and newly-born infants cannot have any corporeal sensation . . . until their lungs have been opened . . .

—^e. (From the good of love and truth of faith) are all perception and sensation.

4227². Spirits . . . have been released from the body with its gross modes of sensations.

4622. All things there are adapted to the sensations of Spirits and Angels.

—². Spirits have sensations much more exquisite than men . . . The body, with its sensations . . . is adapted to uses (here); and the spirit and its sensations . . . are adapted to uses (there) . . . All the Sensitive which appears in the body is properly of its spirit, and is of the body solely by influx . . . Therefore when the spirit is stripped of the body it is in its own sensations in which it had been before, in fact, in much more exquisite ones; for corporeal things . . . had rendered the sensations obtuse . . .

—⁴. As soon as man dies . . . he is raised up into the state of all sensations, and at first supposes that he is still in the body; for the sensations in which he is, lead him so to believe; but when he apperceives that he has more exquisite sensations . . . he observes that he is in the other life.

4794. A Spirit . . . has all the sensations he had here . . . but not taste; but instead of it something analogous which is adjoined to smell. Ex.

5078⁴. The Internal . . . gives the External to sense; but when it acts into the External . . . the sensation is dulled and obscured . . .

5119^e. The interior man sees . . . in the exterior . . . The faculty of sensing, or sensation, is from no other source.

5145. In the head are all the substances and forms in their beginnings, and therefore all the sensations tend thither, and present themselves there.

5365³. What good is, is not known from any internal sensation or perception.

5779. Through the Internal from the Lord comes all . . . sensation. It appears that sensation . . . comes from influx from the external, but this is a fallacy. It is the Internal which senses through the External . . .

6325². There is given (the man who is led by the Lord) the perception of good, and even the sensation of it. 7442³.

9103. (The good of charity in the exterior man) comes to the sensation of man as delight; but (that in the interior man) does not come to his sensation, but to the perception that it ought to be so, and makes the lower mind content. In the other life, this also comes to sensation.

10199². For all the external sensations derive their origin from the internal sensations, which are of the understanding and will; thus, in man, from truths of faith and the good of love . . . But the internal sensations, which are proper to the understanding and will . . . have not that sense which the external sensations have, but are turned into such things when they inflow. For all things which are sensed by man through the external sensory organs, inflow from internal things . . .

H. 158². By turns the perception and sensation of good become (with the Angels) more exquisite . . .

331. The earthly body . . . does not receive its first sensations and motions from the Spiritual World, but from the natural world; and therefore infants have to learn . . .

489³. Blessedness, with which all their sensations are affected.

541^e. From the opposite is known its quality, and degree; hence come all perception and sensation.

C. J. 90. (The Moravians) say that they had had a sensation, and thus an interior confirmation of their dogmas; but they were shown that their sensation had been from visionary Spirits . . . D.4792. 4796. 4797. 6043². J.(Post.) 48. 279.

W. 2. Thought is the first effect of life; and sensation and action are the second.

257⁴. A man with whom the spiritual degree has been opened . . . can come into this (angelic) wisdom by a lulling of the sensations of the body . . .

304. The states (of the fibres and vessels in man) are sensations, thoughts, and affections.

363³. From these two things (love and wisdom) in the last place, are derived the sensations, which are sight, hearing, etc., with their delights . . . The understanding sees through the eye, (and so on).

407². (In swoons) there is no sensation.

P. 24^e. What is opposite takes away, and also exalts, the perceptions and sensations. Ex.

156. There cannot be given to man (here) a perception of sensation that he lives from the Lord alone.

M. 44⁸. For angelic perception and sensation are much more exquisite than human . . .

461⁶. Without permanency of delight there is no . . . sensation.

T. 439. In merit lies . . . a sole sensation of the love of self.

577³. There is such a co-operation in every sense; for the sensories of the body consist of fibres, etc. . . and the organs adapt themselves to light, sound, etc., whence is sensation.

Ad. 643³. Below (the animus) in the body itself, are the sensations . . . 653. 923.

653. Nothing can be sensed, unless it is from and in something; for sensation is the mode itself, which is impossible . . . except from a substance . . .

VOL. V.

D. 4627². The body dies . . . together with those things which proximately concur to present these sensations.

4790. He had no sensation concerning eternal life.

6055. Those in conjugal love feel exactly whether there is what is lascivious, or not . . . This sensation is from the interior.

6110⁶⁹. With those in conjugal love . . . there inflows [what is] of the wife into the sense of the husband, so that the sensations and delights themselves are communicated mutually . . .

D. Min. 4597. The sensuous . . . said that they have no feeling of horror at crimes.

E. 8². In the understanding is the sensation of their internal sight.

D. Wis. vii. 3². There must be an internal in all sensation. Ex.

C. 191^e. The perception of the understanding thence, causes sensation.

Sense. Sensus. (Of words.)

A. 241. If we attend attentively to the sense of the words of a speaker, we . . . as it were do not hear the words . . . apprehending only the sense; and he who thinks more deeply does not attend even to the sense of the words, but to the more universal things of the sense. 1638. 4493⁴.

—^e. But one who attends to the words . . . and not to the sense, apprehends little of the sense, and still less of what is universal of the sense . . . 5287².

1641^e. When a man fixes his mind on the meaning of Things . . . he sometimes does not know with what speech he is speaking.

1648². They think of the sense, and the words follow spontaneously from the sense itself.

2291. (The infants) had scarcely anything beyond the sense of the words (of the Lord's prayer).

3033². By a wrong application . . . looks upon certain general truths . . . as applicable in every sense.

3342². All speech perceived by the ear . . . passes into ideas not unlike those of sight, and from these into intellectual ideas, and thus becomes a perception of the sense of the words.

3382². This is the sense of these words in Heaven.

4387. These things collated into one sense . . .

4469. These things . . . involve a contrary sense.

4601. In the proper sense.

4656^e. Such as attend little to the sense of a Thing, pertain to the cartilaginous and bony part of the external ear.

4733. Hence the Gentiles worship idols . . . For nothing can be excited with man unless there is something which moves his sense.

5871^e. From the remaining scientifics . . . there is effected as it were an extraction . . . whence comes the interior sense of Things, which is not perceived by the man while in the body, except by somewhat of gladness.

6200. Nothing then comes to the man's apprehension except that which is in the midst.

[A.] 69S7². It appears as if the words of speech were in the thought . . . but it is only the sense of the speech which is there ; and the quality of this can scarcely be known to man, for it is the speech of his spirit.

So6S^e. The Intellectual is in the sense of the words and Things ; and the Voluntary is in the affection . . .

D. 19S9. That external senses vanish in the Heavens. Ex.

2784. The objects of the eye, in the streets, are reduced into a continuous series by the Lord, before good Spirits and Angels . . . they see nothing of them, but still a certain sense goes up thence continuously to them . . .

2961. They who are high above the head perceive the sense of words without being disturbed by the words. Ex.

J. (Post) 324. See WRITE, here.

De Verbo 4. He knew entire senses from the letters themselves.

Sense. Sensitis. (Of the Word.)

A. 3439². These three senses are circumstanced as was the tabernacle. Ex.

4606. Three senses given. 4607. 4608. 4609.

4750². Most things in the Word have two senses : a good sense, and a sense opposite to it. From their good sense is Known the quality of their opposite sense . . .

4814^e. Whatever is written in the Word . . . is turned with the Angels into a corresponding sense, which sense does not at all appear in the sense of the letter . . .

5247⁶. These two senses are circumstanced as are the Internal and External with man.

S. 6. The three senses of the Word. Ex. 31. 65. R.725. T.777. E.435⁴. 630². 1024². 1083². —⁸.

Ad. 505. On the senses in the Divine Word. Gen.art. 788. 3/2055. D.1190. 2262. 2539. 5604.

E. 1012³. All the commandments, like the rest of the Word, have two internal senses, besides the supreme, which is the third ; one, which is proximate, and is called the spiritual moral sense ; and another which is more remote, and is called the celestial spiritual sense.

1066³. On the four senses of the Word. See 1083², Examps.

Sense. Sensus. (Bodily.)

See under FALLACY, FEEL, HEAR, SEE, SENSATION, SENSORY, SENSUOUS, SMELL, TASTE, and TOUCH.

A. 12. Man's natural life (in the sixth state of regeneration) is delighted and sustained by the things which are of the body and the senses ; from which a combat arises . . .

229^e. They perceived that they had been beguiled by the senses. Sig.

231^e. The evil (of all these Churches) has been that they believed . . . in themselves and the senses.

232. Men can now confirm the incredulity of the senses by scientifics unknown to the Ancients.

320. A Spirit is exactly like man as to the senses etc. 444.

322^e. They (then) acknowledge that it was the spirit which had sensated in the body . . . and therefore when the body is cast off the sensations live much more exquisite and perfect. Life consists in sense ; for without sense there is no life ; and, as the sense is, such is the life. 1881. 4622³.

444^e. The whole brain is the Organic of the interior senses.

545^e. With such an inmost sense of Delight, that the fibre was as if nothing but joy . . .

969^e. They suppose that Spirits have not any sense, when yet they have a more exquisite sense than men ; and there is superinduced on them by evil Spirits a sense almost as it were corporeal, which is much grosser.

994⁴. External sight comes forth from interior sight, and this from a sight still more interior, and so on ; and so with every other sense.

1122. The objects of the external senses . . . were nothing to the Most Ancients . . . 1409.

1378². They ought not to deny because it does not so appear before the senses.

1389. During the life of the body the objects of the senses inflow . . .

1521. Spirits and Angels have every sense, except taste, much more exquisite and perfect. Des. 1880.

1563. These organic vessels (of the external man), which are to be the recipients, are not opened except by means of the senses, which, especially, are hearing and sight. . . They are opened by means of the senses through scientifics and Knowledges, and also through pleasures and delights . . .

1628². The objects there, are adapted exactly to the senses of Spirits and Angels . . .

1630. Spirits are in the enjoyment of all goods as to all the senses . . .

1881. The objects which Spirits sensate are circumstanced in adaptation to the excellence of their sense.

1982. Souls who long to see the glory of the Lord . . . are lulled as to the external senses . . . and then their interior senses and faculties are aroused . . .

2004². In man's thought are innumerable arcana of knowledge and art . . . which never inflow through the senses . . . but through the internal man . . .

2209³. Things which it perceives by some external or internal sense.

2487. The exterior memory is an Organic formed from the objects of the senses, especially those of sight and hearing, in the substances which are the beginnings of the fibres . . .

2588⁹. Believe only what they apprehend with the senses. 3024⁵.

2657². The first Rational is procured through the experiences of the senses . . .

3219². They had supposed that the things of thought inflow through the external senses.

3226. By the sense of his lower mind he can express in a moment . . .

3293². This exterior good communicates with the external man . . . and makes the life in the external senses.

3636². Spiritual heat, before their senses, is perceived as heat; but there is love in it . . .

3679². For man thinks from those things which have entered through the senses.

3721². It appears as if the objects of the world enter through the external senses . . .

4046³. Spirits of the exterior lamella of the dura mater are among those who have thought about spiritual and celestial things from such things only as are objects of the external senses.

4096². Those who have worldly things as their end cannot withdraw the senses thence . . .

4224. These purer or more interior forms . . . are those which present the internal senses . . . The interior Heavens correspond to these forms, because they correspond to their senses . . .

4318. On the correspondence (of the Grand Man) with the senses in general. Gen. art.

4325. Sense in general, or general sense, is distinguished into voluntary and involuntary: voluntary sense is proper to the cerebrum, and involuntary sense to the cerebellum. In man, these two general senses have been conjoined, but still are distinct . . .

— The organs of the senses receive for the most part fibres from the cerebrum: hence man has sense . . . But he has no sense of those parts which receive fibres from the cerebellum . . .

4326. The Spirits who relate to the general involuntary sense. Des.

— The quality of the operation of the general involuntary sense from the first times . . . and how it progressed. Des. (See INVOLUNTARY, here.)

4327. The general involuntary sense at this day. (See INVOLUNTARY, here.)

4329³. The Spirits who constitute the general voluntary sense. Des.

4345³. The external senses, etc. are the most general things (of man).

4360. Sensuous scientifics are those which enter immediately through the external senses, and are perceived by the sense itself.

4404. The external senses, which are five, namely, touch, taste, smell, hearing, and sight, have each a correspondence with the internal senses . . . The sense of touch in general corresponds to the affection of good; the sense of taste, to the affection of knowing; the sense of smell, to the affection of perceiving; the sense of hearing, to the affection of learning and also of obedience; and the sense of sight, to the affection of understanding and of being wise.

4527. They marvelled that . . . they had sight, and the rest of the senses.

4622³. The Intellectual is nothing but an exquisite sense of interior things; and the higher Intellectual, of spiritual Things: hence the things of the Intellectual and its perceptions are called internal senses.

4652. Those who have not reflected (suppose) that all sense is in the organs of the body, and therefore that when these organs perish by death, nothing of sense remains; when yet the man then comes into his veriest sensitive life.

4901². Notions are taken from the things which are and come forth before the senses.

4925. Whereas truth manifests itself, because it enters through the senses . . .

5060². They are among the robbers who relate to the general involuntary sense.

5077. The external senses, or those of the body, are five, namely, sight, hearing, smell, taste, and touch: these constitute all the Vital of the body: for without these senses the body does not live at all, and therefore when it is deprived of them, it dies . . . and therefore the Corporeal itself is nothing else than the receptacle of the sensations, consequently of the life from them. The Sensitive is the principal, and the Corporeal is the instrumental . . . (Continued under SENSUOUS.)

5078⁴. Every sense there is more exquisite and perfect because it is of the internal man set loose from the external; for the Internal is in a more perfect state because it gives to the External to sensate; but, when it acts into the External, as in the world, the sensation is dulled and obscured. Moreover it is the Internal which sensates the Internal, and the External which sensates the External . . .

5084. Fourteen fallacies of the senses. Enum.

5432³. Hence the quality (of their affection of truth and of their faith) is there known to the open sense.

5495². When scientifics are in the exterior Natural, they communicate immediately with the external senses of the body, and there repose and as it were rest upon them.

6013². The tongue has been formed to all the sense of the fluent parts in liquid things . . . the touch, to the sense of cold and heat . . . and so on. As the external senses of man have been formed to all the image of the natural world, so his internal senses, which are those of his understanding and will, have been formed to all the image of Heaven, to the end that man may be, in particular, a recipient of Divine good from the Lord, as Heaven is, in general.

6054. (A Spirit) has senses, namely, touch, smell, hearing, sight, much more exquisite than in the world.

6322. It (appears) that the external senses, as sight and hearing, inflow into the thought, and excite ideas there: for it appears that objects move the senses: first, the external, and then the internal ones . . . but this appearance . . . is a fallacy . . . It is the internal sense, or the sense of the man's spirit, which sensates through the external sense, and disposes the external sensory to receive objects according to its bidding; and therefore the sensories . . . accommodate themselves in a moment to all objects according to their quality; which would not come forth in the sensories unless there were an influx from within; for all the fibres and little appendages . . . around every sensory or organ of sense, are determined in an instant in a manner suitable to the quality of the object: nay, a conformable state is infused in a moment into the organ itself. Ex. D.4604.

[A.] 6408. Internal bliss . . . rarely puts itself forth . . . to the sense; for when man lives in the body, he sensates distinctly the things which come forth in the body, but very obscurely those which come forth in his spirit; for worldly cares . . . impede . . .

7038². These (five) senses (from their correspondence with the Grand Man) have delights exactly according to the uses which they perform. The most delightful is the sense of conjugal love . . . Then follows the delight of taste . . . The sense of smell is a less delight . . . The delight of hearing, and of sight, are in the last place . . . These two serve the Intellectual, and not so much the Voluntary. H.402. M.68^e.

7236^e. Many men many minds—tot sensus quot capita.

8636. For man apprehends only those things which have been obvious to the senses: from these he has acquired a lumen . . .

8861². Lastly, natural truths, which are conclusions from the objects of the external senses.

8953. The inhabitants (of Saturn) relate to that in man which is the middle between the spiritual sense and the natural sense . . . 9107.

9107. The Spirits of our Earth relate to the natural and corporeal sense . . . U.89.

9466. The Celestial of good and the Spiritual of truth are represented in the lower Heavens . . . before the very external senses of the Spirits and Angels there.

H. 170. Yet the Angels have all the senses which man has, and much more exquisite.

212². For whatever man thinks, goes through the fibres from their beginnings to their ends, whence comes sense.

401^e. This bliss . . . is then revealed and let out into manifest sense, because they are in the spirit.

434². The spirit enjoys sensories and senses, when separated from the body, equally as when in it . . . In a word, all the life of sense which man has, is not of his body, but of his spirit . . . The reason the spirit sensated naturally when it was in the body, was through what is material adjoined to it; but even then it sensates spiritually at the same time, by thinking and willing.

461. That after death man is in every sense . . . in which he is in the world. Chapter.

462. Those in Heaven sensate—that is, see and hear—much more exquisitely than when they were (here). . . . The difference of these external senses is like that between what is clear and the obscurity of a mist . . . but the rest of the senses, with the Angels, are not so exquisite as are the senses of sight and hearing, for the reason that sight and hearing are of service to their intelligence and wisdom, but not the rest: if these were exquisite in a like degree, they would take away the light and delight of their wisdom, and would introduce the delight of pleasures . . .

—^e. Just so great as are the perfection and excellence of the external and internal senses with the Angels, just so great is their imperfection with those who are in Hell.

532². As they (love themselves and the world above all things) they cannot pay any attention to anything except the things which enter through the senses of the body.

J. 27³. Few (spiritual things) can be produced to natural sense; for natural sense does not apprehend one thing out of thousands which the spiritual mind apprehends . . .

W. 41. Man has five external senses, which are called touch, taste, smell, hearing, and sight. The subject of touch is the skin . . . this sense is in the substance and form of the skin . . . and is only an affection of it from the things applied to it. So with taste; this sense is only an affection of the substance and form of the tongue, which is its subject. (So with the other senses.)

—³. (Thus) the affection of the substance and form which makes the sense, is not anything separate from the subject, but only causes a change in it . . . Hence it follows, that sight, hearing, smell, taste, and touch are not anything volatile which flows forth from their organs, but are the organs regarded in their substance and form, which, while being affected, sense takes place.

42. For there are in the brain innumerable substances and forms, in which resides every interior sense which relates to the understanding and the will.

406. And all the senses of the body derive their perception from that of their mind.

P. 136⁷. For everything of the understanding and the will is first formed through the things which enter through the senses of the body, especially through the sight and hearing.

R. 875¹². For all things which are sensated in the organs of the senses inflow from without, and are sensated in them: in like manner in the organs of the internal senses . . .

M. 155a⁴. Every male man has five senses . . . but we (wives) have a sixth, which is the sense of the deliciousness of all things of the conjugal love of the husband; and we have this sense in our palms when we touch the breasts, arms, hands, or knees of our husbands, especially their breasts, and also when we are touched by them . . .

—⁵. I asked the husbands, Have you a like sense of conjugal love? They replied, We have in general, but not in particular . . .

166. Wives know their husbands' affections by three senses; sight, hearing, and touch.

187². Infants in Heaven . . . first grow in inclination to such things as please the senses of their body, and afterwards gradually to such things as affect the internal cogitative sense . . .

208⁴. This (cold on the part of our husbands) we notice from the withdrawal of the sense from their eyes, ears, and body, at the presence of our senses.

210. Every love has its own sense: the love of seeing from the love of understanding, has the sense of sight . . . The love of hearing from the love of hearkening to and obeying, has the sense of hearing . . . The love of Knowing those things which are circumfluent in the air from the love of perceiving, has the sense of smell

. . . The love of nourishing one's self from the love of imbuing one's self with goods and truths, has the sense of taste. . . The love of Knowing objects, from the love of being circumspect and of guarding one's self, has the sense of touch . . . and the reason the love of conjoining one's self with a mate, from the love of uniting good and truth, has the sense of touch, is that this sense is the common sense of all the senses . . .

I. 8. That . . . love and wisdom . . . inflow conjointly into the soul; through this into the mind, its affections and thoughts; and from these into the senses, speech, and actions of the body. Gen. art.

T. 335⁶. Through their brains, the Spiritual World inflows immediately into the senses of the body (of animals).

577³. There is such a co-operation in every sense . . .

763. What is sense without relation . . . to opposites?

775. It is according to Divine order that there be generals and particulars, and that both be together in every single thing. . . So it is with every sense of the body: with the sight, hearing, smell, taste, and touch: and so it is with all the internal senses, which are of the mind.

D. 399. That evil Spirits can, permissively, induce almost any sense, as it were heavenly . . .

899. There are two ways into the human understanding; through the senses—through this way is born the understanding—and through Heaven . . .

904, 905. Hearing and sight belong to provinces of spiritual, and the rest of the senses, to provinces of celestial things.

1343. On sense, and representations (there).

1415. On the Spirits (of Mercury) who constitute those things in man which are called the internal sense.

1418. 1425. 1428. 1454. 1455. 3258.

1442. On the interior sense of man. 1445. 1448.

1718. Without sense there is no life, either corporeal or spiritual; and all sense relates to touch, even the more interior and inmost senses, as may be known to everyone even from the sense of sight and of hearing. 1719.

2191. Correspondence of the Heavens as to degrees with the senses in the body.

2209. That if man were in order he would still enjoy every sense which brutes do.—Some brutes possess a sense of knowing the way home . . . which sense is a general one in those who live according to order . . .

2386. Man (even here) has not the sense of touch, and the rest of the senses, from the body; but from the spirit which is in it . . .

—^c. This is the cause of the corporeal touches which come forth only with those who have come recently into the other life. More subtle senses succeed, all of which must be referred to the sensation of touch, in order for them to be senses.

2930. There are very many such in the world as reject spiritual things, because they do not apprehend them with the senses . . .

3320. Every sense of the body has its own respiration, nay, its own place of respiration. Ex.

3471. As the whole brain is the Organic of the internal senses . . .

3567. Spirits have every sense except taste . . .

3860. On the general natural sense. Gen.art. (See A.4325. 4329.)

3900. Such become Spirits almost devoid of sense.

3963. Spirits have been with me . . . also as to sense . . .

4235. (Solifidians) are those who constitute the more general sense of Spirits . . .

4834. On the Hell of those who take away all sense of civil, moral, and Christian truth and good.

E. 14. There are two senses given to man which serve as means for receiving the things through which the Rational is formed, and also the things through which man is reformed, namely, the sense of sight, and the sense of hearing: the rest of the senses are for other uses . . .

349⁴. None of the senses of man, namely, sight, hearing, smell, taste, and touch, are in man; but they are excited and produced from influx. In man there are only the organic forms which are the recipients, which have no sense until something adapted flows in from without. It is the like with the internal sensories, which are of thought and affection, and which receive influx from the spiritual world, as with the external sensories, which receive influx from the natural world.

D. Wis. vii. 4². Without correspondence and reciprocity, there is no life in sense . . .

x. 4. The will acts the first part in producing motions, and the understanding in presenting senses . . .

—^e. That the lungs act the first part in the senses, and the heart the second . . . (for) all the organs of the senses correspond to such things as are of the understanding. Enum.

Sense, Abstract. See ABSTRACT SENSE.

Sense, Celestial. See CELESTIAL SENSE.

Sense, Common. See COMMON SENSE.

Sense, External. See EXTERNAL SENSE.

Sense, Historical. See HISTORICAL SENSE.

Sense, Inmost. See INMOST SENSE.

Sense, Internal. See INTERNAL SENSE.

Sense of Letter. Sensus literae.

Sense, Literal. Sensus literalis.

Letter. Litera.

Sense, Ultimate. Sensus ultimus.

See under BEAR—ursus, INTERNAL SENSE, LETTER, NATURAL SENSE, and WORD.

A. 1. This no mortal apprehends from the letter, or sense of the letter . . . 4. 37. 64.

3. Without such life, the Word as to the letter is dead. Ex. . . The Word as to the letter alone is like a body without a soul. 755⁵.

[A.] 49^e. 'Cloud'=the literal sense of the Word. (See under CLOUD.)

64. The Angels know nothing at all of what is of the letter, not even the proximate meaning of a single word; still less the names of the countries, cities, rivers, and persons . . . 1143.

65. Certain Spirits when taken up to Heaven understood nothing of the letter. 3474.

735. So all who remain in the sense of the letter, where it speaks according to the apprehension of man, consequently according to the fallacies of his senses: if they, in simplicity, have faith in these things, because it is the Word of the Lord . . . they easily suffer themselves to be instructed. Examp. 1408^e.

1143². If the man of the Most Ancient Church were alive now, he would not inhere a whit in the sense of the letter, but would be as if he did not see it . . . 1540².

1405. Unless the sense of the letter as it were vanishes . . . 1408.

1408². The corporeal things of the Word are those which are of the sense of the letter; and, when the mind is kept in them, the internal things are not seen . . . But still the things of the sense of the letter are like those which are with man in his body . . . which are general vessels . . .

—^e. All the books of the Ancients had a sense different from that in the letter.

1807^e. He who is in Divine things never looks at the Word from the letter; but looks at the letter and the literal sense as representative . . . of celestial and spiritual things. To him the literal sense is only as an instrumental means for thinking about them. Such was the Lord's sight.

1832². The things of the literal sense . . . are representatives . . . and thus are not in themselves truths: some are even falsities, which, however, can serve as vessels . . . Examp.

1866. Thus the letter vanishes, and its historical sense . . . 1874^e. 2015².

1871. In the literal sense there is scarcely anything which does not appear devoid of order; but, when it is being read . . . it becomes more beautiful as it ascends . . .

1872. The black dress (represented) the Word in the letter.

1888. That the sense of the letter is representative of Divine arcana; and that it is the receptacle and thus the repository of the Lord's celestial and spiritual things. (Illustrated by two examp.)

1984^e. Still, the sense of the letter represents truths, and presents appearances of truth, in which man can be, while not in the light of truth.

2069. The sense of the letter merely furnishes objects 2275. 2953.

2162⁵. That they saw only . . . the literal sense. Sig.

2225. What is necessary for salvation is the same in the letter . . . 2609.

2242³. Thus the sense of the letter is according to appearances . . . Therefore the Word as to the letter is for man . . .

2311. The literal sense is like a body . . .

2335^e. The quality of the Word in the letter.

2395². The sense of the letter not hurtful to the simple.

—^e. When these things are read . . . the sense of the letter is rejected . . .

2531². In the literal sense are truths which are accommodated to the apprehension of those in external worship . . .

2760, Pref. Everyone confirms his dogma from the literal sense . . .

2760². 'Clothed in a vesture dyed in blood'=the Word in the letter.

3373². Why interior truths rarely appear in the sense of the letter of the Old Testament.

3382². The sense of the letter, in its ascent towards Heaven, is put off . . .

3393. The Lord is the Word . . . as to the literal sense also.

3424. 'A well of living waters'=the Word as to the literal sense, in which is the internal sense. Ex. 3427.

3425⁴. The things in the literal sense appear opposed to those in the internal sense; yet are never opposed, but correspond completely. Sig. and Examp.

3431. Removal to . . . lower or more exterior truths such as are extant in the literal sense. Sig.

3432. 'He dug another well, and for that they strove not'=the literal sense . . . which they do not deny.

—^e. The literal sense . . . is threefold: historical, prophetic, and doctrinal, all of which can be apprehended by those in externals.

3436. The doctrine of faith, here signified by 'Beer-sheba,' is the literal sense itself . . . 3445.

—². He who is in simple good, and believes the Word in simplicity according to its literal sense, is gifted with the faculty of perceiving truths when instructed in the other life; and in the mean time the few truths with him are vivified by charity and innocence, and then the falsities are not hurtful . . .

3438. 'Jehovah appeared unto him in that night' . . . By this obscurity is signified the literal sense . . .

—². How the case is with the literal sense. (See INTERNAL SENSE, here.)

3439. That the Divine was also in the literal sense. Sig. and Ex.

3440. That there is an increase of good and truth with man from the literal sense also, is because in this sense also each and all things are Divine; and because in the literal sense the internal sense is open in many places. Examp.

3451. The agreement of the literal sense with the internal sense, consequently that of the doctrinals of faith . . . from the literal sense, therewith. Tr.

—^e. For the Word as to the literal sense is the Lord's Kingdom itself on earth.

—². As the Church has its doctrinals from the literal sense, it cannot but be various . . .

—³. For the literal sense, in many places, appears opposed to itself: the reason is that in this sense there are appearances of truth accommodated to those who . . . are also in worldly and corporeal loves.

3452. That doctrinals of faith, regarded in themselves, are not to be denied, so far as they are from the literal sense. Sig. and Ex. . . For they are accepted by the Lord, provided that he who is in them is in the life of charity . . .

3454^e. That the Word is Divine . . . is denied by those who acknowledge no other holiness in it than what appears in the letter . . .

3464. 'We have found waters' = . . . the interior truths which are in all the doctrinals drawn from the literal sense; for the literal sense is like a well in which is water.

—². When man is in the doctrinals which are from the literal sense, and at the same time in a life according to them, he has correspondence in himself; for the Angels with him are in interior truths, while he is in exterior, and thus he has communication with Heaven through the doctrinals, but according to the good of his life. Examp. 3469, Tr.

3472. That each and all things in the literal sense are representative of the spiritual and celestial things of the Lord's Kingdom.

3476. The literal sense unites man with the First Heaven . . .

3477. The arcana of wisdom manifest to man from the literal sense, are relatively (extremely) few.

3605³. As it so appears, it is so said in the sense of the letter.

3712². Divine doctrine is also the Word in the literal sense . . . As the literal sense contains in it the internal sense, and this the supreme sense . . . the doctrine therefrom is Divine. As Jacob represents the Divine Natural, he also represents the Word as to the literal sense. . . The Natural of the Word is circumstanced no otherwise than its literal sense . . .

3735. To the Angels such things as are in the sense of the letter are only objects for thinking about heavenly and Divine things; for such things are vessels which are in the ultimate of order. Examp.

—². A man who reads the Word holily, is by such correspondences closely conjoined with Heaven . . . although he be in thought solely about the things . . . which are in the sense of the letter. Ex.

3765. The Word is here called 'a well' because it treats of the Natural, which . . . apprehends the Word only at the literal sense.

3769. 'A great stone was upon the well's mouth' . . . The Word is said to be closed, when understood only as to the sense of the letter, and when everything therein is taken for doctrine. Ex.

3819². In the literal sense there are general truths. Ex.

3909. The things extant in the sense of the letter . . . are relatively harsh . . . but become mild and gentle as they are elevated . . . The literal sense is such because it has been accommodated to the apprehension of the natural man . . . 4002.

4104². Thus, although the literal sense is natural, still in every single thing it contains spiritual things. 4279.

4279². The lowest or literal sense is for man while he lives in the world.

4358. Interrogations in the sense of the letter are not interrogations in the supreme sense. Ex.

4373^e. Thus the literal sense by ascent becomes spiritual, and this even to the Lord, where it is Divine.

4391². 'Thick darkness under His feet' . . . The literal sense is such. Ill. 9406⁵.

4480. The Spiritual of the Word does not appear in the letter; for in the letter there is what is worldly . . . But, when read by man, what is worldly therein becomes Spiritual . . . with the Angels . . .

4768. The subject treated of (in the history of Joseph's coat) . . . is the confirmation of falsity by appearances which are presented by reasonings from the sense of the letter. 4769. 4783.

4783. For the sense of the letter has generals, which are like vessels, which can be infilled with truths, and also with falsities, and thus be explicated in favour [of either]; and, as they are generals, they are relatively obscure, and have no light except from the internal sense. (Continued under INTERNAL SENSE.) Examps.

4861. 'Gate' = external truths, which are of the sense of the letter, and which afford an entrance.

5008⁶. All Divine truths can be confirmed from the literal sense. Ex.

5247⁶. 'Hairiness,' and 'a leathern girdle' = the literal sense . . . as to truths, and as to goods; for the literal sense is the natural sense. 5620¹². 5687.

5620¹². 'Wild honey' = the delight which is in the literal sense as to good.

—¹³. For Divine truth . . . in the literal sense is delightful, because it suffers itself to be explicated in each one's favour.

5945. Doctrinals of scientifics are doctrinals from the literal sense; and are especially serviceable to those who are first being inaugurated into the interior truths of the Church.

6071. The scientifics of the Church at this day are the things which are of the literal sense; and unless truths from the internal sense are insinuated into these scientifics, the mind can be led away into every heresy . . . Examps.

6221^e. In its descent, the Word . . . at last clothed itself with a form adapted to the apprehension of man, which is the literal sense.

6222². A man can confirm any dogma from the literal sense. The reason is that the things of the literal sense are general vessels, which receive truths, and the quality of these vessels does not appear until they have received truths . . .

6619^e. With those in whom the thought has been closed, nothing more appears therein than the sense of the letter, or that nearest the words. 6620.

[A.] 6774. 'A well' = the Word as to the literal sense . . . Moses dwelt 'near a well' . . . because the literal sense is the first with those being regenerated . . . And those in the truths of simple good care only for the literal sense.

6775. Those are said to be in simple good who . . . in simplicity believe the Word as to its literal sense, everyone according to his own apprehension . . .

6789². Unless the internal of the Word inflows with those who . . . remain in the literal sense, there is not effected the conjunction of the truth from the Word with good. It inflows when the man holds the Word to be holy; and he does this when he is in good.

6832. The scientific truth of the Church is nothing but the Word in the sense of the letter . . . 9025².

6839. (Thus) the things which are in the sense of the letter are such as accommodate themselves to the apprehension of the simple, who do not believe unless [a thing] is as it appears. 6997^e. 8705².

7089. By doctrine (which Aaron represents) is meant the Word such as it is in its literal sense . . .

7840². The men of the External Church are those who have qualified their good by exterior truths, such as are those of the literal sense.

8443². Truth Divine in the sixth degree is such as is with man, accommodated to his perception; thus is the sense of the letter.

8581⁴. The great errors into which those fall who strictly adhere to the sense of the letter. Examp. 10276⁸.

8781². The Word in the letter, especially the prophetic Word, is nothing else (than the density of a cloud) relatively to its internal sense.

8891³. The Angels do not see the sense of the Word according to the letter, but according to the things therein . . .

8916. Truth Divine, or the Word . . . in the external form, is its external or literal sense. That this sense is called 'a cloud,' and 'smoke.' Refs.

8920². Truth Divine . . . in the world, is such as is its sense in the letter . . .

8943². The literal sense does not vanish, or die, through the internal sense . . . but lives through it.

9025². The literal sense is for the simple; for those being initiated into the interior truths of faith; and for those who do not apprehend interior things; for it is according to the appearance before the sensuous man, thus is according to the apprehension. Hence it is that dissimilar and contradictory things often appear there. Examp.

— . Hence it is that the doctrines of the Church in very many things recede from the literal sense.

—³. Those who learn and teach the literal sense alone, without doctrine, . . . comprehend only those things which are of the external man . . . The reason is that the Word in the external or literal sense is natural.

9026. The agreement of the truths of faith with those which are of the literal sense; and that the things which are of the literal sense cannot be extinguished; for they are truths in the ultimate of order. Tr.

— . The things of the literal sense can indeed be weakened, but cannot be extinguished; and, after they have been weakened, they can be separated, and then be restored by means of explication. Sig.

9031. For the things in the literal sense, if looked at interiorly, all agree together. Sig. and Ex.

—². So with every truth of the literal sense; for, in natural light . . . this appears as said in the Word; for the literal sense is natural, and for the sensuous man; but when the same is presented in the light of Heaven, it appears according to the internal sense.

9032. Spiritual truth . . . weakened by . . . that of the literal sense. Tr. It is commonly believed that the truth of doctrine . . . is the same as the truth of the literal sense. Examp.

9033. It now treats of the weakening of . . . the literal sense by spiritual truth. Examp.

—^e. This is attributed to the Lord in the sense of the letter, because it appears so; and therefore, being an apparent truth, it is not to be denied, that is, extinguished; for thus faith in the Word would be extinguished . . . Refs.

9034². 'A man-servant' = the truth of the literal sense . . . For this is of service to spiritual truth. Ex.

—⁴. How the truths of the literal sense serve for the formation of spiritual truths; in general, for the formation of faith and charity. Ex.

9035. For the truths of the literal sense, stored up in man's natural memory, form there as it were a field —campum—for the mental view of the internal man . . . and from this field the internal man chooses such things as agree with the good in him.

9036. The punishment of spiritual death. Sig. For the truth of the literal sense is extinguished, and with it, faith in the Word.

9093^e. Truths in the external form are such as those of the Word in the literal sense.

9127⁶. 'Water' = external truth Divine, such as is the Word in the letter.

9163⁴. Truths ultimate in order are those of the sense of the letter, in which are the truths of the internal sense, and upon which these rest, like columns on their pedestals.

9166⁵. 'His foot-stool' = truth Divine below Heaven such as is the Word in the literal sense; for on this rests truth Divine in Heaven . . .

9348. The literal sense perversely applied then chiefly prevails.

9349. The literal sense is thereby not annihilated, but rather confirmed. Ex.

9360. The (people) of our earth relate to the external and corporeal sense, in which the interior things of life cease . . . It is the like with truth Divine in the letter, which is called the Word; for which reason it was given in this Earth . . .

9372³. 'A reed' = truth in the ultimate, such as is the Word in the letter.

9382². Those thus illuminated . . . make for themselves doctrine from the Word, to which they apply the sense of the letter . . . Most of these make for themselves no doctrine, but remain in the sense of the letter, which they apply to favour falsities . . .

9391¹². 'Ground to powder' = falsity thence confirmed from the sense of the letter. 'A brook from Mount Sinai' = truth Divine, thus the Word in the letter: for this descends thence.

—¹⁴. To pervert the scientifics of truth and good from the sense of the letter in favour of their cupidities, and still to worship them as holy. Sig.

— . Things from proprium . . . are false, although outwardly they appear as truths, because taken from the sense of the letter.

9396. 'The book of the covenant' = the Word in the letter, with which is conjoined the Word in Heaven. Ex.

9406. 'Under His feet' = the ultimate sense, which is the sense of the letter itself. Ex.

— . The ultimate of truth Divine . . . is such as is the sense of the letter, which is natural, because for the natural man. The sense of the letter contains in itself the internal sense . . .

—⁴. 'We have found Him in the fields of the wood' = in the natural or literal sense.

—⁶. When truth Divine . . . is translucent with man from the very sense of the letter, this sense is described by 'the feet of the resplendence of polished brass.'

—⁷. 'A stone out of the rock crushing the iron, clay, brass, silver, and gold' = that the Church as to the reception of truth from the Word perishes when falsity and evil are confirmed through the sense of the letter.

—^e. In the most ancient times, nothing was seen in the sense of the letter except what is heavenly, almost abstractedly from the letter.

9407. See SAPPHIRE.

— . (Thus) this sense, which is the ultimate one in order, contains in itself the spiritual and celestial sense, and, inmosty, the Divine itself . . .

—³. From this comparison (with human speech) an idea may be had concerning the Word in the letter; for this is attended to in Heaven, just as a man's thought is wont to be as presented in speech . . . but the difference is, that the sense of the letter, when being read by man, is neither heard nor apperceived in Heaven, but only the internal sense . . .

9409. Those in the external sense alone, separated from the internal. Sig. and Ex. 9421.

—⁴. Hence the external sense, without doctrine . . . is bent wherever one pleases . . .

9410. With those in the external sense separated from the internal, there is no truth in its power. Sig. and Ex.

— . There is no communication with the Angels if the Word is apprehended as to the letter only, and not at the same time according to something doctrinal . . . which is the internal of the Word.

9414. Instruction from the Lord for those in the external sense. Sig. and Ex.

9419. The external or literal sense of the Word is presented representatively in Heaven, in one way with those who are in the external sense, and at the same time in the internal . . . and in another way with those who are in the external sense separated from the internal.

9422. 'To sit beneath the mount' = to remain in the external sense. Ex.

9424. The doctrine of truth from the external sense alone. Sig. and Ex. —⁴.

—⁹. A semblance of truth induced from the external sense alone. Sig.

9425. That falsities were to be removed (by) doctrine from the external sense. Sig. and Ex.

9427^e. The external (or literal sense) covering the internal, and also Heaven. Sig.

9433^e. 'Bases' = truths in ultimates, such as are those of the Word in its literal sense; hence it is said that it 'shall not be removed to eternity.'

9468⁶. See SCARLET.

9642³. Those in falsities which they confirm from the sense of the letter wrongly explicated. Sig.

9809^e. Falsity in which is good . . . is such as there is with all who remain in the sense of the letter, and in doctrine thence, but still have as the end the good of life.

9828⁶. The 'garments' (of Elijah and John) = the Word in the external sense, which is natural. L. 15^b.

9917². The 'fringe' = Divine truths in ultimates, such as are those of the Word in the sense of the letter; which are said to 'fill the temple,' when they fill the Church.

9995⁷. 'To grind meal' = to select such things from the sense of the letter as will serve to confirm evils . . .

10028². When man is being purified, he first of all learns such truths as can be apprehended by the sensuous man, such as are in the sense of the letter . . .

—^e. Thus all interior truths are together, in the truths of the sense of the letter . . .

10126^e. Hence it is that the Word in ultimates, that is, in the sense of the letter, is representative . . . and thus serves as a basis and foundation to the Heavens.

10217⁷. The truth of the Church falsified by the literal sense of the Word applied to favour evils. Sig.

10276³. (Thus) the literal sense is holy from its internal sense; but, separated from it, is not holy.

10300^e. 'The waters of Jericho (healed)' = the truths of the Word in the sense of the letter. Ex.

10324. The Word in the letter cannot be apprehended except by means of doctrine made from the Word by one who is illustrated; for the sense of the letter is accommodated to the apprehension even of simple men.

10400. Doubt and denial that there is any Divine truth except what is extant in the sense of the letter. Sig. and Ex.

10402. The extraction of such things from the sense of the letter as favour external loves. Sig. and Ex. 10406. 10478.

10431². Thus the Word as to the letter is according to the appearance with man.

[A.] 10441. For the sense of the letter . . . is for the most simple, and for infants . . .

10453. The two 'tables' here = the external of the Word . . . The external of the Word is the sense of the letter. This sense is signified by 'the tables,' because it is like a table . . . on which the internal sense has been written.

—³. That the two tables were broken . . . involves the arcenum that the sense of the letter would have been different, if the Word had been written with another people. Ex. 10461. 10603, Sig. and Ex.

10547^e. All celestial and spiritual things inflow into natural and worldly ones, and cease in them, and form and constitute them . . . This is the case with the external sense of the Word, which is called the sense of the letter.

10582³. In such obscurity and falsity of faith are those who believe the Word solely as to the sense of the letter, without doctrine made thence . . . Sig. 10584².

10607. The external of the Word, etc., are here represented by Moses, and Mount Horeb, etc. 10609. 10614. 10689. 10691.

H. 259^e. The natural sense of the Word, which is to us the sense of the letter, is not in Heaven . . .

307^e. (Thus) the sense of the letter serves as a basis and foundation (for Heaven). 305.

311^e. But the sense of the letter unless genuine doctrine enlightens, distracts the mind . . .

N. 262. (Refs. to passages on the sense of the letter, or external sense of the Word.) W. H. 13.

J. 1. For the sense of the letter is natural, and in the ultimate of Divine order . . . and therefore he who comprehends the Word solely according to the sense of the letter may be carried away into various opinions . . .

28². Without such a letter, the Word could not have been . . .

C. J. 62^e. The Lord's 'heel' which is 'the seed of the woman,' is the proceeding Divine in ultimates, which is the Word in the sense of the letter.

W. H. 1². The Word in the letter to which violence has been done. Sig.

7^e. It is the literal sense which is illustrated. Refs.

8. The things which have become of faith from the literal sense are not to be extinguished, except after a full view. Ref.

10². The sense of the letter is transmuted into the spiritual sense in a moment with the Angels, without their hearing or knowledge of what is in the sense of the letter. Refs.

S. 5. The spiritual sense is not that which shines forth from the sense of the letter when anyone examines and explicates the Word to confirm any dogma . . . This sense is the literal sense.

10^e. The 'wall,' and its 'foundations' = doctrine from the literal sense.

26⁴. The sense of the letter, in which is the spiritual sense, seen represented by a purse full of silver, lying open, but guarded.

27. That the sense of the letter of the Word is the basis, containant, and support of its spiritual and celestial sense. Chapter. T. 210.

33. (Thus) the Word without the sense of the letter would be like a palace without a foundation, etc.

35. The prophets thus represented the violence done to the sense of the letter by the Jews. Ill.

36. The Word in its ultimate or natural sense, which is the sense of the letter, is signified by the wall of the holy Jerusalem . . . by its foundations . . . and also by the gates . . . 43, Gen.art.

37. That Divine truth in the sense of the letter is in its fulness, holiness, and power. Chapter. W. 221, Ex. T. 214.

— . For the two interior senses . . . are together in the natural sense, which is the sense of the letter. 38^e. 65.

39. Thus the Word is the Word itself in its sense of the letter; for in this, within, it is spirit and life. Ex. The spiritual sense, and the celestial sense, are not the Word without the natural sense, which is the sense of the letter; for they are like spirit and life without a body . . .

40. The truths of the sense of the letter, in part, are not naked truths, but are appearances of truth, and are as similitudes and comparisons, taken from such things as are in nature, thus such as are accommodated and adapted to the apprehension of the simple and of infants: but, as they are correspondences, they are receptacles . . . of genuine truth . . .

41. As the Word in the sense of the letter is such, it follows that those who are in Divine truths . . . while reading the Word in illustration from the Lord, see Divine truths in natural light: for the light of Heaven, in which is the spiritual sense, inflows into the natural light in which is the sense of the letter, and illuminates the Intellectual of the man, and causes him to see . . . Divine truths, where they are extant, and where they are latent . . .

42. Hence the Word in its ultimate bosom, from its natural sense, in which are the two interior senses, is like a ruby and a diamond. Ex.

43. It is the sense of the letter from which is doctrine, and, through doctrine, the Church.

44. That the truths and goods of the sense of the letter are meant by the Urin and Thummim. Gen.art.

— . The ephod represented Divine truth in its ultimate; thus the Word in the sense of the letter.

—⁴. Answers from Heaven are given (solely from the ultimate sense of the Word), because in this sense is the proceeding Divine in its fulness. Sig. 48^e, Sig.

45. That the truths of the sense of the letter are meant by the precious stones in the garden of Eden. Gen.art.

46. That the sense of the letter is signified by the curtains and veils of the tabernacle. Gen.art.

47. That the external things of the Temple represented the external things of the Word, which are its sense of the letter. Ex.

49. Combat against evils and falsities must be waged through truths from the sense of the letter. Through the truths with man also the Lord has the power of saving him; for man is reformed and regenerated through truths from the sense of the letter . . .

—^e. The angels of both Kingdoms, and men, are together in (the sense of the letter).

50. That the doctrine of the Church is to be drawn from the sense of the letter, and to be confirmed thereby. Chapter. 53. 54. T.225.

— . It follows that the Lord is the most present in the sense of the letter; and that He teaches and illustrates man from it.

51. The Word in the sense of the letter consists of mere correspondences . . . Therefore in the sense of the letter, in some places, there are no naked truths, but clothed ones, which are called appearances of truth; and there are many things accommodated to the apprehension of the simple . . . and there are some things which appear like contradictions . . . As, therefore, the Word in the sense of the letter is such, it is evident that it cannot be understood without doctrine. Examps.

53. For the Lord is present with man in the sense of the letter, and nowhere else, and illustrates and teaches him the truths of the Church. And the Lord never operates anything except in fulness; and the Word in the sense of the letter is in its fulness. Hence it is that doctrine is to be drawn from the sense of the letter.

55. The doctrine of genuine truth can be fully drawn from the literal sense: for the Word in this sense is like a man clothed, whose face and hands are naked: all things which pertain to man's life, and thus to his salvation, are naked there; the rest are clothed; and, in many places where they are clothed, they show through, like a face through thin silk.

56^e. It is better, therefore, for man to study the Word in the sense of the letter: from it alone is doctrine given.

57. That the genuine truth, which must be of doctrine, does not appear in the sense of the letter to any others than those who are in illustration from the Lord. Gen.art.

58. The Lord inflows through these senses, and through their light, into the natural sense, and into the light of this with man: hence man acknowledges truth from interior perception, and afterwards sees it in his thought . . .

62. That through the sense of the letter there is conjunction with the Lord, and consociation with the Angels. Chapter.

63. These senses are evolved from the natural sense, which is the sense of the letter, when a true man is in it. The evolution (to the Angels) is instantaneous, and so, consequently, is the consociation.

64. When I have read the Word in its sense of the letter, communication has been effected with the Heavens, now with this Society of them, now with that; and those things which I understood according to the natural sense, the spiritual Angels understood according to the spiritual sense, and the celestial Angels according to the celestial sense; and this in an instant . . . 96.

—². Some Spirits abuse this communication, by reciting some sayings from the sense of the letter . . .

91. That heresies can be taken up from the sense of the letter; but to confirm them is hurtful. Chapter.

96. As each and all things of the sense of the letter communicate with Heaven, and open it . . . when a man applies this sense to confirm (evil) loves, the internal of the Word becomes false; and therefore, when its external, which is the sense of the letter . . . communicates with Heaven, Heaven is closed . . .

96b. The man who is in truths, not from doctrine, but from the sense of the letter alone, is at the circumference (of the garden) . . .

97. The sense of the letter is a guard for the genuine truths which are hidden within, in this way: that this sense can be turned hither and thither, and be explicated according to the apprehension, and yet the internal not be injured thereby; for it does no harm for the sense of the letter to be understood differently by one than by another: but this does harm—if the Divine truths which lie hidden within are perverted . . . (See T.260).

—³. The Lord does not speak with man except in what is full, and the Word in the sense of the letter is Divine truth in fulness.

—⁴. 'To ride,' and 'sit upon the cherubs' = upon the ultimate sense of the Word.

P. 231². The third kind of profanation is committed by those who apply the sense of the letter to confirm evil loves and false principles. Ex. 233¹⁰.

313^e. Let him who wants to do so remain in the sense of the letter . . . R.41^e.

R. 24. That the Lord will reveal Himself in the sense of the letter, and will open its spiritual sense, at the end of the Church. Sig. and Ex.

47. The Lord's 'hairs' = the Divine good . . . and Divine truth . . . in the ultimates of the Word, which are contained in its sense of the letter.

—². 'Bald' = the Word without the sense of the letter. 'Bears' = this sense separated from its internal sense.

—⁶. They who have despised the sense of the letter appear bald there; but they who have loved the sense of the letter appear with becoming hair.

148. 'He shall rule them with an iron rod' = through truths from the sense of the letter . . .

200^e. 'The beginning of the handiwork of God' = the Word such as it is in the sense of the letter; for this sense is the complex of its interior sanctities.

231². For all the precious stones in Heaven derive their origin from the ultimates of the Word . . . (which) are the truths and goods of its sense of the letter. T.209⁵. 217. E.717⁴.

238. A new Heaven from Christians who were in general truths from the sense of the letter. Sig. and Ex.

246. The Divine wisdom in its natural sense from its spiritual and celestial sense. Sig. and Ex.

256. 'The Book written on the back side' = the exterior sense which is Natural.

367. 'Palms' = Divine truth in ultimates, which is the Divine truth of the sense of the letter.

[R.] 513. Conjunction with the Lord in Heaven through the Divine truth of the Word in its sense of the letter. Sig.

540. 'Diadems,' or precious stones, = the truths of the Word; in special, the truths of the sense of the letter: here, falsified and profaned. Ex. E. 717.

544. That (the doctrine of the New Church) will convince through truths from the sense of the letter . . . Sig. and Ex. S28, Sig.

573. 'His feet as of a bear' = full of fallacies from the sense of the letter, read, but not understood. Ex. 574.

642². That, when He comes to Judgment, He will appear in the sense of the letter. Sig. and Ex.

672. Those truths and goods by which the evils and falsities of the Church are disclosed, taken from the sense of the letter. Sig. and Ex.

— . Naked goods and truths cannot inflow: for these are not received: but clothed truths, such as are in the sense of the letter. Moreover the Lord always operates from inmosts through ultimates, that is, in what is full. Sig.

736. 'Here is the mind which has wisdom' = that this interpretation is in the natural sense: but is for those who are in the spiritual sense from the Lord. . . The reason the interpretation was made by the Angel in the natural sense . . . is that the natural sense is the basis, containant, and support, of its spiritual and celestial sense; and therefore elsewhere also in the Word, interpretations have been given in the natural sense. E. 1061.

825. Divine truth in the ultimate sense, or the Word in the letter, to which violence has been offered. Sig. and Ex.

859. 'Gog and Magog' . . . = those solely in the sense of the letter, and thence in worship.

898. 'Having a wall great and high' = the Word in the sense of the letter, from which is the doctrine of the New Church. Ex.

—^e. For the doctrine of the New Church is from the sense of the letter only.

902. 'The wall of the city had twelve foundations' = that the Word in the sense of the letter contains all things of the doctrine of the New Church. Ex.

911. That every Divine truth in the sense of the letter, with the men of the New Church, is translucent from the Divine truth in the spiritual sense. Sig. and Ex.

—^e. The Word in the sense of the letter is such, that the more a man is illustrated by the influx of the light of Heaven, the more he sees truths from their connection and derivative form; and, the more he thus sees them, the more interiorly is his Rational opened.

915. All things of this doctrine from the sense of the letter in their order with those who approach the Lord immediately, and live according to His precepts . . . Sig. and Ex.

959. (How it is that the natural sense contains the other senses within it. See WORD, here.)

M. 24. (The preacher in that Heaven showed that the wisdom which is the Lord in the Word lies stored up in the sense of the letter, and is not opened except to those who are in truths of doctrine, and at the same time in goods of life.

T. 207. While these (Divine truths of the spiritual sense) are in man, the sense of the letter cannot be perverted. For the sense of the letter can be bent hither and thither; but if it is bent to what is false, its internal holiness perishes, and its external holiness with it; whereas if it is bent to what is true, that holiness remains.

212^e. Thus in its sense of the letter, which is natural, there is an interior sense . . .

238. The Word in the letter is like a cabinet containing precious stones arranged in order . . .

241². (Thus) the Word in Heaven, as to the literal sense, is similar to our Word, and at the same time corresponds to it . . .

258. When a man in falsities applies the sense of the letter to them, then the falsities are in it, and the truths are dissipated, which is effected on the way from the man to Heaven. (Shown by comparisons).

287. The decalogue, in the sense of the letter, contains the general precepts of doctrine and of life . . . Gen. art. 291.

508². The sword vibrating in his hand = that the sense of the letter can be turned hither or thither, provided it is done in application to some Truth.

704. In the natural sense, the Lord's 'flesh and blood' = the passion of the cross.

D. 1335. (On those who make light of the sense of the letter.)

1624. (Effect of sticking solely in the literal sense.) 1736. 2391. 4759a. 5180^e. 5606.

1736. Those who remain in the literal sense constitute the filthy outermost skin . . .

1737. Some remain in the literal sense, but admit an interior sense (when it suits them). Des.

2056. (Thus) the sense of the letter is much more penetrative when the mind does not inhere in that sense . . . as with critics.

2356. On the literal sense of the Word.

2694. That the literal sense is to be treated cautiously. Sig. 2695.

4121. The things contained in the literal sense are most general vessels. Ex. 4122.

4343. Thus perish all things which are of the sense of the letter . . .

4413. On the literal sense of the Word, and hypoerites. Paul.

4760. He twisted the literal sense . . . having a mind to destroy it, and the internal sense by the literal sense.

5370. 'The dragon' = those who want no doctrine, but only the Word in the letter. Des. 5422.

5951. See ENGLAND, here.

6096²⁸. They who are in the sense of the letter alone, and study it merely for the sake of honour, are in adultery as of a father with his daughter-in-law.

E. 64. The Lord's garments which they divided = the Word in the letter . . .

71^e. Therefore when man thinks spiritually from natural things which are in the sense of the letter, he is conjoined with Heaven and in no other way.

98⁵. For the sense of the letter consists solely of external things which are in nature . . . for otherwise the Word would not be communicative with the Angels.

71^e. 175². 260². 329⁵.

175². The natural sense of the Word, which is its sense of the letter, is together with (the things proper to nature), and the sense which is together with them serves as a basis for the sense which is devoid of them ; for all things in nature are ultimates of Divine order, and the Divine does not subsist in the middle, but flows down to its ultimates, and so subsists. Hence it is that the Word is such in the letter ; and, unless it were such, it would not serve as a basis for the wisdom of the Angels, who are spiritual. 260².

237⁵. 'To plaster with untempered mortar' = falsity assumed as a principle, and made to appear as truth, by the application of the sense of the letter.

294. In the sense of the letter are mentioned only mediates which involve ends.

316¹⁵. The perversion of the Word as to its sense of the letter. Sig.

325⁶. The sense of the letter consists of secondaries . . .

355³¹. This truth is such as is contained in the sense of the letter : they who remain in this alone . . .

356⁶. That all things of doctrine are to be confirmed by the sense of the letter. Ex. . . When a man thinks any truth, and confirms it by the sense of the letter, it is perceived in Heaven ; but not if he does not confirm it ; for the sense of the letter is the basis, in which the spiritual ideas, which the Angels have, cease, almost as words are the basis into which the sense of thought falls and is communicated to another.

375². Therefore they who remain in the sense of the letter, and make doctrine for themselves thence, and live according to it, are in ultimate goods and truths. These . . . are in Heaven, but in the ultimate one ; for the goods and truths which they have drawn from the sense of the letter . . . have in them the interior goods and truths which are of the spiritual sense. Examps.

384. For the sense of the letter is such that they who are in good see truths there, and they who are in evil see falsities there ; for the sense of the letter is according to the apprehension of infants, etc., and is therefore according to the appearance ; but still in that sense truths lie hidden which are seen by no others than those who are in good . . .

449¹⁰. 'Benjamin' (in the blessing by Moses) = the Word in its ultimate sense, which is natural.

453¹². 'To gather together the waters of the lower fishpool' = to collect many things from the sense of the letter, and from the natural man.

503². For the sense of the letter is for the greatest part from the appearances in the Spiritual World.

520². For the truths of the sense of the letter to remain truths, they must be applied to confirm the goods of life, and the principles of true religion. If they are drawn away from this application as the end, they are truths no longer, because there is not any perception of truth in them. Ex.

537¹⁷. The 'old rags,' etc. with which they drew Jeremiah up, = the vindication and restitution of the truth of doctrine by such goods and truths of the sense of the letter as have not been perceived and understood, and therefore have been neglected and rejected.

540⁶. The things of the sense of the letter are signified by 'brass, tin, iron, and lead,' because by these are signified the goods and truths of the natural man, for which man are those things of the Word which are contained in its sense of the letter.

545³. It is provided by the Lord that no harm be done to anything in the sense of the letter, by denying it to be true and living, that is, Divine, although one confirms his own falsities by the sense of the letter ; for so long as he does not deny the Divine in the Word, he reads or hears it, and is thereby in some conjunction with Heaven. Sig.

579². For when a man thinks solely from fallacies, he thinks solely from those things which are extant at first sight in the sense of the letter ; and not from any interior literal sense. Des.

593. 'A mighty Angel descending from Heaven' = the Lord as to the Word ; here, as to its ultimate sense which is called the sense of the letter . . . because the Lord is called 'mighty' from this sense ; for all the strength and all the power of Divine truth come forth and consist in its ultimate, consequently, in the sense of the letter. Ex. —³.

—⁴. Hence all the doctrine of the Church ought to be formed and confirmed from the literal sense.

597. By Divine truth in ultimates is meant the Word in the sense of the letter ; and, as this sense is natural, and the Natural is the ultimate of Divine order, it therefore supports Divine truth spiritual and celestial, exactly as pillars do a house, and as the feet do the body ; for, without the natural sense of the Word, the interior things would dissolve . . . and therefore each and all things which are in the natural sense . . . are perpetual correspondences . . .

—². That the Word in the ultimate or natural sense is full of the good of love. Sig.

600. 'His right foot on the sea, and his left on the land' = the sense of the letter which is natural, in which are all things of Heaven and the Church. Ex.

614. That the Word in the sense of the letter was delightful, but in the internal sense . . . undelightful. Sig. 619, Ex. —³, Ex.

617¹⁷. 'To lift up the heel against Him' = to pervert the sense of the letter even to the denial of the Lord, and the falsification of all truth.

624⁵. For the sense of the letter, however falsified, has power.

627⁵. By ultimate truth, is meant sensuous truth, such as is the truth in the sense of the letter with those who are merely sensuous. Ex.

[E. 627]⁶. Divine truth in the ultimate degree is such as is the Divine truth in the sense of the letter for infants and the most simple who are sensuous. It is this Divine truth which is signified by 'a reed.' And as explorations with all are effected by this ultimate Divine truth . . . the measurings and weightings were done with reeds. Ill.

650³². 'The stump of the roots left in the earth' = the Word understood as to the letter only . . .

717³. For the truths of the sense of the letter shine, wherever they are; both with the evil and with the good. Ex. (See STONE, here.)

720. For the sense of the letter is such that if it is not interiorly comprehended, it can be explicated in different ways; and, if this sense is not looked at from genuine truths, it is believed according to the letter, and is falsified.

727¹⁸. That they will receive the truths of the literal sense with joy. Sig.

730¹³. The sense of the letter is called 'a desert' when understood only naturally . . .

739⁵. It does no harm for these things to be believed according to the historical letter . . .

739^e. The Lord's 'heel' = Divine truth in ultimates, which, with us, is the sense of the letter. This is perverted and falsified by the sensuous man, and is thus 'bruised.' 768³.

— That the sense of the letter is guarded, lest the Lord be approached except by appearances of truth . . . by those in evils. Sig. 1088^e.

778⁶. For the Word in ultimates is like a man clothed in a garment, who is naked as to the face and hands . . . and therefore . . . the doctrine of genuine good and truth can be seen from the sense of the letter by those who are illustrated by the Lord, and can be confirmed by those who are not illustrated. The reason the Word is such in the sense of the letter is that it may be a basis for the spiritual sense . . . And, as the Divine truths in the sense of the letter are mostly appearances of truth, and the simple cannot be elevated above them, it is not sin and blasphemy for the Word to be interpreted according to appearances, provided principles are not formed from them, and confirmed to the destruction of the Divine truth in its genuine sense. Examp.

797⁹. If the sense of the letter is falsified even to the destruction (of the Divine truth of the spiritual sense) Heaven is closed. Ex.

815. 'The beast rising out of the earth' = confirmations from the sense of the letter in favour of faith separated from life, and the consequent falsifications of the truth of the Church. Ex. 819, 821, 826.

832². The reason the literal sense communicates with Heaven, is that each and all things therein contain the spiritual sense within them; and the spiritual sense is perceived in the Heavens, when the natural sense . . . is understood by man. . . Some have recited words from the sense of the letter, and I have perceived that there was at once effected with them a communication with some Society of Heaven; for the spiritual sense had penetrated to that Society which was in the words recited from the sense of the letter . . .

888³. Therefore the sense of the letter, with a man who falsifies it, is perceived in Heaven in two ways: as genuine truth, and at the same time as this destroyed . . .

914³. There are within the Church those who explicate the sense of the letter even to the destruction of Divine truth in Heaven; and there are those who do not explicate it to this extent. The latter do not devastate the Church with themselves . . . The sense of the letter, understood in simplicity, does no harm to any spiritual truth which is in Heaven; but the sense of the letter explicated according to falsities of doctrine, and according to evils of loves, does harm. For the sense of the letter is Divine truth natural . . . and, when Divine truth natural is explicated even to the destruction of Divine truth spiritual, it can no longer make a one with it by correspondence with it; but the falsity according to which the Divine truth natural is explicated destroys the Divine truth spiritual; and this is the falsification of the Word, and the devastation of the Church by the falsifications.

916². For the truth in the sense of the letter is like a face shining through a veil . . .

—³. (Thus) a sensuous man . . . may think and believe these things according to the sense of the letter . . . but an adult man who wants to be wise, must not explicate them . . . according to the sense of the letter, and confirm them by reasonings . . .

931. 'The sea' = truths in general . . . or general truths, (which are) such as are the truths in the sense of the letter; and the sense of the letter is natural, and everything natural is a general receptacle of spiritual things . . . for the Natural has been formed from the Spiritual as an effect from its effecting cause; and, as a thousand things which are spiritual, effect and form one natural thing, this one thing . . . is a General. Such also is the Word in the sense of the letter relatively to the Word in the spiritual sense . . .

934. For those who live the life of charity . . . remain permanently in the truths of the sense of the letter, and do not pervert and falsify them. Sig. and Ex.

950. But Divine truth on earth is such as is the Word in the sense of the letter, in which are few genuine truths, such as are in Heaven; but there are appearances of truth. The natural man receives no other.

1033³. The Word as to its sense of the letter is such that it can be drawn to confirm every heresy . . .

1066⁴. (A series of important statements concerning the sense of the letter).

1079². The Word in the sense of the letter appears very simple; yet in it is stored up the wisdom of the three Heavens. Ex.

1084^e. As from the sense of the letter are drawn and called forth purer senses. (Shown by comparisons.)

1085². As there are three senses in the Word . . . and as the natural sense, which is the sense of the letter, is the containant of the two (others); it follows that the sense of the letter is the basis of them. And as the Angels of the three Heavens receive their wisdom . . . through the Word, and their Words make a one with our Word by correspondences, it follows that the sense of the letter of our Word is the basis, prop, and support of the wisdom of the Angels. For the Heavens subsist upon the human race as a house does on its foundation. Hence the wisdom of the Angels of Heaven in like manner subsists upon the knowledge, intelligence, and wisdom of men from the sense of the letter: for, through the sense of the letter, there is effected communication and conjunction with the Heavens.

—³. Hence it is that, of the Divine Providence, the Word as to the sense of the letter has not been mutilated from its first revelation, not even as to a word or letter, in the Original Text . . .

1086⁵. As all higher things store themselves in lowest ones in simultaneous order, it follows that in the ultimates of the Word, which are of its sense of the letter, are all things of Divine truth and Divine good even from their primes. And as all things of Divine truth and Divine good are together in their ultimate, which is the sense of the letter, it is evident that the power of Divine truth is there, nay, the Lord's omnipotence in saving man. For, when the Lord operates, He does not operate from primes through mediates, into ultimates; but from primes through ultimates, and thus into mediates . . . Rep.

—⁶. The power of the Word in the sense of the letter is the power of opening Heaven . . . and it is the power of fighting against evils and falsities . . . The man who is in genuine truths from the sense of the letter, can cast down and disperse in a moment the whole diabolical crew, and all their arts . . . by a mere look, and by an effort of will. In a word, in the Spiritual World, nothing can resist genuine truths confirmed from the sense of the letter.

1087². As, in the ultimate sense of the Word, which is called the sense of the letter, are all the interior things . . . which are in the Words of the three Heavens, together . . . and these are encompassed and enclosed in such things as come forth in the nature of our world; [therefore] from both the latter and the former is the sense of the letter of our Word. (Thus) Divine truth in the sense of the letter of our Word is in its fulness. Ex. . . As the Word in ultimates is such, it follows that it is not the Word until it is in its ultimate, thus until it is in the sense of the letter. If not in this, the Word would be like a temple in the air . . . And the Lord never operates except in fulness. Ex.

1088². Divine truth . . . is not holy until it is in its ultimate, which is the Word in the sense of the letter. Ex.

—⁴. Natural truths, which are those of the sense of the letter, are not the very truths of Heaven, but are appearances of them; and appearances of truth encompass, enclose, and contain the truths of Heaven, and cause them to be in connection and order, and to cohere . . .

1147. The rational draw from the sense of the letter such things as are of doctrine; the sensuous remain in the letter only.

De Verbo 10. On the sense of the letter. Gen.art. 11. 18. 19. 20.

Sense, Proximate. See PROXIMATE SENSE.

Sense, Relative. See RELATIVE SENSE.

Sense, Representative. See REPRESENTATIVE SENSE.

Sense, Spiritual. See SPIRITUAL SENSE.

Sense, Supreme. See SUPREME SENSE.

Sense, Universal. See UNIVERSAL SENSE.

Sensible. Sensibilis.

Sensibility. Sensibilitas.

See under SENSATION.

A. 1504^e. This sphere . . . is presented sensible. 1505. 1514. 9466.

4687². From the sensible things in the external man.

D. 2252. (Spirits) are more prompt and sensible.

4348². Sensibility, occurs.

Sensitive. Sensitivus.

A. 321. A Spirit has much more excellent sensitive faculties. 322.

2621². The Sensitive, or Corporeal, is man's existere.

3528. Everything sensitive relates to the sense of touch. . . For the Sensitive is nothing else than an external Perceptive; and the Perceptive is nothing else than an internal Sensitive. Ex.

4249^e. He believes from this Sensitive, and not from doctrine . . .

4622². All that Sensitive which appears in the body is properly of its spirit . . .

—⁴. The Sensitive of man immediately after death. Ex.

4623. The sensitive life of Spirits is twofold: real, and not real. Ex.

—². They would have no sensitive life.

7691. That all the Sensitive of truth would be obliterated. Sig. and Ex.

9050³. Hence man has . . . a sensitive perception of good.

W. 406. The love in its sensitive life, and in its active life. Ex. 407.

P. 24. All the Perceptive and Sensitive is derived from (relation).

Sensory. Sensorius.

A. 4324. The correspondence with man's external sensories: namely, with the sensory of sight, etc.

4407. The eye communicates with the understanding more immediately than the rest of the sensory organs . . . Hence sight penetrates to the internal sensory which is in the brain by a shorter and more interior way. Ex.

5017. The ear . . . receives speech, and bears it to the common sensory . . .

5552. Correspond to those Societies . . . which have the greatest life and happiness, such as are those to which correspond the external and the internal sensories.

[A.] 6322. It is the internal sense which . . . disposes the external sensory . . . and therefore the sensories . . . accommodate themselves in a moment. (Continued under SENSE—bodily.)

10199². All things sensated through the sensory organs inflow from internal things.

H. 402². These delights are in these sensories from the influx of Heaven, where all the delight is of the use, and according to it.

434². The Spirit equally enjoys sensories . . .

M. 155a³. Wives are the sensories (of these deliciousnesses).

D. 1719. The sensories are quite dead without interior things.

E. 152³. The body with all its sensories is only an instrument . . .

349⁴. It is the like with the internal sensories, which are of thought and affection . . .

427. The whole face, where are the sensories of sight, etc., corresponds to . . .

1146⁴. The sensories of the body are only recipients and percipients as of themselves. Enum. These five sensories sensate by influx from within, the things which inflow from without . . .

D. Love xix. This may be illustrated by the sensories of man.

D. Wis. ii. In the brains are the beginnings of the fibres, through which their forces . . . present in the sensories of the senses . . . —³.

Sensuous. Sensualis.

Sensuously. Sensualiter.

Sensuousness. Sensualitas.

See under FALLACY, KNOW—scire, LOCUST, SENSE (bodily), SERPENT, and TOOTH.

A. 31. 'Pharaoh,' and 'Egypt,' = the Sensuous and Scientific . . . 195³.

80. To inquire into the mysteries of faith by sensuous and scientific things, by which the Celestial dies. Tr. 126. 128.

120. Sensuous things from which are scientifics. Sig.

128. Wants to be instructed from sensuous things about heavenly and Divine ones, which is impossible . . .

191. The Sensuous is represented by 'the serpent.' 192. 194. 195. 235.

195. As serpents are nearest the earth, so are sensuous things nearest the body. Hence reasonings from sensuous things are called 'the poison of the serpent.'

—¹. Sensuous things, or visible ones, as are earthly, corporeal, worldly, and natural things . . .

—². Man's trust in sensuous things, whence is blindness. Sig.

196². One who is sensuous, or believes only in the senses, denies spirit because he does not see it . . .

197. 'The brazen serpent' = the Lord's Sensuous.

198. 'Not to touch it' = not to think about the good and truth of faith . . . from what is sensuous and scientific . . . 202.

208. This fourth posterity . . . did not want to believe revealed things, unless they saw them confirmed from sensuous and scientific ones.

243. In the most ancient celestial man the sensuous things of the body were such that they . . . served the internal man . . . But, after they had begun to love themselves, they preferred sensuous things before the internal man; and therefore they were separated, made corporeal, and thus damned. Tr.

247. That the Sensuous, which in itself is the lowest of man, because it had turned itself to what is earthly (could no longer look up to heavenly things). Sig.

249. That the Sensuous became so that it could not live from anything else than what is corporeal and earthly. Sig.

263. When the Sensuous averts itself . . . evil Spirits begin to combat strongly, and the Angels with man to labour. Sig.

276². The last posterity of the Most Ancient Church . . . was so immersed in sensuous and corporeal things, that . . .

746. See CREEP.

978². In every man there is (also) an interior Sensuous, which corresponds to the Heaven of Spirits.

—¹. The external man is formed by sensuous things not of the body, but derived from bodily things.

—³. Properly, the sensuous man, that is, he who thinks from sensuous things, is the external man.

—⁴. The good (there) first live a sensuous life in the World of Spirits; then an interior sensuous life in the Heaven of angelic Spirits; and lastly an inmost sensuous life in the angelic Heaven.

995. Corporeal and sensuous things, in themselves, are merely material, inanimate, and dead; but they live from the delights which come from interior things, in order.

1153³. The more sensuous man becomes, the more exterior his worship becomes. Ex. and Sig.

1178. Most men pass their time in sensuous things . . . and therefore are easily captivated by such a religion. Sig.

1414². Hence the union of corporeal things with Divine celestial ones; and of sensuous things with Divine spiritual ones.

1428. 'Lot went with him' = the Sensuous. 'Lot' represented the Lord as to His sensuous and corporeal man (in His state of boyhood). 1563.

—². But the Lord was not like another man in this: that His Sensuous and Corporeal was afterwards united to celestial things and made Divine.

1542². See PLEASURE.

1572. The sensuous things which are in worship . . . and which do not agree with celestial things. Tr.

1589. Three things constitute the external man: the Rational, the Scientific, and the external Sensuous . . . This Sensuous is outermost. . . The external Sensuous here, is sight and hearing.

1594². When a sensuous and corporeal man thinks about spirit . . .

— . This is the effect of living in corporeal and sensuous things, which life . . . scarcely differs from that of brutes . . .

1718. It is supposed that the things of the body, as its sensuous things, namely, touch, taste, smell, etc., constitute the external man. But these constitute the outermost man, which is merely corporeal. The external man is constituted of the sensuous things which are proper to the spirit, etc.

1893. Infants become rational by means of external and internal sensuous things . . .

—². The Rational is formed through scientifies, etc., which enter through external sensuous things . . .

1901². The Knowledges, which are insinuated through sensuous things . . .

1914^e. Think from the sensuous and corporeal Natural.

1935^e. Their Rational acts as one with the corporeal Sensuous.

2034^e. There was no operation of the Divine . . . into the internal sensuous things.

2083². He made Divine . . . also the interior and exterior Sensuous; thus the very body.

2162¹⁴. 'Shoe' = a still lower Natural, such as is the corporeal Sensuous.

2196². Appearances are things which are born from sensuous things . . .

2204. Human rational good . . . is formed also from the delights of sensuous things.

2209³. The Rational which is wise from sensuous things . . .

2479^e. In proportion as the mind can be withdrawn from sensuous and corporeal things, it is elevated to spiritual and celestial ones.

2524². Rational truth is acquired through the knowledges which are insinuated through external and internal sensuous things . . .

2541. Finally, sensuous things are subordinated to scientifies.

2553. All man's thoughts are terminated in the natural things which are of his sensuous things . . .

2557². By degrees (an infant) learns all things, especially through the sensuous things of hearing and sight.

2588². Such would not believe even if convinced through the sensuous things of the body: sight, hearing, etc.

2625². Believe only when they apprehend by sensuous things.

2632². His first Rational . . . was born by the external way, which is that of sensuous things, as with others.

3098. Truth inflows through the Sensuous . . . into the Natural. 3324. 3911. 3995².

3223². Spiritual light inflows into the light of the world . . . and causes man to perceive sensuously the objects of Things.

3309. Sensuous things are those in which children are; scientifies are those in which they are when they grow up. 3310⁴.

3310^e. No thought without a sensuous idea. 5110².

3325¹². No belief without apprehending sensuously.

3394². See CELESTIAL.

3498². Man can be withdrawn from the external sensuous things of the body; and also in some measure from the interior sensuous things which are of his natural man . . .

— . When man dies, he leaves behind altogether the external sensuous things which are of his body.

3901³. See EAGLE.

3957². Like those in interior thought by the abstraction of the mind from external sensuous things.

4009. For the Natural communicates on the one side with the sensuous things which are of the body . . . By this intermediate there is effected as it were an ascent from the sensuous things of the body . . . Rep.

—^e. In the Sensuous, as in the ultimate of order, prior things are together . . .

4038². The Corporeal communicates with the Natural by sensuous things . . . The sensuous things (or sensuals) of sight and hearing are those especially which perfect the Intellectual; and the other three sensuals regard the will. Through these sensuals man's Corporeal communicates with his Natural . . . For the things which enter through the sensuals reposit themselves in the Natural . . . this receptacle is the memory.

—³. The external sensuals are those through which the Corporeal communicates with the Natural; and the interior sensuals are those through which the Natural communicates with the Rational. Therefore those things in the Natural which partake of the external sensuals—which are proper to the body—are those called exterior and external truths of good; but those which partake of the internal sensuals—which are proper to the spirit and communicate with the Rational—are those called interior goods and truths.

4046³. They reason from external sensuous things . . . (and) represent the external skin of the head . . .

4117³. The first good, which is that of the sensuous things of the body. Sig.

4154. There are also sensuous goods and truths, which are of the body; thus outermost ones.

—². He who is a sensuous man sees no otherwise than that all interior things . . . are only sensuous; for he sees from sensuous things; thus from outermost ones.

4180⁴. Divine truth without Good . . . sticks in the external man, for the most part in his Sensuous.

4211^e. These are conjoined with the Lord as to His Divine Sensuous. Sig.

4255⁴. 'Gilead' = sensuous good, or pleasure. 4748³.

4330. For most (from this Earth) are sensuous . . . The external Sensuous constitutes almost everything with them. —^e.

—³. The Spirits who relate to the internal sensuous man did not care for such things . . . And when the external sensuous ones approached the internal sensuous ones, and came almost into the sphere of their thought, (the former) began to breathe with difficulty . . . but the further they departed from the internal sensuous ones . . . the more tranquil and restful they became . . . The reason was, that when the external sensuous ones are in their fallacies, phantasies, and hypotheses . . . they have tranquillity . . .

[A.] 4459². They do not go beyond the sensuous things which are of the external man . . .

4570². The external of the Natural is from the sensuous things of the body, and from those things which inflow immediately from the world through sensuous things: through these [sensuous things] man has communication with worldly and corporeal things. They who are solely in this Natural are called sensuous men; for they go scarcely any further in their thought. (Continued under NATURAL.) 5126.

4592³. 'Evil out of the north' = the Sensuous and derivative Scientific.

4609^e. Those to whom it is given to withdraw the mind from sensuous things. 5089.

4612³. The natural (first) receives its quality from the things which inflow from the world through the external sensuous things (or sensuals); through and from which man acquires an Intellectual . . .

4646². 'To Eliphaz she bare Amalek' = what is sensuous.

4715. 'He sent (Joseph) from the vale of Hebron' = from the Divine Natural and Sensuous. Ex.

—². For they who are sensuous men apprehend sensuously the things which are in the Lord and from the Lord.

5072. Corporeal things . . . are sensuous things, which are of two kinds: some being subordinate to the Intellectual, and some to the Voluntary. Tr.

5076^e. That the external sensuous things were in inverted order. Sig.

5077. 'The butler' = that external Sensuous, or Sensuous of the body, which is subordinate to the Intellectual of the internal man. Ex.

—². All the external sensuous things of man relate to his internal sensuous things; for they have been given to man and have been placed in the body in order to be of service to the internal man while he is in the world, and to be subject to his internal sensuous things. Therefore, when man's external sensuous things begin to dominate over his internal sensuous things, it is all over with man; for the internal sensuous things are then considered as mere servants to confirm those things which the external sensuous things command. They are then in inverted order.

—³. The Sensuous which is subject to the Intellectual is especially sight; that which is subject to the Intellectual and then to the Voluntary is hearing; that which is subject to both together is smell, and, still more, taste; and that which is subject to the Voluntary is touch . . .

5078. 'The baker' = that external Sensuous, or Sensuous of the body, which is subject to the Voluntary of the internal man. Ex.

—². See BODY.

5079. That (these two) external Sensuouses were contrary to the new state of the natural man. Sig. and Ex.

—². The interiors of the Natural are scientifics and their affections; and the exteriors are the sensuous things of both kinds . . . The latter are left behind by man when he dies . . .

5081. That (the new natural man) averted itself from the sensuous things of the body of both kinds. Sig. and Ex.

— . The sensuous things which are of the body, namely, sight, hearing, etc., are ministers like stewards, relatively to the interior man. Ex.

5084. That the sensuous things of both kinds are rejected by the primaries for interpretation. Sig. and Ex.

— . For sensuous things, and the things which enter into the thought immediately through sensuous things, are fallacies. All the fallacies which reign with man are thence.

5089². Unless the thought can be elevated above sensuous things, so that these are regarded as below, man cannot discern anything interior in the Word, still less such things as are of Heaven abstracted from those which are of the world; for sensuous things absorb and suffocate them. Hence it is that those who are sensuous . . . rarely apprehend anything concerning those things which are of Heaven . . .

5094. (Foresight and prediction) about sensuous things of both kinds. Sig. and Ex.

— . It is to be known that the sensuous things themselves are not rejected—namely, the things which are of sight, hearing, etc. for the body lives from these—but the views and thoughts from them, and also the affections and desires from them. The objects from the world enter into the external memory; on the one side, through these sensuous things; and on the other, through rational things . . . The things which have entered through sensuous things, place themselves exteriorly there; and thus the Natural becomes two-fold . . . Rep.

—². A sensuous man def.

5110. The event as to the things of the Sensuous subject to the Intellectual. Sig. and Ex.

5113. The influx of the Intellectual into the Sensuous subordinate to itself; and the rebirth of this Sensuous. Tr. and des. 5120. 5130³.

5114. Derivations to the ultimate, which is the Sensuous. Sig. —³, Ex.

— . The Sensuous, in general, is of the external man; here, the Sensuous of sight; because this is subordinate to the Intellectual. This Sensuous sees from the light of the world . . . and all it sees is worldly . . .

—². In every man there are derivations . . . down to the Sensuous which is in the light of the world; (otherwise) the Sensuous could not have any human life. Man's Sensuous has no life from the fact that it sees from the light of the world . . . but from the fact that it sees from the light of Heaven. Ex.

5117. (The truth of spiritual good and the good of celestial truth) both in the Sensuous represented by 'the butler.' Sig. and Ex.

5122. The states of the rebirth of this Sensuous. Sig. and Ex.

5125. That the things of the Sensuous subject to the Intellectual would be reduced into order. Sig. and Ex.

— . For the Sensuous itself is not reduced into order; but the things which have entered through the Sensuous into the man's phantasy.

— . As sensuous things, that is, those which have entered from the world through the external sensories, are in the last place, when they minister to interior things . . .

—². (How man may know whether sensuous things are in the first or last place.)

— . When sensuous things are in the last place, there inflows happiness from the interior man into the delights of sensuous things, and makes them a thousand times greater. A sensuous man does not apprehend this . . .

5126². From infancy to childhood, man is merely sensuous. Ex.

5127. The Sensuous represented by the butler had before served the interior Natural (Pharaoh) from the law of order. Sig. and Ex. 5128.

—². This is quite unknown to the sensuous man; for he who is merely sensuous does not know what interior is . . .

5128². A man with whom sensuous things are in subjection is called rational; but he with whom they are not in subjection is called sensuous . . . Whether a man be rational or sensuous cannot be known by others from his speech or acts. . . (Still) there are some indications. Ex.

—⁴. The principal indication as to whether a man is solely sensuous, or rational, is from his life. Ex.

—⁶. When sensuous things are subject to the Rational, then the sensuous things, from which comes the first imagination of man, are illustrated by the light which comes through Heaven; and then the sensuous things are disposed into order, that they may receive the light, and that they may correspond. When sensuous things are in this state, they no longer stand in the way of the acknowledgment and sight of truths; those which disagree being at once removed.

— . Into such a form are natural and sensuous things disposed when the Rational has the dominion . . . But when the Rational is subject to sensuous things, the contrary happens. Des.

5130^e. For the Sensuous, like the Rational, is born through faith; but through faith into which charity inflows . . .

5131. There is a correspondence of sensuous things with natural ones; of natural ones with spiritual; (and so on).

5132. For faith and charity make a one in the Sensuous, when this is reborn.

5141. Apperception from the Sensuous, which is relatively obscure. Sig.

— . When man withdraws his mind from sensuous things, he is in rational apperception . . . But when man is in pleasures . . . the apperception is from the Sensuous . . .

5145². It treats now of the sensuous things subject to the Voluntary, and (that) the interior things were without termination anywhere in the middle, on which account these sensuous things are rejected and damned. Sig. and Ex.

—². The fourth degree is made by the exterior Natural, or Sensuous; and in this is man.

—³. Without these as (terminated) planes, the influent good from the Lord is not received, but flows through . . . down to the Sensuous; and is there . . . turned into what is filthy . . .

5148. According to all the use of the Sensuous. Sig. and Ex.

5157. That the falsity of evil will consume the things which are of these sensuous things. Sig. and Ex.

—². How it is that the sensuous things subject to the Intellectual were retained; but those subject to the Voluntary rejected. Ex.

— . By sensuous things are meant those scientifics and delights which have been insinuated through the five senses into the man's memory and into his concupiscences; and which at the same time constitute the exterior Natural; from which the man is called a sensuous man.

5159. With those being regenerated . . . something inwardly dissuades lest sensuous Delights . . . should reign . . . Sig.

5165. That the sensuous things of the Intellectual were received and subordinated. Sig. and Ex.

—². These sensuous things are received and subordinated when they minister to interior things; both to produce into act, and to see inwardly. For, in the sensuous things which are of the exterior Natural, man sees interior things, almost as he sees affections in a face . . . Without such an interior face, or plane, man in the body cannot think at all about those things which are above sensuous things . . .

5168². Sensuous and scientific things are only means into which this good inflows, and presents itself in a form, and unfolds itself for every use.

5170. The sensuous things subject to the Intellectual, although retained, are not (yet) conjoined. Sig. and Ex.

5196. The Nile represented the sensuous things subject to the Intellectual; thus the scientifics which are from them . . .

5227. Thought from the Sensuous subject to the Intellectual. Sig. and Ex.

5247. The hair corresponds to the exterior Natural; and therefore sensuous men—that is, those who have believed nothing but what is natural, and who have not wanted to understand that there is anything more interior or pure than what they can apprehend with the senses—in the other life appear hairy . . .

5497. A child . . . cannot think from what is higher than the exterior Natural; for he composes his ideas from sensuous things . . .

5555. (Such) suffer themselves to be seduced (there); for they are sensuous, and do not enter into reasons.

[A.] 558o. It is known that external sensuous things are first opened with man, and then interior sensuous things, and finally intellectual things, (which) are then represented in the former that they may be apprehended. The reason is that intellectual things rise out of sensuous ones by a mode of extraction . . .

57co². (Such) reason skilfully, because they reason from sensuous things; and to reason from sensuous things is to reason from what is external . . . Ex.

5767. They brought the things in the Natural down to sensuous things. Sig. and Ex.

5774. That from sensuous things truths were brought back into scientifics. Sig. and Ex.

—². Sensuous things, scientifics, and truths, mutually succeed each other; for scientifics come forth from sensuous things . . . for the things which enter through the senses store themselves in the memory, and the man thence concludes what is scientific . . . and then from the scientifics he concludes truths . . . (Thus) as a child man thinks from sensuous things (and so on).

—³. (Thus) sensuous things, scientifics, and truths, are distinct, and they remain so; so that a man may sometimes be in sensuous things, which happens when he thinks of nothing else than what occurs from sensuous things (and so on).

6oo8. That the external Sensuous, or that of the body, should be closed; and the internal Sensuous opened. Sig. and Ex.

6183². The elevation is effected by a withdrawal from sensuous things and scientifics . . .

6188². When they turn themselves to . . . the things of the Sensuous. Sig.

62oi. [This kind of] thought appeared when I had been withdrawn a little from sensuous things; but when the thought has been in sensuous things, no such undulating has appeared, but everything was material . . . This is called thinking in the Sensuous; but when he thinks interiorly, it is called being withdrawn from sensuous things. That man can be withdrawn from sensuous things, was known to the ancients, and therefore some of them have written about this state. Those who are in this kind of thought are called the sensuous, and like Spirits are adjoined to them. These Spirits when with man apprehend scarcely any more things than those which come to the man's sensation . . . It has been observed that when a man is in the Sensuous . . . he thinks of nothing else than what is of the body and the world, and wants to know nothing about the things of eternal life . . . I have sometimes been let down into the Sensuous, and such things at once occurred . . . but as soon as I was withdrawn from the Sensuous, they were dissipated.

—². In sensuous life are very many who indulge in corporeal pleasures; also those who have completely rejected thinking beyond what they see and hear; and, still more, those who have rejected thinking about eternal life . . . Such Spirits abound at the present day . . . the influx from them causes man to indulge his nature, and live for himself and the world . . . To be elevated from them, man must think about eternal life.

621o. It has sometimes happened that unconsciously I have thought about worldly things . . . and I have then noticed that I had fallen down into the Sensuous; and . . . was removed from consort with the Angels . . .

6222⁵. (This confirming) is not of the Intellectual, but of cleverness in the Sensuous . . .

631o. The internal Sensuous, which is the nearest (of the interiors) to the sensuous things of the body, has a very gross lumen . . . Whenever I have sunk into this lumen, falsities and evils of many kinds have occurred . . . for this lumen dominates in the Hells. (Continued under LUMEN.)

—². Those in this lumen are to be called the sensuous . . .

6312. This (subtle infernal sphere) inflows into the external sensuous sphere, from behind, where are the involuntaries. Hence the sensuous sphere is so strong.

6313. Man then comes from the gross sensuous lumen into a milder one . . . This elevation from sensuous things was known to the ancients . . .

6314. The body is in the heat of the world, and so also is the interior Sensuous.

6315. The man who . . . is elevated by the good of faith from sensuous things, is alternately in sensuous and in interior lumen. When he is in worldly cares . . . he is in sensuous life. Des.

6316. A great part of the learned are sensuous, because they have learned . . . for the sake of reputation . . . When they are promoted to honours, they live sensuous more than the simple . . . 6317.

6318. There are men who are more than sensuous, namely, corporeal; being those who have completely confirmed themselves against the Divine . . .

6384². (Those in the lowest Natural, or sensuous, but good.) Sig.

64o5². 'Gad,' also, = those who judge from what is sensuous.

6564^e. This closing up penetrates . . . even to the Sensuous, from which, then, is the thought. Des.

6598. The thought is thus withdrawn from external sensuous things; for they who think solely from sensuous things cannot see one whit of what is honourable, just, and good; and therefore they trust in others . . . Whereas they who can think above sensuous things—if the things in the memory have been ordained—excel in the faculty of understanding and perceiving . . . 6599, Ex.

6612. For they who think exteriorly, that is, in the Sensuous, communicate solely with the grosser Spirits.

6622. (Grossness of the perception from the Sensuous.) Ex. —^e.

6693⁴. 'Scales' = sensuous things . . .

6751². As man grows up, sensuous things are the first plane . . .

6839^e. He who is in sensuous things (as are the simple) . . . by no means apprehends interior things.

6843. That he should not as yet think about the Divine from sensuous things. Sig. and Ex.

—^e. For the external sensuous things of the Natural are regenerated last, and thus last receive the influx from the Divine . . .

6844. That sensuous things . . . were to be removed. Sig. and Ex.

— . For sensuous things . . . are such that they cannot be present when there is holy thought about the Divine.

—². The reason sensuous things . . . are such that they cannot receive the Divine, is that these things are in worldly, corporeal, and earthly things; for they proximately receive them; and therefore the things which are in the memory from sensuous things derive what they have from the light and heat of the world, and but little from the light and heat of Heaven; and therefore they are the last things which can be regenerated . . . Hence it is that when man is in these sensuous things, and thinks from them, he thinks about the Divine no otherwise than as of earthly things; and, if he is in evil, he thinks from them entirely against the Divine; and therefore if a man is in good, he is elevated, when thinking about such things, from the sensuous things which are the externals of the Natural . . . Of this he is unaware. Ex.

6845. For if man is not removed from (these) sensuous things, that is, if he is not elevated from them . . . the Divine cannot inflow. The reason . . . is, that the influx from the Divine advances even to those things which are last in order, thus even to the sensuous things which are the externals of the Natural with man; and if there are merely earthly and corporeal things therein, the Divine things which inflow are dissipated there; for they do not agree; and therefore when man is to receive what is Divine . . . he is elevated from sensuous things; and (then) the Divine no longer inflows . . . into the external Sensuous; but into the interior plane into which the man has been elevated.

6925. (Thus) the mind (of the Spirits of Mercury) is elevated above sensuous things . . .

6948. The influx of the power of the Lord's Divine Natural into the Sensuous. Sig. and Ex.

—². The Divine truth . . . inflows into every man . . . down into his external Sensuous, and into his Corporeal, and everywhere excites things correspondent . . . In the Sensuous (it excites) things correspondent such as appear in the world, (which) are full of fallacies; and therefore the Sensuous, when in these evils only, cannot but think against the goods and truths of faith . . . and, when the Divine truth inflows it cannot but turn it into falsity. Examps.

6950. Horror at a separated Sensuous. Sig. and Ex.

6952. The power of elevating by the ultimate of the Sensuous. Sig. and Ex.

—⁶. For the interiors of man, together with sensuous things, are elevated by the Lord when he is in good . . . Sig.

6954. Man from himself looks downwards . . . and, when he looks downwards, the Sensuous dominates . . . But when man . . . looks upwards . . . the interiors being elevated, the Sensuous also is elevated; but its lumen is then obscured; for the light of Heaven dominates. Tr.

6971. For a man who is sensuous and corporeal is not rational, and therefore not spiritual; for he thinks falsities, and wills evils.

—². Those become merely sensuous and corporeal men who have first known the things of the Spiritual World and have afterwards rejected them, and have imbued principles of falsity against truths, and as to life have looked solely to worldly, corporeal, and earthly things . . .

6997⁷. Man is such that what he sees and apprehends from his Sensuous, he believes; (and then only).

7041. State of the Sensuous separated from the internal. Sig. and Ex.

7270². From the ultimate Heaven (the successives are continued) down to the Sensuous and Corporeal of man, which receives the influx last.

7419. 'Lice'=evils, especially in the Sensuous. . . The Sensuous of those who have been in the knowledge of faith, but in a life of evil, is also such. Des.

7442². The things which inflow through Heaven with man . . . advance down to the ultimates . . . consequently inflow into the Sensuous, and, through this, into the things of the body. If the Sensuous is full of phantasies . . . or falsities, the truths which inflow are turned into the like . . .

—³. (Therefore) it is necessary . . . for the Natural to be regenerated down to the Sensuous . . .

—⁴. But the Sensuous itself which is the ultimate of the Natural can be regenerated with difficulty, because it is filled with material ideas . . . and therefore the man who is being regenerated . . . is not regenerated as to the Sensuous, but as to the Natural which is next above the Sensuous, to which he is elevated by the Lord from the Sensuous when he is thinking about the truths and goods of faith. The faculty of elevation from the Sensuous is given to the man who is being regenerated. 7443^e.

7645^e. The extreme of the Natural is called the Sensuous.

7693. The sensuous man, fully des.

7859³. By the middle (of the paschal lamb) is meant a Natural still more exterior, that is, the Sensuous.

7950. One who is in the corporeal Sensuous, thus in mere thick darkness concerning truths and goods, because not even in the faculty of perceiving, as are those who are in the interior Sensuous. Sig.

8078³. Sensuous faith. Def. and Sig.

8408³. 'The north'=man's Sensuous and Corporeal from which evil springs.

8701. For mediate influx is into the external Sensuous of man (which causes good to be perceived).

8872. 'Or which are in the waters under the earth'=that the things in the corporeal Sensuous (are not to receive Divine worship).

— . In (man's) third degree are the things which are in the corporeal Sensuous. The nature and quality of the corporeal Sensuous. Refs. To the corporeal Sensuous relate the scientifics which come forth proximately from the experience of the external senses, and also their delights . . .

8878. They who are in evil . . . are in natural light, and at last in sensuous light which is from the Corporeal.

[A.] 8891. 'The sea' = the Sensuous which adheres to man's Corporeal.

9062. If (the internal man) shall destroy truth or its affection in the Sensuous. Sig. and Ex.

— . 'A tooth,' here, = truth in the ultimate of the Natural, that is, in the Sensuous.

—^e. The nature and quality of the Sensuous. Refs.

9063. The case is the same with the Sensuous when injured; for this is the ultimate in the natural man. That this, too, must be regenerated, for man to be fully regenerated. Refs.

9127³. But those who are sensuous, as most men now are, do not apprehend this (signification). Therefore let them remain in their own faith, provided they believe there is something holy in the Holy Supper and in the Word.

—⁴. They alone apprehend this word who can think above the sensuous things of the body . . . for these are elevated by the Lord from the life of the sensuous things of the body . . .

9182⁶. 'The creeping thing of the earth' = the goods and truths of the external and sensuous man.

9212³. That the Sensuous is the ultimate of life with man. Refs. 9215^e.

9214. That sensuous things have been laid under -substrata sunt-interior ones. Sig. and Ex.

9215. That they also invest exterior things; for 'a garment' = the Sensuous in general, or sensuous things.

—². The outermost Natural is the Sensuous, which is here signified by 'a garment.' This receives the objects of the world, and thus serves interior things. This is called the 'only covering,' because it is the ultimate; thus is common to all.

9216. That interior things have rest on the external Sensuous. Sig. and Ex.

— . For the Sensuous is the ultimate of man's life; and that which is ultimate holds all the interior things together, and is their General, for they cease in it . . .

—². Outermost things are sensuous things which communicate with the world through the sight, hearing, etc. Upon these interior things rest.

9276. 'Wild beasts' = the affections of sensuous things, which are called pleasures and delights. The reason they are delights of truth . . . is that sensuous things, which communicate immediately with the world through the body, derive scarcely anything from spiritual good . . .

— . That sensuous things communicate with the world, and are outermost things. Refs.

9331³. The insects of various kinds mentioned in the Word = falsities or evils in the extremes, or in the external Sensuous. Ex.

9341. Extension from the delight of the Sensuous to the good and truth of the Rational. Sig. and Ex.

— . 'Wilderness' = where there is no good and truth, as is the case in the Sensuous. As the Sensuous has no celestial good, nor spiritual truth, but has delight and pleasure from the body and the world, 'a wilderness' = this extreme (or outermost).

—³. See EUPHRATES.

9396³. They who think from the Sensuous of the body, and not from the Sensuous of the spirit, cannot apprehend (this). 9581.

9440. By sensuous experience.

9726. 'The grating' (on the altar) = the external Sensuous, which is the ultimate of life with man. It was therefore put round the altar. This Sensuous was represented by 'the grating,' because it sifts and separates first, the things which enter . . . thus truths and goods. If the Sensuous is from good, it admits nothing but goods, and truths which are from good, and rejects evils and falsities from evil; for the Sensuous is the Perceptive and Sensitive itself of intellectual and voluntary things in the extremes, being formed exactly to their affections. The quality of the Sensuous may be illustrated by very many things in the body; for everywhere in the extremes of the body there are reticular forms . . . by which the things which come from the world are sifted. Des. The like is the case with the Sensuous, which is the ultimate of man's life. But this has been completely destroyed with man, because it stands out nearest the world, and is therefore the last thing regenerated, and down to which scarcely anyone can now be regenerated.

— . The quality of the Sensuous with these. Refs.

—^e. But the Sensuous which is signified by the 'grating,' is the Sensuous of the Lord's Divine Human. 9730.

9730. By the external Sensuous is not meant the Sensuous itself of the body, as its sight, hearing, etc.; but that which is proximately from these; for he is called a sensuous man who thinks and desires according to these senses of the body and their appetites, and considers nothing beyond. He who considers and explores beyond what the Sensuous desires, and beyond what he himself thinks from the Sensuous, is said to be elevated above the Sensuous, or to be withdrawn from it . . . This takes place now with those who are in the good of charity and faith. When this takes place, the Sensuous is quiescent, and is deprived of its active life, which it has from the world and its objects. (Further ex.)

9731. The extension of the Sensuous. Sig. and Ex.

— . The Sensuous signified by the 'grating' extends itself with man from the head down to the loins, and there ceases . . . From the loins, however, there is continued with man the Sensuous proximately more interior. Rep.

9996. 'One basket' = the Sensuous in which these (celestial things) are . . . The reason 'a basket' = the Sensuous, is that the Sensuous is the ultimate of man's life, and all the interior things are stored up in order in the ultimate. 10080. 10107.

— . The ultimate of the Intellectual is called sensuous Scientific; and the ultimate of the Voluntary, sensuous delight: (the former) is imbibed through the senses of hearing and sight; and (the latter) through the senses of taste and touch. . . The Sensuous which is the ultimate of the Intellectual, is meant by 'a cup;' . . . and the Sensuous which is the ultimate of the Voluntary, by 'a basket.' Ex.

10028. 'All the blood poured at the foundation of the altar' = Divine truth wholly in the Sensuous which is the ultimate of man's life . . . and is that which is called the external Sensuous. Ex.

—². When being purified, man first learns such truths as can be apprehended by the sensuous man . . .

10050². 'The corner of a bed and the extremity of a couch'=the lowest Natural, which is the external Sensuous, and its truth and good.

10067^e. (Thus) those are merely sensuous men who deny these things.

10236. 'Its bases brass'=the good of the ultimate Natural, which is the Sensuous . . . and is called the external Sensuous.

— . The external of the Natural communicates with the world, and is called the external Sensuous . . .

—². By the Sensuous which is the ultimate of the Natural, is meant that which is properly called flesh, which perishes when the man dies; thus that which has been of service to man for his functions in the world; as the Sensuous of sight, hearing, etc. That this Sensuous is the ultimate plane, in which man's life is terminated, and upon which it reposes itself as upon a base, may be evident, for it stands forth immediately to the world, and through it as the extreme the world enters, and Heaven goes out. But this Sensuous is common to man with brute animals; whereas the external Sensuous which is not thus common to man with them, and yet is an external Sensuous, is that which man has in his memory from the world, and is constituted solely of the worldly, corporeal, and earthly things there. The man who thinks and reasons from these things alone . . . is called a sensuous man. This Sensuous remains with man after death, but is quiescent. It is this external Sensuous which is properly signified by the 'base.'

—⁴. The Lord's guard to prevent man from entering from his Sensuous . . . into (spiritual) things. Rep.

—⁶. What the sensuous man is. . . He is called a sensuous man who thinks solely from such things as are in the memory and in the world, and who cannot be elevated towards interior things . . . Such approach nearly to the genius of brute animals; but are cunning and skilful in acting and reasoning; but they do not see truth from the light of truth. Such were formerly called serpents of the tree of knowledge. Most of the infernal crew are such.

—⁷. The good of the Sensuous, which is signified by the 'base of brass,' is that which is called pleasure and delight affecting the imaginative thought, which thought is from such things merely as are earthly, corporeal, and worldly, and is distinguished from other delights by this: that it regards no other uses than those which are for the sake of self; for the sensuous man is in the love of self and of the world . . . And, as the loves of the sensuous man are such, it is evident that he is pre-eminently skilful in reasoning, and in acting for the sake of gains and honours . . .

10252⁷. The Lord's Divine life in the Sensuous, which is the life proper to the body; and also the resurrection of this. Sig.

10254. With man there is sensuous life, and natural life, both of the external man; but the sensuous life is more exterior, drawing its truths from the objects which are on the Earth, and in the body . . .

10283⁹. They are called 'great in flesh' who reason and conclude from sensuous things about the things of the Church . . . These are called sensuous men; for they think from the corporeal proprium.

10582⁴. That the man of the Church receded from internal things, and became . . . merely sensuous. Sig. To become sensuous, is to apprehend and believe nothing else than what the external senses dictate.

H. 267^e. (Even) their wisdom transcends that of man; for man is in his Corporeal and in his sensuous things; and the corporeal sensuous things of man are in the lowest degree. (Thus) wisdom with those who think in sensuous things, that is, with those who are called sensuous men (is such) that they are not in any wisdom; but solely in knowledge. Very different is the case with those men whose thoughts have been elevated above sensuous things . . .

— (b). Refs to passages on the sensuous man. 353 (y). N. 50.

353. All who acknowledge nature instead of the Divine, think from the corporeal Sensuous, and are merely sensuous, however learned they are believed to be.

—³. But still sensuous men can reason, some more skilfully and acutely than others; but from the fallacies of the senses . . .

N. 45. He is called a sensuous man whose internal is so external that he believes in nothing but what he can see with his eyes and touch with his hands. He is a natural man in the lowest degree, and is in fallacies about all things of faith.

61. These two loves, when they dominate . . . make man natural and sensuous . . .

S. 13. The state of the Church when . . . man, having become sensuous, persuades himself that Falsities are truths. Tr.

—². 'Their teeth as of lions'=that sensuous things, which are the ultimates of the natural man, appear to them to have power over all things. R. 435. E. 556.

W. 46. How sensuously, that is, from the senses of the body . . . they think who . . .

144^e. All these are sensuous natural . . .

162. Thus man becomes sensuous natural . . .

248. That if the spiritual degree is not opened, man becomes natural and sensuous. Gen.art.

249³. Those who despise and deny the Divine precepts, do not merely remain natural, but also become sensuous according to their contempt and denial. The sensuous are the lowest natural, who cannot think above the appearances and fallacies of the senses of the body. These, after death, are in Hell.

254³. With these . . . only the lowest region of the natural degree stands open, which is called the sensuous; for this is nearest the world and the external senses of the body; from which this man afterwards thinks, speaks, and reasons. A natural man who has become sensuous through evils and falsities, in the light of Heaven does not appear as a man, but as a monster, with a retracted nose. Ex.

[W.] 255^e. A sensuous man, who is in the lowest degree natural, does not differ from a beast except that he can fill the memory with scientifics, and think and speak from them . . .

357. (With atheists), above the Sensuous, which is the lowest of the understanding, there appears as it were a covering; with some, flashing from infernal fire; with some, black like soot; and with some, livid like a corpse.

361. The thought then communicates with the Sensuous . . .

P. 276. (Man is now) born in thick darkness of ignorance, because into the ultimate plane of life, which is called the corporeal Sensuous; and by it is introduced into the interiors of the natural mind through instructions, the Spiritual always accompanying.

310. These finally become sensuous.

—⁴. The quality of the most cunning sensuous men . . . called Genii. Des.

—⁵. Although they are so cunning, they are pre-eminently sensuous.

R. 424. 'The locusts' = falsities in the extremes, such as are with those who have become sensuous . . .

—⁴. What is meant by the Sensuous, and the sensuous man. (Refs. to passages.) E. 543⁵.

434. 'The hair' = the ultimate of man's life, which is the Sensuous.

435. There are two kinds of sensuous things: one of the will, and the other of the understanding. The sensuous things of the will are signified by 'hair of women'; and the sensuous things of the understanding, by 'teeth.'

455. That they are sensuous and inverted . . . Sig. and Ex.

—⁴. 'The horse's heels' = the ultimates of the understanding, which are sensuous things.

550. Hence they have become sensuous from the Corporeal. Sig. and Ex. E. 739.

692². Hence man becomes successively sensuous; and a sensuous man speaks in a high and lofty tone about worldly and civil things: but cannot speak of God and of Divine things except from the memory only. Further ex.

841. For all who do not approach the Lord immediately, think sensuously about the things of the Church . . .

M. 415³. The Angels replied, You speak thus because you are merely sensuous. All in the Hells have their ideas immersed in the senses of the body . . . therefore we exense you. T. 77³.

442^e. Corporeal natural, sensuous natural, and natural men. Des.

495. Adulteries from purpose . . . and adulteries from confirmation . . . render men natural, sensuous, and corporeal. Ex.

496. There are three degrees of the natural man . . . In the second are those who love solely the delights of the senses, placing the heart in luxuries and pleasures of every kind: these are properly meant by the sensuous

. . . The corporeal immerse all things of the will and understanding in the body . . . but the sensuous immerse them in the allurements and fallacies of the senses, by indulging in these things alone.

T. 79⁷. All who have become corporeal sensuous from confirmations in favour of nature, know no otherwise than that they are in the same world . . .

296². The sensuous and corporeal man, because he is merely natural, regarded in himself, is altogether animal, nor does he differ from a brute animal except in being able to speak and reason . . .

381. A man becomes a hypocrite when he thinks much about himself . . . for he thus determines and infuses the thoughts and affections of his mind into his body, and conjoins them with its senses; hence man becomes natural, sensuous, and corporeal . . . —².

402. On the merely natural and sensuous man. (Twenty important statements.) 565.

—¹³. As by sensuous things are meant Things presented as objects to the senses of the body, and imbibed through these senses, it follows that man through these sensuous things communicates with the world . . .

—¹⁵. There are sensuous things which minister to the understanding, and these are various natural things which are called physical; and there are sensuous things which minister to the will, and these are the delights of the senses and of the body.

—²⁰. With man there are sensuous things which he has in common with beasts; and sensuous things which he has not in common with them.

—²¹. In the same proportion as anyone thinks above sensuous things, he is a man; but no one can think above sensuous things . . . unless he acknowledges God, and lives according to His precepts; for God elevates and enlightens.

405^e. All these become sensuous men. Des.

565². Sensuous men reason eagerly and skilfully because their thought is near their speech, and almost in it . . . and because they place all intelligence in speech from the memory only; and also because they can dexterously confirm falsities . . .

798. (Calvin) was a sensuous man. Des.

D. 2191. To the Corporeal, or corporeal sensuous, are referred touch, taste, and smell. These differ from each other in purity . . . As to the spiritual things of the body, or the sensuous things; there are also three [degrees] namely, hearing, ocular sight, and the sight of imagination . . . Hearing is merely corporeal sensuous . . .

4627. On the sensuous man.

—³. The interiors of man which do not die, succeed thus: the Sensuous, the Natural, the Spiritual Natural. These are the externals . . .

—⁷. When man is withdrawn a little from sensuous things, he comes into interior light, which is not sensuous, but interior natural . . .

—¹¹. Whenever I have been let down into sensuous lumen . . . infernal Spirits infused filthy and scandalous things, which at once ceased when I was elevated from it. —¹². —¹³. —¹⁵. 4629⁸.

4629⁶. They who are in sensuous lumen can rarely if ever be in good and truth . . .

—⁸. There are few who suffer themselves to be regenerated down to the Sensuous . . .

—⁹. Among the lower classes, are very many who never elevate their thoughts above sensuous things . . . But among them are those who are in good . . . some of whom are less sensuous than the learned.

4787^e. For the common talk at table is from sensuous things, and their knowledge.

4852. On the Sensuous and its thought. Des. Very many (now) are such that they cannot think above the Sensuous, thus be withdrawn from the Sensuous; but they think in the Sensuous when speaking and writing, and also when they are hearing and seeing; and some also . . . when talking to themselves, as solitaries do; and, when sensuous things are quiescent, they do not think at all . . .

5127^e. In order that they may be amended and reformed as to the Sensuous . . . for this is the plane in which the interiors cease.

5216. They inflowed into the lowest things of the left foot, because they were pre-eminently sensuous.

5464⁸. The Sensuous of man is where the love of self, or his proprium, dwells . . . The Sensuous of man is (now) quite corporeal with most; and has not anything spiritual.

5552. Man's Sensuous which stands forth to the world is the ultimate itself, and therefore is also the foundation upon which Heaven rests . . . for it is the nexus of all things from primes to ultimates; and the Sensuous of man is relatively fixed . . .

5683. Men are such (now) because they think in the corporeal Sensuous . . .

5684. But he who can be withdrawn from sensuous things . . . The ancients were not so sensuous . . .

5692. When they are let, as to their ideas, into the body, or external Sensuous . . . In themselves they are sensuous . . .

5705. In general, sensuous lumen appears like spiritual lumen to the inexperienced . . . Moreover, sensuous lumen shines more than interior lumen, because it is in the world . . .

5835. That the sensuous appear learned and intelligent even in the other life.

5936. (Women who preach) become sensuous in the last degree.

5981^e. All these desire to obsess, because they are so sensuous . . .

6015. On a place where the sensuous are. Charles xii.

D. Min. 4597². They are for the most part sensuous, enter little into reasons, and constitute the skin . . .

E. 342⁴. Those in these seas are those who have been sensuous in the world, but upright . . .

355⁸. The tribe of Dan = the ultimates of the Church, thus those in the ultimates of truth and good, who are called the sensuous. These cannot elevate themselves as to thought above the sense of the letter.

—³². Those who are in ultimates as to the understanding of truth and as to the perception of good, which ultimates are called sensuous things. Tr.

388⁵. 'A forest' = the sensuous man who is in mere fallacies . . .

410⁶. The exterior natural man is what is called the sensuous man, because he depends on the senses of the body . . .

417⁵. The hair of the head and beard = the ultimate of man's life, which is called the corporeal Sensuous.

—⁶. Those who are only in the ultimates of life, called the corporeal Sensuous. Des. —⁸.

475¹⁷. 'The blind,' here = those who can see nothing of truth, because they are sensuous . . .

543. That from infernal falsities they have become corporeal sensuous in the Church. Sig. and Ex.

—². The ultimate Sensuous of man does not mean the Sensuous of sight, hearing, etc., for these are proper to the body; but the ultimate of thought and affection which is first opened with infants. Ex. . . Therefore the first internal thing which is opened with them is the Sensuous which is called the ultimate Sensuous of man, and also the corporeal Sensuous. Afterwards, however, when the infant grows up, and becomes a child, the interior Sensuous is opened, from which he thinks and is affected naturally. Finally, when he becomes adolescent and a youth, his Sensuous still more interior is opened, from which he thinks rationally; and, if he is in the good of charity and faith, spiritually; and is also affected rationally and spiritually. It is this thought and affection which is called the rational and the spiritual man; the former, the natural man; and the first, the sensuous man.

—³. The interiors are opened successively, by a continuous influx out of Heaven . . . Through this is formed first the Sensuous which adheres proximately to the body, when man becomes sensuous . . .

—³. All those who deny God and Divine things, and confirm themselves against them, become Sensuous men, more or less according to the confirmations. Des. . . . The thought of the sensuous man is what is called material thought; and his affection is what is called corporeal affection. —⁴.

—⁷. The irruption of falsity and evil from the sensuous man into the natural man is here said to be signified, when yet . . . the sensuous man is more exterior, and there is no influx from the exterior into the interior . . . and therefore the influx of the sensuous man into the natural man means the blocking up of the latter until it is like the sensuous man, whence the extension of evil and falsity is greater . . . Otherwise, man learns from infancy to separate the sensuous man from the natural by speaking truth and doing good, although from the sensuous man he thinks falsity and wills evil . . .

—¹⁰. The reason the sensuous man falsifies the Word more than others, is that . . . the sense of the letter is for the natural and sensuous man.

—¹². As the Sensuous of man is the ultimate and lowest of man's life of thought and affection . . .

[E. 543]¹⁴. As 'locust' = the Sensuous, which is the ultimate of life of man's thought, or the ultimate in which it ceases, and upon which the understanding subsists . . .

544¹. For sensuous men are pre-eminently malicious and cunning; and they themselves believe, and induce others to believe, that they excel in cleverness, understanding, and judgment; but they have nothing of these, and are stupid in the essentials of faith and life in proportion to their cleverness in machinating evils and persuading falsities. 560.

550^e. For sensuous men . . . do not want to understand truth and perceive good; for they are delighted with their falsities of evil . . . In a word, a sensuous man does not admit reasons . . . against the falsities of evil . . .

552. That man when made sensuous reasons as if from the understanding of truth. Sig. and Ex.

—². Sensuous men described (in the Word). 553.

554². The strong Persuasive in which are sensuous men who are in falsities from evil. Sig.

556. The Persuasive itself resides in the Sensuous which is the ultimate of the natural life; for this, or the sensuous man, is in self-confidence and in the belief that he is wiser than all; for he cannot weigh and explore himself, because he does not think interiorly . . . Hence his speech, taking its tone from these things, fascinates and infatuates the minds of others. Ex. 557, Sig. and Ex.

556²¹. That His Sensuous was in like manner Divine truth from Divine good. Sig.

559². If a man is sensuous, all things (of his understanding and will) become sensuous . . .

563. That the Sensuous of man, which is the ultimate of his intellectual life, is destructive of all spiritual good and truth . . . is because this Sensuous stands forth proximately to the world, and proximately adheres to the body . . . For man from this Sensuous loves himself and the world above all things . . . In these loves are all those who have become merely sensuous through evils of life and the consequent falsities. Ex. . . (Thus) man must by all means be withdrawn and elevated from these sensuous things . . . which is effected by the Lord alone, when the man suffers himself to be led by the Lord through the laws of order . . . and, when this takes place, the man leaves behind this ultimate Sensuous whenever he is in a spiritual state, and is kept elevated above it; and this for the reason, also, that this Sensuous has been completely destroyed with men; for in it is everyone's proprium . . . —², Further ex.

569. Reasoning from the Sensuous. Tr. —³, Ex. 570. 580.

632². For infants are first sensuous, then natural, etc.

—⁵. The corporeal Sensuous. Tr. and Ex. —⁶. —⁸. —⁹. —¹⁰. —¹¹.

654⁷¹. The Sensuous is the fountain head of all evils, etc.; for man is first born sensuous.

700²⁰. For he who makes nothing of the good of charity is sensuous.

708². All in the Heavens under the Lord as a Moon are natural and sensuous. 711, Sig.

714. 'A great red dragon' = all who are merely natural and sensuous from the love of self . . .

— . All become natural and sensuous who live to the body and the world . . .

—². Every man is born sensuous from his parents . . . 752².

—³. Although they know many things from the Word, (such) remain natural and sensuous. Ex.

—⁴. A sensuous man cannot see the genuine truths of the Word . . .

—⁶. The sensuous who are meant by 'the dragon' are those who see nothing from the light of Heaven . . . Ex.

—^e. There are also merely sensuous men who are good.

719. The Sensuous falsifies and adulterates the truths of the Word. Ex.

739². All who are in evils of life become sensuous. Ex. —⁴.

—⁷. Hence the descendants (of the Most Ancient Church) became sensuous; and then their Sensuous seduced them. Ex.

—⁹. The Sensuous communicates with Hell, and makes one with it; for in it is seated all the evil of man in the complex. Des.

—¹⁰. For a sensuous man believes that he knows all things . . .

—¹². The quality of their Sensuous. Sig. . . For the Sensuous with man cannot be reformed, and therefore it is only removed . . . Sig. and Ex.

725. Lamentation over those who become merely natural and sensuous. Sig. and Ex.

763³. The reason sensuous men can think, speak, and act astutely, is that all evil resides in the sensuous man . . .

918¹¹. In His first state, the Lord (also) was sensuous . . .

—¹². His Sensuous then new from the Divine Celestial. Sig.

982⁵. He who confirms adulteries with himself . . . becomes a completely sensuous man.

1056². Man has a spiritual mind, a rational mind, a natural mind, and a sensuous mind . . . Heaven with man communicates . . . with the body through the Sensuous mind. The sensuous mind is first opened after birth; afterwards the natural mind . . . As man becomes wise . . . the sensuous mind serves as the soles of the feet.

—³. (All these minds are thus closed) down to the sensuous mind, or 'down to the nose,' as it is expressed in Heaven; and so they become merely sensuous. Des.

1147. The Natural of man is a trine . . . and the Sensuous is the lowest there.

—². Those who are sensuous, think from material things, and in them . . .

1210³. (That there are also three degrees in nature) may be evident from the natural mind, and from its rationality and sensuousness. Ex.

Coro. 51. After the Lord had assumed the natural Human . . . He could, through this, conjoin Himself with man in his Natural, nay, in his Sensuous . . .

Sensuous Truth. Verum Sensuale.

A. 425². 'For stones iron' = for sensuous truth natural truth. 1551².

777. 'Winged thing' = sensuous truth. Sensuous truths, which are of the sight and hearing, being extreme, are called 'winged things.'

1434. 'Lot his brother's son' = sensuous truth, thus the first which is insinuated into a child.

—². Sensuous truth is the first truth which insinuates itself; for in childhood the judgment goes no deeper. Sensuous truth is that he sees all earthly things as created by God; and each and all things for an end; and in each and all things some semblance of the Lord's Kingdom. This sensuous truth is not insinuated except with the celestial man; and, as the Lord alone was a celestial man, these and the like sensuous truths were insinuated into Him in His earliest childhood; and He was thus prepared to receive celestial things.

2554. Divine good inflows . . . even into scientific and sensuous truths, which are scarcely anything else than fallacies; and conjoins itself with them . . .

2577. Still lower truths . . . are scientific truths, and sensuous truths.

3294^e. The exterior truth (in the Natural) is called sensuous truth. Rep.

3309. The good of life from sensuous and scientific truths. Sig. and Ex.

— . No one can be in scientific truths, unless he is first in sensuous truths; for the ideas of scientifics are procured from these. 3310⁴.

—³. 'Fishers' = those who teach from sensuous truths.

3310⁴. Man cannot be regenerated until he is in doctrinals through sensuous and scientific truths. Ex.

4009. 'Sons' here = sensuous truths, which are so called because they are of sensuous things, and are the outermost ones of the natural mind.

4342. External truths are those called sensuous truths, which inflow immediately from the world through the senses of the body.

5122². New states which proceed . . . also to sensuous truths.

7093³. Sensuous truth, which is the most external, is signified by 'willows of the torrent.'

7729. 'Hoof' = truth in the ultimate degree, thus sensuous truth . . .

9158. Injury or loss of sensuous truth. Sig. and Ex.
— . 'Garment,' here, = sensuous truth, for this is the extreme or lowest.

9212. 'A pledge,' here, = sensuous truth . . .

9340. 'The sea Suph' = sensuous and scientific truths, which are the ultimate ones with man. Ex.

10252. 'Best myrrh' = the perception of sensuous truth. Ex.

10292. 'Stacte' = the affection of sensuous truth. Ex.

E. 627⁵. By ultimate truth . . . is meant sensuous truth, such as is the truth in the sense of the letter for those who are merely sensuous.

— . Divine truth of the fourth degree is that which arrives at the perception of the men of the Church . . . The ultimate of this is called Divine sensuous truth.

—⁸. 'A reed' = sensuous truth, which is ultimate, such as exists with natural men, even evil ones. Ill.

1148. 'Marble' = sensuous truth profaned. Ex.

Sentence. Sententia.

A. 4364. It is known that a person is drawn to his own way of thinking . . .

4905. A sentence by the religiosity in which was the Jewish nation. Sig.

5759^e. A milder sentence. Sig. 5761. 5762.

6628^e. Nor were they indignant if one did not accede to the way of thinking of another.

6663². For he who defends his opinion against others who attack it, confirms himself more in his own opinion, and also then finds many things confirmatory of his opinion which he before had not noticed, and many things which deny the opposite one; and thus he becomes firmer in his opinion, and also illustrates it by many things.

9213⁵. See OPINION, here.

9252. 'To answer' = to give sentence, and judge.

P. 293. I will add this angelic deliverance . . .

R. 742. 'These have one mind' (Rev. xvii. 13) = that they acknowledge unanimously. (= unanimity. E. 1071.)

749. 'God hath put into their hearts to do His mind, and to do one mind' (ver. 17) = judgment with them from the Lord . . . and a unanimous judgment . . . E. 1084.

M. 132². Conjoin these three into one sentence. 136.

231³. After the judgments, they carried out the verdicts.

326⁵. I asked them to write some sentence on a paper . . .

T. 459⁴. My verdict is . . . —⁵. —⁶. etc.

603². A judge, when he has heard the evidence . . . produces his verdict, and pronounces judgment.

654. That the faith . . . makes the sentence: if true faith conjoins itself with good, sentence is made for eternal life; but if faith conjoins itself with evil, sentence is made for eternal death. Gen. art.

768. The opinion now flourishing in the Churches is . . .

D. 3402. He thought against my way of thinking.

4691^e. They who have studied faith (always) remain in their own way of thinking . . .

4741. Charles xii. never wanted to desist from his purpose . . . He could confirm his obstinate purpose by such things as did not appear to be evil. (Two examp. given of these evil purposes of his.)

[D.] 5177. When they are in an opposite opinion, they vanish; and those are suddenly present who are in a like opinion.

5252^e. As soon as a Spirit dissents in opinion from another, he disappears.

5600. He wanted to know whether such was their doctrine and way of thinking.

Sentiments. Sensa.

A. 1762. Spirits who express the sentiments of their mind—animi—by changes induced on my face . . . while they were communicating the interior sentiments of their mind.

2693^e. That they may have solace from being able to open the sentiments of the mind—animi.

7361². By such speech they could much more fully express the sentiments of the mind—animi, and the ideas of the thought . . .

D. Min. 4548. Occurs.

Separate. Dirimere.

A. 6766. Cannot as yet settle disagreements within the Church. —².

7502³. See SEPARATE—separare.

T. 447^e. They are gradually separated, which is done insensibly.

Separate. Distinere. A. 1266.

Separate. Excernere, Secernere.

A. 5174². They are discharged into a privy, that is, into Hell.

P. 164^e. (Such) are separated from those within the (Grand) Man, as the ordure and urine are separated from man.

174. The kidneys separate.

D. 1267. Occurs. 3124. D. Wis. x. 3.

Separate. Separare.

Separation. Separatio.

A. 34. Love and faith can never be separated . . .

1023. The Lord then miraculously separated the intellectual proprium from the corrupt voluntary proprium . . . 2053^e. 2069^e. 2256³.

1266. The antediluvians are (thus) separated from the rest of the Hells . . .

1581. 'Separate, I pray, from me' (Gen. xiii. 9) = that the good cannot appear unless what is discordant becomes null. Ex. 1582.

—². The separation is not separation, but quiescence. With no man, except the Lord, can the evil in the external man be separated . . . But it seems to be separated when it is quiescent . . .

1857³. Good must be separated from evil before (anyone can be thrust down into Hell).

2119². He who has led an evil life . . . successively separates himself from the Angels . . .

2156^e. They who separate this Trine . . .

2196. That which is separated from anyone is represented by a rejection as if behind him. Sig. and Ex.

2198. Jehovah was . . . not separate from the Lord, although He is presented as separate . . .

2256. That good cannot die, because evil can be separated from it. Sig. and Ex.

—². Good and evil are never so commingled that they cannot be separated . . . In the other life, the Lord separates his evils; (or else) He separates from him what is good . . . But it is a separation, never a plenary taking away. 2284².

2258. That the Divine good cannot do this according to truth separated from good. Sig. and Ex.

—³. The evil are not damned because Divine good is separated from Divine truth; but because the man separates himself from Divine good.

—⁴. Unless the evil were separated from the good, they would injure them . . .

2321. The proceeding Holy . . . is what separates the evil from the good. Ex.

2324. Those in the good of charity . . . among the evil, but separated from them. Sig. and Ex.

2329^e. (Three separate gods thought of.)

2335³. The Lord cannot be in truth separated from good.

2380. The approach (of the evil there) is precluded by the good being separated from the evil . . .

2405. The time when the upright are being separated from the evil. Tr. 2407.

—⁵. That separation precedes Judgment. Ill.

2438^e. Before this is done (it is provided) that with the good evils should be separated; and, with the evil, that goods should be separated . . .

2449. That all truths were separated from them. Sig. and Ex.

—⁶. With the good (there) evils and falsities are separated . . . but with the evil, goods and truths are separated . . . Ill.

—⁷. The reason of the separation of evils and falsities with the good, is that they may not hang between evils and goods, but that through goods they may be elevated into Heaven; and the reason of the separation of goods and truths with the evil, is that they may not . . . seduce the upright, and that through evils they may secede to the evil . . . For such is the communication . . . (there that) unless they were separated there would be innumerable harms, and there would be no con-solation . . . Still, the separation is not a plenary taking away.

2451. That all goods were separated from them. Sig. and Ex.

2632^e. Then the Lord inflows, and separates successively and continuously those things which adhere from hereditary and actual evil.

2647. The separation of the merely human Rational. Sig. and Ex. 2649. 2856.

2657^e. All things of the first Rational remain, and are separated only from the second Rational; and this miraculously by the Lord.

2732². (The separation of married partners there.)

3167². By the fall . . . the natural man separated himself from the spiritual.

3993. That all good and truth wherewith evil and falsity is mixed must be separated. Sig and Ex.

4010. That their state was completely separated. Sig. and Ex.

4025. The separation of the goods and truths, which had been procured by His own power. Sig. and Ex. 4026.

4033°. After this good has subserved these uses, it is separated. Tr.

4061. The separation of the good and truth represented by Jacob . . . from the good signified by Laban. Tr. 4063, Ex. 4067°, Ex. 4093. 4105, Sig. and Ex. 4110. 4113.

4097. The first state of their separation. Sig. and Ex. (Four of these states enum.)

4110°. When (these Spirits) have performed their use, they are separated (from the man), which separation of them is effected in various ways . . . The separation of good Spirits is effected when they are not aware of it . . . The separation of Spirits of a middle sort is effected by many means, until they recede in freedom . . . Evil spirits also are removed in freedom . . . they then feel delight in separation . . . Such is the case with the separation of the Spirits with man when he is being regenerated.

4119. The beginning of the state of separation. Sig. and Ex. 4120.

4122. The process of this separation is here fully described.

4129°. When Societies of Spirits and Angels are adjoined to man by the Lord, and are separated from him. Tr.

4136. That the separation was made against the will (of mediate good), whereas it ought to be done from freedom. Sig. and Ex. 4137. 4144.

4145°. Every man . . . is first in mediate good, that it may serve to introduce genuine goods and truths; but after it has served this use, it is separated. Ex.

4148. That if the separation were made from the freedom of that good, the affections of truth would be injured. Sig. and Ex.

4150. That all things of that good were separated. Sig. and Ex.

4151. That after the good represented by Laban was separated from the good represented by Jacob, it came into another state by the separation. Sig. and Ex.

4165. That it was not of evil that he (Jacob) had separated himself. Sig. and Ex.

4186. When these Spirits are separated from the Society, they are indignant. Sig.

4189°. (Change in the representation of a person when he is separated from some other person.) Ex.

4199. Separation relatively to the things of the Church. Sig. and Ex.

4295°. Evil and falsity are not separated from the Angels.

4468. When life conjoins (the men of the Church) doctrine does not separate them; but if doctrine alone conjoins them . . . then they separate themselves from each other . . .

4601°. Those who separate the things of faith from those of charity . . .

—³. This conjunction is profanation . . . From such, good . . . and truth . . . cannot be separated . . . for things so conjoined can never be separated to eternity, and therefore the deepest Hell awaits them.

4809°. 'He shall separate them one from another, as a shepherd separates the sheep from the goats' (Matt. xxv. 32) = the separation of good from evil . . . See J. 49.

5009. (The separation signified by the flight of Joseph from Potiphar's wife.) Ex. 5010.

5134°. Evils are then separated, and are cast out from the centre . . . Evils are thus separated, but still are retained . . .

5174. The first agitations [endured by] Spirits . . . in order that evils may be separated . . .

5456. 'He shut them up in custody' = separation from himself.

5596. That they separated from themselves the truth of good . . . Sig. and Ex.

5699. The external appearance that the Internal was as it were separated from them. Sig. and Ex.

5812. That this truth cannot be separated from spiritual good. Sig. and Ex.

6052. Thus separation from perverted scientifics. Sig. and Ex.

— . This separation is effected by ordination . . .

6100. Separation as to time. Sig. and Ex.

6148°. The reason these two were not to be separated, was that Divine truth separated from Divine good condemns everyone.

6195. It seemed as if these Spirits could scarcely be separated from me. I . . . told them they ought to be separated; but . . . when they separated themselves a little . . . I could not think . . . This showed how loves conjoin. Ex.

—². As (Spirits connected with me by only slight affections) were separated, they appeared to be removed to a distance towards the left in front; and the separation was observed by changes of the state of the affections . . .

6348°. With such (a profaner) good cannot be separated from evil, which, however, are separated (there) . . .

6388°. Such are separated from angelic Society.

6701. The Spirits and Angels from other Earths are all separated from each other according to the Earths . . . 7800, Ex. 7801.

6724°. From a law of order (good and evil) separate themselves from each other . . . as Heaven and Hell are separated, so all things thence separate themselves.

6772. The separation, with a man being regenerated, of truth Divine from falsities. Sig. and Ex.

7273°. The order with the evil who are being condemned, is that of truth Divine separated from Divine good . . .

7293. The Sensuous and Corporeal separated from the Rational. Tr.

[A.] 7502³. The heavenly Societies with which such communicate cannot be separated except by degrees . . . nothing is done violently, but everything in freedom, and therefore those Societies are not sundered—divimuntur—from them; but are separated successively . . .

7573. The separation of the communication with those in good and truth. Sig. and Ex. 7589. 7595. 7608. 7650.

7862. Enjoyment in a state of separation from the evil who infested. Sig. and Ex.

7866. The affection of separation. Sig. and Ex.

7898. A state of charity and faith through which there was separation from those in evils and falsities. Sig. and Ex.

8142. 'The people fled' = that they were completely separated.

8204. 'The waters were cleft asunder' = separation and removal from truths.

8218. 'I will flee before Israel' = separation from those who are in the good of truth . . .

8593. Genii are completely separated from those in exterior evil, who are called Spirits. Ex.

8648. 'After the dismissals of (Zipporah)' = the separation (of good) relatively to the state of those of the Spiritual Church. Ex.

8806². The evils with them are then separated, so that they do not appear at all. Sig. and Ex.

8833. 'Lest Jehovah make a breach on them' = separation from good. (= separation from truth and good. 8843.)

9049³. Truths separated from good (are the laws of order) in Hell.

9261². As soon as they disagree (there) they are separated from each other . . .

9468⁹. 'The waters of separation' (Num. xix.) = purification from evils and falsities through truths and goods from the Word.

9534². The Divine sphere which guards Hell, is a sphere of Divine truth separated from Divine good. Ex.

9670⁶. (The scape-goat) = the separation and casting out in every way of evil from good.

9937⁵. That the evils with man are not altogether separated, but are removed . . . Refs. P. 279², Ex.

—⁸. 'A land of separation' (Lev. xvi. 22) = Hell. Ex.

9944. 'The belt' = a bond, and separation from the external things of the Spiritual Kingdom. Ex.

10810. When the Spirits came, the good were separated from the evil; the good to the right, and the evil to the left; and this at once as of their own accord . . .

H. 68². Thus was effected the separation (of hypocrites from that Society).

372^e. 'What therefore God hath joined together, let not man separate (Gen. ii. 24; Matt. xix. 6) = that good is not to be separated from truth.

400⁴. Whence it is that Hell has been separated from Heaven. Ex.

446. Therefore, when these two motions cease in the body, there is at once a separation.

447. After the separation, the man's spirit remains for a while in the body . . .

481². After the first and the second state has been passed through (all there) are separated, so that they do not see each other . . .

494^e. Nevertheless (married partners) are not separated until they enter the second state.

511. The separation of evil Spirits from good Spirits takes place in this second state . . . The separation of the good from the evil is effected in various ways, commonly, by . . .

J. 10². It is possible for the human race on one Earth to perish, which takes place when it completely separates itself from the Divine. Ex.

50. On the way, the evil were separated from the good . . . 51.

61. Visitation is also the separation of the good from the evil; the good are taken away, and the evil are left behind.

64. As soon as (the Papists) arrive there . . . they are completely separated . . .

P. 227². The Lord continually disposes that evil be by itself, and good by itself, so that they can be separated. Ex.

—⁴. Man then commingles good and evil, so that they cannot be separated. Ex.

R. 342, Pref. In (Rev. vii.) it treats, first, of the separation of those of the Christian Heaven from the evil.

347. 'Until we have sealed the servants of our God . . .' = until those have been separated who are in truths from good. Ex.

670. Influx from the Inmost Heaven . . . that the evils and falsities of the Church may be disclosed, and thus the evil be separated from the good. Sig. and Ex. 676, Sig. and Ex.

821. The Lord as to the Word . . . from which He effects Judgment, and separates the good from the evil. Sig. and Ex.

—^e. When the good have been separated from the evil, the evil cast themselves into Hell.

M. 49. That if the married partners . . . cannot live together, they separate themselves; sometimes the man from the wife, sometimes the wife from the man, and sometimes each from the other. Ex. (See D. Min. 4605.)

50². The very house itself, or place itself, separates them . . .

54. All married partners who are merely natural are separated after death . . .

214^e. With those married partners who think of separation, friendship entirely departs; but with those who do not think of separation, the love (with such) remains in externals . . .

236. Spiritual cold . . . whence . . . at last with many separation as to bed, chamber, and house. Ex.

251. There are separations from the bed, and separations from the house . . . The causes of separation coincide with those of concubinage . . .

252. The first cause of lawful separation is vitiation of mind. Ex.

253. The second cause of lawful separation is vitiation of body. Ex.

254. The third cause of lawful separation is impotence before marriage. Ex.

255^e. All other puttings away . . . are separations; if another wife is married, after these, adultery is committed.

286^e. To avoid such mischiefs, he must either simulate favour for his wife, or they must be separated as to the house.

321⁷. Two (such married partners) are not separated by the death of one of them . . .

331². Honour cannot be separated from love; but love can be separated from honour.

470. The just causes of this concubinage are the just causes of separation from the bed. Ex.

473. There are also milder causes which . . . separate from the bed, but not from the house. Enum.

T. 331. By these spheres, the good are separated from the evil.

447². Therefore (after death) the one is separated from the other; friend from friend, parent from children . . .

448. Those who have formed friendships of love (here) cannot be separated according to order like others . . .

772. This second Advent . . . is that the evil may be separated from the good . . . Gen.art.

D. 2991. On separations from Societies.

4632a. Separation (between Hells). Rep.

5021. The Dutch women are separate from their husbands. Ex.

5068. How the evil are separated from the good there.

E. 328. The separation of all things from the Divine. Sig. and Ex.

364⁶. 'The water of separation' . . . = the truth of the natural man.

416. The separation of the good from the evil before the Last Judgment. Tr. 418, Ex. 419, Ex. 425. 426. —⁴, Ex. 489². 493². 502². 504¹⁸.

426². Unless the good were separated from the evil, before the evil are cast into Hell, both would perish. Ex.

—³. This separation cannot be effected before the time of the Last Judgment. Sig. (in the parable of the tares.) 911⁷.

489a. Influx . . . and thence changes of state, and separations. Sig. and Ex.

493. The conjunction of the Heavens with those who were to be separated from the evil. Sig. and Ex. 497, Sig. and Ex.

624². The wicked are to be separated from the upright before the Last Judgment comes, and also after it; and they are not separated except successively . . .

641². The interiors of the Word, etc., are (then) revealed, that the good may be separated from the evil. Ex.

—³. In both worlds . . . there is a revelation, and a separation by it.

669. Separation, and thence protection. Sig. and Ex.

670. Separation as to internals and their protection. Sig. and Ex.

674⁴. When the good were separated from them . . . their external good vanished.

677³. The good convert themselves, and are thus separated.

683. When the evil have been separated from the good. Tr. 691^e.

687. The higher Heavens in light and power to separate the evil from the good before the day of the Last Judgment . . . Sig. and Ex.

693³. The state of those in the former heaven . . . is changed through the separation of the good from the evil . . .

702^e. The conflict of their interiors with their exteriors in the first state of separation . . .

850. The presence of the Lord in Heaven and the Church to separate the good from the evil. Sig. and Ex.

—¹². The separation of the good from the evil. Sig. (in Ps.1.).

859. It treats (in Rev.xiv.) of the separation of the good from the evil before the Last Judgment; and the good who have been separated from the evil are meant by the '144,000 sealed.' 907.

875. 'The hour of His Judgment is come' = the separation of those who live according to Divine truths . . .

904. A prediction about the separation of the good from the evil. Sig. and Ex.

910. For visitation precedes separation; and after separation takes place the Last Judgment.

911. It is the time for collecting the good, and separating them from the evil. Sig. and Ex. 912. Sig. and Ex. 918.

—⁵. That the separation of falsities of evil . . . cannot be effected until it is the last state of the Church. Sig.

Coro. xxv. The Second of redemption was the separation of the evil from the good.

Sephar. Sephar.

A. 1248. 'Sephar' (Gen.x.30) = good. 1249.

Septum. Septum.

A. 183. Towards the septum of the left nostril . . . H.450.

5180. The plane of the septum of the nostrils . . .

Sepulchre. See under BURY.

Seraph. Seraph.

A. 2921⁵. That the 'four animals' are seraphim, or cherubs. Ill.

9429⁶. Occurs. E.580⁴.

R. 245². 'The seraphim' (Is.vi.2) = the Word, properly, doctrine from the Word . . .

E. 282⁹. 'Seraphim' = the like as 'cherubim,' namely, the Divine Providence as to guard. 285².

Serene. Serenus.

Serene, To be. Serenare.

Serenity. Serenitas.

A. 842². There then arises as it were a serenity-serenum, or silence (there).

5246³. When (the falsities and evils) are removed, there appears a serenity.

6603^e. According to the serenity or obscurity of the atmosphere.

8694³. The mind then rests, and is serene . . .

10686^e. After temptations he has serenity . . .

M. 155a^e. This general bliss (which the husbands have from their wives there) is like the serenity of peace.

T. 71^e. The tumult ceased, and there was a tranquillity and serenity. D.2127.

77. In the early and serene light before full waking . . .

304². Compared to the serenity-serenitate - after tempests . . .

D. 2089. Turbulent atmospheres and waters gradually brought to serenity . . . So that that sphere was made serene . . .

4270. Like a serene aura around some one . . .

E. 706⁷. The Jews possessed 'serenity,' because they did not Know Him, and lived securely . . .

Series. Series.

A. 1058. Evident from the series of the Things. 2161. 2162. 2163. 2166. 2221. 2953. 3942. 3983. 3984. 4289. 4369. 4379. 4422^e. 4439. 4443. 4455. 4981². 4992. 5432. 6391. 6750. 6848. 7031.

1659. The internal sense is in a continuous series. 2102^e. 2654.

1756. The beauty of the series of Things cannot appear when the signification of each word is given separately.

2157. Lights of affections and perceptions follow in a continuous series according to the series of the affection of the Things . . .

2269². Thus beautifully does everything follow in its series in the internal sense. 2333^e.

2333³. With variety according to the series of Things . . .

2343. Thus appears the quality of the series of Things in the internal sense. . . Such is the order and series in each and all things of the Word. But the series itself cannot shine out, in its true quality, in the explication of the single words . . .

3304³. The historicals are in their series, and the spiritual things of the internal sense, in theirs.

3900^e. (Thus) these things are in a most beautiful series, although it does not appear so.

3952. These things cannot be comprehended unless they are set forth in one series . . .

4301. (The delight of the eye is) according to the order, or the dispositions into series.

4442^e. Each and all Things in a continuous series represent . . .

4814. The things which follow in a series, flow from those which go before.

4987. In the (Hebrew) one series is not distinguished from another by interstitial signs.

5122^e. Produces series of consequences to eternity.

5242^e. These things are said again for the sake of the series.

5339. When truths have been multiplied into series. Sig. and Ex.

5343. All truths joined to good are disposed into series; and the series are such that . . . 5530, Ex.

—^e. As the Societies have been disposed, so also have been disposed the series of truths joined to good . . .

6690. The scientifics in the Natural have been disposed into continuous series, the one series with the other . . .

7408. For all things in the mind have been disposed into series, and as it were into bundles; and into series within series, or into bundles within bundles. Ex.

7933^e. Not a syllable could be omitted without an interruption of the series.

8864³. The things said first must reign in those which follow, and involve them, and so successively the things in the series.

—⁴. In the Lord's Prayer, all things follow in such a series, that . . .

8877. In a long series and conjunction. Sig. and Ex.

9022. The internal sense treats (here) in a series of . . . But in the external sense no such series appears . . .

9256³. For falsities dispose themselves by series . . . And truths and goods must in like manner form among one another a continuous connection, and be disposed into series. Ex.

9394⁵. Such generals have been disposed into series, and as it were into bundles; and these bundles and series are so ordained with one another, that . . .

9845^e. How series of Things are produced successively.

10206². All (these) things follow in order according to the series in which they are described.

10303. The disposition of truths into their series. Sig. and Ex.

—³. Truths are said to be disposed into series when they have been disposed according to the form of Heaven, in which are the angelic Societies . . .

— . In the (body) all things have been disposed into series, and series of series . . .

10633^e. The words (in the Word), in their series, involve series of spiritual things . . .

H. 236. The wise Angels know, from one series of speech, the quality of the dominant affection.

269. Their words are varied in infinite modes according to the series of the Things . . .

323. From one idea of thought they could know the entire series . . . D.4330.

W. 214. In a series of like degrees . . .

215. The ultimate of each series . . .

P. 202³. Each change . . . changes something in the series of present and consequent things.

R. 349². The series in which the tribes are named. E.431¹⁵.

M. 313². All the things in minds which precede, form series, and the series collect themselves, one near another, and one after another, and these, together, compose the ultimate.

401. The progressive series of efficient causes is . . .

—^e. The series of the love of infants . . . is retrograde.

T. 32⁸. Series in geometry which advance to infinity.

351. There is a disposition of the Truths of faith into series . . . Ex.

— . What is meant by series and bundles . . . The first chapter . . . has been distinguished into series . . .

—⁴. There is nothing in nature which has not been confasculated into series . . .

D. 2315. Societies as in a concatenated series. Ex.

2784. All the objects of the eye . . . are reduced into a series. Ex.

2785. In like manner series of Things may be drawn forth from (the Word).

2965. Led by series of their cupidities.

Serious. Serius.

A. 1509. Looking down on all who are in serious employments.

T. 80. But [let us address ourselves] to serious things.

D. 1125. Those in the class of the celestials . . . come into a Society of the serious; for, immediately after vastation, they love nothing more than serious thoughts.

1959. A certain Spirit not evil, but serions . . .

2502. They made it a trouble to me to think or do serious things.

3228^e. That assassin would have been one of the sternest judges.

4091^e. By serious repentance.

6107. Moses was a serious man.

Sermon. See under CONVERSATION—sermo.

Serpent. Serpens.

Serpentine. Serpentinus.

See under ARROW-SNAKE, ASP, COCKATRICE, DRAGON, FIRE-SERPENT, and VIPER.

A. 191. The Sensuous is represented by 'the serpent.' 192. 194.

195. The Most Ancients . . . called the sensuous things of man serpents; because, as serpents are nearest the earth, so are sensuous things nearest the body. Hence, reasonings from sensuous things concerning the mysteries of faith, they called poisons of a serpent; and the reasoners themselves, serpents; and as such reason much from sensuous or visible things . . . it is said that 'the serpent was more cunning than every beast of the field.' Ill.

—². Hence the proverb . . . that the serpent stoppeth the ear.

196. Those were called serpents who trusted in sensuous more than in revealed things. At this day it is still worse . . .

— . Such are not only deaf serpents, but also flying serpents. Des.

197. A serpent (most anciently) = circumspection, and thus the Sensuous by which they exercised it . . . Hence, the words, 'Be ye prudent as serpents . . .' 6398³. E.581⁹.

— . 'The brazen serpent' = the Sensuous of the Lord . . . who alone exercises circumspection and provides for all; and therefore those who looked on it were saved. (= the Lord, and protection. 8624^e.)

206^e. These are the serpents who seduce the world. Des.

235. (Thus) the Sensuous, which is 'the serpent,' cursed itself . . . Tr.

242. 'Jehovah God said unto the serpent' (Gen.iii.14) = that they perceived their Sensuous to be the cause. That the serpent was 'cursed above every beast . . . ' = that the Sensuous averted itself from the Celestial and turned itself to the Corporeal, and thus cursed itself. That the serpent should 'walk upon its belly' = that the Sensuous could no longer look upward to celestial, but downward to corporeal and earthly things. That it should 'eat dust all the days of its life' = that the Sensuous had become so that it could not live from anything but what is corporeal and earthly. 244. 245. 247. 249. E.581¹⁰.

250. 'I will put enmity between thee and the woman . . . ' (ver.15) . . . 'The serpent,' here, = all evil in general; in special, the love of self . . . 'The head' of the serpent = the dominion of evil in general, and of the love of self in special . . . 251, Ex. and Ill. 257. 8678, Ex.

254. 'The seed' of the serpent = all infidelity. Ex.

259². The serpent can injure only the lowest natural things; and not, unless it is a species of viper, interior natural things in man, still less spiritual things, and least of all celestial things . . .

425^e. 'The brazen serpent' = the Lord's sensuous and natural good. (= the Lord as to the external Sensuous, or Natural. 3863⁵. R.49^e.)

815. A place where large-bellied serpents inflict torment with their bites. D.1495.

819. A lake containing monstrous serpents, with pestilent breath.

825². This Hell is sometimes changed into direful serpents, which bite them . . .

830. (Such deceitful ones) seem to themselves to live among serpents . . . which torture them. D.2857.

831³. Their eyes are serpentine, having, as is said, the sight and its idea present on all sides. D.4019.

1197³. 'The serpent's root' (Is.xiv.29) = scientifics.

2219⁴. The love of self is 'the head' of the serpent.

2588⁹. (Such) were called serpents of the tree of knowledge. Ex. 4802⁴. 5128³. 10236⁶. P.310. T.324. 380⁴. 402¹².

[A.] 2722. The serpent of brass was holy in the time of Moses; but, when the external was worshipped, it became profane . . .

2756. A serpent appears wound around (those who practise communion of wives). D.2867.

2761. 'Serpent' (biting horse's heels)=one who reasons from sensuous and scientific things about Divine arcana. 3923². 6400, Ex.

3477. The broad way was bordered with trees and flowers . . . in which were hidden snakes and serpents . . .

4211³. This conjunction with the Lord as to His Divine Sensuous, is represented by those reviving from the bite of the serpents who looked on the brazen serpent. (Num.xxi.9). Ex.

4533². The deceitful appear as serpents; and the most deceitful as vipers.

5559^e. The cuticles (of those who have been deceitful) appear like conglutinations of mere serpents.

6398. 'Dan shall be a serpent upon the way' (Gen. xlix.17)=their ratiocination concerning truth, because good does not yet lead. 'A serpent'=ratiocination from the Sensuous. —², Ex.

—^e. Elsewhere, malice, cunning, and deceit, are signified by serpents, but poisonous ones, as vipers. The ratiocination of these is poison.

6401^e. Their ratiocinations about truth and good are called 'serpents, cockatrices' (Jer.viii.17).

6949. '(Moses' rod) became a serpent' (Ex.iv.3)=the sensuous and corporeal man separate from the internal; for 'a serpent'=a man who reasons from sensuous things; thus the Sensuous of man; and, as 'a serpent'=the Sensuous, it also=the Corporeal; for the Sensuous has what belongs to it from the senses of the body; and, as the Sensuous, regarded in itself, is such as (here) described, it=all evil in general. (Further ex.)

6950. 'Moses fled from before it'=horror at the separated Sensuous. Ex.

6952. 'Take it by the tail'=the power of elevating from the ultimate of the Sensuous. Ex.

— . As 'the serpent'=the separated Sensuous, and the derivative ratiocination from the fallacies of the senses concerning the truths of faith, 'the tail' of the serpent=the falsity itself; for this is the ultimate or lowest . . . Ill.

6959. The rod becoming a serpent=that they would become completely sensuous and corporeal.

7265. That mere fallacies would begin to reign with them, whence falsities, is described by the serpent into which Aaron's rod was turned (Ex.vii.).

7293. 'It shall become a water serpent' (ver.9)=that mere fallacies, and the derivative falsities, will reign with them. Ex. 7295, Ex.

— . 'A water serpent' is the same in the Hebrew as 'a whale.' Ill.

—⁴. 'Water serpents'=the falsities themselves from fallacies from which are reasonings, and through which are perversions.

—⁵. 'Serpents'=the falsities from which are reasonings. Ill. The same are signified by 'dragons.' Ex.

7295³. The first degree of the deprivation of the influx of truth and good is described by Aaron's rod being turned into a serpent . . .

7298. '(The magicians' rods) became water serpents' (ver.12)=dulness as to the apperception of truth; (for) 'water serpents'=falsities from fallacies. Ex.

8891³. 'The serpent' (in Gen.)=ratiocination from the intellectual proprium. 9942³.

9013². When inspected by the Angels (Genii) appear like serpents; for they have the nature of serpents, and that which goes forth from them is spiritual venom.

—³. Venomous serpents, as asps, cockatrices, vipers, =the deceitful. Ill.

10019⁴. 'Serpents and scorpions' (Luke x.19)=evils, and falsities of evil: 'to tread on them'=to destroy them.

10313. They seem to themselves to be bound hand and foot with serpents . . . For the corporeal Sensuous is there represented by serpents; and therefore 'serpents,' in the Word, =the Sensuous, which is the ultimate of man's life. D.1668.

H. 400³. They cast themselves on the ground, and writhe like a serpent. E.865.

489⁶. They appear to themselves to creep away like serpents.

C. J. 61. This love (of exercising command) is the serpent which deceived Eve and Adam . . . T.822.

62^e. This worst evil is meant by 'the head of the serpent' . . .

S. 23. They made images of serpents . . . because serpents=the prudence of the sensuous man (and also his cunning. T.205.)

F. 53^e. 'From the serpent's root a basilisk' (Is.xiv.29) =from the conceit of Own intelligence the destruction of all truth with them.

W. 338. Such (evil uses) are venomous serpents, etc.

P. 40. Compared to the lascivious delights . . . of serpents in stenehes.

211. Man's proprium, which is his will . . . is that serpent which seduced our first parents, of which it is said: 'I will put enmity between thee and the woman . . . ' 'The serpent'=evil of every kind; its 'head'=the love of self. Further ex. 241.

310⁶. As the Ancients called the sensuous man a serpent, and such a man is crafty, cunning, and a clever reasoner above others, it is said that 'the serpent was made more cunning than every beast of the field;' and the Lord said, 'Be ye prudent as serpents . . . ' R.455^e.

313². 'The serpent' (in Eden)=the Sensuous and the proprium of man, which in itself is the love of self and the conceit of Own intelligence, thus the devil and Satan. —³.

324⁷. Writhe like a serpent placed before a fire. R.611². 676⁴. M.10⁵.

R. 144. They are like serpents in the grass . . .

455. 'Their tails were like unto serpents . . . ' (Rev. ix.19)=that they are sensuous and inverted . . .

—². By 'serpents,' in the Word, are signified sensuous things . . . for affections merely sensuous appear there like serpents. The reason is that serpents creep on the ground, and lick the dust; and sensuous things are the lowest ones of the understanding and will; for they stand forth next the world, and are nourished from its objects and delights . . . Noxious serpents, which are of many kinds, = the sensuous things which are dependent on evil affections, which make the interiors of the mind with those who are insane from falsities of evil; and harmless serpents = the sensuous things which are dependent on good affections which make the interiors of the mind with those who are wise from truths of good. Ill.

469^e. One who does not acknowledge the Lord is not admitted into Heaven, but stands below, and is bitten by serpents, that is, by infernal Spirits, from which there is no healing except that which came to the sons of Israel by their looking to the brazen serpent, by which is meant the Lord as to the Divine Human.

550. 'A serpent' = man sensuous from the Corporeal.

562. 'A serpent' = those who seduce. Ill.

563. 'The serpent cast out of his mouth water as a flood after the woman' (Rev. xii. 15) = ratiocinations from falsities in abundance to destroy the Church. Ex. See E. 763.

841. Because they think sensuously and not spiritually about the Things of faith, they are called 'the old serpent' (Rev. xx. 2). Ex.

M. 135³. 'The serpent' (in Gen.) = the devil as to the love of self and the conceit of Own intelligence; and this love is the possessor of the tree of knowledge. 353².

265. His feet in a basket full of serpents . . .

— . Red serpents crept up the sides of the glowing ass . . .

430. The lascivious delights of scortatory love are presented under the forms of serpents, etc.

521. About the cavern lay a great serpent in spiral folds, which breathed poison into it.

522. A lake in which were some red serpents.

T. 122. Like one who sees a serpent in the way . . . and seizes hold of its head . . .

224³. He is tortured like a serpent laid on sheets of hot iron, or on an ant-hill. 578^e.

569⁴. A devil seen like a great serpent, writhing in agony . . .

D. 232^e. She dissolved into serpents, or horrible snakes, and was thus rejected.

2492. On a certain kind of serpent.—There are genera and species of those who are serpents, or who (here) had been deceitful. In the other life they are called serpents, because they appear like serpents to the Angels; for, when the Angels inspect them, they are as it were turned into serpents before the eyes of Spirits (and also to themselves), insomuch that I supposed them to be completely turned into serpentine globes . . . For in serpents there are poisons by which, in nature, are represented deceits. 2497. 2519. 2762. 3061. 3080. 4681².

3009. A sorceress, when inspected, was turned into a ball of serpents . . .

3191. (Gustavus Adolphus was also represented) by a great serpent.

3206². (Their delight) is turned into direful serpents, which gnaw and devour their breasts and genitals . . .

3220. The assassin [went] into serpentine flexures . . .

3307. She was punished by a long serpent . . .

3319. As they still supposed that they perceived interior things, they are called 'the head of the serpent.'

3605b. His phantasies were represented as serpents.

3640. The evil in the interior sphere cannot be inspected by the Angels, for they would be turned into serpents . . .

3683. See Dog.

3690. Their ideas [were] as it were a sphere of venomous serpents.

3747. Dragons are flying serpents. E. 714³. —⁵, Ex.

4198. There are dragons and serpents (in that new Hell).

4351. It is from this representation that serpents cast their exuviae; for the deceitful are represented by serpents. 4356. 4366.

4379. Innumerable serpents and vipers (seen) who were evil Spirits.

4381. By phantasies . . . they project serpents, and the other would grind them up with his feet, so that the gore would appear over the whole plane . . .

4470^e. The Jesuits . . . are represented by serpents of various kinds, viperine; spotted; more, or less, venomous.

4499. In that Hell (of magicians) are direful venomous serpents.

4540. These are the serpents treated of in Genesis.

4542. A certain female was representatively interiorly full of venomous serpents: she supposed that if she could void the serpents as excrement, she would be delivered (from all sin) . . .

4631. Those who insidiate against conjugal love . . . when inspected, appear like serpents.

4672. There appeared a great head of a serpent, ugly with its black scales . . . That magical Hell so appears . . . because serpents are the natural, and the reasonings from them . . . (Such) is signified by 'the great crooked serpent' . . . where Egypt is treated of, where there was magic.

4701. A certain one who . . . appeared as a great serpent, which coiled itself round the neck of the other . . . It was terrific to see. Ex.

4705. First, he was seen as an infant, then as a venomous serpent . . .

4811. There appeared a great serpent . . . almost green in colour; it was seen to seize a certain Spirit by the garment, and bring him round to the right . . .

By sensuous things and their fallacies he had so treated others. Ex.

[D.] 4816^e. But behind the ears lies hidden a serpent.

4854. There are places (in the Hell of the profane) where there are serpents of various kinds.

4948. She turned herself into various serpentine forms, and (so) penetrated . . .

5705^e. Such were called by the Ancients serpents; for they can reason . . .

5900. Those also are serpents who (here) have lived solitary . . . and have not divulged their thoughts. Those who have thought evilly about . . . the neighbour act . . . like serpents, and, when inspected . . . appear as serpents . . .

5941^e. They (then) represent the ship as surrounded with serpents.

6044. When he thought about confirmations . . . there appeared serpents, which wanted to fly into his feet.

D. Min. 4698^e. Thus is the head of the serpent trampled on.

4700. There appeared a great serpent there, thick, like a beam, from which went forth four feet, horrible . . .

4761. When they are thinking, there is heard a hissing as of serpents . . .

E. 70^e. 'A serpent'=that which is the ultimate of life with man, and is called the external Sensuous. As this ultimate, in the Lord, was Divine, a 'serpent of brass' was made, which signified that if they looked to the Lord's Divine Human, they would revive . . . 581¹². 805¹⁰.

275³. See LEVIATHAN. 581⁸.

355⁸. 'A serpent upon the way, and an asp upon the path'=the Sensuous as to truth and as to good. (Compare 581¹¹.)

386³. 'The serpent's root'=this false principle (of faith alone). (=the Sensuous. 817⁹.)

544². See SCORPION.

581. 'Their tails were like serpents' . . . 'Serpents'=the astutenesses of the sensuous man.

—². 'Serpents,' in the Word,=the sensuous man as to cunning, and as to prudence. Fully ill. —⁹.

—.'The serpent was more cunning than any beast . . . '=the sensuous man; in general, the Sensuous itself. Ex. 763^e.

—³. 'Serpents'=the affections of the sensuous man, because they crawl—serpunt . . . Ex.

—⁴. Hence the devil, or Hell, is called 'a serpent.' Ill.

—⁶. 'To tread on serpents'=to despise . . . the wiles, cunning, and wicked arts of the infernal crew.

—⁷. Ill.

—¹². 'The fiery flying serpents'=sensuous things . . .

650²³. The Gentiles worshipped serpents, because the serpent=the Sensuous . . . and its prudence.

706¹⁴. That they should 'take up serpents,' was said because 'serpents'=the Hells as to malice . . .

714²⁹. See DRAGON.

730³⁴. 'Serpents'=the evils thence.

739. 'The old serpent'=the sensuous.

—⁴. They are called 'serpents'; for 'a serpent'=the Sensuous; because this is the lowest of man's life, and as it were creeps . . . and licks the dust like a serpent.

—⁶. Their seduction by 'the serpent'=seduction by the Sensuous, which derives everything from the world, and nothing from Heaven. Ex. —⁷. —⁹. C. 204.

768³. 'The serpent' (Gen.iii.15)=the Sensuous of man, where is his proprium, which in itself is nothing but evil.

1145⁷. 'The voice of a serpent' (Jer.xlvi.22)=cunning and deceit.

1175². 'A serpent'=infernal evil with those who pervert the truths of the Word, and thereby deceive cunningly and deceitfully.

Serug. Serug.

A. 1349. 'Serug' (Gen.xi.20) was a nation named from Serug as its father, and by which is signified worship in externals.

Serum. Serum.

Serosity. Serositas.

A. 4050². Lymph mixed with serosities is excrementitious.

5056². See SEED.

D. 960. The kidneys take away the unclean things of the serum of the blood. 962.

966. The subsidiary kidneys . . . attract, because they fix, the serum of the purer blood.

999. There is an entire series of secretions of the serosities of the blood . . .

999a. Those who relate to the middle serosity . . .

1000. Such accord with the things which belong to the nature of its serosity.

1001. Those who represent the grosser serosities.

Servant. Famulus, Famulitium.

A. 5127. Exteriors (must) serve as servants; for exteriors are nothing but things of service—famulitia.

6089². The Internal no longer acknowledges truth in the Natural as a father, but as a servant, as is indicated by Joseph's dream . . .

8735. Those called saints (in Jupiter) exercise command over their servants, whom they multiply . . . 8736. 8739.

10814. The father of the nation . . . never subjects them . . . as servants.

10835. (In the houses in the Sixth Earth) the servants and maidservants dwell behind.

H. 219. See MASTER, herus. T.431.

468². Truths then serve (self) as a servant their lord. 472².

557. He then loves them only as things of service, because they serve himself.

W. 249². These persons, after death, become things of service—famulitia et servitia . . . For the natural man is a servant—famulus et servus . . .

333^c. Man is only a servant and steward . . .

P. 324¹⁰. Self and the world . . . an instrumental and servant—famulans.

M. 10³. Two attendants led him out (of Heaven).

11². Take . . . some of my attendants to minister to them.

18. An attendant came running . . .

153². The fear of being whipped by the servants.

T. 404². If he regards as the end (having) servants—famulitia, etc.

410. When anyone selects . . . a servant . . .

418². Who loves a . . . servant except for his fidelity? D. Love xiii².

426². By these benefactions . . . servants and maid-servants—famulae, are initiated into charity.

D. 5050^e. Occurs.

5956. In the Spiritual World they have servants—famulitia, who render an account (in figures).

6021. A servant of the Mohammedan religion . . .

C. 172. Charity in servants. Ex.

Serve. Servire.

Servant. Servus.

Service. Servitium.

Slavery. Servitus.

A. 81³. A dead man . . . when in no combat . . . is a slave—servus.

892. Before (regeneration, man is in) a state of slavery. It is slavery when cupidities and Falsities exercise command . . . Man never perceives this so long as he is in a state of slavery . . . When he is in a state of slavery . . . the man who has been subjugated by cupidities and Falsities supposes that he is in a state of freedom. But this is a gross falsity. Ex. (See 905.)

987². He would spare only those who submitted themselves as vile slaves. 1594³.

1094. 'A servant of servants shall he be to his brethren' (Gen.ix.25)=the vilest thing in the Church. Ex.

1097. Those who perform vile services to the men of the Church. Sig. and Ex.

1103. 'Let Canaan be his servant' (ver.27)=that those who place worship solely in externals can perform vile offices. . . Such persons are not servants in the Church on earth . . . but they are servants in the other life; for they are among the unhappy. The services which they there perform are vile, and are numerous. Ex.

1396. He said that he wanted to serve them; but . . . they perceived that he wanted to be great.

1486. 'Asses and men-servants' (Gen.xii.16) = scientifics regarded in themselves.

— . All things with the external man are nothing but things of service—servitia, that is, they are of service—inserviant—to the internal man . . .

—^c. Every scientific is for the sake of use; and this is its service.

1594³. They place eternal happiness in . . . being served by others . . . they wanting to serve no one, except for the sake of self . . . Their saying that they want to serve the Lord alone is false; for those in the love of self want the Lord to serve them; and, so far as this is not done, they recede . . .

1713. 'He and his servants' (Gen.xiv.15) = the rational man and the things in the external man which obeyed. . . All things in the latter, before it has been liberated, are called 'servants;' for they do nothing but obey the interior man. Examp.

1749². In order to reign with them, they offer their services with the good Spirits.

—³. Dominion from evil and falsity, is to want to make all slaves.

1845. 'They shall serve them' (Gen.xv.13)=oppression. 1849.

1851. The 'substance' of those who undergo temptations, oppressions, afflictions, or slavery. Tr.

1895. This affection . . . ought to serve intellectual truth . . . as a maid-servant her mistress.

2027. They do not regard others except in so far as they serve them; and those who will not do this they either despise, or hate. 2045².

—². When anyone wants to be served, he murders the other in his heart.

2057³. As each one wants to be served . . . there is dissociation . . . so that they perceive nothing to be more delightful than torturing others . . .

2159. 'Thy servant' (Gen.xviii.3)=the Human . . . before it was made Divine. Ex. and Ill.

—³. The Lord then adored Jehovah . . . like a servant.

2276³. The valuation of a servant who was held as vile. Sig. 'A servant,' in the internal sense, =labour.

2357². No one can serve two lords at the same time. Ex.

2541. 'He called all his servants' (Gen.xx.8)=rational and scientific things. Ex.

2567. 'Men-servants and maid-servants' (ver.14)=enriched with rational truths and natural truths, and their affections. Ex. and Ill.

—⁷. That 'men-servants' = truths, and 'maid-servants,' goods, which are of service—inserviant, and thus serve spiritual and celestial truths and goods. Ill.

— . The laws relating to servants, enum.

2782. 'Servants,' in the Word, =the natural things of man which are to be of service—inservitura—to the Rational.

2884. The freedom of the love of self and of the world . . . is complete slavery—servum. Ex.

2885. No one can know what slavery—servum, or what freedom is, unless he knows the origin of the one and of the other . . .

2890^e. To be led by the devil is slavery—servum.

2921. Those are called 'servants' in whom there is no power, or who have power from those (called 'lords').

[A.] 3019. 'Abraham said unto his servant, the elder one of his house' (Gen.xxiv.2)=the ordination and influx of the Lord into His Natural. Ex.

— 'A servant'=that which is lower, and serves what is higher; or, that which is exterior, and serves what is interior. All things of the natural man . . . are nothing but services. 3143.

3029. 'The servant said unto him' (ver.5)=the Lord's perception concerning the natural man. 'The servant,' here, =the natural man. 3048. 3134. 3163, Ex. 3169.

3192. 'The servant took Rebekah' (ver.61)=that Divine natural good initiated. Ex.

3204. 'She said unto the servant' (ver.65)=exploration from the Divine Natural. . . 'The 'servant'=the Divine Natural. 3206. 3209.

3409. 'And much service' (Gen.xxvi.14) = truth thence. 'Service'=all that which is beneath, which is subordinate, and which obeys; thus truth, because it . . . ministers to good. 3441⁴.

3412. See WELL.

3441. 'Abraham My servant' (ver.24) = the Lord's Divine Human. . . 'Servant,' when predicated of the Lord, =the Divine Human; not that the Divine Human is a servant, but because the Lord through it is of service to the human race. Ex. and Ill.

3463. 'The servants of Isaac' (ver.32) = rational things. 'Servants' = rational, and also scientific, things.

3581. 'Peoples shall serve thee' (Gen.xxvii.29)=the truths of the Church. . . 'To serve,' is predicated of truths.

3601. 'Thou shalt serve thy brother' (ver.40)=that good should be (apparently) in a lower place.

3824. 'I will serve thee seven years' (Gen.xxix.18)=study and a holy state. . . 'To serve'=study. 3840. 3846. 3852.

3869¹¹. In relation to the servant who did not want to go out from service . . . to bore the ear with an awl . . . =to serve, or obey, perpetually, (thus) not to want to understand truth, but to will truth from obedience . . .

3974. It was a statute . . . that the women given to servants belonged to the lord with whom they served, and also the sons born from them. Ex. . . For 'a man-servant'=the truth of the Natural, such as it is at first, before genuine truths are insinuated . . . When goods and truths have been insinuated through . . . its service, it is dismissed . . . To represent this, this law about servants was delivered. But Jacob was not a bought servant . . . 4113, Ex.

3975. 'I have served thee for them' (Gen.xxx.26)=from Own power; for 'to serve'=labour and study, which, predicated of the Lord, =Own power. 4076. 4176.

3977. 'Thou knowest my service with which I have served thee' (id.)=labour and study from Own power.

3983. 'How I have served' (ver.29)=to know his power; for 'to serve,' here, =Own power. 3996.

4037. See MAID-SERVANT. 5023. 9034. 9062. 9081. T.325. E.1022².

— 'Men - servants' = scientifics, which are the truths of the natural man. 4244.

4104⁵. That the things in the Natural be servient.

4250^e. Truths are then only ministers and servants (to good).

4264. Services general and special. Sig. and Ex.

4266. 'Servants' (Gen.xxxii.16)=the things of the natural man. Ex.

4267. 'Thy servant Jacob' (ver.18) . . . =submission; for truth is relatively a servant, before conjunction.

4646². Things servient. Sig.

4682². 'Servants' (Joel ii.29)=those who know.

4818⁴. Believe all others to be relatively servants, vile.

5013. 'A Hebrew man'=a servant. . . For such regard spiritual truth and good as a mere servant; for, with them . . . the spiritual serves; when yet . . . the Natural ought to serve. Ex. 5023. 5025, Sig. and Ex.

5084⁸. The joy in Heaven is to serve by doing good to others . . .

5159. When exteriors begin to serve interiors . . .

5161. 'Made a feast to all his servants' (Gen.xl.20)=conjunction with the exterior Natural . . . 'Servants'=the things of the exterior Natural. Ex. 5164.

— Mutual love causes it not to be perceived as servitude-servitus.

5164. In the Word, all things are called 'servants' which are beneath, and subordinate: the exterior Natural relatively to the interior Natural; this relatively to the Rational; and all things in man relatively to the Divine. 5305.

—². The 'servants,' here, were the princes and nobles . . . Relatively to the Lord, all are equally servants. In Heaven the greatest are servants more than others, because they are in the greatest obedience and humility. Ill.

—³. 'Servants' are so called relatively to the Divine truth which . . . ministers relatively to the Divine good.

— The reason 'the last who are the first' are servants above others, is that they perceive that all their life and Power are from the Lord. . . Those who do not perceive this are also servants, but more in mouth than heart. While those in the contrary call themselves servants-servos seu famulos—but want to be lords . . .

5237. 'A servant' is predicated of truth; here (Gen.xli.12)=truth inservient.

5305. 'Servants'=the things in the Natural, especially those in the exterior Natural.

5435. 'Servants'=lower things; hence truths; for . . . things subject are called 'servants' . . .

5651. 'Take us for servants' (Gen.xliii.18)=things of no account.

5732². In Heaven . . . no one regards another as a servant; but each wants to minister and be inservient.

5760. 'We will be . . . for servants' (Gen.xliv.9)= without freedom from proprium. 5763, Ex. 5786, Sig. and Ex. 6138, Sig. and Ex. 6163. 6568.

5763. He is a servant of the devil. Ex.

—². When man receives this freedom, he is a servant of the Lord.

5786³. Freedom from proprium is . . . to subject others as servants . . .

5936. 'Servants,' here (Gen. xlv. 16) = lowest things.

5947. The service (of lower things). Sig. and Ex. . . Lower things are formed for no other use than to be services. Ex.

5958. Many things of service (sent to spiritual good). Sig. and Ex. 5959.

6205. He who introduces himself into a man's cupidities and persuasions . . . makes him a slave.

6281. 'To redeem,' as predicated of slavery-servitio. Ex.

6389. 'A bony ass' = the lowest service. Ex.

—^e. In the other life (they who do good for a recompence) are employed as lowest services.

6390. All slavery-servum-is from the affection of the love of self and the world.

—². To serve in lowest things. Sig.

6392². Being served by others supposed to be happiness. 6393².

6393. They do good . . . from affection for self, which is slavery-servum.

—². Whereas heavenly bliss is . . . not to be served by others ; but to want to serve others. Ill.

6394. 'A servant-serviens-unto tribute' (Gen. xlix. 15) = to be subject and to serve. Ex.

6523. 'All the servants of Pharaoh' (Gen. i. 7) = the scientifics of the Natural.

6565. 'The servants of the God of thy father' (ver. 16) = the acknowledgment of the Divine things of the Church. Ex.

6659. Falsities which would compel them to serve. Sig. and Ex.

6666. 'The Egyptians made them serve' (Ex. i. 13) = intention to subjugate. Ex. 6668. 6670. 6800. 7204.

6852. Aid against those who want to compel them to serve. Sig. and Ex.

6984. 'Thy servant' (Ex. iv. 10) = the Human not yet made Divine.

7038. 'That they may serve Me' (ver. 23) = elevation into Heaven to perform uses thence. Ex.

7120. 'Let the service be made heavy' (Ex. v. 9) = the assault increased. Ex.

7129. 'Service' (ver. 11) = assault by falsities ; thus infestation. 7151. 7218.

7143. 'A servant' = one who ministers, and performs duty. 7144.

7313. 'To serve Jehovah' (Ex. vii. 16) = to worship the Lord. 7349. 7439. 7500. 7641. 7654. 7658. 7668. 7722. 7730. 7958.

7332. Would make truths serve evils of life.

7355. 'The servants and people of Pharaoh' = all things in the Natural. The things there which are inservient to confirm falsities are called 'servants.' 7357. (Compare 7396.) 7448. 7543. 7632.

7562. 'The servants of Pharaoh' = the things of the natural mind. 7563. 7565.

7652. 'The servants of Pharaoh' = those who infest of a lower sort. 7773, Ex. 7787. 8143.

7819. He loves self as a means to the end that he may serve the Lord . . . and the world as a means that he may serve the neighbour.

7934. 'Ye shall keep this service' (Ex. xii. 25) = worship on account of deliverance. 7936. 8057.

7998. 'Every man's servant' (ver. 44) = man as yet natural.

8049. 'The house of servants' (Ex. xiii. 3) = spiritual captivity. . . For 'service' = infestation by falsities. 8866, Ex.

8168. 'To serve the Egyptians' (Ex. xiv. 12) = to surrender themselves to those who infest. 8169.

8241. Moses His servant' (ver. 31) = Divine truth ministering. Ex.

8292. 'I will divide the spoil' = slavery-servitium. Ex. 8293.

8313⁴. Those in charity want to serve all as the lowest ; whereas those in faith (only) . . . want to be served by all.

8553. In man, what ought to dominate is inservient ; and what ought to serve, dominates.

8866. It is slavery-servum-to be led by those in Hell. Refs.

8873. 'Thou shalt not serve them' (Ex. xx. 5) = no Divine worship for them. 'To serve' = submission. . . 'To serve' (as distinguished from 'to bow down to') = worship from the truth of faith.

8890. 'Thy man-servant' (ver. 10) = the Natural as to truth. Refs.

8906^e. Truths and goods . . . then come into a state of slavery-statum servum. Sig. and Ex.

8912. 'A man-servant' = the affection of spiritual truth.

8974. 'When thou shalt buy a Hebrew servant' (Ex. xxi. 2) = those in the Church who are in truths of doctrine, and not in good according to them. Ex. . . 'A servant' is predicated of those in truth and not in the corresponding good ; and, in general, of truth relatively to good.

—². The reason these are represented by 'servants,' is that the things of the External Church are, relatively, nothing but services . . .

—³. The reformation of such is treated of here in the laws concerning man-servants and maid-servants.

8975. 'Six years shall he serve' (id.) = a state of labour and of some combat, and of the consequent confirmation of truth. 8981.

8976. 'In the seventh he shall go out free' (id.) = a state of confirmed truth. Ex.

8977. 'If he came in his body (that is, a man-servant alone without a woman) (ver. 3) = truth without delight.

... The men of the External Church, represented by the 'Hebrew servants,' are those who learn truth from no delight. Ex.

[A. 8977]³. These are meant by those who want to serve for ever. Ex. (See also 8985-8991. E.208¹³.)

—⁴. These are the arcana in these statutes concerning servants. Ex.

8979. 'If he be lord of a woman' (id.)=truth conjoined with delight.

— . 'An (Israelitish) man-servant'=the man of the External Church, possessed of the truth of doctrine, but not the corresponding good; because he does truth and good (merely) to be rewarded. Ex.

—². Thus the man of the External Church is relatively a servant... and was represented by the servant called 'a Hebrew servant,' because he was bought from the sons of Israel.

8980. 'The man-servants,' here, =(those) in a delight which counterfeits the corresponding good... Their 'going out' from service (with their woman)=their state when received into Heaven; but as they are solely in faith... they are admitted no further than the entrance. Ex.

8981. 'If his lord shall give him a woman' (ver.4) =good adjoined to truth by the Spiritual, while in combat. Ex. (See also 8983-8991.)

8988. Those who act solely from obedience... are relatively in servitude-servitute. Ex.

—². But to serve the Lord by acting according to His precepts, and thus by obeying Him, is not to be a servant, but is to be free. Ex.

8991. 'He shall serve him for ever' (ver.6)=to obey to eternity... Such can never be brought to a state in which they act from good... They are perfected as to obedience; but do not attain to anything of charity. (See above, 3869¹¹.)

8993². For all that which derives its origin from the love of self, or the love of the world... is servile-servum.

8994². Those in truth and not in the affection of it... are represented by 'the man-servants from the sons of Israel.'

9034. 'A man-servant'=scientific truth, which is the truth of the literal sense. Ex. (This 'smitten.' Ex.)

9039^e. (The Angels) place all glory and joy in serving; and, when in this state, they are in dominion. Ex.

9058. 'When a man shall smite the eye of his man-servant' (ver.26)=if the internal injures the truth of faith in the external man... 'A man-servant'=scientific truth in the external man, thus also the external man. (See also 9060-9063.)

9081. 'A man-servant'=truth in the Natural. (This destroyed. Ex.)

9093². 'No one can serve two lords'... =to serve the Lord by faith, and the world by love; thus to acknowledge truth, and do evil. (=those called 'lukewarm.' 9210³. E.233.) E.409⁷. 730³, Ex.

9096^e. Slavery-servum-is to be led by cupidities which are from Hell. Refs.

9180. Submission and service. Sig. and Ex.

—^e. Good done for the sake of gain must serve.

9318. 'To serve'=obedience, and also worship. Refs.

9322. 'To serve'=worship. 9347.

9449. Serving the neighbour for the sake of the neighbour (a sign that sins are remitted).

9586. To do evil from delight is (really) slavery-servum... 'Everyone who does sin is the servant of sin.' N.142. E.409⁹.

9776. 'The service of the Habitation'... 'Service'=the External or Natural of man. Ex.

9806⁴. 'Servant' is predicated from truths.

9877^e. Those not in this good of love... are in a state of slavery-statu servo. Ex.

10409. Slavery is to be led by self. P.44.

H. 218. The governors there minister and serve; for to do good to others from the love of good is to serve, and to provide that it be done is to minister.

380². Where one is a slave, the other also is led as a slave by the cupidity of dominating.

408^e. Heaven consists in serving others for the sake of their happiness...

557^e. He who is in the love of self, wills that the Church, his country, etc., should serve him, and not he them.

564. He who dominates from love... loves nothing more than uses, thus to serve others. To serve others means to will good and perform uses to them.

—². When he serves others, it is that he may himself be served...

574². (In Hell they punish a new infernal) until he has been reduced to slavery-in servum... But those who have been made slaves are (by turns) taken out [of slavery] to help some new devil to subjugate others.

W. 249². See SERVANT-famulus.

P. 43. To be led by evil is (really) slavery-servum. Ex.

97. Infernal freedom, in itself, is slavery-servum. 145^e. 149².

149. Man does not want to come out of spiritual servitude-servitute (as he does out of natural servitude) because he does not know what spiritual servitude-servum-is... It is believed that spiritual servitude-servum-is freedom, and spiritual freedom servitude-servum. (Other reasons given.)

215¹¹. Domination is thus to them a means of doing uses, thus of serving.

R. 3. 'His servants' (Rev.i.1)=those in faith from charity, or in truths of wisdom from good of love. Ex. and Ill. 347, Sig. and Ex. E.6. 427.

— . Therefore 'servants'=truths.

—². As the Lord was the Divine truth... He is called 'the Servant of Jehovah.' Ill.

—³. As 'a servant'=one who teaches Divine truth.

— . All in the Spiritual Kingdom are called the Lord's servants, and those in the Celestial Kingdom, ministers; (for) good ministers, and truth is inservient. 128. E.155⁵. 478^e.

—^e. In the opposite, 'servants'=those who serve the devil: these are in slavery itself; whereas those who serve the Lord are in a state of freedom.

128. 'A servant of God'=one in truths. 134.

153¹¹. The infernals know not but that they had been slaves (here).

337. 'Servants'=those who are in such things from others, thus from memory. 604. 832.

380. 'They serve Him day and night' (Rev. vii. 15)=live constantly and faithfully according to the truths they receive from him. (=to be kept in truths. E.478.)

662. 'A servant,' in the Word, =one who is, or that which is, of service; here, for life.

806. 'His servants' (Rev. xix. 2)=the worshippers of the Lord. (=all who are in truths of faith. 809.)

937. 'His servants shall minister to Him' (Rev. xxii. 3)=that those in truths from the Word will be with Him and will do His commandments, because they are conjoined.

943. 'His servants' (ver. 6)=those in truths from the Lord.

M. 266. The Prince said, I am the servant of my Society, because I am of service to it by doing uses.

T. Title. By Emanuel Swedenborg, a servant of the Lord Jesus Christ.

106^e. 'Servants'=those not conjoined with the Lord.

495. Freedom which is from Hell is slavery—servum. Ex.

Ad. 3/865. A state of spiritual servitude, des. From experience.

D. 1735. An Angel, on hearing the word servant, put it on, and prayed from it . . .

2504. Those who labour they suppose to be servants. Des.

2924. Evil Spirits regard man as a vile slave. Ex.

3086. Those led by Him long to serve even the worst; even if their enemies. Ex.

3648^e. Such call themselves servants of servants; yet claim all Power.

3786. He who supposes that he thinks, etc. from himself, is most a servant; and in the eyes of other Spirits is scarcely (so much as) a slave—mancipium; for they can use him as a dead instrument. . . Still, they are willing to be viler than servants in the eyes of others, provided they seem lords in their own.

4279. Evil Spirits can speak good, and thus serve. Ex.

5001. Those who have served (here) have acquired a life of obeying . . .

5181. They dwell solitary . . . with their manservants and maid-servants, who are all in marriage.

E. 6. 'Servants of God'=those who hearken to and obey God.

9^d. The state becomes servile—servus, when good does not lead. Tr.

195¹⁴. To believe what another says is servile—servum . . .

315²². 'The servants' (Luke xx.)=the Word given through Moses and the prophets.

316⁸. 'A servant'=whatever is inservient, thus truth.

365²⁷. 'Those who make them serve'=falsities.

386⁶. 'Servants of the Lord'=those who receive goods and truths from Him.

—¹⁵. 'Servants rule over us' (Lam. v. 8)=evils and falsities . . . (=when the natural man dominates. 654⁶¹.)

405¹⁶. 'My servants' (Is. lxxv. 9)=those in truths from good.

409. 'Every bondman' (Rev. vi. 15)=the natural man. Ex.

—'. 'Servant' does not imply servitude, but being of service—inserviens, and effecting. . . Hence 'servant' is said not only of the natural man relatively to the spiritual, but also of men who perform a work for others, and of the Angels who effect the mandates of God; nay, of the Lord Himself as to the Divine Human when (here); and also of truths from good, because good acts and effects through truths . . . Ill.

—'. But if only the natural man is open, the whole man is a servant in the common sense. Ex.

—⁶. As the Lord as to the Divine truth is called 'a servant,' those are called 'servants' who are in Divine truth, and are of service to others thereby. Ill.

—⁸. 'Disciple'=good; 'servant,' truth.

—¹⁰. 'Not servants, but friends' (John xv. 15)=those who receive Divine truth in doctrine and life.

433²¹. 'The elect'=those in charity; 'servants,' those in truths from the good of love. 684²⁰.

478. 'To serve' is said of those in truths.

—³. Therefore those in the affection of truth constantly serve Him . . . The affection within, serves; and this is the service which the Lord wants . . . To serve the Lord is to be in truths, and to act sincerely and justly in every Thing . . .

540¹⁰. 'Out of the house of bondage.' Ex.

601¹². 'Servant' (Jer. ii. 14)=those in truths. 695.

650⁵¹. The Lord is called 'a servant' from being of service and ministering, that is, performing uses.

774⁴. Slavery—servum—is to do good from self.

836^e. 'Bondmen'=those who think from others, and do not see whether a thing is true or false, but still acknowledge it as true.

911⁴. 'The servants' of the Lord (Matt. xiii. 27)=those in truths from good.

1202. 'The blood of His servants' (Rev. xix. 2)=violence to those in truths from Him.

1210. 'Praise God all His servants' (ver. 5)=worship by those in truths.

C. 156. He thus serves two lords.

172. They do not spurn serving, because everyone ought to serve . . .

174. To instruct children and servants (an external of worship).

Service, To be of. Inservire.

See under SERVE.

A. 2541. The things which are of service, or which serve-serviunt, are relatively servants, and are called 'servants.'

3417². The delight of being of service to others; thus wanting to be 'the least.'

3913³. By dignities (a spiritual man) can be of service to the neighbour . . .

—⁴. When the things of the external man . . . are of service to the ends of the internal.

3928. For the use of being inservient to heavenly delight.

3951^e. (Wealth, food, etc.) held as a means of subserving the end.

3974². Truth which is of service for introducing genuine goods and truths. 3993⁷.

3982. When it has subserved this purpose . . .

—². They had subserved only as means.

4108^e. When the Natural ministers to and subserves the Rational.

5125. When sensuous things minister to or subserve interior ones.

5126. That they may subserve the interior Natural, Sig. and Ex.

5127². Exteriors ought to subserve interiors.

5732². Everyone there wants to minister to and be of service to another.

6393⁴. They do not think of eminence, but only about being of service.

7324. Into the scientifics serviceable-inservientia-to them. Sig. and Ex.

8709. The choice of inservient truths. Sig. and Ex.

9776. The external of man ought to be inservient to the internal. . . As the world ought to serve-servire-Heaven, so the external of man ought [to serve] his internal . . . (Thus) the external of man is not anything unless it is inservient to the internal, and it is something so far as it is inservient. To be inservient is to obey. Ex.

H. 327. (These infernals) are sometimes taken out, that they may be of service to others for some uses which are vile.

R. 3. 'A servant' properly = one who is of service-inserviens, or one who, or that which, is of service.

355. The will of being of service. Sig. and Ex.

T. 360. They subserve the former as receptacles.

415. The priesthood is inservient only.

E. 943^e. The affection of fructifying is in man when he loves to be of service.

C. 161. He regards himself as the highest in order of those who are of service to others.

Set. Occidere.

Setting. Occasus.

See WEST.

A. 1837. 'The sun was setting-ad occidentum' (Gen. xv. 12) = the state before consummation.

— . The setting of the sun is the last time of the Church, called consummation.

1859. 'The sun had set' (ver. 17) = the last time, when there is consummation. E. 539³.

2353². 'The setting of the sun,' etc. = falsities and evils.

3693. 'The sun had set' (Gen. xxviii. 11) = life in what is obscure. Ex.

—². 'The setting of the sun' = falsity and evil in which are those with whom there are no charity and faith; thus also the last time of the Church; and it also = what is obscure as to the things of good and truth . . . Ill.

5097². The Lord sets with everyone who does not receive truth and good. Not that the Sun there sets . . . but he who does not receive it causes it to as if were set with himself. (So the natural sun) does not set . . . Thus the setting-occiduum-is not in the sun.

6693⁵. 'The sun shall set at noon' (Amos viii. 9) = that the good of celestial love would recede.

8615. 'Until the setting-occidere-of the sun' (Ex. xvii. 12) = when that state ceased. Ex.

9031. The sun neither rises nor sets. . . (So) the Sun of Heaven is said to 'set,' when man is in evil and thence in falsity. . . The Lord is always in the rising . . . and never in the setting.

9213. The 'entering,' or setting, 'of the sun' = a state of shade from the delights of external loves.

— . The setting of the Sun in Heaven corresponds to a state of shade as to the truths of faith, and to a state of cold as to the good of love . . .

9653². 'Its setting' = good from Him in obscure perception.

E. 179¹⁰. They sacrificed the Passover when the sun had set, because the setting of the sun = the last time of the Church.

401¹⁶. 'The setting of the sun' = the evil of love, which is the evil of life. Ill.

—²⁸. 'The setting of the sun' also = the state of the Church when it is in ignorance, which is its first state. It also = the state of the Church when it is in evils and falsities. Ill.

422⁶. 'From the rising and from the setting' = all in the goods and truths of the Church. Ill.

644²⁰. 'The setting' (Luke xii. 54) = the end of the Church.

721⁷. 'Her sun has set while it is as yet day' (Jer. xv. 9) = to perish as to all goods of love.

Set apart. Dicare.

A. 1909. Affections . . . dedicated to their uses.

9296². The understanding is set apart for the reception of truth; and the will is set apart for the reception of good. 9297².

Set apart. Seponere.

A. 9409. 'The sons of Israel who were set apart' (Ex. xxiv. 11). Ex. 9411².

Set before. See PREFER.

Set over. See under GOVERN—praeficere.

Set up. See under STATUE.

Seth. Scheth.

A. 335. 'Seth' (Gen. iv. 25) = a new faith given by the Lord through which charity was implanted. 436, Ex. 437, Ex. 439.

462. The Second Church, which was not so celestial as the Most Ancient one, is called 'Seth' (Gen. v. 2, 3).

481. A new Church not very unlike the Most Ancient . . . called 'Seth.' Sig. 484.

484^e. The 'likeness' of Seth was as a spiritual man of the 'sixth day.'

485. The Church 'Seth,' here, is a different one from that described by 'Seth' in Gen. iv. 25. Ex.

502. The three Churches, 'Man,' 'Seth,' and 'Enos,' constitute the Most Ancient, with a difference of perfection as to perceptions . . .

Settle. See under CERTAIN, and SEPARATE—dirimere.

Seven. Septem.

Seventh. Septimus.

Sevenfold. Septempliciter, Septuplum.

Septenary. Septenarius.

Seven-times. Septies.

See under SABBATH, and WEEK.

A. 74. The celestial man is 'the seventh day' . . . 84.

84. Therefore the seventh day was sanctified.

395. 'Cain . . . avenged sevenfold' (Gen. iv. 15) = that it would be sacrilege; for 'seven' = what is sacred. 433.

— The septenary number was held sacred on account of . . . the 'seventh day,' which is the celestial man . . . Hence the septenary number so often occurs . . . and intervals of time were distinguished into sevens, and were called 'weeks—septimanac.' Ill. 433.

482. The septenary number, in the Word, everywhere = something holy or sacred as to the states which the times or other things involve.

713. 'Of every clean beast seven, seven—septena, septena' (Gen. vii. 2). Ex.

716. 'Seven—septena' = holy things; for the Lord is the 'seventh day,' and, from Him, every celestial Church, or man, nay, the Celestial itself . . . Hence 'seven,' in the Word, = what is holy . . . —², Ill.

717. 'Seven' is predicated of voluntary things.

724. 'Seven—septena' = holy things; here, holy truths, which . . . come from goods.

728. 'In seven days (ver. 4) = the beginning of temptation . . . and also the end of vastation. 753. 1670.

— For 'seven' is a holy number, and = the Lord's advent into the world, and His advent into glory; and every advent of His in particular. Ex. and Ill.

—². The times are still more sacredly and certainly designated by (these) septenary numbers.

—³. 'Seven days' (Ezek. iii. 16) the beginning of visitation.

— 'Seven months' (Ezek. xxxix. 12, 14) = the last limit of vastation, the first of visitation.

— 'Seven times shall pass over him' (Dan. iv. 32) = the end of vastation, and the beginning of a new man.

—^e. (Thus) 'in seven days' = the beginning of a new Church, and the end of the old one.

813². 'Seven,' in the Word, = what is holy. 881. 900. 2832⁷. 2905. 3325⁸. 4670^e. 5198.

851². The spiritual man (also) after temptations, becomes . . . not 'the seventh day,' like the celestial man, but 'the seventh month.' 852.

889. 'He waited yet other seven days' (Gen. viii. 12) = the beginning of a third state. Ex.

900². See LAST JUDGMENT.

1988. When 'seven' occurs, instead of seven what is holy comes to the Angels; for 'seven' = what is holy from the fact that the celestial man is 'the seventh day,' or Sabbath.

2252³. See FIFTY.

2720⁶. Abraham's 'seven ewe lambs' (Gen. xxi. 29) = the holiness of innocence.

2723. See BEERSHEBA.

3824. 'I will serve thee seven years' (Gen. xxix. 18) = study, and then a holy state. Ex. 3845.

4123. 'A way of seven days' (Gen. xxxi. 23) = what is holy of truth.

4347. 'Seven times' (Gen. xxxiii. 3) = of the highest degree.

5265. 'Seven' = what is holy; and also involves a whole period from beginning to end. Refs. 6540.

—². That 'seven' = holy things, is from the signification of numbers in the World of Spirits . . .

— 'Seven,' in the supreme sense, = the Divine itself; and, in the representative sense, the Celestial of love . . .

5268. 'Seven,' in the opposite, = what is profane.

—². That 'seven' = both holy and profane things. Ill.

5339. 'Seven years' (Gen. xli. 47) = the first states. 5340.

6775. 'The seven daughters' (Ex. ii. 16) = the holy things of that Church.

7346. 'Seven days' (Ex. viii. 25) = an entire period from beginning to end; thus a full state.

7885. 'Seven days' (Ex. xii. 15) = what is holy.

7890. 'Until the seventh day' (ver. 15) = a full holy state. 8058. 8059.

7892. 'In the seventh day' (ver. 16) = the end of the state.

7905. 'Seven days' (ver. 19) = the entire period of this state.

8422^e. Conjunction is signified by 'the seventh day.'

8505^e. Why no manna on the seventh day.

8509. 'On the seventh day' (Ex. xvi. 27) = a state of conjoined good and truth. 8507. See 8889.

8889^e. Hence 'the seventh day' (Ex. xx. 10) = a holy state.

[A.] 8893. 'Rested on the seventh day' (ver. 11) = then peace and the good of love. 'The seventh day' = a state of celestial love; and thence what is holy, Refs. 8894.

8976. 'The seventh year' (Ex. xxi. 2) = a state of the conjunction of good and truth; (here) a state of confirmed truth. Ex.

9141⁴. 'Seven years' (Ezek. xxxix. 9) = a full state, thus to the full.

9226. 'Seven days' (Ex. xxii. 30) = the first state of those being regenerated; for 'seven' = from beginning to end, thus what is full. 9228, Fully ill.

9228. 'The light of the sun sevenfold-septupla, as the light of seven days' (Is. xxx. 26) = a full state of intelligence and wisdom from love and faith. E. 257⁶. 401¹⁰.

9274. 'In the seventh year thou shalt let the land rest' (Ex. xxiii. 11) = the second state when man is in good. Ex.

—³. This (second state of regeneration) is meant by 'the seventh day,' 'the seventh year,' and 'the jubilee.'

9278³. 'The seventh day' = that when man is in internals, then, being in Heaven with the Lord, labour and combat cease, and he is in the tranquillity of peace, in which also conjunction is effected.

9279. 'On the seventh day thou shalt cease [from work]' (ver. 12) = a state of good when in internals, and the tranquillity of peace then. Ex.

9288. 'Seven days' (ver. 15) = a holy state.

9325⁸. 'To bear seven' (1 Sam. ii. 5) = to be regenerated to the full.

9432. 'In the seventh day' (Ex. xxiv. 16) = when truth has been conjoined with good.

9569. 'Its seven lamps' (Ex. xxv. 37) = the holy spiritual things thence.

10102. 'Seven days' (Ex. xxix. 30) = a full state, thus what is plenary. 10120. 10127.

10127. Both 'seven,' and 'three' = what is full; but 'seven' is said where holy things are treated of. R. 505². E. 20.

10367. 'In the seventh day' (Ex. xxxi. 15) = a state of good, which is the end propter quem.

10374. 'In the seventh day He rested and breathed' (ver. 17) = a state of good when the Church has been instaurated, or when man has been regenerated; for 'the seventh day' = a holy state. . . . In the supreme sense, 'the seventh day' = the union of the Divine Itself and the Divine Human. . . . Hence 'seven' = what is holy.

10656. 'Seven days' (Ex. xxxiv. 18) = a holy state from the appropriation of Divine truth. . . . For 'seven days' = a state holy from beginning to end.

10730. 'In the seventh day' (Ex. xxxv. 2) = the second state of regeneration, when man has conjunction with the Lord; and, in the supreme sense, the union of the Human with the Divine Itself.

R. 10. 'The seven Churches' (Rev. i. 4) = all in the Christian world. . . . for 'seven' = all things and all persons; and, thence, what is full and perfect; and it is said in the Word where holy, or profane, things are being treated of; and therefore this number involves what is holy, or profane. Ill.

14. 'The seven Spirits' (ver. 4) = all in Divine truth; in the abstract, Divine truth itself. 155.

43. 'Seven candlesticks' (ver. 12) = the New Church. E. 62.

51. 'Seven stars' (ver. 16) = all Knowledges of good and truth. 155. E. 184.

237. 'The seven lamps. . . are the seven Spirits of God' (Rev. iv. 5) = the New Church. . . . through the Divine Truth.

257. 'Seven seals' (Rev. v. 1) = completely hidden. 'Seven' = all-omne, thus completely. E. 300.

270. 'Seven horns' (ver. 6) = omnipotence. 'Seven' = all. E. 316.

271. 'Seven eyes' (id.) = omniscience. 'Seven' = all, and is said of a holy Thing. E. 317.

390. 'Seven Angels' (Rev. viii. 2) = the universal Heaven. 'Seven' = all, or all things; and thence the whole and universal. 657.

472³. 'Seven thunders' (Rev. x. 3) = (a full disclosing and manifestation); for 'seven' = all, all things, and the whole.

477. 'The voice of the seventh Angel' (ver. 7) = the final exploration and manifestation.

516^e. 'Seven' = all and all things, and is predicated of the holy things of Heaven and the Church; and in the opposite, of these profaned.

519. 'The seventh Angel sounded' (Rev. xi. 15) = the exploration and manifestation of the state of the Church after consummation, when there is the Lord's advent and Kingdom. Ex. E. 681, Ex.

538. 'Seven' heads' (Rev. xii. 3) = insanity from truths falsified and profaned; for 'seven' is predicated of profane things. 724. 737.

T. 301. The seventh day is for the Lord. . . .

302. 'The seventh day' = man's conjunction with the Lord, and, thereby, regeneration.

D. 5648. On the seven mountains of Babylon. Ex.

E. 20. 'Seven,' in the Word, = beginning and end, thus an entire period, and a full state; and therefore all, because all make what is full. . . . and therefore where magnitude is treated of, 'seven' = what is full; and where multitude, 'seven' = all. 24. 62. 257, Ill.

183. 'The seven Spirits of God' (Rev. iii. 1) = all the truths of Heaven and the Church. 274.

256. 'The seven Churches' = all who are of the Church; in the abstract, all things of the Church.

257⁴. 'To forgive seven-times' (Luke xvii. 4) = all times. —⁹. 'Seven,' and 'seven times' = all things, and what is full. Ill.

274. 'The seven lamps' = all truth in the complex.

314¹⁰. 'Seven' = all-omne, and what is full, and is predicated of what is holy. 336. 602.

357^e. 'Seven years' = all things, what is full, and altogether.

401¹⁹. 'To bear seven' = to be endowed with all the truths of the Church. 721⁷.

430². There are simple numbers . . . 2, 3, 5, and 7 ; '7' = what is holy. 532.

475¹⁸. 'Seven times' (to wash) = what is plenary, and is predicated of holy things, such as Divine truths.

486. 'The seventh' = what is full and consummated, thus the last.

489. 'The seven Angels' = all the Heavens. 500.

555³. 'Seven (women)' = what is holy.

684³⁶. 'Seven weeks' (Dan.ix.25) = a full time and state.

700¹⁶. The priests being seven, their going round (Jericho) seven days, and seven times on the seventh day' (Jos.vi.) = what is holy, and the holy preaching of Divine truth ; for 'seven' (here) = what is holy on one side, and what is profane on the other.

715. 'Seven heads' = all knowledge of the holy things of the Word adulterated. 775.

717. 'Seven diadems' = all ultimate Divine truths profaned.

717¹³. 'Seven' is said of the holy things of the Word and of the Church.

928. 'Seven Angels having the seven last plagues' (Rev.xv.1) = all Divine truths from the Lord manifesting evils and falsities in the whole complex. 949.

1062. 'The seven heads are seven mountains' (Rev.xvii.9) = (that the holy things of the Word profaned are the goods of the Word adulterated and profaned).

1063. 'And are seven kings' (ver.10) = the truths of the Word falsified and profaned.

1067². 'Seven' = the truth of good profaned.

Seven Churches. Septem Ecclesiae.

R. 10. 'John to the Seven Churches' (Rev.i.4) = to all who are in the Christian world, where is the Word, and through it the Lord is known, and who accede to the Church. . . If these live according to the precepts of the Lord in the Word, they make the Church itself. (= to all those who are in truths from good, or in faith from charity. E.20. 58. 92).

40. 'Send it to the Churches, those in Asia' (ver.11) = for those in the Christian world who are in the light of truth from the Word.

43. 'I saw seven golden candlesticks' = the New Church, which will be in illustration from the Word. 'The seven candlesticks are the Seven Churches ;' and by 'the Seven Churches' are meant all who are in the Christian world, and accede to the Church. Ex.

66. 'The seven candlesticks which thou sawest are the Seven Churches' (ver.20) = the New Church on the earth, which is the New Jerusalem descending from the Lord out of the New Heaven. . . As 'seven' = all, by 'the seven candlesticks' are not meant Seven Churches, but the Church in the whole complex, which in itself is one, but is various according to reception. These varieties may be compared to the various jewels in a king's crown, and also to the various members and organs in a perfect body, which still make a one. The perfection of every form comes forth from varieties suitably placed in their order. Hence it is that the universal New Church with its varieties is described by 'the Seven Churches' in what follows. (= that all these are in the New Heaven and in the New Church. E.91).

69. The Seven Churches are (here) treated of, by which are described all those who are in the Christian Church, who have religion, and from whom the New Church, which is the New Jerusalem, can be formed ; and it is being formed from those who approach the Lord alone, and at the same time perform repentance from evil works. The rest . . . are indeed in the Church, but have not anything of the Church in them.

73. By 'the Seven Churches' are not meant Seven Churches, but the Church in the whole complex, which in itself is one, but is various according to reception . . . and it is hence that the universal New Church with its varieties, is described by 'the Seven Churches' in what follows.

87. 'What the Spirit saith unto the Churches' (Rev.ii.7) = the things which the Divine truth of the Word teaches those who will be of the New Church, which is the New Jerusalem. . . As the universal Church is meant, it is not said, 'what the Spirit saith to the Church,' but 'to the Churches.'

88. As in the things written to the Seven Churches is described the state of all in the Christian Church who can receive the doctrine of the New Jerusalem, and live according to it, thus who can be reformed through combats against evils and falsities, it is said to each, 'He that overcometh.'

E. 62. 'The Seven Churches' = all who are of the Lord's Church, thus the Church in general ; and also Heaven, because Heaven and the Church make a one ; moreover, Heaven is in those in whom is the Church. Ex.

Sevneh. Sevne.

E. 654³⁹. That falsities will destroy the understanding of truth, is signified by 'from the tower of Sevneh shall they fall in it by the sword' (Ezek.xxx.6).

—⁵³. 'The land of Egypt a waste from the tower of Sevneh to the border of Cush' (Ezek.xxix.10) = the destruction of the Church from primes to ultimates in the natural man.

Seventeen. Septendecim.

Seventeenth. Decimus septimus.

A. 755. 'The seventeenth day' (Gen.vii.11).

—². The number 'seventeen' = both the beginning and the end of temptation, because it is composed of seven and ten. Ex. and III.

853. 'The seventeenth day' (Gen.viii.4) = what is new.

4670. 'A son of seventeen years' (Gen.xxxvii.2) = its state.

—³. 'Seventeen' = a beginning ; here, the beginning of the representation by Joseph. It = a beginning and what is new ; and moreover involves in general . . . all things represented by Joseph ; for 'seven' = what is holy ; and 'ten' = remains.

6174. 'Seventeen years' (Gen.xlvii.28) = the state there ; for 'seventeen' = from the beginning to the end, or from the beginning to what is new. Thus the seventeen years in which Jacob lived in Egypt = the beginning of the state of spiritual life in the Natural among scientific even to its end.

Seventy. Septuaginta.

Seventy-times. Septuagies.

A. 433. 'Seventy-times' (Gen. iv. 24) = what is much more a sacrilege.

—². The number seventy — septuagenarius, which comprehends seven ages (derives its signification from seven), and when anything most holy, or most sacred, was to be expressed, it was said 'seventy-times seven' . . . which means to forgive as many times as he sins, so that it should be without end, or eternal, which is holy.

—^e. Thus 'seventy-times seven,' here, = damnation.

728⁴. The 'seventy years' of the captivity = the (end of vastation and the beginning of a new man); for 'seventy' and 'seven' involve the same thing.

1429. 'Abraham was a son of five years and seventy years' (Gen. xii. 4) = not so much of the Divine; 'five' = little, and 'seventy' = what is holy; here, being predicated of the Lord, 'seventy' = the holy Divine.

2906⁵. 'Seventy years' (Is. xxiii. 15, 17) = an entire period, from the time at which the Church began even till it expires. The 'seventy years' of the captivity involves something similar.

6024^e. 'Seventy' (Gen. xvi. 27) = what is full in order.

6508. 'Seventy days' (Gen. i. 3) = a full state; for 'seventy' involves the like as 'seven,' which = an entire period from beginning to end, thus a full state; for multiplied numbers = the like as the simple ones of which they are composed.

—². That 'seventy' = an entire period, thus a full state. Ill.

—³. 'Seventy years' (Jer. xxv. 11, 12; xxix. 10) = a full state of desolation and devastation: this was signified by 'the seventy years' of the captivity.

—⁴. 'Seventy weeks' (Dan. ix. 24) manifestly stands for a full state, thus for an entire period before the Lord would come; hence it is said that He came in the fulness of time. Ex.

6642. 'Seventy souls' (Ex. i. 5) = what is full.

8369. 'Seventy palmtrees' (Ex. xv. 27) = goods of truth in all abundance; 'seventy' = all things in the complex, in like manner as 'twelve.'

9228^e. 'Seventy' in like manner = what is full.

9376. 'Seventy of the elders of Israel' (Ex. xxiv. 1) = the chief truths of the Church (all) concordant with good. 'Seventy' = what is full, thus all things. (= all who are in good from truths. 9404.)

E. 684³⁴. 'Seventy weeks' = the time and state of the Church with the Jews down to its end; for 'seven,' and 'seventy' = what is full from beginning to end.

Severe. Austerus.

M. 56⁴. Man (alone) is severe, etc.

D. 1742. Tasted by the tongue as hard, soft, sour, sweet . . .

5479^e. Lagerberg was not a man for social intercourse, being austere.

Severely. Severe.

E. 827². Severely prohibited.

Sew. Assuere, Consuere.

A. 216. 'To sew a leaf' (Gen. iii. 7) = to excuse.

9212⁷. To sew or join the one to the other (Luke v. 36) is to destroy both.

Sex. Sexus.

See LOVE of the Sex.

A. 568². See FEMALE.

M. 44². There flashed from their eyes the fire of lust for the sex . . .

—³. Cause that the companionships between the sexes—that is, between the youths and the maidens—are the heavenly sweetnesses themselves, which are pure.

—⁵. With one of the sex. —⁶.

55⁵. In cold towards their wives, and in heat towards the sex.

—^e. They were then in a state of loathing for the sex.

133. Without instruction man would not know how to discriminate sex, and nothing whatever about the ways of loving it.

157. That in each sex there has been implanted from creation the faculty and inclination to be conjoined as into a one. Ex.

223. This sphere is received by the female sex, and, through this, is transferred into the male sex. Ex.

—^e. With the male sex there is no conjugal love, but it is solely with the female sex.

—^e. It is from the transference of this sphere from the female sex . . . that the mind is inflamed by mere thought about the sex.

301. (By betrothing) the universal love towards the sex is determined to one man or one woman of the sex.

304. Their souls separate themselves from the unlimited love of the sex . . .

433². Cold towards the sex (with confirmed adulterers), and at last loathing. 453. 505^e.

508. This lust (of varieties) is love, and at the same time loathing, for the sex. Ex.

T. 585. In (plants) there are not two sexes; but every one is male.

E. 555¹³. That the sexes are not to be confounded. Sig.

Shaddai. Schaddai.

A. 1992. 'I am God Shaddai' (Gen. xvii. 1) in the sense of the letter, = the name of Abraham's god, by which name the Lord was first represented before them. Ex.

—². They had lost the name 'Jehovah,' and worshipped Shaddai . . . 'I appeared unto Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob as god Shaddai' (Ex. vi. 3).

—³. Thus Abraham (at first) was an idolater, and had not as yet rejected the god Shaddai.

—⁴. The reason the Lord was willing to be represented by the name 'Shaddai,' is that He never wants to suddenly destroy the worship implanted from infancy. Ex.

—⁵. Translators render 'Shaddai,' 'the Almighty;' others, 'the Thunderer;' but it properly signifies 'the Tempter,' and 'the Benefactor after temptations;' as is evident in Job. Ill.

— . The word 'shaddai' itself signifies vastation, thus temptation.

— . As it originated from nations in Syria, He is not called 'Elohim Shaddai,' but 'El Shaddai;' and in Job simply 'Shaddai.'

—⁶. As there is comfort after temptations, they attributed the consequent good to the same Shaddai; and also the understanding of truth which is thence. Ill. And as He was thus held to be a god of truth—for vastation, temptation, chastisement, and rebuking are never of good—the name was retained in the Prophets, but by 'Shaddai,' there, is meant truth. Ill.

—⁷. Isaac and Jacob also name the god Shaddai in a like sense: as one who tempts, and delivers from temptation, and afterwards benefits. Ill.

—⁸. The worship of Shaddai originated from (their being) heard Spirits who reprov'd, and who afterwards comforted. . . They named the reprov'g Spirit Shaddai; and, as he afterwards comforted, the god Shaddai. Ex.

2001. For the Lord is represented by the God Shaddai whom Abraham worshipped.

3667. 'God Shaddai will bless thee' (Gen.xxviii.3)= the temptations of that truth and good through which is conjunction. 'God Shaddai' = temptations . . . because in ancient times they distinguished the supreme God, or the Lord, by various names, according to His attributes . . .

—³. As to 'God Shaddai,' in special, the Lord had been so called in the Ancient Church relatively to temptations, and to blessings and benefits after them. Hence it is that by 'God Shaddai,' in the internal sense, are signified temptations.

4162². Those of the Ancient Church distinguished the Divine by various names . . . as 'God Shaddai,' from temptations, in which the Lord fights for man, and after which benefits him.

4572. 'I am God Shaddai' (Gen.xxxv.11)= the state of temptation past, and now Divine comfort; for 'God Shaddai' = temptation and comfort afterwards . . .

5376⁶. 'Vastation from Shaddai' (Is.xiii.6)= vastation in temptations.

5628. 'And God Shaddai' (Gen.xliii.14)= consolation after hard things; for 'Shaddai' = temptation and consolation after it.

— . The Ancients distinguished the only God by various names . . . and as they believed temptations to be from Him, they called God, then, 'Shaddai,' and by this name understood not another god, but the only one as to temptations. But when the Ancient Church had declined, they began to worship as many gods as there had been names of the only God . . . each family having its own god . . . and the family of Terah worshipped Shaddai as theirs. 6003^e.

—². The reason not temptation only, but also consolation, is signified by 'Shaddai,' is that consolation follows all spiritual temptations.

6429. 'And with Shaddai' (Gen.xlix.25)= the Lord the Benefactor after temptations. E.448⁶.

7193. 'I appeared to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob in God Shaddai' (Ex.vi.3)= the Lord's temptations as to the human, and the temptations of the faithful, and afterwards consolations.

8764⁴. The quality of Divine truth in Heaven (is also signified by) 'his voice as . . . the voice of Shaddai' (Ezek.i.24) . . . because 'God Shaddai' = truth rebuking in temptations, and afterwards comforting. E.283¹³.

E. 283⁴. 'Shaddai' (Ps.lxviii.14)= a state of temptations.

3856⁶. Temptations are signified by 'the discipline of Shaddai' (Job v.17).

959³. 'Shaddai,' etc. are names of one God . . . but each=some attribute.

Shade. Umbra.

Shady. Umbrosus.

Shadowy. Umbratilis.

Shader, A. Umbraculum.

Shade, To. Inumbrare.

Shadow forth. Adumbrare.

Adumbration. Adumbratio.

See under EVENING, NIGHT, and OBSCURE.

A. 1554^e. Except slightly-umbratilititer.

1712. The shade in which were apparent goods and truths. Sig. and Ex.

— . It is called a state of shade when . . .

— . The evil and falsity are what cause the shade-inumbrat . . .

1967. When people see anything in shade . . . these Spirits keep the mind fixed on the thought of some Thing . . .

1972. (Heavenly objects) have sometimes appeared to me in the shade of the light of Heaven, which shade is not like the shade of mundane light; for it is light thinning out and weakening from inability to take it in.

2367. 'The shadow of my beam' (Gen.xix.8)= obscure general [perception]. Ex.

2917. 'Dead' = a state of shade or of night, that is, of ignorance.

3341. Representations come forth by discriminations of light and shade . . . and all shade is from proprium; and from this (and the light from the Lord) are derived all the variegations of light and shade there.

3384². 'To dwell in the shadow of death' (Is.ix.2)= in ignorance of good and truth.

3438². The things of the light of the world (are like) the shade of night. Man, being in this shade (believes) that his shade is light, and that light is shade. Ex.

— . What appears in the internal sense, they believe to be of shade.

[A.] 3596. The illustration of (such things) brings them more into the shade.

3693. So far as they are in shade, they are not in intelligence . . .

3957². When man dies, he passes from shade into light. Ex.

3993⁶. Colours (there) are from variegations of light and shade.

— . Shade there, although it appears as shade, is not like shade (here); for shade there is absence of light, consequently lack of intelligence . . .

4018². Things which enter without affection fall into the shade of the memory . . .

4027². Corporeal and worldly things . . . constantly throw shadows on the mind . . .

4531². It is this lumen which is called 'the shadow of death.' Ex.

4644². These things are only adumbrations.

4715⁵. 'The valley of the shadow' (Ps.xxiii.4)=lower things, which are relatively in the shade.

4893. If explicated further, these things would fall into shade . . . For the understanding has its light and shade; and those things fall into its shade which do not coincide with those of which it previously had some notion. 4899.

5084². The fallacies of the senses . . . induce so great a shade on rational and spiritual things . . .

5977^e. They appear like shadows which flit about.

6110⁶. The alternations (in Hell) are only variations of the shade and darkness of night.

6400². For all interior things are of shade and darkness to them.

6723. 'The land shadowing-adumbrans-with wings' (Is.xviii.1)=the Church which darkens itself through reasonings from scientifics.

8627. They call the knowledges of our Earth shadows.

9213. That it must be restored before there is a state of shade from the delights of external loves. Sig. and Ex.

— . See SET.

— . For when an Angel or Spirit is in externals, he is also in shade.

9278⁴. When man is in externals . . . he is in such shade that . . .

9433². 'For a shade in the day-time' (Is.iv.6). Ex.

9642. Further from the interiors, truth is in shade.

9723. The things which man does not love, he sees in the shade.

10202. Elevation even . . . when truth is in its shade. Sig. and Ex.

10755. Something of shade from him appeared in the former place. Ex.

H. 506. (Such) when let into their interiors, appear to themselves like those who come from shade into light.

589³. The equilibrium . . . is as between light and shade . . . The light and shade operate nothing from themselves; but the heat through them . . . Falsity corresponds to shade . . . and spiritual shade is falsity.

S. 60. With these, the truth of the Word is as in the shade of night . . . If they see its shade, they falsify it.

R. 110. The 'shadow of death,' etc. are nothing but the states of those in Hell, who are in falsities of evil.

—². 'In the shadow of death'=the Gentiles, in good works, but not in truths.

M. 79⁶. They said, We have seen them in a shade of light . . . We were seen in a shade, because the light of Heaven is a shade to them, and the shade of Hell is light . . .

T. 109². The Israelitish worship shadowed forth-adumbraverit-the internal worship . . .

— . Unless both the spiritual and the natural man are illustrated at the same time, the man is as in shade.

671. Those washings figured and shadowed forth spiritual washings . . .

D. 4102. Evil Spirits invent shadowy things-umbra-tilia . . . and to these attach many other shadowy things, and phantasies . . .

E. 298⁵. 'To be a shade upon thy right hand' (Ps.cxxi.5)=to be a protection against evil and falsity; 'a shade,' here, is a sunshade-umbraculum.

481³. 'The shadow of a cloud' (Is.xxv.5)=a defence from these things. Ex.

537¹⁴. 'Through a land of dense shade' (Jer.ii.6)=a state of ignorance of truth and consequent Falsity. (=the understanding of truth obscured. 730²⁸.)

684²². 'To live in His shadow' (Lam.iv.20)=to be in His protection against the falsities of evil.

706¹⁶. 'The drawing back of the shadow on the steps of Ahaz' (Is.xxxviii.8)=the prolongation of that time. — .

714²³. The falsity in which these are is called 'the shadow of death.' (Ps.xliv.19).

727². 'To walk in a shady valley' (Ps.xxiii.4)=obscure understanding to which do not appear truths from light.

1100⁵. 'To dwell in the shadow of its branches' (Ezek.xvii.23)=terminated in natural truths; for these cover and guard rational truths . . .

1216³. With these there is as it were a shader-umbraculum-between spiritual and natural light; yet with many this shader is transparent.

J. (Post.) 267. The defect and absence of (good and truth) correspond to shade (here).

Can. Redeemer iv. 'The power of the Highest which should overshadow-adumbrabit'=the Divine good.

Shaft. See DART-telum.

Shaft. Scapus.

A. 9551. 'Its shaft,' etc. (Ex.xxv.31)=spiritual things in the Natural. Ex.

Shaggy. Comosus.

A. 3527². See SEIR.

Shake. See under AGITATE, DESTROY—labefacere, MARK—strictura, and MOVE—commovere.

Shake. Cohorrere.

E. 406². 'To shake' = to be completely changed as to state.

Shake. Concutere.

Concussion. Concussio.

R. 711. Concussions, etc. of all things of the Church. Sig.

E. 304⁵. Occurs. 400⁶. 403. 413⁴.

Shake off. Excutare.

See under DISPERSE—discutere.

A. 7418. The evil spirits shake off there the dust of their feet, when they want to bring anyone to damnation.

S228. 'Jehovah shook off the Egyptians into the midst of the sea' (Ex.xiv.27) = that thus they themselves cast themselves into Hell.

9062. 'If he shall strike out the tooth of his servant, or the tooth of his maid-servant' (Ex.xxi.27) = if he shall destroy truth or the affection thereof in the Sensuous. . . 'To strike out' = to destroy.

9277². 'Thy olive shall be shaken' (Deut.xxviii.40) = that good will perish. E.638¹⁹.

T. 656^e. Would put forth its three gods . . .

E. 365⁸. 'To shake off the dust of their feet' (Matt. x.14) = lest what is damned should adhere to them therefrom. . . Those who belonged to the representative Churches shook off the dust of their feet when the truths of doctrine were not received.

538⁹. 'To smite her wealth in the sea' (Zech.ix.4) = to cast falsities into Hell.

Shame. Pudor.

Ashamed, To be. Pudeferi.

A. 213. See NAKED. R.213. 706. E.244.

216. 'To make themselves belts' = to be affected with shame . . . Being in natural good, they were affected with shame. 224.

829. Shame is (thus) insinuated into him. D.1696.

1641². Is shame possible without reverence? D.1051.

2751^e. On hearing this, he receded with shame.

4793⁴. The shame of injuring society, an internal bond.

H. 403^e. That they might be ashamed.

506³. Some, then, are ashamed; some are not ashamed.

M. 513². They then practise these things without being withheld by shame.

D. 3141. See FEAR. 3149.

3179. To those suffused with shame, there appears a head nodding, in front.

3456. (Thus) he was devoid of shame. 4790.

VOL. V.

E. 357¹⁰. 'They shall not be ashamed when they speak with the enemies in the gate' (Ps.cxxvii.5) = that there shall be nothing of fear of evils from the Hells. (=not to be conquered. 724¹⁰.)

386²². 'They shall not be ashamed in the time of evil' (Ps.cxxvii.19) = that they shall conquer when tempted by evils.

401²⁰. The truth of faith and good of love are said to 'blush,' and 'be ashamed,' when they are no longer received.

577¹¹. Shame was represented by the hand upon the head. Ill.

654⁵⁹. 'The strength of Pharaoh shall be for shame' (Is.xxx.3) = no faculty of resisting evils from Own intelligence.

734¹⁸. 'To be ashamed' (Zech.x.5) = to yield, being said of those who are overcome.

811¹³. To 'be ashamed, and affected with ignominy' (Jer.xxii.22) = to be destitute of all good and truth; for when such come among the Angels, they are affected with shame and ignominy.

1008². Adulteries are (now) practised without shame . . .

Shammah. Schammah. E.438⁷.

Shape. See under EFFIGY, and SPECIES.

Share with, Impart. Impertiri. A.4190. W.128.

Sharon. Scharon.

A. 5922¹². 'Carmel and Sharon' (Is.xxxv.2) = the Celestial Church.

10609⁶. 'Sharon' = the internal of the Celestial Church. Ill.

E. 288¹¹. 'The honour of Carmel and Sharon' = the Divine good which they receive.

7730¹⁵. 'Sharon, Bashan, and Carmel' (Is.xxxiii.9) = the Church as to the Knowledges of good and truth from the natural sense of the Word.

Sharp. Acutus.

Sharpen. Acuminare.

Acutely. Acute.

See under POINT—aculeus, and SALT.

A. 546^e. They wore a pointed cap . . .

1641. Spirits speak so acutely . . .

2799³. 'A sharp sword.' R.52.

—²¹. Truth combating is represented by things which are sharpened, like swords . . .

4214². The more acutely they can (ratiocinate). —⁵.

H. 353³. Sensuous men can ratiocinate more acutely . . .

R. 52. Called 'sharp,' because it penetrates the heart and soul.

647. 'A sharp sickle' (Rev.xiv.17) = the Divine truth of the Word.

- D. 208. Spirits abhor sharp things. Ex.
 929. Everything sharp=deceit, or cunning.
 934. Swords and sharp points—acumina—appear whenever a Soul speaks otherwise than he thinks. Ex.
 1057. Spiritual things are represented by the sharper things . . .
 2621. (David) is sharp, or pernicious.
 5962. Dippel could not view Things acutely, although he had written acutely . . .
 —^e. The malice of the infernals is so acute . . .
 E. 73. Called 'sharp, two-edged' because it disperses completely.
 560³. Interior falsities are there represented by sharp things. Enum.
 780⁸. 'Sharp above the wolves of evening' (Hab.i.8) = the cunning of deceiving by fallacies.
 908². 'Sharp' (Rev.xiv.)=accurate, exquisite, and completely. Ill.

Sharpen. Exacuere.

A. 195. 'They sharpen their tongue' (Ps.cxl.3). E.734¹⁷.

Sharply. Argute. M.155a².Sharpness. Acerbitas. A.8569.Sharpsighted. Lynceus. A.4802. T.165³.
634. 759.Shatter. Quassare.

E. 313¹¹. 'Shattered are all my bones' (Jer.xxiii.9). Ex.

400². Some places seemed to be shaken violently, and to tremble . . .

Coro. 57³. As a ship is tossed violently . . .

Shaul. Schaul.

A. 7230². 'Shaul' (Ex.vi.15)=the things of truth in act outside the Church.

Shave. *Radere.Shave off. *Abradere.Shaving off, A. Derasio.

See under BALD, and SHEAR.

A. 939. By a shaving off of the hair, as with swine, they seem to become white.

3301⁴. 'When shaved, his strength departed' (Judg.xvi.19). Ex. 5247⁴. S.49³. E.66².

—⁵. 'The high priest . . . should not shave his head' (Lev.xxi.10); and so 'the Levites were not to shave their head' (Ezek.xliv.19). Ex. 5247². 9960⁵.

10076⁷. The dissipation of Divine good in the Heavens, is signified by 'to shave the head.'

S. 35². The prophet shaving off the hairs of his head and his beard (Ezek.v.) represented the state of the Jewish Church as to the Word. Ex.

E. 66³. 'The Nazarite was not to shave his hair' (Num.vi.). Ex.

577¹⁰. 'Not to shave the beard'=not to deprive themselves of what is rational by taking away its ultimate . . .

Shaveh. Schaveh.

A. 1723. 'The valley of Shaveh' (Gen.xiv.17)=the goods of the external man.

Sheaf. Manipulus.

A. 4686. 'We were binding sheaves—manipulantes manipulos' (Gen.xxxvii.7)=teaching from doctrine. 'A sheaf'=doctrine.

—¹. 'Joseph's sheaf'=doctrine from the Lord's Divine truth.

—². The reason 'a sheaf'=doctrine. Ex. Thus a sheaf in which is the crop=doctrine in which is truth.

—^e. 'To bear sheaves' (Ps.cxxvi.6)=the doctrinals of this truth.

4687. 'My sheaf arose and stood up' (id.)=the doctrinal concerning the Lord's Divine Human (reigning).

4688. 'Your sheaves surrounded' (ver.7)=those in the faith of some charity.

—¹. 'The sheaves,' here, = all things of doctrine, or all things of faith. Ex.

4689. 'And bowed themselves to my sheaf' (id.)=adoration of the Divine Human.

5339². 'Handfuls,' or 'collections'=series. (See 5530.)

9295². 'A sheaf'=a series and collection of such things; for truths are disposed in sheaves—manipulatio.

—¹. 'Wave the sheaf' (Lev.xxiii.11)=vivify the goods of truth.

9394³. Generals disposed as into bundles.

—¹. Each bundle in the body consists of many motor fibres.

10083. 'The sheaf of the first-fruits'=the state (of good) collectively.

10303⁴. The series into which truths (or falsities) are disposed, are signified by 'sheaves,' and 'bundles.' Ill.

J. 70 (o). 'Sheaves'=the dispositions into series of the truths and falsities with man; thus also [the dispositions into series] of men in whom are truths and falsities. Refs.

P. 111². These make as it were one bundle.

Shear. *Tondere, Detondere.Shearing, A. *Tonsio.Shearer, A. Tonsor.

A. 3703¹⁶. Purification from falsities is signified by . . . 'she shall poll her head' (Deut.xxi.12). E.555¹⁶.

4110. 'Laban went to shear his flock' (Gen.xxxi.19) = a state of use and an end of good. . . 'To shear'=use, thus end. 4853.

—³. That 'to shear the flock'=to perform use, is evident from the fact, that in the internal sense, the shearing of the flock is nothing but use; for wool comes thence. Ill.

—¹. Hence sheep-shearing, and to be near the shearers, was an honourable office. Ill.

4853. 'Shearers' (Gen.xxxviii.12)=use; thus to will use, or to consult for. 4857.

5247. '[Joseph] polled himself' (Gen.xli.14)=rejection and change as to the things of the exterior Natural. 'To poll,' to wit, the head and beard=to reject such things as are of the exterior Natural; for the hair which was polled=that Natural. Ill. . . Hence those who have been rational appear there with hair becomingly dressed.

—². 'Not to shave the head . . . but in polling to poll the head' (Ezek.xliv.20)=not to reject the Natural, but to accommodate it to agreement; thus to subordinate it. Ill.

—⁴. On fulfilling his Nazariteship, the Nazarite was to poll his head (Num.vi.9).

—⁵. 'Jehovah shall shave—detondebit—with a hired razor' (Is.vii.20).

—'. 'Make thee bald, and shave thyself' (Mic.i.16). E.724¹², Ex.

5569. To cut the hair=to accommodate natural things so that they are becoming.

9960³. 'To shave—detondere—the head' (Is.vii.20)=to deprive of the internal truths of the Church; 'to shave the hair and consume the beard'=to deprive of its external truths. 10044³.

E. 66⁶. 'To crop the head,' 'to shave the beard,' and 'to cause baldness,'=to deprive of all truth and good; for he who is deprived of ultimates is also deprived of prior things. Ill.

Sheath. Vagina.

A. 6816. The Spirits of Mercury do not want to look at the sheath; but at Things stripped of their sheath.

Sheba. Scheba.

A. 117. 'Ethiopia'=similar things to 'Sheba.' Ill.

—^e. Like things were signified by 'the queen of Sheba.' 1171⁵.

1168. See DEDAN. 3240.

1171. See SEBA.

—³. 'Sheba' (Is.lx.6)=the celestial and spiritual things thence, which are 'gold, and frankincense.'

—⁴. Celestial things signified by 'Sheba.' Enum. The Knowledges of such things are properly 'Sheba.'

—^e. 'Sheba'=Knowledges and adorations, which are 'incense, and calamus' (Jer.vi.20); here, those which are devoid of charity.

1247^e. Sheba the son of Joktan (Gen.x.28) is not mentioned elsewhere in the Word.

3048⁵. 'From Sheba' (Is.lx.)=from the celestial things of love and faith.

—'. 'The queen of Sheba coming to Solomon . . .' (1 Kings.x.)=the wisdom and intelligence which came to the Lord.

3465. 'Sheba,' in 'Beer-Sheba,' see SHIBAN.

9688³. 'Sheba'=Knowledges.

9881^e. 'Gold from Sheba'=the good of Knowledges. Ill.

10199⁶. 'Sheba and Raamah' (Ezek.xxvii.22)=those in the Knowledges of celestial and spiritual things. 10254⁵. E.242¹³. 717¹⁰.

10254⁶. 'Sheba'=chiefly those in the Knowledges of celestial things.

R. 379⁶. 'Gold of Sheba' (Ps.lxxii.15)=wisdom thence, (=the good of love into which the Lord will lead them by Knowledges. E.242¹³.) (=the good of charity. 328¹⁵. 329¹⁸.)

E. 242¹⁷. 'Sheba'=where these Knowledges are.

324⁹. 'Sheba'=these Knowledges.

406⁹. 'The kings of Sheba and Seba' (Ps.lxxii.10)=the interior and exterior goods of the natural man; 'Sheba,' its interior goods; and 'Seba,' its exterior goods.

Coro. 41². See ARABIA.

Shechem. Schechem.

See under HAMOR.

A. 1401. 'Shechem'=the Lord's second state.

1440. 'Abraham passed . . . to the place Shechem' (Gen.xii.6)=the Lord's second state, when the celestial things of love appeared to Him. Ex.

1441. For Shechem is the first station in Canaan, in arriving from Syria; and as the land of Canaan=the celestial things of love, 'Shechem'=the first appearing of celestial things.

—'. Jacob also came first to Shechem (Gen.xxxiii.), where 'Shechem'=the first of light. Further ill.

—^e. Shechem being made a city of refuge (Josh.xx.7); a city of the priests (xxi.21); and a covenant being made there (xxiv.1,25) involve the like.

4393. 'Jacob came to Salem, the city of Shechem' (Gen.xxxiii.18)=the interior truths of faith which are of tranquillity. . . 'The city of Shechem'=the interior truths of faith.

4430. 'Shechem saw her' (Gen.xxxiv.2)=truth; for 'Shechem'=truth; here, the truth of the Church from Ancient [time]; because with that nation where Shechem was there were remains of the Church. . . Moreover the city Shechem was Abram's first station . . . Hence 'Shechem'=the first of light; consequently, interior truth.

—³. The city called after Shechem was anciently called Salem . . . but the same city was afterwards called Shechem. Ill. The same city was afterwards called Sychar. Ill.

—^e. That the city Shechem=interior truth. Ill.

4436. 'Shechem the son of Hamor'=the truth with the Ancients.

4444⁶. This ancient statute was known to Shechem and Hamor. . . Thus Shechem was made such as a 'sojourner,' and so might have taken the daughter of Jacob, and therefore the killing of them was a nefarious deed.

4448. 'Shechem my son' (ver.8)=the truth from that good; for 'Shechem'=interior truth, (which) in its essence is nothing but the good of charity; (for) the remains of the Most Ancient Church were with Hamor the Hivite, and his son Shechem. 4454.

4453. To enter into the Knowledges of good and truth which are signified by Shechem the son of Hamor, and by his city. Sig.

[A.] 4454. 'Shechem said to her father and brethren' (ver. 11) = a consultation of the truth from an ancient Divine stock with the good and truth of this religiosity.

4459. 'Shechem' = the truth with the Ancients, or, what is the same, truth from an ancient Divine stock. 4476. 4477.

4473. 'Shechem,' here (ver. 18) = doctrine. Ex.

4501. 'Shechem' = the Church with the Ancients as to truth. Refs.

4537^e. 'Oak near Shechem' = fallacious Natural.

4707. 'In Shechem' (Gen. xxxvii. 12) = first rudiments. 'Shechem' = truth from an ancient Divine stock; doctrine; here, first rudiments of doctrine about faith. First rudiments are also generals of doctrinals: these are received first. 4709.

4716. '(Joseph) came to Shechem' (ver. 14) = Knowledge of generals of doctrinals. 4720.

6306⁷. The city of Shechem is not meant.

E. 374⁶. 'Men from Shechem-Sichem' (Jer. xli. 5) = those who profane.

638³³. (Jotham's parable of the trees to the citizens of Shechem.)

Sheep. Ovis.

See under CATTLE-pecus, and FLOCK.

A. 45. Sheep, mentioned.

294^e. 'Sheep' = those gifted with the good of charity; that is, with spiritual and natural good.

1361². Lambs and sheep, sacrificed, = celestial things.

2088^e. Signification of the Lord's 'other sheep.' 2661². 2669^e.

2179². Sheep are seen when Angels converse about rational goods, and probity.

2669³. The celestial are meant by, 'He calleth His Own sheep by name, and . . . goeth before them'; but the spiritual by the 'other sheep' (John x. 3, 4, 16). 3969¹⁰.

2781. Sheep relate to the will.

3994⁵. 'Feed My sheep' = those in charity (and thence in faith). 10087³.

4169. 'Thy sheep' (Gen. xxxi. 38) = good of the will.

—². 'Sheep' = goods. Ill.

—³. 'Sheep' = those in goods.

4263. 'Sheep' (Gen. xxxii. 14) = Divine goods.

4453. The sheep with which they traded.

4769⁵. 'Sheep' (Matt. xxv.) = those in charity, and thence in truths of faith. (= those in good: those are properly called 'sheep' who are in charity and thence in faith. 4809⁵.) E. 212^e. 600⁵.

4943^e. (Appearing of a sheep, which comforts them.)

6806. The Lord's 'sheep' = those in good.

8902⁷. 'Sheep of slaughter' (Zech. xi. 4) = those in simple good, with whom truths of faith are extinguished by no fault of theirs, but by that of those who teach them.

